   (b) Amounts deducted from NT employees' salaries have been invested by the Investment Trust along with all other money received. As part of its investment program, the trust has made direct investments in the Northern Territory totalling some $8.54 million since 1 July 1978. This amount includes the purchase of Custom Credit House, Minerals House and Construction House and a mortgage loan of $1.5 million to a Darwin based company.

   In addition, some of the trust's investments in Commonwealth bonds, Telecom inscribed stock and shares and debentures in companies that undertake part of their operations in the Northern Territory could be considered as indirect investment by the trust in the Northern Territory.

   (c) The most recent figures available on the Investment Trust's earning rate relate to the financial year 1979-80. The annual earning rate of the fund for 1979-80 was 9.637%. This figure takes account of windfall income, income transfers, etc., and represents the average earning rate on contributors' equity.

   Because of the possibility of unavoidable delays in the prescription of the annual earning rate the regulations provide for the prescription of an 'exit' rate to apply during the period following the year for which an annual rate has been prescribed. The current 'exit' rate for the period from 1 July 1980 is 11.5%, and this rate is used in the calculation of benefits payable to persons who leave the fund before the annual rate for 1980-81 is prescribed.

Housing Commission Rental Increases

604 Mr LEO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

In view of the recent Housing Commission rental increases, will he advise the Housing Commission rent review formula for both public service and general public housing, the annual rent review documentation including the source and effect of the resulting calculations - in other words how this formula was arrived at - and a comparison between NT rents and appropriate southern rents?

ANSWER

Annual rent reviews in respect of general housing are carried out in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Housing Act. Although not specifically covered in the Housing Act the annual review of public service rents is conducted along similar lines. The formula is detailed in the Act which requires that the following components be used: principal and interest; maintenance; rates and taxes; insurance; vacancies and defaults; administration.

The totals of these components estimated for 1981-82 were: general public $2,431 and staff $3,745. It must be stressed that these figures are the average over all types of dwelling per scheme. These amounts are then apportioned according to dwelling type and location. The Public Service Commissioner determines the rent to be charged for public service housing. In determining this rent the Public Service Commissioner has regard to the economic rent required by the Housing Commission to meet component costs and the general levels of rental paid by members of the general public to the Housing Commission. Any deficit is made up by Treasury.

It is difficult to compare Northern Territory rents with rents in southern states due to differing circumstances and the wide variety of rents charged in various locations. Some indication can, however, be given by the table below:

	3-Bedroom House
Darwin NTPS	$ 60.00	 Sydney	$ 90-160
Darwin GP	$ 57.50	 Melbourne	$ 75-130
* Darwin Private	$140.00	 Perth	$ 50-75
 Brisbane	$ 65-80	 Canberra	$ 65-85

Brucellosis and Tuberculosis Eradication Campaign

607 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What action will his department take to provide grids on public roads to assist control of cattle during the TB and brucellosis eradication campaign?

ANSWER

The Department of Primary Production is surveying the need for cattle grids throughout the Territory. It has 4 main areas of concern which are:

1. Which roads require cattle grids.
2. Where existing fences cross existing roads or new roads, does responsibility for the grid lie with the Department of Transport and Works?
3. Where new fences are erected which cross public roads the responsibility appears to lie with the owner.
4. Where new fences are required to be erected for the purposes of brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication, responsibility lies with the owner as things now stand.

This question of responsibility for the grid is under consideration by the department at the moment as part of the general review of the needs of industry to comply with eradication requirements.

Electricity Supply Around Katherine

609 Mr MacFARLANE to TREASURER

What progress is being made towards providing electricity to (a) Katherine Gorge, (b) the 15-mile Farm (KREC), and (c) the low-level area and rural development?

ANSWER

Katherine Gorge

The design and specification for the Katherine Gorge feeder has been completed and is being checked.

Considerable technical input was required for this particular line as wooden cross-arms and flying fox protection caps are to be used to improve reliability of this proposed feeder.

The project will be released for tender by late March.

Katherine Rural Education College

A general route for the power line has been established and negotiations are being held with the Department of Education regarding funding of the line.

Low Level Area and Rural Development

NTEC is in consultation with the Department of Transport and Works regarding the provision of electricity supply to lots 1 to 6 along the low level road.

Groote Eylandt Aboriginal Trust Account

627 Mr MacFARLANE to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Is it a fact that Aborigines on Groote Eylandt have a trust account of $4m yielding more than $400,000 per annum interest?
2. Are these Territorians subject to a means test for social service benefits?

ANSWER

1. The Groote Eylandt Aboriginal Trust has over a period of 15 years built up capital of approximately $4.8m from mining rents and royalties in order to provide for the future of its people when mining is finished. Income on investments for the year 1980-81 totalled $430,828.
2. Aboriginal people are subject to means testing for social service benefits as are other Territorians. Possession of assets by individuals is not necessarily a disqualifying factor except where those assets are earning an income. The Department of Social Security applies the income test equally to all people. The bulk of the trust's income for the year 1980-81 was devoted to community purposes.

Beef Tenderising Techniques

637 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is he or his department promoting tenderising techniques such as tender stretch and electrical rectal stimulation to make Territory beef acceptable to Darwin housewives?

ANSWER

The government has for some time promoted the home sales of Territory beef and the Chief Minister recently directed the department to step up the campaign and to examine ways and means of making a wider selection of Territory produced quality cuts available to the Northern Territory housewife.

Such developments will cover beef sales production, presentation, packaging and promotion together with the investigation of aids to achieve quality production including tenderising techniques, etc.

Quite recently the department has had a request from a Darwin abattoir for help in developing the usage of such aids and the department is doing everything it can to help.

2.(a) Yes. The bar had closed and NTEC management had left. Subsequently, the Manager of Travelodge accompanied by the bar waitress requested Mr J. Lawson of the Electrical Trades Union to sign the docket for $53 as acknowledgement of the expenditure. Arrangements had been previously made for all expenses to be paid in one account at the end of the 3-day conference, therefore a separate account for the $53 was not expected on that evening. Mr Lawson phoned the next day to advise he had signed on NTEC's behalf.

3.(a) Details of the interstate trips made by the Manager (Industrial) during 1981 are as follows:

Mung Beans, ADMA Markets

647 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. Has ADMA yet established firm export markets for mung beans to be purchased by the authority this season?

2. If so, where are these markets?

3. What progress is being made with the ADMA market strategy generally?

ANSWER

1. The ADMA estimates that approximately 100 tonnes of mung beans will be produced this season and as this crop shows significant potential, in the order of 40 tonnes will be retained for seed supplies for the 1983 crop.

   The remaining 60 tonnes will be offered to buyers both within Australia and in Singapore, when graded samples are available. The authority announced an indicative price of $350 per tonne for mung beans, but as world price is above that, it feels confident that returns to growers will be most attractive.

2. The Chairman of the authority has made contact with importers in Singapore and, in addition, importers in the United States and Hong Kong have also advised the authority of their interest.

3. The authority has now established a detailed program for handling both grain crops and horticultural crops. The 4 principal crops to be handled through the authority's grain receival depot are sorghum, maize, mung beans and peanuts. Details for delivery to the depot have been made available to farmers and it is anticipated that receivals will commence in mid-April.

   Growers delivering to the depot will be paid the following first advances:

   Sorghum - $91 per tonne; maize - $126 per tonne; mung beans - $266 per tonne; peanuts - $245 per tonne.

   These prices are significantly higher than prices ruling on the east coast of Australia. For example, the first payment for sorghum in Queensland is $70 per tonne.

   All likely users of feed grains in the NT have been contacted by the authority and they have shown substantial support for having one body organise their supplies of grain.

   The authority is also handling horticultural produce on an agency basis, and in a few months time will resume the marketing of rockmelons both interstate and overseas.

Access Road, Bynoe Harbour

652 Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What (a) type of development is envisaged that would justify the building of the Bynoe Harbour access road currently being constructed parallel to the old Mandorah Road, (b) what parts of Cox Peninsula will the road reach, (c) where will it end, and (d) what is the estimated total cost of the planned work?

ANSWER

(a) The development of the community at Belyuen generates traffic volumes warranting upgrading the road to the standard presently being constructed. In addition, increasing development in the pastoral, fishing, mining and recreational industries necessitates an upgraded level of service.

(b) & (c) The current 5-year forward program includes proposals to join the seal between the Blackmore River and Pioneer Creek and to commence some realignment through Bulldog Pass. Further work beyond Bulldog Pass has not been assessed or programmed.

(d) Bridge and roadworks completed to date have cost $1.1m. Bridgeworks to be completed this year are valued at $0.6m. Expected cost of the future works on the current forward program is in the vicinity of 2.3m.

Electricity, Daly Waters

660 Mr MacFARLANE to TREASURER

Under the memorandum of understanding, provision of electricity to all gazetted townships is guaranteed. Is Daly Waters a gazetted town, and if so, why is there no town supply?

ANSWER

There is no guarantee under the Inter-governmental Memorandum of Financial Understanding that a gazetted town will be supplied with electricity by the Northern Territory Electricity Commission.

Daly Waters is a gazetted town under the Crown Lands Act.

All towns in which NTEC now operates are gazetted towns. NTEC does not operate in all gazetted towns but in 18 out of a total of 29. Any decision of NTEC to operate in any gazetted town where it does not now operate would involve considerations of the impact on the cost of NTEC operations as the costs would exceed the tariff revenue.

Police Planning Group

662 Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Has his attention been drawn to comments by a spokesman for the NT Police in the NT News on 22 February 1982?
2. If so, which officers comprise the 'planning group' which has developed 'a major crime plan to ensure the efficiency of investigation of serious crimes in remote localities'?
3. What aspects of the use of batons has been under review by the planning group?
4. What new procedures for investigation developed by the planning group have been implemented?

ANSWER

1. Yes. However, the article in the NT News of 22 February 1982 creates a false impression. The police denial in relation to the issue of bush batons related to a denial that batons would be issued for specific use against Aboriginal people.

2. The 'planning group' referred to in the newspaper article has been involved in a study of batons and not the investigation of serious crime in remote localities.

3. The planning group has considered the lack of a more efficient means of defence between the extremes of use of a short rubber truncheon and a firearm in certain situations.

4. The new procedures of investigation refer to a major crime plan, the implementation of which is under the control of a chief superintendent, recently bolstered by a superintendent, both of whom are independent from the 2 major geographic commands, viz. Northern Command (Darwin based) and Southern Command (Alice Springs based).

Health Clinic, Napperby

669 Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has agreement been reached on a suitable site for the proposed health clinic at Napperby Station and, if so, when will the clinic be erected?

ANSWER

A site has been agreed to by the owner of the station and the Laramba Community.

An amount of $6,000 has been approved under the grants-in-aid scheme to assist the Laramba Community in erecting the prefabricated clinic.

Erection work will be undertaken by skilled labour from the Laramba Community and is expected to commence by the end of May 1982. The clinic is expected to be operational by the end of June 1982.

Foreign Owned Pastoral Leases

678 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

1. How many pastoral leases in the Northern Territory are held by foreign interests?

2. Will he provide a list of these stations and details of their ownership?

ANSWER

1. At present, out of a total of 238 pastoral leases in the Northern Territory, 35 are held by foreign interests.

2. Ownership details are publicly available from the Registrar-General's office.

Excise Duty, Fortified Wines

680 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of the need to discourage consumption of fortified wines by Aborigines, will he recommend that Commonweatlh excise duty be charged so that the basic unit price will be more competitive with other kinds of liquors?

ANSWER

There is at present no Commonwealth excise duty on Australian wines and to impose a duty for the purpose suggested by the honourable member would be a penalty on all consumers. The federal government has consistently resisted imposing such a duty. In any case a duty would not necessarily achieve the aim of discouraging consumption of fortified wine.

The Northern Territory Liquor Commission, in cooperation with other agencies, is taking definite steps to alleviate drinking problems among Aboriginals. Among other action, fortified wine sales have been restricted and some 'dry' areas are dry to any liquor except beer. I have asked the Liquor Commission to keep the option recommended by the honourable member under review with the object of recommending excise duty if such a course becomes necessary.

Petrol Bowser, Mataranka

689 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Was the Shell petrol bowser at Mataranka found to be inaccurate in 1981, and threatened with closure in March 1982?
2. If so, has the fault been rectified?

ANSWER

1. Both Shell petrol bowsers (driveway flowmeters) situated at the Mataranka Hotel were found to be correct in October 1981, and again in March 1982. However, both distillate flowmeters, owned by Shell, are of the bulk delivery type and not suitable nor of a design approved by the National Standards Commission for the use to which they have been put. (Accurate delivery at low flow-rates and volumes of less than 90 litres not being guaranteed). In October 1981 a new proprietor had taken over the Mataranka Hotel and was unaware of the situation in relation to the distillate flowmeters so temporary permission was granted for continued use of the flowmeters and a letter was sent to Shell on 4 November 1981 requiring the matter to be rectified. In March 1982 the matter had not been rectified. Consequently a Verification Certificate was not issued and the flowmeters could not be used pursuant to the Weights and Measures Act.
2. This situation has now been resolved. Shell have purchased an NSC approved bowser for the sale of distillate and are in the process of installing the same at the Mataranka Hotel.

Arthurell and Buckley Case

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

There has been much comment on the recent indictment for murder in the Supreme Court in Alice Springs against Arthurell and Buckley being changed to one of manslaughter. As Attorney-General, have you any comment?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not propose to comment on the actions of the Crown Prosecutor in Alice Springs. There are internal arrangements in the Department of Law whereby law officers of the Crown delegate their authority for the presentation of the indictments on behalf of the Crown and indeed in the case of filing a nolle prosequi I might say that I reserve the latter to myself except when I am absent from the Territory and the Solicitor-General has the authority and the power to file a nolle prosequi. Whatever the internal arrangements are within the Department of Law, in the final analysis, I do recognise that the decision in any particular case where it is difficult or impossible to refer to superiors does lie with the prosecutor. In view of the controversy that surrounded this particular matter, I sought, through the Solicitor-General, a report or explanation from Mr Norman, the Assistant Crown Solicitor in Alice Springs, of the reasons for his taking the action that he did. The report is marked confidential. However, I have pointed out to the Solicitor-General that I would perhaps be called upon to use this in the Assembly at this sittings and I do not regard the report as confidential. I did not seek it on that basis; I sought it as the man's political superior. I also propose to table with the report from the Assistant Crown Solicitor a copy of the transcript of proceedings before His Honour Mr Justice Kearney of Alice Springs on Wednesday 21 May 1982 at 2.05 pm which proceedings relate to the sentencing of the 2 people referred to by the honourable member for Alice Springs. Mr Speaker, I seek the leave of the Assembly to table these 2 documents.

Leave granted.

Use of Firearms by Security Guards

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What in general terms are the regulations governing the use of firearms by private security guards and what type of training and what level of competence in the use of these firearms by private security guards are required in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

I am unable to give a detailed answer to the Leader of the Opposition. Nevertheless, I understand the Registrar of Firearms has fairly stringent conditions for the issuing of any firearm licence as prescribed and laid down within the act. I can certainly provide full details to the Leader of the Opposition, probably before the conclusion of the sittings and certainly if he would like to put it on notice.

Sports Insurance

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for YOUTH SPORT and RECREATION

Last year the Northern Territory government initiated moves to have the issue of sports insurance fully investigated. What has been the result of this Northern Territory government initiative?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in 1980 there was a very serious injury to one of our Territory sportsmen, Stem Edwards. He was a rugby player. There was strong public feeling that the Northern Territory government should investigate the setting up of some kind of sporting insurance. After representations from sporting organisations, the Chief Minister sent out 122 letters to the various sporting organisations in the Northern Territory of which he only received 14 replies. Consequently, 10 of those replies led to discussions with the Territory Insurance Office regarding sporting insurance.

Recently, another Territory sportsman, a motor cyclist named Clive Baxter, received a very serious injury whilst competing. The call for sports insurance was made again. I am quite happy to tell members of the Assembly that sports insurance does exist. It exists through 3 venues: the Casplan which is part of the Confederation of Australian Sports Industry; the Aussieplan which is made up by a group of insurance companies; and the TIO.

The TIO has a policy for a premium of about $46 made up from 2 parts. For a $25 premium, compensation of up to $50,000 can be paid for very serious injuries or death. The payment for the loss of a finger is 30% of that $50,000. A player can pay a further $21 per season to be eligible for medical benefits of up to $500 plus about $200 a week for up to a year. For $46 a year, a rugby player can insure himself for $50,000 and also for payment of up to $200 a week. The rugby league season works out to about 24 games including the finals. For about $2 a game, a player can cover himself through the Territory Insurance Office. In contrast, a netball player can insure herself or himself for $5 per season receiving the same benefits of up to $50,000 or payments of $150 a week while the injury remains. There is certainly an avenue for Territory sportsmen to insure themselves. The Territory Insurance Office is also open for Aussieplan which covers sports such as motor cycling, car racing and stock car racing. Because of the nature of injuries that can be sustained in those particular sports, the TIO has sought the agency from Aussieplan to implement premiums on its behalf in the Northern Territory. Through this, even in those dangerous sports, insurance is available. I have asked the TIO to advertise the fact that it has sports insurance and I believe that those advertisements will appear in the local newspapers in the next couple of weeks. Also, this week, I will be sending a letter to every Territory sporting organisation relating to particular plans and schedules that are available through TIO. In answer to the honourable member's question, we have been working very hard towards providing cover and I thank TIO and the Treasurer for implementing such a scheme.

Failure to Fluoridate Water Supply

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Why were the people of Darwin not informed that fluoride was not being added to the water supply for nearly 12 months? Will he give an undertaking to the Assembly that if this situation recurs in the future people will be informed promptly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would point out to the honourable member for Fannie Bay that the control and admission of fluoride to the Darwin water supply is properly the responsibility of the Minister of Transport and Works. The government fully supports the admission of fluoride to water supplies in the Northern Territory as a part of the caries prevention program in dental care. However, while the Department of Health is the sponsoring department for the program, it does not have the operational control over it. The honourable member's question is really: 'Why weren't the people advised?'. I can only say that I did not advise anybody because I did not know. The moment that it was brought to our attention, the matter was rectified and the people were advised. I believe that, even during this period, there were members of the dental profession in Darwin who were aware that there was no fluoride in the water and were recommending to their clients that they take fluoride tablets of their own volition.

Under those circumstances, I think it would not have been unreasonable for those members of the dental profession to bring it to the attention of authorities. I can give the member an assurance that we too are concerned at the lapse and that every effort will be made to see that it does not happen again. If it does happen again, we will undertake to contact the member and her constituents and everybody else in the Northern Territory to tell them what care they should take.

Jabiru Town Advisory Council

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he give me details of the proposed initial operation of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council so that a streamlined operation can ensue after the recent elections?

ANSWER

The Jabiru Town Advisory Council elections were held on Saturday 22 May 1982 and the results as declared by Mr A.T. Hangan, the returning officer, on 24 May 1982 are as follows: Atkinson 127, Bartlett 39, Court 102, Crone 92, Danielson 145, Green 109, Hobby 30, Main 138, McLaren 87, Nitschke 60, Smith 60, Tenthy 97, Urquhart 64 and Ward 74. Mr Hangan declared that Kaye Teresa Danielson, Eric Macdonald Main, David Neil Atkinson, David G. Green and Gilmore Alexander Court were duly elected as members of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council.

Mr Speaker, I would also like to announce that the 3 nominated representatives will be Mr Geoff Stolz, the Chairman of the Jabiru Town Development Authority, Mr Ray McHenry, the Co-ordinator General, and Mr Allan MacIntosh, the senior staff member of Energy Resources of Australia, a man who has been resident of Jabiru for many years. By many people, he is regarded as the pioneer of Jabiru.

Mr Speaker, officers of the JTDA will be meeting with the elected representatives on Wednesday evening, on an informal basis, to discuss some preliminary matters which we hope will lead to an early first meeting of the council. Certainly, I would like to bring before this sittings of the Assembly an amendment to the Jabiru Town Development Act which will enable the formal constitution of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council. The election is the most significant milestone in the life of this new town. I look forward with keen interest to the progressive establishment of the town advisory body and I hope to be able to attend the first formal meeting of that body myself.

Bachelor of Arts Degree Course Commencement

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What action has he taken to expedite the commencement of the BA degree course at the Darwin Community College?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have noted the honourable member's interest in this matter over the last few days. It is a shame that he cannot get his facts right occasionally.

There are 3 elements involved in the commencement of the Bachelor of Arts course or any new degree course at the Darwin Community College or anywhere else in this country. Of course, the first one is accreditation. If it is conducted in a university then that is assumed. The second is the Tertiary Education Commission's approval for that course to commence. The third is for the Commonwealth government to ensure recurrent funding for the course.

Since the commencement of the Commonwealth Act, responsibility for advanced education in this country lies solely with the Commonwealth in respect of any advanced or degree course. An agreement was entered into at the last Perth conference of the Australian Education Council that no state would commence an advanced level course without the clearance of the Tertiary Education Commission and without direct funding by the Comonwealth. While, of course, that suited the states and the Commonwealth to prevent the massive duplication that was occurring in many areas of advanced education throughout the Commonwealth, we could not see then the disadvantage at which we would be placed as a result of that decision.

Mr Speaker, the position at the moment is that the course is accredited, subject to the employment of additional staff which requires additional Commonwealth money, additional library resources in particular and resources generally. The Tertiary Education Commission has repeatedly indicated, through its various reports, that it is opposed to the establishment of an internally-conducted Bachelor of Arts course at the Darwin Community College, a view which is wholly rejected by the government and, I dare say, by every member of the Assembly. Nonetheless, in its last letter to the Post School Advisory Council at the end of January this year, the TEC indicated that it recognises there has been a very strong desire for a Bachelor of Arts course to be commenced here. It must be very astute indeed; its powers of observation stagger me. It has pointed out that that being the case, while it still objects to the launching of such a course, there are certain conditions upon which it would agree to it.

Its acknowledgement of its willingness to agree to it is contained in a most extraordinary letter of 29 January. It says, on the one hand, and I will read from it: 'In its report on the proposal to establish a University of the Northern Territory, the commission indicated that it would consider proposals for the introduction of new UG3 level courses' - that is, associated diploma level courses - 'at the Darwin Community College within the level of funding available for the 1982-83 triennial. It did not however support the diversion of resources' - and that word is very important later on - 'to provide courses such as the proposed Bachelor of Arts by internal mode'. Mr Speaker, it favours the Northern Territory being tied to some other university elsewhere and doing it through a new school of external studies which is recommended for establishment by the TEC. It goes on to say that the TEC maintains this view but, 'in light of the apparent strong support for the course in the Northern Territory, it would not object to the introduction provided it can be assured that the course can be offered within the already legislative resources and without prejudicing the provision of existing courses in either the advanced or TAFE areas of the college'. It then goes on to say: 'In relation to the request for additional funds, I have to advise that, as funding for the triennium is fixed, there is no possibility that funds allocated to the Darwin Community College can be increased for the 1982-83 period'. That is funds overall not just the proposed Bachelor of Arts course for which it has quite consciously said no additional funds will be available. 'Furthermore, it cannot be assumed that the commission would be prepared to recommend a level of funding for the next triennium, 1984-87, specifically to accommodate the course'. That is the Bachelor of Arts course.

On the one hand, we have the Tertiary Education Commission saying to us that it would not object to the course commencing provided it would not in any way affect the existing courses or indeed the UG3 courses which it has subsequently approved. The funding shall be within the allocation already made for 1982-84 and there will be no additional funds for 1984-87 and beyond to accommodate the course. We are in a total catch-22, and the Tertiary Education Commission and the Commonwealth know this. We cannot commence the course without additional resources being made available and without adversely affecting those courses which are already running - that is, by way of having to impose quotas. The moment you impose quotas, the normal usage of the English language says it would affect the course. Worse still, if within the funding made available in this triennium the Darwin Community College was to wind down at least on growth if not on existing quotas and student numbers for existing courses, what would happen to us in the next triennium if, as the TEC has made clear, there is no guarantee of additional Commonwealth funding? As the course grows in student numbers and in the required number of lecturers under the report of the accreditation panel, the net result would obviously and of necessity be a significant reduction in the level of existing courses. This flies entirely in the face of what the TEC itself has said about its being essential that these things do not happen. Coupled with that, there is no guarantee of Commonwealth funding to cover the course. The Commonwealth has made it clear that, if any state were to go into the provision of advanced courses outside of the TEC's funding and recommendations, then the Commonwealth would seriously consider reducing that state's general subventions by the equivalent amount of the cost of mounting that course.

The TEC has indeed placed us in an absolutely impossible position with this letter. I have had a series of drafts from the Darwin Community College which went as far as suggesting that perhaps the TEC would accept quotas being imposed on existing courses. The letter before me clearly outrules that as a possibility. Further, we cannot have a situation where we have no guarantee of funding for the next triennium. The result would be catastrophic for existing courses.

As the honourable member is aware, there is to be another meeting of the Australian Education Council in Alice Springs in July and, no doubt, the Acting Chairman of the Tertiary Education Commission will be attending. Certainly, the federal minister will be attending. I intend to point out as forcefully as I can the dilemma in which this letter and the present Commonwealth attitude places the Northern Territory. For a number of reasons, not least of which is to form the basis of a secondary teacher education program, we require a Bachelor of Arts course. Given the present attitude of the TEC and the Commonwealth it is absolutely impossible. I intend, as forcefully as I possibly can, to point out to the Commonwealth minister the impossible position in which they have placed the college and the Northern Territory in its aspirations. I hope the matter can be resolved but the only way it can be resolved is a guarantee of funding by the Commonwealth for this course.

Emily Gap Farm Area

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he aware of the concern expressed by residents in the Emily Gap farm area who are not connected to the sewerage system? Can he advise when those residents might reasonably expect to be connected to the sewerage system in central Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would hope that the department will be in a position to call tenders for that work in about 2 weeks' time.

Bridge Across Rapid Creek Mouth

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

At what stage are the investigations into the possibility of a bridge across the mouth of Rapid Creek? Will he make available at this sittings details of traffic flows expected to be generated from such a bridge?

ANSWER

There is no plan at this stage to bridge the Rapid Creek mouth.

Sadadeen East Industrial Subdivision

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer to the Gazette of 14 May in which there is a note that a contract has been arranged with Willing and Partners of Darwin for a headworks storm-water drainage study of the Sadadeen East industrial subdivision. Does the government intend to proceed with the development of the Sadadeen East industrial subdivision regardless of the outcome of his series of talks with the Mbantuarinya Council in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government has not changed its plans in relation to this subdivision. I have been holding a number of talks with Aboriginal groups in Alice Springs over the last several weeks and it is quite obvious that there is a great deal of disagreement even among Aboriginals themselves in Alice Springs as to what is or is not regarded as a sacred site. There is considerable disagreement amongst some Aboriginals as to the traditional hierarchy of the ownership of the Alice Springs area. There is also a lot of dissatisfaction about some of the organisations which purport to speak on behalf of all Aboriginals. Unfortunately, there has been a tendency for Europeans to regard Aboriginals in too broad a classification. It would be much the same as looking at the white population of Australia as all being Europeans without having regard to the various cultural and ethnic backgrounds.

There is considerable disagreement between the Aboriginal groups on various issues. Whilst I am continuing my investigations into this matter in Alice Springs, and have arranged for other people to make further inquiries on my behalf to try and get a satisfactory resolution, the government's plans have not changed.

Sadadeen East Industrial Subdivision

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Which people has he directed to make inquiries on his behalf in regard to the Sadadeen East industrial subdivision?

ANSWER

I think it is inappropriate for me to announce to this Assembly the names of all of those persons who work for me or for the government and what their relative tasks are. I feel that a minister has the ability to direct people as he sees fit within his powers to undertake inquiries and investigations. I do not see why I should disclose any further information on this subject.

Local Government Funding from Commonwealth Tax-Sharing Arrangements

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

An alderman recently informed me that the Darwin City Council was only receiving 1.75% of personal income tax under the Commonwealth tax-sharing arrangements. The agreed amount is 2%. Is he able to inform me if the Darwin City Council is receiving the 2% agreed to under the Commonwealth tax-sharing arrangements.

ANSWER

It would be a matter in which the Northern Territory government would have no say. It is part of the Commonwealth's revenue distribution from tax revenues. The figure, as I understand it, is 2%. Any funds sent to the Northern Territory under that 2% arrangement would have to be by way of tied grants. We would be obliged to hand that on to local government at the rate of 2%. Quite clearly, that alderman is in error.

School Councils

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

When will he introduce the legislation necessary to enable school councils to be incorporated under the Education Act?

ANSWER

I hope that I am not on the pension before it happens. I would like to inform honourable members as to the difficulties in this proposal. The Council of Government Schools Organisations put to me its request for legislation to allow for automatic incorporation of school councils under the Education Act. That request came in the form of 1 sentence. We must examine just what that entails. I have a very detailed submission before Cabinet at present which I am quite happy to inform the Assembly was deferred at the last Cabinet meeting for further legal consideration.

What we are really attempting to do by way of amendment to the Education Act is to provide a mechanism covered substantially by the Associations Incorporation Act. All honourable members know the complexity of that act. All of the powers and privileges which go with incorporation and perpetual seal are, as a matter of law, required to be parallel to those contained in the act that I have just mentioned. It is not a matter of a simple amendment schedule. What we are trying to do is incorporate in 1 piece of legislation the protection, powers and privileges contained in a complete act of this parliament. It has resulted in an extremely difficult legal dilemma. I have referred the matter back to the Department of Law for further consideration. The Department of Law quite rightly has grave reservations about this Assembly embarking upon that particular course of action. I am aware that a number of school councils, in frustration, are thinking of incorporating under the Associations Incorporation Act. I would very much like to discourage that. I am hoping it can be resolved under the act which relates to education and that they do not consider sending their statutory returns and so on to the Registrar-General who surely has enough to do without having to worry about multiple school councils being registered under the Associations Incorporation Act. Nonetheless, any proposal to legislate for automatic incorporation with a seal carrying perpetual succession and judicial notice must of necessity be an extremely complex legal exercise.

Pet Meat Regulations

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he tell me if pet meat regulations will demand that pet meat be died with methyl violet, brilliant blue or some other aniline dye?

ANSWER

Regulation 46 of the regulations under the Abattoirs and Slaughtering Act currently provides that pet meat must be identified by dusting all surfaces with powdered charcoal or by spraying them with a prescribed dye, namely methyl violet or tartrazine. In fact, only tartrazine has been used by pet met operators. Sometimes, this dye is not easily seen with the naked eye, particularly when the meat is minced. The meat substitution fraud highlighted the need for pet meat to be more easily identified. The eastern states have agreed to adopt brilliant blue dye to identify meat. I am preparing the addition of brilliant blue to the list of prescribed dyes in regulation 46(3) of the Abattoirs and Slaughtering Act. This will ensure that Northern Territory pet meat can continue to be sold in eastern Australia. Any pet meat that enters the eastern states that is not stained with brilliant blue dye will be destroyed. Meat stained with tartrazine can continue to be sold in the Northern Territory and in South Australia. Pet meat in Western Australia has to be strip branded with blue dye.

Temporary Fire Station at 14-Mile

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Following a commitment by the minister on talkback radio last week that the temporary fire station at the 14-mile will be manned throughout the dry season, why was the station closed yesterday which was a very high fire risk day? Is it still his intention to honour the assurance he gave last week?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, because the station was not open yesterday, I have asked for a full report from the fire brigade. When I have it, I will pass that information to the member for Nhulunbuy. I might add that I was disappointed to hear that the station was not manned yesterday, particularly as it was a very high fire risk day.

Fog Bay Prawn Fishery

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has he received a reply to the telex he sent to the Northern Fisheries Committee asking for their support for the Territory's proposals for the forthcoming meeting to discuss possible protection of Fog Bay?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, a reply has been received from the federal minister in which he says that, in view of the information available to him through the various committees that service the government, he is not prepared to reconvene the Australian Fisheries Council at this particular time. Instead, he has suggested that the Northern Fisheries Committee provide a wider basis for the submission to go through the standing committee which will meet in August for further consideration by fisheries' ministers in October at the Australian Fisheries Council.

Pet Meat Regulations

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

If it is to be mandatory to dye pet meat purple or blue, can he tell me what regard he has paid to the pet meat industry or the views of pet owners?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, on 21 December 1981, a public meeting was convened to enable all persons concerned with the pet food industry to discuss this particular question and the provisions of the new legislation. This meeting was advertised in the local press and people were invited to submit objections, recommendations and so on. The situation is that any pet meat which in future enters the eastern states and is not dyed with brilliant blue will be destroyed. Consequently, if the Northern Territory pet meat operators wish to market in those states, they will be required to conform with those requirements. Obviously, the people involved in the meat substitution business have created a lot of stress for themselves and others by not having requirements like this. Pet meat stained with tartrazine can continue to be sold in the Northern Territory and South Australia so that options remain for Northern Territory pet meat operators.

Commonwealth Houses

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for HOUSING

What progress has been made in arranging for the transfer of 24 Commonwealth houses to the Northern Territory government where the occupants have accepted voluntary transfers to the Northern Territory Public Service?

ANSWER

I am not aware of the details of this matter. If the honourable member cares to place a question on notice or write to me, I can certainly give him the information.

Mr Smith: I have already written.

Free Trade Zone in the NT

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

How would a free trade zone aid the Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question is certainly a very general one and would probably be much better answered by me in an adjournment speech. In fact, I have said much on the subject already in public forums and in this Assembly. I have absolutely no doubt that a free trade zone located adjacent to Darwin would be a tremendous boom to the Territory economy especially if it were related to the completion of construction of the railway from Alice Springs to Darwin. My Office of Policy and Planning is presently working on a detailed submission to put to the federal government for the establishment of a free trade zone within the next 12 months or so. You would appreciate that such a submission must be in considerable detail and we will certainly be up against considerable opposition. I would like to say that I have already had indications of support from ministers in the Queensland government. It appears that we may be able to get some support from some of our colleagues elsewhere in Australia for this most important breakthrough in the interests of northern development.

Bynoe Harbour Road

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

During the last sittings, I asked the minister what development is envisaged that would justify the building of the Bynoe Harbour access road constructed parallel to the old Mandorah Road, what parts of the Cox Peninsula will the road reach and where will it end. The minister asked me to place this question on notice and I wonder if he could give me an answer at this sittings.

ANSWER

The honourable member did not place the question on notice. However, I will obtain that information and provide it to him later in the sittings.

Cane Toads

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

The cane toad poses a very real threat to the environment of the Northern Territory. What steps has the government taken to ensure that the cane toad is kept out of the Territory?

ANSWER

I know that the Conservation Commission and the Department of Primary Production are both extremely concerned at the propsect of the cane toad, that presently seems to be based mainly in Queensland, moving eventually into the Northern Territory. I do not want to say that such an event is inevitable because I hope that it is not but I understand that cane toads are now prevalent in the gulf area in Queensland. It would seem that, unless we can erect something in the nature of a cane toad fence rather like the rabbit fence that they used to have between the states of Queensland and New South Wales from memory, it seems that the canetoad may eventually at least move into the gulf area of the Northern Territory. This is a shame. I do not really think that cane toads have any evil effect on the environment. The problem is that they are most offensive and obnoxious. The Conservation Commission will be doing everything it possibly can, in cooperation with its fraternal bodies in Queensland especially, to ensure that toads do not get into the Northern Territory.

Since a recent incident which occurred on an aircraft coming to Darwin from Cairns when some very misguided practical joker apparently let loose some cane toads on the plane, letters have been written to TAA, Qantas, Ansett and Airlines of Western Australia asking them to attempt to step up inspection procedures of people boarding planes. Letters will also be written to departments in Queensland asking them if they can assist and cooperate in this way. Mr Speaker, every practical step will be taken to try to keep cane toads out of the Northern Territory but it is a rather difficult task when you have almost insane people moving around the country who are prepared to play practical jokes of that type.

Grumman Trackers

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Following the representations both he and I and other people have made to the Minister for Defence, has he received any assurance that the Grumman Trackers which were to have been mothballed will be redeployed in northern Australia for northern surveillance and defence?

ANSWER

I wrote to the then Minister for Defence at the time when I understood that the Grumman Tracker aircraft would be coming off HMAS Melbourne. I suggested that they should be based in Darwin so that the crews could continue to obtain good operational experience. To the best of my knowledge, I have received no response to that letter at this stage. I am grateful to the honourable member for Nightcliff for reminding me of the matter because apparently my office has not operated on that one. Certainly, I will follow it up with the new Minister for Defence, the Honourable Ian Sinclair. I am not certain whether he will be attending the federal Cabinet meeting to be held in Darwin in the course of the next several weeks. If he is, I will raise it with him there but I will certainly be writing to him again seeking some positive response from him.

Emily Gap Farm Area

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer him to a previous question and answer on the connection of sewerage services at the Emily Gap farm area and to the fact that I have received representations on that matter, and ask why he did not respond to my communications to his office on this matter?

ANSWER

I did receive the telex from the honourable member early last week. Consequently, I only found out myself last Thursday that I was able to proceed with the full program of providing sewerage services in Emily Gap. I returned to Darwin from a Cabinet meeting at Cobourg Peninsula last Friday and have been so busy that I just forgot to tell him that I had finally obtained Cabinet approval to proceed with the full development in that area.

Mudginberri and Munmarlary Pastoral Leases

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What is the current position and standing of the Mudginberri and Munmarlary pastoral leases?

ANSWER

The former Mudginberri and Munmarlary pastoral leases are in fact now owned by the Commonwealth under a freehold title.

Mundginberri Export Abattoir

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the current position of the Mudginberri export abattoir?

ANSWER

I understand that a group headed by Mr J. Pendavis is attempting, in co-operation with the Northern Land Council, to reopen and recommence operation of the Mudginberri abattoir. I am sure that you, Mr Speaker, and all honourable members will be extremely pleased to hear this. Mr Pendavis has told me that he has a contract with a German concern worth $5m over the next 12 months for the supply of buffalo game meat to the German market. This can only be of great value to the Northern Territory economy. I think it is most important that we attempt to retain these markets and avoid situations caused when abattoirs close for a year and then reopen only to find that they have lost what are pretty tight markets. The problem is that the titles to Mudginberri and Munmarlary are presently freehold in the Commonwealth. It is very difficult to assist Mr Pendavis by way of finance. The NLC, not being yet title holder, is unable to grant him anything other than an indication that it will give him a lease for a term of years. I believe that security was to have been taken over certain chattels, the plant of the abattoirs, for quite a substantial loan. You will appreciate, Mr Speaker, that I do not want to go into full details of all the financial arrangements here simply because Mr Pendavis is entitled to some confidentiality. He has applied to the NTDC for a very substantial amount of money. Security is the problem. The government does want to see the project go ahead. It realises its worth to the Northern Territory. I should perhaps mention that I was informed late yesterday that the Gagudju Association appears now to have bought in to the transaction and it seems to be claiming ownership of the chattels. This issue too will have to be cleared up and that can only further complicate the matter. Late last night, I spoke to the Co-ordinator General and asked him and Mr Pendavis to try to bring all the parties together around a table with a view to resolving the whole situation as quickly as possible to try to have the abattoir opened in May. I think the situation could be resolved if the NLC were prepared to guarantee to the NTDC the performance by Mr Pendavis of the terms of the security to repay the substantial loan of money.

'Boozers are Losers' Campaign

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

The cost of the 'Boozers are Losers' campaign against alcohol abuse was some $175,000. Will he make public the evaluation of that 'Boozers are Losers' campaign which was carried out by the Health Department?

ANSWER

I ask the member to put the question on notice. I will obtain the details and advise her.

Private Doctor a Nhulunbuy Community Health Centre

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has there been any agreement reached between a private doctor and the Department of Health regarding office space in the Nhulunbuy Community Health Centre? If such an agreement has been reached, what are its terms?

ANSWER

I ask the member to put his question on notice.

Register of Members' Interests Bill

Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

When does the government intend to proceed with the Register of Members' Interests Bill which has been on the Notice Paper since 1980?

ANSWER

At this stage, I am not sure that the government intends to proceed with this particular piece of legislation. I seem to recall a second-reading debate where there was a deal of acrimony about the terms of the bill. It seems to have stayed on the Notice Paper ever since. The Assembly was very much divided over the provisions of that particular bill and it may well be that it will have to lapse from the Notice Paper and a further piece of legislation introduced. Frankly, I have not given it a great deal of attention over the past year or so.

Housing for Aboriginal Health Workers

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

I refer him to an undertaking he gave in October last year in regard to housing for Aboriginal health workers on Aboriginal communities. Has his department contacted these health workers in all regions to establish their housing requirements and has he advised the Housing Commission of those requirements?

ANSWER

For the benefit of the honourable member, I point out that housing for public servants is really the prerogative of the Chief Minister. However, I would just make the point that, so far as accommodation for health workers in remote areas is concerned, this contentious issue has been going on now for some time and with some difficulty. One of the answers to a question that I put to a meeting of health workers in Alice Springs and again in Darwin a year later was very simply this: would you please advise us what is the nature of the accommodation you want in your respective communities? That question was very deliberate because, in the past, we have been very good at building buildings in communities, particularly in remote areas, that were not accepted by the people concerned and, in some cases, were abandoned. While I am quite warm to the idea of providing accommodation for health workers - and this will become increasingly important as we Aboriginalise the Rural Health Service - there is a need for Aboriginal health workers to tell us what they perceive as their needs in terms of accommodation. From that point, we will have something from which to go forward. It would be unfortunate and unnecessary for the Northern Territory government to build 3 and 4-bedroom brick homes as the needs are perceived by our community and find out after some time that they were not what the Aboriginals wanted and that they would have been much happier with something else. Mr Speaker, the matter is not a dead issue by any means. It is one that still needs to be negotiated and I am more than happy to do my bit. I would emphasise again that the prerogative in this area lies purely with the Chief Minister.

Buffalo Shooting

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Can he tell me why the tenders called for the shooting and taking of buffaloes in the Mudginberri, Munmarlary, Cairncurry Plain and Cannon Hill areas have been withdrawn?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am advised that these buffalo tenders were withdrawn as a result of a negotiated agreement between the Commonwealth, the Northern Territory and the proposed operator of an abattoir in the area. These areas are under Commonwealth control. It is clear that, as part of the arrangements with the Chief Minister that were mentioned earlier in answer to another question, the Commonwealth did not want the Northern Territory to let tenders for the collection of buffalo from these areas because it obviously has other plans in mind.

Budget Reduction for Gove District Hospital

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Could he confirm or deny that in excess of $140,000 will be slashed from the budget of the Gove District Hospital?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask him to place his question on notice.

Use of Tourists to Eradicate Feral Animals

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TOURISM

Has he considered using tourists, particularly international tourists interested in hunting, to eradicate feral animals such as buffalo and pigs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, eradication of feral animals has been addressed in many ways over the last few years. I believe that a couple of years ago we were paid a visit by a distinguished army gentlemen from Canberra who had similar thoughts in mind. He came in response to an inquiry made of him by the then head of the department. As far as the tourists are concerned, there is a very small market for trophy animals which is currently serviced by 2 safari operators in the Top End. They operate to a very strict code of ethics. I do not believe that the plan suggested by the honourable member would be viable but I thank him very much for his question.

Housing for Aboriginal Health Workers

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

I refer to the previous question on housing for Aboriginal health workers and his answer to that question. Is he saying that his department is awaiting advice from Aboriginal health workers as to their housing needs?

ANSWER

Most certainly I am waiting for advice from the conference of Aboriginal health workers in both the northern and southern divisions that I have addressed in the past 2 years on this particular matter. I do not recollect receiving a communication from these groups in relation to the discussions we have had on their perceived accommodation needs. If any such information has been submitted, it has not been brought to my attention.

Redistribution of Electoral Boundaries

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it the intention of the government to call for a redistribution of electoral boundaries in the Northern Territory in 1982? If not, when is it the intention of the government to have such a redistribution?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have not yet studied the census results for the Northern Territory closely but I think it is fairly obvious to most people in the community that a redistribution of seats in this Assembly will become necessary as a result of the provisions of the self-government act which relates to the tolerances that must exist between seats representing areas of the Northern Territory. Therefore, it will become necessary, if my presumptions are correct, for a redistribution to take place.

The government has not considered this formally at this stage and no steps have been taken as yet to organise a redistribution. There are still at least 2 years of the government's term to run and, technically speaking at least, it may not expire until August 1984. There is more than adequate time for a redistribution to take place. If a redistribution were to take place too early, I believe that it would lead to confusion amongst the people that we are supposed to be representing. Whilst this is something that I do bear in mind, it is not something that I have on the urgent list at this stage. It is possible that we could do something before the year is out. Now that the Opposition Leader has raised it, I will look at it more closely within the next month or 6 weeks and decide, in consultation with my Cabinet colleagues, what steps should be taken. At present, the government has not decided on any steps to be taken in relation to a redistribution.

Brucellosis and Tuberculosis Eradication

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

In the interests of brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication in the Northern Territory, what will happen to the buffalo in the Mudginberri, Munmarlary, Cairncurry Plain and Cannon Hill areas in view of the fact that the tenders for the removal of buffalo in these areas has been withdrawn?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, Cannon Hill and the Cairncurry Plain are no longer viable tender areas for buffalo harvesting. The Cannon Hill tender area is currently being amalgamated into Mudginberri, and Cairncurry Plain into Munmarlary tenders. Consequently, 2 tenders will operate now instead of 40. The government has withdrawn its tenders and new tenders will now be issued and operated by the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service. The national parks involvement arises from an agreement with the Aborigines on the operation of the Mudginberri abattoir. These areas of private property are owned by Aborigines and, if local pet meaters want to operate on them outside of the tender arrangements, they will have to negotiate directly with the Aborigines. With regard to the tuberculosis and brucellosis eradication program and buffalo on Commonwealth land, from now until 1984, as many buffalo as possible will be cleaned out of all Crown-owned land, including the Commonwealth land, through the tender system. In 1984 destocking will commence. The government has a proposal about to go before the Cabinet which provides for marshalling yards to be established in the general region of Annaburroo. A plan has been devised to accept female buffalo which will not be allowed to go to slaughter this year. Females under 3 years will have to go through a domestication process either on a government-controlled establishment or on a private property which has an approved domestication program. The government will purchase those females from the catchers and will allocate them after one satisfactory TB test that has been undertaken. As I indicated, these plans are preliminary. They are before the government and we will announce this proposal in the weeks ahead.

Aboriginal Health Worker Training Scheme

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Have discussions taken place with the Aboriginal communities concerned about the proposed reorganisation of the Aboriginal Health Worker Training Scheme in the East Arnhem and northern regions? When will those concerned be advised of the government's intentions in this matter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, some time ago Dr John Hargrave was appointed as Assistant Secretary of Health within the Department of Health in the Northern Territory. Since his appointment, he has embarked on a review, with the departmental people concerned, on the future of Aboriginal Health Worker Training Service, as we now know it, and the training systems and methods that we should adopt in the future, where we should situate the training centre and how it should be run. I can advise the honourable member that there has been a great deal of consultation at just about every level of the department, from Dr Hargrave through to the health workers in the field.

The current thinking of the department, as I am aware of it, is that the health training centres for Aboriginal workers, as we know them in Darwin and Gove, will cease to operate. Katherine will be the administrative centre for the Aboriginal health worker training program. In fact, the training program will be run by an institute of which most of the management members will be Aboriginals or people very heavily involved in the Aboriginal Health Worker Training Scheme. I do not know the exact structure of this part of the department but, if the honourable member is interested, I will be more than happy to provide it for her.

Mr Speaker, let me also say that there are strong demands coming from within the department at the moment at all levels for the training of Aboriginal health workers to be more formally recognised, and that they have a greater level of training so that they can progress in a very orderly and recognised manner. I can only say that the process of evaluation that is going on at the moment is really one of evolution rather than revolution. As the program firms up, probably before the end of this year, I will be in a position to advise on the specific details. If the member for Fannie Bay so desires, I will make a statement in the Assembly next week.

Public Service Housing Sales Scheme

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Are any changes to the public service housing sales scheme under consideration in respect of officers who are purchasing their houses in Darwin under the scheme and are subsequently transferred to remote localities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, you and all honourable members would be aware of the public service home sales scheme. It is a scheme that is strongly supported by the government because we do want our public servants to put down roots in the Northern Territory. Therefore, we have made the terms of the scheme as favourable as we possibly can. Bearing in mind the fact that people out in the cold grey world at present are in fact paying up to 22% to obtain money to buy themselves a roof over their head, you will be pleased to hear that employees in the public service under certain levels can purchase their houses at an interest rate commencing at 8½%. You would appreciate that this scheme has been put forward by the government with the genuine desire that public servants avail themselves of it and become permanent residents of the Northern Territory. We believe in that because we believe it gives us a more stable public service. Certainly, houses are readily saleable but, when one buys a house, it has a greater psychological effect on one than when one is just renting. It increases one's commitment to the place where one is living.

Mr Speaker, the government has been disappointed over the past few years at the rate at which public servants have actually taken up what we consider to be an extremely generous offer to purchase. We have been examining ways as to how we can increase the acceptability of the scheme to public servants. From time to time, suggestions have come forward to Cabinet. Obviously, a gradual upward movement in public service rents must make the public service home sales scheme much more acceptable to public servants, especially when one bears in mind that, at present, public service rents would run at approximately 33.33% of rents payable outside the public rental through the Housing Commission. It is not that I believe that we should want the general rates of rental to be high - we certainly do not - but it is a question of supply and demand. Most of the schemes which seem to come forward from time to time to build substantial amounts of rental accommodation seem to run into problems with planning objections and things like that. Obviously, the supply has to go through the gauntlet of many obstacles to attempt to keep up with the demand.

Mr Speaker, I am sure that the honourable member for Sanderson would only ask this question on the basis of an informed source. Perhaps I did not catch the innuendo. I am not aware of any particular differentiation that would exist between public servants in remote localities and public servants in urban areas. The position is that, in remote localities, many public servants are unable to purchase their homes for various reasons. Most of us know the reasons for that in Gove. I think the same reason operates in Alyangula. In most Aboriginal communities, if not all, purchase is impossible. We are attempting to enable public servants in Jabiru to buy their houses. Certainly we are working on that. It is a very complex situation, perhaps even more complex than the situation in Gove. There the land is owned by the Aboriginal people. The company holds a lease over the town. The only sort of security that can be given is a sublease for a term of years. I think the mining company's lease in Gove expires in about 32 years. Therefore a judgment must be made as to whether one wants to buy something that has a very finite life. I am sure that when most of us consider buying a property in the normal situation we think of it as being there forever. In Gove, people have to balance the various pros and cons and decide whether to purchase if and when the opportunity arises. I think it will arise shortly as a result of amendments that were passed for Housing Commission tenants and public servants to buy their houses. They will have to make what is a difficult decision in those circumstances.

If I have misunderstood the question asked by the honourable member for Sanderson, I would be happy to discuss the matter with her later or perhaps she would like to give me notice. Quite frankly, the question she asked did not ring any particular bell with me.

Old Darwin Hospital Area

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Future use of the old Darwin hospital area has been a concern to many of my constituents. Have any further proposals for the use of that land been considered or put forward and, if so, is he able to inform me what those proposals are?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I advised the honourable member at the last sittings that a proposal had been received which was unacceptable to the Department of Health. At that time, I was taking the matter to Cabinet. At this stage, I can only advise the honourable member that we have not been able to identify people who see the use of that hospital for a private hospital as a viable proposition. That does not mean that there is not someone out in the world who could operate it as a private hospital. We just have not found anyone. At this stage, I can advise the honourable member that the Health Department has wound down its activities on the site. We have transferred the accommodation to the Public Service Commissioner's Office for its control. The maintenance and control of the buildings now lie with the Department of Transport and Works. If any proposal of interest should come before us before the government has done something with the buildings in the years to come, I will advise the honourable member. Certainly, there has not been anybody who is prepared to take it on.

Gunn Point

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to public access for recreational purposes to the Gunn Point area. In December, during the sittings of this Assembly, the Chief Minister advised that a second draft plan of management was being prepared by the Conservation Commission. Has such a plan been received and will he release it for public scrutiny and comment?

ANSWER

To the best of my knowledge, no such plan has been received from the Conservation Commission. Certainly, I do not recall reading one and I think I would have. Therefore, all I can do at this stage to satisfy the honourable member for Nightcliff is to say that I will have inquiries made of the Conservation Commission as to the status of that proposed recreational area plan. I know that various other matters have come before Cabinet or my ministerial colleagues have discussed them with me. I believe that steps are in hand to upgrade the road into Gunn Point. I know that the Forestry Unit of the Conservation Commission, at my direction, relinquished its tenure on certain land and buildings at Gunn Point and has handed this over to the Department of Community Development with a view to the Gunn Point Prison reserve being stabilised and the rest of the area being made available for public recreation. These things have been happening. This is a matter actually dear to the hearts of a couple of people in Cabinet so it comes up from time to time. I suppose that I had better pull my weight and try to get this recreation plan out of the Conservation Commission as soon as I reasonably can. I have every intention of producing the completed document for the edification of all honourable members. As you would appreciate, Mr Speaker, ministers take an interest in their portfolios although we probably do not always succeed to the satisfaction of everyone in this room. If we do read such documents, we occasionally send them back in the hope that, at least in our opinion, they will be improved. That is what has happened in this case.

Airlines of Northern Australia

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he been officially notified by Airlines of Northern Australia that it intends to cut back its operations to 5 services per week to Katherine, Tennant Creek and Alice Springs? Is he aware that the services may be cut to 3 per week, and will he assure the Assembly that any such moves will be resisted by his government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have received a proposal from Airlines of Northern Australia. I actually received it about a fortnight ago. In that proposal it requested the government to consider reducing the frequency of services to the centres mentioned by honourable member. Its proposal was for a 5-day-a-week jet service,

Monday through Friday, and presumably some kind of commuter service on either Saturday or Sunday. Over the past 12 months, Airlines of Northern Australia lost nearly $1m and asked the Northern Territory government if it would review its proposal because it did not want to lose any more money. I discussed the proposal with my Cabinet colleagues and we have taken the view that, until such time as full consultation takes place with the Tennant Creek council and the Katherine council, we will not consider it further. I have asked Airlines of Northern Australia to go down with officers of the Department of Transport and Works to talk to the people in Tennant Creek and Katherine. Once we have received advice from those places, we will be able to consider the proposal.

I might add that, over the last 12 months, Airlines of Northern Australia has provided what I consider to be a good and efficient service to the Centre, particularly in light of the fact that, after the collapse of Northern Airlines, there was a loss of confidence in those areas for people using air services. I think it has taken Airlines of Northern Australia at least 12 months to regain that confidence. In its proposal, it states it does not intend to tamper with other services such as the Alice Springs-Ayers Rock run. That will continue twice a day, 7 days a week. The government has an agreement with Airlines of Northern Australia that, if there are only 2 or 3 passengers going to Ayers Rock on any one day, a smaller aircraft may be used.

The subject of the use of smaller aircraft on Saturday or Sunday will be considered when talks are arranged with the operators when we receive advice from the officers after discussions with the council. We shall try to arrange for flights on Saturdays and Sundays between Tennant Creek and Alice Springs and Katherine and Darwin. However, it is a matter of economics. At the moment, there are only about a half dozen passengers who travel from Alice Springs to Tennant Creek, Tennant Creek to Katherine and then on to Darwin. I have been told that sometimes the aircraft has between 15 and 30 passengers. That is misleading because many of those weekend passengers are not charged in full. They are charged $5 or $10. For example, I believe that Airlines of Northern Australia moved a group of boy scouts around one weekend and only charged them $5 in order to give them a ride to another centre.

There is not a lot of traffic on the weekend. I think we have to be sensible about this. We want this service and I believe that frequency of services has been provided in the past 12 months. Now there is a departure from that but I believe that a jet service that can operate 5 days a week will engender more traffic between those centres. The agreement we had with Airlines of Northern Australia through Ansett Transport Industries was that it would provide a jet service within 2 years. I believe that it would like to start this service early in August.

TEC Letter on BA Degree Course

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

This follows on an answer he gave me yesterday in connection with the BA degree course at the Darwin Community College. Would he advise the Assembly whether the letter he received in January from the TEC has been made available to anyone in the relevant faculty at the Darwin Community College and would he be prepared to supply me with a copy of that letter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, most certainly I would make a copy of that letter available to the honourable Leader of the Opposition. As to the first part of the question, the draft suggested replies were provided to me by the Darwin Community College on the basis of that letter. I assume from that that the college must have a copy of it.

Installation Cost to Tap Water Supply on Arnhem Highway

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it true that, if landholders down the Arnhem Highway wish to tap into the mains taking water to the proposed Humpty Doo village centre, it will cost $5000 for each installation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member forewarned me of this question. It is important to distinguish between fees levied by my department for tapping and meter installation and those incurred by each landholder for the installation of a pressure-reducing valve and delivery pipeline. Tapping fees range from $30 for a 50mm main to $80 for a 150mm main. Similarly, the cost of meter installation varies from $30 to $50 depending on the width of the main. Installation of a pressure-reducing valve and delivery pipeline is undertaken as a private arrangement and is not the responsibility of my department. The cost involved could vary considerably depending on the size and service, the length of pipeline and the type of the terrain involved.

Aerial Medical Base for Arnhem Region

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is the base for aerial medical operations for the Arnhem region to be moved from Nhulunbuy to Katherine?

ANSWER

Could I advise the honourable member that, at this stage, there is no proposal to move the aerial medical base from Nhulunbuy to anywhere else. I would also advise the honourable member that, as stated in the press, there is a review going on at the moment within the department on the future of the aerial medical and aerial support operations. That is for both the northern and southern regions. If the member has any particular point that he would like to be considered by the internal inquiry, I would be more than happy to see that it finds its way to the department.

Rehabilitation Facility for Alice Springs

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

I refer him to a report in the NT News of 14 May in which he suggested that evidence of the effectiveness of the 'Boozers are Losers' campaign is that there was an increased number of people attending rehabilitation facilities in Darwin, particularly at Amity House. When will he ensure a similar cost effectiveness assessment will be possible in Alice Springs by assisting the establishment of a similar rehabilitation facility in that town?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, let me say to the honourable member that I am very conscious of the fact that not only in Alice Springs but in Tennant Creek, Katherine and Nhulunbuy we have yet to establish satisfactory rehabilitation units. I might point out to the honourable member that the slowness in establishing these units is not the want of money or the lack of will but the wherewithal in terms of manpower and facilities to provide the sorts of services that we need. I believe that one of my challenges for this 12 months is to see that, in each centre, we have rehabilitation units established for the care of people who have severe alcohol or drug problems. If the member has any suggestions, I would be only too pleased to listen to them. In fact, at this stage, I would advise the honourable member that I have gone to the trouble of writing to a wide range of groups including religious orders to ask them whether they would be prepared to assist in the field that we are about to enter because the work is very onerous. It needs people with a great deal of personal commitment to the work. Providing all the services through the department is not the answer.

South-east Asian Beef Markets

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he assure Territory cattlemen that the government is making every effort to gain greater access to the South-east Asian beef markets?

ANSWER

It is true that the Northern Territory government, since 1 July 1978 and even before that, has made strenuous attempts to achieve greater marketing capacity, in particular to diversify away from the American market which has had a stranglehold on the marketing regime for Northern Territory cattle, particularly the Top End, since about 1959. In following those strenuous efforts, Mr Speaker, you yourself led a delegation in April 1978. Delegations again went overseas to South-east Asia in 1978, in September 1980, in October 1981, in January 1982, in February 1982 and in February-March 1982. I think the government has been very active in this area. In addition to that, a proposal to market domestic standard beef has been submitted to the Australian government. The Chairman of the Australian Meat and Livestock Corporation is not particularly impressed with this proposal. However, we have also contacted the overseas trading countries that may wish to adopt this proposal and we believe that it is a realistic one. Obviously, our efforts have not resulted in any major successes except that we have established firm friendship over the years. If we keep on with our marketing impetus, in the long haul we will be successful.

Fire Station at 14-Mile

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he aware that there is no water available at the fire station at the 14-mile in the Darwin rural area and that there has not been for some time. In fact, the fire tender has to go into the Darwin Rural Caravan Park to fill up? Is he also aware that the telephone that is connected to this waterless fire station is also non-functional? It does not matter if people cannot ring up because the fire brigade cannot put the fire out anyway.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that what the Leader of the Opposition has said is true. Apparently, somebody has got into the 14-mile station and has taken a few of the facilities away. This has stopped the men from manning it. I understand that someone has stolen the toilet, disrupted the electricity supply, diverted the water supply and this had made the station uninhabitable. I believe it will be operational by tomorrow.

Fred's Pass Police Office

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What will be the future of the Fred's Pass Police Office when Palmerston becomes habitable?

ANSWER

I think that the future of the Fred's Pass Police Office is brighter than the 14-mile fire station. If any of the inhabitants of the rural area see fit to steal the toilet from the Fred's Pass Police Office, they will be in big trouble. I think what the member for Tiwi is referring to is the future of Fred's Pass Police Office after the establishment of a police facility at Palmerston. I believe that the Fred's Pass Police Office will remain open after the Palmerston Police Station is established. Work should soon start on the new police headquarters at Berrimah. After that has been completed, all police patrols or at least those out of normal business hours will be made from that headquarters.

Bees Creek Road

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

There are a great number of residents in my electorate who are forced to use Bees Creek Road as an access road onto the Stuart Highway, sometimes several times a day. Could he advise if and when his government intends to upgrade and seal this badly corrugated dirt road?

ANSWER

I ask the member to place his question on notice.

Santa Teresa Police Station

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware of the request for the permanent staffing of the police station at Santa Teresa preferably by a policeman who is a family man and, if so, has he made any decision in this regard?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not sure that the permanent staffing of Santa Teresa police station by a police officer who is a family man would be in the best interests at all times of his family. In any event, we have a policy in the police unit these days that these remote areas stations, wherever possible, be staffed by 2 policemen and preferably 3 policemen. You must have 3 policemen to ensure that 2 are always on the job. In these remote area stations, the police spend half their time more or less keeping themselves operational. They have their generators and vehicles to maintain before they can even start their police work. I do remember a request coming in from Santa Teresa for a full-time police officer to be based there. The story is that there is a police facility there that they man at weekends. They man it at weekends because that is when things become pretty horrid from time to time at Santa Teresa. The reason they become horrid is that some people at Santa Teresa - and I am not slurring the community at all; I know them well - imbibe too freely of spirits and other liquors. This changes their personalities considerably and they become aggressive and nasty whereas most times they are happy, gentle and generous. The solution is not to have 1 policeman at Santa Teresa. At times when you have these problems, you need a platoon of policemen and it would be unfair on a policeman to base him there alone. It is a community problem and the community has to face it. When I am going around Aboriginal communities, many say there are considerable police facilities in Aboriginal communities. Almost every Aboriginal community wants a policeman in the belief that it will stop the grog problem there. One cannot just agree to it because it will not stop the grog problem, as experience has shown, and it will make life very hard for 1 poor policeman and intolerable, in many cases, for his family.

I think the answer that has been given to the Santa Teresa community is that we are sorry but we will not base a policeman permanently at Santa Teresa. Santa Teresa has been put on the list of places that will be given consideration for the establishment in due course of a full-time police facility. For the information of members, to establish a police station these days in a remote area costs $1m for the police station and houses. From the latest budget estimates, it can be seen that it is not a cheap thing to do and therefore it has to be worth while.

The present Commissioner of Police, in whom I have complete faith and confidence, has said that the police should be mobile. They should not be tied down to look after generator sets and things like that where it can be avoided. They should get around and do their police work. His view is that, whilst a police presence in strategic areas is necessary, it is more necessary to get the police moving around amongst the community where they can be seen. In simplistic terms, for instance, he would prefer that a police car be pulled up on Bagot Road talking to 1 offender, with its blue lights flashing, than there be 3 motor cycle policemen roaming up and down Bagot Road attracting little attention. He feels that police should be very visible.

I hope I have not disgressed too much from the point. It is a very complex situation. Police are sent to Santa Teresa at weekends. We sympathise with the plight of the community but essentially it is a community problem. Communities have been put on the list and none of them will be missed. It will take time, Mr Speaker.

Red Cross Facility at Darwin Hospital

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is there a proposal for the Red Cross to relinquish its facility at Darwin Hospital in Casuarina and for it to be taken over by a private pharmacy?

ANSWER

I have absolutely no knowledge of the honourable member's proposition, Mr Speaker.

Liquor Commission Employee

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Why was a member of his personal staff on the interviewing panel to select an employee for the Liquor Commission which was, of course, an appointment within the Northern Territory Public Service?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have anything to do with the appointment of people to interview panels or boards of appeal or anything within the public service. From time to time, the Public Service Commissioner's Office contacts my office to see whether certain people are available to sit on a board or an interview or what have you. I do not influence this nor have anything to say about it. It is a public service matter and I leave it in that area.

