There's absolutely no need for those with religious beliefs and others to be apprehensive or afraid of VAD legislation. They need to know that it's a blessing and it's there for them should they choose to use it . No human being should have to endure unbearable pain and misery needlessly whether they be terminally ill or be in the terrible situation where they are suffering unbearably the disabling ravages of advanced old age . This is the reason we the senior Territorians are anxiously hoping that the NT govt will not only pass VAD legislation as soon as possible but with their wisdom , foresight and compassion will pass the most progressive , sensible and compassionate VAD legislation in Australia . Let the NT which was the very first jurisdiction to ever pass a medically assisted dying law be also the one to have the best VAD law better than all the rest .Let us once again be the shining light for other jurisdictions in end of life matters . Let us pave the way for others to follow suit . We know. that common sense will ultimately prevail and a more compassionate pro choice VAD law will be the norm for the future . But why wait when we can be the first in Australia to come up with a VAD law that will rightly give individuals especially those in advanced old age their basic human right to have more control over their end- of -life matters .

Sincerely, Poh Lim .
