In accordance with Clause 2(d) of the Terms of Reference of the Public Accounts Committee, the Chief Minister, Mr Marshall Perron, requested the Committee to inquire into and report to the Legislative Assembly on the following matter:

"The efficient conduct of the 1990 General Territory Election with particular regard to the cost efficiency of:-

- (a) the employment and/or secondment of temporary staff;
- (b) mobile polling;

CHAPTER 3

INTRODUCTION

At its meeting (No. 60) on the 21st March 1991 the Public Accounts Committee accepted a reference from the Chief Minister to inquire into the efficient conduct of the 1990 Legislative Assembly General Election. The Terms of Reference for the Inquiry are set out in Chapter 2 of this report.

In assessing the cost efficiency of the election the Committee considered a range of factors and performance indicators including:

- actual and comparative election costs;
- demographic changes since the 1987 General Election;
- enrolment and voter turnout statistics;
- * election time frames;
- * obligations imposed on the Chief Electoral Officer by the Electoral Act;
- * comparative data on the 1990 and 1987 General Elections; and
- * a report by the Internal Audit Bureau on financial operations and the Chief Electoral Officer's response.

The Committee has concluded that the 1990 General Election was conducted efficiently and effectively, as evinced by a range of performance indicators. The Committee is mindful that in conducting impartial elections the Chief Electoral Officer exercises statutory powers which quite properly rest with his Statutory Office. The Committee has, however, made a number of recommendations to enhance the administrative and financial management components of the election cycle.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Findings

In general terms the Committee has made the following findings:

- * A range of performance indicators confirm that the 1990 General Election was conducted cost effectively.
- * The election was conducted within the $550,000 budget allocation.
- * Substantial changes in the Territory's demography have impacted on mobile polling arrangements and other election strategies.
- * There is a financial penalty if an election is conducted within a minimum time frame.
- * There is some merit in having a team of Northern Territory residents trained to conduct mobile polling notwithstanding the fact that cost savings may be marginal.
- * There are a number of potential enhancements to management of the election cycle.

Recommendations

The Committee recommends that:

- 1. The Electoral Office prepare a strategy paper on the feasibility of developing a pool of local residents capable of conducting mobile polling.
- 2. The Government determine whether the Police Department's aircraft could be made available to mobile polling during future general elections.
- *3. The Government notes there are cost implications when elections are conducted within minimum time frames.

* Note Dissenting Report, see p. 23

- 4. The Electoral Act be amended to provide that for the purposes of the conduct of elections the Chief Electoral Officer has financial and personnel delegations equivalent to those of a Chief Executive Officer.
- 5. The Government Accounting System and Payroll System for processing of election transactions be implemented on a priority basis.
- 6. The Electoral Act be amended to make provision for tabling of a report by the Chief Electoral Officer after each election including audited financial statements.
- 7. In each year of the election cycle the Northern Territory Treasury be advised of the notional cost of a Legislative Assembly General Election and a By-Election in a rural as well as an urban division.

CHAPTER 5

CONDUCT OF THE ELECTION

Background

In assessing the conduct of a General Election in the Northern Territory it is necessary to take a range of considerations into account. Essentially elections are about ensuring that persons entitled to exercise the franchise are given the opportunity to vote. In the unique demographic and geographic context of the Northern Territory, enfranchising eligible citizens involves the provision of services to electors of differing cultural and linguistic backgrounds dispersed over one sixth of Australia's land mass. Elector numbers, geographic dispersion of electors, the time available to conduct an election and the quality of postal services impact on election costs.

Employment/Secondment of Temporary Staff

The permanent staffing structure of the Electoral Office comprises seven positions as identified at Appendix B. It is therefore necessary to employ temporary staff to assist with the conduct of major elections. Temporary staff fall into the following categories:

- * Assistant Returning Officers and Assistant Officers in static polling places.
- * Electoral practitioners seconded from the Commonwealth and State administrations to undertake duties as mobile polling team leaders.
- * Mobile polling team members and local assistants.
- * Office casuals employed to assist with election arrangements, issue postal votes and to provide services and information to the general public.