Medical Condition of Donald Tait

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What is the medical condition of Donald Tait, a prisoner at Darwin Prison who, it is alleged, has been fasting for in excess of 80 days?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in partial answer to the question, the motion for which notice was given yesterday by the honourable Leader of the Opposition will be debated today. Let us face reality. The Irish record has been broken well and truly. It is absolutely impossible that the gentleman is not eating. The last medical report I had a couple of days ago indicated that Mr Tait's general health - particularly his blood pressure - was greatly enhanced. In fact, it has been brought back to normal without medication. The gentleman is in no danger whatsoever. Quite clearly, of course, if anyone continues not to eat properly for a very lengthy period of time, that person will end up in trouble. There is no problem at the moment.

Police Station for Palmerston

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What sort of police station will operate at Palmerston, with what facilities, how many staff and how many working hours per day?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, a nice question. There will be a shop-front police station built at Palmerston eventually. It will be staffed according to the demand and will remain open for up to 16 hours a day. For the first period, demountable facilities, which I understand are at Jabiru, will be placed at Palmerston to cover the patrol of construction sites and provide other police facilities. As I said earlier, when the new Berrimah police complex is completed, located as it will be in a very central situation, all mobile patrols, at least after business hours, will generate from Berrimah.

Cost of Display at Royal Easter Show in Sydney

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

What was the approximate cost of the Northern Territory display mounted at the Royal Easter Show in Sydney last month?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, my understanding of the Northern Territory involvement at the Royal Easter Show in Sydney was the use of the audio visual program mounted in the amphitheatre which has been used for that purpose over many years. That particular exercise was very successful. Some 17,500 people actually sat down and watched that audio visual program. I attended there for 1½ days and worked on the stand myself. It was a very successful exercise, far better than any we have done before. I do not have the actual cost but it involved the wages and salaries of several people from our tourist bureaux and the rent of space at the Royal Sydney Showground.

Basketball Courts at Darwin Community College

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I understand that the government has received a request to provide $3000 to resurface basketball courts at the Darwin Community College to enable the under-16 national netball titles to be held in Darwin. Does the government intend to meet this request?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the reason for the request was to enable the 2 parts of this sporting carnival to be held in proximity to each other. It would be obvious to all members that that is not a function of the Department of Education. On the other hand, clearly there was no other avenue of government funding which would be directly responsible or in a position to be held responsible for such a grant. I believe it to be a particularly worthwhile exercise and additionally it will upgrade the Darwin Community College courts. I was quite happy to approve the grant.

Blood Tests for Drugs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware of the existence of practical tests to detect drugs, other than alcohol, in blood? What is the cost and reliability of such tests and how simple are they to administer?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the short answer is that I am not aware of any tests that are available. If it would be of any help to the honourable member, I will ask the department to pursue the matter and to investigate whether such tests are available.

Fire Prevention Services for Winnellie Area

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he aware that the principal fire prevention vehicle for the Winnellie area is 1 Bedford truck carrying a 1000 gallon tank? Is it intended that the facilities be upgraded considering that this fire station services a heavy industrial area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, my understanding of the fire service at Winnellie is that it provides a service to the industrial area and some infrastructure to the rural area. The Darwin and the Casuarina stations cover areas which they can reach in about 4 or 5 minutes. I understand that the equipment at Winnellie may be old but it is adequate. At the same time, there are proposals to upgrade certain pieces of equipment in the next financial year.

Boundaries of Darwin City Council

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has an official approach been made by the Darwin City Council to extend its boundaries?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, to the best of my knowledge, the answer is no.

Winter Uniforms for Southern Region Police

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Will the Chief Minister indicate whether or not winter uniforms will be made available for police in the southern region this year?

ANSWER

I cannot answer this question specifically. I would be surprised if winter uniforms would be withheld from police serving in the southern region this year if it has been the practice to issue them in previous years. I think the police have certain clothing entitlements. I am quite certain that the Police Commissioner will ensure that those entitlements, which are contained in the police award, are met.

Koolpinyah Station Boundaries

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

On 9 March during the last sittings, the minister advised that the matter of redrawing the boundaries of Koolpinyah Station was under discussion by the government. Is he yet in a position to advise anything further regarding such discussions?

ANSWER

I ask the member to place his question on notice.

Wells Building

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he yet advise the date of the proposed demolition of the Wells Building?

ANSWER

I cannot give the honourable member the exact date. However, I can tell her that tenders will be called shortly for the demolition of the Wells Building.

Land Grants to Old Timers' Group

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Can he tell me what criteria are adopted when considering a grant of land to an old timers' group?

ANSWER

The government does not discriminate against old timers' groups at all. The criteria used for assessing applications for land for an old timers' group are much the same as that for other community and sporting-based groups. Checks are made firstly on the bona fides of the group concerned. From time to time, we have applications from people who, though perhaps genuine in intent, are not quite aware of the requirement of owning land and the expense involved. The selected area is examined for its availability or not. The resources of the group are examined. Many community-based groups would be making applications to the government for assistance to develop land which the government grants them. Checks are made as to whether there is a likelihood that the group's application would be supported by the relevant arm of government. In regard to an application for land in rural Darwin which has been received from a rural group representing old timers, I can advise the honourable member that the application is being processed at present.

Federal Subsidy for Electricity Costs

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Has the government received an assurance that the federal government will extend the subsidy on the fuel used in the generation of electricity as well as a guarantee of capital funds for the construction of the new power-station? What approximately will be the level of the subsidy for the financial year 1982-83 and what is the level of the contribution of the Commonwealth government to the construction of the Channel Island power-station?

ANSWER

This matter has taken up considerable time of myself and the Chief Minister over the last several months in a continuous series of meetings with federal ministers and the Prime Minister. There have been other meetings with federal officers by officers of our Treasury Department, NTEC, the Northern Territory energy consultant and others. The matter has been referred a couple of times to federal Cabinet and has gone a number of times to the Territory Cabinet. At this stage, it has not been completely resolved. There are still negotiations about ongoing operational subsidies for the Northern Territory as well as assistance by the federal government for the Territory to obtain additional generating capacity for the longer term as mentioned in the Memorandum of Understanding. Honourable members will be aware that the subsidy from the federal government which has existed since self-government for the generation and indeed capital expansion of the electricity system in the Northern Territory has been very substantial. It has represented some 50% of the cost of running the Northern Territory electricity supply and has in effect meant that all Northern Territory electricity consumers have been paying bills which represent about 50% of the actual cost of generating and distributing that electricity.

The matter of further subsidy is certainly very important to the Territory because enormous sums are involved. The annual subsidy at present is in the vicinity of $50m. We have been negotiating with the Commonwealth on what basis this arrangement will continue. As soon as some definite position is resolved with the Commonwealth, we will certainly be informing the people of the Northern Territory.

Sacred Sites

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What constructive consideration is he giving to the involvement of considerations of sacred sites in the planning processes of his department in Alice Springs and other centres in the Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the planning process and the land development process in the Northern Territory have existed for some time and are fairly clear. There is a series of public measures involved to elicit comment from the community, be they Aboriginals or others, as to how they see the development of our towns and suburbs. There are opportunities for them to object and suggest alternatives. Various arms of government regularly consult with Aboriginal organisations on particular projects which are planned for the Northern Territory. In addition, there are procedures under the Sacred Sites Authority in the Northern Territory whereby Aboriginal sacred sites or alleged sacred sites can be put forward for registration and, more importantly, declaration. That in turn provides a measure of protection for Aboriginal groups which have sacred sites declared as sacred sites.

Advertising of Frozen Fish

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Most people are aware of the dangers of refreezing food products. In that context, is it an offence to advertise fish as fresh when they have been frozen?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will refer the question to the legal people.

Letting of Contract to Brisbane Firm

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Is it a fact that a contract was granted to a Brisbane firm Retrographics for $0.25m giving that company a 5% margin on the basis that it was a local industry? Is it true that the contract was granted on 31 March, the same day that this company applied to have its business name registered in the Territory, thus making it ineligible for such a 5% allocation? What action has the Treasurer taken on this matter?

ANSWER

I am unaware of the matters the honourable member raises but I will certainly institute immediate inquiries and report to the Assembly on the next sitting day.

Yulara Tourist Village

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

My question concerns recent criticism of the proposed Yulara Tourist Village. Can he reply to the criticism concerning the type of accommodation which is presently under consideration?

ANSWER

Yesterday, I tabled various documents relating to the Yulara Tourist Village project and I notice that, in the last few days, the Chairman of the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association, who incidentally is one of the operators of a motel at Ayers Rock which is due to be closed down in approximately 1984 pursuant to various arrangements made many years ago when the motels were first leased, has criticised the nature of the accommodation proposed to be established at the Yulara Tourist Village. The burden of his complaint has been that there is no middle range or low-cost accommodation for tourists such as that available at Ayers Rock at present where the motels are of a relatively low standard and, in some cases, of rudimentary construction. Obviously, the amount being charged to persons using the motels, particularly package deal tourists, is relatively low. Most of the tourists who use the motels at Ayers Rock also use the motels at Alice Springs where they pay a rate which is certainly higher than they pay at Ayers Rock at present. The best answer to the question might well be for honourable members to look at the various proposals contained in the documents that I tabled yesterday. I will also read a couple of letters, one written by myself to Mr Bucholtz and a second more recent letter written by the Director of the Conservation Commission to Mr Bucholtz. The first is dated 1 April and is from myself to Mr Bucholtz:

> Thank you for your letter of 16 February on the above which I regret I have not answered earlier. The answers to your questions are as follows. Firstly, the figures quoted by White Industries Limited are estimated tariffs used for the purpose of establishing viability of the hotel operations and the resort generally. They are not necessarily the tariffs to be applied to the hotels. These tariffs will be a matter for the hotel operators themselves and there is no suggestion that they have to adhere to those quoted in the development documents. The tariffs of over $100 per room per night, to which you referred, are those tariffs used above after allowing for inflation in later years for the purposes of the analysis. They are not necessarily those which will apply to the resorts. Tariffs of $80 and $60 per room per night for the 5-star and 4-star accommodation respectively will mean that tour operators will be offering room rates of $40 and $30 per head respectively for accommodation and I am advised that these rates are not substantially higher than that currently applicable on a per head basis.

It is the government's intention that the opening of new facilities will be phased in with the termination of the existing leases.

Mr Speaker, I think that is what is continuing to generate a great deal of heat and light. The village is planned to be operational towards the end of 1984.

As to the progress of the project, the necessary legal agreements and documentation between the government and White Industries are in the final stages of preparation and site works are expected to commence in the very near future. The development of one 250-room hotel instead of 2 hotels, one of 200 rooms and one of 100 rooms, was an option considered by White Industries with a view to minimising capital costs. The option was, for various reasons, rejected and the development is proceeding as originally conceived; that is, with the 2 hotels initially.

Completion of the facilities will proceed in the following order: firstly, camp grounds, bunkhouses and associated facilities; secondly, resort No 1, 100 rooms; thirdly, resort No 2, 200 rooms, hotel, retail complex and other buildings and facilities; fourthly, in December, discussions had not then been held with the various Aboriginal groups in the area on housing accommodation. These discussions are currently in progress to determine their requirements and the appropriate solutions. Please accept my assurances that the government has been involving the tourist industry in the Yulara Village Project to keep it informed on development. However, you will also appreciate our desire to ensure that information about the project is factual and not taken out of context. To achieve this, we will be endeavouring to improve public knowledge and awareness of all aspects of the project as soon as the current negotiations are finalised.

There is considerable correspondence from the Director of the Conservation Commission in between, but I think this is the last letter to Mr Bucholtz from Dr Letts. It is dated 25 May;

I refer to your letter dated 21 May, detailing a request from your association for an alteration in the standards of accommodation to be provided at the proposed Yulara Tourist Village resort. In your letter to the Chairman of the Northern Territory Tourist Commission, dated 27 April 1982, you detailed the results of the survey conducted by your association amongst major tour operators to determine what the tourist industry will require by way of accommodation at Yulara.

As you know, this information has been tabulated so that it may be checked against the market analysis for the Yulara resort prepared by Peat, Marwick and Mitchell. At our meeting on 17 May 1982 with the Chairman of the Tourist Commission, you explained the views of industry representatives about the range and adequacy of accommodation to be built at Yulara and it was noted that these were somewhat different from the views expressed by organisations contacted by the consultants. In some instances, different people in the same organisations expressed different views.

Overlooking that point, I outline the full range of accommodation which was envisaged and, relating this to the tabulated summary of your survey, it appeared there was not nearly as much difference between the market and the current plans as has been contended. I do agree, however, that previous publicity and briefings have tended to centre on the poor facilities and there is a need for further communication between the commission and the industry to present a full picture of the total range of accommodation options.

At our meeting on 17 May you agreed to extend your survey further and provide additional information and I understand this will now be available by Wednesday 27 May.

In fact, as I understand it from Dr Letts and Mr Poole, the Tourist Commission Chairman, on the understanding that additional information would be provided at a further meeting, there was an agreement that, in the meantime, there would be no communication between the parties via the media. In breach of his undertaking to the 2 government officials, Mr Bucholtz straight away issued a press statement to the media and to date, as far as I am aware, has not provided the additional information that he undertook to provide.

Whilst the agreed scheme for the Yulara tourist resort includes the construction of one 3-4 star hotel of 100 rooms and one 4-5 star hotel of 200 rooms, it should be stressed that detail of design has only just commenced and matters of interior finish and standards are yet to be determined. The information being provided by your association will be taken into account when this is done. Negotiations will also commence in the near future with potential end users and the final standards and design detail will need to ensure that these facilities are sold to meet the existing market at economic rates. The design of the camping area facilities will be flexible enough to cope with the increased domestic market expected following the sealing of both the Peterman Road and most of the Stuart Highway. The camp grounds will also include bunkhouses to cater for 126 persons in the lower tariff range.

The construction program is being developed to cater for projected increases in demand on accommodation at Ayers Rock and takes into account the capacity of the building industry and the desirability of establishing a cash flow. The program will not damage the tourist industry but will enhance the facilities available to visitors to Ayers Rock.

As negotiations with end operators proceed, the course of action to be taken with respect to booking requests for the 1984 tourist season will be determined. Leases on existing motels extend to the end of 1984 and it is anticipated that these facilities will accept bookings until that time. I look forward to receiving the additional survey information to be provided by you.

Mr Speaker, it is unfortunate that this controversy has blown up publicly. It is unfortunate in many ways that the existing motels have to close but that decision was taken quite a long time ago by the Reserves Board or the Park and Wildlife Commission or the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service even before this government came on the scene. I do believe that it is a decision we must adhere to because the motels are, generally speaking, not of a very good standard and, futhermore, they are located very close to the rock within the national park. We are trying to make this a model concept for tourist development by harmonising with the environment, a concept that should be capable of being followed successfully in other areas of Australia. The tourist facilities will be all concentrated at the Yulara Tourist Village area. I can certainly understand Mr Bucholtz's personal feelings about having to close his motel in a foreseeable time. Nonetheless, there are opportunities for people presently at Ayers Rock in the village if they choose to avail themselves of them. I understand that at least 2 other motel operators at Ayers Rock have made application to be involved in the village project and I know of 1 other motel operator who is seeking to involve himself elsewhere in the tourist industry in central Australia. To the best of my knowledge, Mr Bucholtz has not taken any such step as this.

Mr Speaker, the position is that we will do everything we possibly can to cooperate with existing operators. We will do all we can to meet the requirements of the industry and, indeed, it is to meet the requirements of the industry that the Yulara Tourist Village project is going forward. It is supported by detailed feasibility studies and I have no doubt that when it is completed it will meet the requirements of the industry.

Removal of Motels in Ayers Rock Vicinity

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that the Chairman of the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association has repeatedly asserted over the last few days the preparedness of motel operators to remove their motels from the vicinity of Ayers Rock, and that he bitterly resents the accusations of self-interest made by the Chief Minister?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I received a telex from the Chairman of the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association only yesterday or the day before. Quite frankly, it was an abusive telex and it made no mention of such preparedness to remove his operations adjacent to Ayers Rock.

Barramundi Management Plan

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

A barramundi management plan was introduced in January of this year. Is he able to inform me what progress has been made with the management plan for the barramundi fishery?

ANSWER

The major objective of the plan was to reduce the potential fishing effort within the barramundi fishery that was becoming an increasing threat to the livelihood of barramundi fishermen and the barramundi resource. I am pleased to say that to date the plan has been extremely effective in reducing the potential fishing effort. Figures to hand show that the number of barramundi licences issued in 1981 was 111. To date this year, 87 licences have been issued, 10 whole licences have been surrendered and 79 net units have been bought back under the net buy-back system. This represents an expenditure of $79,000. In total, 134 net units have been removed from the fishery under this plan. This includes units redeemed by the reduction in net length. These figures represent to date a percentage reduction in potential fishing effort on 1981 which equals 36.3%. Mr Speaker, continuing consultations are taking place with the industry as to the future management of the barramundi fishery. To date, no firm decisions have been taken about other modifications to the management regime.

Royal Commission into the Australian Meat Industry

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Does he intend to take any action following the statements made by Mr Lawrence Ah Toy to the Royal Commission into the Australian Meat Industry? Mr Ah Toy stated that a well-known problem in the meat industry in the Northern Territory was alcoholism and corruption among DPP inspectors. I for one would like those statements either substantiated or laid to rest?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the matter has not been put finally to rest. In fact, I have been asked to give evidence at the Royal Commission in Melbourne. I was unable to do so in Darwin because of other pressures. I think it was a very unfortunate reference in that it undermines the quality and the operation of those dedicated people of the Northern Territory meat inspection service. We will address this matter in due course.

Air Fare Concessions for Old-age Pensioners

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When will details be available regarding air fare concessions to old-age pensioners?

ANSWER

As honourable members would be aware, it is proposed by the government to introduce the scheme on 1 July. I am currently putting a submission to Cabinet as to the exact method of operation of the scheme. The dilemma with this sort of matter is the rate of the protection the government provides against abuse of the taxpayers' money and the administrative cost in providing that protection. If watertight systems are introduced, the genuine recipients of such schemes are put to a great deal of frustration.

There are a number of different options available. There could be a system of warrants by the government for one way of a return trip. One would assume the safest way to do that would be for the warrant to cover the return trip so that in fact the government is not paying for a person to export himself from the Northern Territory. Nonetheless, from the airlines' point of view and from the pensioner's point of view, there is quite a lot of rigmarole involved in such a system.

Another way would be for the department to issue a warrant to the pensioner for the full value of the return air trip upon the payment of half in cash or by cheque to the department. By far the simplest way would be for the department to give the cash to the pensioner or eligible person to half the value of the nominated trip. Obviously, that would be the most simple way but it would also be the method most open to abuse. I suppose the department could require the pensioner to retain his ticket for 6 months after the trip is made. If abuse of the system is suspected, the department could ask for the ticket. Then we have the problem of a pensioner undertaking the trip and genuinely losing his ticket. Where does that leave us?

It is not an easy problem. The convenience of the airlines involved has to be considered. They staff their establishments to the business of running an airline and not to complex government systems. On the other hand, this has to be offset against the protection of the public interest in that it is the taxpayers' money that is involved. All of these options will be considered by Cabinet, hopefully, on Friday. I may be able to give some information to the Assembly during the course of the sittings next week.

Farmers Co-operative at Adelaide River

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is it a fact that the farmers cooperative at Adelaide River is to be closed down? Has this pressure been applied by the Chairman of ADMA and does this leave ADMA in a total monopoly position regarding the purchase and sale of feed grains in terms of local production in the NT and the Kimberleys?

ANSWER

As with all Northern Territory Development Corporation loans the details of the clients' affairs are confidential. The co-operative represents the interests of a number of rural producers and, accordingly, I am prepared to give the honourable member some information. The co-operative has been in serious financial difficulty over an extended period and consultations have taken place between it and the NTDC. It has been decided that it would be in the best interests of all concerned for the cooperative to discontinue its activities. To precipitate such a winding down, the NTDC, in consultation with the co-operative, intends to call in outstanding loans.

I would like to place on record my comments that the Adelaide River co-operative has played an important role in the development of cropping in the Douglas-Daly area. It finds itself in difficulty due to the fact that volumes of grain from the northern region are still relatively low and substantial capital costs have been required for its operation. A course of action is now being determined by the NTDC in consultation with the co-operative to effect the co-operative's winding down.

Repairs to Assembly

Mrs LAWRIE to SPEAKER

Can he indicate to the Assembly the cost of the repairs which have just been carried out to this antiquated building to stop it falling down around our ears?

ANSWER

About $32,000.

Eye Specialist for Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he advise what the present situation is concerning the recruitment of an eye specialist for Alice Springs Hospital and also what is the general situation concerning the recruitment of specialists for Alice Springs?

ANSWER

I can advise him that, since early last year, we have had considerable difficulty recruiting eye specialists for Alice Springs. There are 2 specialist positions in the town and one became vacant last year as a result of a resignation and the other one became vacant by a promotion when Dr Mahmood was transferred to Darwin. The very short answer is that it is not a problem of money and it is not a problem of will or desire. There is a very great difficulty at the moment in attracting eye specialists to the Territory. In fact, the department will be advertising Australia-wide again in the next couple of weeks to try to attract people to the positons.

I am not hopeful at this stage that we will get a successful applicant but I can assure the honourable member that processes are being put in train to ensure that, by locum or some other system, we do have these services available to the people of Alice Springs until the positions are filled permanently. I might also advise that we have been looking for some time for a specialist anaethetist and there has been some difficulty also in recruiting someone to this position. Again, it is not a matter of the department's will or desire or a lack of money. It is simply the fact that we cannot get people to apply for the positions that we advertise.

Commencement of Mining Act

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

As there is some conflicting advice on this question, could he please inform me when it is expected that the Mining Act 1980 will be brought into operation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, off the top of my head, it is 1 or 2 July 1982, but I will obtain the information for the honourable member and confirm it in writing.

Minister for Health's Visit to Hermannsburg

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

I refer to the press release he put out after a visit to Hermannsburg in which he referred to a putative invitation by a group of traditional owners, and to yesterday's copy of the Centralian Advocate in which was published a statement that the Hermannsburg Council President had refuted claims by the minister that he had been invited to visit the settlement. Did he receive such an invitation and from whom?

ANSWER

I did receive an invitation. While I would normally be happy to advise the honourable member whom it came from, I think there are times when it would be appropriate for me to say: 'Mind your own business'. On this particular occasion, I received representations from Alice Springs when the department and NTEC were negotiating with the traditional owners over the pipeline. The honourable member would be aware that we had some difficulty, in the early stages, over the Aboriginals' understanding of what the government was trying to do in acquiring and securing an easement for the pipeline from Palm Valley to Alice Springs. Very simply, as I understand it, the traditional owners affected by the Palm Valley pipeline project live in or around or are related to Hermannsburg in some way. I was asked to go and explain the government's position. They acceded to that and I was happy to go. I could not argue with the premise that I was not invited by the president of the Council. Certainly, he did not invite me and I never inferred at any stage that he did. But I did receive an invitation from constituents who also happen to be traditional owners in this matter. I went not to talk to traditional owners but to constituents.

From time to time, ministers of this government will be required to talk to people in the Northern Territory who have interests in land claims, leases, sacred sites and a whole range of other things with which the government deals. I do not wish at any stage to intrude on the activities of the land councils or to offend the principles of the Aboriginal Land Rights Act in negotiations. When a constituent asks me to come and talk to him, I feel that I am obliged to do that. On this particular occasion, I went to Hermannsburg at the request of constituents. I advised the Central Land Council that I was going. It sent a representative to the meeting and I had absolutely no difficulty with that person. I believe that the meeting was satisfactory. Points of concern were raised and discussed and the exercise was very productive and a fruitful one.

McMinns Lagoon Pumping Station

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What is the population in Darwin that can be served from the McMinns pumping station and what steps are being taken to increase its capacity and duplication?

ANSWER

A population of 90,000 people can be served from the present pumping station. At the moment, we are duplicating the Darwin River Dam to McMinns pumping station line.

Transfer of Particular Health Services to Private Enterprise

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Given that the Health Department is currently negotiating with various private firms to hand over drug and medical supply, radiology, pathology and pharmacy services - all traditionally supplied by the Health Department in the Northern Territory - and given the concern of Health Department staff and members of the public about the implications of these proposals, when will the minister announce details of the government's intentions to hand over these services to private enterprise?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there is nothing the government can do to prevent private people coming to the Northern Territory to establish pharmacy, x-ray, pathology or any other health services. In fact, in the rest of Australia, this is quite a normal function. So far as the Health Department is concerned, and I have said this on several occasions, it is reviewing everything it is doing, particularly in relation to how private operators may enter the field in the Northern Territory. That is something we cannot stop even if we wanted to. People should be able to have the choice of doing one thing or the other. Could I assure the honourable member that, so far as consultation with the staff is concerned, that is going on continually. I believe that I have spoken to every section of the hospital administration at Darwin Hospital. My most recent discussions were with the people involved in pathology. We met for 2 hours one night to discuss the matters that were under consideration. I would emphasise the point that there are no big secrets and no devious schemes. There is nothing to hide. I am happy to tell other people anything that I know about it. When there is some definite proposal to put to people, I would be more than happy to discuss it with them if they feel there is a need.

Transfer of Particular Health Services to Private Enterprise

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of his intention to offer the people of the Northern Territory a choice in services, will he ensure that public services continue so that people will have a choice between public and private services?

ANSWER

I believe that there will always be a requirement for services within our health facilities. For instance, let me say there is no way that we could close the pathology section of Darwin Hospital. That is quite an unrealistic proposition. There will always be a need for us to provide a level of pathology service in the hospital. If a section of the population transfers its business to some other area, that is a matter for the people concerned. In any event, we will need to maintain x-ray, pathology and a whole range of other services in our hospitals to a satisfactory level.

Liquor Act and Summary Offences Act

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he advise when the recently passed amendments to the Liquor Act and Summary Offences Act will come into force?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Acting Chairman of the Liquor Commission has advised me that he is in close consultation with a range of parties, particularly councils and people like the Conservation Commission over the declaration of restricted areas. As soon as his negotiations and discussions with these people have been concluded, we will be in a position to proceed with the new laws. At this stage, we hope that the amendments become effective on 2 July, but there are things that might cause delay.

Airlines of Northern Australia

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that Airlines of Northern Australia was granted a 7% increase in fares on the Katherine, Tennant Creek and Alice Springs run in the last few days?

ANSWER

Yes, but I might add that the independent air fares inquiry approved that increase. We were notified of it and it was just a matter of rubber stamping that decision.

Cleaning up of Government Land

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

In past years, money has been set aside by the government to clear properties controlled by the government of weeds and long grass. Has money been set aside for cleaning up purposes this year?

ANSWER

The answer is yes. The Department of Lands will continue to have a sum of money allocated for the maintenance of Crown land. It is quite impossible to keep all Crown land completely mowed and maintained in a satisfactory manner because it is extremely expensive once one gets out of the heart of town. Most honourable members who are concerned with the maintenance of Crown land are primarily concerned with Crown land in town. The conditions of various blocks of land can be brought to the attention of either my office or the Department of Lands with requests that they be maintained or rubbish removed. That is the function of the Department of Lands in this regard.

Free Trade Zone in NT

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

My question concerns his statement that research has been carried out into a free trade zone in the Northern Territory. Would the Chief Minister be prepared to publish the results of this research in a Green Paper on the feasibility of establishing a free trade zone in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

It is my normal practice when I send a submission like this to the Commonwealth government to make it public and, in fact, to obtain as much publicity for it as I possibly can. Honourable members have been recipients from time to time of various submissions that I have made in respect of particular aspects of Territory economics or life. I will certainly be following my normal practice on this occasion. The submission that will be presented in due course to the federal government will be widely circulated not just to members of this Assembly but to governments, parliamentarians, unions and industry groups right around Australia with a view to gaining the maximum possible support. Unfortunately, in our present situation where we have limited federal representation - 2 senators and 1 member of the House of Representatives - we need to try to bring together a coalition of interests that support us and to lobby as strongly as we can in consultation with them.

The one big plus that I think became very much impressed on my mind during my recent visit to Alaska and Hawaii was the fact that those 2 states very much prized the fact that they have equal senate representation in the United States Senate with all other states. The former Governor of Alaska said to me: 'There are 40 million or more people in New York State and they have got 2 senators and we have 400,000 people and we have 2 senators'. They feel that puts them in a stronger position in the union. In Hawaii, it was the same story. Unbelievably the present Governor of Hawaii said to me. 'Well, California has 38 million people and we have 2 million people. But we have 2 senators and they have 2 senators and that is the thing, son, you had better press'.

The situation in Australia is that each state has 10 senators and, therefore, I feel that the influence of the Northern Territory in the Commonwealth of Australia would be much enhanced if we had an additional 8 senators. Then, it would not be half as necessary for ministers such as myself to lobby around Australia to pick up support for things that the Northern Territory badly needs.

Rationalisation of Rates in Berrimah Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When will the landholders in the Berrimah area receive an answer to their frequent requests for rationalisation of their rates?

ANSWER

I assume from the honourable member's question that she refers to those landholders in the Darwin rates area who have their properties adjacent to other than sealed roads. There is a widely held misconception by people in the rural area that rating includes such matters as sewerage, water, electricity and so on. It does not. That is not what rating is tied to. It is tied to the normal municipal services provided by city and town councils.

The disparity as the people down there see it is that they are adjacent in many cases to very poor roads indeed. I am certain that, when the Valuer-General values the properties upon which the rates are levied, he would take into account quality of access. Nonetheless, many of these properties are adjacent to areas which are being used for commercial purposes such as quarrying, cement manufacturing and so on. The Valuer-General must have regard to properties adjacent to commercial properties. They would be properly zoned and therefore valued as if they could be used for that purpose. Therefore, many rural dwellers find themselves with very poor roads but fairly high unimproved capital values. If one applied the Darwin act to them, they feel, with some justification, that they would be considerably disadvantaged. Mr Speaker, the problem in trying to overcome it by way of a differential rating or rationalisation of rating, as the honourable member puts it, is difficult. The differential rating provisions which this Assembly recently saw fit to pass only apply to areas of land within municipalities, within town council boundaries. Of course, the other provision that this Assembly passed in relation to differential rating was that that land be used, either fully or substantially, for the purpose of income accruing to the ratepayer. Quite obviously neither of those provisions would apply to people in the area known as the Darwin rate area. Incidentally, there is no provision for the minister to declare different boundaries within that area. The act, quite specifically, prevents him from doing that. Therefore, the area to which the honourable member refers cannot be dealt with individually and a separate rate struck by the minister in respect of that area as opposed to the area immediately across the Stuart Highway which is also an area where full services are provided.

Mr Speaker, this is a matter of considerable concern, not only to myself but to my Cabinet colleagues. We have recently discussed this at length and certainly I am assuming that I have a charter from my Cabinet colleagues to have this matter sorted out. Last week, I had a meeting with a representative of the people affected in this way. I indicated to that representative that it was my determination to organise as quickly as possible the upgrading of facilities in that area, particularly the roads, which is the obvious solution to the problem. If, for cash flow reasons, that is quite impossible for the next several years - and for logistic reasons which I will mention in a minute - I am charged by my Cabinet colleagues to prepare amending legislation to overcome what is quite clearly seen by many, and agreed to by this government, as being a position of disadvantage.

Mr Speaker, one reason why I say that it might not be possible to upgrade some of those roads is that, in the very near future, they will become major arterial roads and it would be a singular waste of the taxpayers' money to spend up to $1m in sealing those roads if in fact they have to be ripped up in 4 years' time for the dual highway to go through.

I have instructed my department to request meetings with the Department of Transport and Works to resolve the practicality of immediately upgrading the roads in the correct places. Certain people in the rural area believe that the program of upgrading roads, which we are commencing from the north and moving south, is going in the wrong direction. My department has instructions again to follow this matter up with the Department of Transport and Works. We will try and aim our capital works priorities in the right direction. If that cannot be done because of other planning matters, then I will come back here with amendments.

Buffalo from Beatrice Hill

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Could he advise how many staff are employed on the Beatrice Hill project and approximately how many buffalo have been prepared for export to Papua-New Guinea? Why was this project not carried out by private industry expertise in line with stated government policy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not too sure how many staff are at Beatrice Hill, but the proposal before the government and the department is to dispatch to Papua-New Guinea 200 disease-free buffalo. Beatrice Hill has been involved with testing those buffalo and getting them ready for shipment. I propose to approve the movement of those buffalo to Papua-New Guinea as soon as veterinarian documentation is available to us. I do not understand the honourable member's alarm about the project. It was a necessary project. We had to replace buffalo found to be diseased on arrival in Papua-New Guinea some years ago. We have been working to meet this requirement.

Low-cost Housing Designs at Karama

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has the Northern Territory Housing Commission yet made a decision to adopt any of the designs currently on display at the low-cost housing village at Karama?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the low-cost housing village organised by industry and government and recently opened for public display is really an experiment to try to determine public attitudes towards the designs which could be brought forward by private enterprise in the low-cost housing area. Also, it is an experiment for the designers and builders themselves so that they can put forward their own ideas and seek information from other persons as to how the need could be met. I see this low-cost housing village as the first in a series of events to examine how governments get the cost of house-and-land packages down to within the vicinity of $50,000 or preferably below that.

I do not believe that the Housing Commission has specifically adopted any of the designs for construction. The village is open and manned by various personnel with a view to the builders concerned selling the houses which were constructed and taking orders from persons interested in building such houses on their own land. When the village has been displayed for some time, we will assess public reaction to each home. I believe quite a number of contracts have been made to build houses from those designs on privately owned land, and I am very pleased by that. It will help us to assess the success of the project when we examine public reaction and to determine where we should go from there.

To answer the honourable member's question in simple terms, I believe the Housing Commission has not specifically adopted any one of those designs with a view to constructing them on any scale.

Staff at Alice Springs High School

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is he aware that the shortcomings in the recruitment of teaching staff in the Northern Territory has resulted in the re-employment at Alice Springs High School in 1982 of a teacher who resigned in mid-1981, disrupting a matriculation class at that school, and is he aware of the effect that it is having on the morale of parents, teachers and children at that school?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the particular case to which the honourable member refers although I would not be surprised if such a thing was found to be necessary. Certainly, I agree with him that, while it may have been deemed to have been necessary, it may not be wholly desirable for that sort of thing to take place. Mr Speaker, I have great fears in the secondary education area for the Territory in future years. I do not want to sound an alarmist, but I honestly believe that the Tertiary Education Commission will over-react in terms of the present apparent glut of teachers, particularly secondary teachers, and wind down on training through colleges of advanced education. The Northern Territory could then have difficulty recruiting teachers in future years.

I am reminded of the era of the 1960s when there was a shortage of practitioners in the legal and medical professions. An enormous number of people were put through university in Australia and we had a glut. There was an immediate reaction that too many had been trained and the program was discontinued. The legal profession now states that the chances of attracting to the Northern Territory a qualified solicitor with any sort of experience at all is extremely difficult. If a shortage of secondary teachers arises in Australia, the Northern Territory will be most adversely affected because it does not, at this stage, have its own training resources. At the present time, I have approved travel for teams to go interstate on a recruitment program. The Teaching Service Commission has conduct of that program. We are determined that we will do our recruiting as early as we possibly can this year in order to prevent these sorts of difficulties occurring next year. Nonetheless, as I have indicated 2 days ago, without home-grown Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science courses at the Darwin Community College so that people with those basic degrees can undertake a Diploma of Education and thereby provide at least to some extent a secondary teacher resource of our own, I think trouble is inevitable. I just wish the Tertiary Education Commission realised it.

Cropping Programs at Sunday Creek Station

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he give me the results of cropping programs at Sunday Creek Station?

ANSWER

Sunday Creek, which is a station down near Daly Waters in the Elsey electorate, last year sowed quite an extensive acreage of grains and peanuts. I am pleased to say that, with the good season that was recorded across that area, magnificent results have been recorded. I know it is against the rules to have lunch in the Assembly, Mr Speaker, but I thought for your edification,

Sir, that you would be pleased to know that the peanuts are of a very high quality, the yield is quite good and I am sure that all members would like to have some with their lunch a little bit later.

Future Management of East Point Reserve

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When will he announce a decision on the future management of East Point Reserve?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government will make an announcement as soon as it has made the decision on which body is to take over the management of East Point Reserve. I have various matters being drawn up for presentation to Cabinet in the near future relating to the foreshore management plan which has been on display by the government over the past few weeks. Considerable comments have been received from various parties. Included in that exercise, although not necessarily being decided at the same time, is the future body to take over control of East Point. The government also has to consider in some depth the proposed plans for the future of East Point which have been prepared by the East Point Trustees which will of course phase out when the government makes a decision as to which body is to actually run East Point. By the same token, you have to take in the government's wish to adopt a plan of management for East Point at the same time as deciding who is going to operate East Point in the future.

Housing Commission Sales in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Following the passage of amendments to the Tenancy Act, can he advise me when the Housing Commission houses in Nhulunbuy will be available for sale to interested tenants?

ANSWER

I do have some information on this but not immediately to hand. I will examine the matter more closely and provide an answer during the course of these sittings.

Health Clinic at Napperby Station

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he advise when the health clinic which is presently in kit form on Napperby Station - it has been there for several years - may be assembled and constructed?

ANSWER

I share his concern about the state of the Napperby health clinic. The only advice I can give him is that there have been some discussions about the site over quite a period of time between the Aboriginal group concerned and the management. There was a further complication relating to the provision of water. I am happy to say that I believe the site matter has been resolved between the Aboriginals and the station management. The department through its grants-in-aid has been able to provide $6000 to the community to pay for the erection of the centre. I believe that arrangements are under way through my colleague, the Minister for Transport and Works, to provide water to the area for its future development. Given that our part of the agreement has been to provide the equipment and the money to get on with the job, I believe that it is now a matter for the locals to complete their arrangements.

Hard Labour in NT Prisons

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

One reads in various acts that there are penalites of so many years jail with hard labour. What is the nature of hard labour in the Northern Territory prisons and what is different about the labour carried out by prisoners not so sentenced?

ANSWER

This is more a question for the Solicitor-General. Off the top of my head, I think that, other than sentencing for debt, which is extremely rare, all sentencing in the Northern Territory carries the term 'hard labour'. Some would say regrettably the days of the rock pile have gone. I have mixed feelings on that myself. I do not mean that literally but I tend to wonder whether a commonly held image of our prisons is not a correct one. Nonetheless, there are significant amounts of works conducted in prisons. The honourable member would be aware of most of them. The general activities are consistent in all prisons around Australia where you have a range of prison farms and more secure establishment. They include such things as maintenance, gardening, trade training and whatever labour activities are involved. There is a mandatory requirement to work provided the person is fit. It used to be referred to, or still is at law, as hard labour. One could be justified for being somewhat cynical about accepting that usage of the English language at times.

Report on Dry Areas in Aboriginal Communities

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Will the minister table at this sittings a report on the effectiveness of dry areas in Aboriginal communities prepared by the Liquor Commission and made available to the minister some time ago? I ask for the tabling of the document as one of its own recommendations is that its contents be made public.

ANSWER

The document to which he refers is to go before Cabinet very shortly. It really is a decision for Cabinet as to whether it is made public. If it is possible for it to be tabled in the next week, then that is good fortune and, if not, it will be in the following sittings.

Access to Darwin

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

There has been talk about another traffic corridor into Darwin using the old railway line area. Is the minister able to inform me if the proposal to use the old railway line area is being seriously considered?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether the Minister for Transport and Works could shed some more light on this matter. To my knowledge, there has over the past several years been examinations of various traffic flows around Darwin. One of the many options which have been considered from time to time by planners and engineers is the use of what was formerly a railway corridor from Salonika into Darwin. I have not seen any specific proposals in this regard. I would want to study them very carefully if they were put forward seriously because the area is in the centre of my electorate and indeed the electorate of the member for Port Darwin. Any such rerouting of highways into Darwin would have some fairly severe effects and no doubt some benefits as well. Mr Speaker, I am not aware that any such proposal has been floated for adoption at this stage.

Banks' Merger

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise the House if the relevant banks have responded to the Chief Minister's statements on the attitude of the government relating to legislation controlling the proposed merger of the banks?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I thank the Leader of the Opposition for the question. In fact, earlier this morning, I sent the Leader of the Opposition - and I do not know whether he has actually received them as yet - copies of telexes from the National Bank of Australasia Ltd and the Bank of New South Wales and also a telex from the Commercial Bank of Australia concerning, on its behalf, the response of the Bank of New South Wales.

In the last couple of days, the media seems to have seized on the Bank of New South Wales, for some reason, as the villain of the piece and all criticism seems to have been directed at that bank alone. This concerns me for more reasons than one. I have a big overdraft at that bank for a start. There are, of course, 4 banks involved in these mergers: the National Bank of Australasia is attempting to merge with the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, and the Bank of New South Wales is attempting to merge with the Commercial Bank of Australia Limited. I wrote to all 4 banks seeking assurances from them. I have now telexes from the National Bank of Australasia and the Bank of New South wales. The telex from the Bank of New South Wales is quite a substantial reply. I will not burden you, Mr Speaker, and honourable members of this Assembly by reading the whole of the telex. I will table it for the information of all honourable members should they wish to read it. I will read parts of it which I think I should do in fairness to the Bank of New South Wales since it has been copping it a bit over the last couple of days.

The bank states: 'Even if we were to accept the proposition that the Territory should be looked at in isolation, and that is from the point of view of deposits and loans, what do we see? In the year to March 1982, the Wales Trading Bank had loaned 79% of its weekly average deposits and the CBA 176%'. There must be some pretty heavy borrowers down at the CBA. The combined figure for the 2 banks was 94%. The telex says: 'Given that the Reserve Bank requires us to maintain 7% of deposits on a statutory reserve deposit and 18% in LGS assets' - they are government securities I think - 'it could be argued that we are over-lent in the Territory'.

It is not nearly as bright a picture in respect of the savings banks. One must realise that not too many people try to maintain very substantial trading bank accounts and many people are constantly in an overdraft situation. In the savings bank area, the Wales had housing lending equivalent to 20% of its deposits - not quite as we would like. The CBA's Territory housing loans were equivalent to 46% of its local savings bank deposits. The combined banks' Territory lending for housing was 24% of deposits. The telex says:

> It is conceded that this is low by Australian standards and that the ratio has risen from 14% over the period since 1977-78. Added to this, there are loans to Territory local authorities equivalent to 18% of savings bank deposits. We are not advancing this brief view of the situation as a complete explanation nor do we plan to adjust our policies to correct the over-lent position in the trading bank. So far as the savings bank position is concerned, the bank will be pleased to conduct a full investigation into the level of demand for housing finance in the Territory and, should it be found that there is an unsatisfied demand from suitable borrowers, to investigate what remedial action can be taken within the guidelines set for us by the authorities.

Mr Speaker I seek leave to table this copy of the telex.

Leave granted.

Mr EVERINGHAM: They do ask us to cooperate and pass the merger legislation at this sittings because they would otherwise have to do it a different way by various legal agreements and documentation. The non-passage of the legislation will do nothing to frustrate their merger other than give a lot more work to the legal profession and cause a considerable degree of inconvenience. The National Bank stated inter alia:

This bank values the strong effective working relationship it has with your government. It has worked assiduously on its corporate citizenship status in the Northern Territory. As demonstrated by the figures below, this bank has committed resources towards the creation and development of the Territory's infrastructure, commercial and housing, based well beyond its normal parameters. Moreover, as alluded to above, this bank ratio differs markedly from those of the banking industry in the Territory.

Trading Bank Ratios:

Advances bills to deposits - 122%.

Advances bills to deposits allowing for SRD ratios and LGS convention - 162%.

i.e. this bank's lending base in the Northern Territory is heavily susidised by the deposits raised in other states. In excess of 75% of Trading Bank lending is directed to flats and houses erection.

Saving Bank Ratios:

Loans: Territory issued assets to deposits - 63%.

Housing loans to deposits - 31%.

Territory and statutory authority loans to deposits - 25%.

Other loans - 7%.

N.B. This bank has been a calendar writer for Territory loan issues and has subscribed to loans. Because of the lower owner-occupied home ownership situation in the Northern Territory, savings bank housing loans are lower than is usual. Please see trading bank figures above.

Mr Speaker, I overlooked, when referring to the telex from the Wales, to mention that they did state that they have participated in the construction of the housing for the whole workforce at Nhulunbuy, and perhaps Jabiru also, by lending substantial sums of money to the mining companies in those towns for that purpose. I would also seek leave, Mr Speaker, to table this copy of the telex from the National Bank of Australasia.

Leave granted.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, I suggest that we accept the Bank of New South Wales' offer to conduct a review of its savings bank operations in the Northern Territory. I think that this would be a very significant step because there is no doubt that, after its merger with the Commercial Bank of Australia - which we will not stop - the Bank of New South Wales will be by far the largest banking concern in the Territory. I think it will be represented in every centre but Katherine. I was assured by the regional manager of the Bank of New South Wales that the bank is actively looking at having itself represented in Katherine and not just by an agent. It has an agency there at the present time, Cox's, and it is looking at an actual banking presence in the not too far distant future in the town of Katherine. I propose, with the assent, I hope, of members of the Assembly and with the support of my ministerial colleagues, to write to the Bank of New South Wales and accept its offer to conduct the review. I look forward to receiving the result of the review and perhaps will bring it to the notice of this Assembly. All in all, Mr Speaker, it would probably look as though the Northern Territory was being a bit of a dog in the manger if it did not cooperate with these banks in passing the legislation at this sittings. I was assured yesterday that all other states will have the legislation passed within the requisite period of time.

Mosquito Eradication in Central Australia

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

My question concerns the mosquito eradication program in Central Australia. Following the advice that the minister has already received from the various departments involved in this project, would he also consider spraying the troubled Ilpapa Swamp area with an inflammable material, burning it off and then having the department instruct various companies involved in construction in Central Australia to backfill that swamp area with building rubble and other material?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I thank the honourable member for Stuart for his concern. It is true that the co-ordinated program has been attempted by the Health Department, the Conservation Commission and the Department of Transport and Works. At a recent meeting, they decided to burn off the grass on the bank as an eradication measure. I will take up the other point and seek some kind of rubble or backfill to be placed in the swamp at reasonable intervals to see if we can backfill it over a period of time.

Adulteration of Food at Darwin Prison

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

He will be aware that yesterday at Darwin Prison food, believed to have been deliberately adulterated with maggots, was served to prison officers and some prisoners. Would he make available to the Assembly later this sittings the results of the investigation now under way?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as is usual in these matters, I would like to look at the report before giving any such undertaking. I think the honourable member would be well aware that there are valid reasons for that, not the least of which, in a prison environment, is the need for security. If it is a document which I consider to be suitable to make available publicly, it most certainly will be. If it is not, I undertake to at least let the honourable member for Nightcliff have access to its contents.

Listings of Telephone Numbers of Opposition Members

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that some of the telephone numbers listed for the electorate offices of some of the Assembly members of the opposition are also listed as Australian Labor Party branch offices in the Telephone Directory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is with some surprise that this matter was drawn to my attention, especially in view of the attitude to probity of members of the Legislative Assembly that has always been adopted by the members opposite. In fact, when it was drawn to my attention, I had a look at the Northern Territory Telephone Directory. It appears that numbers listed under the heading 'Legislative Assembly' - which one assumes are members' electorate offices since that is the heading of the column under the Legislative Assembly general heading in the Northern Territory government section of the current directory - and under 'Australian Labor Party' in that directory are the same. The Casuarina Branch of the ALP has telephone number 279405 which corresponds with that of the honourable member for Sanderson. The Nightcliff Branch of the ALP's telephone number 854666 corresponds with the telephone number of the former member for Millner. The Nhulunbuy Branch of the ALP's telephone number, 871802, corresponds with that of the honourable member for Nhulunbuy. The honourable member for Fannie Bay has a telephone number 814760, which is shown as being the Fannie Bay Branch telephone number, and the honourable member for MacDonnell has a telephone number 522612 which corresponds with the number of the ALP's Alice Springs office.

It does seem to me that, to say the least, this is playing a bit fast and loose with telephone services that are probably reluctantly provided - if any taxpayer was asked - for the use of members of this Assembly. It has been the policy of the Australian Labor Party in this parliament and elsewhere in Australia to lecture and hector government members on matters of its probity. Recently, we have seen a very strong campaign by members of the federal Australian Labor Party opposition on the question of tax evasion and tax avoidance. Of course, the argument is that people are not paying their taxes. Here, taxpayers' money is being put to a use which taxpayers certainly have not been asked about and about which they have had no chance of making any decision at all.

Mr Speaker, I appreciate that the matter is one which is probably at the discretion of yourself. At the request of the honourable member for Port Darwin, I simply bring this material to your attention. I seek leave to table pages 33 and 38 of the current Northern Territory Telephone Directory.

Leave granted.

Giles House Alice Springs

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is the minister aware that child offenders in Giles House in Alice Springs automatically transfer to adult institutions upon attaining the age of 17 years? Will he have this policy reviewed so that children who have only a short period of their sentence to complete and otherwise are exhibiting no behavioural problems might complete their sentence in the more appropriate atmosphere of Giles House.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will have the matter examined.

Channel Island Causeway

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Why cannot the consultant currently engaged to design the bridge to Channel Island be instructed to consider a proposal for a causeway and, from this, an ornamental lake to Palmerston?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the possibility of using a causeway was one of the options considered in the preliminary assessment for the power-station access. However, it was found to be impractical.

BA Degree Course at Darwin Community College

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he advise the Assembly of any communications that have taken place between himself and the federal Minister for Education on the commencement of the BA degree course at the Darwin Community College? Can he advise the Assembly of the federal government's attitude to the commencement of the degree?

ANSWER

On a number of occasions in this Assembly, last week being the most recent, I outlined what I perceived to be the federal government's attitude. I thought I outlined it quite clearly. On the other hand, I suppose that I am in no position to give an opinion on the opinion of another government. As I indicated again last week, I will be having discussions with the federal minister in the course of the federal Cabinet visit to the Northern Territory and shall probably follow the matter up further during the course of the Australian Education Council meeting in Alice Springs in July. Mr Speaker, if any futher progress is made in this matter as a result of discussions with Senator Baume during the course of his visit to the Northern Territory next week, I would certainly make any progress reports available to the public as soon as possible.

Telegraph Terrace in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Telegraph Terrace in Alice Springs was resealed by the Department of Transport and Works several weeks back. Within a few days, it was dug up again by a government contractor. Will he ensure that the department in central Australia liaises more closely before committing government taxpayers' dollars to roadworks?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in most cases departments try to co-ordinate the different services that are to go underground before roads are sealed. However, in this case the contractor arrived on the scene early and thought that the other contractor had completed his work, which he had not. The road was sealed and the first contractor returned about a week later and started to dig the road up. This particular exercise has not been a cost to the taxpayer. However, I will ensure that in future contractors report to the department before they start digging up roads.

Bridge at Mouth of Rapid Creek

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Last Tuesday, I asked him about the possibility of a bridge across the mouth of Rapid Creek. He replied that there was no plan at this stage to bridge the Rapid Creek causeway, which gave me great pleasure. I preface my question by referring to an article in Saturday's NT News which stated that political pressure was being applied and it was likely that such a bridge would be built. Is he preparing a submission to Cabinet to put a bridge across the mouth of Rapid Creek?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this question arose early this year when the Brinkin subdivision problems were raised by the community. Even I made the suggestion that one way of possibly alleviating traffic problems in that area would be to put a bridge across the mouth of Rapid Creek linking Brinkin and part of the northern suburbs with Rapid Creek Road, through to Chapman Road, and on through Dick Ward Drive into town. I floated this proposal to my colleagues. At this stage, they have asked me not to consider it or put it on any forward plans. I have adopted this policy. When the honourable member put this question last week, I was quite right in saying that there were no plans. There are no plans but I still feel that it may be achieved at some later date.

Solar Rebate Scheme

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Will the solar rebate scheme be carried on as part of the energy conservation scheme?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government certainly has no plans to cease or even restrict the scheme whereby the Northern Territory Electricity Commission provides rebates for those persons installing solar appliances in the domestic environment. Indeed, we would encourage people in the Territory to take every opportunity that they can to conserve electricity. It is a very expensive commodity and will become more so. At present, we certainly have no plans of winding any schemes back.

Experimental Electric Car

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

In light of the interest of all members in alternative fuel sources, can he inform the Assembly what is to be the fate of the experiemtnal electric car purchased some time ago by the department at a cost of $16,000? In the light of recent statements that research has indicated the car was uneconomical, will he give details of the research that was carried out to reach this conclusion?

ANSWER

I will need to seek details to answer the second part of the question. The whole premise of buying and experimenting with the electric car in the first place was to ascertain for the population at large whether this proposal had any viability in the Northern Territory given our high fuel costs and the high cost of generating electricity. The Department of Mines and Energy has determined that the proposal to operate electric cars in the Northern Territory is not viable for a variety of reasons, particularly because the battery performance of the electric car is most unsatisfactory. It has not been developed to a stage in technological terms where it is likely to be a viable proposition in the Northern Territory to drive a car with a battery.

Mr Speaker, the honourable member is entitled to the details and I will get them for him after the sittings.

Yulara Tourist Village

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is the Northern Territory government no longer intending to establish 4 or 5-star accommodation at the Yulara Tourist Village as a result of discussions held between the Conservation Commission, the Tourist Commission and the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Conservation Commission, through White Industries, will be establishing high-class hotel accommodation at the Yulara Tourist Village. A meeting was held yesterday between the Director of Conservation, the Chairman of the Tourist Commission and the Yulara Project Officer, Mr Graham Ryde. On this occasion, they requested the complete executive of the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association to be present at the meeting as well as the celebrated Mr Bucholtz. I have received a report on that meeting but I was given it on the basis that the parties at the meeting had agreed that any announcement was to be embargoed until 6 pm this evening. As much as I appreciate my duties to the Assembly, I am reluctant to pass on information which would not have been supplied to me if it was known that I would make a public announcement prior to the agreed time. If it simply involved government officials, that would not worry me but there is a question of faith and confidence with the complete executive of the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association. The question of faith is one that I have been fairly strong on in the last week or so in relation to this particular matter. I believe that these people should be able to negotiate, conduct their meetings and get on with their business without major press sagas going on for years.

Mr Speaker, all I can say at this stage is that it is my belief that there are various levels of accommodation to be provided at Yulara Tourist Village as disclosed by those documents. At some stage in the last week or 2, I said that everything from luxury penthouse suites to family-room accommodation will be in the hotels at Yulara Tourist Village. I do believe that the 3-star hotel will be somewhat of the standard of the Oasis Motel at Alice Springs. I am unsure what a 4 to 5-star hotel is because I am not sure if it is a motor-bike or something like that. The Michelin guide only goes up to 4 stars and I doubt whether we in the Territory would hope to exceed the standard of the establishments that received that accolade from the Michelin guide. I would say that, at best, we are building a 4-star establishment which I understand will be of a similar standard to the Alice Springs Country Club Casino.

Yulara Tourist Village

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he then informing the Assembly that the government's position has not changed in relation to the quality or the standard of accommodation at Yulara Tourist Village as a result of a survey carried out by the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not think I said anything of the sort. The position is that the Alice Springs Regional Tourist Association has put its views at this meeting and those views are being taken into account. I understand that it is putting views forward as to the nature of the finish and the style of the various rooms and buildings to be constructed. These buildings are still in the planning stages and there is room for input from that body. I have a press release that everyone at the meeting agreed to. It seems to me that full and complete accord was achieved at that meeting. I therefore suggest to the honourable member for MacDonnell that he is trying to fish in waters that are perhaps a bit out of his depth and that he should await the release by the meeting of its official agreement.

Foreshore Policy

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When does he intend to announce the government's final foreshore policy?

ANSWER

I had hoped to have the foreshore policy finalised and submitted to the Northern Territory Cabinet and then announced during the course of these sittings. As a result of other activities and the work of Cabinet, I have not been able to do that. However, I am anxious to have the matter resolved shortly. It will obviously be after the sittings. I can only undertake to honourable members that, as soon as a decision is made on the future of the foreshore plan as exhibited, I will announce it.

Turn-off of Land at Palmerston

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Can he assure me that the turn-off of land at Palmerston will in no way be detrimental to the private turn-off of land in the rural area, excluding the normal business competition?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not think that the potential subdividers in rural Darwin should consider that the advent of Palmerston and the sale of land in that satellite city would be detrimental to them. I see both areas as catering to different types of customers. As a general rule in the rural area of Darwin, subdivisions are certainly much larger than the ¼-acre or smaller block that Palmerston may be producing. I do not think people would find in Palmerston the sort of lifestyle for which they would move to rural Darwin. I am sure that people can put aside any fears that we are trying to pre-empt their private subdivisions.

Cape Don Lighthouse

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

The Conservation Commission has made an approach to the federal Department of Administrative Services for certain priorities regarding the use of buildings if the Cape Don lighthouse is decommissioned or demanned. Could he advise whether the Conservation Commission has received any assurance from the federal department as yet?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of any assurances to the Conservation Commission from the federal minister concerned. However, it is something that I can easily find out. I will obtain the information for the honourable member.

Farming Area near Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What progress, if any, has been made towards selecting and making available a suitable farming area near Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have always taken the view that there are suitable soils and good water in Central Australia for the establishment of market gardens and horticultural produce, particularly in view of the fact that most Northern Territory produce comesfrom South Australia. I think that some further work should be undertaken in due course by this government as to what areas could be made available for this purpose. I understand that quite large amounts of water are available in the Deep Well area and that soil surveys have been undertaken in that region. I think that our policy will gradually turn towards the establishment of farms in Central Australia in due course.

Medical Practitioner in Tennant Creek

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of the decision of the private medical practitioner who established business in Tennant Creek recently to leave that town, will he ensure that a Health Department doctor is once again permanently located at Tennant Creek Hospital?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can assure the honourable member that I will have the situation under control.

Lands Department Leasing of Land in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has the Lands Department yet succeeded in negotiating a sublease of serviced land or land suitable for servicing from the leaseholder of the Nhulunbuy township for further Housing Commission home development?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have specific details of the latest position. I will endeavour to obtain some additional information for the honourable member during the course of this sittings.

Territory Apicultural Industry

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Will he look to tightening the enforcement provisions under the Stock Diseases Act, which are currently not being implemented, to ensure that there is better control over the movement of bees into the Territory to prevent the introduction of unwanted diseases into the Territory's infant honey industry?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have had representation on this matter and I did tell the person who made the representation that we would look at the laws to see what legislation needed tightening up. As the Assembly will recall, bees are classified as stock for the purpose of movement into the Northern Territory. We will do all we can to ensure that diseases do not come into the Northern Territory.

Rural Subdivision

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Can he assure me that the moratorium placed on subdivision to 5 acres in the rural area outside Darwin imposed last August was in no way connected to the government's wish to sell land at Palmerston?

ANSWER

I can see that some people in rural Darwin are concerned that their interests may be adversely affected by the advent of Palmerston. I can assure the honourable member that I do not see the 2 areas as being in competition in any way whatsoever. The need for Palmerston was such that the government made a decision that Darwin should not continue in one massive urban sprawl ad infinitum, and that it was time to cut Darwin off at roughly the size that it is now and start again a little way down the track. This decision was taken after considerable studies had been made on the future of the city over the next several decades. That is why Palmerston was selected. We hope to have our first residents living in Palmerston in the latter part of this year.

As a completely separate exercise, the government became concerned at the housekeeping and maintenance of bores in the rural areas of Darwin where the water supply is not reticulated. To ensure that the situation does not get out of control, a study has been instigated into groundwater supplies in rural Darwin. For the course of that study, which will be completed in the latter part of this year, a moratorium has been placed on the subdivision of land below 20 acres in the rural area. This will continue until such time as the matter is completely resolved and government policy has been established to ensure that the existing and future residents of rural Darwin have access to a good water supply.

Drug and Alcohol Advisory Committee

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

When will community representatives from the Alice Springs, Barkly and Darwin regions be appointed to the NT Drug and Alcohol Advisory Committee?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to put the question on notice or write to me about it.

Public Expenditure

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Following the deficit in the public accounts made public last year, has there been any reorganisation of the policy and planning priorities to allow for a less eratic development of public expenditure?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I find the honourable member's question somewhat amazing. I did take the trouble to point out in a press release at the time of printing the quarterly statements that it was quite false for any person to draw conclusions from those statements and extrapolate them over a 12-month period. The fact is that government spending and government revenue varies throughout the year. The government has policies, as all governments do, to try to ensure a smooth outflow of government revenue during the course of the year so that the business community which, in fact, ends up with most of the government funds, receives as continuous a flow as possible. Statements for the third quarter, which were released by myself some weeks back, indicated that, at that time, the balancing of the government's books showed that we had a substantial deficit. I indicated then that, whilst a deficit was anticipated by the end of the financial year, it should be considerably less than those third-quarterly statements indicated. I understand, Mr Speaker, that that will be so. However, honourable members will have to wait until the figures for the last quarter of the year are put together.

I point out to the honourable member for Nhulunbuy that the quarterly statements are really a photographic picture of the government's accounts as at that day. It is quite true that governments at times run on overdraft and at other times on surplus, as businesses do. This depends entirely on the nature of government spending and the flow of revenue both from the Commonwealth government - in our case, we receive some 90% - and from local revenues as well.

Horticultural Industry in the Northern Territory

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

In view of his recent statements that the Territory's horticultural industry will increase its input into the local market from 10% to 80% over the next 3 seasons, can he advise the Assembly whether the ADMA has underaken an integrated management program for servicing this horticultural industry in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the figure I gave recently is somewhat disputable. There are other opinions and it may be that that figure would not stand. Certainly, the ADMA organisation is very involved with its land development policy at the present time. In addition, it has recruited a new marketing person in the horticultural section, and further management of marketing produce is being developed.

Traeger Park Alice Springs

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer the minister to the grant from his department of $200,000 for the provision of lighting and fencing for the exclusive use of baseball players and spectators at Traeger Park in Alice Springs. Bearing in the mind that this is an amount disproportionate to the interest and involvement in this sport in Central Australia, what steps is the minister taking to redress this balance?

ANSWER

The grant that was made to the Alice Springs Town Council for the benefit of the Northern Territory Baseball League was done in conjunction with the Darwin Baseball League which has executives on the Northern Territory Baseball League which has its headquarters in Alice Springs. That was a first process for the upgrading and developing of Traeger Park. Because the baseball organisation had made inroads into the national league competition and because the Claxton Shield competition will be ehld in Alice Springs in 1984, it was felt that the development procedures should start from that end of Traeger Park. In the last 6 to 12 months, discussions have taken place between myself, officers of the Department of Community Development and the Alice Springs Town Council's Recreation Committee on further upgrading of Traeger Park. In fact, another amount of $200,000 has been given to the Alice Springs Town Council for water reticulation from the bores to help ease the problem in the Todd basin. That water was drawn off for the purpose of providing water to recreational areas much as Traeger Park and others. If my memory serves me right, a further grant of some $15,000 to $20,000 has been given to the Alice Springs Tennis Club which is also associated with Traeger Park. This was on a dollar-for-dollar grant. They had raised about $15,000 or $20,000. The Northern Territory government, through its grants-in-aid program, provided the other $15,000 for them to finally complete that facility. I have a meeting scheduled with the Alice Springs Town Council next Monday for further discussions on the level of funding that can be expected for other upgrading in that area. I do not think that the honourable member is fully aware of the whole proposal regarding Traeger Park, Anzac Oval and the swimming pool. It is an overall concept. Before making that decision to establish the baseball park centre in Alice Springs, discussions were held with other members of the league. I am on public record as advising the Darwin Baseball League that it would not be receiving any significant funding from the Northern Territory government in the next couple of years. Baseball, as a sport, has received good financial support. The intention is to try to get sports groups into a position where they can develop further with very little government assistance. Some $380,000 has been given to the Darwin City Council for the development of Gardens Oval. That is primarily for the Northern Territory Football League. We are looking at it as an overview and trying to provide some good financial support to sporting organisations so that in the long term they will be able to look after themselves.

Farmland at Douglas-Daly and Mataranka

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he give details regarding the present turn-off of farmland in the Douglas-Daly area and at Mataranka?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the 3 new project farms are in progress at Ooloo Station and, as soon as those farms are running, the proposal in the short term is that no more farms will be established. Further examination and studies are being undertaken in the Fish River area as to land suitability on that station. At Mataranka, we hope to turn off 3 blocks by the end of this year.

Height Policy for Buildings in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When will the Department of Lands have a model of Alice Springs constructed, as requested, to help the Planning Authority formulate a height policy for the buildings in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am informed that the implications of allowing construction of buildings in Alice Springs greater than about 4 storeys will be very serious. The Planning Authority has power under its act to ask for a model to be made of Alice Springs to test various systems of high-rise in various areas around the town. It will gauge from that model the effect of various types of high-rise development on things like views, shade and so on. Alice Springs is a very important town which exists very largely because of its environment. I understand it is hoped that the model will be ready in about 2 months. Until such time as the model is received by the Planning Authority and it has had the opportunity to study it, applications for high-rise development in Alice Springs will be deferred by the authority for that period.

Geothermal Energy

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

In this Assembly last November he advised that he expected to introduce the legislation to allow for the investigation of possible sources of geothermal energy in the Northern Territory. He expected to do that in March. Does he still intend to introduce that legislation and, if so, when?

