To whom it may concern,

I am writing to share my deep concerns regarding the proposed territory coordinator legislation. The bill outlined proposes far too much power in one individual and takes away essential protections and rights from residents / environments within the NT. The step in powers and powers to access land outlined in the proposal are massively over reaching and I fear will most harm our vulnerable indigenous communities whose voices are already often overlooked. No single government position should have the powers outlined within the proposal, and so I strongly urge the government to scrap the bill

Kind regards,
Simon Riddell
