Question: How many Territorians were in training as at 31 March 2014 and 31 March 2013?

Answer:

The annual total number of students who accessed training through a government subsidised program or were a full fee paying domestic student through one of the NT's public providers is outlined below. This is the same formula that the National Centre for Vocational Education Research uses for its publications. The data is only available on a calendar year basis.

For the 2013 calendar year, there were 22,947 Northern Territory vocational education and training students and for the 2014 calendar year, there were 25,071 students. These figures include apprentices and trainees.