ANSWER

It is still our intention to introduce legislation that will enable geothermal exploration to take place. There are some legal difficulties that are causing us to take longer with the concept than we had hoped. I plan to bring it forward this year.

Aboriginal Organisations in Alice Springs

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer him to a comment last week in which he put a figure of 30 on the number of Aboriginal organisations that are in Alice Springs. My question is: is that figure rubbery?

ANSWER

No answer given.

Contract to Brisbane Company

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Last week, I asked the Treasurer a question concerning a contract for $0.25m granted to a Brisbane company called Retrographics which received the 5% local firm allocation. The Treasurer responded by saying that he would give me an answer on that question on the next sitting day which was yesterday. Is he yet in a position to report to the Assembly on the matter?

ANSWER

I have done some fairly intensive background activity on this matter since the honourable member asked the question. Unfortunately, I am not yet in a position to give him a firm answer. I am having further meetings on the subject today. It is one of some complexity and I will give the honourable member an answer, hopefully, later today and, if not, tomorrow.

Electricity Charges

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

I note press reports that suggest power charges in Queensland will rise by up to 16% on 1 July and that the New South Wales Premier foresees increases in that state of up to 40%. Is the Treasurer able to give indications about future increases in electricity charges in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the best forecast I could give Territorians about electricity prices in the future is that there will be regular increases probably for years to come and some of those increases could be fairly substantial. The situation that is developing across the country and across the world is that energy prices are escalating dramatically. It is not just the cost of fuel supplies alone. Fortunately, on the world scene, oil prices have levelled out somewhat and there is an expectation that oil prices could stay at their present level for some years or with very small increases. Whilst the Northern Territory may be 100% oil-based at present for electricity, that is not so in the states. They also have very severe problems in their electricity supplies. It means that electricity will cost substantially more every year right across Australia.

Internal rates also bear on this question. Electricity systems require considerable capital outlay all the time and interest rates which, for governments, run at about 17% certainly put a great burden on electricity authorities, particularly when compared to a few years ago when most of the infrastructure that is being used today was built. In those days, interest rates were only one quarter of their present level. A lot of those loans are now coming up for roll-over renewal at a much higher interest rate. Of course, we are talking very substantial sums of money when you look at the infrastructure of electricity systems around Australia.

The Premier of New South Wales has forecast 40% increases in the cost of electricity for that state, at least for industry and commerce. That is an astronomical increase and no doubt will have a very severe effect on industry in New South Wales. Despite its forecast of very steep increases in electricity, New South Wales has been saved somewhat by earlier predictions of continuing expansion of the system as a result of growth in the demand for electricity. That trend now appears to be moving downwards steeply. It is possibly a result of some stagnation in the economy of that state which is saving it from even more peril in the electricity scene. It is not facing anything like the rate of growth that it anticipated.

In other states, the story is not very different. Victoria has also forecast fairly steep increases in the cost of electricity in the near future because, whilst it is able to generate electricity on an enormous scale compared to the Northern Territory, it is still faced with the very expensive capital required today for expansion and new works. My answer to the honourable member for Port Darwin is that Territorians should certainly expect regular and, unfortunately in some cases, fairly substantial increases in electricity costs for the next few years at least.

Hospital Charges

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of the Department of Health's deficit of approximately $4.8m, is it true that the government is considering increasing hospital charges in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, at this stage, the matter has not been presented to my colleagues for consideration. However, I would like to pick up the theme of the Treasurer in saying that we, too, have unrealistically low health charges in our community compared to the charges to be implemented in Victoria, South Australia, New South Wales and possibly Western Australia in the months to come. As honourable members would be aware, last year right across Australia bed charges in government hospitals were set at $80 and $110 for a private bed. Very shortly after that, New South Wales costs went up 15% and, as a result of the tremendous cost pressures being placed on state health systems everywhere, New South Wales, Victoria and South Australia have agreed to lift their charges for bed days and outpatients fees considerably. Undoubtedly the matter will have to be addressed by the Northern Territory shortly because the same cost pressures are on us. As soon as there is a statement to make about the matter, I will make it public.

Legislation for TAB

Mrs LAWRIE to TREASURER

Is it his intention to introduce legislation for TAB in the Territory during the life of this Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, at this stage, it is not my intention to present legislation to introduce the TAB in the Northern Territory. This Assembly still has another 2 years to run and decisions will be made from time to time during the course of those 2 years. Whilst government policy may change during that period, at this stage, there are no plans to introduce such legislation.

Toilet Facilities for Females at Nhulunbuy Police Station

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Recently, I was contacted by a concerned resident of Nhulunbuy regarding the lack of toilets in the Nhulunbuy Police Station for use by female members of police staff, female witnesses, female suspects and female members of the public. In his capacity as minister responsible for the police, what will he do to rectify this lack of ordinary amenities for women?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that there are toilets available for females adjacent to the police station in the courthouse at Nhulunbuy. Aside from that, there is a proposal in this year's police estimates for funds to enable the construction of a toilet for females at Nhulunbuy Police Station.

Breaches of Mines Safety Control Act at Ranger

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is he aware that workers employed by the BTR company operating at the Ranger uranium mine have been using the chemical CS2 and various other types of solvents without appropriate safety equipment? They have also been employed on work inside tanks that had contained yellowcake without the provision of film badges, in direct contravention of the provisions of the Mines Safety Control Act. What action is the minister taking concerning these breaches of the act?

ANSWER

No, I am not aware of that. However, on the advice that the honourable member has just given to me, I am more than happy to have the matter investigated and pursued with great vigour if, in fact, the claims he has made are true.

Farmers Co-operative at Adelaide River

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

How many people has the farmers co-operative at Adelaide River employed on average over the last 5 years? Have continuing accumulated debts from earlier years contributed to the fact that the co-operative is not now solvent, and does the government have any plans for land development north of Adelaide River or is it content to see blocks sold for real estate value as is occurring at the present time?

Mr SPEAKER: I direct that the question be placed on notice.

Establishment of Disabled Persons Bureau Facility

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

He approved the establishment of a shop-front facility by the Disabled Persons Bureau in March of this year. Is he able to advise me when this facility will be established?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I assume it will be established as soon as negotiations between the department responsible for handling of this matter and the owners of the shop space are completed. The intention at this stage is that the Disabled Persons' Bureau ground-level access will be made available in the Darwin City Council's car-parking area.

Berry Springs Zoo

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Which area of land is currently available for the Berry Springs Zoo and what area of land is still the subject of negotiations? What is the contiguity of the proposed zoo area in relation to sections 1579 and 1782 which comprise the present and proposed Berry Springs Nature Park?

ANSWER

The area of the Berry Springs open range, as I understand it is called, is shown in the plan of management of the Berry Springs Nature Park. In general terms, it will comprise sections 1571, 1572, 1573 and 1786 in the Hundred of Ayers. The zoo land abuts section 1570 and 1782 which comprise the existing nature park. Negotiations are still going on in respect of section 1572 which is an area of freehold land. Apparently, one of the owners is deceased and his legal representative is overseas. The deceased's estate needs to be resolved before the negotiations can be finalised. The surviving joint owner is willing to sell. Once the legal problems have been resolved, it is understood that a purchase will probably be able to be effected.

Air Fares

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In its submission to the independent air fares committee, the government stated it was prepared to allow the IAC power to set air fares provided that comprehensive advice of proposed air fares determinations on Territory routes, including the cost data on which proposed increases was based, was provided to the government. In a recent exercise which resulted in the 7% increase, what information did the IAC provide to the Territory government?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to place his question on notice.

Management of Former Commonwealth Hostels in NT

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What decisions have been taken by the government about the future management of the former Commonwealth Hostels in the Northern Territory in light of the expiration of the present contract on 24th of this month?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government has this matter before it at present. The honourable member will be aware that tenders have been called and an announcement will be made as soon as possible.

Fees for Hospital Reports

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware that people who attend Darwin Hospital as a result of an industrial accident and who require a copy of their report for insurance purposes are being asked to pay a fee of $100 to obtain a copy of that report? Has this been authorised by the minister?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the practice. I am aware that it is common and proper for the department to charge companies for reports. If individuals are being charged, I will take the matter up with the administration and obtain an answer for the honourable member.

Responsibility for Todd River

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I note in the Alice Springs council minutes that the council has given Henley-on-Todd Incorporated permission to hold the event in the river bed on 28 August. Does that mean that the council has accepted responsibility for the Todd River within the town boundaries?

ANSWER

One could be forgiven for thinking it was some sort of tacit recognition of the facts as they always existed. The area of the Todd within the municipal boundaries of Alice Springs is not otherwise reserved by an action of the executive nor is it otherwise alienated from the municipality. One would therefore assume that the responsibility for the maintenance and custody of the Todd River bed within the municipality has always been within the province of that municipality.

Vegetables for NT conditions

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he advise what progress has been made in the development of new vegetable varieties suitable for Northern Territory growing conditions?

ANSWER

Considerable progress has been made in this regard. The Rural Credits Development Fund principal research program has identified several promising varieties for production in the Top End. Since most of the seed is only available from Taiwan and Japan, the Department of Primary Production is currently supplying such seed to growers free of charge for commercial appraisal until the local retail outlet can be negotiated. New varieties include 5 cabbages, 4 watermelons, 2 cucumbers, 2 salmon-fleshed rock-melons, 1 green-flesh melon, 1 cauliflower, 1 broccoli and several Chinese leafy vegetables.

Variety assessment trials have now been expanded to cover onions, capsicums, carrots, sweet corn, sweet potatoes and snake beans. Vegetable grower cooperation trials have been established at Middle Point, Adelaide River, Batchelor, Acacia Hills, Katherine and Alice Springs. Research work at Berrimah Experimental Farm has also been expanded to investigate the use of wind breaks, precision seeding and transplanting and plastic mulch laying and foliar fertilisers. A soil-testing device is now being provided to all fruit and vegetable growers within the Northern Territory. A collection of cashew seeds is being prepared for a seedling selection program and to develop vegetative propagation methods. Assistance is being provided to several pawpaw growers and small shipments of fruit to interstate markets have indicated good potential for quality Northern Territory pawpaws. A horticultural block is being established at the Katherine Rural Education Centre and a collection of mangoes, citrus, avocado and some exotic fruit tree varieties will be supplied for trial purposes.

Plans to develop a new 9-hectare block at the Coastal Plains Research Station are well under way. Wind break trees have been planted, a bore has been drilled and an irrigation system is being designed. This site will become increasingly important for tropical fruit introductions and a valuable source of planting material for fruit growers in northern Australia.

In cooperation with the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority, considerable efforts are being made to co-ordinate fruit and vegetable production in the Darwin, Katherine and Alice Springs areas to ensure better continuity of supplies for the local marekt. ADMA is also making determined efforts to find interstate and overseas outlets for future fruit and vegetable production in the Northern Territory.

Medical Superintendent of Nhulunbuy Hospital

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it true that the Medical Superintendent of Nhulunbuy Hospital is shortly to leave Nhulunbuy? If so, is it the department's intention to downgrade that appointment as has happened this year at Tennant Creek Hospital?

ANSWER

The answer to the first part of the question is that the Secretary of the Department of Health has a policy of rotating staff in remote areas through the larger hospitals on a regular basis. I guess all doctors in remote areas will be moving in and out of communities as the secretary requires. I might point out that Dr Fleming holds the very strong view that medical practitioners who operate in remote communities, if they are not exposed to the normal pressure of a large hospital, can lose their skills. It is important that these skills be maintained by the doctors being put back into the system from time to time to keep abreast of all the latest developments. I have no knowledge of any proposal to downgrade any position anywhere. In my view, that is a figment of the honourable member's imagination.

New Darwin Powerhouse

Mrs LAWRIE to TREASURER

Is he still assured of adequate Australian government assistance to allow the projected new Darwin powerhouse to go ahead as scheduled?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I answered a similar question earlier in the sittings. Negotiations with the federal government on the questions of the ongoing electricity subsidy for the Northern Territory and the assistance towards the construction of a new powerhouse for Darwin are taking place at this very time. Hopefully, they are in their final stages. We have been negotiating with the federal government both at officer and ministerial level for many months now over this question. It is one certainly of considerable complexity. We hope in the near future to be in a position to announce the agreement between ourselves and the federal government. Until such time as it is resolved and the Territory has obtained the best possible arrangement it believes it can get, we will obviously have to keep the details of such negotiations in house. Hopefully, there will be some news shortly.

Berry Springs Zoo

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

My question follows on from the previous answer he gave me regarding the Berry Springs zoo. What can the Chief Minister tell me about the present work being done by the Conservation Commission in relation to the setting up of the Berry Springs zoo having regard to the fact that he has already given me details about land negotiations?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Berry Springs zoo is to be an open range zoo. I am not really sure whether there will be toilets or whether people will return to nature or not. The Conservation Commission, in devising its plans and proposals for this particular zoo, looked elsewhere for experience. You would appreciate that the Conservation Commission has not previously been in the business of running zoos other than at Yarrawonga and even there they do not seem to be able to move a crocodile from one pond to the other without a great number of problems. However, they engaged a consultant from the Western Plains Zoo at Dubbo in New South Wales in November 1981 to prepare a concept for the zoo complex. This is now to hand and some work has commenced in accordance with the plan. For example, the boundary line has been determined and most of the boundary has been cleared. A fence has been erected along the Darwin River Dam road boundary and the section of the reserve to serve as the zoo has been determined and cleared. Bores have been sunk and 2 are productive; one of them produces some 4000 gallons a day. The line of the main public road within the zoo has been located and cleared to one dozer-blade width. The Conservation Commission is providing a detailed proposal to Cabinet so that it can consider the matter in some detail. I understand the proposals involve a great deal of money and may well have to be staged over a number of years.

Uranium Mining

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is the Chief Minister aware of statements made by the federal opposition spokesman on the environment, Stewart West, warning companies mining uranium that they do so at their own risk?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am aware of statements in the press and on radio attributed to the opposition spokesman, Stewart West, warning companies mining uranium in the Territory that they did so at their own risk. Mr West is also credited with saying that Labor is committed to halving uranium mining operations in the Territory and that he had legal advice that indicated no compulsory compensation will be required.

Quite frankly, Mr Speaker, statements of this nature can do nothing but the utmost harm to the Northern Territory economy. How can any company that acts responsibly to its shareholders come into the Northern Territory when it knows that the potential, alternative federal government says that, if the company sets up its venture in the Territory, it is at its own risk and what it is doing might be cut in half arbitrarily at some stage in the future - cut in half, at the very least, or closed down. Who knows what Mr West means by 'halved'. Are all the existing mines to halve their production or are some to be closed and some to continue? What sort of climate of confidence is being created by loose and irresponsible statements of this nature? At this very moment, negotiations are proceeding on proposals for the establishment of the Pancontinental mine at Jabiluka, a proposal that involves expenditure of, at the very least, $600m in this Territory. It involves the employment of a considerable workforce and the engagement of a large number of people on a permanent basis to work for the mine and will have incalculable flow-on benefits to the Northern Territory. This is occurring at a time when the rest of Australia and the mining industry in particular is in a malaise and when the rest of the world is suffering an economic downturn. The Northern Territory is having its economic impetus sabotaged, attacked and undermined by irresponsible and almost irreconciliable statements by this person who, I would suggest, is not fit to hold the office of spokesman that he does.

Reduction of Nursing Staff at Galiwinku and Gapuwiyak

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Recently I have had correspondence with him concerning the very overworked nursing establishments at Galiwinku and Gapuwiyak. He advised me 2 weeks ago that the nursing establishment between those 2 communities was 5. Is he aware that those health centres were advised in March this year that that establishment will be reduced to 4 at the end of this month, thereby placing even greater strain on the already overworked nursing staff? If he is aware of this, could he explain to the Assembly the reason why this reduction in staff has occurred in these communities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am happy to pursue the matter further for the honourable member. One aspect the honourable member has not raised which would be worthy of further investigation is the spread of the workload between the nurses and the health workers in the community. In the department's approach to staffing in remote areas, there is a manpower formula for providing community services. Quite often, where there are a few health workers, there are more sisters and, where there are many health workers, there are fewer sisters. I will obtain from the secretary of the department the specific cases that the honourable member has raised and take them up with him. I would emphasise for the honourable member's information that I am not aware of and I would not support any proposal to cut staff numbers in any area just for the sake of cutting them. On the other hand, we have a responsibility to try to provide the best service that we can by the best method. As I recall, the area that the honourable member refers to has a pretty substantial manpower of Aboriginal health workers, but I will obtain the details and come back to him.

Prison Farm at Alice Springs

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What are the current plans for the establishment of a prison farm in Central Australia, bearing in mind there has been an increase in the number of prisoners in the Alice Springs gaol from 90 to well over 100? Is he aware that industrial action is being contemplated by the Prison Officers Association as a result of the government's reluctance to establish that prison farm?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, let me say at the outset that there is absolutely no reluctance whatsoever on the part of this government to establish a prison farm in the Alice Springs region. I cannot think of anything within the correctional system at the moment which is of more pressing need. I have not heard of any suggestion of industrial action in relation to it. Every member of the Prison Officers Association would be well aware of the endeavours being made at the highest level of the correctional services system to bring about the establishment of a prison farm in the southern region. The difficulty has been in locating a piece of land upon which to place the prison farm. Negotiations have been going on with pastoralists with a view to a possible surrender by a pastoral property for this purpose.

This is not pre-empting the budget because the government has already listed in the appropriation still with the Department of Community Development a sum of money for the establishment of a prison farm in the southern region. Had we been able to secure land upon which to put it, that money would have been committed already and the prison farm established. Indeed, the honourable Minister for Transport and Works, who is responsible for the disposal of government assets in the building forum, has already transferred to the Department of Community Development a number of buildings for the purpose of establishing a prison farm. Mr Speaker, as you would understand, there is reluctance on the part of pastoralists to have a prison farm in the middle of their properties. I understand that a pastoralist has now agreed with the Division of Correctional Services to enter into serious negotiations for the purpose.

The possibility did occur to us of establishing a prison farm at a place called Gillen Bore which is a stock reserve of sufficient size for the purpose, has good water and is conveniently located to the township of Alice Springs. By 'conveniently located', I mean close enough not to cost a fortune in transferring prison officers to and from the site back to the township as such transfers are extremely expensive in terms of overtime, travelling allowance and penalty rates. The trouble with Gillen Bore is that it is right alongside the highway. In order to have a prison farm on that location, one would have to have such excessive security as to defeat the purpose of a low-security institution such as a prison farm. Obviously, the government could not tolerate a situation where people could walk off the prison farm and thumb down a lift on the Stuart Highway which is 3 or 4 km away. That is the position at the moment. As I have already indicated, substantial progress has been made with a pastoralist who is prepared to surrender land to the government. Immediately that is done and the processing of the surrender and reissue of title documents occurs, a prison farm will be established forthwith.

Head Lice and the Education Act

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

The minister would be aware of the provisions of section 25(1) of the Education Act which allows for children to be sent away from the school for reasons of, and I quote from the act, 'the child is suffering from an infectious or contagious disease'. Does the Department of Education consider that head lice is an infectious or contagious disease under the provisions of this section?

ANSWER

I am unable to provide the honourable member with an answer to the question but I do thank him for it. He raises a good point. He indicates, by way of interjection, that he will explain the problem as he sees it later. It is more a matter for definition by the Department of Health than the Department of Education. We are in the business of teaching, not medical care. Even if head lice are not regarded as contagious for the purposes of the act, they are certainly a pest. It is a matter which I would certainly like to see further investigated.

Concessional Air Fares for Pensioners

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has the government approached major airline companies on the question of old age pensioners' concessional air fares with a view to the airline companies also offering some concessions?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Tiwi raised this matter in an electoral capacity with me about a week ago. The idea had not been raised prior to the honourable member bringing it to our attention. One would have thought, of course, that these sorts of concessions are normally used by airlines for promotion and publicity purposes. If the taxpayer is prepared, through the elected government of the day. to make concessions available to pensioners in order to encourage them to stay here, one would think that the airlines, which make significant profit out of their general operations in the Territory, may wish to participate with the government in assisting pensioners to travel. This may be qualified by one of the airlines, Northern Airlines. Its parent company has high load factors around the Territory and is no doubt making a significant profit. It is a good idea and one which the department will now take up with the airlines as a result of the honourable member's representations.

French Markets for NT Uranium

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Has the minister sought markets for the Territory's uranium in France even though that country continues to conduct nuclear tests in the Pacific Ocean?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have always promoted the Northern Territory to be a supplier of uranium throughout the world and I do not regard France as any exception. If the French are prepared to buy our uranium, that would be a good thing. It would be a good thing for them and a good thing for us because we regard ourselves as large and stable suppliers of the product and they are very large users of it. By 1990, the French hope to have 58 reactors operating in France which will make them one of the biggest nuclear-generating countries in the world. They also are capable of supplying a greater portion of Europe with power for industrial expansion. I am aware that there are some people in the community who regard the exercise as one of providing raw material for bombs. That is really an extraordinary expression to put on the whole exercise given that France has had a nuclear program since 1957. The program has developed whether or not the Northern Territory sold a pound of uranium in that period of time. If anybody is telling me that the sale of Northern Territory uranium to France will have the slightest impact on its nuclear program, then I think that that is just phonus-bolonus. As far as I am concerned, the French are very good people to deal with. Any country that deals with the French would feel that it has a good trading partner. I think it would be an asset to both countries for us to supply France with uranium. I believe the federal government has established a bilateral agreement with France.

Members interjecting.

Mr SPEAKER: Order, order! The honourable members will listen to the answer to the question and debate it later if they wish. The honourable Minister for Mines and Energy is answering the question fully and I think he should be heard in silence. If honourable members wish to debate it, then they better get another Speaker.

Mr TUXWORTH: We do have a formal agreement with France over the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, Mr Speaker. If any members have any problem with that, then really they should raise it in the appropriate place. I do not believe that this is the appropriate place to debate that issue. Could I just make one other pertinent point which I think is very interesting in the Northern Territory's terms. The government that has just come to power in France campaigned pretty heavily for the winding down of the nuclear program, both the weapons program and the generation of electricity program. In the short space of a year, we have seen no winding down of either program except that the number of nuclear generators was reduced from 60 to 58. That was because the expectation of load growth has not been realised.

Sale of NT Uranium

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What guidelines does the government have for the sale of NT uranium?

ANSWER

I would just make the point to the member that the guidelines for the sale of the Northern Territory's product is controlled by the Commonwealth. If the honourable member would like me to obtain full details for him, I can do that. I would make the point that it varies from country to country.

Tenders for Removal of Buffalo in Tiwi Electorate

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What is the composition of the Tender Board for the purpose of considering the tenders for purchase and removal of buffalo from areas in the Tiwi electorate?

ANSWER

There is a special board set up to evaluate the tenders received for the clearance of buffalo from the honourable member's electorate. I understand that that special tender board is comprised of 2 representatives of the general Tender Board, 1 representative in each case from the Conservation Commission, the National Parks and Wildlife Service and the Department of Lands. For the Kapalga south area only, there is also a representative from CSIRO. I am sure that, with that sort of input into evaluating tenders, it is no wonder that it takes a little while. Clearly, there is much input from various sources, including the Commonwealth where appropriate.

Marina in Darwin

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What is the government's attitude towards the development of a marina in Darwin?

ANSWER

I would have thought that that would have been obvious to the honourable member because it was a government sponsored proposal floated to the public and exhibited by the Town Planning Authority recently. It received public comment and was knocked on the head. The government, quite clearly, favours the provision of facilities for boating people in Darwin. The exercise that was undertaken in regard to the marina involved the commissioning of a consultant to evaluate sites. Six or so sites were studied in that selection ranging from Rapid Creek right around the coast into Frances Bay. The top site in that selection was Vestey's Beach. That is why the government proceeded with further environmental and engineering studies at a cost of some hundreds of thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money with a view to demonstrating that it could be done in that area if the necessary planning approvals could be obtained and a developer attracted by the proposal. For the Vestey's Beach proposal, the government was to foot the bill itself. The cost would have been very substantial and it could have been represented that serving such a particular section of the community at such a level of funds from general revenue might not have been popular.

However, that matter has been concluded for the government. We are now looking at other areas around the coast which might be suitable for a marina or some modification of a marina. Most people consider a marina as being an area of water that is locked in and can be used for most of the tides. There are quite a number of systems which could be used to provide very attractive facilities for yachtsmen and others that do not involve the provision of locks and so on, depending on the geography of the area concerned. The government will keep this matter under study for some time until it can come up with proposals that are acceptable.

Approval Time for Rezoning Applications

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Why do rezoning applications currently take from 10 to 12 months from approval by the Planning Authority to gazettal?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it would be an exception that a rezoning application from approval by the Planning Authority to gazettal would take 12 months. If such a case occurred, I think it must have had a particular problem associated with it which was held up by the system or by the minister. The planning process involves an application by either the government or another person to have land rezoned. That then goes to the Planning Authority to evaluate whether the proposal is not frivolous and should go on display. It is on display for a minimum of 28 days. That period can be extended to 3 months. When it comes off display, the matter then goes before the next meeting of the Planning Authority which may be some weeks away depending on the schedules of meetings. After the Planning Authority has considered it, it may call for additional information or set aside time in which to hear objections which can result in another meeting. Following a recommendation by the Planning Authority, which is the stage the honourable member for Alice Springs mentioned in his question, recommendations are made to the minister who considers the matter, receives further advice if he so wishes on the question, and has the matter forwarded to Executive Council. Following its processing through Executive Council, it is gazetted. Most applications for rezoning can be handled in about 6 months. That allows for the exhibition period, the delay following the various procedures to get the matter before the next Planning Authority meeting and before Executive Council and so on. I point out to honourable members that I am advised by our planning section that it takes about 2 years to effect a rezoning in most states. Members should be mindful that the rezoning of an area of land within a town plan should not be taken lightly. A rezoning application, as distinct from a development application, is a changing of the document which has been accepted as the basis of planning for that town. It should not be too easy to get and should be evaluated properly by the public. Normally every 5 years or so, new town plans are developed and go on display for each population centre over which there is a plan. At that time, the direction that town is taking should be laid down clearly and thereafter rezoning should not be easy to effect.

Additionally, under the planning system we have in the Northern Territory at the moment, we have somewhere around a dozen zones with a range of permitted and consent uses within them. That system is a lot better, we believe, than the system that existed before Cyclone Tracy whereby the Darwin town plan had about 70 zones in it. It was very difficult to make even a minor change to a development without a complete rezoning exercise. The 70 zones restricted severely what could be done with a piece of land. The new system of permitted and consent use zones should make it more difficult for people to change the town plan through rezoning willy-nilly.

Cape Don Lighthouse

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has the maritime division of his department made any submission to the federal Department of Administrative Services regarding the proposed demanning of Cape Don Lighthouse and, if it has, would he make that information available to the Assembly, preferably in the adjournment debate this evening?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of such a submission. I will endeavour to obtain the information and provide it to the honourable member at some later stage. It might not be this evening.

Answers to Questions

Mr PERRON (Lands and Housing)(by leave): Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Nhulunbuy asked whether the government was proceeding to obtain land from Nabalco for the construction of housing. I am advised that the Housing Commission is persisting in its efforts to obtain further land in Nhulunbuy. Verbal advice has been received recently that 5 serviced blocks will be made available to the commission in the near future. We are awaiting written confirmation of this. The commission proposes to use the 5 blocks in the 1982-83 program. It is proposed that 4 blocks be used for detached housing, and 1 for medium-density housing.

The honourable member also asked about the situation in Nhulunbuy relating to the sale of houses to tenants. I am advised that Nabalco has provided draft subleases to the Department of Law. Honourable members would be aware that the matter is somewhat complex because we are subleasing land and Nabalco's lease has only about 38 years to run. The Northern Territory Department of Law has examined the subleases provided and believes that they do not fulfil the requirements of the Housing Commission in this regard. It is presently liaising with the Housing Commission with a view to putting back to Nabalco papers and alternatives which would suit the Housing Commission's needs.

Transfer of Prisoners to Interstate Jails

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is the government contemplating the introduction of legislation to provide for the transfer of Territory prisoners to interstate jails?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as far as I am aware, provisions already exist for the transfer of prisoners to interstate jails. As I recall it, this has happened on 1 or 2 occasions. I will certainly look further into the matter because I cannot make a categorical statement here this morning.

Answer to Question

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister)(by leave): The honourable member for Nightcliff asked me a question which really wanted my prognostications on the future of Cape Don Lighthouse. The position is likely to be that the Commonwealth will retain the lighthouse and its immediate precincts. This area of land would remain vested in the Crown in right of the Commonwealth. We have had an informal approach from the Commonwealth as to the Northern Territory Conservation Commission taking over the balance of the land, which I am told is in excess of 250 sq km which seems to me to be an extraordinarily large amount of land for a lighthouse. Of course, the airstrip is some distance from the lighthouse. It may be that the whole area including the road up to the airstrip and the airstrip itself is included in the particular reserve.

Jingellic Minerals

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Has Jingellic Minerals paid to the government the full cost for the Mount Wells Battery and associated leases? If this has not happened, could he explain why it has not happened?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to place the question on notice.

Assistance to Old Timers' Group

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Can he tell me what help is available from the government to an old timers' group which wishes to put up buildings on a block of land?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have any idea what the honourable member is referring to. If she could reframe the question, I might have some hope of answering it.

Guidelines for Local Preference

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Is he aware that inconsistencies exist in the drafting of the guidelines laid down for local preference? If he is aware of those inconsistencies, will he ensure that the guidelines are redrafted so they are consistent?

ANSWER

I cannot recall the actual details of the local preference policy although the government has looked at the matter once since implementing a system of local preference in tendering. I will ask Treasury to provide me with information on any problem it has had recently in regard to interpretation of the local preference policy. It is obviously an area where some subjective judgment has to be made from time to time. I believe it would be quite impossible to fairly and unequivocally describe what is in fact a local company having regard to the spirit of the policy. We are interested in people who have committed themselves to the Northern Territory and who employ people in the Northern Territory. They should have some preference over persons who do not do those things. There has been debate, at least outside this Assembly, over whether or not it is important that that company be registered locally in order to obtain local preference. My view is that it would not be necessary for a company to register locally. In fact, branches of some national companies which have operated in the Territory for many years employ many people in the Territory and probably will for a long time. Clearly, they should be eligible for local preference over persons who do not employ people locally. In response to the honourable member's question, I will have the matter examined again, but I cannot, at this stage, acknowledge that there are inconsistencies in the policy.

Photograph in 'Northern Territory of Australia 1982'

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I would draw his attention to the new booklet 'Northern Territory of Australia 1982' for distribution to schools and elsewhere. The first photograph on the inside cover is captioned 'Sunrise over Darwin', with the sun clearly in the west and the lights on. Would he take steps to assure people that, like the rest of the world, our sun actually rises in the east and sets in the west?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, that is a very interesting observation by the honourable member for Nightcliff. It just so happens that the honourable member for Stuart, the government Whip, has been of some use at long last and has a copy of this publication to hand. Clearly, this photograph is incorrectly captioned, 'Sunrise over Darwin'. It appears rather like a sunset to me. I am sure that the people who read this in parts outside Darwin will be suitably impressed because, whether it be a sunrise or a sunset, it is an extremely attractive photograph and certainly hides some of the more obvious blemishes of Darwin that could be apparent if the photograph had been taken in full daylight. On the other hand, there is a very nice photograph of myself on the flyleaf as well.

Additional Land for Tracy Lodge

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

The Northern Territory Pensioners Association urgently requires extra land to extend Tracy Lodge. Has approval been given for the land next to Tracy Lodge to be made available for this purpose?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the pensioners association applied some time ago for land next to Tracy Lodge in Darwin for future expansion. The matter was certainly approved in principle by myself some considerable time ago. I will check for the honourable member that the matter is being processed with due diligence through the Department of Lands but I see no problem at all in obtaining additional land for those people and their very worthy cause.

Management of Hostels

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Is he aware that the Northern Territory government is creating anxiety and uncertainty amongst the staff of the former Commonwealth Hostels by its failure to make public any decision about the future management of those hostels?

ANSWER

I can appreciate that there may be some concern amongst the existing staff members of Tract Holdings, the company running the hostels in the Northern Territory at present. The matter is under consideration by government and a decision will be made as soon as practicable. Certainly it is a very important decision which should not be taken lightly. We are talking not only about quite a large number of people who are employed there but also a very substantial portion of accommodation throughout the Northern Territory in 3 centres.

Rural Old Timers' Group

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I will rephrase the question that I asked him a little while ago. As the Darwin Rural Old Timers' Group is seeking land upon which to build facilities, could he advise me what aid would be available if its application was successful?

ANSWER

I must apologise to the honourable member for not being able to pick up the tenor of her question previously. The honourable member is pursuing with some vigour the matter of the old timers' group wishing to establish itself in an accommodation unit in the rural area similar to that run by the old timers in Alice Springs of their own initiative rather than backed by a church.

The Commonwealth Department of Social Security basically administers all programs for the aged. There is a provision whereby the Commonwealth makes available two-thirds of the amount of money expended on capital works for aged accommodation. In addition, under the State Grants Home Care Act, a system administered by the state governments, in this case the Northern Territory government, the Commonwealth will provide $2 for every $1 of Northern Territory money for the purpose of capital works for aged accommodation. That is the nature of the 2 schemes. Quite obviously, the Department of Lands, in assessing an application from the rural old timers' group, would want to be satisifed from the various sources that the ability is there for the old timers to establish the facilities they need and that guarantees of funding, again from the various sources including their own resources, would be available in respect of current expenditure.

Electricity Accounts

Mr D.W. COLLINS to TREASURER

NTEC has warned the public that it will cut off electric power within 48 hours for people who have not paid their bills after the initial 14 days of receiving the bill. What advice would he give to members of the general public who want to go on extended leave?

ANSWER

I do not think it is unreasonable that our electricity authority requires urgent payment of its accounts once rendered. Consumers receive up to 100 days of credit for the electricity they have consumed. They are not being asked to pay for it in advance in any way. It is not the sort of thing you can take back if it is not paid for. Therefore, I support the commission's policy. It is in all our interests to keep the bad debts that NTEC will invariably incur from time to time to an absolute minimum.

As far as persons going on extended leave are concerned, an account may well be rendered and, if it is not paid, power will be cut off. I suggest that those people contact their nearest Electricity Commission office with a view to making arrangements for the period that they will be away. The account could either be held in the NTEC office until such time as those people return or other arrangements could be made. Perhaps a deposit could be left against the account. Certainly, arrangements can be made for people who are going away and I advise all consumers to make such arrangements.

Aboriginal Land Rights (Northern Territory) Act

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

A news report this morning stated that the federal government had accepted proposed changes to the Aboriginal Land Rights (Northern Territory) Act, those changes having been sought by the Northern Territory government. Would he give the Assembly details of the proposed changes?

ANSWER

I thought that I had reported to the Assembly in some detail on the negotiations which have been going on over a period of 14 months. Indeed, I thought that I may have even circulated at one sittings last year a copy of the 10 or 12 points that were under discussion. I can certainly elaborate this morning. In fact, I have a number of copies of a statement by the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs giving certain details. I have not had time to prepare a detailed statement to make in this Assembly but, having been involved in these negotiations for 14 months, I am fairly familiar with the whole thing and I will attempt to flesh out the bones of the press statement by the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs.

All honourable members will be aware of the tension that has been excited in Central Australia as a result of claims over stock routes that traverse pastoral properties and over bores and quarantine areas. It was the desire of the Northern Territory government to attempt to de-escalate tension, to use a Haigism. The Northern Territory government has had an employee working full time for quite some time. The Aboriginal Liaison Unit has as one of its major tasks the attempted resolution of various needs claims on pastoral properties. I think there are 32 of these claims by Aboriginal groups living on pastoral properties, mainly in Central Australia. In many cases, the negotiations have been going on for many years and, with the best will in the world, the Northern Territory government has not been able to conclude satisfactorily many of these negotiations because they require agreement by a number of parties and this is a difficult thing to achieve. The Northern Territory government suggested as one of the major concessions it would offer that, after it had consulted with pastoral organisations, there be a procedure established by way of legislation in this Assembly to enable Aboriginal groups living on pastoral properties and wanting tenure over the land on which they live to enter negotiations. If the negotiations were unsatisfactory, they would be able to refer the matter to a tribunal comprised of a Supreme Court judge, a representative of the pastoral industry and a representative of the relevant land council for a recommendation to be made - to the best of my recollection - to the Minister for Lands for an area to be excised and compensation provided to the pastoralist. The Northern Territory also conceded that it would be prepared to legislate along the lines of, though not precisely the same as, the Cobourg Peninsula National Park legislation in respect of Uluru National Park and other, smaller, national parks. The concession the land councils were asked for was that there be no further claims to pastoral properties. This, of course, would require an amendment to the federal act.

Those are the basic provisions of the arrangements. I believe the package is a good one that will be of benefit to everyone in the Northern Territory. There are a considerable number of Aboriginal people living on pastoral properties, several thousand I understand, and they would all stand to be able to obtain tenure to land which presently, in many instances, they have no hope of obtaining. The Northern Land Council, the Central Land Council and the Tiwi Land Council have been involved in these negotiations with the Northern Territory and Commonwealth governments over a period of 14 months. The Northern Land Council, in August, September or October last year, considered, at a meeting of its full council, the package of proposals and agreed in principle that they were acceptable. That was reported publicly about that time. In an earlier statement to this Assembly, I paid tribute to the land council for the words it chose to use at the time. It said that, in a spirit of conciliation with the whole community, it was prepared to go along with the proposals because it believed they were in the best interests of the Northern Territory. I believe that myself. We are all here together and we have to be able to live together. Unfortunately, with radical legislation, sometimes there are some rough edges that cause a degree of dissatisfaction, unhappiness and, in this case perhaps, some racial tension.

The Minister for Aboriginal Affairs intends to continue his negotiations with the Northern Terriotry government and the land councils. Detailed drafting instructions had been provided by the Northern Territory government to the land councils some months ago setting out the nature of the drafting instructions that we would be giving to our draftsmen to implement the Northern Territory side of the arrangements. As yet, we have received no detailed comment on the drafting instructions although one meeting has been held with the land councils with a view to attempting to settle them. The Commonwealth will also be preparing its drafting instructions and the details of these, one hopes, will be able to be settled with the land councils within a reasonable time.

I think it is pertinent to mention that the Central Land Council itself set a deadline for the completion of the negotiations: the end of October 1981. This deadline was not able to be met. That was not through a lack of goodwill on the part of the Northern Territory or the Commonwealth governments whose officials have stood ready to meet whenever the land councils here wanted to do so. I believe that the Northern Land Council and the Tiwi Land Council signified their acquiesence in principle with the proposals prior to the end of October 1981.

I would not for one moment suggest that there will be no problems in settling the details of the various bills; for example, the bill in relation to Uluru National Park. These are things that we must attempt to do and I do not believe that we should let the smaller points stand in the way of acceptance of a totality of elements that will be of considerable benefit to the whole of the Territory community. Mr Speaker, you would appreciate that, if this package of legislation is accepted and if the legislation is passed through the federal parliament, the Aboriginal people would no longer be able to make land claims over pastoral leases but, nevertheless, they would be in the same position as everyone else in the Northern Territory. They can purchase pastoral properties and operate them. For that matter, they can purchase any land in the Northern Territory and do whatever they want to with it. I think that, if we can secure the passage of the various parcels of legislation, it will cater for the genuine needs of all citizens of the Northern Territory, whether they be Aboriginal or non-Aboriginal.

Roll-over of Pastoral Leases

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has there been a significant demand for the roll-over of pastoral leases since March 1981?

ANSWER

I have not been the minister for the full period since March 1981. I recall approving 3 or 4 roll-overs in the last couple of months. I could not really answer the honourable member's question. However, details could be provided.

Escort Agencies

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of his interest in developing industry in the Northern Territory, has he noted that there are now 10 escort agencies advertising in the Darwin area? Will he be considering legislation in relation to this up and coming service industry?

ANSWER

I cannot say that I am aware of the exact number of escort agencies operating in Darwin or the Northern Territory at present. When one flips through the classified ads, one certainly sees a full page of advertisements of these various establishments, with their various blandishments to lure the customer. I do not think the government has considered legislation for escort agencies. No doubt the escort agencies are kept under some surveillance by the police. I imagine the police would be on the alert for people who might be committing offences of the nature of living on immoral earnings and so on. The police would be seeing that there were no breaches of the law being perpetrated by the escort agency ladies and their customers.

Once would appreciate of course that these arrangements are of a very private nature. It would be very difficult for the police to obtain any evidence on which they might launch any particular type of prosecution against either a person from an escort agency or indeed one of its customers. I must say that it is certainly a phenomenon that has been on the increase not just in the Northern Territory but right throughout Australia over recent years. One notices now in the provincial towns along the coast of Queensland that there are advertisements of the same nature appearing in the papers there as appear in the Darwin paper here.

I personally believe in a policy of non-intervention in this area because it is something of a private arrangement. It seems to me that the industry, if it could be called that, has not been shown to have any particular links with any criminal organisations. I would like you and honourable members to know that I have personally requested the Police Commissioner to ensure that any attempt by organised crime in any shape or form to establish itself in the Northern Territory should be resisted with every possible recourse that we may have. Whilst one may, from a purely moralistic view, deplore the increasing incidence of these agencies in the community, I nevertheless feel that it is a judgment for the individual to make as to whether he avails himself of the services of the particular agencies.

Action Inter-country Adoption Applications

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

How many staff have been appointed to Action Inter-country Adoption applications and approximately how long does it take to process applications?

ANSWER

As is consistent with all state jurisdictions now as a result of the last welfare ministers' conference, it is not proposed that the states and the Territory set up special units to handle inter-country adoptions. The policy which has been accepted nationally is that the departments throughout the states and the Commonwealth will do the normal assessment as to eligibility and propriety of individual married couples who wish to adopt children. It is then up to an individual family to communicate with the respective government and arrange the actual adoption of the child otherwise, in a small place like the Northern Territory, the costs would become rather prohibitive. On our assessment, something like 10 additional staff would be required to carry out such a program. Currently, the estimated time between the placing of an application and all material being finalised and approval granted would be about 12 months. That is somewhat longer than one would anticipate in respect of a normal Australian adoption.

I am fully aware that this matter has caused considerable concern and anxiety among prospective adoptive parents of overseas children. I propose to hold a meeting with the President of the Adoptive Parents Association in my office next Tuesday. Following that meeting with her, I have asked for a meeting with the Director of Welfare Services Branch of the Department of Community Development and the secretary to see if we can come up with a system to expedite this process without necessarily building up the current expenditure side of staffing for which, of course, the taxpayer at large has to pay. Suffice to say that every effort will be made to reduce that time as much as we possibly can.

Amendments to Summary Offences

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the legal application of recent amendments to the Summary Offences Act in relation to drinking within 2km of a licensed outlet on Aboriginal land or a lease on Aboriginal land?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as I understand it, the honourable member for Nhulunbuy has asked me to offer a legal opinion to the Assembly. This would be contrary to Standing Orders. Whilst I would be happy to give an advising to the honourable member if he sought one of me in writing, I would prefer not to breach Standing Orders. I think the answer is fairly simple though, Mr Speaker.

Supply of Electrical Power by Private Enterprise

Mr D.W. COLLINS to TREASURER

Has he considered, as an option, the supply of Darwin's electrical power by a private company or companies?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, certainly in wrangling with the problems of electricity generation and its cost in the Northern Territory, the government has thought of private enterprise but I do not think that we thought about it for a great deal of time. Electricity will cost a great deal of taxpayers' money as well as money from electricity consumers. Even if the government were able to attract private enterprise to generate electricity on a large scale in the Northern Territory, such an operation would undoubtedly involve enormous subsidies both in the form of capital for the construction of such facilities and also subsidies towards operational costs. In the light of that, we certainly will be using private enterprise as far as the construction of additional capital facilities for electricity is concerned. We will be doing our utmost to spread that work amongst the private sector. The generation of electricity on a full private enterprise basis is done in some countries overseas, particularly the United States. I do not believe this is a serious option for the Northern Territory at this stage. Certainly, it is not one that one could accept without very substantial subsidies being poured into the operation.

Security Officers

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to the statement he made in the adjournment last night that special conditions on training were applied to security officers using handguns. Is it the government's intention to redress this situation by introducing such regulations and special training under the auspices of a specialist organisation such as the Northern Territory Police Force?

ANSWER

I have some hesitation in answering his question. I thought twice before I answered the first question from the Leader of the Opposition but I said that I would get him that information and I did. There is presently a charge laid in a particular matter in the criminal court. It is a very serious charge which relates to a security guard. I do not know that we should be touching on these matters in view of that fact. Quite frankly, I am prepared to indicate my views privately to the Leader of the Opposition. I would say that the Registrar of Firearms is the Police Commissioner and I doubt that there is any more experienced person in the Northern Territory in the handling of firearms and the training of people in the use of firearms than the Northern Territory Commissioner of Police. If the Leader of the Opposition would like to discuss this with me whenever it suits him, or write to me, I would be happy to give him a forthright answer to this question.

Registration of Physiotherapists

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does he intend to proceed with legislation to register physiotherapists in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, for the past 4 to 6 months, the department has been preparing for legislation for the allied health professional services group into which category physiotherapists would fit. This proportion has not yet been put to my colleagues and, as soon as I can, I will advise the honourable member.

Capacity of Rising Mains for Palmerston

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What population in Palmerston can be served by the current 750mm rising mains - one old one and one recently installed?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the information I have is that a 450mm main is adequate for the initial population of Palmerston which is expected to reach about 11,000 people in the next couple of years. A larger rising main will be brought into service to augment the capacity of the 450mm main which will ultimately become a distribution main for developing and clearing of that area once the population increases beyond that point.

Ablution Block at Lake Nash

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer him to an answer in a previous sittings of this Assembly in which he advised of a contract to be let at Lake Nash for some $15,000 for an ablution block. Why was that contract, valued at $14,950, for a permanent ablution block cancelled in favour of a much more expensive skid-type ablution block valued at $36,000?

ANSWER

The design of the toilet block was changed to allow the department to move it as necessary because the community is always on the move in that area.

Registration Plates on Trailed Vehicles

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Following a press release he put out some months ago regarding the interchange of registration plates on trailed and trailable vehicles, what is the current position on this matter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, currently the department is investigating the proposal. Until such time as the Territory Insurance Office can give us further advice on it, we are unable to do anything further with it.

Lake Nash Aboriginal Community

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Was it at ministerial direction that his department wrote to the Aboriginal community at Lake Nash requesting it to move to Bathurst Downs by a set date? Is he aware that in reply the community has stated that it has no intention of moving?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no knowledge of the allegations made by the honourable member. I will check it out.

Traffic Act

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What proposals does the government have to implement section 26A of the Traffic Act which limits the time for which drivers of certain vehicles may remain continuously on duty?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to place the question on notice.

Rice Production in NT

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What intentions has the government in commencing commercial rice production in the Northern Territory along the lines of those farms operating under the ADMA scheme in the Douglas-Daly basin in the coming season?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government's view of rice production is that quite a lot more work needs to be done on testing and soil work. The government does not place rice as a high priority in so far as establishing a scheme similar to the Douglas-Daly is concerned. Certainly, if the work that is being undertaken at Tortilla Farm has good results, it may lead us to a reconsideration of that policy. We wait for those results.

Chiropractors

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it his intention to include chiropractors in the legislation for the allied health professionals that he referred to earlier and, if not, is it his intention to reintroduce separate legislation governing chiropractors?

ANSWER

No, they will not be included. There will be separate legislation.

Aboriginal Land Rights (Northern Territory) Act

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to his answer in relation to the statement last night by the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs and to his claim that the federal government was envisaging excisions to be negotiated. Does he envisage that this would be federal or Territory legislation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I thought I had made this quite clear through information brought before the Assembly earlier. I should make it clear that there are 10 or 12 specific proposals to be taken together. If there is non-acceptance of 1 proposal, then the whole lot collapse. I thought I had made it clear to the Assembly last year that, if there was to be legislation in relation to excisions, it would be by way of amendment to the Crown Lands Act which is, of course, the relevant legislation for pastoral leases. This would give to people living presently on pastoral properties the right, after a period of negotiation, to go to the tribunal, which would be constituted under the Territory legislation, to apply for an excision. This would be in exchange for the agreement of the land councils that the Land Rights Act be amended to preclude further claims to stock routes.

Extension of Crop Purchase Guarantee Scheme

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is it the intention of the Territory government to extend the Crop Purchase Guarantee Scheme under the ADMA system from the present 1 year to at least 3 years so that farmers are better able to plan production?

ANSWER

Schemes of this nature really have to be run parallel to budget considerations of the government. Although there is a philosophical trend towards extending the life of this scheme for the 2 years suggested by the Cropping Development Committee, in view of government policy as far as this budget is concerned, these sorts of schemes are really a year-to-year proposition.

Equal Opportunity Plan

Mrs O'NEIL to CHIEF MINISTER

What degree of priority is currently enjoyed by the equal opportunity program within the Northern Territory Public Service?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand a number of proposals will come forward to me shortly in respect of the equal opportunity program. There is an officer in charge of equal opportunities in the Public Service Commissioner's Office and the Public Service Act contains legislative provisions in relation to equal opportunity as, I think, does the Housing Act. The question of equal opportunity in the Northern Territory is not as burning as it is elsewhere in Australia. Generally speaking, women are not severely disadvantaged in the Territory situation, at least in the urban community. Certainly they enjoy a measure of acceptance within government. We have a woman magistrate in the Northern Territory. As far as I can recall, she is the only woman who has ever applied for the position of magistrate. They cannot be appointed unless they apply. We have female senior executives in government, amongst them the director of the Department of Law Commercial Section. I am still waiting for a woman to apply for a position as a departmental head or head of a statutory authority. They are well represented on statutory authorities. All in all, I think the government's record in this area is one of which we can be reasonably proud. I hope this will not be misinterpreted because it is perhaps rather an ambiguous statement but I do not have anything against women.

Incorporation of Bill of Rights in Constitution

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of his public statements regarding the desirability for the incorporation of a bill of rights into a Northern Territory constitution, would he be prepared to consider committing his government to introduce a bill of rights which can presently be done under this Assembly's power to make laws for the peace, order and good government of the Territory and not delay its introduction until statehood?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think that the Leader of the Opposition considers that a bill of rights could be prepared in a matter of a couple of weeks, and I suppose one could be. But I think its evolution will take a number of years and it will be a question for the government of that time to consider whether it should introduce it in advance of incorporation in a Northern Territory constitution. I have officers of the Department of Law working on the formulation of a bill of rights, but I think that an Australian bill of rights would look quite different to the Bill of Rights that one sees through the American federal and state constitutions. It is something I had not considered before. I personally have never felt adversely affected. I see a bill of rights as something that we should put in our state constitution because our constitution will be our fundamental document. That is the appropriate place for any bill of rights that we might have in due course. It would also have various political overtones and might in fact weaken the Territory's position in certain areas were it to legislate in this field before actually considering a constitution for the Northern Territory.

It is not something that I can make any decision about myself, in any event. It is one that I would have to consider very carefully with my Cabinet colleagues. It is one that I would have to take to the parliamentary party and also canvass very widely in the community. But I see absolutely no need for haste in the exercise. I think that will be recognised by you and other honourable members as not characteristic of myself. It would be the first bill of rights ever likely to be enacted in an Australian parliament. I say that without any criticism of the Australian states or the federal government because the latter's constitution was enacted in 1901 and the states' constitutions were enacted many years before that. But we are in the 1980s. When it comes time to consider a constitution for the Northern Territory, then consideration of a bill of rights must take place at the same time. It is not a decision for me to make; it will be a decision for whoever is involved in framing the Northern Territory constitution. That of course will be the whole membership of this Assembly, whatever it may comprise at that time.

I would highlight the fact that the evolution of the criminal code in the Northern Territory has been a very lengthy process. I do not begrudge that at all. I believe that we should take as long as this process needs. I just hope that we do not get other people coming out of the woodwork in due course, like the Opposition Leader, who decide 12 months later that they are at long last going to take an interest in the matter. That will continually delay and frustrate the matter. I certainly do not begrudge the time and, whether the Leader of the Opposition has come late to the party or not, we have certainly got to bear in mind what he says. We must have a criminal code that is acceptable to the vast majority of Territorians and that is what this government is working for. I do not know that the Leader of the Opposition's views are any more representative of the vast majority of Territorians than mine.

In any event, I think a bill of rights, when we get there, will have to be treated in much the same way. It will have to be publicly ventilated, and opportunities given for interested groups to come forward with their suggestions. I had thought that the liquor legislation exercise was a supreme example of community consultation on the part of this government because we spoke to almost every group and every community in the Northern Territory about the legislation but, the criminal code exercise, I believe, has been even more thorough than that. I think we are distilling a document that will be acceptable to most people.

Aboriginal Land Rights

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer him to his and the Treasurer's reported attendance at the federal council of the Liberal Party and to a report that appeared in the press consequent on that council in which it was said that a motion to voice support for the concept of Aboriginal land rights and the continuity of Aboriginal control over their land was in fact lost. Is he prepared to reveal to the Assembly the position he and his Territorian delegates adopted on that particular motion?

ANSWER

One should not believe everything that one reads in newspapers. I do not recall any such motion being put and lost. The Liberal Party does not conduct its business behind closed doors; the Liberal Party does not have faceless men. The Liberal Party conference was open to the public. There was a large public gallery provided and even the honourable member for MacDonnell would have been allowed in to listen if he had wanted to be there.

The matter of the federal Liberal policy platform came under review at the most recent federal convention of the Liberal Party. There were a number of motions from various state branches in relation to various aspects of the policy platform. In relation to the area of Aboriginal affairs, there were motions from the Young Liberals, from the Western Australians and from New South Wales. These motions were debated and discussed. As I recall it, the platform came through pretty much as it went into the mill. Certainly, the Liberal Party policy platform espouses the principle of Aboriginal land rights. The Northern Territory Country Liberal Party has observer status only at the Liberal Party and National Country Party conferences for the simple reason that we do not wish to be bound to either of the federal groupings because we believe that we are a party independent of federal control, unlike the members of the unitary party opposite me who must jump at the dictates of their centralist masters. Our party was formed by Territorians and operates for Territorians. I put forward the Territory point of view, as I am entitled to do as an observer, and the Territory government quite clearly indicated its support for continuing the principle of Aboriginal land rights.

I might say that all the actions of the Territory government since self-government and before it have clearly supported Aboriginal land rights but we have not been prepared to throw away the interests of every other person in the community because we believe that everyone has rights and everyone has responsibilities. We do not see things through the one-eyed perspective of the honourable member for MacDonnell.

Emergency Overnight Accommodation for Females

476 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Is the government aware of the need for emergency overnight accommodation for females in the NT?

2. Does the government intend to provide subsidies to willing organisations such as the Salvation Army and the St Vincent de Paul Society who have corresponded with the government on such a service and, if so, when?

ANSWER

1. The NT government is aware that single people and families often require emergency overnight accommodation. Any person requiring emergency accommodation should contact an office of the Community Welfare Division where they will be referred to suitable accommodation. Should existing emergency accommodation facilities not be available, financial assistance may be provided to enable the individual or family to seek commercial accommodation.

2. The NT government provides subsidies to the YWCA and the Salvation Army in Darwin to provide emergency accommodation for families. Individuals, including females, who require emergency accommodation are assisted to find such accommodation by officers of the Community Welfare Division. Financial assistance is provided where this is necessary. Rooms in government hostels in the NT are also to be made available to families and single people requiring emergency accommodation. The administrative arrangements for this scheme are currently being considered. Dawn House Womens Refuge, which receives substantial funding from the NT Department of Health, provides emergency accommodation for women in crisis situations. The Darwin Youth Refuge, which also receives substantial funds from the Northern Territory government, provides emergency accommodation for young people. In Alice Springs the NT Department of Health provides funds to the Salvation Army and St Vincent de Paul to provide crisis accommodation for families and women. It is the government's understanding that the women's refuge 'Community House' management committee will re-open the centre and it is anticipated that funds will be available from the NT Department of Health.

Aboriginal Camping Area in Katherine

477 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is the government aware of and does it agree with the decision of the Katherine corporation to allow Aborigines to set up a camping area in Katherine, despite the existence of Kalano Farm and the Corroboree Motel?

ANSWER

The government is aware of the Katherine corporation's decision to establish an Aboriginal camping area within the municipal boundaries of the town.

I do not propose commenting upon the decision of another government taken in respect of an area within its competence.

Transfer of Psychiatric Patients to South Australia

537 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. How much was spent in 1980-81 on the transfer of psychiatric patients to South Australia?

2. How many were transferred?

3. What was the average length of stay per patient?

4. When does the NT government expect to provide suitable secure premises for chronic patients in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

1. Approximately $4,200 (fares of patients and escorts where applicable).

2. Six.

3. The average length of stay in 1980-81 for psychiatric patients transferred to South Australia is calculated at 80 days approximately.

4. The numbers of severely mentally retarded and chronic mentally ill patients in the NT are too small to justify providing the wide variety of accommodation required. For example, 30 NT patients are currently housed in 9 different styles of accommodation in South Australia.

Yipirinya School in Alice Springs

545 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What action, if any, has been taken by the Department of Education on the application for registration of the Yipirinya School in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

The Yipirinya School Council Incorporated has appealed to the Northern Territory Supreme Court against this decision. In the circumstances, it would not be appropriate to comment further on the matter.

Litter Campaign

547 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. How much was spent on the anti-litter campaign?

2. Why was the contract for the campaign awarded to a southern firm?

ANSWER

1. The Litter Control Program has a budget of $200,000, these funds were provided by industry and are held in a trust account by a firm of chartered accountants.

   As advertising is restricted to the Northern Territory, all local television, radio and press organisations are actively involved in the program.

   T-shirts have been obtained from local suppliers and printing for promotional material is being arranged through the Government Printer.

2. An advertisement calling for registrations of interest in relation to the program was placed in local and interstate newspapers. Two registrations of interest were received from Darwin organisations, subsequently both organisations advised that they would not, for various reasons, be able to submit a presentation to the committee.

   The contract was therefore awarded to a southern firm.

Katherine Town Boundaries

619 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Has the Katherine Municipal Council applied to have the town boundaries extended?

2. If so, (a) has the application been made as a result of any government action, and (b) what benefits would be expected to flow from an extension of the town boundaries?

ANSWER

No, the Katherine Town Council has not applied to have the town boundaries extended.

In November 1981, the Local Government Division of this department wrote to the town clerk pointing out the increasing amount of development outside the Katherine municipal boundary leading to a greater use of town services such as the swimming pool, library and recreation and amusement facilities provided from municipal revenues.

The council would need to balance against increased rate revenue from the extended boundaries, the additional responsibility for specific services such as roads and street lighting in the enlarged municipality.

I believe the matter has been discussed by council, but as yet no further action has been taken.

ILO Conventions

622 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Is he aware that the Minister for Industrial Relations informed the Leader of the Opposition in the House of Representatives on 18 November 1981 (H. of R. Hansard, p. 3098) that on 26 May and 3 June 1977 the Northern Territory indicated by letter that in its view the Aboriginal population of the Territory does not constitute a dependent, indigenous population for the purposes of International Labour Organisation Convention No. 65, Penal Sanctions (Indigenous Workers) 1939?

2. Who wrote the letter and on what date and by what means did the Northern Territory government authorize it?

3. Is he aware that a former Commonwealth Minister for Employment and Industrial Relations informed the former Leader of the Opposition in the House of Representatives on 4 October 1977 (H. of R. Hansard, p. 1607) that a review instituted by his department in April 1977 had revealed inconsistencies between provisions in the Northern Territory Apprentices Ordinance and the ILO convention?

ANSWER

1. Yes. It should be noted that while the reply of the Minister for Industrial Relations on 18 November 1981 indicates that the 'Northern Territory' expressed a view by letters of 26 May and 3 June 1977, the letters were written on behalf of the then Commonwealth Department of the Northern Territory, not the Northern Territory government. However, in common with all states (as indicated in the Commonwealth Minister's reply of 18 November 1981), I would agree that the Aboriginal population of the Northern Territory does not constitute a 'dependent', indigenous population for the purposes of the International Labour Organisation Convention No. 65, Penal Sanctions (Indigenous Workers) 1939. Aboriginals are equals under the law with other Australian citizens and therefore cannot be regarded as having 'dependent' status.

2. See answer to 1.

3. Yes. However, following transfer of responsibility for the Apprentices Ordinance from the Commonwealth Minister for Education to the Northern Territory government (on 1 January 1978), the Ordinance was repealed and replaced by the Industries Training Act 1979.

Standards Set by ILO Conventions

623 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

1. In what respects do the laws and practices of the Northern Territory fall short of the standards set by those International Labor Organisation conventions which the ILO lists as basic human rights conventions but which Australia has not yet ratified, viz.:

   (a) No. 135 - Workers' Representatives, 1971;
   (b) No. 141 - Rural Workers' Organisations, 1975;
   (c) No. 151 - Labour Relations (Public Service), 1978; and
   (d) No. 156 - Workers with Family Responsibilities, 1981?

2. What views has the NT government expressed to the Commonwealth government on the provisions of each of these conventions?

3. On (a) what occasions, (b) in what circumstances, (c) at what level, and (d) with what results have consultations taken place between the NT and Commonwealth governments concerning each of these conventions?

ANSWER

1. The laws and practices of the Northern Territory are regarded as being compatible with the standards set by the above conventions.

   In the area of direct Northern Territory government influence, i.e. Workmen's Compensation, Long Service Leave, Annual Leave and Public Holidays, it is policy that workers' representatives receive every courtesy, co-operation and assistance wherever their members' interests are concerned. This policy is also adhered to in Northern Territory Public Service employment.

   Under the aegis of the government, the Northern Territory Industrial Relations Consultative Council meets quarterly and is chaired by the Chief Minister. The charter of the council is to enable government, employer organisations and trade unions to consult on industrial relations and associated labour matters and, secondly, through the chairman, advise the government of its views on these matters.

   The great majority of the Northern Territory workforce is covered by federal awards, and the rights of their representatives in this case are protected by the provisions of Section 5 of the Australian Conciliation and Arbitration Act. Under the same Act all rural workers, as defined, are covered by the Federated Miscellaneous Workers Union and are eligible to join that organisation unfettered by any laws or policies of the Northern Territory.

   All employees in the Northern Territory Public Service enjoy adequate protection against acts of anti-union discrimination in respect of their employment. Their organisations and unions have complete independence from public authorities and experience no interference in their establishment, functioning or administration.

   Their representatives receive every facility to enable them to function promptly and efficiently, both during and outside their hours of work.

   The Public Service Commissioner encourages and promotes the full development and utilisation of machinery for negotiation of terms and conditions of employment, and the settlement of any disputation which may arise thereafter.

   Public Service employees in the Northern Territory enjoy in full the civil and political rights essential to the normal exercise of freedom of association.

   The obligations of the Northern Territory government in the area of workers with family responsibilities are seen as complementary to the functions of the Commonwealth Department of Social Security, particularly in the area of child care, family services and facilities, and assistance in the exercise of family responsibility. When one considers the comparatively short time the Northern Territory government has been in the field of social welfare, together with the current financial constraints, some appreciable inroads have been made.

2. The conventions referred to in this question are at a comparatively early consultation stage between the Commonwealth and the states. It is a difficult, and sometimes long, process obtaining ratification of a convention as all states and territories, as well as the Commonwealth must conform to every article. This at times results in non-compliance by one state or a single point holding up ratification for years.

   The Northern Territory Government has not expressed any direct views to the Commonwealth government on Convention No. 135, Workers' Representatives. However, in other areas of industrial relations, complete support has been adequately indicated for the principles contained therein.

   No direct dialogue has taken place on the articles of Convention No. 141 - Rural Workers' Organisations. The workers who would be defined in this convention are adequately protected by free access to union membership.

   Convention No. 151 - Labour Relations (Public Service) has not come under the discussion procedures as yet but as indicated in the answer to question 1 practice in the Northern Territory would seem to satisfy the requirements of this convention.

   The Northern Territory has commented on the requirements of Convention No. 156 - Workers with Family Responsibilities in conjunction with the contents of the report on the subject emanating from the 67th Session of the 1981 International Labour Conference. The Territory's comments were given under 3 headings:

   (a) Child Care and Family Services and Facilities

   The recommendation contained therein was supported as it is consistent with Northern Territory government policy in this area. The policy of the Department of Community Development, is to ensure that all members of the community have access to child care services, irrespective of their ability to pay. Child care services should be flexible to allow parents to make choices about the preferred form of care for their children. The department has a statutory responsibility to ensure that standards prescribing quality care are adhered to and helps to ensure that child care staff have access to adequate training.

   (b) Social Security

   The recommendations in this section were supported in principle. However, as they seek to ensure that individual workers have access to social security entitlements, while fulfilling family responsibilities and irrespective of the occupational activity of their spouse, the implementation of this recommendation would require legislative changes to the Social Services Act; this would have to be a policy decision.

   (c) Help in Exercise of Family Responsibility

   This section was supported. It is envisaged that in the long term, services of this nature could be provided to workers with family responsibility as part of a broad range of home help services available to any member of the community in need of them.