The number of temporary staff employed for an election is determined by a range of factors including:

- * The number of static polling places appointed.
- * The number of mobile polling teams deployed.
- The demand for postal voting and other services.
- * The period of time between Writ issue and polling day.

During the inquiry the Committee sought information on the practice of seconding interstate personnel to assist with the conduct of general elections. Interstate electoral practitioners have been used at every general election since self-government.

Their employment offers the following advantages:

- * They are expert electoral practitioners who require minimum training to undertake the task of mobile polling. Mobile polling involves a number of unique aspects and there is a frequent requirement to make important on-the-spot decisions in a difficult environment.
- * They are, and are seen to be, totally impartial.
- * They have the skills and experience necessary to resist pressure exerted by party workers and candidates' representatives in the context of bitter partisan contests.

In terms of expenditure on interstate personnel it should be noted that the Electoral Office does not incur the cost of salaries for interstate personnel during the period of secondment. Secondees are remunerated at the standard polling official rate for work on the weekend of the poll. They are not remunerated for field work as mobile polling team leaders in the week preceding polling day. Generally, the additional cost of employing interstate secondees is minimal. This conclusion rests on the following facts:

- * Travelling allowance is paid to a mobile polling team leader irrespective of the point of recruitment.
- * While employment of interstate personnel involves payment of airfares to home base, unlike local recruits they are not remunerated for work in the field other than at the standard polling official rate on the weekend of the poll.

Eighteen interstate personnel were utilised for the 1990 General Election. This is a reduction of five in the number of interstate staff used in 1987. The clash of the Legislative Assembly and ATSIC elections resulted in the unavailability of six local staff which, under other circumstances, would have reduced the number of interstate secondees to twelve.

In discussing alternative approaches to the recruitment of mobile polling team leaders the Chief Electoral Officer advised the Committee that:

"The alternative to utilising interstate personnel for general elections is to recruit and train a pool of potential mobile team leaders and regional co-ordinators who could be called upon as required. This strategy would involve periodic training on a six monthly or annual basis. However, the high turnover of population in the Territory could tend to continually diminish the pool of potential mobile polling team leaders and regional co-ordinators. In addition, it should be noted that in the difficult remote electoral environment there is no substitute for extensive electoral knowledge and experience."

Mobile polling and staffing strategies are revised as part of the planning process for each general election. Expressions of interest for employment as a polling official are invited by public advertisement and in each calender year.

Notwithstanding the fact that cost savings may be marginal there is some merit in having a team of N.T. residents trained to conduct mobile polling.

Recommendation 1

It is recommended that the Electoral Office prepare a strategy paper on the feasibility of developing a pool of local residents capable of conducting mobile polling.

Mobile Polling

Sub-section 64(1) of the Electoral Act provides that the Chief Minister may authorise the use of mobile polling teams for an election. Sub-section 64(2) provides that the Chief Electoral Officer shall specify the location, date and hours of mobile polling.

Mobile polling for parliamentary elections was pioneered in Australia at the Territory's 1980 Legislative Assembly General Election. Mobile polling has been used at successive general elections and is an integral component of the Electoral Office's strategy to enfranchise electors.

Twenty-four mobile polling teams were deployed for the 1990 General Election. Itineraries and votes taken by mobile polling teams are set out at Appendices H and I respectively.

There was a substantial increase in the number of polling places visited during the 1990 General Elections. This was in direct response to demographic changes in the relevant period. In remote divisions, enrolment increased by 4,716 or 22.32% between the 1987 and 1990 elections. In explaining the philosophy underpinning the mobile polling strategy adopted for the 1990 election the Chief Electoral Officer stated:

"The electoral process is at the heart of the democratic process. The conduct of free and fair elections is essential to the community's acceptance of the election outcome.

In the Northern Territory enrolment and voting for eligible persons are compulsory. Where citizens fulfil their responsibilities by enrolling, it is incumbent on the electoral administration to provide electors with the opportunity to cast a meaningful vote, irrespective of place of residence or ethnic background.

