Sue Gorringe -Lupton

I am an avid supporter of the VAD laws for everyone as a matter of choice in the final and most difficult decision anyone needs to make. This should be a human right not tainted by religion or politics. We make these decisions to end suffering for our pets yet deny the same relief to our loved ones and ourselves . I have been involved in the " taking of leave" as a support person for many of our friends, my youngest sister and two of my husbands. It is an honour to be a part of this process, as with a new birth. Why then can the basic right be dictated when the person can make the greatest decision off their own life, not to die in fear and pain but to leave on their own terms.

Many thanks to the palliative care and medical practitioners who support those in pain, for their services and care. Please allow this decision to become a legal choice for those who seek to leave the world on their own terms.

Yours sincerely
