To whom it may concern:

Voluntary Assisted Dying, although it sounds nice, humane and innocent, has been implicated in many unintentional deaths. How is it really different from execution of the innocent? Holland's requirement of independent medical concurrence and agreement among doctors, as well as a group that examines all the legalities has not proved to be 100% safe.

Experts claim the "slippery slope" is a fallacy, and it may well be...except for when it isn't. Reports from several hospitals in NSW during the COVID-19 crisis, when sick elderly were lined up in corridors suggests that medical personnel "miscalculated" the amount of morphine some patients needed, and oops! They died...of COVID-19, of course. The experience of Holland and Belgium suggests that Granny may end up being euthanised so the grandkids can have a crack at her house.

I urge you to stand up against the culture of death that pervades our societies, and vote for life, instead.

Yours sincerely

Graham Stitz