Failure by the electoral administration to provide electors with the opportunity to vote could result in the Election Tribunal ordering the conduct of a fresh election with attendant costs. In the case of a closely contested election, in overall terms, disenfranchisement of eligible electors could cause the need for the conduct of another general election".

In determining mobile polling locations the Electoral Office considers a range of criteria including:

- * Number of electors enrolled.
- Voter turnout at previous elections.
- Remote community profiles.
- * Election time frame.
- * Adequacy of postal services.

Mobile polling is planned so as to minimise the cost of remote polling. To the fullest extent possible road transportation is utilised. Where travel by surface vehicle is not viable because of distance or road quality, aircraft are utilised. Electoral Office policy is to use fixed wing twin engine aircraft. On the rare occasion when there is no other available alternative, helicopters are deployed. Their use is deliberately minimised because of cost implications.

Mobile polling itineraries are structured logically to minimise backtracking and attendant costs. Elector turnout is frequently unpredictable because of the high mobility of many remote communities. Cultural factors such as ceremonies and sorry camps can require adjustment to itineraries.

Conduct of mobile polling across the Northern Territory in extremely short time frames is a major logistical exercise. The record voter turnout for the 1990 General Election (81.59%) and the reduced level of informal voting confirms the effectiveness of the mobile polling strategy. In the final analysis, appointment of mobile polling places is a statutory responsibility which clearly rests with the Chief Electoral Officer.

During the inquiry the Committee sought advice on whether the option of utilising the Police Department's Navajos for mobile polling had been considered. The Chief Electoral Officer informed the Committee that this option had never been previously considered.

Recommendation 2

It is recommended that the Government determine whether the Police Department's aircraft could be made available to mobile polling during future general elections.

Postal Voting

As indicated at Appendix E 4,902 postal votes were issued for the 1990 Legislative Assembly General Election. A substantial portion of postal votes were issued "in person" at Electoral Offices in the week preceding polling day.

For the first time at a general election, in addition to Darwin and Alice Springs, postal votes were issued from Katherine, Tennant Creek, Nhulunbuy and interstate capital cities.

This new service extended the opportunity to vote to some 682 electors who may otherwise have been disenfranchised. Due to the short time frame in which the election was conducted and the inadequacy of postal services to many remote regions, postal voting services are complemented by extensive mobile polling.

Conduct of the Poll including the subsequent Count of Votes

A range of factors and performance indicators confirm the efficient and effective conduct of the 1990 General Election. Salient points include:

- * The election was conducted within budget. (Appendix A)
- * The election coincided with the conduct of other major electoral events.

  (Appendix C)
- * There were eighteen days between Writ issue and polling day. (Appendix D)
- * Between the 1987 and 1990 elections, total enrolment increased by 7,628 or 10.22%. (Appendix F)

- * An additional 18 static polling places were utilised.
- * An additional 115 mobile polling places were visited (includes hospitals and prisons).
- Postal voting facilities were available for the first time in all State and Territory capital cities.
- * Postal voting facilities were available for the first time during a general election at Nhulunbuy, Katherine and Tennant Creek.
- * 4,902 postal votes were issued, an increase of 62% on the 1987 general election. (Appendix E)
- Regional co-ordinators were deployed in major centres outside Darwin for the first time for a general election.
- * Cost increase in real terms was 7.25% on the 1987 election.
- Increased cost coincided with a range of additional services to the voting public.
- * Cost per elector decreased by 17.7% between the 1987 and 1990 elections.
- * Actual voter turnout increased by 13,990 or 26.38% on the 1987 election. (Appendix F)
- * Percentage turnout of enrolled electors was 81.59%, the highest ever for a Legislative Assembly General Election. This represents an increase of 10.41% on the 1987 election.
- * The informal vote decreased by 1.04% on the 1987 election.
- * There were no petitions lodged with the Court of Disputed Returns.

