To Whom it may concern,

This is an issue that I struggle with as I think it is a reflection on where our society is at, as to how we look after the most vulnerable in our society.

To legalise VAD creates so many issues for medical professionals who do or don't agree with VAD, and not every situation can be legislated for.

I lived in communities in Arnhem Land for 7 years and I know that the indigenous people do not agree with euthanasia, but once again will they really be listened to?

We must never do something because everyone else is doing it, this does not make it right or wrong and is the most pathetic reason to do something. We are not Lemmings.

In the end you must ask yourself, if I had the ability / skills to kill someone would I do it? Because no matter how it is dressed up a life is being taken.
