Answered On: 09/07/2007

Answer: The Government Printing Office produces around 3000 print jobs annually, incorporating a significant variety of print requirements, including but not limited to budget papers, agency annual reports, marketing publications, industry consultation papers and Tourism NT promotions. The GPO also undertakes print jobs for agencies in respect to stationery supplies such as business cards, letterheads and envelope markings.

These print jobs are mostly done by GPO, with some 24% of work value outsourced to private sector printers.

The breakdown of GPO print jobs for 2006-07 is as follows:
