Volunteer assisted dying

I agree that persons should have the right to die if their medical condition is terminal regardless their present condition. Other words not waiting until their pain becomes unbearable.

A close relative with Parkinson's and pneumonia was given the choice to refuse treatment. He agreed that knowing he would die. But he was given drugs but taken off all food and water. It took three weeks for him to die. He may not have been in pain but it was distressing for his family.

A better solution would have been an instant injection with death taking only minutes.

My name is Elaine Ellard

Thank you.