As indicated in the answer to question 2 there is a set consultation procedure prior to ratification of conventions.

Convention No. 135 has been discussed generally at technical officer level and although ratification has been recommended a principal inhibiting factor has been the lack of general protective legislation in 2 states, although some protection is afforded to union representatives in these states by their registration under the Conciliation and Arbitration Act.

Delay in ratification of Convention No. 141 would seem to be attributable to similar circumstances.

Federal government policies would seem to militate against any progress at present on Convention No. 151.

Discussion on Convention No. 156 has already been indicated in the answer to question 1. This convention has not yet been classified in a priority category.

3. The answer to this question is contained in the reply to question 2.

ILO Convention on Civil and Political Rights

624 Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

1. In what respects do the laws and practices of the Northern Territory fall short of the standards set by the 1966 ILO Convention on Civil and Political Rights which Australia signed in December 1972 and ratified in August 1980?

2. What views has the Territory government expressed to the Commonwealth government on the provisions of this convention since it entered into force in March 1976?

3. On (a) what occasions, (b) in what circumstances, (c) at what level, and (d) with what results have discussions or consultations taken place between the Territory and Commonwealth governments concerning this convention?

ANSWER

1. Almost without exception, the laws and practices of the Northern Territory conform with the provisions of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, taking into account the reservations and interpretative declarations lodged by the Commonwealth government on behalf of Australia at the time of ratification.

Such 'exceptions' as there are, generally relate to factors of isolation and distance operating in the Territory. For example, Article 10.2(a) provides that 'accused persons shall ... be segregated from convicted persons' in prisons. In the Territory's situation, particularly in remote localities, the cost of providing separate facilities for prisoners on remand and those convicted of offences, is presently prohibitive. To meet the concern of the Territory, and that of some states, the federal government provided in Australia's instrument of ratification that '... the principle of segregation is accepted as an objective to be achieved progressively'. Similar reasoning applies to the requirements of Article 10.2(b) and .3 (second sentence) to provide for segregation of accused and convicted juveniles from adults.

In accordance with Article 40 of the international covenant, Australia was required within one year of ratification, to submit to the United Nations a report on the measures '... adopted which give effect to the rights recognised (in the covenant) and on the progress made in the enjoyment of those rights'. The report was required to include not only the measures in force in regard to each Article, but any restriction or limitation imposed by law or practice on the enjoyment of rights provided for in the covenant. I have provided the honourable member with a copy of Australia's report, prepared by the Commonwealth after consultation with the Northern Territory and the states.

Finally, it is noted that the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights is a United Nations instrument not an 'ILO Convention'.

2. & 3. The views of the Territory government on the international covenant have been expressed to the Commonwealth through a forum known as 'Meeting of Ministers on Humans Rights'. The establishment of this forum, comprising the Attorneys-General of the Commonwealth, the states and the Northern Territory, was prompted in late 1978 specifically to consider the terms upon which Australia should ratify the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. Entry of Australia into international treaties and conventions is a matter for the Commonwealth government under the constitution. However, the present Commonwealth government has a policy of consulting the states and the Northern Territory in such matters, particularly in cases where, as with the international covenant, the convention or treaty deals with subjects traditionally within the jurisdiction of the states, and more recently the Territory.

The international covenant and the terms of Australia's ratification were discussed at meetings of ministers on human rights held in February, May, July and October 1979. Extensive consultation at officer level also took place before and after the ministerial meetings in 1979. Subsequent to Australia's ratification of the covenant, ministerial meetings in November 1980, April and August 1981 discussed the form and content of the report required under Article 40 of the covenant.

It would neither be practical nor valuable to attempt to identify all the 'views' expressed at ministerial and officers meetings by the Territory on the provisions of the international covenant.

The purpose of such meetings was, of course, to exchange views and attempt to arrive at a consensus on the terms of Australia's ratification of the covenant. In many matters, some or all jurisdictions shared similar concerns or raised similar interpretation issues regarding the provisions of the covenant. In such circumstances, whether the Territory, a state or the Commonwealth expressed a view or agreed with a view suggested by another would often depend on which jurisdiction addressed a particular matter first.

The discussions by the ministerial meetings on human rights resulted in the following text, agreed by all Australian governments, of the reservations and declarations lodged with the United Nations when Australia ratified the international covenant on 13 August 1980:

AUSTRALIAN RESERVATIONS AND DECLARATIONS

Articles 2 and 50

"Australia advises that, the people having united as one people in a Federal Commonwealth under the Crown, it has a federal constitutional system. It accepts that the provisions of the Covenant extend to all parts of Australia as a federal State without any limitations or exceptions. It enters a general reservation that Article 2, paragraphs 2 and 3 and Article 50 shall be given effect consistently with and subject to the provisions in Article 2, paragraph 2.

Under Article 2, paragraph 2, steps to adopt measures necessary to give effect to the rights recognised in the Covenant are to be taken in accordance with each State Party's Constitutional processes which, in the case of Australia, are the processes of a federation in which legislative, executive and judicial powers to give effect to the rights recognised in the Covenant are distributed among the federal (Commonwealth) authorities and the authorities of the constituent States.

In particular, in relation to the Australian States the implementation of those provisions of the Covenant over whose subject matter the federal authorities exercise legislative, executive and judicial jurisdiction will be a matter for those authorities; and the implementation of those provisions of the Covenant over whose subject matter the authorities of the constituent States exercise legislative, executive and judicial jurisdiction will be a matter for those authorities; and where a provision has both federal and State aspects, its implementation will accordingly be a matter for the respective constitutionally appropriate authorities (for the purpose of implementation, the Northern Territory will be regarded as a constituent State).

To this end, the Australian Government has been in consultation with the responsible State and Territory Ministers with the object of developing co-operative arrangements to co-ordinate and facilitate the implementation of the Covenant."

Article 10

"Australia accepts the principle stated in paragraph 1 of Article 10 and the general principles of the other paragraphs of that Article, but makes the reservation that these and other provisions of the Covenant are without prejudice to laws and lawful arrangements, of the type now in force in Australia, for the preservation of custodial discipline in penal establishments. In relation to paragraph 2(a) the principle of segregation is accepted as an objective to be achieved progressively. In relation to paragraphs 2(b) and 3 (second sentence) the obligation to segregate is accepted only to the extent that such segregation is considered by the responsible authorities to be beneficial to the juveniles or adults concerned."

Article 14

(a) "Australia accepts paragraph 3(b) on the understanding that the reference to adequate facilities does not require provision to prisoners of all the facilities available to a prisoner's legal representative."

(b) "Australia accepts the requirement in paragraph 3(d) that everyone is entitled to be tried in his presence, but reserves the right to exclude an accused person where his conduct makes it impossible for the trial to proceed."

(c) "Australia interprets paragraph 3(d) of Article 14 as consistent with the operation of schemes of legal assistance in which the person assisted is required to make a contribution towards the cost of the defence related to his capacity to pay and determined according to law, or in which assistance is granted in respect of other than indictable offences only after having regard to all relevant matters."

(d) "Australia makes the reservation that the provision of compensation for miscarriage of justice in the circumstances contemplated in paragraph 6 of Article 14 may be by administrative procedures rather than pursuant to specific legal provision."

Article 17

"Australia accepts the principles stated in Article 17 without prejudice to the right to enact and administer laws which, insofar as they authorise action which impinges on a person's privacy, family, home or correspondence, are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public safety, the economic well-being of the country, the protection of public health or morals or the protection of the rights and freedoms of others."

Article 19

"Australia interprets paragraph 2 of Article 19 as being compatible with the regulation of radio and television broadcasting in the public interest with the object of providing the best possible broadcasting services to the Australian people."

Article 20

"Australia interprets the rights provided for by Articles 19, 21 and 22 as consistent with Article 20; accordingly, the Commonwealth and the constituent States, having legislated with respect to the subject matter of the Article in matters of practical concern in the interests of public order (ordre public), the right is reserved not to introduce any further legislative provision on these matters."

Article 25

"The reference in paragraph (b) of Article 25 to 'universal and equal suffrage' is accepted without prejudice to laws which provide that factors such as regional interests may be taken into account in defining electoral divisions, or which establish franchises for municipal and other local government elections related to the sources of revenue and the functions of such government."

Convicted Persons

"Australia declares that laws now in force in Australia relating to the rights of persons who have been convicted of serious criminal offences are generally consistent with the requirements of Articles 14, 18, 19, 25 and 26 and reserves the right not to seek amendment of such laws."

Articles 2, 26, etc.

"The provisions of Articles 2(1) and 24(1), 25 and 26 relating to discrimination and distinction between persons shall be without prejudice to laws designed to achieve for the members of some class or classes of persons equal enjoyment of the rights defined in the Covenant. Australia accepts Article 26 on the basis that the object of the provision is to confirm the right of each person to equal treatment in the application of the law."

Convention on Elimination of Discrimination against Women

625 Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

1. In what respects do the laws and practices of the Northern Territory fall short of the standards set by the 1980 Convention on Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women?

2. What views has the Northern Territory government expressed to the Commonwealth government on the provisions of the convention?

3. On (a) what occasions, (b) in what circumstances, (c) at what level, and (d) with what results have consultations taken place between the NT and Commonwealth governments concerning the ratification of the convention?

ANSWER

1. The question of what laws and practices of all jurisdictions in Australia fail to comply with the provisions of the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women is currently under consideration by the Attorneys-General of the Commonwealth, States and Territory in the forum of Ministerial Meetings on Human Rights. At this stage, consideration of the convention is directed largely to issues of interpretation and it will not be possible to provide a list of laws and practices, if any, which do not meet the requirements of the convention before such interpretation issues are resolved.

   For further information in this matter, I refer the honourable member to the statement I made in the Legislative Assembly on 11 March 1981 in support of a motion by the honourable member for Nightcliff proposing the Assembly support the United Nation Convention.

2. I refer the honourable member to my statement on 11 March 1981 referred to in 1. above.

3. See 2. above.

Juvenile Crime in NT

626 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Has there been an increase in the incidence of juvenile crime in the Northern Territory?

2. If so, (a) can he provide figures to demonstrate this increase, (b) what are the causes of this increase, (c) what action is to be taken to rectify the situation and (d) what are the main offences being committed?

3. What is the average age of juvenile offender?

4. (a) How many juvenile inmates are in NT institutions and how does this figure compare with that for the same period last year?

   (b) What is the average length of stay for a juvenile inmate?

ANSWER

1. 'Juvenile' has been regarded as a child up to and including 16 years of age. The amount of crime committed by juveniles cannot be ascertained. Statistics are based on the number of juvenile offenders apprehended for crimes. Offenders are probably in proportion to the total number of offences committed, and it is probable that there has been an increase over 1980 and 1978 but less than 1979.

2. (a) Total figures for the years 1978, 1979, 1980 and 1981 are:

	Male	Female	Total
1978	749	81	830
1979	1,276	62	1,338
1980	1,042	140	1,182
1981	1,109	158	1,267

   (b) The juvenile age group (10-17 years) increase in population would be the significant factor accounting for the apparent increase in juvenile crime.

(c) Youth oriented programs will continue to be supported and developed.

(d) Break, enter and steal, larceny, illegal use and interfere with motor vehicle, malicious damage.

3. Statistics for the 6 months ended December 1981 show the average age of an offender for main offences listed in 2(d) as 14 years for both males and females in each instance except for females in respect of 'illegal use of motor vehicles' where the average age is 16 years, but is based on an exceedingly small total of 6 offenders only.

4. (a) In January 1981 there was 1 juvenile remanded in Malak House, and in January 1982 there were 4 juveniles remanded in Malak House.

In January 1981 there were 6 juveniles held in Giles House and in January 1982 there were 11.

In January 1981 there were 4 juveniles in NT prisons and in January 1982 there were 5.

(b) The average length of stay for a juvenile in Giles House is approximately 30 days.

The average length of stay for a juvenile in prison is 48 days.

School Leavers Entering Apprenticeships

636 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. Is he aware of the problems that school leavers, particularly those not living with their parents, face when entering apprenticeships?

2. If so, what does the NT government do or intend doing to enable such disadvantaged youths to enjoy equality with their peers?

ANSWER

The NT Industries Training Commission is not aware that apprentices (whether residing with their parents or otherwise) are disadvantaged with respect to their peers. In fact, there are at least 3 ways in which apprentices appear more fortunate than other school leavers.

1. If obliged to live away from home young apprentices receive some financial assistance through the Commonwealth government's CRAFT scheme. This is not available to school leavers in non-apprenticeship areas.

2. The NT Industries Training Commission employs apprentice training supervisors whose role is to oversight the training of apprentices and to ensure that the conditions of the indenture are fulfilled. School leavers in non-apprenticeship areas do not receive such support.

3. The terms of the indentures of apprenticeship offer young people security of employment which is not normally available to other school leavers apart from those who secure government positions.

Computers, Department of Education

648 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. Did the Department of Education hire Price Waterhouse to draw up a report on its use of computers at all levels?

2. If so, (a) when was the report given to the department, (b) is it available for scrutiny, and (c) is it true that the department has 14 different types of word processors?

ANSWER

1. The Department of Education engaged Price Waterhouse Associates to undertake a review of operations, information systems and technological requirements.

2. (a) April 1981.

   (b) The report is not a public document, however if the honourable member wishes, a copy is available in my office for his perusal.

   (c) No. The Department of Education has 3 IBM OS6 and 1 IBM display writer.

Koolpinyah Pastoral Lease

650 Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. Does the government intend to accept part of Koolpinyah lease in exchange for granting Koolpinyah management an additional lease?

2. If so, what is (a) the location and area of land Koolpinyah is to relinquish to the government and, (b) the location and area of the new land to be released to Koolpinyah?

ANSWER

The position as at 3 June 1982 is as follows:

Negotiations are continuing with the lessee of Koolpinyah pastoral lease aimed at rationalising the property boundaries and land exchanges may be involved. The location and area of the land that may be involved depends on the results of those negotiations and an announcement will be made on their successful conclusion.

Koolpinyah Boundaries

651 Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

I refer to the proposed 'Rationalisation of boundaries for Koolpinyah' and ask: Is it a fact that both the Department of Primary Production and the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority recommended against the proposed re-drawing of the boundaries and, if so, on what information did Cabinet agree on 22 December 1981 to accept in principle the proposed re-drawing of the boundaries?

ANSWER

The position as at 3 June 1982 is as follows:

Negotiations are continuing with the lessee of Koolpinyah pastoral lease in order to rationalise the property boundaries. These negotiations are being held following advice from all relevant departments and authorities.

In vitro Fertilisation Research

653 Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the NT government, through the Department of Health, intend to provide funds for further research into in vitro fertilisation as Northern Territory couples are affected by it?

ANSWER

The NT Department of Health has not been involved in the highly specialised research program of in vitro fertilisation and no proposal has been submitted for research in this field.

Grants-in-Aid, Nhulunbuy Sporting Bodies

654 Mr LEO to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

I refer to his answer to question No. 605 and ask what was the breakdown of the $27,199 provided through grants-in-aid to Nhulunbuy sporting bodies during 1980-81?

ANSWER

The following grants make up the total of $27,199 provided through grants-in-aid to Nhulunbuy sporting bodies during 1980 and 1981:

Gove Peninsula Surf Life Saving Club (Travel)	$ 4,154
Gove Junior Soccer Association (Equipment)	$ 420
Gove Squash Club (Facilities and Coaching/Training)	$ 8,875
Gove Boating Club (Facilities)	$ 3,500
Gove Country Golf Club (Facilities)	$ 8,000
Nhulunbuy Police and Citizens Youth Club for the Judo Club (Equipment)	$ 2,250
	$ 27,199

Dangerous Goods Act Commencement

655 Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Why has the Dangerous Goods Act, assented to in January 1981, not yet come into operation?

ANSWER

The Dangerous Goods Act cannot be brought into operation until the necessary Dangerous Goods Regulations have been drafted. The delay in preparing these regulations has been caused by the difficulty of recruiting suitable staff for the Dangerous Goods Branch of the Department of Mines and Energy.

Only very limited resources were available to carry out the initial drafting of these regulations until the Chief Inspector of Dangerous Goods was recruited in December 1981. Recruiting for this position commenced in September 1980 and no suitable applicant was found until late last year. A supervising inspector was recruited in May 1981 but initially most of his time was taken up with the day to day activities of the newly established branch.

The Dangerous Goods Act covers 8 classes of hazardous chemicals including, explosives, flammable gases and liquids, oxidising agents, poisons and corrosive substances. The regulations are being drafted in sections to cover both general requirements and those specific to each class of chemical. They are therefore both complex and detailed.

Wherever possible suitable Australian codes and regulations from other states are being utilised. However, these need to be checked for consistency with the Dangerous Goods Act and conditions in the Territory.

Tender, RFDS Hangar, Alice Springs

656 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. Who was the successful tenderer for the Royal Flying Doctor Service hangar facility at Alice Springs airport?
2. Was this decision consistent with the Tender Board's recommendation?
3. What were the grounds on which the decision was based?

ANSWER

It is noted the honourable Member asks about the successful tenderer for the Royal Flying Doctor Service hangar facility at Alice Springs Airport.

In response, I wish to advise that neither I, as a member of the government, nor officers of my Department of Health, are competent, nor indeed have authority, to answer questions on behalf of the Royal Flying Doctor Service. In view of this, may I suggest that the Member addresses the question to the administration of the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

Land Purchases, Northlakes and Brinkin

659 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

1. Has the government purchased, or does it intend to purchase, blocks of land at the Northlakes Country Club Estate and at Brinkin?

2. If so, for what purpose has the government made or intend to make these purchases?

ANSWER

No.

Recreation Lake, Alice Springs

661 Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I draw his attention to the Aboriginal Sacred Sites Protection Authority report tabled in the Assembly on 11 March 1982 in which, in relation to Welatje Terre, the proposed site for the recreation lake, it was stated that it was hoped that alternative locations for the proposed development may be identified in the near future, and ask:

1. Is he able to advise of any such alternative sites?

2. What is the relative feasibility of each site in comparison with Welatje Terre?

3. If no alternative sites have been identified, will the government proceed with construction of a recreation lake at Welatje Terre and, if so, when will the work commence and when is the project expected to be completed?

ANSWER

1. At least 5 possible sites have been examined, including Pyberingie and Ildjarabada on Jay Creek, Birthday Gap on the Hugh River, and Wigley Gorge and the Old Telegraph Station on the Todd River.

2. A feasibility report has been prepared covering the 3 sites selected for closer scrutiny, namely the Old Telegraph Station (Todd River), Birthday Gap (Hugh River) and Ildjarabada (Jay Creek).

   The following is part of a feasibility report showing comparisons between these sites:

   9. COMPARISON WITH OTHER SITES

   This section presents an updated comparison of the three sites previously identified as of most interest.

   In order to provide valid comparisons of the size and storage behaviour of the sites, it is assumed that dams at Ildjarabada and Birthday Gap would be of a size so as to display hydrologic similarity, with the Todd proposal - that is, each design storage volume in approximately the same proportion to the available run-off and hence catchment area. Hence in each case, although the actual lake surface areas differ, the relationship between proportion of maximum area and percentage of time availabe would be similar.

The main items for comparison are listed in the following table:

Comparison of Sites

	Telegraph Station (Todd River)	Birthday Gap (Hugh River)	Ildjarabada (Jay Creek)
LAND TENURE	RESERVE/CROWN	PASTORAL LEASE	ABORIGINAL
Distance from Alice Springs (km)	5	68	47
Length of access road required (km)	1	11	2
Accessibility of waters edge	Good	Fair	Good
Catchment area (km^2)	400	310	223
Assumed storage volume (10^6 m^3)	4.3	3.8	2.6
Corresponding surface area (ha)	92	96	64
Estimated surface area exceeded for 90% of time	60	60	45
Maximum depth (m)	13	10	11
Preliminary total cost estimate	$2.1m	$3.5m	$1.3m
Cost per hectare of water provided (when full)	$23,000	$36,000	$20,000

The significantly higher cost of the Birthday Gap site is attributable to high costs of access, clearing and leakage problems. The higher cost of the Todd site compared with Ildjarabada is due to the additional work on saddle weirs and miscellaneous works.

A number of other matters are relevant to the comparison of sites:

(a) Although the cost per hectare offered could favour the Ildjarabada site, this does not allow for the economic benefit which would flow from using the Todd site for watering parks and gardens. As discussed in 5.06, the present net benefit of the scheme is at least $1.1 million, which negates half the cost of the Todd site. No worthwhile net benefit would be applicable to a similar scheme for Ildjarabada, because of the distance involved. When the economic benefit associated with flood attenuation is also considered, it is apparent that the real cost per hectare of providing water for recreation at the Todd is in fact much less than for Ildjarabada.

(b) The Birthday Gap site, by virtue of the topography offered, could offer a high level development with corresponding large storage. Such a development would not be appropriate for a recreation lake owing to the cost and because the storage behaviour would be highly irregular. However, it could be economically attractive in future years as a major water supply storage for Alice Springs - water would be used as and when available from the storage as an alternative to or in conjunction with groundwater.

(c) In an engineering-geological survey by the Department of Mines and Energy (report in preparation) it has been found that the Birthday Gap site, while suitable for high development, may not be suitable for a low development. This is due to matters relating to foundation permeability and weathering at the spillway site.

(d) Whether the relative proximity to Alice Springs of the Todd site is regarded as an advantage depends on one's point of view. Arguments in favour of the Todd include convenience for the public and the relative ease of management (because it is close to existing management machinery).

(e) Although there is little appropriate date for Jay Creek and the Hugh River, sediment flows in those rivers are probably lower than in the Todd. This implies that the Todd site would have a shorter life, but is not necessarily a valid consideration because:

(i) a sand trap on Jay Creek or the Hugh River would not be as beneficial as at the Todd because there would be no potential for mining of the sand; and

(ii) the high sediment load in the Todd may be a justification for the Todd lake in itself, as discussed in Section 4.07.

(f) Any undesirable environmental effects of a lake would possibly be of more significance in the case of the Todd. No major effects have been identified at this stage, however.

Consideration of the above aspects and the information contained generally in this report confirms earlier indications that the Todd River offers the best site for a recreation lake. Ildjarabada offers the second-best site, although it would not be viable without the support of the Aboriginal land owners.

Attention: Mr L.A. KENT

QUESTION ON NOTICE No. 661 - PROPOSED SITE FOR RECREATIONAL LAKE - WELATJE TERRE

The concept of a recreation lake in Alice Springs region dates back many years. At least five possible sites have been examined, including Pyberingie and Ildjarabada on Jay Creek, Birthday Gap on the Hugh River, and Wigley Gorge and the Old Telegraph Station on the Todd River.

Of these, three were selected for closer scrutiny and I enclose copies of part of a feasibility report showing comparisons between these sites.

The Old Telegraph Station site near Alice Springs was eventually selected as being the most favourable on the grounds of distances, accessibility, storage and depth. In addition, the lake could be used for flood mitigation and for watering recreational areas.

Reports on the feasibility, Hydrology Water Quality and Environment have been prepared and the proposal has been widely publicised.

At this stage no firm commitment has been made to commence construction of a recreation lake in the Alice Springs region. It is seen as a political decision.

Should you require any further details please contact Mr Colin Brown of the Water Division on 896655.

(Sgd) C.J. FULLER

3. The matter is still under consideration.

Flagpoles, NT Buildings

664 Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to question No. 587 and ask:

What is the cost of the supply of flagpoles for erection at all Northern Territory buildings?

ANSWER

Cost of supply and installation of flagpoles as at 31 March 1982 is $64,390.

Sale of Housing Commission Units

665 Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

1. How many people in (a) Alice Springs, (b) Darwin, (c) Tennant Creek, and (d) Katherine have purchased housing units of various types since the government announced its home purchase scheme in October 1981?
2. How many units of various types have been released for sale in (a) Alice Springs, (b) Darwin, (c) Tennant Creek, and (d) Katherine since the scheme was announced?
3. How many people in (a) Alice Springs, (b) Darwin, (c) Tennant Creek, and (d) Katherine have listed their names with the Tenancy Section of the Housing Commission expressing interest in purchasing units of various types?

ANSWER

As the Housing Commission's home purchase schemes for detached 2, 3 and 4-bedroom housing units have been operating in the Territory since well before 1981, it is assumed that the honourable member's question refers to the recently introduced strata title unit sales scheme.

1. In Darwin 14 tenants have purchased town houses since October 1981. No sales of flats, units or town houses have been effected at the other centres.
2. All commission dwelling units which are assessed as suitable under unit titles legislation, will be made available for sale to tenants.

   All new development throughout the Territory is designed to comply to strata title requirements and is 'released' for sale to existing or new tenants upon handover.
3. In Darwin, 20 tenants have listed their names expressing interest in transferring to purchase new town houses currently under construction. Five tenants have applied at Katherine whilst no applications have been recorded at Alice Springs or Tennant Creek.

Accommodation for Single-parent Families

666 Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Does the Housing Commission require evidence of custody of children from single-parent families who apply for rental accommodation?

ANSWER

No. However, where marriage breakup is involved this commission requests a statutory declaration confirming physical custody.

Medical Evacuations

668 Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. How many medical evacuations for interstate specialist attention were recommended by (a) private GPs, and (b) government hospital doctors in the Territory from August 1980 to August 1981?
2. How many medical evacuations for interstate specialist attention were recommended by (a) private GPs, and (b) government hospital doctors from 1 September 1981 to 31 March 1982?

ANSWER

Only government hospital doctors are permitted to authorize medical evacuations for interstate specialist attention, under the Northern Territory government's medical evacuation scheme.

Between August 1980 and August 1981, 129 patients were evacuated; 62 patients were evacuated between 1 September 1981 and 31 March 1982.

Under the Commonwealth government's Isolated Patients Travel Accommodation and Assistance Scheme (IPTAAS), both private general practitioners and government hospital doctors may authorize medical evacuations. I am advised that the Commonwealth government does not record whether the evacuations were authorized by private general practitioners or government hospital doctors.

The number of patients evacuated between August 1980 and August 1981 was 1,462 and between 1 September 1981 and 31 March 1982, 505.

School, Ayers Rock

671 Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. How many school-age children are currently living at Ayers Rock?
2. When will his department provide a school for these children?

ANSWER

1. The number of school-aged children at Ayers Rock varies between 8 and 18.
2. A permanent school for children in the area is planned in the first stage of construction of Yulara village. In the meantime a temporary school will be established for the construction camp associated with the Yulara project and the Ayers Rock children will attend this school. This temporary school will open at the beginning of the second semester 1982.

Community Adviser, Ayers Rock

672 Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Will his department fund the position of community adviser at Ayers Rock?
2. If not, why not?

ANSWER

1. The Department of Community Development has no plans to fund a position of community adviser at Ayers Rock.
2. The department does not, as a general rule, provide funding to communites for the employment of advisers.

Relocation of Pintubis

673 Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When does he expect the findings on the review of the relocation of the Pintubi at Kintore and elsewhere to be made known to the Kintore community and relevant government departments?

ANSWER

The review of the Pintubi relocation movement was undertaken by the Department of Aboriginal Affairs and the question should be directed accordingly.

Petrol Sniffing Workshop

674 Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What action has resulted from an interdepartmental workshop on petrol sniffing held at Papunya on 24 February 1982?

ANSWER

Following the Papunya workshop a meeting of Department of Community Development officers was held in Alice Springs. Subsequent to this meeting the department has commenced consultation with the Lyappa Congress with the view to providing material assistance to the Brown's Bore Outstation where it had been proposed that sniffers be rehabilitated.

Discussions are continuing with the Papunya police and the courts regarding provisions of the Child Welfare Act which relate to protective custody. As well, a working committee has been established with departmental representation to assist with the implementation of the motion carried at the Papunya workshop.

Beef Trade with South-east Asia

676 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. Does he realise that the attitude of NT meat processors towards our northern neighbours Malaysia, Indonesia, and the Phillipines directly affects the BTB eradication campaign and the development of the beef industry in the NT?
2. If so, will he review the licences of abattoirs that do not accept the NT policy of seeking trade with South-east Asia?

ANSWER

The continued progress of the BTB eradication campaign in the NT and the establishment of alternative markets for NT beef other than the US export market are issues central to the development of the beef industry in the NT.

Producers must have viable export markets for their product to ensure that they are economically capable of maintaining and strengthening their BTB eradication program.

The NT government has already taken an initiative in this direction by seeking a dispensation from the Commonwealth to allow the export of meat from NT domestic abattoirs to meet the needs of the South-east Asian markets.

With regard to NT meat processors, the question implies that some NT abattoirs are resistant to the expansion of our frozen meat trade with South-east Asian countries.

I believe it is in the interests of the whole spectrum of the cattle industry from the producer through to the abattoir owner and the shipper to develop new markets. The government would certainly review its position if, by any chance, a particular organisation appeared to be working against the interests of the NT cattle industry as a whole.

Beef for South-east Asia

677 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

In view of the crisis situation which exists in the NT beef industry, will he take urgent steps to contact Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines to determine if beef killed to Australian domestic standards is acceptable and if they require quotes and proposals to supply?

ANSWER

The Chief Minister has already written letters relating to this government initiative addressed to the heads of government of neighbouring countries regarding the Northern Territory government's policy on Australian domestic standard beef to South-east Asia.

Award Wages, Katherine Meatworks

679 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. Does the government realise that its efforts to develop the beef industry in the Top End are being hampered by the Katherine Meatworks making over-award sweetheart agreements with AMIEU members?

2. Will the government ensure that this meatworks operates under the AMIEU award or on contract kill as do other meatworks in the Territory?

ANSWER

1. The government is aware of previous complaints from the industry relating to the cost of killing at Katherine Meatworks.

2. The honourable member can be assured that the government will do everything in its power to encourage meatworks to play a very full part in achieving a competitively priced product for our markets, as well as providing the producer with a fair return for his cattle.

Shop Leases, Jabiru

681 Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

1. How many of the 7 speciality shops available for lease in Jabiru have been leased?

2. To whom have they been leased?

3. What is the period of each lease?

4. What are the terms and conditions of each lease?

ANSWER

1. None of the 7 speciality shops available for lease in Jabiru have, to date, been formally leased, the hold up being the preparation of the sublease documents in registerable form. The land tenure system which will apply to the group of 7 speciality shops is as follows:

   - The land, the subject of the lease, will be vested in the Director, Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service in fee simple.

   - The Jabiru Town Development Authority will obtain a lease over this land.

- Energy Resources of Australia (ERA) will then obtain a sublease over the land from the JTDA.
- The individual operators of the speciality shops will obtain subleases over the space which they occupy, from ERA, who are the owners of the buildings.

2. ERA will enter into commercial sublease arrangements with each of the operators of the 7 speciality shops, subject to the finalisation of ERA sublease over the land from JTDA.

   In order that the opening of the shops not be delayed while awaiting finalisation of leasing arrangements, ERA has issued letters of intent and understanding over draft sublease agreements to the following businessmen:

• Snack bar/take-away-food	Mr Alberto Luglietti
• Hairdresser	Mr and Mrs John Mills
• Newsagent	Mr B.T. Seeleither
• Post office	Australia Post.

   Applications for the remaining 3 shops are still under consideration.

3. JTDA lease from the director will be for a period of 40 years and ERA lease from the JTDA is expected to be for 40 years less 1 day, and it is expected that the term of the sublease for the individual shops will be for normal commercial periods, say, 5 years with the right of renewal for a further 5 years.

4. The terms and conditions, being commercial sublease agreements between ERA and the shopkeepers, are unavailable.

Supermarket Lease, Jabiru

682 Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Which company has been given the lease of the supermarket at Jabiru?
2. What is the period of the lease?
3. What are the terms and conditions of the lease?

ANSWER

1. Energy Resources of Australia (ERA) will be granted a sublease by the Jabiru Town Development Authority (JTDA) over the land occupied by the supermarket. It is expected that ERA will enter into a commercial sublease agreement with the supermarket operator, who will be Casuarina Pharmacy Pty Ltd.

   It is expected that JTDA sublease to ERA will be finalised within the next 2 months, which is estimated to be the time necessary to survey the land in question and to produce the survey plan and sublease documents in registerable form. In order that opening of the shop is not delayed, ERA has issued a letter of intent and understanding over a draft sublease agreement to Casuarina Pharmacy Pty Ltd.

2. It is expected that the period of Casuarina Pharmacy Pty Ltd sublease from ERA will be 20 years with the right of renewal for a further 10 years.

3. The terms and conditions, being commercial sublease agreement, between ERA and Casuarina Pharmacy Pty Ltd are not available.

Development Costs, Jabiru

683 Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Has a formal cost sharing arrangement on the funding of the development of Jabiru between the JTDA and the mining companies been signed?

2. If yes, what are the details of this cost sharing agreement?

ANSWER

1. A formal cost sharing agreement on the funding of the capital cost of construction of the town of Jabiru between the Jabiru Town Development Authority and the mining companies has not yet been signed, but negotiations have reached an advanced stage which should permit execution of the agreement before the end of June 1982.

2. The details of the cost sharing agreement are not available at this stage.

Operational Funding, Jabiru

684 Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Has an agreement been reached between the JTDA and mining companies over the funding of the operational costs of the town?

2. If yes, what are the details of this agreement?

ANSWER

1. Interim agreement has been reached between Jabiru Town Development Authority and Energy Resources of Australia over the funding of the operational costs of the town, but it is not intended to enter into a formal agreement with the mining companies until the capital cost sharing agreement has been finalised and executed.

2. The town is currently operating under a town management budget for 1981-82, which was approved by the Chief Minister in May 1981. The budget provides for the levying of municipal rates on property owners in the town, to cover the operating deficit which would otherwise have occurred. Municipal rates are being paid this financial year on all properties where building had commenced by 1 July 1981 and rates and charges for sewerage, water supply and garbage have also been introduced in accordance with the approved budget.

   The terms of the formal agreement between the JTDA and the mining companies to cover operational costs of the town are not yet available.

Rating System, Jabiru

685 Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Was a rating system for Jabiru introduced on 1 July 1981 as indicated in page 22 of the JTDA Annual Report?

2. If yes, what are the details of this rating system?

ANSWER

1. A system of town rates has been introduced in Jabiru with an effective commencement date of 1 July 1981, as indicated on page 22 of the JTDA Annual Report, as tabled in the Legislative Assembly.

2. The JTDA set a budget for operation and maintenance of the township. This budget was submitted to the Chief Minister for approval and was so approved.

   The Valuer-General determined the UCV of residential and commercial blocks of land within the township. The amount of revenue required for operations was divided by the total UCV of all rateable blocks and a rate per dollar of UCV was obtained. This was then adopted as the town rate.

The purchase of capital plant and equipment, while included in the budget approved by the Chief Minister, was funded directly by ERA and was not included in the general rate calculation.

Administration Staff, Jabiru

686 Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

How many people are (a) employed, and (b) at what levels, in the town administrator's office in Jabiru?

ANSWER

(a) There are 4 staff members including the town manager.

A further 6 workmen are employed on a contract hire hourly rate from a local contractor to carry out town maintenance under the works supervisor, who is one of the above 4 staff members.

(b) Staff are aligned to NTPS salary rates:

Town Manager	E3
Accounts Clerk	A7
Secretary/Typist	A3
Works Supervisor	W/S

Aboriginal Education Allocations

687 Mr LEO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. What financial allocations were received from the Commonwealth government for Aboriginal education in 1980-81 and 1981-82?
2. Did Dhupuma College, (a) ever receive a specific allocation of Commonwealth funding and, if so, (b) when, (c) how much, and (d) for what purpose?

ANSWER

1. In 1980-81 there were no Commonwealth grants made to the Department of Education specifically for Aboriginal education.

   In 1981-82 the department received one grant of $125,000 from the Department of Aboriginal Affairs to cover salary costs of Aboriginal teachers in homeland centres and one grant amounting to $74,000 from the Department of Employment and Youth Affairs to provide automotive apprenticeship training for community based Aboriginals.

2. The department has no record of Dhupuma College having received any Commonwealth grants during 1979-80 which was the only year the college operated under Northern Territory government control.

Salt and Lime Supplies

688 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

What action is being taken to supply NT needs for salt and lime?

ANSWER

Currently most bulk salt used in the Northern Territory is imported by road freight from South Australia. Major users are abattoirs who require considerable quantities to preserve cattle and buffalo hides sent interstate for processing. Freight costs incurred for the 'top end' are $120 per tonne. As the need for salt for hide preservation and other uses grows it is envisaged that volume may be sufficient to import by sea, which would be less costly.

Investigations have been undertaken in the past to use salt evaporation ponds in Darwin for local supply but the proponents have considered the operation uneconomical.

Lime is also presently imported into the Territory from South Australia, although a locally established firm, Northern Cement Pty Ltd, is proposing to establish a quick-lime manufacturing plant in Darwin. When established, the plant will supply lime to the building industry, to water and sewerage treatment services and to the growing need for lime in the uranium ore treatment operations.

Northern Cement has already expended considerable resources in efforts to identify suitable limestone deposits for local lime manufacture and those efforts are continuing. If suitable local deposits are not located the proposed manufacturing plant will import limestone.

Encouragement of Horticulturists

690 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What practical encouragement is being given to horticulturists in the Katherine district to grow vegetables and fruit in competition with growers 2,000 miles away?

ANSWER

Most of the research work being conducted at the Berrimah Experimental Farm is directly applicable to the horticulturists in Katherine. Officers from the Horticulture Section are advising Katherine growers on cropping programs, new techniques in irrigation and plastic mulch laying. Small lots of seed of promising new vegetable varieties are under test in the Katherine area.

Horticultural officers are presently establishing a fruit and vegetable block for teaching purposes at the Katherine Research Education Centre.

A new DPP soil testing service has been established for horticulturists, and most horticultural farms in the Katherine area have been tested and growers have been provided with fertiliser recommendations for their various crops.

Studies are also being initiated to coordinate the cropping programs of growers in the Darwin, Katherine and Alice Springs areas to ensure better continuity of supply to the local markets of many fruits and vegetables.

Cost of Transfer - Regional Office

691 Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

What were the removal and re-establishment costs involved in the transfer of the Northern Region office from the old Darwin hospital to Casuarina?

ANSWER

Cost of removal and re-establishment of the Northern Region office to Block 4, Darwin Hospital was approximately $11,400. This figure is comprised of the cost of removal and the installation of telephones at Block 4.

Golden Perch

694 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. Has the Department of Primary Production thoroughly examined the possible impact of the introduction of golden perch into Top End streams?
2. If so, is he confident that there will not be any harmful effects of such an action?
3. Will he make available to the Assembly the report of his department on the possible impact of the introduction of these fish when it is complete?

ANSWER

1. Preliminary investigations have been carried out and more detailed studies will continue as information becomes available. These preliminary investigations show that -

   Golden perch is indigenous to the central Australian river drainage system (Barkly Tableland region of the Northern Territory).

   There are no provisions under the Fish and Fisheries Act prohibiting the translocation of fish indigenous to the Northern Territory from one drainage system to another within the Northern Territory.

   On 4 March 1982, Mr L. Ah Toy of Koolpinyah Station was issued with a 'C' class licence under the Fish and Fisheries Act (Licence No. 82/C/029) to culture live fish for sale in accordance with specific conditions relating to same, namely:

   (i) golden perch (Macquaria ambigua) shall be released only in discrete ponds on Koolpinyah Station which are secure from accidental escape into the adjoining natural water system;

   (ii) unimpeded access will be provided to officers of the Fisheries Division to examine the state of ponds containing golden perch; and

   (iii) directions from the Director of Fisheries to make alterations to improve the security of golden perch held under the licence will be duly and expeditiously implemented by the licensee.

   On 7 April 1982, the Director of Fisheries issued a permit under the Fish and Fisheries Act to Mr Ah Toy to bring into the Northern Territory 2,000 golden perch fingerlings from New South Wales on the basis that their feasibility for fish farming in the top end could be examined under controlled conditions. Approval for this feasibility experiment to proceed was made with the knowledge that -

   - Mt Isa Mines introduced golden perch from the Georgina River system into Lake Moondarra (Queensland) and whilst the fish survived and matured, breeding failed to take place (Midgley; Freshwater Fisheries Consultant to Mt Isa Mines, pers. comm.);
   - that golden perch were introduced into the Mary River (Queensland east coast) and whilst the fish survived and matured, breeding failed to take place (Midgley, pers. comm.);
   - breeding failed to take place in these areas due to unsuitable environmental conditions, particularly high water temperatures.

Sealing, Bees Creek Road

695 Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

A great number of residents of my electorate are forced to use Bees Creek road as an access road to the Stuart Highway, sometimes several times each day. Could he advise if and when the government intends to upgrade and seal this badly corrugated dirt road?

ANSWER

The first stage of the upgrading of Bees Creek Road is proposed for commencement in the 1983-84 financial year.

The work proposed is reconstruction and sealing between the Stuart Highway and Lowther Road - a distance of approximately 1.5 km - at an estimated cost of $0.3m.

Further upgrading stages will be included in later programs.

Driving Time Limits

701 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

How does the government intend to implement section 26A of the Traffic Act which places a limit on the time for which drivers of certain vehicles may remain continuously on duty?

ANSWER

My department is currently reviewing all land transport legislation, including the limits on driving placed in section 26A of the Traffic Act, their appropriateness and the most effective means of enforcement. The emphasis is on potential road safety benefits taking account of Northern Territory conditions and experiences elsewhere in attempting to control driving hours. These aspects are also being considered at the national level.

Airfare Increases

702 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In its submission to the Independent Airfares Committee, the government stated it was prepared to allow IAC to set airfares in the Territory provided IAC gave the Territory government comprehensive advice on proposed airfare determinations on Territory routes, including the cost data on which any increases are based.

What information did IAC provide to the Territory government to justify the recent 7% increase in Territory airfares?

ANSWER

The IAFC has established a format for airfares reviews which requires that detailed information be submitted on movements in direct and indirect operating costs.

The information supplied by ANA was most comprehensive and complied in every way with the requirements of the IAFC who, after consideration, considered the fare increase justified.

Chemical Contamination

703 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

1. Is the occupational hygiene section of his department adequately equipped to conduct tests on workers who may have been contaminated with chemicals and solvents?
2. What action will he take to ensure that appropriate medical records are kept of workers handling dangerous substances or operating in hazardous environments?
3. Has the occupational hygiene section of his department (a) monitored levels of exposure to various chemicals and solvents at the BTR Ranger site, and if so, (b) on what date did this commence, and (c) what were the findings?
4. What, if any, provisions exist to require companies to be aware of levels of contamination to which workers may be subject when using chemicals or solvents, or operating in hazardous environments?

ANSWER

In providing a response to the several parts of this question, it may be helpful to mention the respective roles of employer, responsible for the maintenance of safe working conditions and provision of appropriate equipment (including protective equipment), and the Departments of Mines and Energy, which administers regulations and standards, provides inspectors to ensure compliance, furnishes advice and so forth. It is the policy of the department in meeting its responsibilities to stress the importance of safe practices and conditions, to test the workplace rather than the worker.

1. The Occupational Hygiene Section of the Department of Mines and Energy is well equipped to monitor, sample and carry out analytical work on the environment, including the working environment. Work of this nature commenced in the Ranger project area in 1978.

   Atmospheric, radiation and noise parameters are monitored as a matter of routine. The department also co-operates with the Department of Health in other related work, including analyses of biological samples taken by the Department of Health.

2. Full medical records of workers who present with medical problems resulting from the handling of dangerous substances or from operating in hazardous environments are kept in the Department of Health's hospitals and community health centres. In addition specialised occupational health records are maintained by the Central Office of the Department of Health in accordance with the relevant legislation.

3. (a) Yes.

   (b) 27 May 1982.

   (c) Two sets of samples taken on this day at the BTR Ranger site of work, where the solvents xylene and toluene were being used together, showed concentrations, averaged over 30 minutes, of 11 and 5 parts per million and 57 and 258 parts per million respectively. The recommended National Health and Medical Research Council standards for continuous exposure over the working life to xylene and toluene are 100 parts per million each. It will be seen that whilst the xylene concentrations give no cause for alarm, those for toluene require care by ventilation, provision of protective equipment, or in some other way, to ensure that the long-term average is not exceeded for individual workers.

   The department was approached several months ago by Messrs BTR, who are specialists in industrial rubber work, and discussion have been held between Messrs BTR, Ranger Uranium Mines, the Federated Miscellaneous Workers Union and the department, on the precautions appropriate to the work, including protective clothing and equipment. The work situation and the precautions in force, appear safe and satisfactory to the various parties, with the exception of a small number of individual workmen who are understood to object to wearing the protection stipulated.

4. Provision exists in the Mines Safety Regulations Part V for the definition of acceptable levels of concentrations of chemical substances which may be present in the workplace.

   Part V of the Mines Safety Control Act makes the manager responsible, unless the context otherwise indicates, for compliance with the requirements of the regulations and for ensuring a safe working environment at the mine.

Buffaloes for PNG

704 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What was (a) the cost of the buffaloes purchased for the Papua New Guinea export project at the Beatrice Hill Research Station, and (b) from where were the buffaloes purchased?

ANSWER

250 head of buffalo heifers were purchased on the open market for $45.30 per head for the Beatrice Hill-Coastal Plains Research Stations export project. The buffaloes were from Mudginberri Station.

201 head of buffaloes in excellent condition have been delivered to the Department of Primary Industry, Papua New Guinea. The animals were unloaded at Wewak on 16 June 1982.

Buffalo Export Project Staff

705 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

How many extra staff were (a) appointed to the Breatrice Hill Research Station to carry out the latest buffalo export project, (b) were these extra staff transferred from within the Department of Primary Production, and (c) if so, from what sections were they drawn?

ANSWER

There were no staff appointed specifically for the export project.

Two extra people were appointed to the Veterinary Field Research Section for buffalo domestication and research projects. One labourer was deployed from Tortilla Research Station to Veterinary Field Research Section. All 3 people are based at Beatrice Hill.

Buffalo domestication control and research has a high priority in the Department of Primary Production and is an on-going project. The export project was part of the larger project but has provided much information and experience which has proved of great value to both the department and to the buffalo industry.

Aborigines Employed in Conservation Commission

706 Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

1. How many Aborigines are employed by the Conservation Commission in the southern administrative region?
2. Of these, how many are employed as rangers, and in which parks or reserves are they currently employed?
3. Does the Conservation Commission conduct ranger training programs for Aborigines in (a) the southern region, and (b) the northern region, and, if so, how many people have (c) received training, or (d) are receiving training in (i) the southern region, and (ii) the northern region?

ANSWER

1. Eighteen persons identifying as Aboriginal or of Aboriginal descent were employed by the Conservation Commission in the southern region at 28 June 1982.

   Positions of employment included plant operators, field assistants, drivers, technical assistants, consultants, ranger trainees and utility staff.

2. At 28 June 1982, 2 were employed as trainee rangers, with arrangements in hand to recruit an additional 3. No Aboriginals are currently appointed as rangers in the southern region. The parks concerned are Uluru (Ayers Rock-Mt Olga) and Ormiston Gorge.

3. A comprehensive training program for all Conservation Commission rangers was devised last year and is now being implemented, subject to the availability of funds. In addition, the Commonwealth has been approached for funds to enable expansion of the program at Uluru.

   (a) in the southern region, 2 Aborigines are currently receiving training as rangers and action is in hand to recruit another 3 trainees.

   (b) In the northern region, 3 Aborigines are currently receiving training as rangers and action is in hand to recruit another 5 trainees.

Housing Commission Home Loans

708 Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

1. With regard to the operation of the NT Housing Commission home loans scheme during 1981-82, (a) how many loans were advanced, (b) how many applications were received, (c) what is the value of the average loan advanced, and (d) what is the total value of dwellings financed through the scheme?

2. In what towns or suburbs have houses been built with assistance from the NTHC home loans scheme since the scheme's inception?

3. What is the average waiting time from lodgement of application until receipt of the loan?

ANSWER

1. (a) 488; (b) 799; (c) $42,484; and (d) $29,376,560.

2. Darwin - all suburbs excluding city area - Kahlin, Anula, Katherine, Tennant Creek, and Alice Springs.

3. 6 to 8 weeks.

Teachers, Amaroo and Utopia

709 Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

When will replacements be obtained for (a) Mr Keefe and Ms Nash, who have resigned from teaching positions at Amaroo Station, and (b) Mr and Mrs Churchill, who are due to leave Department of Education employ at Utopia Station in June 1982?

ANSWER

Replacement teachers for Amaroo Station and Utopia Station will commence duty at the beginning of the second semester 19 July 1982.

Advisory Services, Primary Production

710 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Given the recent resignation of the Department of Primary Production officer whose prime responsibility was provision of advice to the pig, poultry, dairy, and crocodile industries, what action has been taken to ensure that adequate departmental resources are available to assist in these areas?

ANSWER

The Department of Primary Production is continuing to make available extension advice to the pig, poultry, dairy and crocodile industries. The position recently made vacant has been advertised in Queensland Country Life and the NT News. Pending an appointment, arrangements have been made for another officer to provide this service to producers.

Fish Silage

711 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. Has the government investigated the potential for a fish silage industry in the Northern Territory?
2. Is it the intention of the government to support such a potential industry with loans or grants if investigations prove to be encouraging?

ANSWER

1. Yes. An application was received under the Northern Territory Fishing Industry Research and Development Trust Fund and considered by the Northern Territory Fishing Industry Research and Development Trust Fund Advisory Committee.
2. Yes. Acting with the advice of the Northern Territory Fishing Industry Research and Development Trust Fund Advisory Committee, I approved the inclusion of the fish silage project within the development projects approved for the Fisheries Division and allocated a further $10,000 to the Fisheries Division under the Gear Development Loan Scheme to further investigate gear loan assistance for the development of this project.

Disease Eradication

712 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Could the herd control measures being introduced to eradicate brucellosis and tuberculosis in cattle also help to eradicate other diseases?

ANSWER

Clearly, herd control measures being introduced to eradicate brucellosis and tuberculosis in cattle will also be available to help eradicate other diseases. Property improvements, such as fencing and water traps, enable animals to be segregated into identifiable groups and regularly mustered for testing. These facilities from the basis for the control and eradication of brucellosis and tuberculosis through testing and culling, and would also be able to be used for the control and eradication of other diseases.

Brucellosis and TB Eradication Funding

713 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

If the federal government does meet the demands of the BTB Committee, will the NT government fund the eradication program?

ANSWER

Will the honourable member please rephrase the question as its meaning is not clear.

Cattle Exports to Indonesia

715 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Does the NT government intend to accept the same responsibility for assuring TB-free status of live breeder cattle exports to Indonesia as it now accepts for buffalo?

ANSWER

International trade in live animals exported from or imported into Australia is subject to Commonwealth authority and responsibility.

Regulation 96A of the Commonwealth Quarantine Act provides that:

(1) A person shall not export an animal that is a bird or mammal unless the animal has been examined by a quarantine officer who is a veterinary surgeon during the period of forty-eight hours immediately preceding shipment.

(a) A quarantine officer who has examined any such animal intended for export shall grant such certificates relating to the freedom of the animal from disease or otherwise as the circumstances require.

Just as animals imported into Australia must meet the health conditions prescribed by the Commonwealth government, animals exported to Indonesia must meet the health requirements prescribed by the Indonesian government.

While the Commonwealth government is ultimately responsible for ensuring that breeder cattle exported to Indonesia meet the conditions for TB freedom prescribed by the Indonesian government, the responsibility extends to the producer, the exporter and the certifying officer. Substantial penalties are provided under the Commonwealth Quarantine Act, including Regulation 96A.

Although no State or Territory government has jurisdiction over Australia's international trade in livestock, the NT government provides veterinary services to assist Territory producers and exporters to present animals for export which meet the health requirements of the various importing countries.

Cattle Exports to Indonesia

716 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Does the NT government intend to negotiate long term contracts with Indonesia for the supply of breeder cattle in line with the establishment of the buffalo domestication program?

ANSWER

It is unlikely that the Indonesian government will agree to purchase breeder cattle from the Northern Territory until both brucellosis and tuberculosis have been eradicated from areas in the Northern Territory which can otherwise supply suitable cattle.

Building Regulations, Katherine

717 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Are prospective purchasers of residential blocks in Katherine East subdivision adequately warned of the requirements of the Building Authority Branch with regard to flood levels?

ANSWER

Yes, in the Gazette of 26 March 1982 and, before that, of 9 October 1981, wherein the land was advertised as being available for sale, under the heading of 'Information for Intending Purchasers' the public was advised that the building regulations required floor levels of dwellings to be 0.35 metres above the predicted 1 in 100 year recurrent flood and that further information was available in a brochure entitled 'Land Use in Flood Plains - The Interim Flood Plain Management Policy of the Northern Territory'.

Sorghum and Maize Production

721 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. What was the size of the 1982 harvest of (a) sorghum, and (b) maize in the Northern Territory?

2. What is the estimated size of the Northern Territory market for both These commodities?

3. When does ADMA expect that demand for both maize and sorghum in the Territory will be wholly met by local production?

ANSWER

1. Final deliveries of grain to ADMA for 1981-82 were (a) sorghum - 2559 tonnes; (b) maize - 620 tonnes; and (c) mung beans - 67 tonnes.

2. Of all grain received, 1400 tonnes of sorghum is unsold. The authority anticipates that buyers will be found prior to the 1982 harvest. A number of end-users of feed grains in the Territory are still drawing on Ord River supplies. It is estimated that without a major feedmill, the demand for unprocessed grain will amount to 4000 to 5000 tonnes.

3. The authority expects the local demand for maize and sorghum to be fully satisfied by local production after the 1983 harvest.

Incident, Maningrida

725 Mr MacFARLANE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

What are the details of the recent incident at Manangrida when a 14-year-old petrol sniffing youth held up a nursing sister at gun point?

ANSWER

On 1 August 1982 at 2045 hours, at the Maningrida nurses quarters, an Aboriginal male, aged 16 years, entered the room of a nursing sister residing at the quarters. He pointed an unloaded .44 calibre rifle at the nursing sister to force her to supply him with food. The offender had been sniffing petrol prior to the offence. He was a resident of and was supported at Maningrida and was in no urgent need of food.

The youth was apprehended by Maningrida police and charged with the following offences arising out of the incident -

- assault with intent to rob whilst armed;
- unlawfully on premises;
- aggravated assault;
- possess firearm not holding a shooter's licence; and
- armed with offensive weapon.

He appeared before court at Maningrida on 9 August 1982 and was remanded to appear in Darwin.

The offender appeared before the Children's Court at Casuarina on 10 August 1982 and a plea of 'guilty' to the charge of 'assault with intent to rob whilst armed' was entered.

He was again remanded in custody and is due to appear before the Children's Court for sentence on Tuesday 24 August 1982.

Further charges of 'possession of unregistered firearm' and 'possession of a firearm not holding a shooter's licence' are to be proceeded with on this occasion.

Legislation for Incorporation of School Councils

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

When will he be introducing legislation to provide for the incorporation of school councils?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am pleased to advise that a bill has been prepared. In the last week, I had detailed discussions with officers of the Departments of Treasury and Law in relation to those difficulties in the use of the Financial Administration and Audit Act as it relates to the proposal for incorporated school councils. I am satisfied that solutions can be found to each of those problems. Cabinet will be considering the draft legislation at its next meeting. I hope to introduce appropriate legislation during the course of this sittings.

Ambulance Service for Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the position regarding the supply of an ambulance service for the people of Jabiru?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, you might think it strange that the honourable member for Tiwi asked that question of me as Chief Minister rather than of the Minister for Health. I have some small interest in the town of Jabiru and, as a consequence of the Minister for Health having to go south last week, it fell to my lot to have discussions with the St John Ambulance service. The St John Ambulance service met with me yesterday in the persons of Mr Richard Morris and Mr Burden, the superintendent of the service. We were able to come to an arrangement whereby St John Ambulance will maintain its existing service at Jabiru. Additional space will be allocated to it in the health clinic there to meet with its requirements. I think that the concerns of the people of Jabiru will now be allayed in respect of a vehicular ambulance service. I had the pleasure of conveying this information to a meeting of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council last evening. I am sure that the word has probably circulated in the town of Jabiru by now.

Sewerage and Electrical Installations at Bees Creek

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that sewerage ponds are to be constructed at the end of Gulnare Road? Is it a fact that, in order to install sewerage pipes, 10 metres of land are to be resumed from blocks on the north side of Gulnare Road and that NTEC is to claim a further 12 metre easement on the same blocks for the erection of power poles to service the sewerage ponds which will make a total of 22 metres in all?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the department has 2 projects planned which affect Gulnare Road. One is the sewer outfall from Humpty Doo town centre which will run from the proposed lagoons adjacent to the Elizabeth River. The construction of Gulnare Road between the Stuart Highway and Lovelock Road is also on the 1982-83 draft capital works program. Gulnare Road will ultimately become a distributor road as development in the area proceeds.

The width of the present road reserve is 20 m while the minimum desirable width for that standard of road is 30 m and preferably 35 m. The department identified a probable minimum widening of 10 m along the northern boundary of the road. The northern side was selected because it is less developed than the southern side. The department commissioned a consulting engineer to design the sewer and roadworks and investigate the total road easement requirements. These requirements are complicated by an NTEC proposal to construct a high tension powerline along that section of Gulnare Road on the northern boundary. This required a further 12 m buffer strip along the frontage of the blocks. The entry onto the properties by surveyors arose during the survey of the sewer line. Unfortunately, the private surveyors engaged by the consultant did not obtain prior approval to enter on the properties. The consultant engineer has been instructed to liaise directly with the people to rectify the damage done and it is anticipated that there will be no further problems in this area.

The road width desirable to accommodate future development has been determined as 30 m. A meeting was held on 30 July by local residents, representatives of the Department of Transport and Works and NTEC to discuss the problems. The proposed 10 m widening on the northern side is now in some doubt because of the existence of multiple water services and a recently installed Telecom cable. Widening on the southern side is complicated by the proximity of dwellings and the presence of an NTEC powerline. Strong objections were raised by the residents regarding proposed sewage lagoons at the Elizabeth River. The department has agreed that it will further examine the options regarding sewage disposal. The situation is complex and requires further examination which will be completed in the next 6 weeks.

Grumman Trackers for Coastal Surveillance

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Would he advise the House if he has received recently any communication from the federal Minister for Defence regarding the possible return of the Grumman Trackers to be based in Darwin for coastal surveillance?

ANSWER

In the recent past, I have not received any formal communication from the Minister for Defence in relation to the return of the Grumman Trackers to Darwin. I have written 3 times to the Minister for Defence regarding the use of Grumman Trackers based in Darwin for coastal surveillance work. My recollection is that the last communication from the Minister for Defence advised me that the matter had been referred to the Committee on Fixed Wing Aircraft. Obviously, there is a committee on airships and balloons as well. I am still waiting for this committee to come up with some sort of response. Since the member for Nightcliff has raised the matter, I will certainly investigate it and perhaps write again to the minister.

Old Darwin Hospital Site

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

A beautiful piece of real estate remains unused in the electorate of Port Darwin. I refer to the old Darwin Hospital site. What consideration has been given to the future use of that area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Department of Health has now vacated totally the old Darwin Hospital site at the end of the Darwin peninsula. A portion of the facilities there were leased some time ago to a consortium of the YWCA and the YMCA to utilise the old nurses' accommodation on the site. Regarding the rest of the facilities on the site, I think there are a couple of temporary tenants and there are further demountables under investigation by my colleague, the Minister for Transport and Works. The future of the remaining substantial assets on the site is being determined by his department in consultation with myself. The future of the land itself has not been determined in any way. It is a very substantial portion of land and, at present, the government has no particular proposals for it.

Rehabilitation of Rum Jungle

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise on the progress of the program to rehabilitate Rum Jungle?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, because it involves Commonwealth government direct funding, the matter of Rum Jungle rehabilitation is being handled by the Co-ordinator-General who, in consultation with the Department of Mines and Energy and the Department of Transport and Works, has presented a 4-year program to the federal government through Senator Carrick, the Minister for National Development and Energy, in relation to the rehabilitation of Rum Jungle. My recollection is that the total cost of the program is in the order of $14m. In my recent visits to Canberra, I have spoken to Senator Carrick about this matter on 2 occasions. I urged on him the importance of rehabilitation work being funded by the federal government during the course of this year. Whilst no undertakings have been given, I am led to believe that at least there will be money in this year's federal budget to enable the rehabilitation program to commence.

Relocation of Leanyer Dump

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is there a proposal actively under consideration by his department for the relocation of Leanyer dump?

ANSWER

No.

Health Clinic Services at Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for HEALTH

What is the position of the supply of health clinic services at Jabiru?

ANSWER

On 26 July, the new Community Health Centre at Jabiru become operational and from that centre will be conducted infant health, doctor consultation and first-aid services. The centre will also have 2 holding beds for observation of patients and dental services will be conducted from the new health centre by a private dentist who has taken up residence in the centre. The private dentist will be conducting work on underprivileged people in the community.

The member for Tiwi would already be aware that the centre will not open as a hospital now because of its proximity to Darwin and the very small demand that the people of Jabiru have for hospitalisation services. In fact, there is an average of 1.5 or 1.75 patients per week who require hospitalisation from Jabiru and such a very small figure cannot justify the establishment of a hospital. The furniture and equipment from the Jabiru East Health Centre is being used in the new centre which is to be manned by a full-time doctor, 4 sisters and a clerical assistant who have all transferred from Jabiru East Health Centre.

As the honourable the Chief Minister pointed out a few moments ago, discussions have been going on for some time concerning the evacuation of patients at Jabiru. Certainly, the road evacuation system is settled and it looks as though it will continue as it has in the past with the very kind and generous offices of St John. On the other hand, the department is still reviewing the best system of evacuation that can be provided by air with the resources and the technology that we have available to us.

I am particularly confident that the services that are being offered at Jabiru are excellent. The services are relevant to the state of the community at this time and, as the community expands and develops and its demographic pattern changes, there will be a need for changes in the way we deliver health care to the people. In that sense, I would ask the member for Tiwi, who has a very close interest in the matter, to keep me advised of community attitudes concerning the level of health care that we deliver so that, if changes are necessary, we can make them at a very early stage and endeavour to continue to deliver the best service possible.

Pharmacy Services to Hospitals

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Since it has been demonstrated that the supply of pharmacy services to the Tennant Creek Hospital on contract by a private pharmacist rather than from within the Health Department is costing the government an additional $1800 a month, is it still his intention to let contracts for the private supply of pharmacy services to other hospitals in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member has raised an interesting question that is already being addressed by the department and Dr Fleming. About 6 or 9 months ago, the Pharmacy Division of the department did an assessment of transferring its pharmaceutical delivery care to the private pharmacist in the town and it was estimated that there would be considerable savings in this exercise. As it has transpired, the estimates were wrong and the department has incurred a loss. For this reason, the department is reviewing its position and will be going back to the previous system of providing its own pharmacist and its own dispensing service. So far as the delivery of pharmaceutical care is required in other centres, each centre will be assessed on its own merits and any new direction that is believed necessary by the department will be based entirely upon the needs of the community and the best method of delivering care to that community.

Leanyer Dump

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has his department undertaken any investigation of the noxious smells and gases which are presently being emitted from the Leanyer dump and, if so, what are the results of this investigation?

ANSWER

I would ask the honourable member to place that question on notice. I make the point that, if honourable members can give an hour's notice of a question of that nature, it would enable people like myself to give a responsible reply.

Nathalie Gorey Pre-school

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER ofr EDUCATION

Would he undertake to keep the Nathalie Gorey name associated with the pre-school that has been moved to the new Sadadeen school complex?

ANSWER

Nathalie Gorey is the name of a person and that family would need to be involved in the use of the name. The arrangement at Nathalie Gorey Pre-school has always been that of a trust fund which was set up to provide materials for the pre-school. Needless to say, it would be quite improper for the minister of his own motion to transfer those trust funds to another building. Nonetheless, the Gorey family have consented to the continuation of the name at the new Sadadeen pre-school. Indeed, I believe a sign to that effect is being erected at the premises at this time.

Transfer of Alice Springs Policemen

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Were the 14 policemen who are to be compulsorily transferred from Alice Springs given assurances last year that such action would not be taken?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this is an interesting question because presumably the honourable member for Nhulunbuy, who is shadow spokesman on police affairs, has obviously not spoken to the police concerned but has taken advice and asked this question as a result of simply reading misleading reports in the media. No policeman in Alice Springs is being compulsorily transferred and certainly not 14 policemen.

The story in fact is this. Last year, the Police Commissioner issued a circular advising members of the police force that, in their own interests and in the interests of their careers developing satisfactorily, they should seek from time to time to move around in the force to gain better experience and to become generally more experienced policemen. Recently, the Assistant Commissioner in Alice Springs issued a circular to a number of police officers who have been in their current positions for many years advising them that it is in their own interests to seek a transfer to another position. That position might well be in Alice Springs if they chose to seek it. It could certainly be in the Southern Division. There has been no compulsory transfer of anyone.