During the inquiry a significant issue identified was the impact of election time frames on election costs. As indicated above, for the 1990 election there were eighteen days between Writ issue and polling day. As indicated at Appendix F there has been a continuing increase in elector numbers in both urban and remote locations at successive elections. It will become increasingly difficult to conduct elections within absolute minimum times as the dispersion and number of electors increases. Moreover, while it is difficult to quantify precisely, minimum election dates result in substantially increased election costs. This is particularly true of costs associated with temporary staff, overtime and mobile polling. (See Appendix A)

*Recommendation 3

It is recommended that the Government notes there are cost implications when elections are conducted within minimum time frames.

* Note Dissenting Report, see p. 23

CHAPTER 6

MANAGEMENT ISSUES

Delegations

During the inquiry it became apparent that some uncertainty has arisen concerning the exercise of financial and personnel delegations by the Chief Electoral Officer during the conduct of elections. While the Electoral Act makes provision for the appointment of polling officials, it is silent on the authority of the Chief Electoral Officer to expend monies on the conduct of elections and to recruit temporary staff other than polling officials.

It is essential that there is no possibility of the Chief Electoral Officer's statutory obligations under the Electoral Act being impaired by inadequate financial and personnel delegations. It is axiomatic that an officer with significant statutory responsibilities, particularly those involving the provision of services for the conduct of elections, be given commensurate financial and personnel delegations.

Recommendation 4

It is recommended that the Electoral Act be amended to provide that for the purposes of the conduct of elections the Chief Electoral Officer has financial and personnel delegations equivalent to those of a Chief Executive Officer.

Computer Processing of Accounts

Prior to the 1990 General Election the Electoral Office initiated plans for computerising election accounts. A number of factors constrained progress and the system was not implemented prior to the election. The manual system used for processing election accounts and payments to temporary staff experienced difficulties in coping with the large volume of financial transactions generated. The Chief Electoral Officer has advised the Committee that election accounting needs are being reassessed in the context of the 1990 election experience. The Committee has formed the view that the Government Accounting System and Payroll System are suitable for the processing of election accounts.

Recommendation 5

It is recommended that the Government Accounting System and Payroll System for processing of election transactions be implemented on a priority basis.

Reporting to Parliament

Under existing law there is no statutory requirement for formal reporting to the Northern Territory Parliament on the conduct of elections.

The Committee believes that the increased responsibility and autonomy for the conduct of elections advocated above should be complemented by increased accountability and reporting.

Recommendation 6

It is recommended that the Electoral Act be amended to make provision for tabling of a report by the Chief Electoral Officer after each election including audited financial statements.

Annual Election Budgets

During the inquiry the Chief Electoral Officer advised the Committee that as part of planning processes an election budget would be prepared in each year of the election cycle. Although there is minimum likelihood of a general election in the earlier years of the election cycle, budget preparation brings election planning matters into sharp focus. The Committee commends this proposed strategy and believes that there is merit in providing a notional election cost to the Northern Territory Treasury in each year of the election cycle with a view to enhancing global fiscal strategies.

Similarly the notional cost of a By-Election in a rural as well as a urban division could be estimated.

Recommendation 7

It is recommended that in each year of the election cycle the Northern Territory Treasury be advised of the notional cost of a Legislative Assembly General Election and a By-Election in a rural as well as an urban division.

Independent Electoral Commission

The Northern Territory is the only jurisdiction in which the establishment of an Independent Electoral Commission has not been initiated. In addition to philosophical arguments supporting the establishment of an Electoral Commission in the Territory, it has been put to the Committee by the Chief Electoral Officer that an electoral administration headed by an Independent Electoral Commissioner would result in increased cost efficiency and enhanced accountability.

Although the Committee does not intend to address this issue in its current report, the Chief Electoral Officer has been asked to provide the Committee with a paper on the benefits of establishing an Electoral Commission in the Northern Territory. At a later stage the Committee will consider whether it is appropriate to make formal recommendations to government on the financial benefits of an Independent Electoral Commission when the Chief Electoral Officer's paper is available.

"It is our opinion that a minimum time frame has a pronounced effect on the total cost of running a Northern Territory General Election.

Hence we proposed the alternative recommendation stated below."

Recommendation 3

It is recommended that the Government consider extending the limitation of dates for general elections so as to provide for a minimum of 24 days between Writ issues and polling day.