Two circulars have been sent out by the commissioner and by an assistant commissioner. The first was a general circular and the second was a more specific circular advising police who have been in the one position for quite some time that it is in their interests to seek to develop their careers by moving into other positions to gain greater experience. All that has been said is that, if moves are not made within a reasonable time by these various policemen who have been in the one position for a considerable time, then the assistant commissioner and the commissioner may well have to review the position. As far as anyone being compulsorily transferred, they have been given counselling by their superiors as is the responsibility of their superiors who want to see them advance in the force rather than stultify in the one position.

Darwin Water Supply

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

A large percentage of water disappears between the Darwin River Dam and Darwin. This percentage is as high as 20%. Is he aware of this wastage and, if so, what steps have been taken to track down this phamtom water?

ANSWER

There is a certain amount of waste in the area that the member refers to. At the moment, the Water Division is investigating. I hope to have a report by mid-September regarding that particular problem.

ADMA Northern Grain Receival Depot

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Will the northern grain receival depot for ADMA be located at Adelaide River?

ANSWER

The board of the corporation is currently looking at this question. I believe that it proposes to make a recommendation towards the end of the month. Certainly Adelaide River has been considered as a logical site but some believe that the facilities should be located right amongst the farmers themselves.

Tenders For Demolition of Stuart Building

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that John Holland and Whelan the Wrecker put in tenders for the demolition of the Stuart Building? Is it also a fact that John Holland was successful over Whelan the Wrecker on the basis of being granted a 5% local industry preference? Is it also a fact that John Holland has subsequently subcontracted the job to Whelan the Wrecker?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer to the honourable member's 3 questions is yes.

BTB Campaign

Mr VALE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he advise the outcome of discussions at the recent Australian Agricultural Council on the future course of the BTB campaign in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it was a long way to go for a meeting, but our discussions were very fruitful. We received strong support from the Standing Committee and the Australian Agricultural Council. As a result of the initiatives taken by the Northern Territory, a detailed case will be finalised, in consultation with Western Australia and Queensland, as a matter of urgency and presented to the council in an out-of-term meeting towards the end of this year. The Northern Territory has been successful in obtaining from the Standing Committee on Agriculture a sympathetic understanding of the problems being experienced in northern Australia in implementing the BTB eradication campaign. The attitude of the council at the meeting in New Zealand was a great deal more sympathetic and understanding than at previous meetings. The delegation argued strongly for an extension of the taxation concessions beyond 1984 to 1992, the immediate increase in compensation for tuberculosis reactors to 75%, the introduction of special holding facilities and other capital assistance.

Housing Commission Loan Statistics

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer him to his answer to question on notice number 708 in which he said the number of applications received for Northern Territory Housing Commission loans was 799 and the number of applications approved was 488. I also refer him to his subsequent disputation of those figures. Why were such false figures provided in answer to a question placed on notice in this Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have a string of figures before me at present to answer the honourable member's question in detail. I can indicate that what has been recorded in the past by the Housing Commission under the heading of applications for loans were also applications for a statement of eligibility for a loan. Members will be aware that the first approach to the Housing Commission when a person is trying to establish whether or not he is in a position to buy a home in the Northern Territory is to establish his eligibility for the Northern Territory loan which has a number of criteria related to it. Anyone who approached the Housing Commission and gave particulars of his income etc was given a document which in many cases said he was eligible for a loan of X dollars and the repayments would be X dollars. The person could then go away and decide whether or not he could afford to purchase a home or to have a home built. He could establish from that document exactly what bracket he was in as far as the market was concerned.

Many of those people do come back to complete further documentation to apply for a loan from the Housing Commission, which action required of course details of the house and land to be purchased, its price and the contract for the construction of the house on that land. However, many people do not come back. They might find that they cannot affaord the necessary deposit, they cannot raise the funds additional to the government's loan which may be required for their bracket or they cannot find a suitable property on the market. Whatever the reason, there are many applicants who do not come back.

Unfortunately, the member for MacDonnell just grasped the figures that were presented to him in the question on notice that he refers to and claimed that the difference between applicants and loans approved obviously had to be loans rejected. He did not consider that there might be a batch of loans on hand, which of course there is at any given time. In subsequent releases on the subject, I indicated that there were in fact 56 loans on hand and that the loans take several weeks to process. That is not unusual. I will have to look again in Hansard at the actual question the member put to me and see if there is further information required to be provided to him.

Overpass for Darwin High School

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Since the government has provided a pedestrian overpass to enable the children of the northern suburbs to cross the road to play safely in the water gardens, will the government provide a similar overpass to enable the children of the inner suburbs to get safely to high school?

ANSWER

I presume that the honourable member for Fannie Bay is referring to an overpass for the Darwin High School students and St Johns College. When we first completed the overpass on Bagot Road, traffic studies indicated that there was no need for an overpass for Darwin High School. Prior to the completion of the overpass, traffic banked up along East Point Road as far as the old Fannie Bay Gaol. Since December last year, this has not occurred to the same extent and, until such time as it is warranted, I have no intention of proceeding with an overpass in that area.

Palmerston Area - Garbage Disposal

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Is it a fact that garbage from the Palmerston area will go to Leanyer dump and not into a dump established at Palmerston?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, not necessarily. There are quite a number of users of the Leanyer dump who live outside the municipality of Darwin although the dump is operated and run by the Darwin City Council. To compensate the council for this use by people who are not rate-paying residents of Darwin, the government makes an ex gratia payment to the council each year. If the very small initial population of Palmerston in the early period had to use Leanyer dump, or whatever major dump Darwin has in the future, I do not see that as a terrible thing.

Officers of the Palmerston Development Authority tell me that presently they are examining 2 sites as potential interim refuse disposal sites within the boundaries of Palmerston. Whilst these would not have a long life, such use could contribute to small reclamation projects and improve the land for other purposes. A firm has been engaged as a consultant to look at long-term requirements and suitable areas in Palmerston for refuse disposal, at first I wondered if we should go to the expense of engaging consultants to investigate sites for garbage disposal. However, whilst Palmerston may be a couple of kilometres from the banks of the Elizabeth River, any of the potential areas that could be used as dumps clearly border on mangrove areas which exist in the area. Therefore, there is some sensitivity about the question and we should investigate it properly. To answer the honourable member's question, we may not use Leanyer dump for Palmerston residents in the early stages, but the option has not been ruled out totally.

Assistance from Singapore for Rice Growing

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has the Northern Territory government been offered financial and technical assistance by the Singapore government or a private organisation based in Singapore to promote rice growing in the Northern Territory? If so, what were the terms of the offer and what was the response of the government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of any offer from Singapore-based interests. We have liaised with people in the Philippines for quite some time but, apart from that, I am not aware of any other consultations.

Caretaker for Malak Pre-school

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Recently he has received representation from the Malak Pre-school Association concerning incidents of breaking and entering the school. Has he made a decision, as a result of those representations, to place a resident caretaker at the school?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am aware of concern in the area. I will have the subject investigated and inform the honourable member later in the sittings.

Bulletin Article on Roxby Downs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is he aware of an article in the Bulletin of 8 August which claims that linear methods were used on Roxby Downs some 300 m below the surface? Is he also aware that the article predicts that an 80 km diameter area in the Harts Range region is worthy of exploration on the same linear predictions? Would he, therefore, bring the article to his department's attention for consideration and to that of mining interests who may wish to explore the region further?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am grateful that the honourable member raised this question. It had escaped my notice and, until it was raised with officers of the department, it had escaped theirs. The information surrounding this is of interest to all members. The study of lineaments, which are often evident on aerial photographs or at least Landsat images, is an important tool for company geologists, government and university personnel. It is one of the more recent tools of exploration to become available. Many major mineral deposits have a close, spacial relationship with such linear features and Roxby Downs is one such case. Whether or not the lineaments have played a direct role in the mineralising processes is often open to debate. The pros and cons of this debate constitute an ongoing theme in geological literature. In many instances, the lineaments appear to represent major faults or factors in the earth's crust which probably have acted as conduits for mineralising fluids. Generally speaking, lineament studies must be considered in conjunction with other avenues of geological, geochemical and geophysical investigations when assessing the mineral potential of any area. It is interesting that the company which used this to its great advantage at Roxby Downs is one of the most successful exploration companies in Australia if the premise is accepted that tonnage is really the measure of a company's success in exploration. Certainly, Western Mining has tonnage. I think the concept should be pursued more closely by our own people and our own exploration companies and I will be bringing it to their attention.

Housing Commission Loan Applications

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer him to the answer to my previous question in which he said that many people approaching the Housing Commission for assessment of eligibility did not in fact follow through their applications. Is he monitoring the fate of those people who do not follow through?

ANSWER

As I indicated in my earlier reply, we really have no idea why people do not come back and make further applications although we can reasonably assume why a number of them do not. At that stage, it is a matter of establishing exactly what their entitlement is under the Home Loans Scheme. As members know there are about 10 categories of income eligibility as well as requirements concerning ownership of land and former activity in the Northern Territory. It is quite unreasonable for the government to be expected to follow up every person who does not come back. Some of them would have travelled interstate while others would have decided not to proceed with an application for a whole range of personal reasons. I do not see that that is of concern. The important thing is that the government loans scheme is there for them if they want to come back. It has helped an enormous number of people in the Northern Territory to date. Something like $76m has gone into the scheme since October 1978 when it was introduced by the government. There has not been a single applicant who has been rejected for want of funds through the scheme.

The member made some criticism in the press that we did not use all the money that we had allocated last year for this scheme. Of course, government estimates at the beginning of a year in the Appropriation Bill are exactly that: estimates of expenditure. To a degree, we are gazing into a crystal ball. Most figures in a budget alter during the course of a year either through overexpenditure or underexpenditure for a very wide range of good reasons. Again this year, we will have to assess how many loans we are likely to make and what level those loans are likely to be. It will be an estimate and no doubt it will not be accurate. By the end of the year, adjustments will have to be made. The important point is that every eligible person who came to the government for a loan was given a loan if he was prepared to proceed with it. There was no holding back whatsoever of a single applicant for want of funds. The view that people have been disadvantaged by the government's actions is nonsense.

Vacancy on Jabiru Town Advisory Council

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the recent resignation from the Jabiru Town Advisory Council, can the Chief Minister tell me when a declaration will be made as to the person who will fill that vacancy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I thank the member for Tiwi for raising that question. I spoke to Mr Ray McHenry regarding the matter last night because I observed that there was one member short at the meeting of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council. He informed me that the provisions of the legislation that we passed here not so long ago provided that the person who was the next most successful at the recent election would fill any vacancy. The vacancy was created by the routine transfer of a Department of Health employee. The person next in the line was Mr Norbert Olaf Detlef Tenthy who is a sergeant of police at Jabiru. I hope that my recollection in that regard is correct. In any event, it appears that the person next in line at the election will fill the vacancy. The only political aspect of the transfer of the doctor from Jabiru is that people sought to make it political. I am assured by the Secretary of the Department of Health that it is a perfectly routine transfer according to the system that he normally operates within his department. This transfer was sought to be brought into the political arena to attempt to have the transfer revoked.

There are 2 things which I hope we as a government will not interfere with in any sense. One is the Housing Commission housing lists which must have a certain inviolability about them. If there are to be people who are pushed up the public housing list, then they must go through the committee that provides the only avenue of appeal. The other area where I certainly would not want to become involved or want any of my ministers to become involved would be in attempting to override public service decisions on the transfer of personnel. I think those 2 matters are subjects about which there must be certainty in the minds of the public. People who have their names on a housing list must know that there will not be political interference to put people higher up the list who might bring pressure to bear on ministers. It is also for the protection of the ministers themselves because, if it is known that by putting pressure on a minister you can get yourself higher up the housing list, then it will invite hundreds of people to put pressure on. We just could not operate the system in that way. Likewise, a transfer notice must be complied with and no one has been able to show that this doctor was not transferred in accordance with the usual practice and procedure of the Department of Health. Remarks were made that apparently the Chief Minister ordered his transfer. I am afraid I cannot even remember the good doctor's name so I could not have ordered his transfer.

Subdivision Conditions

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When permission is granted to a developer to open up a new subdivision, the developer has to agree to certain conditions imposed by the Northern Territory Planning Authority in the instrument of determination. Could he advise who has the ultimate responsibility of ensuring that these conditions are complied with before the blocks are available for sale to purchasers?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, before the Registrar-General is prepared to register titles for those blocks so that people can purchase them, he obtains a certificate from the Lands Branch and from the Surveyor-General that the works have been carried out in accordance with the requirements of the various authorities. This system is aimed at preventing persons subdividing land that has not been serviced in accordance with the conditions of approval that were granted.

Education of Children from Isolated Areas

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is the government considering any proposal to provide for the primary and secondary school of the Territory's isolated schoolchildren by assisting with the provision of facilities in Darwin similar to those that were formerly provided by Carpentaria College?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member would be well aware of the program throughout the Northern Territory to provide assistance to isolated children. As for the possibility of doing anything along the lines previously provided by Carpentaria College, the answer is no. It is not currently anticipated that that is the best direction in which to move. Mr Speaker, the schools of the air are based in Katherine and Alice Springs. They seem to be the 2 centres which service the rural district of the Northern Territory and it would seem to me to be proper to develop the system with facilities which are already in those 2 centres and to improve them rather than completely re-establish a replacement system in Darwin similar to that of the old Carpentaria College model.

Yulara Tourist Village

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

How many people or companies have approached the Northern Territory Development Corporation with regard to taking up units when they are completed at the Yulara Tourist Village?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member means the Conservation Commission which is actually handling the project rather than the Northern Territory Development Corporation. I am not aware, although no doubt I could find out, of the exact number of people who have approached the Conservation Commission expressing an interest in purchasing any of the various components of the Yulara project. These include 2 hotels, a tavern, supermarket, various speciality shops and other things. In July, I was concerned to learn from the Conservation Commission that a relatively small number of Territory contractors had registered their interest in being involved in the construction of Yulara. Certainly, we are all Australians and we must see that the government administers its contract so that there is no disadvantage to contractors outside the Territory but wherever possible, we must advantage people who are established in the Territory in the hope that they will provide employment.

I must confess that I have not examined the matter in detail but prima facie it appears to me that a construction firm in Darwin has been guilty of a rather cynical misuse of the local preference clause in respect of the demolition of a certain building not far from the precincts of this Assembly. An examination of this particular misuse of the local preference could result in what I would regard as a grave detriment to the total construction industry: the abolition of such preference. If it is to be misused in that fashion, we must have as our paramount consideration the taxpayer's dollar. We are not interested particularly in just going through a middleman to get at the action. It appears to me that this is what may well have happened in that case and I have asked the Minister for Transport and Works to report to me on the matter so that, if necessary, the whole business can be brought before Cabinet for review.

As a general principle, this government wants to support Territory contractors, subcontractors and suppliers. Because I noticed that a relatively small number of Territory contractors had registered, I thought it wise to bring the matter to the notice of the Master Builders Association. Once the registration process had closed, no doubt some of these contractors would wake up and come crying at a later stage when they saw that someone else had won a juicy contract that they could not even tender for because they were not registered. I am satisfied that the Masters Builders Association has brought the matter forcefully to the notice of its members and also sought publicity in an attempt to do this. It is hoped that there will be considerable use of Territory subcontractors and suppliers by any southern companies that do gain contracts here.

I would like to say something about some of our local contracting firms, some of whom seek to avail themselves of our local preference clause. I had better not make too much of that because I believe the local preference clause has only had to be availed of about half a dozen times in almost as many years. These local firms, when they get the contracts from the government, often subcontract to and buy their supplies from southerners to save a few dollars and to make a bigger profit on the contract. We have examined the legalities of having some sort of requirement in the contract for the use of local subcontractors and suppliers wherever possible but I am advised that it is simply not practical to frame a clause which will cover the situation. All you could have would be a sort of pious statement of policy waffle which would not be binding on anyone and it is pointless putting a clause like that in what is intended to be a binding contract.

However, everyone knows the government's policy. It is the policy of this Assembly. Certainly, local firms must be competitive which is something that has to be hammered home too because they cannot just sit on their butts behind a desk in Darwin and be non-competitive and expect to get the work. They must be competitive. At the same time, local contractors, certainly when dealing with government contracts, should be looking to give some sort of preference to local subcontractors and suppliers. Especially at this time, when the economic climate around Australia is tough, it is necessary that as Territorians we all hang together for survival and that we try to keep the dollars circulating as much as possible in the Territory and maintain a maximum of Territory employment.

I thank the honourable member for Port Darwin for asking me this question. I have certainly roamed beyond the parameters of the question that he asked. I was concerned that Territory contractors had not registered in any great numbers - at the most there were 3 or 4 - for the Yulara project. I hope that others have availed themselves of the opportunity to do that. I hope that no company comes crying to me in 12 or 18 months when it finds that a southerner has walked away with the contract.

Contract for Housing in Brunei

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Honourable members would recall the Chief Minister advised this Assembly of what appeared to be an extremely promising contract - I think it was in Brunei - for a substantial order for prefabricated houses. Could he advise if there has been any followup action on that?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, whilst I was in Singapore or Kuala Lumpur a few months ago, I ran into someone from Brunei who passed this information to me. I phoned the information back to the Northern Territory Development Corporation. I also asked that the Master Builders Association be informed. I believe that there was some publicity given to this matter in my absence. The contract was for 3000 housing units in Brunei. Of course there would be absolutely no question that the Brunei Government with its massive financial reserves could afford to meet such a contract. In any event, I believe that the winning of such a contract by the Northern Territory would have been of tremendous assistance in developing shipping and barge services between northern Australia and South-east Asia, in particular Brunei but possibly also Singapore.

I am not aware whether there has been any consortium of Territory companies formed to bid for this contract because I have not followed it up. I do not really consider it my job to nursemaid the construction industry to that extent. It must be given the opportunities and that is where my job stops. I hope there has been because I foresaw that perhaps the job would be too big for an individual company, but it could be a good one for a combination of them, perhaps to work in with one of our local shipping companies such as V.B. Perkins. I hope that that sort of thing has happened. However, there is one thing that I do know. I was approached last week for a letter of introduction to people in Brunei by White Industries which is doing the Yulara project and is interested in other projects in Darwin. It is constructing the casino. I understand that Whites were going to Brunei to investigate the situation and to bid for the contract. I guess that Whites are as well established in the Northern Territory as other companies such as John Holland which we regard as local. Therefore, I do know of that interest but that is the only interest of which I am aware.

Gunn Point Recreational Plan

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer yet again to public access for recreational purposes to the Gunn Point area. In December and May, the Chief Minister advised of a second draft of a recreational plan for the area being provided by the Conservation Commission. Is such a plan ready and, if so, when will he table the plan for public discussion?

ANSWER

I will read this briefing note that I received on the matter from the Conservation Commission which I think goes at least some of the way to answering her concerns.

Development for recreation at Gunn Point is proceeding on a staged program. Unimpeded access to the beaches has been provided and a toilet block has been constructed at the main beach. Maintenance of the toilets, beach areas and swimming areas is being carried out by Gunn Point Prison Farm. The government is soon to consider a 3-year development program to enhance the recreation opportunities of the peninsula. The main points in this program are the development of camping grounds with ablution facilities near the beach, improved access by road, construction of boat ramps to allow fishermen to use the waters of the area, the development of picnic spots with barbecues, tables and so on to cater for the increasing number of day trippers, and a beach protection program similar to that carried out on Casuarina Beach. The Conservation Commission expects development to keep pace with the growing demand for recreation outlets near Darwin and it anticipates that, in the future, Gunn Point will be a prime recreation asset for the people of Darwin and for visitors.

Mr Speaker, we saw a proposal in Cabinet 2 months ago now. We made some alterations to it and referred it back to the Conservation Commission. It certainly included a 3-year or even a 4-year program at that time. As I recall, we asked the Conservation Commission to telescope the timeframe for the program. From memory, we asked it to complete a road - I think it was intended to be built in a couple of years - within the next financial year. This has to be taken to some extent with a grain of salt and not as gospel because this was a while ago. I cannot remember everything absolutely. I do know that we sped up the program and, as soon as we have a final document from the Conservation Commission, I will be more than happy to make it available to honourable members.

Federal Budget Health Grant

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware that funding for the health grant in last night's federal budget showed a reduction from $26m to $23m? What does the minister see as the implications for the Territory health system of such a reduction in funding?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to put that question on notice. The information is about 12 hours old. In fact, the matter will be addressed in our own budget in the next few days. The answers that she is looking for will be catered for quite adequately at that time.

Palm Valley Gas Pipeline

Mr VALE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Can he advise who is the successful tenderer for the Palm Valley to Alice Springs gas pipeline?

ANSWER

The government has decided to recall tenders for this project for several reasons. The principal reason is that negotiations with the Central Land Council to obtain agreement for an easement for the pipeline have been protracted and cannot now be finalised until at least the end of August. Negotiations with the 2 lowest tenderers have demonstrated that firm financing commitments, which were claimed, do not exist. Validity dates for all current tenders expire today. The recently announced depreciation allowances which the Commonwealth has introduced could provide for more attractive tenders to be received. The government will be moving quickly to call new tenders at the earliest possible date.

Sanderson High School

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

When does he expect that the construction of the Sanderson High School will be commenced?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will advise the honourable member later.

Fire Prevention and Control in the Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Could the Chief Minister give me results from the meetings that were held in the rural area regarding fire prevention and control?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this is an interesting question from the honourable member for Tiwi. By saying that, I do not imply that her other questions are not interesting also. The bushfire meetings of which she speaks were regarded by the Conservation Commission as being reasonably successful. It was a bit disappointed at the level of attendance by people at some of the meetings. That is what it said in its briefing to me. What was not in the briefing was that the advertisements for the first meeting appeared on a Friday and the meeting was held on a Monday. Since this is a relatively small place, the minister sometimes notices things like that. There were 5 meetings which were scattered around the rural area and people did have an opportunity to attend a meeting if they really wanted to. The attendance varied but was not as high as expected. They were considered to be successful because a full spectrum of views of the community were presented and discussed. A consolidated report on the outcome of the meeting is currently being compiled by the Conservation Commission for further consideration. It will prepare a draft fire control policy for submission to Cabinet. Cabinet will give tentative approval to that policy and will then bring it to this Assembly for debate. It can be debated and any useful suggestions can perhaps be incorporated in the further work that the Conservation Commission will do on it before it is finally approved by Cabinet and promulgated.

I noticed that Trees, an organisation which I support, collected signatures on a petition at the Darwin Garden Fair again this year. It asked me to present the petition on its behalf, which I was pleased to do. I might say that the initiative of the Conservation Commission and other organs of the government is certainly being helped by the work of the Trees organisation. During the past year, a number of meetings were held between representatives of Trees, government and, I think, local government.

In addition, in the petition yesterday, Trees asked for protection of rain forest areas. This is a matter that the Conservation Commission is concerned with. It has a number of rain forest areas at least gazetted at the present time and a couple more are planned for gazettal in the near future. I understand that Holmes Jungle is one area that will shortly come before Cabinet for consideration. One of the problems is feral animals. On that point, this government several years ago arranged for consideration of this problem by the Feral Animals Inquiry. The report of that inquiry was tabled in this Assembly and it was commended by all members. Since then, over a period of 3 years, funds have been allocated to the Feral Animals Committee which has been established within government to plan for the eradication or at least the control of feral animals. I understand that the priorities that have been given have accorded buffaloes top priority with feral pigs perhaps coming second. At the last sittings, I reported to this Assembly by way of a statement in relation to some of the work that has been going on in respect of buffaloes. Later in the sittings, I hope to circulate some technical documents on buffalo population for the information of members. I had a look at them over the weekend. I think some members at least will be interested. I am certain the honourable member for Tiwi will be interested. I hope to be able to circulate these documents when I receive enough copies later in the sittings.

Mr Speaker, the matter of fire control in the Territory is dear to my heart. It has been said to me that, if we were to practise fire control in the Territory as it is practised in Victoria, it would cost us not millions but almost billions annually. Therefore, we have to come to some modus operandi which is a compromise between our present situation and the level of fire control that can be exercised in smaller and more densely populated areas. It is towards that end that we have directed the efforts of the Conservation Commission.

Alleged Illegal Fishing in Keep River Area

Mrs LAWEIE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Has he yet determined whether charges will be laid against 3 Western Australians regarding alleged illegal fishing activities in the Keep River area on 3 and 4 July?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I received a further report in relation to that matter yesterday. Fairly detailed preliminary inquiries have been carried out by the police. In that regard, a superintendent was dispatched to Western Australia to accumulate such evidence as could be obtained at this stage. As a result, a report was made to me which I referrred to the Solicitor-General. I have not yet received any final advising from the Solicitor-General as to whether any charges may be laid and, if so, the nature of those charges. The Solicitor-General could come back and say that perhaps other efforts should be directed towards obtaining evidence in other particular areas. That may be his advice. If the evidence is procurable by the police, then they will be directed to do that. I am not, therefore, in a position to say at this stage what charges, if any, will be laid against the people referred to by the member for Nightcliff.

South Australian Public Examinations Board

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

South Australia proposes to change the structure and functions of its statutory board for public examinations in a draft bill for the establishment of a public exmainations authority. If such a bill were passed by the South Australian government, would there be any diminution of standard particularly in respect of those Northern Territory students wishing to undertake tertiary or university studies?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is difficult to answer the question with a great deal of certainty at this stage. For the information of members, the arrangement is that, as a result of the Keeves Report commissioned by the South Australian Minister for Education, the functions of the present Public Examinations Board are to be absorbed into a new board called the public examinations authority. Members would be well aware that the present system of matriculation is designed for one purpose and one purpose only: to classify people in order of merit for entry into university. Over the last few years, particularly in the Northern Territory, we have seen a movement towards course structures designed more particularly for the broader community, not just those courses required for entry into university.

With this movement away from a strict line of learning designed for university entrance, we also find the lack of a provision of an assessment for those students who decided to do 12 years of schooling but do not necessarily wish to enter tertiary education. The idea of the public examination authority is to give accreditation and certification for a broader range of subjects. The intention most certainly is not to lower the standards of academic achievement for those students who do not wish to enter university. The university authority will be well represented on the public examinations authority, as will a wide range of people from other disciplines in education including employer and employee representatives.

I might say that we intend staying with South Australia by way of purchasing, if you like, right of entry into its scheme. Nonetheless, it should provide for not only a wider range of accreditation but an encouragement of a wider range of more relevant courses being taught at the more senior levels of our high schools. Territory parents and students can rest assured that, on my understanding of the matter - and I am in continual touch with the minister's office in South Australia - if this legislation is enacted, there will be no lowering of standards for the purpose of entry into university. Rather, we would hope to see a raising of standards in areas which are not related to the university.

Mr Speaker, the programs for matriculation have now been set for the school year 1983-84. No matter what happens in the South Australian Parliament for this year and next year, it is unlikely that there will be any change in the method of assessment of accreditation of Year 12 students. Perhaps the best thing I can do is to undertake to have distributed to honorable members the very detailed press release put out by the Honourable Harold Allison, the South Australian Minister for Education, later during the course of the sittings. Indeed, Mr Speaker, if the staff is listening to the broadcast system that you have made available perhaps photocopies could be prepared this morning and we will have them distributed shortly after lunch.

ADMA Grain Receival Depots

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is it still the intention of the government as previously stated to hand over the grain receival depots now being established by ADMA to farmers to be operated by them?

ANSWER

The final details of this particular situation have not been decided. Firstly, we must select a site for the receival depot. When the board finalises that, those sorts of management arrangements could then be struck

Specialist Medical Staff in Health Department

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of the ongoing negotiations for the transfer of Health Department specialist doctors to private practice and on sessional hospital arrangements, how many full-time specialist positions does the Health Department intend to retain at Darwin and Alice Springs Hospitals?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would be happy to obtain that information for the honourable member if she places the question on notice.

Subdivision in the Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

When will the moratorium on subdivision down to 5 acres in the rural area be lifted?

ANSWER

Late last year, the Department of Transport and Works, through its Water Division, undertook a survey of the rural area's water supply. At that time, there was some concern that the aquifer was being polluted by various landowners in that area through substandard bore equipment that was being installed or maintained. That study is not expected to be finalised until late September. Once that information is available, I will be passing it on to the Cabinet and Cabinet will decide what further arrangements should be made.

Alice Springs Police - Compensation for Transfer

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Will those Alice Springs policemen who have accepted long-term financial commitments in Alice Springs as a result of having been told that they will not be compulsorily transferred receive any compensation if they are transferred other than by application?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am informed by the Commissioner of Police that he has not told any police that they will not be compulsorily transferred.

Nightcliff Dental Clinic

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it still his intention to close the Nightcliff Dental Clinic and, if so, is he aware that that will result in a reduction of available Department of Health dentists in the northern suburbs from 5 to 2?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I advised the honourable member in March that we would be transferring the Nightcliff centre to the new building near Casuarina Shopping Centre where both the Sanderson and the Nightcliff clinics would be amalgamated. I am not sure that the honourable member's statement is true that the number of dentists in that region will be reduced. I will investigate it and respond to her later.

Prison Farm in Central Australia

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Will the minister advise the progress of negotiations on acquiring suitable land for a prison farm in Central Australia? Will he consider compulsory acquisition of land should such negotiations falter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would rather not give the name of the properties in respect of which negotiations are going on at the moment but I would be more than happy to inform the opposition spokesman of the identity of those places privately. On a property at the moment, a drilling project is being undertaken to find suitable and potable water. We simply cannot establish a prison farm without there being adequate water supplies. A number of pastoralists have been extremely cooperative and it is anticipated that we will be in a position to commence the construction of a prison farm and have it operating within the course of this financial year. The fundamental task is to find a reasonable water supply to establish the prison farm. Once that is done, I think we can move very quickly.

Dress Standards at Casinos

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

The standard of dress to enter the casinos in Darwin and Alice Springs has recently been reviewed by Federal Hotels. Has the government been monitoring the standard of dress at the casinos, is it happy with the standard of dress at casinos and will the minister assure me that the standard of dress to enter both casinos will remain high?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this matter is the government's business because it is set down in our laws as part of the many, varied and detailed controls that the government may exercise in relation to casinos in the Northern Territory. As I have stated before, I think that industry is possibly more controlled than any other in the Territory. Mr Speaker, the subject of dress standards for casinos in the Territory will perhaps be one of public debate forever. It has certainly been constant since we have had casinos in the Territory. Opinion on what is an acceptable standard of dress varies with almost the number of people you can ask on the subject and, for that reason, I can see an ongoing problem.

The government does not monitor dress standards in the casino specifically to the point where government inspectors - who of course are in all casinos - pay particular regard to this matter by way of recording the number of persons they see dressed to a good standard or otherwise. It is an area which can be monitored to some degree through personal contact. I receive advice from various people on the subject, as do other ministers, and no doubt all members of the Assembly. From one's own occasional visits to the casino, some idea can be obtained fairly quickly as to how the dress standards are policed and whether they are to one's particular liking.

The difficulty faced over the past couple of years has been over the interpretation of what are jeans. The earlier dress standards forbade jeans being worn in a casino. With the variety of designs and materials on the markets these days, it is sometimes very difficult and one can quickly get into an argument about what jeans are. Federal Hotels asked me if I would agree to their changing the dress standard to place primary emphasis on neat dress. Although the blue denim type jeans technically are still excluded there are what might be called dress jeans which most people would find acceptable in casinos. The recent changes to the standards were designed to accommodate that dress jeans could be allowed but not ordinary jeans. It will not solve all the problems because we are now having a debate on what are dress jeans. The government does take an interest in this matter.

As minister responsible, I believe that it is important that we keep a certain level of dress standards in casinos in the Northern Territory. They are facilities that were put there primarily to add to the tourist attractions in the Northern Territory and they are still there for that very purpose. They are also very great employment creators for the Territory and that has been demonstrated. However, we want visitors to the Territory to be attracted to casinos and to feel that, when they go to casinos, they will be in an atmosphere which is appropriate to casinos. Whilst we will continue to keep an eye on the situation as distinct from positive bureaucratic monitoring, we will try to keep as high a standard as possible. The accent these days will be on neat attire rather than specifically on the type or design of material.

Housing for Teachers

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

He would be aware of the public concern and the concern of organisations such as the Teachers Federation and COGSO with the continuing problem of teacher housing. I refer the minister to his press release of 26 July on employment opportunities and recruitment for the Northern Territory Teaching Service. With this expanding employment and recruitment that is being carried out, what steps are being taken by the minister to ensure that these recruits will be adequately housed?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, really I do not see the relevance between a guaranteed employment scheme through the Darwin Community College and housing. I do not see the connection at all. If we are to recruit for teachers, then the housing problem exists in respect of each of those teachers whether from local or interstate schools. One would think that at least in their early years and having regard to the fact that Darwin is the largest centre in the Territory, they would be likely to have a better prospect of their own accommodation than teachers we have to recruit for other places.

The government is very much aware of the problem, particularly in places such as Nhulunbuy. I believe the problem has largely been overcome in Tennant Creek. It is rapidly being overcome in Katherine. There is a difficulty remaining in Alice Springs, particularly in relation to about 4 teachers who are in Malanka. Nhulunbuy is the main problem. Personally I have had detailed negotiations recently with Nabalco Limited, with its most senior officers and members of the board and I am expecting, through the Minister for Lands and Housing, a proposition from that organisation in the near future. In Nhulunbuy, the Department of Education is purchasing 4 houses that are to be upgraded for teacher accommodation. We are hopeful of an offer from Nabalco in respect of surplus accommodation which it currently has by way of a short-term lease until such time as a longer-term solution can be found, not only in respect to teacher housing in that community, but in general government employee housing.

Development on Cox Peninsula

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In answer to a question on notice concerning the type of development envisaged on Cox Peninsula which would justify the building of the Bynoe Harbour access road, he replied that, apart from providing an upgraded road to the Belyuen community, it would assist in the increasing development of the pastoral, fishing and mining industries. I am only seeking general answers. Can he give some further details of what type of development is taking place or envisioned in the pastoral industry? Can he advise the Assembly what type of fishing development and what type of mining is taking place?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to place the question on notice.

Youth Needs in the Northern Suburbs

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

When will a committee formed at a public meeting in March to examine youth needs in the northern suburbs report back to a public meeting?

ANSWER

As I understand it, the committee was supposed to report back within 3 months. I was to attend a meeting last night with the Youth Advisory Forum and that information would have been given to me then by the delegates at that meeting. Unfortunately, I was unable to attend because of another commitment. However, I will obtain the information and provide it to the honourable member at a later date.

Old Timers' Village for Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for HEALTH

I understand the plans for the rural old timers' village have been commented on by the Minister for Community Development and the Minister for Lands and Housing and they are now with the Minister for Health. Could he give me the views of the Department of Health regarding the establishment of an old timers' village in the rural area?

ANSWER

As the honourable member said, my colleagues and I have been working for some time on a proposal for the establishment of residential accommodation for people in the rural area, particularly retired and senior citizens. It is my intention to make a ministerial statement in the second week of this sittings in relation to this matter.

Palm Leaf Beetle

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

The wet season is fast approaching. When the humidity rises, the palm leaf beetle will once again take to the skies. At what stage are tests on the virus to control the beetle and when are we likely to see the virus introduced into the Darwin area?

ANSWER

The question has taken some time to decide. We dispatched an officer to West Samoa to study the parasite that would in theory gobble up the problem.

Presently, the parasites are in quarantine in Queensland and specific tests are being undertaken on the parasites to see that they do not become themselves an unwanted problem. When that work has been finalised, we will go about getting final approval to release them in the Northern Territory.

ADAM Grain Receival Depot

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

The minister advised me yesterday that Adelaide River was being considered as a possible site for the northern grain receival depot of ADMA. As part of that proposal, would there be an upgrading of the grain receival depot that is already there or would a completely new facility be constructed?

ANSWER

The options that the honourable member refers to have been considered. It would be ultimately desirable for the township of Adelaide River if some other enterprise could be established. It would be to the commercial and economic benefit of the people in that town. Obviously, there are other realities that have to be taken into account and the decision will be taken after full consideration.

School Crossings

Mrs LAWRIE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Following the remarks I made in the adjournment last night, is he in a position to advise the Assembly who has the responsibility for the monitoring and proper ordering of school crossings?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand from my inquiries this morning that these school crossings are in fact provided by local government who also provide the flags for them. However, as a result of my discussions with the Minister for Education, the head of his department and the Acting Commission of Police, we decided that the whole matter should be looked at. If there are to be crossings, we should determine whether there should be distinctions between them. After all, it seems as though it may have led to problems in that motorists could think that they need not be careful around school crossings at all hours whereas children might think that crossings are perfectly safe to use at all times. We are arranging for a paper to be prepared after input from the relevant authorities - such as the Department of Transport and Works, the Road Safety Council, the Education Department, the police and local government - to decide whether we should persist with this concept of school crossings or indeed simply have one type of pedestrian crossing which is inviolable at all times.

Exemptions from 2 km Law in Alice Springs

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer him to an Alice Springs alderman's suggestion that the Alice Springs Town Council seek exemption under the 2 km law for 4 areas in Alice Springs and set up facilities for public drinkers. Will the government support such a proposal?

ANSWER

It is very pleasing to infer from the statement by the member for MacDonnell that he considers the 2 km legislation to be a good thing. All I can say is that I have not seen this proposal by an alderman of the Alice Springs Town Council but it is a matter for that council whether it chooses to adopt the proposal or not because the legislation of course devolves responsibility on councils to make decisions as to whether they wish to apply for these sorts of exemptions. Therefore, the ball is fairly and squarely in the court of the Alice Springs council. If, however, it would like the government to hold its hand in the matter, it only has to write to us about it and we will be happy to share such of the odium as it feels may attach to the matter.

New Darwin Airport

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the latest estimate of the commencement date for the construction of a new terminal at Darwin Airport?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this is an interesting question because, as honourable members know, the Minister for Civil Aviaition, Wal Fife, was here for the federal Cabinet meeting in June. He and I, and his predecessor, Ralph Hunt, have had lengthy correspondence on this subject and many meetings. Until the appointment of Ian Sinclair as Minister for Defence recently, it appeared as though the Royal Australian Air Force base at Darwin would be upgraded to be able to have the capacity to handle a squadron of fighters. As a consequence of this, the civil terminal would have needed to be relocated and a new civil terminal constructed on the northern side of the RAAF base adjacent to Rapid Creek, and a general aviation area would have needed to be constructed not far distant from the civil terminal.

Honourable members may recall that Wal Fife in fact invited members of the press to come with him on a tour of the RAAF base. At that time, he unveiled sketches and plans of the proposed civil terminal and general aviation area and took members of the press on a tour of the various proposed sites. Shortly before then, Ian Sinclair was appointed Minister for Defence and a review of some of the activities of the Department of Defence was undertaken. As a consequence of that review, it appears that the Northern Territory will have a considerable infusion of defence commitment.

Honourable members would have noticed that in last night's federal budget an amount of $4.18m towards the Tindal aerodrome was allocated under the heading of defence. At this stage, I dare not call it 'air base' but it appears very likely that Tindal will be upgraded and developed into quite a complex for use by the RAAF. At the same time, the Minister for Defence made it clear at his press conference a week or so ago when he had discussions with myself and the federal member, Grant Tambling, that the Darwin base would also have to be upgraded to enable it to handle RAAF fighter squadrons. I think that the new fighter is the F18 which is a very complex aircraft that requires a considerable amount of infrastructure to enable its requirements to be met. There is no doubt that Darwin RAAF base will have to be upgraded to enable it to handle these fighters. At present, a review is being undertaken which will decide exactly what infrastructure is needed and whether it will be the whole of the proposed stage 1 of the various contracts for the RAAF base before Tindal came to the forefront. Work has been halted for the time being on the civil terminal and also on the general aviation area. It may be that the whole of the south side of the complex may not be required by the RAAF. I am not able to make any commitments along those lines. Indeed, I do not really know. Obviously, the whole of the RAAF complex in Darwin is in the melting pot to the extent that what will be needed for the F18 and other aircraft using the RAAF base is being looked at again. Obviously, Darwin's requirements for an upgraded civil terminal and additional general aviation facilities are also being kept in mind.

All that would have been done this year in respect of the civil terminal was design work and a not very substantial amount of money would be required for that. I would expect the review to be completed within a couple of months and design work can then proceed after various announcements have been made and after the matter has been referred to the Parliamentary Public Works Committee. I do not think that a new civil, international terminal for Darwin is in any doubt. I think that the location of that terminal is possibly in a state of flux. There is no doubt that the federal government and the minister concerned appreciate the absolute necessity for new general aviation facilities for Darwin.

Those are the problems that are being faced at the moment, Mr Speaker. I think that the Territory over all can only gain from what is going on. Therefore, I am trying to exercise patience in this matter because I believe that the establishment by the RAAF of a major base at Tindal will be a tremendous boost not only to Katherine but also to defence in the north of Australia. It is not for me to make announcements in this regard but the plans that the RAAF certainly would like to see for Tindal would really do much to make Australians in this part of the country feel a great deal more secure. I would ask honourable members to remain patient at least for a couple of months. I hope that, within that time, the respective Ministers for Defence and Civil Aviation will be able to advise us what exactly is going on.

Assistance for Meatworks at Katherine

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has an approach been made by the company proposing to establish a second meatworks at Katherine for financial assistance from the Northern Territory Development Corporation?

ANSWER

I am not aware of any approach to establish additional meatworks in the Katherine area. I have been advised that the Urala meatworks was sold. It is being pulled down and reconstructed to make another meatworks there. I am not aware of any plans to obtain finance from any government source.

Bridging of Peel Creek

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has the government any plans for bridging Peel Creek which is crossed by Spencer Road, a gazetted road, as some 30 to 40 residents have no access to the Stuart Highway during the wet season?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of any proposal to put a bridge across Peel Creek. However, I will attempt to find out from the department and let the honourable member know today.

Subdivision at 34-mile

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I understand that there is a subdivision about to take place at the 34-mile, and there have been some hindrances either connected with subdivision and/or electricity reticulation. Could the honourable minister give me some information?

ANSWER

I am advised that there has been some difficulty in having electricity reticulated to a particular subdivision at the 34-mile area. A number of transformers had to be installed and they had considerable difficulty in properly earthing some of these. This is not an unusual problem in rural Darwin where there are technical problems with earthing electrical equipment from time to time. However, I am advised that, as of yesterday, the earthing problems were fixed. Five transformers have been installed and the completion notice for the electrical reticulation has been issued. NTEC were testing the system yesterday with a view to energising it forthwith. A couple of applications outstanding for electricity in this area are expected to be connected tomorrow.

Motor Vehicle Registration

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it not true that people resident in the Territory for 3 months are required to register their vehicles in the Territory and is it not also true that those who refuse to do so deprive the Territory of legitimate revenue? Would the honourable minister undertake to investigate, at least in a general way, the complaints of constituents of mine who, having brought such matters to the notice of the police on several occasions, have observed no tangible results?

ANSWER

The answer is yes to all questions.

TDC Loan to Tennant Creek Meatworks

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is there an outstanding loan of $1m in the Northern Territory Development Corporation for the Tennant Creek meatworks and, if so, is this loan being serviced to the satisfaction of the corporation?

ANSWER

There is a loan outstanding from the TDC to the proprietors of the Tennant Creek abattoirs. My understanding is that the loan is being serviced adequately as are most of the other loans that we have extended to the meatworks.

Standards of Service at Darwin Hostels

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Does the government intend to enforce the provisions of the tender documents covering the new management of 2 hostels in Darwin which required services to be maintained at former levels in view of clear evidence that standards in areas such as catering have diminished?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Housing Commission, which has charge of administration of the tender the honourable member refers to, has been monitoring the situation in regard to the hostels and in regard to the tender documents and their requirements. About 8 days ago, I asked for a report on whether any aspects of the tenders were being breached as far as the law was concerned and, if so, in what regard. The report that reached me following some inquiry was that the tenderers had not breached the contract at all and no action was required in that regard at that time.

Town Planning Controls for Darwin City Council

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is there a timeframe envisaged for the devolution of town planning controls for the Darwin City Council?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this is one of those questions where one can very readily be accused of passing the buck. I doubt it has a great deal to do with the minister responsible for local government. In fact, the whole operational side rests with my colleague, the Minister for Lands and Housing. I would like to state that I am reluctant to promote the cause of local government to take over the total functions of planning and building control in the municipalities. We have a relatively small population in the Northern Territory. Our population centres are very widely scattered and I believe that a continuity is required in standards and methodology in each of these areas. Previously I was Minister for Lands and Housing and I certainly was not anxious to see these functions totally handed over. As to what arrangements can be entered into by way of local government servicing some of the standard provisions which are basically under the umbrella of the responsible minister, we have not yet determined. It is on public record in many places that I am a great believer in the devolution of functions to local government. I do not believe that one should go pell-mell into devolution of functions on local government when that is not in the interests of all citizens.

Management of Territory's Prawn Resources

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

In February of this year, the government appointed a fisheries consultant whose stated function was to develop a plan to provide for the effective management of the Territory's prawn resources. Could he advise the Assembly of the progress of that study and when a report will be available to this Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to place his question on notice.

Health Services to Aboriginal Communities

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

I refer him to his suspended criticism to withdraw financial and administrative services from the locally-based health services at Papunya, Utopia and in the Pitjantjatjara homelands. Will he advise the Assembly of his intentions in this regard during these sittings?

ANSWER

The honourable member may or may not be aware that last weekend I had the opportunity to meet with the federal Ministers for Health and Aboriginal Affairs and the South Australian Minister for Health and representatives of the Western Australian government in relation to the problems of servicing Aboriginals in remote areas of central Australia. Some live on our side of the border and some live in Western Australia and South Australia. The provision of aerial medical flights, surveys and other services, such as pharmaceutical and other paramedic services, to these health groups is a total issue. It involves more than the cost of sending an aeroplane to a specific place. Let me expand that a little for the benefit of the honourable member. The department conducts remote health services in about 80 places in the Northern Territory. Two places where we do not are in central Australia. One of them is Papunya and the other is in the Pitjantjatjara homelands area in South Australia. The conduct of health services there is the prerogative of the South Australian government.

In cold hard reality, the taxpayers of the Northern Territory pay over $1m a year to hospitalise South Australians in Northern Territory hospitals and it is my view that that account should fall to South Australia. South Australia is very good to us in some senses. It takes patients from the Northern Territory and we pay for them from time to time so it is my view that, when South Australian patients come to the Northern Territory, then that account should fall to South Australia. That premise has been accepted now by the South Australian government and we are moving forward on it. But it does not stop there because we have independent health services operating in the Northern Territory, particularly in central Australia, some of which are quite removed from any influence or involvement of the Northern Territory Department of Health. This is fine because we are not in the business of competing with people who want to deliver health serivces. There is more than enough to be done without people involved in the area competing to do the things that need to be done. The Territory position was put to me when I first became responsible for health even before the executive responsibility was transferred that we should try and wind down the independent services because they had long-term difficulties that we would live to regret. My view at the time - and, in hindsight, I was wrong - was that we should let the people do their thing.

The department has compiled an information paper that I presented to the ministers on Saturday. It indicates that the independent health services per se have some difficulties that spill over to the rest of us. Let me just highlight, without putting a great deal of emphasis on it at all, the problems of Papunya. Over the last year, we have admitted to hospital in the Alice Springs area 77 children for the treatment of measles. There were many other children in the region who had measles but who did not need to be admitted to hospital. That is a matter of concern because we have vaccines today to prevent children from becoming so sick that they have to go to hospital. In central Australia, we have a situation where, of the 77 children admitted, 42 came from Papunya, 5 from the camp areas in Alice Springs and 17 came from the Pitjantjatjara homelands in South Australia. Without being emotional about the problem, it is not unreasonable to say that the hospitalisation cost of those patients would be in the order of $15 000 to $20 000. I might make the point that it is money that we could have well spent on preventative areas of health. I would rather keep the people out of the system than be spending a fortune on keeping them alive when they get into it. The reality is that, where we have a blip on the curve like that, it shows up in the Alice Springs Hospital. The paediatricians can detect if there is a problem in a community. Where that community is our responsibility, we can get in there quickly and overcome the problem that has developed, be it measles, malnutrition or whatever. In the case of the independent services, the problem is that we really do not have a capacity to become involved and prevent the people from becoming so ill as to require hospitalisation.

Mr Speaker, I have highlighted one aspect. Of course, the pain is only a small part of this whole business. The lifesaving mechanism comes at the end of all the trauma that should never have started in the first place. I guess that is what is irritating the people in the department who are really standing at the bottom of a cliff just catching people as they come over instead of building a rail around the top to stop them falling over in the first place. Let me highlight for members some of the other problems that were presented on Saturday and I might add that these were not known to me at all. The representatives from Western Australia painted a situation that happened last year in one of their small settlements in the north-east corner of the state. A baby was very ill with diarrhoea and a plane from Kalgoorlie was requested. The 2 planes at Kalgoorlie were out and were not available until the next day. We had an RFDS plane in the air that was diverted 467 miles at a cost of $15.0 a mile to the Northern Territory government. The plane landed but the people would not get on the plane because it was going to Alice Springs and not to Kalgoorlie. Our plane came back to the Territory. The next day the Western Australians sent a plane from Kalgoorlie to this settlement to pick up the baby, which was deteriorating rapidly, and another patient. On the way home, the plane crashed as a result of a storm. Members might remember the story. Two pilots and a nursing passenger were lost. An Aboriginal was picked up. The baby lived through the crash but died the next day from diarrhoea. The Western Australians feel it is past any reasonable bounds. They too are looking for a solution to the problem.

The honourable member would probably be aware of a place called Kintore which is an outstation very close to the border. I believe it is a few miles north of Docker River. Kintore is an outstation of Papunya, I believe, and there are quite a few people there. There is a body of opinion, and I will not say from where, that Kintore ought to move into Western Australia and become someone else's problem. I think that is really putting our heads in the sand and not addressing ourselves to the reality that, firstly, there is no such thing as an independent service because we all rely on someone else. Secondly, if people are socially or geographically related to Alice Springs, Katherine or anywhere else, then we ought to devise a mechanism, setting aside state boundaries, to deliver care to the people and apportion the responsibility to the parties that are concerned on the basis of the responsibility that is involved.

This whole area is a minefield. Many people are now trying to work their way through it to devolve a system of delivery that will provide the best level of care and be in the best interests of the whole community. If the honourable member is interested, I would appreciate him giving me his views on where we are going. At the moment, a fair mix of people is involved. Three state governments and 2 federal departments are directly involved plus services such as the RFDS in Western Australia and the RFDS and St John Ambulance in the Territory.

I would like to advise the honourable member that the plane rides to which he alluded were but a very small part of the whole equation. For the time being, until the ministers meeting in October, we will continue our aerial evacuation system. I cannot give him any undertaking that it will continue after October. If the meeting breaks down in October, that will be sad and we will have to get together and find a way around any problems that occur, but it is my hope ...

Mr B. Collins: Have you read any good books lately?

Mr TUXWORTH: I am sorry that the honourable Leader of the Opposition finds the problem so boring, Mr Speaker. Really it is a very difficult one. It will take the resolve of many people to make it work.

Katherine High School

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In view of the fact that in the first half of this year there was a staff turnover of 13 at the Katherine High School to the great concern of parents, has the minister or his department investigated the reasons for these numerous resignations?

ANSWER

This has been a matter of considerable concern to the school and to parents and students. Instability as the result of rapid turnover of staff at any school is a highly undesirable thing. Mr Speaker, I think you were involved in the rather detailed discussions that the commissioner and the secretary of the department had with the school council and the principal. I cannot say that any definite resolution of the problem was reached at that meeting but the school council was certainly informed of the reasons. It is not a matter peculiar to Katherine; it is something we face throughout the Northern Territory, particularly with secondary schools. In far too many instances, people whom we recruit from down south are on a waiting list for a job in their home state. All too often, this information is not disclosed to the recruiting officer at the time. In fact, we are merely being used in the Northern Territory as a stopgap employment avenue. Very often, the person leaves his home address with the southern department and a job offer is subsequently made through the parents' address. When the teacher is subsequently informed of the acceptance of his job application in the southern state, which could be 6 months or 12 months or 6 weeks after coming to the Territory, the teacher quite often gives the principal of the school about 24 hours notice. He simply wanders in and gives his resignation. There is nothing that we can do about it as long as people who apply for jobs in the Northern Territory do not inform us that they are continuing applicants for jobs down south. We have 200 to 300 teachers a year who come to the Territory and leave. It is a very significant problem which will only be overcome by increasing the number of teachers who come from our own Northern Territory. It will be a long time, if ever, before we will be in a position to have sufficient locally-trained teachers to remove this problem. I agree with the people of Katherine. It is a serious problem. But I am afraid it is one that we do not have any ready answers to.

Restrictions on Access to Billabongs

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Concern has been expressed by the people of Jabiru that Island Billabong, Jabiluka Billagong, Ja Ja Billabong, Leichardt Billabong and Magela Point have been fenced off and notices erected by the NLC? Can he tell me whether these restrictions on the people of Jabiru are to continue?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, concern has been expressed we are told by the honourable member for Tiwi by people at Jabiru township that Island Billabong, Jabiluka Billabong, Ja Ja Billabong, Leichardt Billabong and Magela Point have been fenced off and notices have been erected by the Northern Land Council presumably warning against trespass. The member for Tiwi has received complaints about this action as has the Office of Aboriginal Liaison. The background is that, on 28 June 1982, Senator Bernie Kilgariff, on behalf of the Governor-General, handed over the deed of grant for 6785 ha of land at Jabiluka to Toby Kangele representing the traditional Aboriginal owners of the land. This area comprised that part of the Jabiluka project area which was recommended by the Aboriginal Land Commissioner as a result of the Alligator River Stage 2 Land Claim. A small portion of the Ja Ja project area was not recommended by the commissioner. The area granted does not represent all that part of the land claim which was recommended and a further deed of grant is likely to be handed over in due course.

The purpose of handing over part of the recommended area at that time was to formalise the right of the Northern Land Council and traditional owners to conclude negotiations with Pancontinental joint-venturers on the issue of a mining lease to the project area. The land in question - that is, the 6785 ha - is now Aboriginal land, administered by the Northern Land Council and subject to the entry provisions of the Aboriginal Land Rights Act. It also comprises a mineral lease issued by the Minister for Mines and Energy and is subject to an agreement reached between the NLC, representing the traditional owners, and the joint-venturers. The implication of the change in status of the land is that the area concerned will become subject to dual control: that imposed because it is Aboriginal land and that imposed because it is a mining lease. Department of Lands officers have identified the Jabiluka, Ja Ja and Island Billabongs - all within the area recently granted. Magela Point does not appear on the maps and cannot be identified. A Leichardt Billabong falls within Kakadu National Park and therefore it is puzzling that the NLC would be interfering with that. The explanation is that Leichardt Billabong is a local name and it is most likely that all the billabongs in Magela Point fall within the 6785 ha recently granted as Aboriginal land. My officers have been informed by the manager of the Northern Land Council that part of the agreement with the joint-venturers is that notices be placed on all tracks within the mining lease which depart from the main Oenpelli Road informing travellers that this is now Aboriginal land and departure from the main road is prohibited. There is also mention of the fenced areas in the agreement and an accompanying map shows this as being along that part of the mineral lease boundary which abuts the main Oenpelli Road and Ja Ja. This would prevent access to the area east of the road within the project area but I doubt if the billabongs are on that side as it is getting close to the escarpment. I think it could be assued that the NLC would be within the letter of the law in undertaking the work which is the subject of concern by the Jabiru residents and, no doubt, other visitors to the area.

Nevertheless, the land council indulges in double standards. It is forever preaching the need for consultation if the support of the Aboriginals is to be expected by governments but it apparently considers that the feelings of non-Aboriginals mean nothing and their support is unimportant. It is not hard to understand the reaction of the people of Jabiru who have for several years been able to relax, picnic and fish on these beautiful billabongs when they are suddenly confronted with fences and provocative notices without any prior notification or consultation. It smacks of an arrogance which is becoming increasingly evident and which is alienating reasonable people who have wanted in the past to establish good relations with their Aboriginal neighbours. The public relations aspect of this exercise seems, in my opinion, to have been very ineptly handled by the land council.

Hospital Administration

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In this Assembly some time ago, he said: 'All the chief executive officers in our hospitals are doctors. We have not had a situation in the past where a hospital was not administered by medical personnel and it would be the policy of this government to continue that practice'. Can the minister explain the Gazette notice of 30 July appointing a person who is not a medical practitioner to be in charge of Gove District Hospital and does he intend this new practice to extend to other hospitals in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

This matter falls within the prerogative of the secretary of the department. I would expect that there is an explanation. I am happy to take that up with the secretary and obtain an explanation for the honourable member.

Ablution Block for Karguru Bush Camp

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What stage has planning reached for the provision of an ablution block east of the present Karguru bush camp at Tennant Creek as agreed to by the local council and government authorities and when will the project be completed?

ANSWER

I do not have details that the honourable gentleman seeks. I will certainly obtain the information and inform him later.

Sports Complex in Katherine

Mr VALE to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can the minister give details of any proposal between the Northern Territory government and the Katherine Corporation regarding the possible purchase of a sports complex in Katherine owned by D. and K. Facaro?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was approached in February by the council to have a look at the facility built by Mr Facaro which at that time had been undergoing an unprofitable period. Mr Facaro had other businesses in the Territory and was finding it a bit hard to maintain them all. He had offered this facility to the council. At the time, the council was not really in favour of taking up the offer and of course the matter lasped. Last week, I received a representation from the Mayor of Katherine who had spoken to me and followed that up with a letter saying that the council had investigated the Facaro proposal again and now thought that it could be interested in taking over the facility if there was some government assistance in purchasing it. The Mayor of Katherine went away and she was supposed to come back to me with some final details of the cost. At that stage, it was in the order of some $700 000. She seemed to think that the figure she was putting forward might not be the correct figure, and needed a little bit more time to establish the correct figure that Mr Facaro wanted because there were building costs and some leasing costs regarding equipment within the building. She asked me whether the Northern Territory government would be interested in providing some financial assistance, presumably on a 2 to 1 basis. I told her at the time that I would have to wait until she confirmed the figure Facaro wanted and, once we had the established figure, I would only be too pleased to discuss it with my Cabinet colleagues in the budget context.

There was the announcement in the federal budget on Tuesday that Tindal will be upgraded and many millions of dollars spent to provide facilities for a fighter squadron. I believe that the council's interest in this matter certainly demands some attention by the government because we are building indoor sports stadiums in Darwin and looking at providing some indoor facility in Alice Springs. In Tennant Creek, a study will be commissioned on indoor, recreational facilities. It would only be a matter of time before the Katherine council, unlike the Darwin City Council, will want to provide some kind of facility for its residents. I will certainly canvass the proposal with my Cabinet colleagues and, in the meantime, obtain further information from Mayor Davies and her aldermen of their intention because I believe it has to be almost a unanimous decision of the council to proceed with that particular facility. I believe that it involves some $700 000 at this stage and, if we were to agree to a 2-to-1 subsidy, ti would mean a $500 000 grant from the Northern Territory government and $180 000 from the Katherine council, which would certainly give the council some impetus in that recreation area. Of course, if Tindal is to proceed as it appears it will, in another couple of years, we will need those recreation facilities in Katherine. Of course, the townspeople will be asking for those facilities and it could end up costing the government a lot more. I will investigate the matter further on your behalf. Once the council comes back with the final information, I will take the matter up further with my Cabinet colleagues.

Median Opening in Telegraph Terrace

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he considered my request to provide a median opening in Telegraph Terrace to allow access for traffic into the swimming pool car-park area?

ANSWER

I have received representations from the honourable member for Alice Springs regarding the problem. It is a problem because people coming up Telegraph Terrace are dropping children over the road from the swimming pool and letting their children negotiate Telegraph Terrace to get to the pool. I believe that the council is working out some kind of engineering plan to provide improved parking facilities in that area. I believe that, once funds are available and the council is in agreement, then we will proceed to open the median strip at that point.

Mosquito Eradication in Ilpapa Swamp

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Pursuant to an undertaking given in the Assembly during the last sittings, has the minister investigated the honourable member for Stuart's suggestion for dumping rubble in the Ilpapa swamp as a measure to assist mosquito eradication and, if so, what are the results of his investigations?

ANSWER

Several things have happened in that area. They have burnt off certain areas of the swamp to try to reduce the mosquito problem. I must be honest and tell the honourable member for MacDonnell that, at this stage, the department is still investigating the proposal to dump rubble in that area.

Eastern Seabord Shipping Service to Darwin

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Most honourable members will be aware that the Darwin Trader is likely to finish her run to Darwin in November. Could he advise what arrangements are being made for an interim shipping service between November and February when the new facility will be available?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, at the outset, I will advise all honourable members that, in the federal budget, $1.5m has been made available for the continuation of an eastern seabord Darwin shipping service. I understand that the Darwin Trader will remain on the run until such time as our railroad is commissioned and in operation in the Darwin port. However, I believe that the Australian National Shipping Line is investigating an alternative vessel to make the run. At this stage, it is not sure which vessel will be used but, as I understand it, it has probably 3 or 4 vessels that would be suitable and could be put on the eastern seaboard service. Now that the federal government has made the commitment for further funding of $1.5m, officers of the Department of Transport and Construction and ANL will take this matter up. I believe that ANL has said that the Darwin Trader could be a good vessel to ply between the eastern seaboard and New Zealand on certain types of cargo. Due to the downturn in the shipping industry on the eastern seaboard it could select one of several ships to provide a fortnightly service. We are asking for a fortnightly service and are very confident that we will be able to convince ANL that freight cargoes will be available as a result of development in the Northern Territory.

Management of Casuarina Coastal Reserve

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it still his intention to transfer the management of Casuarina Coastal Reserve from the Conservation Commission to the Darwin City Council?

ANSWER

Not at this time, Mr Speaker.

Tenancy System for Housing Commission Accommodation

Mr LEO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Will government departments represented in remote localities such as Nhulunbuy be allowed to return to a system of head tenancy of Housing Commission accommodation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government's policy has been to rationalise the dual system of housing that we have in the Territory at present and have had for many years. I refer to the public service housing list and the public housing and construction program. Announcements have been made about amalgamating those lists over a period of time. However, there will be a continuing need, particularly in areas outside Darwin, for replacement officer housing to be identified separately and held separately for key officers of government departments. Those houses will probably be vested in the various departments concerned. There will be certain conditions attaching to them. They will not normally be for sale because, if the occupant leaves the job or leaves the town, accommodation will be required immediately for a replacement officer. Therefore, sales will be restricted. I advise the honourable member that, increasingly, departments will identify their specific needs. Once those needs are accepted by government, allocations will be made.

Identity Cards

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Recently the topic of identity cards has been raised in the media. Has Cabinet discussed the possibility of introducing identity cards into the Northern Territory and, if so, what has been the outcome of those discussions?

ANSWER

Cabinet has never discussed as far as I can recall the introduction of identity cards for citizens of the Northern Territory. Most of us are so notorious that we require no such identification. On a serious note, I personally would be disquieted by such a proposal. I realise it has advantages for people who are in the business of looking after credit lines in respect of credit cards. I dare say, if one had a licence that had a photograph on it, it could be an advantage in identification purposes for banks and retailers where one was attempting to charge something to a credit card. I would personally have a feeling of unease - I would not say it was grave unease - at the introduction of such a system. I realise that, in some countries, everyone carries an identification card. In some countries, everyone carries a number that he has to quote. In the United States, everyone has a social security number. They seem to get by. This country has not found it necessary to bring in a system of identity cards. I would not do anything to further the idea. Let me put it that way.

Foreshore Policy

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When will the government announce its final foreshore policy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government's foreshore policy which it introduced as an interim policy some time back now will be going to Cabinet very shortly and I hope to make a statement on the subject during the second week of this sittings.

The honourable member for Millner has been critical in the press that the government has been tardy in this matter. Can I just remind him that, at the time that the government announced an interim policy and put on display that interim policy, we also announced that the foreshores would be protected broadly along the lines of the policy until such time as the matter was thoroughly reviewed and until we had time to assess public input. Indeed, I will be recommending some modifications to Cabinet in that regard and will be announcing the government's decision in a couple of weeks. In the meantime, the Planning Authority and the Department of Lands have been instructed for several months now not to entertain applications for development proposals on the foreshores as indicated by the plan that was exhibited. I do not see that the delay in this matter has been in any way detrimental. The situation is frozen, as it were, as far as the foreshores are concerned. I am not sure that it is holding up any development applications. Certainly, the foreshores are not under threat during the period of exhibition. Quite clearly it is in the government's and the Northern Territory's interests to have this matter thoroughly examined and exhibited so that we make decisions which are proper, having regard to the fact that, once such a policy is adopted, it will very likely be in force for a very long time and will have a significant effect on the way Darwin foreshores develop.

Armed Holdup of Nursing Sister at Maningrida

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can he advise the circumstances surrounding the recent armed holdup of a nursing sister at Maningrida.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, on 1 August 1982 at 10.45 pm at the Maningrida nurses quarters, an Aboriginal male person aged 16 years entered the room of a nursing sister residing at the quarters. It is said that he pointed an unloaded .44 calibre rifle at the nursing sister to force her to supply him with food. It is further alleged that he had been sniffing petrol prior to the commission of the offence. He was a resident at Maningrida and was not in urgent need of food. He was apprehended by Maningrida police and charged with a number of offences arising out of the incident: assault with intent to rob whilst armed, being unlawfully on premises, aggravated assault, possessing a firearm but not holding a shooter's licence, and being harmed with an offensive weapon. He appeared before the court at Maningrida on 9 August and was remanded to appear at Darwin. He appeared before the Children's Court at Casuarina on 10 August and a plea of guilty to the charge of assault with intent to rob whilst armed was entered. He was again remanded in custody and is due to appear before the Children's Court at Casuarina for sentence on Tuesday 24 August 1982.

Camping in Bynoe Harbour Area

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

He is aware that people are camping in what can only be described as shacks around the Bynoe Harbour area. Is his department preparing a plan of management for that area so that any progress will be orderly and for the benefit of all?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government has been concerned for some time at the growth of illegal structures in the Bynoe Harbour area which have been put up willy-nilly over a period of years by persons frequenting the area on weekends for the purposes of fishing. It has been of some concern because the structures have become more and more substantial. I believe now some of them are worth considerable money yet are sitting on vacant Crown land and, in some cases, on sand dunes. This causes us concern. This development demonstrates a need for land to be released in this area so that people can formalise their occupation, not where they are at present but in a satisfactory location. Quite clearly, the community has established in this way in frustration at not having any alternative access to facilities in the Bynoe Harbour area. In this regard, we felt that it would be quite unpopular and probably unwarranted simply to move in with government powers to tear such shacks down. We are now working on a plan to have some land in the area released so that it can be sold and proper access provided into the area for the increasing numbers of Darwinites who are using Bynoe Harbour as a recreational facility. There are certainly some very nice beaches there and excellent fishing. These areas will be formalised and people will be able to build structures under some form of control. At that time, we will require the buildings that are there now illegally to be demolished.

Control of Casuarina Coastal Reserve

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Given that an offer was made to the Darwin City Council for the takeover of the management of Casuarina Coastal Reserve, what are the reasons for now withdrawing the offer?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Casuarina Coastal Reserve was offered to the council on certain conditions some weeks ago. The offer was conditional upon a satisfactory memorandum of understanding being negotiated so that the actual management of the reserve would remain with the Conservation Commission for some time. However, that offer was made before the council decided that it would not apply for any exemptions under the proposed amendments to the Summary Offences Act or the Liquor Act. As a result of that decision being taken by the council, the government decided to withdraw its offer for the time being. The Conservation Commission has a great deal yet to do at Casuarina and the timing of the offer was probably in advance of actual requirements. In due course, when the Conservation Commission has completed its work, no doubt the government will see if the council is prepared to accept the offer. I might say that I had a very guarded response from the Lord Mayor to the offer. I dare say that, in due course, the offer will be renewed.

Betting Systems

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Has the government investigated alternative betting systems such as TAB which may assist the 2 Territory turf clubs which are at present facing extreme financial difficulties.

ANSWER

The government is continually keeping a range of matters under review in regard to taxation and incentives to industry and sport. Certainly, we are continually monitoring racing and gaming. At present, the race clubs in the Northern Territory are receiving, if I recall correctly, 100% of the funds that are raised by the government through bookmakers' fees and turnover taxes.

Undoolya Connector Road

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is there any change to the commencement date of the work on the connector road between Scott Terrace Bridge and Undoolya Road as predicted last sittings?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have had forewarning of this question. The specific item is included as a component of the Sadadeen residential subdivision which is currently in the construction phase. The survey and final design work for the Undoolya connector road is scheduled to commence when the negotiations between the Department of Lands, the Central Land Council and the Aboriginal Sacred Sites Authority concerning the alignment are completed. I understand the contract is to be let and work commence approximately 14 weeks after the clearance for the proposed line has been obtained. The construction of this road is expected to be completed within 32 weeks of the commencement.

National Aborigines Day

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Would the Chief Minister consider the granting of a Northern Territory public holiday on National Aborigines Day which falls on 9 July of each year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am pleased that the honourable member has given me this opportunity to talk about a subject that is fairly dear to my heart and that is productivity. This country is in a very poor way at the moment because of lack of productivity. We see a general strike in Queensland at the moment in relation to working hours in the public sector. Whilst I might not perhaps want to see any strikes develop in this part of the world, the fact of the matter is that all Australians should realise that the country is in a pretty sick economic condition and it has been in a sick condition because, for too long, we have pampered ourselves with protection of industries that just cannot stand up in the open market, and we have recreated thousands of jobs ...

Mr Bell: That is not answering the question.

Mr SPEAKER: Order! Any further questions?

East Point Reserve

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When does he expect to announce management arrangements for the East Point Reserve and adjacent land which has been under consideration for some time now?

ANSWER

I will obtain the information and provide it to the honourable member during the course of these sittings. It is certainly a matter of interest to most Darwinites and it is a matter in which I have taken a personal interest in so far as boundaries and future arrangements for staff are concerned. I would like to collect the information together and provide it in the course of the sittings.

Under-age Employment of Aboriginal Children

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I am aware that he has put out a press statement on this but I think it might be of use to make a statement to the Assembly on it. Could he report to the Assembly on the results of the investigation carried out by officers of his department into the recent allegations by the head teacher of Lake Nash School about under-age employment of Aboriginal children?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, when this matter first came to attention, I made a statement in the Assembly and, if I recall correctly, that was some 9 months ago. The circumstances could well have changed by now but the facts of the matter, as I understood them at that time, were that both children were of compulsory school age. The position now is that one is not and the other is. The parents live in Queensland. As you are aware, Mr Speaker, the station in question is very close to the Queensland border. The difficulty we face is this. In order to give dispensation under our Education Act for them to work, which I would do almost automatically in circumstances such as these, an application must be received from the parents. However, as they are within a Queensland jurisdiction, they are not in a position to make application to the Northern Territory minister for dispensation for the children. The only options are to arrest the children at the border and turn them back and tell them to go back to their parents - which is not in the children's interest because they will not get any education where they are anyway, - or hi-jack them to Lake Nash School - which is 200 km from where they wish to live or work - or place them in some sort of custody and bring them across to Kormilda. As you know, Mr Speaker, the children would be distraught if we did that. They would run away and be at far greater risk than they are working under the supervision of the station manager.

Mr Speaker, it is one of those situations which is less than satisfactory but it is a decision that was taken by the Department of Community Development in consultation with the Departments of Education and Law as being in the best interests of the children. One of the lads is now over the age for compulsory school attendance which would mean that, if we were to do anything, we would not only separate the children from proximity to their parents but also separate brother from brother. Certainly this would not be in the interests of the children concerned. The best solution is for us to contact the parents through Queensland agencies and perhaps seek some form of formal exemption from education for them, if for no other reason than to comply with the strictest letter of the law.

ADMA Efforts to Market Horticultural Produce

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

A very important aspect of any commercial venture is marketing. What efforts is the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority making to market Northern Territory horticultural produce?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member did give me some notice of this question. The ADMA organisation has been most successful in marketing the Territory's horticultural produce locally, interstate and overseas. As a result, there has been a strong demand. The problem now is not so much one of marketing but more one of assisting growers to meet demands. To date, a number of local, interstate and overseas promotions have taken place resulting in strong inquiries for our produce. These inquiries have been aided by the good response from Territory growers to a series of seminars hosted by ADMA to give advice on post harvest treatment, handling and presentation.

Due to the efforts of ADMA and a number of successful long-time Territory farmers, Northern Territory rockmelons are being marketed in Melbourne, Adelaide and Brisbane and negotiations are proceeding for shipment to Tasmania and New Zealand. Rockmelons supplied to Brisbane are currently achieving prices up to double that of Queensland fruit simply because of quality and presentation. Territory tomatoes are being supplied to the Adelaide market and are achieving premium prices, again because of quality and presentation. Papaws and cucumbers are also being shipped to Adelaide and strong inquiries are being received for more zucchinis. Territory rockmelons have received good response in South-east Asia. The placing of trial shipments has resulted in rapid recognition of the Territory as a source of high-quality produce. Numerous inquiries are being received by ADMA from interstate for a wide variety of products and, on the local market, Territory produce is being promoted and further promotions are planned. The next one will be later this month at Coles New World Casuarina. At the moment, at the peak of the season, some 35% of local demand is being met, although it must be borne in mind that, averaged over a full year, the Territory is still only supplying 10% of its own requirements. It is hoped that this overall supply figure will be substantially upgraded over the next 3 years. Clearly, these promotional efforts have been well established and are successful. The problem now is not so much one of more marketing being required but more advice to ensure that we do not run into problems with supply.

Security of Old-timers' Homes in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that, on the night of 6 August, 3 cottages were broken into in the old-timers' homes in Alice Springs? Would he therefore agree to assist the old-timers' homes with security arrangements to improve the safety of the badly frightened residents?

ANSWER

I was not aware that 3 old-timers' cottages had been broken into on 6 August, but I will bring the matter to the attention of the Commissioner of Police and ask him to speak to the responsible authorities at the old-timers' homes.

Territory's Bee Industry

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

I was delighted to hear his last answer so totally contradict his previous statement. The minister gave the Assembly an undertaking at the last sittings that he would take action to protect the Territory's bee industry. Could he advise the Assembly what action he has taken?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would ask the honourable member to place his question on notice.

Water Division Recommendation on Septic Tanks in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand a meeting was held a few weeks ago between Water Division officers and some people in the rural area. At that meeting, the stated intention of the Water Division officers was that a blanket recommendation would be put forward that all the people in the rural area would have to re-install spetic tanks which could place great financial burden on many of the people. Is that a fact?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am unable to confirm the likely outcome of the meeting. However, I would ask that the honourable member write me a letter. I will certainly try to find out what is going on. With regard to septic tanks, most members would be aware that they come under the province of the Minister for Health, and she should direct any further questions regarding that to him.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Is it a fact that, under the terms of the morgage debenture between the Buntine group of companies and the Northern Territory Development Corporation, the appointment of a receiver-manager renders the money guaranteed by the NTDC immediately payable?

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, if I might have the call.

Mr SPEAKER: The honourable Chief Minister.

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister): Mr Speaker, the matter of the Buntine group of companies is presently subject to litigation before the Northern Territory Supreme Court. The whole matter of the Northern Territory Development Corporation's guarantee to the Buntine group of companies has been referred to me for my opinion on what action should be taken to protect the government's interests As Attorney-General, I ask honourable members to direct questions of a legal nature, such as the question the honourable member for Sanderson just posed, to myself.

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it a fact that, under the terms of the mortage debenture between the Buntine group of companies and the Northern Territory Development Corporation, the appointment of a receiver-manager renders the money guarantee by the NTDC immediately payable?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Buntine group of companies has been experiencing liquidity diffculties and creditor pressure for some time. The records in the Registrar of Companies Office disclose that the companies in the group - Buntine Roadways Pty Ltd, Buntine Terminals Pty Ltd, Buntine Freightways of Australia Pty Ltd and NT Trailer Sales Pty Ltd - are all registered in the Territory and have common directorships. The directors are Roy Charles Willoughby, Mark Hugh Newham, North Star Holdings Pty Ltd and James Roland Dalziel. East Kimberly Transport Pty Ltd, a subsidiary of Buntine Transport Pty Ltd, is incorporated in Western Australia and has the same directors. The companies were originally controlled by Mr Noel Buntine and members of his family but control passed to the present directors in about May 1981. A notice under section 222 of the Companies Act demanding payment of a debt was given by Transport Tyre Sales Pty Ltd on 9 August 1982. The ANZ Bank, which has first priority security on assets of the group, appointed a receiver-manager on 23 August last. The receiver is attempting to establish the true financial circumstances of the group and, until a full evaluation of the books of accounts, inspection of assets and substantiation of liability have been undertaken, the receiver is unable to advise the course of action to be pursued. Preliminary investigations by Garraway and Partners, Chartered Accountants of Darwin, prior to the appointment of a receiver indicated that there were unsecured creditors in the order of $2m in addition to the secured borrowings from the ANZ Bank, ESANDA and Citibank, and lease commitments to Citicorp and ESANDA. The application for the winding up of the group of companies taken out by Transport Tyre Sales Pty Ltd is listed for hearing on 9 September next. I am informed that, in evaluating the action to be taken, the receiver is examining the prospect of the sale of the companies as a going concern and the sale of the various assets of those companies. It would appear that, if a compulsory winding up proceeds, assets remaining after secured creditors have been satisfied will not be sufficient to pay unsecured creditors.

The Northern Territory Development Corporation executed a guarantee in favour of Citibank intending to support advances to Buntine Roadways Pty Ltd. The advances were to be for the purposes of working capital, refinancing leasing contracts and business development. The corporation has security by way of second ranking charges of assets of each of the companies in the group, excluding real estate. It holds a guarantee from North South Holdings Pty Ltd and personal guarantees from Messrs Willoughby, Newham and Dalziel. It also holds a charge of assets of Transport and Property Holdings Pty Ltd which is the shareholder of all the shares in the group.

Mr Noel Buntine is recorded as having a charge over the shares of that company. In addition to its charge, the ANZ Bank has mortgages on the real estate owned by the companies and its securities rank ahead of the Development Corporation to the extent of the first $1m. I understand though that the bank is owed about $800 000.

Citibank has informed the corporation that the advance of $750 000 has been fully drawn and the corporation's solicitors have written to Citibank requesting the dates and the amounts of the advances provided and to whom the advances were made. When this information is received, the corporation will be able to assess the extent of its contingent liabilities in the event - and I would ask the honourable member to listen to this - that Citibank calls upon it under the terms of the guarantee. The corporation has had notices of appointment prepared to enable it to inspect the company books of account and other records and to enable it to fully explore the extent of its liability under the guarantee. Mr Speaker, these inspections are proceeding.

Until such time as the receiver-manager and the corporation have established the true financial position, the extent of any exposure of the corporation is unknown. The book value of assets appears to be sufficient to satisfy any liability the corporation may incur. But what those assets will realise in all the circumstances is another matter. The corporation continues to be actively involved with the ANZ Bank and other interests with a view to determining the true position and to take such steps as may be necessary to protect itself. Whether or not the corporation will be called upon to meet the whole or any part of its guarantee commitment and, if so, the extent to which it could reasonably expect to cover its liability from assets, the subject of the charge and from the personal guarantees are not yet known. The corporation, Mr Speaker, is presently considering legal advice that it has received concerning its guarantee and securities and the courses of action that are open to it.

Health Services at Ti Tree Homestead

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of recent press reports indicating trouble at Ti Tree in central Australia, can he advise what steps, if any, his department is taking to provide health services to the residents at Ti Tree Homestead in central Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, much has been said in the last couple of days in the press about the situation at Ti Tree. At this stage, the department has kept a very low profile on it because I believe that the situation is not as bad as some people would have us believe. For the benefit of honourable members, I would like to give them the background on Ti Tree Station. It is a private station run by Aboriginals. The Health Department has had an involvement on Ti Tree for about 17 years. In fact, the area has been serviced by people such as Dr Whittenbury and Dr Kirke for at least 15 years and there has been a very close relationship between the department and the people on the station over that time.

Mr Speaker, I would also make the point that the station itself has a small clinic. It could only be regarded as humble. But it also has 2 Aboriginal health workers in situ on the station who are employees of the Department of Health and who rotate in and out of the health workers training school in Alice Springs on a regular basis, as do all health workers in the southern end of the Territory.

Mr Speaker, the situation at Ti Tree is also supported by the presence of the clinic there which is staffed by 3 sisters. Although Ti Tree itself is very small and does not warrant a staff of that size, the mobile run from Ti Tree is pretty comprehensive and most of the activities of the lakes are taken up by the rural work. One of the sisters has been on our payroll for at least 10 years and the other 2 have been with us for some 3 or 4 years. All are regarded as very competent members of the staff and the community.

A situation arose a couple of weeks ago where, undoubtedly, there was a difference of opinion or a conflict between some people on the station and some members of our staff. As a result, a letter was received from legal aid asking the department not to go to Ti Tree anymore. It said that sisters were not required to visit the station by the people there and that there was a sister working on the station at all times. I understand that the sister alluded to, who would be available to work on the station, was a Mrs Edwards who is the wife of a gentleman working there. As far as we have been able to ascertain, Mr Edwards is not a trained sister and is not competent to call herself a trained sister in the Northern Territory. As far as the department is concerned, she would not qualify for the rural subsidy that is paid to trained sisters in remote areas. Nevertheless, if the people at Ti Tree do not wish the department to go there, that wish will be respected.

Mr Speaker, as a result of the situation that developed there, Dr Kirke in Alice Springs instructed the girls not to go to Ti Tree on the regular visits but to be certain they were available for emergencies. The people from Ti Tree who came to the clinic would be able to have treatment at the clinic. Over a period of a couple of weeks, several members of the community did present themselves at the Ti Tree town clinic for treatment.

Mr Speaker, I have been concerned that such a relationship should exist. Last week, I took the opportunity to visit Ti Tree Station and talk with the people. Regrettably, most of my time was taken up talking to Mr and Mrs Edwards. During the course of my interview with Mr and Mrs Edwards, they saw fit to make some serious allegations against the integrity and professionalism of the staff. These matters were of such concern that I believe they should be placed in writing and investigated. Mr and Mrs Edwards have promised that they will put their complaints in writing and, when I receive them, I will ask Dr Fleming to investigate the matters. The department is happy to provide services to the people at Ti Tree Station on the basis of need and desire. The matters that have been put before me by Mr and Mrs Edwards are serious and will be investigated fully.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Given the obvious conflict between the role of Mr Richard Allert as a member of the NTDC which is owed some $750 000 from the sale of the Buntine group of companies and his partnership in the firm Allert Heard and Co who have been appointed receivers and managers of that group of companies, will the minister remove this conflict by asking Mr Allert to step down from his position with the NTDC?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it was not the government's decision to appoint Allert Heard as receiver for the Buntine group. We do appoint members to the NTDC of course. I think that these people are professionals. I do not see that there would be any conflict in respect of that appointment.

Fog Bay Closure

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise the Assembly on the progress of negotiations for the closure of Fog Bay and the establishment of a fishery west of the Wessels?

ANSWER

Just before this Assembly adjourned the week before last, we had an interesting debate in relation to fishing and the Northern Territory economy. I was interested to hear the views of honourable members in that debate because some of their views bear little contact with the reality of the fishing industry in the Northern Territory at present. After the Assembly rose, I travelled to Perth where I met on the Friday morning with the Western Australian Premier and with the Minister for Agriculture, Mr Dick Old. I presented to them personally a submission in support of the west of the Wessels fishery which I had prepared and dispatched earlier to them through the mail. Both ministers were pleased at that time to assure me of their support. Consequently, after leaving Perth, and with their approval, the approval of the Queensland Premier and the approval of the federal minister, I met with Directors of Fisheries from the Commonwealth, from Queensland and from Western Australia in Brisbane on the Monday morning. Also present at that meeting were my colleague, the honourable Minister for Primary Production, and the Director of Fisheries in the Northern Territory, Mr Dick Slack-Smith.

Mr Speaker, we, of course, ran into much tougher weather when we actually encountered the officials who are, it seems to me, fairly determined to do all they can to protect the interests of their states. But as I pointed out to those gentlemen in speaking to the Northern Territory's submission, the facts of the matter are that, in each of the last 3 years, approximately the same tonnage of prawns has been landed out of the northern prawn fishery, and yet, in the same period, the number of boats working in the fishery has increased quite dramatically. Obviously, therefore, the northern fishery as it presently exists is not capable of providing a living, or even sustenance, for the number of boats that are now using it and there is a further prospect of vessels entering the fishery because there are a number of licence holders who have not yet taken up the option of fishing in the northern Australian prawn fishery.

Mr Speaker, at the meeting in Brisbane we were successful in reaching agreement with the directors of fisheries on the closure in effect of the Fog Bay area by a technical arrangement which will limit the size of the nets which are able to be used in the prawn fishery off Fog Bay. I would point out that the fishery itself is not in Fog Bay; it is off Fog Bay. It is beyond the 3-mile territorial limit. We have succeeded at present in coming to an arrangement on that point which will go forward I understand to the meeting of the Australian Fisheries Council which is a meeting of all fisheries ministers throughout Australia. That, I think, is being held in Hobart some time in October and I expect at that time there will be a formal agreement or endorsement of the closure of Fog Bay. The various technical details in relation to the regulation of that fishery are to be determined in the meantime.

As for the west of the Wessels fishery, I made it clear to the directors that the Northern Territory was determined to have its way and that the west of the Wessels fishery was going to come into being whether the fishing industry liked it or not. Quite frankly, Mr Speaker, the directors of fisheries are under intense pressure as you will have realised in view of the media coverage that occurred in the Northern Territory during my absence when fisheries organisations in Queensland and I think Western Australia leapt into the attack against the Northern Territory for daring to propose that we have our own limited entry fishery west of the Wessels. These people involved in the fishing industry are going to maintain that it is better in the interests of the Australian fishing industry to continue with the fishery extending from Cape York to the Western Australian border.

However, I travelled to Cairns on Monday afternoon and in Cairns I met with representatives of the major Australian prawn fishing companies. I think there are about 10 of them. There was a meeting of about 15 to 20 people held in Cairns, which I was able to speak to. I was subjected to intense questioning by the representatives of these fishing companies who obviously have no liking whatsoever for our proposal and have, to some extent I think, been caught napping. However, they will now, no doubt, bring considerable political pressure to bear and, therefore, the fight is far from over. If these fishing companies say that our proposal is not a good one for the rational management of the north Australian fishery, then I want to know from them what is. I have given them 3 weeks to provide me with a submission in writing as to why the Northern Territory should not proceed further with its proposal for the closure or limited entry to the fishery west of the Wessels.

I should receive this submissions with 3 weeks of last Tuesday. There will be a further meeting of directors of fisheries with my colleague and myself before the Australian Fisheries Council meeting in Hobart. I am not quite sure of the timing of that as it will depend on a number of other events. I told the directors of fisheries that the Northern Territory is determined to proceed with this proposal and I conveyed the same message in exactly the same terms to the representatives of the big fishing companies. Although I do not expect that the proposal will necessarily come into operation within the next 3 months, or even the next 6 months, I am hopeful that, by maintaining fairly constant pressure, we should be able to bring it into operation within the reasonably foreseeable future.

NTDC Guarantee to North Clay Industries

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Can he inform the Assembly of the nature of the guarantee made by Northern Territory Development Corporation to the company North Clay Industries on 29 July 1982 to the value of $2.1m in conjunction with a merchant bank known as Amrol Australia? Can he inform the Assembly of the nature of the security demanded by the NTDC in relation to this guarantee of $2.1m?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government is not prepared to provide that information.

Handover of Land to NT Pensioners Association

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Some time ago approval was given for land next to Tracy Lodge to be handed over to the Northern Territory Pensioners Association. Is he able to inform me when title to that land will be handed over to the Northern Territory Pensioners Association?

ANSWER

I cannot give the honourable member for Port Darwin a specific date at this stage. However, I will attempt to obtain that information and pass it on to him. I can assure him that, some time ago, the government set aside land next to Tracy Lodge in the heart of Darwin for an expansion of Tracy Lodge in future years. It is part of the government's overall campaign to accommodate the needs of the aged in the Territory. I can assure him that that land is under no threat. I will investigate the procedure for issuing title and advise him of a date.

Transport Property Holdings Pty Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Were the company accounts of Transport Property Holdings audited before the NTDC committed itself to give a guarantee of $750 000 in favour of Citibank?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister, as Attorney-General, has indicated to the Assembly that questions of this nature at this time should be directed to him.

Ms D'ROZARIO: Mr Speaker, may I draw the attention of the honourable minister to the provisions of section 19A of the Territory Development Act under which he sets the terms and conditions of the guarantee and signs the guarantee in these circumstances.

Mr SPEAKER: The honourable Chief Minister.

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister): As honourable members of the opposition know, there is litigation pending in respect of this whole matter and the Northern Territory Development Corporation's position may well be prejudiced by answers given to questions in this Assembly. Therefore, at the beginning of question time, I did give honourable members opposite the courtesy of inviting them to ask questions of me in relation to legal matters. Since that time, we have seen honourable members of the opposition attempt to prejudice the Northern Territory Development Corporation's position in any litigation by the asking of 3 questions of a legal nature to other ministers.

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Mr Speaker, I redirect my question to the Chief Minister. Were the accounts of Transport Property Holdings audited before the NTDC committed itself to a guarantee of $750 000 in favour of Citibank?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the original guarantee from the Northern Territory Development Corporation was for the companies that made up the Buntine group which I spelled out in some detail in my earlier answer to the question of the honourable member for Sanderson. If she had listened to my answer to that question, she would not have needed to ask this question at all.

Daly Street Fire Station

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is consideration being given to relocating the Daly Street Fire Station?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there have been rumours outside the corridors of the Chan Building regarding the relocation of the Daly Street Fire Station. These rumours are not correct. It is only a couple of years since we decided not to relocate the fire station in the Parap area and to upgrade the Daly Street station. In this year's capital works program, moneys will be made available to upgrade the Daly Street station. There could be a proposal at some future date - 1987 or 1988 - to upgrade or relocate the Winnellie Fire Station and bring it closer to the industrial areas of Winnellie and Stuart Park. However, at this time there is no intention to relocate the Daly Street Fire Station.

Palm Valley to Alice Springs Gas Pipeline

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Is it the intention of the government to offer the successful tenderer for the gas pipeline from Palm Valley gasfields to Alice Springs a guarantee in support of any money that the company may borrow to undertake this development?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member will have to redirect his question. At no stage has the NTDC nor myself been involved in the question of the pipeline.

Brucellosis and Tuberculosis Eradication Program

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

In relation to the brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication program, can he explain the interaction between the Australian Agricultural Council, the Standing Committee on Agriculture, the Northern Australian Sub-group and the National BTB Eradication Planning Group?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Australian Agricultural Council is composed of all state and Territory Ministers of Agriculture and is chaired by the Commonwealth minister. It meets twice a year in various capitals and New Zealand. The Standing Committee on Agriculture is made up of the public service heads of departments of agriculture. That committee meets twice a year, immediately preceding the Australian Agricultural Council meeting and prepares the agenda items and supporting papers for consideration by the ministers.

At the recent July meeting held in Rotorua, New Zealand, the Northern Territory pressed the need for the Commonwealth to provide special funding and additional general provisions for the brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication campaign for northern Australia to include the northern areas of Queensland, Western Australia and the Territory. The Northern Territory sees this area as having special problems for the eradication of the 2 diseases because of the difficult terrain and depressed cattle prices. This view was generally supported by the Standing Committee on Agriculture and the ministers' meeting and, as a result, a northern Australian sub-group was set up consisting of representatives of Queensland, Western Australia, the Northern Territory and the Commonwealth to consider the problems and make recommendations to the AAC for its resolution, with special reference to additional recurrent funding support for such operations as mustering, holding costs etc, as well as for capital assitance for the provision of fencing, cattle grids and other essential items that are needed in the BTB program. This sub-group has already had a first meeting in Darwin and will report next month to the larger group; that is, the national BTB Planning Group which overviews the eradication campaign in Australia as a whole.

Transport Property Holdings Pty Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Were written inquiries made to the company Transport Property Holdings Pty Ltd in relation to its financial position at the time that a guarantee was made by the NTDC?

ANSWER

I am informed that inquiries were made of a company known as Transport Property Holdings Pty Ltd prior to the execution of the guarantee in favour of Citicorp. I am told that execution of the guarantee was deferred until the corporation was supplied with information that it had sought from the companies.

Mr Speaker, I will just refer to an earlier question by the Leader of the Opposition to my colleague, the Minister for Primary Production. I have inspected a register of guarantees kept by the Northern Territory Development Corporation and I am assured that those are the only guarantees that have been granted by the NTDC. In that register I can find no reference whatsoever to any such guarantee as mentioned by the Leader of the Opposition.

Kennon Holdings Loan

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Did the government guarantee a loan from Citibank to a campany called Kennon Holdings in October 1980? If so, was the value of that NTDC guarantee $820 000 and was the loan secured against the assets of that company?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question of confidentiality is one that the government is concerned about in its dealings with the public and people who seek support in their borrowings from the government. Mr Speaker, at this stage we are not prepared to bandy around names of those persons through the press unnecessarily.

Clearing of Land on Oolloo Station

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

He will be aware that ADMA ordered 300 acres of Oolloo cleared, which posed a severe erosion problem, and which was promptly ordered reafforested by the Conservation Commission. Given these facts, would he ensure that, before any clearing is ordered by ADMA on that station, the Conservation Commission's advice is sought?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the exact details to which the honourable member refers. However, I have been assured by the chairman that consultation with the Conservation Commission does take place on a regular basis. As far as I know, ADMA has never gone out of its way to cause conservation problems.

Large-animal Pound for Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What is the latest on the large-animal pound for the rural area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Tiwi has made representations to me on this matter. I have had the issue thoroughly investigated. It would seem that the present provisions of the Pounds Act are insufficient for us to establish a pound in the rural area. The Pounds Act was designed to provide for pounds within built-up or municipal areas. It was not envisaged that they would be located other than in municipal areas. Of course, the Darwin rural area is not so incorporated. As a result, I think it would be necessary to introduce legislation to facilitate the establishment of such pounds. I would propose at the same time - and Cabinet has already considered this matter - to strengthen the provisions of the existing Pounds Act in relation to pounds within the municipalities and also to allow for them outside, probably by ministerial direction.

However, I would remind the honourable member that, to establish a pound, someone has to pay for it. I suppose one can partially offset costs by increasing the fees for impoundment and fines for breaches of the act. Nonetheless, as we all are well aware, never has it happened to date that a pound breaks even, much less makes a profit. So, of course, someone has to pay for it. The rural people then should bear in mind that, while they are considering local government for their own area, when they make requests of this nature, they must consider the cost implications as well.

NTDC Loans Outstanding

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

What action has he taken to recover the arrears in relation to total loans outstanding to the Northern Territory Development Corporation, which was stated by him as being in the order of $1.6m? Can he inform the Assembly as to how much of that amount has been recovered at this time?

ANSWER

The question of arrears to the corporation has been addressed and it is an ongoing process. The loans arrears comprise loans dating back to the Primary Producers Board and the Business Relief Loans Fund which were set up after the cyclone. Some of those arrears would be very difficult to get back in the security of the corporation. It is an ongoing process. The position is never particularly stable. It is an up-and-down position. I would be happy to talk to the honourable member about that particular situation on a confidential basis.

Review of NT Road Laws

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

At the present time, a review of the road laws in the Northern Territory is being carried out by the Northern Territory government. Can he inform me when this review is likely to be completed?

ANSWER

Unfortunately, I am unable to tell the honourable member for Port Darwin when the review will be completed because it is an ongoing review. It could take as long as 2 years. However, I am hopeful that a report will be made available early next year for government consideration regarding any amendment to legislation that may be required.

Assurances to Shell Company re Buntine Group

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

What financial assurances did he give to the Shell Company in order to maintain fuel supplies to the Buntine group?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there were no assurances of finance given to the Shell Company in any respect to assist with the continuation of the Buntine operation. There was a liaison between my office, the NTDC and the Shell group which induced the Shell people to be very cooperative for which we thank them. The position is that most of the cattle are being transported throughout the Northern Territory to market. The Buntine group had some control formerly over about 80% of the actual movement of live cattle throughout the Territory. There is a growth of other operators moving into cattle transport activity which they were not in formerly and, at this stage, it is believed that there will be no dislocation resulting from the financial problems being experienced by the Buntine group. The only difficulty that may occur is the movement of cattle in large numbers, say, to go on a ship. That would be the only problem likely to be experienced. In future operations, it is clear that a general direction would need to be undertaken to expedite large movements of cattle throughout the Northern Territory.

Meatmeal Plant for Small and Mobile Abattoirs

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

If a fish silage plant is to be established in the Territory with money provided by the Northern Territory Fishing Industry Research and Development Trust Fund, what is being done about establishing some simple form of meatmeal plant for small abattoirs and mobile abattoirs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is true that the assistance has been arranged for a Territory fisherman who will be loaned the necessary equipment to engage in fish silage production. The question of meatmeal and meatmeal products has not been addressed in this way. We understand that currently meatworks produce some of their own meatmeal. We have not addressed that side of the question.

Quickline Plant for Darwin

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Has the NTDC made available a loan or a guarantee to a company - and I am not asking him to name it - that intends to develop a quicklime manufacturing plant in Darwin? What is the status of this proposal at present?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that some discussions and negotiations are being undertaken with a company to assist in the construction of a quickline plant. I do not have a position report in front of me but there has been no assistance at this time.

Rural Readjustment Funds

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Can he advise why only 16% of the rural readjustment funds that were available to the Territory last year were spent, given the present state of the Northern Territory's beef industry?

ANSWER

I do not have the precise information which the honourable member requires. From my experience in dealing with loans to primary producers, the difficulty has been in primary producers satsifying the requirements demanded of us by the Commonwealth in granting the Northern Territory those funds. I understand that this matter will be debated later this morning.

Department Store for Darwin

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Can he inform me whether the Northern Territory Development Corporation is negotiating with a major southern retailer to establish a department store in Darwin?

ANSWER

I understand that the Northern Territory Development Corporation has at various times talked to department stores in the states and I understand that those department stores have dispatched officers to Darwin at different times to determine the potential for the establishment of a department store in Darwin.

Channel Island Power-station

Mr LEO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

What is the role of the Northern Territory Development Corporation in the construction of the Channel Island power-station?

ANSWER

I am not aware of a close relationship between the Northern Territory Development Corporation and the Channel Island power-station at this time.

Rubbish on Private Land

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

There appears to be no way of forcing owners of properties to clear their land of rubbish and old building materials. What is the government doing to change this situation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will have to inquire into this matter further as a result of a claim by the member for Port Darwin that there are no powers to compel landowners to clean up their properties. When widespread freeholding was introduced in towns throughout the Territory by this government, the conditions were abolished whereby lessees of land had to maintain the property in a reasonable condition. However, there is in the Darwin City Council's bylaws a provision whereby the council can require landowners to undertake certain works on their land and clean it up. I appreciate that this bylaw is probably not as extensive as we would like. It may relate to the situation of the possible harbouring of vermin. I will investigate the matter further because it is of concern to myself and no doubt other members in Darwin that there is still the odd block throughout various suburbs which has not been developed since Cyclone Tracy. In fact, some of them are in appalling condition with grass, trees, shrubs and rubbish. If the council bylaws are not strong enough to deal with this matter, we should speak with the council with a view to having the bylaws redrafted so that it does have such powers. Local governments in the states do have these powers. I am not sure that it is really the role of the state government or, in our case, the Territory government to promulgate laws to enable us to go onto private land in an urban area and demand that it be cleaned up. This is truly a matter that rests with the city council.

Howard Springs School

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Now that there is sometimes a third policeman at the Fred's Pass Police Office and in view of the great increase in traffic on Whitewood Road where the Howard Springs School is situated and a recent accident involving a child after school, will the police return to their previous practice of a few years ago of sometimes being on duty outside the Howard Springs School for a short time after school comes out in the afternoon?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the number of school crossings in use in the greater Darwin area during the normal week days always exceeds the number of available police personnel. Some schools have not just one crossing, but 2 and sometimes 3. I am advised by the Commissioner of Police that crossings of this type cannot receive regular supervision. Nevertheless, police will attend them when other commitments permit. The recent accident alluded to by the honourable member was caused, I am informed, by a child alighting from and running from behind a school bus into the path of an oncoming vehicle. It did not relate directly to the use of the crossing. Consequent upon this question being asked earlier in this sittings, the adequacy of existing legislation and regulations in respect of school crossings is presently being examined by the police together with the Department of Education.

Water Storage for Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is the new water storage tank on the Sadadeen Range expected to be completed on schedule and could he assure the town of Alice Springs that it will not suffer water shortages in the immediate future except in highly unlikely circumstances?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is expected that the new water storage tank will be completed very shortly. The department will effect the final pour in the next couple of days and will then upgrade the rest of the water supply. There is an item of $2.7m for this in this year's capital works program and it should go to tender in the latter part of this financial year. This upgrading, with the new storage tank, should provide Alice Springs with an adequate water supply.

Costingan Report

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has the Northern Territory government investigated the effects, if any, of the Costigan Report on the Northern Territory and is the government carrying out any investigations as to the extent of tax avoidance schemes, such as the bottom-of-the-harbour scheme, in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, tax avoidance schemes such as bottom-of-the-harbour schemes have no relevance to the Northern Territory government as such. It has no taxation legislation, that I am aware of, whereby bottom-of-the-harbour schemes would avail people one jot of benefit. The federal government's income tax laws are those that are claimed to be transgressed by bottom-of-the-harbour tax avoidance schemes and, therefore, it rests squarely in the court of the Australian Taxation Department and the Attorney-General's Department of the Commonwealth to investigate such schemes and decide whether prosecution should be launched or not.

I had a brief discussion with the Police Commissioner last week as a consequence of the tabling of portion of the report of the Costigan Commission of Inquiry. Of course, we have the section of the report that has been made available generally. We do not have any access to those portions of the report that have been kept confidential by the federal government, although I understand that those sections of the report have been made available to the Victorian government and also to the federal Leader of the Opposition for his perusal on a confidential basis. Nonetheless, that part of the report that we have is being studied by the Police Commissioner for any relevance it may have to the Northern Territory. He did tell me that, on a preliminary reading of the report - and I have not yet had time to read it myself - there appeared to be little of relevance in it for the Northern Territory.

Mr Speaker, the question of tax avoidance is a very topical one and the question of the establishment of a crimes commission is also a very topical one. It is believed in some quarters that the establishment of a crimes commission will do much towards the elimination of organised crime in this country. The Northern Territory is maintaining a very keen interest in the Commonwealth proposals to establish a national crimes commission. It is also maintaining a keen interest in a bill presently before the federal parliament called the Criminal Investigation Bill. As we see it at present, the Commonwealth government is engaged in what amounts to a collision course with itself. To establish the Crimes Commission as proposed will simply bring into the public forum matters capable of investigation by a commission which, in many cases, could not be brought, on the evidence available, before a court. Unfortunately, as I understand it, after the preliminary dredging and skirmishing has been done, it will then be incumbent upon the police force to launch and carry the necessary prosecutions. These police prosecutions will be subject to the normal laws of evidence in the court. I understand that it is now proposed that the police will be bound by the provisions of the proposed Criminal Investigation Bill. I might say that, when I refer to police in this context, I am referring to the federal police. As far as we can see, the Criminal Investigation Bill will virtually handcuff the police in their attempts to investigate organised crime. In fact, it will totally negate any benefit that might be derived from the establishment of a crimes commission. The Northern Territory is attempting to bring some rationality to the Commonwealth proposals. We have made representations at very senior levels of the federal government in this regard. We see absolutely no point in the establishment of this commission at this time if another piece of legislation is going through which will further hamper and dampen any work that the police might be able to do to combat organised crime in this country.

Illegal Fishing of Keep River

Mrs LAWRIE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

I refer to a question I asked of him a week ago. Has he yet determined whether charges will be laid against 3 West Australians regarding alleged illegal fishing activities in the Keep River on 3 and 4 July?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not like to give an answer to a question of this nature off the top of my head although I do recall something on this subject coming through my office last week. I think it was with the material from the Solicitor-General that I examined over the weekend and passed on to the Police Commissioner. I would rather take this question on board and give the member for Nightcliff a considered answer tomorrow.

Whilst I am on my feet, the honourable member for Nightcliff yesterday asked a question of the Minister for Industrial Development in relation to the clearing of certain land at Oolloo Station by ADMA. She asked the minister whether the Land Conservation Unit of the Conservation Commission, which of course comes under my administration, has had to require ADMA to reafforest 300 ha of land at Oolloo Station. The information that I have been supplied with by the Conservation Commission is as follows. Firstly, no such requirement has been sought by the Land Conservation Unit of the commission from ADMA. Secondly, the Land Conservation Unit has been working in close consultation with ADMA since the inception of the pilot project farms and has assisted in the delineation of the land suitable for arable agriculture. Officers are currently working in the field and advising on soil erosion control measures. Thirdly, regular interdepartmental committee meetings are held between ADMA, the Conservation Commission, the Department of Primary Production, the Department of Lands, the Department of Transport and Works and CSIRO to ensure satifactory liaison.

Single Officer Accommodation in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When will the Housing Commission single officer accommodation development in Bath Street, Alice Springs, be ready for occupancy and will this development assist with the accommodation problems of teachers in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Housing Commission expects the premises mentioned by the honourable member for Alice Springs to be ready for occupation by late November or early December this year. The development of the 18 units will assist the accommodation problem in Alice Springs and there is a possibility that 8 of the units could be offered to teachers. The figure of 8 is based on the Housing Commission's public service waiting list as at yesterday. Whilst the accommodation units are not being specifically set aside for teachers, teachers are public servants and are entitled to housing in accordance with a waiting list. Obviously, the evidence suggests that quite a number of those units will be occupied by teachers in due course.

All-weather Causeway Across Todd River

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I preface my question by reminding him of a petition containing 291 signatures of Alice Springs residents calling for an all-weather causeway across the Todd River. What action is the government taking to provide such an all-weather causeway over the Todd River, considering this request for a basic service by such a large group of Territorians?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I refer the honourable member to the budget papers released yesterday by the Treasurer. If my memory serves me right, funds are available in this year's capital works program for upgrading of the Heavitree Gap area. Presumably, the causeway could be included in that.

Harry Chan Ward

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Concern has been expressed that children in the Harry Chan Nursing Ward will be transferred to the new nursing home at Palmerston when it is completed. As this will isolate the children from the education resources of the Henbury Avenue Special School, and other resources available for handicapped children in Darwin, will he ensure that this does not take place?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think it would be fair to say that the new nursing home at Palmerston will be a much more appropriate environment for these children than is the Harry Chan Ward in the Darwin Hospital. The availability of educational facilities for these children is one that has not escaped my department's notice. There has been a great deal of discussion on this. I understand that my colleague, the Minister for Education, has been involved in some discussions too. The honourable member said that transfer to Palmerston would remove the children from the facilities of Henbury school. We are talking about children who are not particularly mobile and who have some rather severe handicaps. So far as their place of abode is concerned, being at Palmerston is not greatly different from being in the Harry Chan Ward at the Darwin Hospital. Mr Speaker, the important thing for my department to do in cooperation with the Department of Education is to ensure that children have the special education facilities available to them where they need them. My prime concern is to see that children are accommodated and nursed in the most suitable environment. I have great difficulty accepting the premise that the Darwin Hospital is a better environment than the rural setting that the children are going to be exposed to down at Palmerston. So I can assure the honourable member that I am aware of her concern. I do not share her concern at this time and I know my colleague the Minister for Education and I will be monitoring the situation very closely to see that the children to which we are referring receive any facility that we can offer them and in the best way.

Land at Myilly Point

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

He will be aware that an area of land at Myilly Point, formerly held by the Defence Department, was relinquished to the Northern Territory government. In fact, it was considered as a possible site for the future Parliament House. Is he aware that the Department of Defence is now actively considering building a defence facility on that area and that also a licensed restaurant is being considered for the area - I presume not with the defence facility?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am aware of interest being expressed by various parties in the portion of land the honourable member refers to. Until a firm proposal is made, no such comment can be made on the subject except to say that any proposal to develop the area would require a change of zoning. I think the area at the present time is zoned either 01 or 03 and, therefore, development would require rezoning. If the Commonwealth reached agreement with the Territory government that it should have the land for development, it would of course pay for the land because all land - other than land acquired by the Commonwealth at self-government under freehold - required by the Commonwealth is normally paid for at market rates unless some other pro rata arrangement has been agreed upon.

Citibank Guarantee of Government Funds

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Did Citibank seek a guarantee from the Northern Territory government for funds that it was to make available to North South Holdings for the construction of the gas pipeline between Palm Valley and Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question should be redirected to the Treasurer.

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Did Citibank seek a guarantee from the Northern Territory government for funds that it was to make available to North South Holdings for the construction of the gas pipeline between Palm Valley and Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think it would be totally inappropriate for me to enter into any discussion publicly on the negotiations that took place following the close of tenders for the first time for the transport of gas from Palm Valley to Alice Springs. There has been 1 brief statement put out by myself very carefully worded as to the reasons for the government deciding to cancel tenders and recall them. Prior to that time, there was quite a lot of activity in assessing tender submissions. As those tenders were all cancelled and have been recalled, I think that it would be totally inappropriate for me to discuss the matter further publicly.

Motor Vehicle Licences for 16-year-olds

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the minister's recent attendance at the Australian Transport Advisory Council and its professed involvement in the uniform approach to vehicles and driver regulations, what is the position of motor vehicle licences for 16-year-olds who live in the country and who cannot attend high school courses on driving?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question of 16-year-olds driving was not discussed at the recent ATAC conference. However, it is present policy that the licensing procedures for various agencies be reviewed. At this stage, the ministers of the various states do not intend proceeding with the issue of licences for students under the age of 16. However, it has been left to the states to decide what particular course of action they will adopt. I would be prepared to ask my department to prepare a submission for Cabinet with a view to investigating the possibility of issuing driver's licences in certain cases to 16-year-olds. However, such a licence would not be able to be used in any other state at the moment. I will take it on board and come up with some kind of documentation for Cabinet consideration.

NTDC Audit Procedures

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Is it a standard practice of the Northern Territory Development Corporation to request audits on the accounts of companies to which it is considering giving loans or guarantees?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the NTDC has a standard practice of obtaining all relevant financial information available to enable it to ascertain the extent to which it should assist a borrower. I believe that the practice is being carried out in every case.

Government Blocks near Kahlin

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

My question relates to 5 blocks of land which front the old Darwin Hospital area overlooking Kahlin. The government owns these blocks. Has the government considered selling these blocks for residential purposes?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the blocks are indeed prime blocks of land in the Darwin sense but the government has not proposed selling them at this stage, although some interest in purchasing the land has been expressed by at least 1 party. The government proposes for the time being to keep the parcel of land around the old Darwin Hospital site intact. At the present time, the site is being studied. In the meantime, the land is not available for public release.

NTDC Guarantee for Alice Springs Hotel Construction

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Is the proposal by the Central Australian Development Company to construct a hotel in Alice Springs to proceed and, if so, has the Northern Territory Development Corporation guaranteed all or any of the money required for the project?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the proposal the honourable member refers to in Alice Springs has some hurdles to overcome before it can be finalised, not the least of which is the area of land proposed to be developed in Alice Springs, which comprises at the present time the Alice Springs golf course - held under a special purpose lease. The development is constrained somewhat by claims of sacred sites in the area. In this regard, negotiations have been going on, though not very successfully, for some time. Apart from that, the financing arrangements for a major hotel in the area have been under discussion for some time by all sorts of interested parties. It is too early for us to say exactly when it will go ahead or the terms under which government assistance might be provided to that particular project because that will depend on where funds are to come from, who are to be the final owners of the project and how it is to be specifically financed. Certainly, as a matter of government policy, a major international-class hotel in Alice Springs would receive government support.

Top End Gun Club Application for Land

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has a final decision been made to grant a block of land, part of a section on Girraween Road in 100 of Bagot, to the Top End Gun Club?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Top End Gun Club was advised in April this year that application for the site had lapsed through problems that we had with the site. The site does not have adequate access at present. To provide access to the site would involve a crossing over the Howard River which could be very expensive. The department felt it would be inappropriate to give a substantial area of land to a gun club or any other club if it did not have adequate access to the property. Very shortly, there would be continuous pressure upon the government to assist with or provide access, no doubt at some considerable expense. An alternative area of land was offered to the gun club at Berry Springs. However, this was rejected out of hand by the club. It was informed in October 1981 that its original application had lapsed because it had been rejected for a particular purpose. It can be assured that, from the Department of Lands' point of view, the file on that matter had closed. Until solutions to the problem can be overcome, the matter will stay closed unless the gun club seeks to resurrect it and provide some more answers.

Buntine Group - Investigation by Garraway and Partners

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Who commissioned the preliminary investigation by Garraway and Parteners, Chartered Accounts, into the activities of the Buntine Group of companies and was this report commissioned and received?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the member to place his question on notice.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

In view of the published policy of the Northern Territory Development Corporation that it does not see as its role the provision of assistance to general transport operations, what was the justification for the provision of assistance by way of guarantee to the Buntine group? By way of a footnote, may I inform the minister that this published policy is to be found on page 6 of the Northern Territory Development Corporation Annual Report for the year ending 30 June 1981.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the policies of the Northern Territory Development Corporation need to be flexible from time to time. If there are serious economic conditions prevailing in which the government sees that assistance should be provided, the government would take a decision in that respect. Obviously, the board of the corporation is not the sole decision-making body in respect of those sorts of decisions.

Sewage Ponds near Gulnare Road

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has reconsideration been given to the decision to build sewage ponds at the end of Gulnare Road?

ANSWER

There are other options open to the government. One of those options is to construct a small sewage treatment plant in the vicinity of the Humpty Doo village which the sewerage system will service.

Palm Valley Gas Pipeline

Mr BELL to TREASURER

I refer him to his previous answer in which he suggested that there had been a lengthy contractual process associated with the construction of the Palm Valley to Alice Springs pipeline and his reason given in the Assembly and in the media that this was due at least in part to the protracted negotiations. Is he able to give a specific deadline to substantiate his allegation that the time involved was due to the protracted negotiations with the land council?

ANSWER

I can inform the honourable member that the documents have not been signed yet.

NTDC Assistance to Building Industry

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Can he inform of the progress made by the Northern Territory Development Corporation in assisting the Territory's building industry in gaining contracts in Malaysia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the NTDC has considered the question of assisting the private sector establish a relationship with Brunei in respect of the resettlement program being undertaken in that country. In recent weeks, the Chief Minister advised the Assembly of assistance he has provided to a company in its negotiations with that country. At this stage, there is no other information which I am able to report.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Mr LEO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Was the NTDC informed by the current owners of the Buntine Group of efforts to sell their operations to Sabah interests and of the Foreign Investments Review Board's objections to that proposal? If so, was the Territory government prepared to support such a move by Buntine's to sell their operation to interests outside of Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of any such information. In respect to the Foreign Investments Review Board, I am not aware what role it would have in the sale of an Australian company to Sabah. I have no information on that.

Bus for Jabiru School

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In view of the fact that 20 children travel to the Jabiru School by private vehicles from Mudginberri Station, Jabiluka and the Border Store, and that this will rise to 24 next month, will he endeavour to look into the question of providing a school bus for these children?

ANSWER

There are 2 criteria which are used by the department in making a judgment as to whether or not a school bus will be provided. Firstly, there must be sufficient numbers and the numbers must be sufficiently stable. As the honourable member would be aware, at the moment, there are about 25 Aboriginal children and 6 European children travelling from the Mudginberri area to Jabiru School. The problem is that it is an extremely unstable population. The children's families frequently move between Jabiru, Mudgingerri, Cannon Hill, Oenpelli and other places. That is one consideration which is to be taken into account. The second consideration is that the cost of providing transport subsidy to the parents should be more than the cost of running a bus. Those particular criteria have not yet been reached but the department is monitoring the situation and, when all those factors come together, certainly we would consider the provision of a bus.

Appointee to Gove District Hospital Board

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Given that applications for the position vacant on the Gove District Hospital Board closed on 4 June, could he give some indication when the new appointment is likely to be made?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I shall announce the name of the person who is to fill the position this week. In explanation as to why the matter took so long, there was an earlier applicant who agreed to undertake the job and subsequently withdrew. The matter then had to be reconsidered.

Accommodation for Psychiatric Patients in South Australia

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has final agreement been reached with the South Australian government regarding accommodation for some long-term psychiatric patients in South Australian institutions?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, so far as I understand, the South Australian government and the Northern Territory have had a long-standing relationship over some 15 years whereby South Australia has provided psychiatric accommodation for people from the Northern Territory. That relationship still exists. Over the years, South Australia has been very helpful to the Northern Territory government by helping to place psychiatric patients. We pay for the service that we receive from the South Australian government in this regard. I have no knowledge of any proposal to change the arrangement and I expect it to continue.

Game Fishing Industry in Northern Territory

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY INDUSTRY

A discussion paper on the game fishing industry was distributed earlier this year. What action has the government taken to support the game fishing industry in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, a report called Game Fishing Prospects in Northern Territory Waters was brought down in April 1982. This was a discussion paper. It appears that there are prospects for game fishing in the areas west of Bathurst Island near the Cootamundra Shoal and, more significantly according to this report, the area about Cape Wessell and Truant Bank near Nhulunbuy. There has been much interest expressed to myself and to the department in respect of game fishing and talks are being undertaken at this present time to enable the government to plan just what its efforts during 1982-83 will be.

Nightcliff Dental Clinic

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it still his intention to close the Nightcliff Dental Clinic and, if so, is it a fact that that will result in the reduction of available Department of Health dentists in the Northern suburbs from 5 to 2?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I had intended to answer the honourable member's question at the end of question time this morning. The present position is that we have at Nightcliff Dental Clinic 3 dentists and at Sanderson Dental Clinic 2 dentists. After amalgamation at Casuarina Plaza, there will be 2 dentists. The explanation for that from the department is that the analysis of the monthly workload statistics for the Nightcliff Dental Clinic shows that the dentists there are underemployed and that a review of the total workload at Nightcliff and Sanderson Dental Health Clinics suggests that there is enough curative work for no more than 2 dentists.

NTDC Loan to Mode Office Services

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Did the NTDC make a loan or provide a guarantee to Mode Office Services and was this loan or guarantee secured by company assets?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of that company name.

Consultant for NT Prawn Fishery

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

This is a repeat of a question which I asked last week without getting an answer. The Department of Primary Production employed in February this year a consultant whose specific task was to develop a management plan for the Northern Territory's prawn fishery. Is he yet in a position to advise what progress has been made by that consultant?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the short answer is no.

School at Mudginberri

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Will a school be re-established at Mudginberri for children who live there and who currently travel from there to the Jabiru School?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I answered that question in passing when I answered the question in relation to the school bus. The answer to her question at this stage is that it is not proposed to reopen the school at Mudginberri for the very reasons I have just given; that is, the student population of that area is extremely unstable. It varies from 5 to 30 and it would be quite impossible to establish a school given those circumstances. It is also to be borne in mind that children in a place like Mudginberri with a fairly close large school like Jabiru benefit very much from being transported to that school. They have the benefit of the better facilities which can be made available in a larger school as opposed to a 1 or 2 teacher school.

Mr Speaker, the subject is one for judgment from time to time. At this stage, it is not contemplated to reopen the school at Mudginberri which was closed in 1981. As at 27 July, there were 6 European and 25 Aboriginal children being transported but that number could so vary as to make provision of a school at this time unwise.

Territory Students Attending Universities Interstate

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for EDUCATION

During the March sittings, I asked him if the Education Department had any intention of assisting tertiary students who have to attend compulsorily university at odd times of the year? I have not had an answer to that yet. Does the government have any intention of assisting people who have to attend compulsorily university for a short period twice a year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there is no proposal currently before government in this particular matter. I would certainly be prepared to investigate the matter further and perhaps discuss the issue with the honourable member. It is worthy of examination.

Investigation into Movement of Teachers within the NT

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In view of the much publicised problems at Katherine High School in respect of turnover of staff recently, has the department commissioned an investigation and report on the movement of teachers within the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there have been many inquiries held at regional superintendent or regional director level and by the Teaching Service Commissioner in conjunction with principals. As I have indicated to the Assembly before, the reasons vary greatly. Just as an aside, there is a lot of fuss in relation to housing procedures in Alice Srpings and the belief in some people's minds that it is one cause for the instability of teachers in that area. It is interesting to note that, of all the teachers who have left the Alice Springs High School this year, not one has given accommodation as the reason for leaving. As I indicated, the most common reason for teachers leaving is that they obtain a position in one of the states having merely used the NT as a stop-gap employment. There can be family reasons. A teacher may decide to teach in the Territory for a couple of years and then use the Northern Territory as a stepping-stone to South-east Asia or England. The reason given is very rarely dissatisfaction with our system. That happens but it is extremely rare. Most teachers leave for family reasons or because they used us as a source of employment for a short-term period.

Mr Speaker, the Teaching Service Commissioner, the secretary of the department and I are particularly concerned about the matter, as indeed is the government. It is for this reason that the Treasurer announced yesterday the scheme that the government is to introduce by way of scholarships to try and bring stability into the Teaching Service principally through training our own teachers as far as we have the capacity to do so, and encouraging people to train in the southern institutions with a specific intention of coming to the Northern Territory. As the Treasurer announced, we are going to provide financial assistance for that.

Housing Commission Units in Fannie Bay

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Some 24 Housing Commission home units were completed in Fannie Bay near Kurringal about 2 months ago and have been vacant since that time. In view of the difficulties being experienced by the Housing Commission in selling these units and the shortage of low-cost accommodation in Darwin, how long will the minister wait before making these units available for rental accommodation?

ANSWER

The honourable member is obviously aware that it is government policy to sell these particular units rather than rent them. We feel that Kurringal has enough persons renting accommodation without renting more in that area. However, I will inquire into the matter of how long they have been vacant and whether they have been actually handed over. I am not quite sure about that. They have certainly been finished for a while. Sometimes it takes a while for contractors to finalise units to the degree that the commission is prepared to formally accept them. I will inquire also as to the level of interest from persons the Housing Commission has approached - firstly, existing tenants and, secondly, prospective tenants. I will then report to the honourable member.

Medical Staffing in Barkly Region

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

What is the level of medical staffing at present offered in Tennant Creek and the Barkly region? How does this compare with staffing a year ago and what are the future plans for staffing health services for Tennant Creek and the Barkly region?

ANSWER

I would think that there are some 200 people with the responsibility of delivering health care to Tennant Creek and the Barkly region. I do not carry the information about all of those positions in my head. I ask the member to place his question on notice and I will answer it in detail.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

On the basis of his recent statement in a government press release that the Buntine group had been provided with a guarantee at mid-1981, can he inform the Assembly whether a guarantee was in fact given in mid-1981 and, if so, was that guarantee replaced by a mortgage debenture entered into by the NTDC in February 1982?

Mr SPEAKER: The honourable the Chief Minister.

ANSWER

This is quite clearly a question of a legal nature and I reply with the question: how can a guarantee be replaced by a mortgage debenture?

Access to Alice Springs Pool

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he received any response yet from the Alice Springs Town Council regarding the proposed one-way access from Telegraph Terrace into the swimming pool car-park?

ANSWER

The answer is no. However, I expect officers of the Department of Transport and Works and members of the council to discuss this proposal some time this week.

Low-cost Housing Display for Central Australia

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HOUSING

Has he considered sponsoring a low-cost housing display village for central Australia along the lines of the low-cost housing display at Karama?

ANSWER

The answer is no. I can refer the matter to the Housing Commission which keeps a constant eye on the initiatives that government might take in regard to the construction of low-cost housing. The exercise undertaken at Karama was really to see what the private sector could come up with in terms of low-cost housing. It was a proposal assisted by government financially but, primarily, it was to give designers and builders the opportunity of building such accommodation to see what public support such designs received. The intention was that it would lead to the construction of those houses on a bigger scale, not just for their display to the public. However, I will refer the matter to the Housing Commission to consider what low-cost housing initiatives it might take in centres other than Darwin.

Promotion of Territory Fruit and Vegetables

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has he any plans to promote Territory fruit and vegetables in centres other than Darwin?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government plans to promote Territory grown fruit and vegetables in other centres. It may not be possible to do so in 1982 but planning for displays will take place in 1983.

First Year Apprentices

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What arrangements have been made for the trade training of first year apprentices in the fields of electronics, TV and radio repairs and small business machines whose employers were notified yesterday that their second semester bloc release due to start on Monday has been cancelled?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this matter was first brought to my attention by the honourable member this morning. As I understand the matter, the Industries Training Commission was informed by the Darwin Community College on Friday 27 August that the course would not be conducted this year. The consequences to employers and employees alike would be obvious. If they were to pick up the time missed in that course next year, there would be something like a 4 months' absence from employment by those apprentices. The information I have been given is that the college uses - and I use that word deliberately - the excuse that it has been unable to employ an appropriate lecturer. I have been told by the college that it expects to employ an appropriate lecturer on 13 September. Whether that happened this morning as a result of the fuss between my office, the member for Nightcliff, the ITC and the community college, I do not know. Nonetheless, I am told that a lecturer will be employed on 13 September. As a result, the course will be conducted this year.

I make the observation that, on a number of occasions, I have spoken in this Assembly on the question of ministerial control over the activities of the Darwin Community College. It is quite clearly the view of this Assembly that autonomy should attach to the community college and that political interference should not apply. I wonder where one's duty starts and where one's duty ends. It seems to me that, every time there is a problem in the delivery of courses in the Darwin Community College, the people who are affected are trade trainees. I rarely, if ever, get a problem with the dreamy stuff of advanced education, desirable as it may be. Surely the essential duty of that college should lie with TAFE and trade training. Mr Speaker, I give notice here that I intend calling a full meeting of the Darwin Community College Council to thrash this matter out once and for all. Quite frankly, Mr Speaker, if I am not satisfied with the outcome of that meeting, and not satisfied as to improved performance as far as these young people go, then I will go back to Cabinet with a proposition to change the act.

Children Taking Work Experience with Police Force

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the position regarding children taking work experience with the police force whose parents are required to sign an indemnity form? How does this affect normal third party insurance?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question of the honourable member for Tiwi apparently relates to children engaged in work experience with the police force by riding in police cars and whether, having signed some form of indemnity in respect of compensation cover in relation to the general activities they might engage in with the police force, they are covered by the provisions of the Motor Accidents (Compensation) Act. The situation is that children who ride in police cars are not excluded from obtaining benefits whether under the general provisions of the Motor Accidents (Compensation) Act, allowing lump sum compensation, or from bringing an action for pain and suffering or loss of amenities. Nor would the indemnity prevent the parent bringing a claim or action as next of kin of the child.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

It was stated in a recent press release from the minister that the Buntine Group had been provided with a guarantee in mid-1981 by the NTDC. Will the minister now confirm that this is the case?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government at the time undertook to provide a guarantee in the middle of 1981.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Mr Speaker, I ask a supplementary question. Will he now inform the Assembly of the amount involved in the 1981 guarantee, the current position of that guarantee and the relationship between that guarantee and the guarantee given by the NTDC to the Buntine Group in February of this year.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to place the question on notice.

Fishing Legislation Exemption of Tiwi People

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

I would like to ask him if an exemption can be granted to the Tiwi Islanders so that they can take barramundi in the closed season - this is with an Al licence - because of their reliance on fish in their diet?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am advised that past experience shows that relatively few barramundi are taken in fish traps. The closed season applies only to professional fishermen and does not apply to fish traps. There are 3 licensed fish traps on Melville Island and interest has been expressed by the Garden Point Progress Association for a licence for a fish trap.

Public Service Home Loans Scheme

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

Is the minister aware that, on ABC television last night, the Secretary of the ACOA, Rod Ellis, criticised the government's decision to increase the public service staff home loans scheme interest rate by 1% in the budget? Is he further aware that the Secretary of the ACOA claimed this was grossly unfair because, under the government Home Loans Scheme for the public, there were many examples of people securing $100 000 loans at an interest rate of 4%?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I did not see the particular program. However, I was advised of the contents of the program and I regard the comments made by the union official as mischievous and outrageous. Even officials of the TLC and, more particularly, union officials of the ACOA, know that the government Home Loans Scheme applicable to the public has an absolute maximum of $50 000. It is only public servants who can obtain government loans in excess of that figure. A claim on television that people have obtained $100 000 loans at 4% is clearly nonsense and I challenge the officials to name one such person so that we can conduct an investigation, although it would be a rather fruitless investigation. Mr Speaker, only public servants in the Northern Territory can obtain government loans in excess of $50 000 and some have had loans in the vicinity of $100 000 under the very concessional interest rates which were outlined in the Assembly yesterday when I announced that the government had decided to increase interest rates by 1% on those loans. The comments last night on the radio were a very poor attempt to try to show public servants in a poor light, following the government's decision, by claiming that the Northern Territory government's public loan scheme is somehow vastly more generous, which it certainly is not.

Buntine Group and NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to his answer on Tuesday to a question on the position of the NTDC and the Buntine group. On the basis that the Chief Minister has examined the financial and legal aspects of the transaction concerning the NTDC's guarantee, can he assure the Assembly that there are no irregularities involved in the transfer of company shares from the Buntine group to Mr Dalziel?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I certainly would not like to pass an opinion on the nature of the transfer of shares from the Buntine family to Mr Dalziel and his cohorts as new owners of the Buntine group of companies. That is not something for me to venture an opinion on at this stage. In any event, Mr Speaker, you would be aware that Standing Orders preclude the asking of a question that seeks a legal opinion. Should this matter have to go further, then obviously it is going to be subject to litigation. One point I would like to make very clearly is that there is no suggestion at this stage that the NTDC has been called on by Citibank, under the guarantee, and so there is no suggestion, at this stage, that the NTDC will have to expend one penny. The NTDC has already sought legal advice from the Department of Law as to what the situation would be if it were called on by Citibank. I do not know if Citibank will, in fact, be able to call on it until such time as the receiver has arrived at some firmer stage of the affairs in relation to what is to be the future of the Buntine Group: whether it is to be sold as a going concern or whether it is to be sold for its assets. At that time, obviously, the likelihood of creditors being paid out of the assets of the group will become a lot clearer. I guess Citibank's course of action will become clearer to it and observers. At that time, obviously the Northern Territory Development Corporation will have to make known its attitude to Citibank in respect of any guarantee that may have been made.

At this stage, I am not prepared to disclose the nature of the legal advisings that are presently being given to the NTDC in respect of the whole transaction. Suffice to say that the government legal advisers, with whom I have been discussing this matter, and I have decided to adopt a very conservative attitude at this stage. I believe it is far too soon to make any prognosis as to whether the government will have to pay or the NTDC will have to pay one penny in respect of the Buntine group's problems.

A number of aspects of this whole affair concern me. The opposition has indicated, by a press release issued by the honourable member for Sanderson, that it does not question the granting of the guarantee to the Buntine group. It is only concerned with the veil of secrecy that shrouds the whole affair. If the opposition does not question the granting of the guarantee to the Buntine group, why are we in receipt of all these questions that relate specifically to financial matters, dates etc? If it is only interested in the veil of secrecy, then why not realise that the government and the NTDC are certainly not going to show their hand at this stage as to the attitude that will be taken in respect of the guarantee. Guarantees are always subject to certain conditions. In our view, we have to examine the whole transaction - and it may be that a court will have to examine the whole transaction - to see that all conditions of the granting of the guarantee are met. I think it is far too early to begin to make any definite statements, one way or the other, about these matters.

I consider that the opposition is doing the Territory taxpayer a grave disservice by attempting to weasel out on fishing expeditions the sort of facts that can only help people who want to take money from the taxpayer. Mr Speaker, if the opposition is genuinely interested in Territory development, it will realise that commercial transactions require a degree of confidentiality. I said yesterday, and I have said before, that anyone who wants to know about most commerical transactions can at least find out the bare bones of them by walking round to the Titles Office and the Companies Office. Unfortunately, a lot of people who walk round there cannot read the things or understand them when they get them.

The situation is that, if we are seeking to attract investment to the Territory, businesses, companies and investors like to believe that there is a degree of confidentiality attaching to their transactions. Whether that is in fact true or not is not the case. These companies, these investors, like to think that they will not be all over the front, back or middle page of the paper. It happens here in the Northern Territory at the drop of a hat. Every single issue in this Territory and every matter of Territory development is sought to be politicised by the opposition and sought to be politicised by the tuppenny rag that we have that circulates as a newspaper in Darwin. If that sort of thing continues, we will drive potential investors away. In this time of world recession, I would have thought that Territorians would have been glad to be getting money, so long as it is clean money, from wherever it can in the world. I have no objections to the Russians or the Chinese investing in the Northern Territory. We have been advised by the opposition in the past to send delegations to China. But apparently, money coming from a member of the British Commonwealth, Malaysia, is suspect although money coming from China would not be. If we want jobs and development in this Territory, then we will have to be prepared to meet some of the requirements of the people who want to invest here. The people who want to invest here want to do it quietly without newspapers being sold and opposition politicians' egos being gratified every time they want to carry out some transaction which is creating jobs for Territorians.

Soil Sampling Surveys on Oolloo Station

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What soil sampling surveys were carried out on Oolloo Station prior to its acquisition and what were the results of these surveys?

ANSWER

I understand that soil sampling has been undertaken in that Daly River basin since the early 1960s. In the debate that will ensue this morning, some of the details of the earlier relationship between Oolloo and the government of the day will be mentioned. I am assured by the Chairman of the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority that sufficient soil samples were taken to ascertain the extent of arability of Oolloo in respect of government plans and I am satisfied with that information.

Sporting Complex in Katherine

Mr VALE to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

Can he advise if the Northern Territory government has yet reached any agreement with the Katherine Town Council over the proposed purchase of the sporting complex in Katherine owned by D. and K. Fracaro?

ANSWER

Last week, I was asked a question in regard to the sporting complex in Katherine and the government's attitude to Katherine council's proposal for 2 to 1 funding. I mentioned that I would be discussing that proposal with my Cabinet colleagues. Since making that statement, I received a telegram from the Mayor of the Katherine Town Council saying that, unless the Northern Territory government were able to purchase the facility outright and presumably hand it to them on a plate, they would be unable to proceed with the proposal. I spoke to the Mayor and tried to ascertain the council's final position. There was a council meeting during the week. I would like to read this into Hansard so that we can put this matter to rest once and for all:

> Re the Katherine Sporting Complex, the following motion was passed with a 4-3 majority on Monday 30 August 1982: that the Council seek full funding for the purchase of the Katherine Sporting Complex and ongoing annual operation deficit funding for the sporting complex.
> Regards,
> The Mayor, Pat Davies.

I am unable to proceed with this particular proposal because, when I first started discussing this with the Mayor and other people in Katherine, it was with the view that the Northern Territory government would provide some financial assistance, presumably the 2 to 1 funding. In light of this recent decision made by the council, I am unable to proceed with it. As far as I am concerned, the matter will rest.

Buntine Group

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he prepared to make available to me, on a confidential basis, the preliminary investigation into the financial state of the Buntine group of companies conducted by Garraway and Partners?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would be prepared to make that document available to the honourable member on a confidential basis so long as it is confidential to her, personally, alone, and no copies are made or taken of it.

Arafura Hostel Site

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

The large area of land formerly occupied by the Arafura Hostel at Parap, which has been vacant for 4½ years, was passed in when offered at auction earlier this year. The government subsequently called for expressions of interest from possible developers. What is the current state of proposals to develop this land?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have an up-to-date brief on this subject before me. However, I can recall that, subsequent to that auction, we received a number of expressions of interest from persons who felt that, if some arrangement could be entered into between developers and the government over payment for the land, other than the full cash price up-front as is the case at auctions, there may be parties interested in taking it up. As a result, I formally withdrew the land from sale over the counter, where it automatically goes after an auction if it is passed in. It is then vacant Crown land in the city and can be applied for by virtually any party which can meet certain requirements. The government can then negotiate with any party on the sale of the land. Negotiations are proceeding with developers on this particular proposal and I hope, in the near future, to be in a position to come to an agreement to sell the land to a developer for the original purpose of subdividing and developing it.

Darwin Rural Plan

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When will the Darwin Rural Plan be adopted?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think that there is some confusion in the rural community about the rural plan. There is in fact a rural plan that was adopted some time ago. However, there has been some action on substantial amendments to the plan of late. I think that that has created some confusion in the minds of people who presently think they do not have a formal rural plan when in fact they do.

However, an amendment to the rural plan went on display for 42 days on 21 October 1981. This was to extend planning control into that part of the 32-square-mile acquisition area outside Palmerston and also to reduce the number of consent uses for which advertising and environmental impact statements were required. The instrument and submissions received were considered by the Rural Planning Authority in February this year. As a result, various further amendments were made. At the same time, because of the proposed village centre development at Humpty Doo, it became necessary to make further amendments to the zoning tables into varied clauses of the plan. Consequently, the Rural Planning Authority at its meeting on 17 June 1982 resolved to recommend rejection of the draft planning instrument - that was DR2 - and to seek a more comprehensive amendment to the rural plan. This more comprehensive document, DR4, went on display on 4 August 1982 and will be displayed for 56 days.

I can assure the honourable member that there is a formal rural plan at the present time. It could certainly do with the amendments proposed in the draft amendment that is on display at the present time. I do urge people in the rural area to take a keen interest in this amendment. It is comprehensive and it makes submissions to the Rural Planning Authority.

Advertising Campaign on Land Rights Act

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to his national advertising campaign regarding proposed amendments to the federal Aboriginal Land Rights Act. Which firm provided the artwork and composing of the advertisements? I understand that no expressions of interest were sought from local people in the Territory skilled in this trade.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the position in relation to this national advertising campaign in respect of the Northern Territory and Commonwealth governments' proposals - and I emphasise that they are the Commonwealth government's proposals as well as the Northern Territory's proposals - for amendments to the Aboriginal Land Rights Act is that there is at present no advertising agency as such established in the Territory. For that reason, it was necessary to seek expressions of interest from advertising agencies elsewhere. The Territory government sought proposals from 2 agencies in Sydney which were selected for us by southern people with some experience in this field. We are not professing to have a great deal of experience in the area ourselves.

I cannot remember the names of both agencies. One was a particularly large agency whose name is almost a household word and, unfortunately, I forget it. The other was a small agency and the proprietor's name is Rodney Silver. In fact, both agencies came to the Territory to submit their proposals to the government. We elected to accept the proposals of the Rodney Silver agency. It of course handles its artwork in house and the whole thing was prepared in the submission and it was simply a matter of converting the submission into newspaper ads. I really do not think that, in the circumstances, there was any possibility of the artwork being handled in the Territory because it was a package of 1 advertisement. It is pretty hard to split that up too many ways.

Mt Ebenezer School

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I refer him to my comments about the problems at Mt Ebenezer in a previous adjournment debate. Will he undertake to investigate as a matter of urgency, firstly, the provision of a second school caravan and, secondly, adequate transport for children at that school?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the matter is currently under review.

Use of Water in Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of water restrictions a couple of months ago in Jabiru and in view of the Territory campaign to use water thriftily, can he tell me if the Jabiru Town Development Authority or its contractors will continue to wash down the Jabiru roads after they have already been swept?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, even though I would not have thought that the roads at Jabiru are in need of resealing, nonetheless, I am told that the answer to this question is that the Jabiru Town Development Authority is embarking on a road resealing program as part of its final construction of roads in the town. Before resealing with bitumen, it is essential to remove from the road surfaces all dirt, clay etc which, in some places, is now deposited as a very hard layer. In many areas, it has been impossible to remove this clay with a rotary broom and it has been necessary to wash the material from the roads to be resealed. The authority does not intend to wash roadways in the town as a continuing practice and intends to economise on the use of water to the maximum extent possible. There are no water restrictions in the town.

Child Welfare Legislation

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

We have now been waiting for the new child welfare legislation for 4 years. Can he indicate when it will be ready for presentation in the Assembly?

ANSWER

Cabinet has now settled the drafting instructions which are with the legislative draftsman. I hope to be able to introduce both of these bills at the next sittings.

Oolloo Station

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is it a fact that the majority of Oolloo Station is limestone country which is excellent for grazing and hopeless for cropping?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not know if that is a fact or not but certainly there is a lot of limestone country in that general area. Certainly, it would be useless for cropping. Like all the land in that area, the arable parts have to be selected, as we found in the case of the other acquisition to provide the first 2 farms.

Permissible Blood Alcohol Level

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has the minister given any consideration to reducing the permissible blood alcohol level from 0.08 to 0.05?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer is no. I wonder why the honourable member for Port Darwin has asked me that question. At the moment, the legislation we have regarding 0.08 or random breath-testing is due for consideration some time next year regarding continuation, reintroduction or amendment. At the moment, such a reduction is not under consideration.

Development in Bees Creek Area

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In reply to a question I asked earlier in the week concerning a proposal to build sewage ponds at the end of Gulnare Road, he advised that Gulnare Road would eventually become a distributor road. At present, Gulnare Road is about 20 m wide and a distributor road is normally 30 m to 35 m wide. Does this mean that there are likely to be further excisions or easements on properties along Gulnare Road and what proposals for development are envisaged in the Bees Creek Area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was under the impression that I gave the honourable member for Victoria River a comprehensive answer because I had some forewarning of the question. Since the last sittings, I have received representations from the Bees Creek area regarding water and road problems there. I will undertake to set up a meeting between officers of the Department of Transport and Works Water and Road Divisions with residents to discuss the problem. I understand officers are already making the necessary arrangements.

Gulnare Road will eventually become a major service road. At present, the department is only taking the necessary steps to allow future widening and development of the road. I would be pleased to take the point up with the honourable member after the sittings. Maybe he could discuss with officers of the Department of Transport and Works the future development.

Role of NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Is it a fact that the NTDC is a lender of last resort to assist the establishment of new industry and can he further confirm that it is not the purpose of the NTDC to assist businesses to compete with those already established in the Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think it is an established fact that the NTDC judges every application on its merit. It is clear that, in respect of hotels, there might be a need to support additional hotel-motel accommodation.

Racing and Gaming Commission

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Does the Racing and Gaming Commission assess the accuracy of bookmakers' declared turnovers and, if such assessments have been done, what are the results?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as honourable members would know, it is virtually impossible to accurately assess the accuracy of turnover that bookmakers declare to the government. As is the case with a number of other industries, the information received by the Racing and Gaming Commission from bookmakers is in the form of returns on their weekly turnover. The Racing and Gaming Commission keeps as close an eye as it can on this matter. Indeed, there have been prosecutions of late. Honourable members would know of a particular bookmaker who was found to be not declaring all the turnover he was receiving. In addition, the Racing and Gaming Commission does have a close liaison with interstate policing agencies who keep an eye on bookmakers' activities and illegal punting activities interstate. Certain information is exchanged between those bodies which is very useful to the Racing and Gaming Commission in keeping an eye on bookmakers' turnover in the Northern Territory.

It is one of those situations that could be related to the SP operations interstate. It is an area that governments and police forces have found very difficult to police properly. Estimates of SP operations interstate are quite enormous. We had a recent report that estimated the SP operations in Victoria, for example, as equivalent almost to the legal TAB operations in that state. I am not sure what the government particularly could do further to keep this matter under close control. It was suggested to me by a gentleman the other day that we could legalise phone tapping of bookmakers' phones. This would not be very popular not only with bookmakers but also with many people in the community who would see such moves by governments spreading to other areas.

Sewerage Lines in Millner

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Will a program of sewerage line rehabilitation be undertaken in the suburb of Millner in this financial year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have had some forewarning of this question. The advice I have is that it is necessary continuously to rehabilitate sewerage systems. There is a $500 000 item on the 1982-83 capital works program for stage 1 of the rehabilitation of the Darwin sewerage system. It is still necessary to determine the area which needs the most attention and the Department of Transport and Works is investigating that at the moment. Therefore, I am unable to say whether any work on the sewerage system in Millner will take place this financial year.

However, there will be some upgrading of sewerage headworks in the Millner area. Until the Water Division can satisfy me that there will be very little disruption caused by upgrading sewerage services in that area, I find it very difficult to proceed. The proposal, at this stage, is that it will upgrade the sewerage right throughout Millner, Tiwi and other parts of the Northern suburbs. Virtually this will involve entry to every house block and digging up swimming pools and chidken runs which have been placed on easements illegally. I have asked my department to make a survey to determine how extensive the work will be in that area. When land is issued for sale for residential use, easements are put there for a particular reason. When the time comes to upgrade sewerage lines in any area, there will be problems. Therefore I have asked my department to undertake a survey to find out how extensive the interruptions will be on those easements. We will take it from there.

It is a very sensitive area. I believe that a good public relations exercise must be entered into. I think every householder should be consulted. As the law stands at the moment, the cost of upgrading sewerage works on a particular property is borne by the owner of that block. The main sewerage lines are placed by the government but expenses involved with the sewerage line to a residence should be borne by the occupier. It is very sensitive. I assure honourable members that I will not proceed until I am quite sure that there will be very little disruption to the people living in the area.

Farm-fuel Projects

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is the government giving any encouragement to farm-fuel projects and can he give brief details?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to place her question on notice.

Central Zone Sewerage Plant at Ludmilla

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

No money has been allocated in the capital works program to upgrade or modify the central zone sewerage treatment plant at Ludmilla. What decision has been taken with regard to this plant following a study of problems associated with it conducted by his department earlier this year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there is an upgrading taking place right now. Most members living in the northern suburbs who drive along Dick Ward Drive will see that a new facility has been constructed alongside the old facility. As far as the treatment plant itself is concerned, the study is continuing. It was complicated by a proposal by an entrepreneur in Darwin to develop the area and provide a residential housing estate. The proposal would have involved moving the treatment plant, converting it to a pumping station or even putting in another sewerage line probably to come out somewhere in the Berrimah area, which is where the new treatment ponds have been established. Because of the delays regarding that particular development proposal, the department has conducted a very low-key operation. We understand the developer will not now proceed and the department has rethought possibilities for upgrading the Ludmilla treatment plant.

Road Improvement Requirements in Central Australia

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer to a public statement made by the Chief Minister regarding a meeting at Ayers Rock on 7 and 8 June between central Australian outstation groups and the Aboriginal Development Commission Chairman, Mr Charles Perkins. Has the minister sent a questionnaire to all major Aboriginal communities in the Northern Territory seeking information on their requirements for road improvements, according to an undertaking contained in the Chief Minister's statement?

ANSWER

I made an announcement supporting the Chief Minister's approval at the recent meeting held at Kormilda College with Aboriginal land councils. I sent a letter to all these organisations requesting information on their needs regarding the upgrading of roads and other problems that they have had with roads. I am starting to receive some replies to those letters.

Tanning of Hides in the Northern Territory

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has any interest been expressed in tanning cattle hides in the Territory instead of sending the raw hides down south. Would the minister undertake to have his department investigate the possibilities of such an enterprise and promote the same if it seems feasible?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Northern Territory Development Corporation has called for expressions of interest in the establishment of a tannery in northern Australia. Some of the difficulties facing such a venture are the quality of hides, the distance from markets, the actual markets themselves and the damage to hides due to infestation of parasites. I will bring the honourable member up to date on the proposal when the information comes to hand.

Poll on Health Services in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Did the Health Department commission a poll on health services in Nhulunbuy and other places and, if so, will he make the results of that poll available to the Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am happy to confirm that one of the polling organisations is currently taking a sample in the Northern Territory and collecting information for the Health Department. I understand that the organisation concerned is also asking questions other than those commissioned by the Health Department. I cannot give him any indication as to whether that information would be available to us, but certainly the information that is coming to us so far as the Health Department is concerned would be freely available to him.

I would just like to put honourable members in the picture concerning the information we are seeking because it is quite important. Honourable members would be aware that about 62% of our population is entitled to free health care in the hospitals; that is, they qualify under the Department of Social Security's guidelines for free medical health. Therefore, the taxpayers of the Northern Territory foot the bill. That percentage is very much higher than any other state in Australia and it is one of the things that the Commonwealth considered in granting us the extra $4m. We really need to know about the other 38%. It is important that we get an understanding of how many people in that area are in health funds, what level of health care they are taking, what age groups they are in, where they live and why.

Let me just give honourable members a bit of background on this. After 9 months of the new system, we have already written off as a complete loss $200 000 to $300 000 worth of disputed hospital accounts. That is not a bad effort for the first 9 months and it is not unreasonable to assume that it will climb considerably. What we need to know is why people are not in health funds. Do they have financial difficulties? Don't they believe they will get sick? In the event of those people not being in health funds, what responsibility will fall on the taxpayers in general? We need to know the answers to those questions.

It is also important for the department to know where the people live. There may be a group in one particular town. Perhaps a special age group can be identified. It might be single parents or school leavers. It could be a whole range of things. We would like to identify where those people who are not in funds live, ascertain why they are not in funds and implement an advertising policy that would encourage people to take hospital cover. The risks are very great for the person who is not covered and the burden is also great for the taxpayer who has to pick up the bill.

The other important thing for us to know is what level of cover people have and why. Do people take a higher level of cover in the Northern Territory expecting to have private accommodation in our hospitals? If they do, are they aware that private accommodation is not available on demand? Alternatively, should we try to provide private accommodation in our hospitals?

Another consideration is in relation to the level of health care that people take. Do they take the minimal level of health care because that is all they can afford or do they have other reasons for doing that? The department is also keen to find out how often people in that 38% bracket use services, if they are happy with the services and, if they are not, what is their area of dissatisfaction. Is it the transportation? Is it the care? Is it the food, the medical service, the manner etc? What is it that people find unsatisfactory for the money that they have spent?

The Morgan Gallop poll people said to the department that they did not regard the information we were seeking important enough to justify a special poll and that they would include it when they were doing one some time. Also, they did not ordinarily go outside the metropolis of Darwin to obtain their information. On that basis, we undertook to pay the extra expenses in getting the information that we wanted in other towns because it is absolutely essential that we know what the patterns are in each of our communities.

Mr Speaker, I would just say to the honourable member, as I said a moment ago, the information is of a general nature. He is quite welcome to peruse it when it is all available and I think members generally would find it interesting to see what the attitudes of the community are towards health insurance and the levels of cover that they expect and we give.

Sewerage Pipes

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it the intention of his department to specify the long-lasting plastiline pipes in new and replacement sewerage lines?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is very difficult to answer the honourable member. However, I would imagine that the department, in deciding its specifications, would have a variety of options regarding sewerage pipes. I will undetake to obtain from the department further information and supply it to the honourable member later.

Marina in Sadgroves Creek

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

A newspaper report in May said that the government hoped within 2 months to have a firm proposal for a marina in the Sadgroves Creek area. What is the current state of that proposal?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would have to check on that newspaper article to see whether I was quoted correctly if, indeed, I am quoted as saying 'a firm proposal within 2 months'. When one starts looking at a new area not formerly looked at for a project as complex environmentally as a marina, it would be very unusual for me to say that a firm proposal would be around one way or the other within 2 months. Certainly, the government has been proceeding. Preliminary investigations indicate that the area is indeed suitable for a marina. Indeed, it may be suitable for a couple of developments that are marina related but complement each other.

Whilst that may sound a little confusing, the government proposes to collate more information, take these studies a stage further and, at a suitable time when firm decisions can be made, move to release them publicly. We will be discussing the matter with interested parties, including yachting people and those who have expressed interest in the subject. We will discuss their needs. The Port Authority, which has general jurisdiction over this area, will have an input. We will consider the systems of mooring which might be designed to enable Frances Bay and Sadgroves Creek to accommodate many more yachts than they do at the present time because of the long mooring system which is used at the present time. We will have regard to the size and strength of the tides. Systems have been recommended which would enable close mooring and that could increase greatly the mooring capacity of Sadgroves Creek.

As information which is firm enough to be released to the public becomes available, the government will be releasing it. At this stage, it is a bit premature to say a great deal about the detail of what is evolving.

National Aborigines Day

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

This is a repeat of a question from a previous sittings. Would he consider granting a Northern Territory public holiday on National Aborigines Day which falls on 9 July each year?

No answer given.

Water Accounts

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

After the recent increases in water charges, has he considered the introduction of twice-yearly water billing?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, honourable members would be aware that the Water Division employed a consultant by the name of W.D. Scott and Co to investigate how we could upgrade our services and save money. One of the recommendations from Scott was that half-yearly bills be implemented. At this stage, I have not addressed myself to that matter but will do so in the new year.

Infant Mortality Statistics

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In the past, following meetings of the Maternal and Infant Mortality Committee, infant mortality statistics for the Northern Territory used to be separately published by the Northern Territory Department of Health. Now that the department has ceased the habit of producing regular statistical bulletins, will he undertake to publish those statistics for the past year or table them in the Assembly?

ANSWER

Yes, Mr Speaker. I will take it up with the secretary of the department and see what we can do to obtain the information for honourable members.

Causeway at Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What progress has been made in negotiations with the Alice Springs Town Council regarding the promised causeway at the RSL crossing in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

From memory, the budget papers indicate that a figure of $200 000 has been set aside for the construction of that causeway. It is not a government-controlled road. The council will now be required to put forward an application for those funds in the normal way under the Financial Administration and Audit Act. Once it has drawn up the engineering specifications to its own satisfaction, the money can be paid by way of a special purpose grant to the council and the causeway will be constructed.

2. The Health Department is continuing a long-standing tuberculosis control program. This program is based on BCG vaccination, tuberculin skin test screening, active case finding, strict follow-up of cases and their contacts, together with surveillance of community groups known to be especially vulnerable to the disease.

   The 1980 results for the Northern Territory continue the steady decline in incidence, which was approximately 9 times the Australian rate in 1950.

2. Following the above review a comprehensive report was presented to the Minister for Community Development. The decision to continue the program was based on this review.

3. The departmental report was an internal document and will not be tabled in the Legislative Assembly.

Firearms, Security Guards

692 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What, in general terms, are the regulations governing the use of firearms by private security guards, and what type of training and level of competence in the use of firearms by private security guards is required in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

There are no regulations governing the use of firearms by private security guards specifically.

Private security guards have no greater authority, privileges or powers than that of private citizens, and are required to comply with all laws.

The government has considered the introduction of legislation for the registration of security firms and or security guards. Special legislation would not provide any special protection to the public, especially as the firearms legislation is flexible enough to control the issue of firearms licences to persons of acceptable character and to provide for the endorsement of licences of special conditions. The real problem is not so much competence in relation to the carriage and use of firearms as it is the circumstances under which firearms may be improperly carried or used thereby contravening the criminal law.

Section 164 of the draft criminal code now before the Assembly should remove much uncertainty now surrounding the use of force.

The relevant parts are as follows:

"164. CIRCUMSTANCES IN WHICH FORCE CAUSING DEATH OR GRIEVOUS BODILY HARM CAN BE USED

"In the circumstances following it is lawful to use force, not being unnecessary force, that will kill or cause grievous bodily harm and if, in such circumstnaces, death, grievous bodily harm or bodily harm results, that killing or that causing of grievous bodily harm or bodily harm is lawful -".

[(1) to (5) not relevant to security guards].

"(6) In the case of any person when acting in self-defence or in the defence of another, where the nature of the assault being defended is such as to cause reasonable apprehension of death or grievious bodily harm.".

No specific type of training or standard of competence in the use of firearms by private security guards has been determined but before such a licence is issued the person must satisfy police that he (a) is a fit and proper person to possess, carry and discharge firearms; (b) has an adequate understanding of the laws in force in the Territory relating to firearms; (c) has adequate training and experience in the discharging and safe handling of firearms and ammunition; and (d) if the application relates to a firearm class 'C', i.e. a pistol - has a sufficient reason to possess, carry and discharge a firearm class 'C'.

The existing practice is to issue, in most circumstances, a temporary licence which contains special conditions. The firearm legislation is flexible enough to permit any other conditions which might be appropriate to be added. In regard to competence in the use of firearms, all applicants are required to complete a questionnaire in which a theoretical knowledge and their use has to be demonstrated.

Negotiations are under way with security agencies to formulate a policy under which there would be a requirement for their employees to undertake firearms training under the auspices of appropriate organisations such as pistol clubs, etc.

This requirement could then become a condition of the permit or licence.

Life Sentences

693 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

In relation to life sentences imposed in the Territory, (a) how many persons are presently serving life sentences, (b) what is the average length of the actual sentence served, (c) are there any administrative procedures for the review of life sentences, and (d) if so, what are they?

ANSWER

(a) Two. One Northern Territory offender is presently serving life imprisonment in the Northern Territory whilst one is imprisoned in South Australia. An additional 2 Northern Territory offenders who were sentenced to life imprisonment were removed to South Australia but escaped lawful custody and have not been recaptured.

(b) No average length of actual sentence served by life prisoners can be given. The 4 persons referred to in (a) represent all offenders sentenced to life imprisonment by Northern Territory courts since 1964. As at 9 August 1982, the offender serving life imprisonment in the Northern Territory had just commenced her term of imprisonment whilst the Northern Territory offender serving a life sentence in South Australia will have served 5 years 11 months imprisonment. No other life sentence prisoners have gained release since 1964.

(c) There is an established administrative procedure for the review of life sentence prisoners held interstate. The development of administrative procedures for the review of life sentence prisoners held in the Northern Territory is still in progress.

(d) The release of life sentence prisoners held in South Australia pursuant to the Removal of Prisoners (Territories) Act is the prerogative of the Governor-General. The Commonwealth Attorney-General's Department has not yet requested that the Parole Board of the Northern Territory review the case of the one life sentence prisoner held in South Australia and no advisory recommendation in regard to his possible release has been supplied.

When procedures for the review of life sentence prisoners held in the Northern Territory have been adopted I will inform the Assembly of their nature.

Boundaries, Koolpinyah Station

696 Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

On 9 March 1982 he advised the Assembly that the matter of redrawing the boundaries of Koolpinyah Station was under consideration. Is he yet in a position to provide further information on this matter?

ANSWER

The advice of 9 March 1982 referred to in this question was provided by the honourable Minister for Primary Production. Nevertheless, I can advise the honourable member that the matter is still under consideration.

Farmers' Co-operative at Adelaide River

699 Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. How many people has the farmers' co-operative at Adelaide River employed on average over the last 5 years?
2. Have continuing accumulated debts from earlier years contributed to the fact that the co-operative is not now solvent?
3. Does the government have any plans for land development north of Adelaide River, or is it content to see blocks sold for real estate value as is occurring at the present time?

ANSWER

1. The NT Producers' Co-operative Ltd at Adelaide River has employed, on average, between 5 to 7 persons on a full-time basis over the last 5 years.

   During busy periods, up to 4 additional casual employees were employed by the co-operative at any one time.

2. The NT Producers' Co-operative Ltd has experienced trading difficulties for a number of years, despite government attempts to assist.

   Portion of the total liabilities of the co-operative are a result of the co-operative being an agent of the government, administering schemes of assistance prior to the establishment of ADMA.

   The co-operative is in a position where it is unable to trade its way out of its financial difficulties even if portion of the existing debt to government was written off. This situation has developed for a variety of reasons, including:

   - The lack of adequate management control, particularly over debtors.
   - Inconsistent quality control on stockfeeds, leading to a decision by its major customer to undertake its own feed milling operation.
   - The failure of the co-operative to cater for the expanding market for products required in the rural area close to Darwin.
   - The loss of fertilizer sales to a competitor based in Katherine.

   The co-operative failed to respond to the growth now being witnessed in the agricultural sector of the Territory, due to financial and managerial restraints, with the result that a substantial proportion of its business has been lost to competitors.

The co-operative's problems are a result of accumulated debts and inflexible management.

3. At present the government does not have any plans for land development north of Adelaide River, however, farmers who wish to participate in cropping activities in this area will be eligible for the normal types of assistance currently available.

Secondary Text Book Allowance

700 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Dingo Baiting

714 Mr MacFARLANE to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware of the concern of cattlemen that aerial baiting of dingoes with the poison 1080 is being scaled down and that the potency of the poison is being reduced?

ANSWER

The commission's policy has been and continues to be to assist with dingo control whenever necessary.

In reference to poison potency, the 1080 concentration being used in meat baits is continually monitored to ensure that only the target species is affected and is in line with most other states. Reductions in concentration done recently have been as a result of checks into continuous effectiveness.

Life Imprisonment

718 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. What is the effective sentence served by persons receiving life sentences?
2. What review procedures, if any, exist for the periodic review of life sentence detainees?
3. How many people are presently serving life sentences in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

1. No effective sentence served by persons receiving life sentences can be calculated because, of the 4 Northern Territory offenders sentenced to life imprisonment since 1964, none have gained lawful release. As at 9 August 1982, the longest serving Northern Territory life sentence prisoner had served 5 years 11 months imprisonment.
2. The release of Northern Territory life sentence prisoners held interstate pursuant to the Removal of Prisoners (Territories) Act, is the prerogative of the Governor-General. The Commonwealth Attorney-General's Department has not yet requested that the Parole Board of the Northern Territory review the case of the one life sentence prisoner held in South Australia and no advisory recommendation in regard to his possible release has been supplied.

The procedures for the review of life sentence prisoners held in the Northern Territory are still being developed and I will inform the Assembly of their nature when they have been adopted.

3. One. An additional Northern Territory life sentence prisoner is serving his imprisonment in South Australia.

Coal-fired Power Station, Darwin

720 Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

What is (a) the expected daily consumption of coal, (b) what is the expected waste, and (c) what is the anticipated cost of waste disposal for the proposed coal-fired power station for Darwin?

ANSWER

(a) Consumption of Coal - Daily coal consumption, dependant on average daily generation, would range between 400 tonnes per day (1 x 50MW) to 2500 tonnes per day (6 x 50MW).

(b) Expected Waste - It is assumed that the question refers to ash which results from combustion of coal rather than to waste of coal which may occur before passing into boilers.

The quantity of ash which results from the combustion of coal is an important characteristic which varies with different coals from different mines. Ash production would range from 30-80 tonnes per day (1 x 50MW set) to 180-500 tonnes per day (6 x 50MW sets).

(c) Cost of Waste Disposal - It is assumed that this question refers to capital cost for works - (a) precipitator - in the order of $1.2M per unit; (b) ash disposal - in the order of $3M; and (c) ash lagoons - in the order of $3M. In addition to the capital cost there will be ongoing operating and maintenance costs for the ash disposal plant.

Power Plant, Elliott

ANSWER

(a) The power generating equipment currently servicing Elliott was installed in 1974 and 1980 -

(i) 2 Scania 130 kW sets in 1974; and
(ii) 1 Cummins Dunlite 200 kW set installed in 1980.

(b) Major upgrading, apart from installation of the third set (Cummins) in 1980, involved installation in 1981 of (i) automatic switchboard; (ii) increasing fuel storage capacity threefold; (iii) H.V. (11 kV) reticulation; and (iv) upgrading of surrounds.

(c) Total installed capacity is 460 kW, firm capacity is 260 kW.

(d) Number of consumers serviced by plant is 50.

(e) The community level of demand is 210 kW.

Doctor and Nurses, Kalano

724 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is the government paying the wages of the Kalano doctor and nursing sisters?

ANSWER

Recently, the Kalano Association employed a Dr A. Beattie. His salary is the responsibility of Kalano although the Northern Territory government has included 50% of this cost as a grant-in-aid to the association.

One nursing sister is located by the Northern Territory Department of Health at the health centre run by the Kalano community Association. As a member of the department's staff, her salary is covered by the department. Kalano do not employ other nursing sisters.

Water Consumption

726 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What was the total water consumption in (a) 1980-81, and (b) 1981-82; total revenue raised from water rates in financial years (c) 1980-81, and (d) 1981-82; and what percentage of water used was unmetered in (e) 1980-81, and (f) 1981-82 in (i) Darwin, (ii) Alice Springs, (iii) Tennant Creek, and (iv) Katherine?

ANSWER

Katherine	2 041 910	1 871 277
Tennant Creek	1 250 530	1 185 828
Alice Springs	8 593 860	6 776 922

Total Collections - Water Supply	1980-81	1981-82
Darwin	$2 653 660	$2 405 897
Katherine	157 446	220 343
Tennant Creek	161 179	219 607
Alice Springs	666 593	823 396

Unmetered Water	1980-81
Darwin	18%
Katherine	50%
Tennant Creek	21%
Alice Springs	33%

It is not possible at this time to provide 1981-82 figures as annual meter readings were completed only on 31 August 1982. Statistical totals of metered consumptions will be extracted during the billing process but are not likely to be available before November 1982.

Free Trade Zone

730 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

1. In relation to the proposal to establish a free trade zone in Darwin, has he requested the Commonwealth government to exercise its power under Section 122 of the Commonwealth Constitution to enable such a free trade zone to be established?

2. If so, what has been the Commonwealth government's response?

3. Would the establishment of a duty-free zone in the Northern Territory create a customs barrier that could concomitantly interfere with trade, commerce and intercourse between the Northern Territory and the states of Australia?

4. Has the Commonwealth government indicated that it would agree to the removal of customs duties?

5. What, if any, specific financial incentives are intended to be offered to potential investors?

ANSWER

The Territory government currently has in preparation a detailed submission on the establishment of a free trade zone in Darwin.

No approach will be made to the Commonwealth until the submission has been completed and all aspects of the proposal have been covered in detail.

The submission will cover such aspects as constitutional and customs arrangements, and whether particular incentives may be appropriate to support the establishment of the zone.

A free trade zone would not create a customs barrier between the Northern Territory and other Australian states.

Recreation Lake, Alice Springs

733 Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Have alternative site to Walletje Terre for the construction of a recreation lake in Alice Springs been examined by his government?

2. If so, when will he release comprehensive details of the suitability of alternative sites and any plans to develop them as a recreation lake?

ANSWER

1. Yes. Details of alternative sites were provided in answer to Question No. 661, to which answer was appended a comparison of 3 sites selected for closer examination namely the Old Telegraph Station (Todd River), Birthday Gap (Hugh River) and Ildjarabada (Jay Creek).

2. The information supplied with the answer to Question No. 661 gives details of the suitability of alternative sites. The matter remains under consideration.

Alligator Rivers Monitoring

734 Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Was money allocated in 1974 or subsequently for NT government monitoring of the condition of the estuarine region of the Alligator Rivers?

2. If so, (a) has this monitoring program commenced, (b) if so, is it current, (c) has any data been collected and or published, (d) if not, why not?

3. If a monitoring program of the estuarine region of the Alligator Rivers has not commenced, will the government take steps to introduce such a program?

ANSWER

The time mentioned precedes self-government and any activities of this nature would have come under Commonwealth's Department of the Northern Territory.

Following the recommendations of the Ranger Uranium Environmental Inquiry the Commonwealth established the Office of the Supervising Scientist. In August 1978 a workshop was held at Jabiru by this organisation to implement the proposals in that report in relation to environmental matters.

An extensive water quality program which included an element dealing with water quality in the estuarine area, was set our for the Magela and Cooper Creek systems and approved by the Commonwealth. This program was considered at the workshop and with the method of water management at Ranger developing to a 'no release of contaminants' system, it was decided that the resources available would be engaged in the baseline data gathering of Magela and Cooper Creeks only. The estuarine study was given a low priority as not being of sufficient environmental importance in relation to other aspects of the program to warrant the immediate application of resources. (Refer Supervising Scientist First Annual Report 1978-79 Appendices 9 and 10).

The Northern Territory government is now responsible for these environmental programs through funds made available by the Commonwealth.

1. Does the Northern Territory Housing Commission increase rents payable by pensioner tenants in situations where the tenant earns income in addition to the pension?

2. If so, what is the relationship between income, in addition to the pension, and rental increases?

ANSWER

1. Yes.

2. Full details were supplied to the honourable member in a letter of 7 September 1982:

Minister for Lands and Housing
P.O. Box 4396
Darwin
Northern Territory 5794

7 September 1982

Mr N.R. BELL, MLA
Member for MacDonnell
P.O. Box 2115
ALICE SPRINGS NT 5750

Dear Mr Bell,

On 6 August 1982 you wrote to me concerning the level of rent payable to the Housing Commission by pensioner tenants.

The current formula for calculation of rental rebate provides for rent payable to be assessed as follows:

- Single pensioners or pensioner couples in receipt of age, invalid, widow, service or other similar type pensions and additional income of less than $16.00 per week are assessed at 15% of total gross weekly income.
- Supporting persons in receipt of a Commonwealth supporting persons benefit with one child, six years of age and over and receiving additional income of up to $22.00 are assessed at 18%. The allowable additional income varies according to the number of dependents.
- Single pensioners, married pensioners or supporting persons whose additional income exceeds the allowable rate are assessed at 20% of their gross weekly income up to and equal to the Northern Territory minimum wage and then 28% of any additional income in excess of the Northern Territory minimum wage.

Under the terms of the 1978 Commonwealth-State Housing Agreement a uniform approach has been agreed upon for the calculation of rental rebates.

The rent payable calculated under the Rental Rebate formula is assessed as a percentage of gross weekly income, it bears no relationship to the Department of Social Security's procedure in assessing the level of benefit received by pensioners. It is noted however, rent payable by pensioners is usually lower than that of wage earners.

Using the Rental Rebate formula the following are examples of rentals which would apply:

- Single pensioner on standard pension of $74.15 per week with no additional income, rent payable is $11.10.
- Single pensioner on standard pension of $74.15 plus $10.00 additional income, rent payable is $12.60.
- Single pensioner on standard pension plus $50.00 additional income, rent payable is $24.80.
- Married pensioner on standard pension of $123.60 per week rent payable is $18.60.
- Married pensioner on standard pension of $123.60 plus $50.00 additional income, rent payable is $36.70.
- Supporting parent plus one child (under 6 years of age) receiving $92.15 per week, rent payable is $16.60.
- Supporting parent with two children (under 6 years of age) receiving $102.15 plus $75.00 additional income, rent payable is $37.70.

I trust that the above answers your enquiry.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd) MARSHALL PERRON

Medical Staff, Tennant Creek and Barkly

745 Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. What is the current level of medical staffing in the (a) Tennant Creek, and (b) the Barkly regions?
2. How does this number compare with staffing levels as at 2 September 1981?
3. Will his department (a) maintain, or (b) increase the staffing level in the Tennant Creek and Barkly regions?

ANSWER

1. There are currently 3 medical officers employed at the Tennant Creek Hospital and 1 medical officer employed for the Barkly region.
2. This number is the same as at 2 September 1981.
3. There are currently no moves to change the medical staffing levels in either the hospital or the region.

Investigations of Breaches of the Companies Act

Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

My question follows an answer by the Attorney-General regarding the ramifications for the Northern Territory of the disclosures to date by the Costigan Royal Commission. The Attorney-General stated in response to that question: 'Of course tax avoidance schemes such as the bottom-of-the-harbour schemes have no relevance to the Northern Territory government, as such. It has no taxation legislation that I am aware of. The bottom-of-the-harbour schemes would avail people of not one jot or tittle of benefit'. Given the abuse of the provisions of the Companies Act - and that that abuse is ancillary to the activities of the taxation avoidance industry - is the government investigating breaches of the Companies Act related to tax avoidance?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, of course the honourable Leader of the Opposition has not provided me with any notice of this question. Nor has he provided me at any time with complaints of breaches of the Companies Act. It is very difficult to investigate alleged breaches unless one is pointed in the right direction. It is an ongoing task of the Registrar of Companies to ensure that annual returns of companies are lodged and that all the normal statutory requirements are complied with. As far as I am aware, the Registrar of Companies in the Northern Territory carries out those requirements of his office. Recently, the Attorney-General of New South Wales wrote to me as a result of inquiries carried out by him. He indicated to me that, following interviews with promoters of bottom-of-the-harbour schemes in Sydney, he was able to provide me with a list of Northern Territory incorporated companies. That does not mean that any persons connected with the operations of the companies actually live in the Territory. I was provided with a list of companies, which I personally found very interesting from the point of view of some of the mnemonics, if I can describe them that way, of the names of the persons involved in the companies and the way they have changed the order of lettering of their usual surnames apparently to incorporate these companies. There are so many companies registered these days that it is very difficult to come up with fresh names. Some unique and original devices are used at times to secure a fresh name which the Registrar of Companies will register. Although there are only 6 or 8 companies on the list, when I received this correspondence, I immediately forwarded it to the Solicitor-General. I requested that he ask the Registrar-General to inquire particularly into the situation in relation to these companies which the Attorney-General of New South Wales believes - and I do not think that I can put it any stronger than that - may have been used as vehicles in bottom-of-the-harbour schemes. That investigation is still going on because the correspondence from the Attorney-General of New South Wales was received only last week. I look forward to the results of those investigations with a great deal of interest. I am indeed deeply grateful to the Attorney-General of New South Wales for sending this list of company names to me. When the investigations have been completed, the findings may contain revelations that will be of considerable surprise to a great number of Territorians.

Grumman Trackers

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Given that there are 13 Grumman Trackers sitting idle at Nowra and the existing contract for coastal surveillance in the Northern Territory expires in March, has he made an approach to the Minister for Defence for the transfer of these Grumman Trackers to Darwin or any other northern base and, if so, what has been the response since the last time I asked the question?

ANSWER

The honourable member for Nightcliff knows that I have made a number of approaches to the honourable Minister for Defence, previously Sir James Killen and presently Mr Ian Sinclair. I have made representations to Mr Sinclair in the course of the last month or two. To the best of my knowledge, correspondence has gone from my office within the last month. On Friday morning I received a letter from the honourable Minister for Defence who advised me that the question of the Grumman Trackers has been referred to a committee on naval fixed-wing aircraft once again. I think I spoke about this at some earlier sittings when we tried to divine whether perhaps there was a naval committee on blimps, balloons and other types of aircraft as well.

Mr Speaker, I was also informed, in the latest letter from the honourable the Minister for Defence, that it appears that no decision will be taken in relation to the final disposition of these aircraft pending a decision by the government on the acquisition of an aircraft carrier for the Royal Australian Navy. Because of the relative obscurity with which the final paragraph of the honourable minister's letter was phrased, I have taken steps to attempt to find out what he actually meant. I feel considerable regret for these naval airmen if they are to remain at Jervis Bay or Nowra pending Australia actually taking delivery of an aircraft carrier. Even if the decision were taken today, there are no longer any good, used, second-hand aircraft carriers available for sale around the world unless they be Argentinian. I think it would be several years before Australia could expect delivery of an aircraft carrier, probably from sources in the United States.

To add my little contribution to the debate on whether Australia should have an aircraft carrier I say, if we are to have an aircraft carrier I pray that it will be an American aircraft carrier because our fleet, in almost any conflict, will be cooperating with units of the American fleet in the Pacific. I believe it is much more rational and logical that we should have American equipment that is compatible with the units it will be working with rather than British equipment which, although proven relatively satisfactory in tough circumstances in the South Atlantic, nevertheless has been proved to be wanting in several respects. That is the one prayer that I would lodge in the aircraft carrier debate. I can assure the honourable member that I will maintain pressure on the Minister for Defence. In fact, I hope to see him this weekend. I will take the matter up with him again and perhaps be able to give the Assembly better news at the next sittings.

Buffalo Domestication Program

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What progress has the government made with its buffalo domestication program?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the subject of buffalo domestication was fairly much in vogue before the beef crisis at which time it was dropped. With the momentum of the brucellosis and the tuberculosis eradication program, it is fairly important that further domestication programs be undertaken to avoid complete destruction of the buffalo herd in the Top End. By the end of this year the program will involve the passage of some 700 to 1000 buffalo through the Annaburoo marshalling yards, which have been installed and funded by the Department of Primary Production and the Conservation Commission. Some 16 properties, including small farms, will be involved with the program resulting in around 5000 domesticated buffalo by the end of this year. In view of current progress, we hope that next year we can look at a further 8000 buffalo in the domestication program.

Mr Speaker, the policy of the NTDC is being expanded to support this program and we are looking at a special package for buffalo domestication farmers. It is clear to me that, in the long haul, buffalo will be a very important part of a mixed farming concept and I believe we are on the right trail with this program.

Management Committee for Darwin Performing Arts Centre

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Given recent publicity in the media regarding the management committee of the Darwin Performing Arts Centre, has a final decision been made as to the structure of such a committee and, if not, what options are being considered?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as the honourable member would be well aware through publicity on this matter, an arrangement was entered into by the government with the Darwin City Council. That agreement, in the form of a memorandum of understanding, was signed on 14 April 1981. As far as the government is concerned, contracts entered into with a semi-government or local government organisation ought be honoured. The provisions of the memorandum of understanding are still existent and the intention is that the title to the performing arts centre will be vested in the city council. Needless to say, the government will honour its undertaking for continuing assistance to the operations of the performing arts centre. Certainly the government is not of a mind to abandon its responsibilities; it merely wants the city council to honour its undertaking in relation to the operations of the performing arts centre. Mr Speaker, much has been said about the desirability or otherwise of various forms of management for the performing arts centre. A view is widely held that a trust, similar to the Araluen Trust, ought to be established. I think people should bear in mind the vast difference between the establishment of a single performing arts centre, as part of a private building, and an operation like the Araluen Trust which has a large tract of land and has, as part of its corporate structure, many diverse users not just the performing arts. It involves static arts, visual arts, museums and the like. Such an operation is quite different from the operation of a single theatre. By its very nature, such a theatre is a very expensive undertaking and deficits can become severe. We believe that maximum accountability ought to be provided to the taxpayer for this facility. In my view, that should be provided directly by those people who purport to represent the taxpayer and the ratepayer - in this case, the Darwin City Council. It is not sufficient simply to establish a body, either by act of this Assembly or otherwise, responsible solely to the performing arts and not to the taxpayer. It is not sufficient for me to agree to a proposal whereby these people simply carry out the functions that they see to be in the interests of the arts and then send the bill to the taxpayer or ratepayer at the end of the year. A greater degree of responsibility and accountability is necessary and, for that reason, this government intends that the council shall honour its agreement.

Road Closures for NTEC Works

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

My question relates to the NTEC extension to the tunnel system in the main city area. Is he aware that hardship is being experienced by business operators in Daly Street and Mitchell Street and that it is caused by these road closures, and is he able to indicate when the Mitchell Street-Daly Street intersection will be reopened?

ANSWER

I am aware that there has been some disruption to business as a result of major works being undertaken by NTEC in Darwin at present. It is an unfortunate fact of life that major earthworks in a built-up area create disruption for various businesses. I guess most businesses have been affected at one time or another in the past. The work being undertaken by NTEC at the present time is an extension of the underground tunnel system throughout Darwin. This project is designed to give Darwin modern electricity distribution until the year 2000 and beyond. Honourable members who have been around the Territory for a long time will know the very distinct improvement in the visual appearance of Darwin since the city's electricity has been placed underground. This causes special problems in rapidly growing areas where electricity distribution systems have to be upgraded continually to take account of major developments that occur. The work under way now will take about 6 weeks. I am hopeful that the intersection of Daly Street and Mitchell Street will be completed earlier than that but I cannot give a specific date at this time. It seems that it is that intersection that is causing most of the disruption mentioned by the honourable member for Port Darwin. However, I ask businesses which are affected in this way to bear with us. Once the job is done it will accommodate the distribution system until at least the year 2000. The work has to be done prior to the coming wet season to minimise disruption.

TIO Investments

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Who decides the nature of investments undertaken by the Territory Insurance Office and what forms of control are exercised to monitor the investment program?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the board of the TIO makes decisions on its investment portfolio and the mix of investments that the TIO has. To date I have not directed the TIO in any way in this regard although the act provides - if I recall correctly - as most statutory authority acts do, that the body is subject to the direction of the minister. The board of the TIO has been established to make these decisions itself. I am informed of the decisions made by the TIO from time to time in regard to investments. It follows generally accepted insurance principles in its portfolio of investments and also has regard, of course, to the needs of the Northern Territory. The TIO is not allowed to invest in projects outside the Northern Territory and this limits to some degree the range of securities it can invest in, as it were, that are open to other insurance companies which operate on an Australia-wide basis and perhaps even a world-wide basis. But, aside from the fact that the TIO must keep its money in the Northern Territory, the decisions are made by the board and I believe they are made in a prudent manner.

Gate on Bynoe Harbour Road

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he aware that the new Bynoe Harbour Road now has a gate across it and a sign saying 'private property keep out'?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of such a gate across the Bynoe Harbour Road. However, I will have the department provide me with information and furnish the honourable member with that information at a later date.

Child-care Facilities in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What help is the government prepared to extend to private individuals who want to set up child-care facilities in the rural area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I suppose the members of the rural community would like as wide a range of child-care facilities as is possible. They range from family-day-care to small, private, child-care facilities to large, private, facilities such as we have in Darwin. People in the rural area who wish to establish private child-care centres can certainly seek the assistance of the department in such matters as regulation requirements, methods of establishing the centre, options for management, the equipment required and the like. They can also seek the advice of the Small Business Advisory Bureau of the Northern Territory Development Corporation. I dare say that if such a private facility were regarded as a unique, highly desirable and private industry non-existent in that area the owners could seek the advice and assistance of the NTDC itself.

Other than that there is no direct government financial assistance to private child-care centres. It is private business after all. Nonetheless, the federal government has set aside $200 000 in this year's budget to provide for a pilot study on the possibility of providing subsidies to families in need who choose to use private child-care facilities. I do not know whether that will lead to a decision of the Commonwealth to provide a subsidy which now is available only at such institutions as day-care centres and community-based organisations.

Distinction between Static and Visual Arts

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I refer him to his answer to a previous question about art centres. What is the distinction between static arts and visual arts?

No answer given.

High Voltage Powerlines

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

On 10 March I raised the problem of high voltage powerlines close to high rise buildings in my electorate and the minister undertook to investigate the matter. Could he advise the result of any such investigation?

ANSWER

Yesterday I approved a letter addressed to the honourable member in response to her inquiry. An investigation was carried out and it was found that the statutory requirements for distance between buildings and powerlines have all been met in Nightcliff. However, buildings are erected from time to time without NTEC's complete knowledge. Action is being taken to ensure that approvals issued through the Building Board include a specific advice to builders that they need to pay heed to the statutory requirements of distance where erecting high rise buildings. They must stay away from existing powerlines and consult with NTEC if there is a need to have any of them moved. The honourable member will receive this letter within a day or so.

Outbreak of Golden Staph at Alice Springs Hospital

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he assure the people of Alice Springs that every possible precaution is being taken to control and hopefully eliminate the outbreak of golden staph at the Alice Springs Hospital?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am grateful for a few minutes notice on this question from the honourable member. I will relay to him, the constituents of Alice Springs and honourable members, the advice of Dr Edgar, the Medical Superintendent at Alice Springs Hospital. He advised me that, as soon as the case of golden staph was located, immediate and intensive measures were taken to deal with the situation. The current position is that one patient has been identified as having golden staph and cannot be discharged. Present indications are that the patient is now clear. One staff member has been found to have MRSA and is presently off work. At the present, there appear to be no known organisms in the hospital but investigation and preventative work is continuing. It is hoped normal surgery at the hospital can recommence shortly. I emphasise that the early and strict preventative measures taken when the outbreak was first identified appear to have been successful.

TIO Investments

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Is he willing to make available to this Assembly a complete list of all investments undertaken by, or on behalf of, the Territory Insurance Office?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I believe that some such information is provided in the annual report of the TIO. However, I will examine the matter and report to the Assembly during these sittings.

Fire at Jape Building

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

On the assumption that the fire department issued a certificate of compliance prior to occupation of the Jape building, can he explain the obvious breaches of the terms of that certificate brought to light, so to speak, as a result of the recent fire in that building?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have asked for a complete report on the Jape Arcade incident. I believe the fire was started by a cigarette butt being thrown into a plastic bin. I understand that in future metal bins will be provided. However, the fire chief is to provide me with an up-to-date report and I will provide it to the honourable member as soon as I have it.

Proposed Closure of Kitchener Drive and Hughes Avenue

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

A proposal is being put forward by the Port Authority to the Darwin City Council to close off Kitchener Drive and Hughes Avenue. Is he aware of this proposal and, if so, what guarantee can he give that these roads will not be closed to the public permanently?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this matter is new to me as minister responsible for road closures. I usually learn of such proposals quite late in the piece when they are in the statutory form ready to go to Executive Council. In this particular case, I do not have details of the sections of Kitchener Drive, or the whole of Kitchener Drive, which it is alleged the Port Authority would wish to close off from being a public road. I will bear the honourable member's concern in mind when this matter comes to my desk, if indeed it does. The public interest will be taken into account fully in the assessment of any proposal presented by the Port Authority.

Statements attributed to Member for Elsey

Mr BELL to Mr SPEAKER

Mr Speaker, I seek clarification of Standing Orders. Is it in order to ask a question of yourself? I believe that it is.

Mr SPEAKER: You are right.

Mr BELL: Mr Speaker, do recent statements in the press endorsing strongly racist ideas attributed to the member for Elsey threaten the good conduct of business in this Assembly?

No answer given.

Vacant Position on Gove District Hospital Board

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he yet advise me when a vacant position on the Gove District Hospital Board will be filled? I believe it has been vacant since June.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I believe the instruments for the appointment to the Gove Hospital Board are on my desk at the moment and I will be signing them within the next few days. I might even sign them today.

Domestic Dogs in Parks

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the position regarding control of domestic dogs in parks that are managed by the Conservation Commission?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Conservation Commission's real attitude to dogs in parks is summed up in a pamphlet it circulated particularly amongst Northern Territory schools some years ago. The pamphlet was prepared and illustrated by an Alice Springs cartoonist called Peverill. The title was 'Parks are for People' and displayed dogs making a nuisance of themselves amongst people using parks. The actual legal position is that dogs are allowed in most parks controlled by the Conservation Commission but only if they are suitably controlled or on a leash. In some parks, such as Katherine Gorge, dogs are restricted to areas near public access points and not permitted in the rest of the park. Dogs are not permitted on the walking tracks for instance. In other states, with few exceptions, dogs are generally banned from parks although I think that rule may be honoured more in the breach than in the observance. Whilst I was in Queensland recently, I took the opportunity to inspect a few of the parks under the control of the National Parks and Wildlife Commission of Queensland. I observed quite a number of people camped in some parks and they certainly had dogs and other pets with them. Mr Speaker, in the Territory, because of the long distances people travel before reaching parks, the general lack of suitable kennel facilities near many park entrances and, in some cases, lower visitor numbers, it has been considered that it would be somewhat unreasonable and arbitrary to ban dogs outright. However, it is an objective that the Conservation Commission will eventually be working towards and hoping for.

Education Advisory Council

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Given his public commitment to do so, can he advise approximately how many times in the past year he has met with the Chairman of the NT Education Advisory Council on official business and how many times he has met with the council itself on official council business?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have details of that. I will look into the matter.

Port Charges

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand that port charges are currently under review. Is he able to indicate when a new scale of fees is likely to be struck?

ANSWER

Port charges are under review and a comparison is being made at the moment with port fees elsewhere in Australia. I have not had a copy of the review forwarded to me from the Chairman of the Port Authority. Once it is available, and before any decisions are made, the Port Authority will advertise its intention to see what reaction there is. We will probably have a look at that over a period of a couple of months. I understand from discussions with the Chairman of the Port Authority that some increases may be necessary.

Aviation Licences

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he outline the procedures he intends to follow in considering whether new aviation licences should be issued when the government moratorium on the issue of such licences expires at the end of this month?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in November last year the government announced that the policy on the issue of aviation licences in the Northern Territory would become much more liberal than it had been. In fact we referred to it as an open skies policy. I believe this policy will be a good move in that it will provide the consumer community with a better infrastructure of air charter operators. At the same time, it is not the intention of government to license willy-nilly charter operators who will not play a role in the development of that industry. For example, if someone residing outside the Territory, say in Melbourne or Sydney, purchased an aircraft as an investment and wanted a charter licence, we would not be interested in making that licence available. We would provide licences to those people who were going to help develop the Northern Territory aviation industry.

In answer to the honourable member's question, the government Aviation Advisory Council is temporarily in limbo because the aviation industry itself has set up its own advisory association. The Northern Territory government will accept the recommendations of that aviation advisory council, provided that its membership is a little broader than just aviators themselves. I understand that, when this aviation association is set up, it will try to encourage private enterprise to join the association so that it will not be one-sided. I will put a further paper to my Cabinet colleagues in the next month or so in relation to the steps that the Department of Transport and Works, through its aviation section, will take to provide information to people who seek licences in the aviation industry. Two circulars have been sent out by the aviation association. I understand a third is being prepared this month and will be sent to people in the industry. I would like to reiterate that, when we issue licences in an open skies policy framework, we will still seek to ensure that the holders of those charter licences will play a very important role in the development of the industry and will not try to put other established aviators in the Territory out of business.

Registration of Members' Interests

Mr D.W. COLLINS to Mr SPEAKER

When will the appropriate forms be available for members to register their interests?

ANSWER

Draft forms are being printed at present but there is no definite date for the legislation as yet.

Funding of Territory Superannuation Scheme

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Has he any information on the likely amounts of Commonwealth payments to the Territory with respect to the introduction of a Territory superannuation scheme and for subsequent transfer of Territory contributors from the Commonwealth scheme?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in relation to the transfer of funds from the Commonwealth superannuation fund to the proposed Northern Territory superannuation fund, negotiations have been continuing for quite some time with the Commonwealth government and the trustees of the superannuation fund. There have been discussions between officials of the Northern Territory Treasury, the Public Service Commissioner's office and, latterly, officials of the pro tem organisation established to gear up for the establishment of the Northern Territory superannuation fund.

A number of options have been canvassed. I think the Commonwealth proposed that we simply go along with it on the basis that it would not make any transfer of funds immediately but would provide funding on what might be described as an emerging cost basis. As payments made by the Northern Territory superannuation fund to superannuants build up the Commonwealth would be billed for the proportion rightfully due from it in terms of number of years served as against salary, contributions and so on. These funds would be paid into the Northern Territory superannuation fund to make good the Commonwealth's share of disbursements to superannuants.

I hope that I am correct because it is not something I have dealt with in the last couple of weeks and it is a fairly technical and complex situation. The Northern Territory government took the view that really the Commonwealth superannuation fund should pay the total amount of all contributions paid in the past by current members of the Northern Territory Public Service. That amounts to several millions of dollars. I cannot remember exactly how many but it is in the order of $20m or $30m. It is not as much as one might imagine but it is still quite a large sum of money and one that would not go astray.

The Commonwealth superannuation fund has tied up its money in all sorts of long term investments, property, government securities, debentures and all the rest of it, many of which are not worth their face value at the moment. I understand there would be some dubiety as to its status, were it to be registered on a stock market. The Commonwealth superannuation fund is rather unwilling to have to find this fairly large amount of money in one hit and hand it to us in one cheque. It has been resisting that proposal - not strenuously but it certainly has not been rushing into our arms. Therefore, we suggested to the Commonwealth superannuation fund that a compromise might well be that the Commonwealth invest an amount equivalent to the total contributions of Northern Territory public servants in projects in the Northern Territory and that we would perhaps accept those investments as representing the amount of funds transferred. The projects would be chosen by the Commonwealth superannuation fund and presumably would be of benefit to the Northern Territory and would return income for the new Northern Territory superannuation fund. At this stage, the matter lies there. There has been no firm conclusion in respect of those negotiations. I believe that I will be asked to raise the matter with ministers in Canberra when next I am there to attempt to seek some conclusion without too much more delay. The Commonwealth government has had other matters on its mind over the last month or two and I dare say that has not hastened the conclusion of arrangements such as this.

Access to Alice Springs Swimming Pool

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What was the outcome of the September meeting between the minister's department and the Alice Springs Town Council over the proposed one-way access from Telegraph Terrace to the town swimming pool?

ANSWER

Preliminary discussions have taken place between the Department of Transport and Works and the Alice Springs Town Council but, at this stage, nothing has been accomplished. The council is looking at other avenues of providing the infrastructure the honourable member requires. I believe that a report will be ready at the end of October. Once that report has been forwarded to us, we will be able to evaluate it and receive a recommendation from the department either to proceed or not to proceed.

Mental Health Act

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

A review of the Mental Health Act has been undertaken by his department this year. Can he advise the outcome of that review and does he anticipate amendments to the Mental Health Act being introduced in the Assembly?

ANSWER

About 6 months ago, I sought expressions of interest from anyone in the community concerned with the operation of the Mental Health Act. I asked for suggestions on how the administration of the act could be improved if that were thought necessary. Given that the act had been passed only a year or 18 months earlier and that the area was very sensitive, I wanted to ensure that it was operating in the best possible way. Regrettably, I have to advise honourable members that I received only 2 submissions from the whole of the Northern Territory community about the operation of the act. Both of these had very valid points that we had picked up from the department's side. There are some small administrative aspects of the act that we would like to correct. I would be more than happy to discuss these with the honourable member for Fannie Bay because I know she has a genuine interest in them. There will be some small amendments to the act. I cannot give her any detail on the timing but I reiterate that I am happy to discuss them with her and listen to any propositions that she may have.

Applications for Registration of Non-government Schools

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

How many applications for the registration of non-government schools has he received since self-government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I cannot give any information on that at the moment. Certainly, all the schools which were operating under the Commonwealth system received registration. I think I already have an application from the committee which is proposing a Catholic high school in Alice Springs.

Demolition of Stuart Building

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has the investigation into the letting of the contract for the demolition of Stuart Building been completed and, if so, when will the government announce what action, if any, it intends to take?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, if my memory serves me right, a contract was let to John Holland for the demolition of the Stuart Building. John Holland subcontracted part of the contract to Whelan the Wrecker, who was also a contender for the job. Whelan the Wrecker missed out on the contract by some $5000 or $6000. The total contract was about $170 000. The government does not intend to take any action because John Holland won the contract on a fair basis in a tendering system. It had won it by more than $5000 on Whelan the Wrecker's price and associated works were also related to the exercise: the upgrading of the area by the provision of trees, planting grass, water reticulation and fencing. Whelan the Wrecker's main involvement was pure demolition. The whole contract was won by John Holland on a fair basis, and I do not intend to take any further action.

Interstate Trucks

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What surveillance is put on interstate trucks working in the Territory as regards their registration in the Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, constant surveillance is undertaken by transport inspectors and also by members of the Police Force. However, it is very difficult to pin down somebody from interstate because between 60% and 70% of our goods come in by road freight. If an organisation is moving goods between capital cities and Darwin, the only time we are able to find out whether vehicle registration meets the requirements of the state of origin is when an infringement is involved. However, yesterday I sent a letter to the Registrar of Motor Vehicles because we are concerned that not only interstate trucks but also interstate cars are being driven in the Territory for longer than the 3 months which owners are allowed before they must register here. We are losing a lot of revenue as a result.

I have asked the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to step up surveillance on those vehicles which appear to have been in the Northern Territory for more than 3 months. In fact, the Chief Minister reminded me of a prominent journalist in central Australia who has been there for quite some time and whose vehicle currently has eastern Australian plates on it. It is up to the community as well to ensure that it does the right thing by the Northern Territory. After all, we spend a lot of money maintaining and building roads.

I will send the honourable member a copy of the letter that I am forwarding to the Registrar of Motor Vehicles asking him to step up the surveillance and ensure these vehicles are registered as they should be.

Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Part of the submission made by the Department of Finance to a Senate Standing Committee on Finance and Government Operations earlier this year reads: 'The submission confirmed that the Northern Territory government and a number of its authorities had not contributed to the Commonwealth scheme since gaining independent status in 1978'. Could the Chief Minister confirm or deny that report?

ANSWER

Whilst we are all still holding our breath, could the honourable member for Nhulunbuy, if he wishes me to confirm or deny the accuracy of this statement, tell me to what Commonwealth scheme it is alleged we have not contributed?

Mr Leo: The Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme, Mr Speaker.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, I would have to seek details of that because I believe it is compulsory for every member of the Northern Territory Public Service - and there are probably some people around here who could tell me if I am right or not - to be a member of the superannuation scheme. I think, therefore, that the employee contributions would certainly have been made. I understand that our Treasury puts in the money direct rather than getting it from departments. I think a sinking fund is involved. As I understand it, at present funds are paid across on an emerging cost basis.

System-wide Testing in Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What steps have been taken by the department to introduce system-wide testing in schools? Has he been advised yet of approximately how many people will be involved in implementing a system-wide testing system? How much extra will it cost the department and how much time is likely to be taken on the part of the professional staff involved?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I could deal with the first part of the question but I think it would be better if it was dealt with as a whole, so I request the honourable member to put the question on notice.

Tennant Creek Abattoir

Mr BELL to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Will the Tennant Creek abattoir operate again this season?

ANSWER

From the information available to us, I do not believe that the meatworks will open and operate again in 1982. Certainly, we would expect it to be operating by March 1983.

Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Is it a fact that the Northern Territory has not paid employee contributions into the Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme since self-government in 1978?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not recall that the contributions that have been held in the Territory date back to July 1978 although that is a possibility. Certainly, those figures could be obtained for the honourable member. I understand that, by arrangement with the Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme and the federal government, the Northern Territory has generally retained employee contributions to the scheme. Of course, the funds are invested and that is part of the arrangement we have been working on for the last couple of years. Rightly, the funds should be transferred to the Northern Territory holus-bolus, including past contributions by employees.

NTDC Loan to North Brick Industries Pty Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

In view of the government's failure to address this issue in the debate yesterday, will he inform the Assembly whether there is any other security for the $600 000 loan by NTDC to North Brick Industries Pty Ltd apart from a fixed grant dated 27 July 1982?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will be happy to provide that information. I will seek it for the honourable member.

Seminar on Horticulture in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has he plans to organise a seminar on horticulture in Alice Springs involving ADMA, the Department of Primary Production, the Department of Lands, the Water Division and interested members of the public with a view to selecting and setting up a horticultural area for the Centre?

ANSWER

A horticultural workshop will be held in Alice Springs on 28 and 29 October. This is to devise a plan for the early development of horticulture in central Australia. Participants from DPP, the Department of Lands, the Water Division, the Department of Transport and Works, ADMA and the NTDC will discuss industry potential and take a hard look at the major constraints of land tenure, suitable soils, water availability, development funding and marketing services. I believe there is some potential for expansion of horticultural production in central Australia but the preparation of an industry development package requires close coordination between these arms of government and, consequently, a workshop of this type is most necessary. I shall await its findings with great interest.

Mr Roy Willoughby

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Has Mr Roy Willoughby represented at any time either the NTDC or the government abroad, either formally or informally?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no knowledge of Mr Roy Willoughby representing the government in any way, shape or form.

Inscription of Speakers' Names on Mace

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to Mr SPEAKER

Mr Speaker, have you given consideration to the introduction of the practice of inscribing the names of Speakers on the Mace as is done in some parliaments in Australia?

ANSWER

No.

NTDC Loan to North Brick Industries Pty Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Did the stated purpose of the loan to North Brick Industries Pty Ltd include the purchase of plant and equipment for the proposed clay brickworks?

ANSWER

I have already indicated that I will provide the information that the honourable member requested. If she cares to add that to her questions, I am prepared to provide the additional information.

Poisons Act

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has the review of the Poisons Act been completed yet and when will amendments to it be introduced into this Assembly?

ANSWER

The review has been completed. A consolidated bill has been approved by Cabinet for presentation to the Assembly in November and we should dispose of the matter in the new year.

Mr Roy Willoughby

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Has Mr Roy Willoughby received any payment or compensation of any kind from the NTDC or the Northern Territory government? If there have been payments to Mr Willoughby, will the minister inform this Assembly of their exact nature and precisely when they were made?

ANSWER

I am not aware of any payments made to Mr Roy Willoughby on behalf of government or on behalf of any statutory authority of government. There has been no Cabinet instruction for the employment of Mr Willoughby. I am not aware that he has offered his services to the government. As far as I know, we have never employed him and never paid him.

Rates for Palmerston

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has a rate been decided for the Palmerston area and, if so, what is it and how does it compare with rates paid in Berrimah?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would point out that the operation of the Palmerston Development Authority is not within my jurisdiction but, for comparative purposes, I have the information the honourable member seeks. A rate has been struck by the PDA at 0.75¢ in the dollar. The rate struck by the Darwin City Council, which is also the rate applicable to the outer Darwin area, is 1.02¢ in the dollar.

Once again, I think it is important to remind people - not so much people in this Assembly because they would be aware of it - that the rate in the dollar is irrelevant in terms of the rate actually paid. It is, of course, the unimproved capital value of the property which determines the amount that the ratepayer has to write on the cheque form. While there is a comparison between the Palmerston Development Authority's struck rate in the dollar and that of the Darwin City Council and therefore the outer Darwin area, that does not mean that people in the outer Darwin area would pay, in monetary terms, less than those who will buy land in Palmerston.

Representation of NTDC

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Has Mr Dalziel represented either the NTDC or the government abroad, either formally or informally at any time?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no knowledge of Mr Dalziel purporting to represent the government. Certainly, there has been no formal arrangement for him to represent this government.

Connector Road in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Why is the long-planned connector road from Stott Terrace Bridge to Undoolya Road being delayed? Can he estimate when the problems will be resolved and undertake to refund the project as soon as possible after the resolution of those problems?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can provide some information which the honourable member may care to transmit to his electorate himself. The Stott Terrace Bridge over the Todd River was built, obviously, to service both the east and west sides of the town of Alice Springs, particularly during times when the Todd River is flowing and there is no alternate access as a result. The roads giving access to the bridge have been planned but details of the design have not been completed because maximum protection of the box trees is important to Aboriginal people. Mr Speaker, those who are not familiar with Alice Springs will not be aware that there are a number of areas of claimed significance to Aboriginals on the side of the river to which the honourable member refers where the road is yet to be completed. Negotiations by the Department of Lands have been going on for a very considerable period of time concerning a group of trees in the area. Those trees are registered as a sacred site by the Aboriginal Sacred Sites Protection Authority.

It is not possible to estimate when and if Aboriginal organisations will confirm that the road is acceptable. Last week the protection authority proposed a new alignment which avoids most of the trees in question but apparently introduces significant engineering costs and requires the acquisition of private land. These implications are being investigated by the Department of Lands. The road in question is on the capital works program and funds can be made available immediately a resolution is found. I believe that this matter has been going on for such a long time that funds were actually diverted from the project 18 months ago to be used elsewhere because resolution was not obtained at that time. We seem only slightly further ahead than we were then.

The second road in the area is also being delayed by sacred sites problems. That is the road to provide sealed access to the Alice Springs power-station and the southern end of the Sadadeen subdivision. It is impossible to say exactly when resolution will be found to these problems so I cannot give the honourable member a date for the construction of the roads in question.

Appointment of Mr Koh to NTDC

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

In view of the fact that the Chief Minister chose to release a letter by him to Mr Koh regarding his appointment to the NTDC, which of course is under the control of the Minister for Industrial Development, will the minister now make available the previous correspondence referred to in that letter and any other papers and details of the negotiations leading up to Mr Koh's appointment and advise this Assembly when the terms and conditions of Mr Koh's appointment were settled by Mr Simpson on behalf of the Northern Territory Development Corporation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that a paper was prepared for Cabinet to examine the suitability of Mr Koh's appointment as a representative of this government in South-east Asia. Cabinet subsequently decided to agree to an appointment and the decision was taken at that time. That is the position.

District Allowance for Aged Pensioners

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

He has been endeavouring to persuade the federal government to provide district allowance for aged pensioners in the Territory. What is the present position with that request?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member is perfectly correct. I have been endeavouring to have the district allowance extended to pensioner benefits in the Northern Territory. I guess that would apply to all northern Australian pensions received from the Commonwealth. The last letter I wrote to Senator Chaney on this matter was on 21 September and, in response to that letter, the senator has undertaken to keep the matter under review, which of course is a fat lot of good to Northern Territory pensioners. It seems that the Commonwealth has the attitude that it should not subsidise pensioners to come to the Northern Territory. Of course, that is not the issue. We are talking about pensioners who live here already. The higher wages paid in many respects to people who work in the Northern Territory obviously do not apply to people who are on a pension.

It is not that we want to use this sort of federal assistance to bring pensioners here. We want additional assistance for those who already reside here, have spent their working lives here and want to retire here. Any question of encouraging pensioners to come here is one for the Northern Territory government. Indeed, this government has done more than any other government in Australia towards the assistance and benefits made available to pensioners. Those benefits range from assistance for government accounts to motor vehicle registrations and fares for air, bus, rail and sea travel.

If the federal minister wants to examine our attitudes to bringing people here, it is quite clear that we have spoken with everyone from Jennings Industries to the Baptist Trust to try to establish pensioner villages. Through the Department of Health, this government is providing assistance for the establishment of a pensioner or old timers' village in the rural area. The question of zone allowance recognition of the difficulties pensioners must face by living in the Northern Territory, or in remote areas of Australia, is something for which we will continue to press the Commonwealth. We cannot understand why the Commonwealth does not recognise it. Honourable members can be very much assured that the government will continue to press this matter with full vigour with the Commonwealth.

NTDC and Mr Dalziel

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Has Mr Dalziel received favours from the NTDC or the government, or any other type of compensation for assistance he may have provided? If there have been such payments to Mr Dalziel either from the NTDC or from its chairman, will the minister inform the Assembly as to their exact nature and when they were made?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I know of no payments made to Mr Dalziel by government, by the authority or from any other source.

Housing at Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What is the position regarding the Housing Commission building reasonably-priced houses to let at reasonable rents to the private sector of the community at Jabiru?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the situation at Jabiru in regard to housing is interesting and certainly different to that in other areas of the Northern Territory. In most towns of any size in the Northern Territory, the Housing Commission has a program of purchasing land, or subdividing land in some cases, and constructing houses to house applicants for accommodation. Jabiru is in the Kakadu National Park. The covenants for the sublease on which the town sits require the provisions of the Plan of Management of Kakadu National Park to be applied to the town. I understand that the covenants stipulate that people are not permitted to live in the town unless their business is associated directly with mining or government or in providing services to people so involved. That presents a completely new situation for the Territory and possibly a new one for Australia. We have a limitation on Australians living in a particular town. They have to fulfil certain criteria before being allowed to live in the town.

The infrastructure at Jabiru has been funded largely by the Commonwealth and by other parties to the mining operations. The houses constructed by the Commonwealth are rented under a formula laid down by it. For any houses provided to the private sector there, the rent is established at an economic level. This is Commonwealth policy. The economic rent is very high as a result of construction costs in a place like Jabiru. Some people in the honourable member for Tiwi's electorate are concerned that, whilst public servants and staff of the mining companies have houses rented to them for a nominal amount, any other business in Jabiru that has to obtain accommodation for its employees is faced with a very substantial rental bill. There is clearly seen to be some inequity there.

To date the Northern Territory government policy is that it will not expend funds on capital works projects at Jabiru because it has an agreement with the Commonwealth that, as control over uranium mining has not been transferred to the Northern Territory, all infrastructure in the town should be funded by the Commonwealth. There would have to be a change in NT government policy before we would allow the Housing Commission to move into Jabiru and build up a stock of general public housing. If we did so, it would be leased out under the formulae which apply to rental of general public housing in the Territory. We will have to monitor demand in the area. This applies almost anywhere in the Northern Territory. The Housing Commission keeps an eye on demand for housing by monitoring applications. Whilst we are not always able to move to fulfil those housing needs in all small centres, we monitor the pressure by the numbers of applications received.

Apart from negotiating leases to build houses at Jabiru, there appear to be no other constraints on the Housing Commission moving out there. The cost of building would be very high and the costs would have to be amortised over a 40-year period because that is a condition of the sublease the town is sitting on. It is an unusual situation and I thought honourable members might find it interesting to learn those few facts about Jabiru.

Citibank Loan to Buntine Group

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Has NTDC been advised by Citibank as to dates and the amounts provided by Citibank to Buntine Roadways Pty Ltd so that he is now able to assess the extent of the NTDC liability in the event that Citibank calls upon it under the terms of the guarantee?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this matter is complex and, as the Chief Minister advised the Assembly in the last sittings, such matters are of a companies nature and these questions should be directed to him. The situation has not changed. The matter is still complex. A receiver is assessing the situation surrounding the Buntine group and gathering more information each day. I understand that, to date, there has been no payment by the Northern Territory government of any government funds whatsoever under guarantees offered to the group.

NTDC's Appointment of Mr Koh as a Consultant

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

It follows a question I asked him just a few moments ago to which I did not receive a reply. I ask again whether he will agree to supply the Assembly or the opposition with a copy of the correspondence referred to in the letter the Chief Minister made public regarding details of Mr Koh's appointment as a consultant to the Northern Territory Development Corporation? In view of the clearly audible instruction to keep talking that we just heard from the Chief Minister to the Treasurer - obviously to restrict the questions that can be asked during question time this morning - perhaps he could keep his reply brief. Yes or no will do.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, before I could consider providing such information, I would have to examine the exact nature of the papers he is talking about. Therefore, I cannot provide a simple yes or no answer. Certainly, I will be looking at the papers that he asks about.

Alice Springs to Darwin Rail Link

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the present position in relation to the Alice Springs to Darwin rail project?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I could keep talking if it were not for the constant interjections of my ill-mannered friends on the other side of the Assembly. The honourable member for Port Darwin is interested no doubt because the rail link from Alice Springs will have a tremendous impact on his electorate, comprising as it does the Port of Darwin. As I understand it, at present the Northern Territory government, working with Australian National Railways, has prepared a submission which will go forward to federal Cabinet in the course of the next 6 weeks seeking, at this stage, a firm commitment for funding from federal Cabinet towards the commencement of construction of the rail link during the course of 1983. I understand from the Chairman of Australian National Railways, Mr L. Marks, with whom I conferred yesterday, that if funding can be allocated during 1983 towards construction then it will be quite feasible to complete the rail link to Darwin by the bicentenary year, 1988. As you would know, Mr Speaker, the federal government's present commitment is for completion of the rail link by 1990. It has always been the position of the Northern Territory government that we should aim to seek completion by the bicentenary year and the studies undertaken by ANR indicate that this is possible. In relation to the preliminary work, surveys are well on the way. A corridor has now been identified, I understand, all the way from Alice Springs to Darwin and more detailed surveys have taken place between Alice Springs and, I think, Tennant Creek and perhaps even somewhat to the north of Tennant Creek.

Mr Speaker, while this project is vital to the Northern Territory, it will also benefit the rest of Australia. It will facilitate the development of the hinterland of the Northern Territory in a way that has never previously been possible. It will also be important for the whole of this country at the present, particularly in view of the economic malaise. BHP, of course, has been laying off workers at its steel plants. I understand something in the order of 0.25 million tonnes of railway line will be required for the project. Obviously, that would bring a considerable number of people back into employment. You can imagine the tremendous amount of ballast that will be needed. Construction of the sleepers, which I understand are made of concrete these days, will obviously provide employment for a considerable number of people here and probably in South Australia from whence other supplies will be drawn. The project is very important for this Territory and for Australia. I repeat that I think that its cost, in the order of $500m, is more meaningful to this country than the acquisition of a new aircraft carrier, even in strictly defence terms.

In view of the fact that the matter is to go before Cabinet in the course of the next few weeks, whilst I am down south later this week in connection with the Australian Fisheries Council meeting in Hobart, I shall arrange to meet with the Prime Minister, Deputy Prime Minister, Minister for Transport, Minister for Industry and Commerce, Minister for National Development, the Treasurer and the Minister for Finance to raise the matter with them again to ensure that the Territory's point of view is put squarely before them. I hope that, with a united effort on the part of everyone, we can lobby sufficient support to get an out-of-turn allocation of funding so that construction can commence during the course of the next year.

Citibank Loan to Buntine Group

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

In the matter of a guarantee provided by NTDC to Buntine Roadways Pty Ltd, is he now in a position to assess the extent of NTDC liability in the event that Citibank calls upon the NTDC under the terms of the guarantee?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that the Solicitor-General, who has the carriage of this particular matter at the moment, is seeking additional information. I have not had a report from him lately but my understanding is that it is not clear at this moment whether either the Territory government or the Northern Territory Development Corporation will, in fact, be liable under the guarantee. This, of course, will depend on the opinion of the Solicitor-General and perhaps the opinion of a court of law based on the information that the Solicitor-General can obtain and, of course, based on evidence given in relation to any action that is taken. I am not in a position to state that the Territory has any fixed liability under this guarantee or any liability at all. I do not deprecate the questions that have been asked this morning in relation to other matters, although obviously it is a fishing expedition, but I strongly deprecate questions such as this one from the honourable member for Sanderson which seek, in fact, an admission or denial of Territory liability from me in relation to a matter where the interests of Territory taxpayers are concerned. Whilst I am quite happy for taxpayers to know exactly what is going on, at this stage, it is certainly not in their interests that I, or anyone, on the part of the Territory admit any liability whatsoever under any guarantee that we or the Northern Territory Development Corporation may have given in respect of the Buntine transaction.

Costs and Expenses of Mr Hagen S. Steher

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Were the professional costs and personal expenses of Mr Hagen S. Steher on all his trips to the Territory to investigate the tuna fishing industry paid for from the Northern Territory Fisheries Research and Development Fund or were those costs met directly by NTDC?

ANSWER

I do not have that information before me but I will obtain it and let the honourable Leader of the Opposition know.

Fuel Tank Farm in the City Area

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

The tank farm in the city area occupies a very valuable piece of real estate. Has the government given consideration to moving the tank farm to another location to allow that area to be developed for housing and other purposes?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question the honourable member raises has a series of complications to it. The tank farm, which adjoins his and my electorates, is on freehold land. I understand the land is owned by at least 3 fuel companies, possibly 4. It has been recognised for some time by government planners that, in the long term, quite obviously it is not desirable to leave a fuel tank farm in the heart of the city. It occupies what is clearly very valuable land for other purposes and plans should at least be laid so that over a period of time such an installation can be moved further away from urban development. I have issued instructions that the matter be investigated closely as to potential alternative sites for a fuel tank farm in Darwin having regard to a number of matters which have become clear of late. One is the siting of the new power-house for Darwin which will involve additional wharf facilities to take large vessels. Questions of this kind bear on the siting of a tank farm because it has to be within reasonable proximity of tankers that are brought in so that the fuel cargoes can be transmitted. Other questions which need to be addressed will be taken up with the fuel companies. These include the timing of a possible move, and expansion in the meantime assuming a move will take some years to complete. Expansion of a fuel tank farm needs to be considered. Already, at least one application is in for an additional tank or 2 to be constructed to meet the present demands of Darwin and the Northern Territory.

The whole question that the honourable member raises is being examined. In principle, we accept that the fuel tank farm should be moved out, having regard to reasonable lead times. In the near future I will be proposing to my colleagues a course of action to achieve that end over a period of time.

Home Loans Scheme

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer to his answer to a question on notice in which he said that a person with a $97 000 deposit received a loan through the concessional Home Loans Scheme. Does he consider this an appropriate use of such concessional funds?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not recall the particular answer the honourable member refers to. The general theme of his question is whether concessional funds should be used to assist people who are possibly building very grandiose and expensive housing in the Northern Territory. There are 2 lines of argument on this matter. One is that, quite clearly, the intention of the loans scheme is to encourage people to buy houses, or land and houses, and settle in the Northern Territory. Irrespective of the sums involved, if the loans scheme is encouraging that to happen - and it certainly is - then it should be a success. The other line of argument, of course, is that if persons can afford to put up a very substantial deposit - in the vicinity of the $97 000 that the honourable member mentioned - then they have sufficient funds to settle themselves in the Northern Territory without government assistance.

I point out, Mr Speaker, that the loans scheme is a graduated one. Persons on the higher levels of income are entitled to a lesser sum from the government scheme and are required to pay a higher interest rate on it. At the upper level, only $25 000 is available for persons under a second mortgage at a fairly high interest rate, as distinct from low-income earners. The scheme at present allows for persons building quite expensive homes to be accommodated within it. The government has not moved to restrict that in any way at present. My answer obviously has to be that such use of funds is supported.

Holmes Jungle

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise what action is being taken to protect Holmes Jungle?

ANSWER

The Conservation Commission, for which I am responsible, is taking steps to formalise the reserve status of Holmes Jungle. Recently, I received a submission from the Conservation Commission to establish a reserve over the area. I referred that submission to Cabinet and it was approved at a recent meeting. A reserve should be proclaimed in respect of Holmes Jungle in the very near future. Then it will come under formal Conservation Commission management whereas to date this has been on an ad hoc basis.

There are a number of other areas around Darwin in which the Conservation Commission has a hand. One is a forestry reserve in the honourable member for Tiwi's electorate. Preparation of a plan of management for a recreational reserve over this forestry area will be completed soon and that reserve, together with its management plan, will be proclaimed and made public. Black Jungle, another area in the Adelaide River region, is also under the eye of the Conservation Commission. It believes that this area must be protected and steps are being taken to attempt to acquire the land and prepare a submission so that a reserve can be proclaimed over it and, in due course, a plan of management promulgated. Areas of rain forest in the Northern Territory are not that common and it is government policy, wherever possible and bearing in mind the practicalities of each particular situation, to extend formal protection and management over such areas to ensure their preservation.

Stuart Highway Bus Depot Site

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

In view of the proposed establishment of the Darwin bus depot at Armidale Street, what are the government's plans for the future use of the land on the Stuart Highway presently occupied by the bus depot?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, some alternatives were discussed as future potential for this land. I cannot remember the specific details for the honourable member. However, I will seek to have the matter examined and advise her.

Resignations and Dismissals of Executive Public Servants

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Will he provide the Assembly or the opposition with a list of employees in the E division of the Northern Territory Public Service who have been dismissed or have resigned in the last 2 years, together with a statement of public money spent in associated payments to each individual concerned with these resignations and dismissals?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, at this moment I am not in a position to answer in relation to various employees in the executive division of the Northern Territory Public Service who have resigned or whose services have been terminated, nor whether various payments have been made in respect of superannuation, golden handshakes or whatever. I will certainly take this matter up with the Public Service Commissioner. I will ask him for a complete report on the total number of employees who have resigned over the past couple of years. I will also ask for a report in relation to payments, if any, that have been made to these people. If I consider it to be in the interests of the people concerned that those reports should be made available to the Assembly, then I will do so. There is an element of privacy to be considered in respect of payments of superannuation etc made to people. I cannot see why public servants who receive payments to which they are entitled under the Superannuation Act from time to time should be pilloried in the press, even if these payments are relatively large. Judging from the opposition's fishing expedition yesterday in respect of the superannuation legislation, the Opposition Leader is trying to drive a further wedge between public servants and the public generally in relation to Superannuation entitlements of public servants which they have campaigned for over a considerable period of time. If the public is entitled to know about these payments, I will certainly make the information available. I am prepared to make the information available on a confidential basis to the Leader of the Opposition but I emphasise that it would be on a confidential basis.

Gunn Point Recreational Area

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

My question refers to the Gunn Point recreational area. On 17 August, the Chief Minister said he expected a document soon from the Conservation Commission on the plans for that area which he would make available to members. Is it available yet?

ANSWER

Unfortunately, it is not yet available. I took the matter up with the Conservation Commission only a couple of weeks ago. I am assured that that paper should come to Cabinet very shortly. It consists of a management plan for the Gunn Point Recreation Reserve for approval by Cabinet and I assure members as soon as it is approved I will make it public even if the Assembly is not in session. I believe it will be of considerable interest to all people in Darwin and even further afield in the Top End.

Sadadeen Subdivision

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Is he aware that Sadadeen subdivision stage 1 is filling up and has he any plans to call tenders for stage 2 in the near future?

ANSWER

We have been monitoring the situation. There are some 50 allotments left for sale in the Sadadeen subdivision and it is anticipated that these will last only a short time with the degree of interest in Alice Springs. The Department of Lands has had discussions with the Housing Commission on its future needs for land in Alice Springs for the construction of additional accommodation. In planning future lot turn-off in Alice Springs, it had to take into consideration the fact that there have been considerable delays in the expected turn-off of land as a result of a proposed private development over the Alice Springs Golf Course. Negotiations concerning alleged sacred sites have caused these delays.

At this stage we propose to call for any interest in further subdivision of the Sadadeen area. Documentation is being prepared for release for this purpose. This policy has been successful in the past and we will continue with it.

May I say that it is of concern that the development of Alice Springs has been slowed somewhat in certain areas. Construction of arterial roads has been deferred in the Sadadeen area because of problems in reaching a resolution over sacred sites, more of which seem to be identified each time negotiations are held. A few years back the Sadadeen area was examined by the Planning Authority and other people as far as sacred sites were concerned and negotiations were held with Aboriginal groups at the time. There were 2 or 3 sacred sites identified in the area of the Sadadeen subdivision. These were taken into consideration by government planners and engineers as far as roads were concerned. However, successive negotiations revealed more and more of them. The last map I saw of the area had sacred sites dotted right across it. This has caused many difficulties. Sacred sites identified fairly recently in the golf course area have caused many problems as far as that private subdivision is concerned and a holdup in the reconstruction of Barrett Drive in Alice Springs. Recently, the government deferred letting a tender on that road. A sacred site has been identified in the area in the form of a small rock hill which juts onto the existing road. I am advised that, at the present time, about $2.5m worth of government capital works is held up in Alice Springs due to these problems. It is quite clear that the government will have to act on some of these matters fairly soon because it is untenable that this holdup of works continue year after year. These works are required for the development of a rapidly growing town like Alice Springs, where the government has responsibility to meet the needs of expected population in the area.

Petition Circulated by Park Rangers

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that a number of tourists visiting some of our very fine national parks in the Northern Territory over the past week have been rather offended to have been approached by park rangers in uniform on the job and asked, not to put their litter in a bin, but rather their signatures to a petition opposing Aboriginal land rights. Could he issue a directive to the Conservation Commission that these officers be instructed to confine such practices to their own time?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as usual with the Leader of the Opposition, the statement in the question is a misrepresentation. The only such petition that I know of is not opposed to Aboriginal land rights in principle at all. It is opposed to the conversion of the Katherine Gorge National Park to Aboriginal land. The tenor of the petition, which I have not seen but I have been informed of by officials, is simply that the people concerned with its formulation believe that the Katherine Gorge National Park should be available for all people and owned by the government on their behalf rather than by a certain small group of the private sector on behalf of that particular group's interests. I cannot say that I am really in opposition to those views if they are in fact the views of those people. I too believe that national parks should be owned by governments. I am sure the Leader of the Opposition would say that it would not be good enough for national parks to be on private land if it were pastoral properties or the like. However, it seems to be good enough in other circumstances. Mr Speaker, I am assured by the Director of the Conservation Commission that it had nothing whatsoever to do with the formulation or presentation of this petition.

I would like the Leader of the Opposition to provide me with written details of the names of people approached to sign this petition while visiting national parks. I will take action, through the Director of Conservation, if those people were approached by anyone on the staff of the Conservation Commission whilst that person was engaged on Conservation Commission business. Nevertheless, to the best of my knowledge and understanding at present, any person connected with the Conservation Commission campaigning on behalf of this petition has been engaged in the matter on his own behalf and in his own time. I understand that when the Northern Land Council sought such assurances from the Director of the Conservation Commission, they were given.

Mr Speaker, I will be very interested to hear what the Leader of the Opposition has to say in the adjournment debate this afternoon. Again, I would prefer to receive from him a letter setting out the names and addresses of people who have been so approached to sign this petition together with the date and time, rather than vague generalisations which I have no doubt we will hear again from the Leader of the Opposition this afternoon. Such a letter would give me sufficient information to take action through the public service.

Registration of Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Does he intend to amend that section of the Education Act dealing with the registration of schools?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as the honourable member is aware, there is a matter before the Supreme Court at the moment which relates to a decision I have taken in respect of Yipirinya Council. Even if I was contemplating such a thing, I certainly would not wish to make known any such intention because, quite obviously, that would have some impact on the attitude a judge would quite rightly have about any proceedings before him.

Auditor-General's Report

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

The report of the Auditor-General on the statement of accounts for the Government Printing Office for the year ending 30 June 1980 was received by the minister in late March. Can he explain why he failed to exercise his statutory responsibility under section 30(4) of the Financial Administration and Audit Act to table the report within 6 sitting days of this Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this report was circulated to members of the Assembly during the course of this sittings. I have asked the department for a full briefing as to why it was not circulated much earlier. The only explanation I can offer at this stage is that the previous Secretary of the Department of Transport and Works, Mr Unwin, resigned to go south for personal reasons. In the time between his departure and another person taking up temporary duty, perhaps it was overlooked. I apologise to honourable members for that oversight. Once I have the full briefing, I will provide it to the Leader of the Opposition and to the honourable member for Millner.

Land Subdivision in the Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What is the position in the rural area regarding subdivision of land having regard to the current moratorium on it?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, some 12 months ago, as a result of a preliminary advice to the government that there might be serious ground water pollution problems in rural Darwin, a direction was issued to the Rural Planning Authority prohibiting it from processing applications for subdivision of less than 8 h. This was to apply for about a 12-month period during which time a comprehensive study was to be undertaken of the situation as far as ground water pollution was concerned.

Recently, reports have been made available as a result of those studies and show that there is fairly extensive ground water pollution in the rural area. As a result of these findings, the Rural Planning Authority passed a resolution that it would not process any subdivision applications at all, whatever the size. That is the position at present. We have had a number of meetings within government as a result of the reports made available to us by the consultants. A course of action has been planned by government which I will outline briefly to honourable members.

This matter is causing considerable concern to persons in the rural area who were proposing subdivisions. There has been a great deal of activity in that regard over the past few years as honourable members will be aware. The government has drawn up a set of guidelines and conditions with which future subdivisions in the area will have to comply. I have written recently to the Rural Planning Authority proposing that it proceed to process subdivision applications subject to their meeting these requirements. Broadly, these are that the developer will have to assure the Director of Water Resources that he has made adequate investigation and allowances for the construction of bores or wells on the property for the supply of water to each block that is involved in his subdivision. Also, he will have to satisfy the Department of Health that his proposals for effluent disposal are acceptable having regard to the particular blocks in question and their geography generally. This will no doubt involve some expense to developers in their preparation of subdivisions in rural Darwin. However, we feel that that is a cost penalty which must be borne by them. Obviously, it will be passed on and reflected in the price of land. But it will be in the interests of the health of people generally, not only in the rural area, but also in Darwin itself, because some of Darwin's water supply is drawn from the various bores in the McMinns area. I hasten to point out to honourable members that there is no evidence whatsoever that the aquifer which comprises the McMinns borefield is in any way polluted.

The government proposes to encourage all people in the rural area to have government inspectors examine their property, give a report on their water quality and advise them generally in relation to their water supply and effluent disposal systems. In this regard, fairly shortly we will be stationing government officers on call in the rural area, probably for several months, to advise people and visit their properties. In addition, documentation is being prepared in lay terms explaining the problem to rural landowners and suggesting what action they can take themselves in regard to their effluent systems and to the maintenance of bores and wells. This will be printed and freely available. It will be posted to all major groups in the area and so dispersed on a wide basis. We hope that people will seek as much information on this matter as they can find and take rectification action themselves where it is deemed desirable.

Mr Speaker, what caused concern to the government was that, of 150 bores tested in the area, 95% showed varying degrees of ground water pollution resulting from malfunction or poor placement of effluent disposal systems. We need to encourage people to move as quickly as possible to rectify the situation. We will do everything we can to assist people to determine what needs to be done. If it proves to be quite an expensive process, the government is prepared to look at schemes whereby it may be able to assist. If any member receives approaches from people from rural Darwin concerning the problem, he may feel free to contact my office or the office of the Minister for Health or the Minister for Transport and Works for information on the subject. We want everyone to understand what must be done and to appreciate the seriousness of the situation so that people take action and do not simply say: 'Well, we have lived happily here for several years and we have been drinking the water with no problems, so obviously we can do it for a few more years'. I hope that they regard the matter as being quite serious.

Paper on School Crossings

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Following my adjournment debate remarks and subsequent questions at the last sittings, he advised that a paper on school crossings was being prepared by a group from relevant departments. Is the paper now available and, if so, will he make it available to the Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether a final decision has been taken by the working party that was established between the Department of Education and the police. Certainly, if the working party has prepared recommendations, these have not come forward to Cabinet. I will inquire into this matter and attempt to expedite the preparation of the relevant submission so that Cabinet can take a decision as to what action should be taken. I can assure the honourable member for Nightcliff that she and everyone else will be notified of this as soon as possible.

Warumungu Alyawarra Land Claim

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the extent of the Warumungu Alyawarra Land Claim, its location within important pastoral areas of the Northern Territory and the fact that the South Barkly Stock Route has been in use in recent times for overlanding cattle from the Northern Territory into Queensland, is he able to assure the Assembly that stock routes and stock reserves within the claim area will retain their status as such?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, by way of explanation, let me first inform the Assembly of my understanding of the background to the Warumungu Alyawarra Land Claim. The bulk of this land claim lies between Brunchilly and Rockhampton Downs Stations in the north, McLaren Creek, Kurundi and Epenarra Stations in the south, the Stuart Highway in the west and Delmore Downs Station in the east. Within the land claim area falls the Tennant Creek pastoral lease and the town of Tennant Creek. The land claim lodged with the Aboriginal Land Commissioner in November 1978 included all unalienated Crown land within the boundaries described in the claim. There was no particular mention of stock routes, stock reserves, Territory parks or other public purpose areas at that time.

An amended claim was lodged in August 1980 and the following areas were added to the claim: a stock reserve within Brunchilly Station at the western end of the South Barkly Stock Route, NT Portion 1754 known as Phillip Creek Bore, a travelling stock reserve on that part of the South Barkly Stock Route which lies on the eastern boundary of Rockhampton Downs Station, a water conservation reserve at Bonney Well, the Devils Marbles Conservation Reserve and the Wauchope Commonage. The only stock routes which appeared to be under claim were those portions of the South Barkly and North South Stock Routes which actually pass through unalienated Crown land in the land claim area. It should be noted that these additional areas fall outside the boundaries of the original claim and in most cases are separate pieces of land. In the most recent map received by the Department of Law, there have been additions to the August 1980 claim in that an area at Whistle Duck Creek and NT Portion 716, both of which fall on Kurundi Station, have now been included. In addition, a stock route which crosses Banka Banka Station from the North South Stock Route to the stock reserve adjoining Brunchilly Station has been added.

Mr Speaker, the Northern Territory government has always taken the view that areas which have been set aside or classified for the passage of travelling stock and for stock quarantine purposes and, for that matter, other public purpose areas, should not be able to be alienated except by a deliberate decision of the government after taking the needs of the public and the Northern Territory generally into consideration. Unfortunately, the law is such that it has been possible to lodge claim to stock routes and stock reserves, Northern Territory parks and other public purpose areas. You will be aware that this has been a cause of considerable concern to the wider public. In about March 1981, the Northern Territory government commenced negotiations with the Commonwealth and the land councils for amendments to both Commonwealth and Territory laws relating to the future ownership of land by Aboriginals in the Northern Territory under special and preferential conditions. Part of the negotiations required an agreement by the parties concerned that traditional claims by Aboriginals for stock routes and stock reserves would not be allowed and that the Northern Territory would develop legislation and take other action to provide living areas for Aboriginals in pastoral and other areas and thus eliminate the need to claim stock routes. During the course of those negotiations, the Central Land Council lodged claims for stock routes in central Australia, in particular across Ammaroo Station which, if successful, would have had the effect of providing narrow strips of land to Aboriginal claimants and dividing that pastoral property into 3 separate areas.

I consider that particular claim was provocative and unnecessary in the circumstances and caused anxiety to people in central Australia. I informed the Central Land Council of this. Because of the general philosophy of the Northern Territory government as to the future of stock routes, a philosophy reinforced by the action which the Central Land Council took, I introduced legislation into this Assembly in November 1981 which was aimed at preserving stock routes for their proper purpose, at least until such time as the Northern Territory government decided that they were no longer required for that purpose.

A simple explanation of this legislation was circulated widely amongst Aboriginal communities. Following representations by the land councils, discussions on the stock routes issue and, in particular, verbal and written undertakings given that the land councils would not proceed to hearings of stock route claims until our negotiations were either completed or abandoned, I undertook not to proceed with the stock routes and related legislation. Members will know that this bill has remained on the notice paper without further debate since it was first introduced. The recently heard Mount Allan Land Claim included a stock route which in fact was not gazetted but was part of the pastoral lease. Although the Northern Territory government did not protest to the Central Land Council prior to the hearing, it was submitted to the commissioner that this stock route should be excluded from the claim. The outcome of that submission is not yet known.

The Warumungu Alyawarra Land Claim includes part of the North South Stock Route which was gazetted on 17 August 1933 and part of the South Barkly Stock Route from Brunchilly to Rocklands in Queensland which, although not gazetted, is marked on the map as a stock route. It should be noted that this particular stock route has been used in the last 12 months. I understand that 20 000 head of cattle were moved along it from the stock reserve under claim at Rockhampton Downs and facilities on the stock route, such as watering points and dip yards, had to be used. This stock route and the North South Stock Route may well be important links for the overlanding of cattle for short distances when the Alice Springs to Darwin rail link is completed. Because those stock routes and stock reserves remain in the land claim, I have exchanged telexes with the Chairman of the Central Land Council reminding him of the undertaking given and suggesting that the Central Land Council stand by the undertaking. The replies which I have received up to date, in my view, have been unsatisfactory. If the claim to parts of these stock routes and stock reserves continues there is a risk that they will cease to exist. This position is untenable so far as the Northern Territory government is concerned and I have instructed officials to put in train necessary action to ensure that these stock routes can be alienated. They must retain their present status in the interests of the Northern Territory and its people.

Loan to Government Printing Office

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Why were the terms and conditions of the government loan of $3.5m to the Government Printing Office not established at the time the loan was made and have the terms and conditions of that loan yet been settled?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have that specific information. I would be happy to obtain it and pass it on to the honourable member or she could place the question on notice.

Palm Leaf Beetle

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

I understand that tests on the virus to control the palm leaf beetle have been completed successfully. Can he advise the timing of the introduction of the biological agent to control the palm leaf beetle?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the last safety test on the parasite is being conducted in quarantine laboratories in Brisbane and the results of all tests will be submitted to Canberra. Subject to Commonwealth approval, release of the parasite from quarantine in Brisbane is expected by mid-November. The parasites will be brought to Darwin, multiplied by the Department of Primary Production at Berrimah laboratory and then released. Existing facilities will allow the breeding and the release of 500 of the pinhead-size parasites each week. A stand of palms has been selected for special observation and detailed monitoring of damage was commenced in September. Monitoring will continue up to parasite release and subsequently at monthly intervals to assess the effect of the parasite. The public is advised not to expect improvement in the condition of their coconut palms overnight as it may be some months before any effect of the parasite will be visible even after the insect has become established. Consequently, people should continue their spraying programs to control the palm leaf beetle.

Government Printing Office Ledger

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What action has the minister taken to ensure that the Government Printing Office operates its general ledger on a normally accepted commercial basis?

ANSWER

In the last 12 months, steps have been taken by the Department of Transport and Works in conjunction with a private firm of accountants to oversee, and provide guidelines on, how the Government Printing Office accounts should be run. The report we circulated this week was not really a good one for the Government Printing Office. I accept the responsibility. However, as soon as these particular deficiencies were known, steps were taken to ensure that proper auditing and accounting procedures were undertaken. Once again, since the tabling of this report, I have asked the department for information regarding the report and an update of the recommendations received from that private firm of accountants.

Mr Speaker, yesterday the honourable Leader of the Opposition made great play of his belief that ministers should trust their departments and should not oversee everything. I believe that, in this instance, there has been an oversight by the department. I am not blaming the department because I am responsible. However, until this report hit the deck, I was not aware that it was late.

Mr Smith: March.

Mr DONDAS: The honourable member for Millner says 'March'. A letter was received from the Auditor-General by the then Secretary of the Department of Transport and Works, Mr Unwin, on 28 March. At this stage I cannot give honourable members any reason for that delay. There was no reason. We have had several Assembly sittings since March and really there has been no reason why the report should not have been tabled. I shall provide honourable members with more exact information at a later date.

Katherine Rural Education Centre

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In light of the Tertiary Education Commission's agreement to expand the physical facilities at the Katherine Rural Education Centre, what expansion to these courses is being contemplated?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in answer to the honourable member's question, I ought to give details as to the nature of the Tertiary Education Commission's physical facilities proposal. I understand now that the Katherine Rural Education Centre is to be placed at the top of the national priorities of the Tertiary Education Commission. It has clearly grabbed the imagination of quite a number of people in that organisation. Design work for the first stage of the program has already been started. Construction should be complete by the end of 1983 at a cost of about $2.2m. The first stage involves accommodation for 30 units, a learning resource centre, lecture room, dining room, kitchen, a training butchery and 2 staff houses. Additional developments are planned for the second and third stages which will ultimately provide accommodation for up to 90 students.

Mr Speaker, the honourable member's question is a perfectly reasonable one. It is not much use spending that sort of money without following it through with programs that match. As this is a Commonwealth initiative, I would draw the Treasurer's attention to the need, in any future discussions with the Commonwealth, to follow up with increasing expenditure for future years. It will be now necessary to talk to the Commonwealth about additional funding in the technical and further education area to provide the staffing and teaching resources necessary to carry these programs through.

Mr Speaker, you would be aware that most of the people in the eastern sector of the pastoral industry and the Barkly region still look to Queensland, in particular, for most of their supplies. Of course, they also look to that area for skilled and semi-skilled staff to work on the pastoral properties. I have had extensive discussions with a number of pastoralists, particularly the big corporate groups, and they have made it very clear to me that they would be more than willing to consider, on merit, graduates of the Katherine Rural Education Centre equally with those of, say, Longreach, provided that the course structure standards were equivalent for their purposes. We have seen fit to introduce a 2-year, full-time certificate course in rural studies at the Katherine Rural Education Centre. It is proposed that those students who complete the 1-year certificate course in 1983 will automatically be able to enrol for a 2-year certificate course commencing in 1984. We would hope to commence the actual program for the 2-year course in 1983, but the second year of it would not be available until 1984. The 2-year course will bring the Katherine Rural Education Centre into line with similar colleges interstate, thus making the product of our college just as acceptable as any other. Hopefully, an increase in employment can be obtained by graduates of that college.

It is worth pointing out, Mr Speaker, that properties like Alexandria employ in excess of 60 people. Victoria Downs employs near enough to 60 people. Obviously, the pastoral industry is a very significant employer of people. Why should it not become a very significant employer of young Territory people?

Mr Speaker, the course will offer a greater in-depth understanding of the basics of the pastoral and rural industries generally and lead to management skills. It will prepare students for increasing technology in the rural occupations. You know also that it is no longer just a matter of saddling up the horse at dawn. The running of a pastoral property is now a multi-million dollar business although, Mr Speaker, you may not think that yours necessarily is. The course is designed to meet what we see as the demands of the pastoral industry now, particularly the bigger and more sophisticated properties. The old image of the ringer may have been good enough in the 1950s and 1960s but certainly it is not now. The thrust will be for a far more sophisticated residential course at the new facilities proposed at the Katherine Rural Education Centre. It is going to be expensive, but I believe it will be an expense well worth committing.

Continuation of ANL Fortnightly Service

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

We are aware that $1.5m is available in the federal budget for the continuation of the eastern seaboard Darwin shipping service and we also know the Darwin Trader will probably finish in November. Has he received from ANL confirmation that the fortnightly service will continue and, if so, with what type of vessel?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, we received correspondence from the Australian National Line to say that it will provide a fortnightly service on the eastern seaboard to Darwin. However, we have some problems which are being resolved at this very moment. One is that the Port Authority has ordered a crane through IHI Sumitomo Australia which should be constructed, delivered and installed in the port mid-1984. The vessel that the ANL is recommending as a substitute for the Darwin Trader does not have the same lifting gear. Without lifting gear, we are faced with 2 alternatives. One alternative is to purchase or hire a crane for the period that we need it. The cost to purchase a crane is in the order of $400 000 and rental is about $40 000 per month.

Officers of the Department of Transport and Works are holding discussions with ANL to see if it is in a position to provide an interim service with lifting gear and thus save us having to invest a lot of money in that area for the short term. Discussions will also take place with the federal Department of Transport and Construction through its minister, Mr Hunt, to see if he is able to encourage ANL to provide the right type of vessel. The Darwin Trader is to be put on another run. If we have to wait for ANL to make a decision to install the type of vessel we will need for this fortnightly service, we will be faced with the problem of having to invest that $400 000. If we can convince ANL to put on the right type of vessel, we will overcome that problem.

Certainly, there are problems in that area that have only come to light recently. Discussions between the Department of Transport and Works, the federal Department of Transport and Construction, and ANL will take place in the next week or so. I have instructed an officer of the department to ensure that we are in a position to make some kind of decision within the next week to 10 days because it will take ANL a certain amount of time to schedule shipping into the area. The Darwin Trader operates on a 28 to 30-day monthly service and the new service will be fortnightly. It will be a boon to Northern Territory residents. If the cost of $400 000 in the initial stages cannot be met by this government, I am unable to advise the honourable member which direction we will take.

Tennant Creek Population

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Is the recent newspaper report that Tennant Creek has lost 17% of its population accurate?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was somewhat concerned when I saw the report in the newspaper yesterday written by Richard Muddimer who seems to have muddled some of his figures. He said: 'There was the chilling fact that the population has slumped from last year's count of 3100 to 2500 in contrast to the Northern Territory boast of growth'. Officers of the Treasury who handle the Territory's statistics and information advised me that the population projection group undertook a count of people at Tennant Creek on 30 June 1981. At that time, in Tennant Creek there were 3118 people. A more recent count on 21 July 1982, which is exactly the period the reporter was speaking of, revealed there were 3170 people in Tennant Creek. In fact, there has been an increase over the 12 months of 52 people, or 1.6%. I am concerned that reports like that appear in the newspaper.

Mr Bell: The meatworks has closed.

Mr PERRON: The honourable member for MacDonnell interjects that the meatworks has closed. That does not mean that 17% of the town's population has packed its bags and left. We are talking about the population of the town.

The meatworks closes every year at about this time. The report in the newspaper, as seems to be the case all too often, is grossly inaccurate.

Government Printing Office Accounts

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has a statement of accounts for the Government Printing Office for the year ended 30 June 1981 been transmitted to the Auditor-General and, if so, when? And has the Auditor-General's report been received by the minister? If not, has the period for submission of this statement been extended?

ANSWER

As I said earlier, I have asked the department to give me an up-to-date briefing regarding the report by the Auditor-General. When I have that information, I will provide it to the honourable member.

Uranium Enrichment Plant

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Recent comment in the media implies that the Territory government has missed the bus as far as siting of the uranium enrichment plant in the Territory is concerned. Can he advise the Assembly of the government's position in this matter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am happy to advise of the government's extreme interest in this matter. The proposition put by the popular press, that because it does not know what is going on nothing is happening, is not quite credible.

Mr Speaker, for the benefit of honourable members, I will review the history of the Uranium Enrichment Group of Australia study. In 1979, the federal government, in consultation and with the cooperation of several large Australian companies - BHP, Western Mining Corporation, CSR, Peko - set up a group to investigate the feasibility of enriching uranium in Australia. This was a very farsighted approach taken on behalf of the government and the companies involved because there is no doubt that it is a major industry in any terms and one that needs a lot of planning and support from both industry and government to become feasible. Mr Speaker, the UEGA investigation was conducted and we learnt, quite off the record, earlier this year that the Northern Territory sites put forward were not acceptable to the group. I believe there was more self-interest than pragmatism in the assessment of the Northern Territory's position.

It is common knowledge that last week UEGA's report was released and, in fact, the Northern Territory did not get any consideration. Sites in Western Australia and Queensland were considered to be better than the Northern Territory sites and for that reason we were put aside. Several criteria were applied to consideration of the Northern Territory sites and we lost out because we lack industrial infrastructure. I guess we cannot argue with that because it is a reality. We also have a climate that is perceived not to be conducive to the good operation of an enrichment facility. I am not quite sure that I understand that. Maybe an area 10 feet deep in snow is required. That point has not been explained in any detail. Another important point that was held against us was the capital cost of construction. Operating costs in the Territory are very high and it was considered that these costs would be a disability in overall consideration of the program.

So far as I am concerned, too little importance has been placed by the UEGA on political, socio-economic considerations that should be given to the Territory. These should weigh heavily in the capital construction and operation of the plant. To labour that point, I think that it is a fact that, if the uranium industry in this country is to go forward, it needs a fair amount of public support. In the Northern Territory we have the only 2 mines operating now and we have a great deal of public support. In Victoria and New South Wales, there is no political or public support for the proposition of a uranium industry. It could not go ahead in Queensland, where there is public and political supports because there are no uranium mines as yet. There is a mine in South Australia where public support is 'line ball' so to speak, and the South Australian government and the operators of the Roxby Downs project are certainly taking their time getting their proposed mine into the starting blocks. I think it is very important that these considerations of public support are taken into consideration by UEGA. That is the point that the Northern Territory needs to ram home.

If you want to see how lack of public support can undermine projects, I think the Omega facility in Victoria is a fine example. That project has been blown out of all proportion in terms of cost because of antagonistic attitudes within the community. It is clear in the Territory that community and industrial support is heavily in favour of the uranium industry, and the extension of it. It is no news to anybody here that the uranium mining industry is important to us. If it were not for the uranium mines, I think we would be hard put to find a miner operating in the black this year. They are doing very well and it is important that we get other mines going to join the 2 operating at present because they are very profitable projects once they are running.

It is not unreasonable then that we have additional processing of the uranium in the Northern Territory. I have spoken before in the Assembly about the possibility of a hexafluoride plant. I am not shy about saying that I believe we should look to the long term and see whether we can have an enrichment plant too. I accept that the cost disabilities are a real factor in any consideration of an enrichment plant. On the other hand, public support for the project might help to reduce capital costs in the long term.

Mr Speaker, there are several other aspects that I think honourable members should be aware of. We are not looking at something that will happen in the next 2 to 5 years. Enrichment will take some 12 or more years to become a reality in Australia. To start with, no legislation is available in this country at all for such a program to go forward under. Honourable members would be aware that our mining operations in Australia are conducted ...

Mr LEO: Point of order, Mr Speaker!

Mr SPEAKER: What is the point of order?

Mr LEO: Mr Speaker, Standing Orders say that an answer to a question must be relevant to the question. Perhaps the minister could be reminded that time is provided for ministerial statements. I think it is a waste of question time. It is the last day of the sittings, Mr Speaker.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mrs O'NEIL: Point of order, Mr Speaker! When you call a member to speak, Sir, it is required that other members resume their seats. I notice that the honourable Minister for Mines and Energy has shown you the discourtesy of standing while other members have the call and I would ask you to bring that to his attention.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, I also wish to speak to the point of order because of a matter I raised yesterday. Mr Speaker, I am afraid I did not hear your ruling. During question time yesterday the opposition heard a clear direction, sotto voce though it was, from the Chief Minister to the Treasurer to keep talking to take up as much of question time as he could. This is the last day of this week's sittings. A number of members have questions still to ask. The minister will have an opportunity to make a ministerial statement. He does not need to make it now. It is not an answer to a question at all.

Mr SPEAKER: I rule there is no point of order for the member for Nhulunbuy. However, I uphold the point of order of the member for Fannie Bay that the honourable Minister for Mines and Energy should have resumed his seat when the call for a point of order was made.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, I apologise to the Assembly and in particular to the honourable member for my discourteous behaviour in failing to resume my seat. I shall refrain from such action in future. I feel too, Mr Speaker, that the opposition might find the whole answer this morning quite distasteful because of its bitter opposition to this industry. The less said about it the better as far as it is concerned.

The point that I was moving on to when I was interrupted by that point of order is one of legislation. Throughout Australia mining activities are conducted under the federal government's Atomic Energy Act which is not really an ideal piece of legislation for the sorts of activities that we are involved with. In fact, if the uranium industry in this country is to develop, then I believe state and federal governments need to come together to look at the whole uranium cycle and work out which state and federal agencies are to be responsible for what. In turn, each of those governments must legislate accordingly to cover the sections of the uranium cycle that fall to them. In practical terms, that legislative program between states and Commonwealth could take 2 to 3 years, which is a fair lead time. I would also think that there are at least 2 more years of study to be done by UEGA before it can come to a final conclusion. I make the point that the final decision relating to the siting of an enrichment plant in Australia must fall to the Commonwealth, despite any aspirations the states have.

Mr Speaker, I think there are several things that the Northern Territory must do. We must show UEGA that we have positive factors going for us for enrichment in the Northern Territory. Also, I believe that we should look at the bigger picture and see how the Territory might fit with other people in the world so far as an enrichment process is concerned. Honourable members are aware that South Australia has sought to be included with the Urnco Centec group in the process in that state. There is no doubt in my mind, after my recent visits to Japan and Korea, that both those countries will become more heavily involved with the uranium cycle and will, as a matter of national security and interest, become involved in enrichment. Perhaps one of our options is to become more closely aligned to those 2 countries ourselves and seek their support as partners in a program in the Northern Territory.

In conclusion, I do not believe that we have missed the bus by any means. The game has just started. There is a lot of support to be organised on the Northern Territory's behalf. My colleagues and I will be pursuing the matter very heavily in the days to come because, if there is one thing that is likely to give us the impetus to carry on the growth that we have at the moment, I believe the extension of the uranium cycle in the Northern Territory is it. I would commend that all members of this Assembly join with us in the exercise so that we are not divided by a partisan approach.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members may find relief in Standing Order 95.

Government Printing Office

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he an explanation for the accumulated loss of $223 918 incurred by the Government Printing Office in the year ending 30 June 1979?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will have to obtain information and provide it to the honourable member at a later date. As I said in response to earlier questions, Mr Speaker, in fact, in another form, that information has been requested by me already from the department. As soon as I have it I will provide it to the honourable Leader of the Opposition.

Plastic Bottles

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has he taken any action on my suggestion to encourage the use of plastic bottles instead of glass bottles in an effort to reduce litter clean-up costs related to broken glass and to reduce the availability of offensive weapons?

ANSWER

I have referred the proposal put forward by the honourable member for Alice Springs to the Conservation Commission for its consideration and a report to me.

Old Arafura Hostel Buildings

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

In view of recent publicity about the dangerous state of the old Arafura Hostel buildings, will he have both the buildings, which are on government land, demolished?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I certainly do not have information available at the moment that would lead me to say yes to that question. Whilst some parts of the buildings appear to be in a rather poor state of repair, it does not necessarily mean that they should be completely demolished. It may be worth while to renovate them. The land in question was put up to auction not very long ago. It did not attract a bid. Since that time I have withdrawn the land from sale over the counter. If it had been left there, it would have had to be sold at the reserve price and on the conditions that it was put to auction for. The purpose was to enable negotiations for sale of the land to a developer and those negotiations are nearing finality. In regard to the unfortunate accident recently where a person was injured in the buildings, I will receive a report from the Building Board and see whether some action should be taken to try to prevent any reoccurrence.

Rum Jungle Rehabilitation

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Could he advise if any progress has been made on the rehabilitation of Rum Jungle? In view of the very scant information he has provided me in the past, could he please give me a full and complete answer, Mr Speaker?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I hate to disappoint the honourable member. I have made the point before that the rehabilitation of Rum Jungle is being organised through the Chief Minister's office by the Co-ordinator-General. The Department of Mines and Energy has not advised me. I believe the Minister for Transport and Works and his department have the carriage of it. If he is happy, I will read out this briefing note for his benefit.

The Commonwealth government is funding a 4-year rehabilitation program at the total cost of $16m. The 1982-83 allocation was reduced to $800 000 in lieu of the $4m anticipated but the work is currently being rescheduled so that completion by the due date can still be achieved provided funds are forthcoming. The first contract is expected to be advertised early in 1983 and will be for earthworks in the areas of white stockpile. The preferred approach for design, purchasing and construction of the water treatment plant is also being investigated. It is proposed to award contracts for this towards the end of 1982-83 with the construction phase the following year. Possible use of the old Aboriginal teacher education facilities at Batchelor for project accommodation and messing is being negotiated with the Department of Education. The Commonwealth Department of National Development and Energy has submitted a draft memorandum of understanding. There are a significant number of issues which need to be discussed further at officer level and the Co-ordinator-General's office has advised the Commonwealth of the need for further discussions. At this stage, Mr Speaker, no date has been set for these discussions. The Department of Mines and Energy is happy to cooperate and work in any way possible for the early rehabilitation of that site.

Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme

Mr LEO to TREASURER

What institutions are holding those funds which would normally have been paid to the Commonwealth superannuation schemes from NT government employees' contributions?

ANSWER

The particular institutions, which I think are government statutory authorities, do not come readily to my mind. I would be happy to seek the information for the honourable member and provide it to him or he could place the question on notice.

Berry Springs Zoo

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What progress has been made so far regarding the establishment of a zoo at Berry Springs?

ANSWER

Cabinet some time ago approved the establishment of a zoo at Berry Springs. Eventually this zoo will replace the present Yarrawonga Zoo which is in pretty good shape at present and is a great credit to those members of the staff of the Conservation Commission who are maintaining it. Mr Speaker, if you have not had the opportunity to visit Yarrawonga Zoo recently, I recommend it to you and all honourable members. I understand that it is one of the leading tourist attractions around Darwin and certainly it is well worth a visit.

I think that the land has now been acquired at Berry Springs. There were problems with acquiring all the land but, to the best of my knowledge, they have now been overcome. I think from memory that it is in the headwaters of Berry Creek that the aggregation of land has been achieved. An open range zoo is planned which will run out at a total cost of around $3m. I think that a small amount of money is allocated in the budget towards the first stage for clearing and fencing. It must have been a couple of hundred thousand dollars. When it is finally established, the zoo will have a format that more or less sets out a typical sample of Territory habitat and the wildlife of the Top End of the Territory. There will be a billabong, a water course, buffalo, crocodiles, water fowl and other wildlife. I think that we will try to keep the wild pigs out of this one, Mr Speaker. Generally speaking, it will be a microcosm of bush so that people can go for walks on the long trails that will be provided. Visitor facilities will be provided and an information centre, where films and other educational-type activities will be carried out for the edification of visitors, similar to the facility at Katherine Gorge National Park. In all, I think it is a most pleasing concept and it has the full support of the government. It will be staged over about 3 or 4 years and should be ready by 1985 or 1986.

Aboriginal and Islander Medical Service

198 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. What is the present staffing of the Aboriginal and Islander Medical Centre? Are there plans to increase the staffing levels and, if so, what positions?
2. What are the functions and duties of the Aboriginal and Islander Medical Service?
3. During the 6 months to 31 May 1981, (a) how many Aboriginals have been treated per week by AIMS, (b) what are the major categories of illness, and (c) where do the Aboriginals, in the main, come from?
4. How many Aboriginal liaison officers are attached to Casuarina Hospital; what hours do they work; and are there plans to increase the numbers?
5. Are any Aboriginal liaison officers to be employed at Darwin Hospital?

ANSWER

1. The Aboriginal and Islander Medical Service is currently staffed with a senior liaison officer, 4 liaison officers, 1 trainee liaison officer and 1 trainee receptionist. No representations have been received for an increase in staff.
2. The service is essentially concerned with liaison, support and transport of Aboriginal people in the Darwin area. The end result is facilitating communication between Aboriginal people and existing health services and ensuring that Aboriginal people are able to avail themselves of the existing services to the fullest extent.
3. The Aboriginal and Island Medical Service does not treat patients. There were 6125 people transported by AIMS from December 1980 to May 1981 with the majority being either picked up or delivered to locations such as Darwin Hospital, Bagot Reserve, Darwin Central and Nightcliff Community Health Centres as well as various hostels and fringe camps. From January 1982 to July 1982, approximately 14 500 people have been transported by this organisation whose services now extend as far south as Adelaide River.
4. & 5. There are 2 Aboriginal liaison workers at Darwin Hospital.

   Hours of work are: 1 liaison officer 0840 - 1730 hours; and 1 liaison officer 1000 - 1830 hours.

   There are no plans to increase the numbers.

Security for Belongings of Hospital Patients

225 Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

What arrangements are made to ensure the security of the belongings of hospital patients, for example psychiatric and geriatric patients, who are unable to care for themselves?

ANSWER

Personal effects of geriatric patients in the Harry Chan Ward, apart from anything needed by the patients, are secured by nursing staff. Money is banked by a social worker directly into the patient's own bank account.

Valuable property belonging to short-term psychiatric patients is kept in a locked area if the patient does not wish to care for it or is unable to do so. Long-term patients' valuables are handled by the social workers.

Receipts are issued for cash or valuables stored on behalf of general hospital patients. Money belonging to patients may be collected in whole or in part on request.

Psychiatric Services

534 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. For what reason is psychiatric services included in the general administrative expenditure for health services?

2. For what reason has the level of funding for psychiatric services been reduced from $510 000 to $475 000? Where will this cut be felt?

ANSWER

1. The amount allocated for psychiatric services in the general administrative expenditure for health services reflects the payments to be made to interstate institutions in respect of Territory patients. The costs of maintaining psychiatric services within the Territory are included in the general operating costs of the hospitals.

2. The reduction in the level of funding from $501 000 in 1980-81 to $475 000 for 1981-82 reflected the lesser number of Territory patients being accommodated at high cost institutions interstate. The estimate for 1981-82 was based upon the actual expenditure incurred for the 1980-81 period as shown below:

	Estimate	Actual Expenditure
1980-81	$ 501 000	$ 457 131
1981-82	$ 475 000	$ 566 068
1982-83	$ 500 000	$ 84 850 (as at 31 August 1982).

Doctor-Patient Ratios in NT

538 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

1. What is the current ratio of doctors per patient at each hospital in the NT?

2. What are the duty rosters of doctors and nurses? How does this compare with last year?

3. Is the percentage that salaried doctors can earn on top of their income to be increased from 25%? If so, to what level?

ANSWER

1. The ratio is shown as a ratio of patient per salaried doctor. Figures for 1981 and the first half of 1982 were as follows:

Hospital	1981	1982
Darwin	4.14	4.54
Alice Springs	5.43	4.96
Katherine	22.75	17.42
Tennant Creek	14.42	8.01
Gove	16.71	12.21
NT Average	5.57	5.36

The figures are based on the ratio of salaried doctors to the average daily occupied beds for the June quarters 1981 and 1982. The number of doctors does not include private practitioners and specialists of whom there are 67 currently practising in the Territory, many of whom have hospital visiting rights.

2. It is not feasible to describe the duty rosters of doctors and nurses. Rosters differ from one specialist area of a hospital to another, and from one hospital to another. However, if the honourable member would nominate which area he is specifically interested in, I will provide him with a sample roster for that area.

3. No.

Drilling and Exploration, Magellan Petroleum

667 Mr BELL to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

1. What are the details of the current drilling program being pursued by Magellan Petroleum in central Australia?

2. What is the (a) registration number of, and (b) nature of exploration on each E.L. held by the company?

3. What funding has been committed to the exploration program either (a) in general, or (b) for each E.L.?

ANSWER

Magellan Petroleum Australia Ltd has net interests of 25.52% and 12.20% in oil permits OP175 and 178 in the Amadeus Basin where the most intensive exploration work is progressing at present.

Pancontinental Petroleum Ltd, the operator in these permits, has drilled the Wallaby, Dingo and Mt Winter wells in the last 12 months. Up to 4 further wildcat wells are expected to be drilled in the coming year.

Magellan also has an interest in OP165 in the Ngalia Basin and, of course, the 2 Mereenie leases, PPL4 and PPL5. As operator in OP165, Magellan drilled the Davis 1 well last year.

Oilmin NL is the operator at Mereenie where the wells East Mereenie 5 and 6 are being progressed. Up to 18 further appraisal wells may be drilled over the coming 2 years.

The total commitment by all interested companies in exploration in the Amadeus Basin is well in excess of $10 million over the 5 year permit term which expires in May 1982 for OP175 and October 1983 for OP178. These costs cover seismic work and exploration drilling but not the Mereenie appraisal program.

Roads - Pastoral Properties

727 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

On how many pastoral properties (a) does the government maintain roads from station boundary to the homestead, (b) what is the longest length of road maintained under this system, (c) what is the average length of road maintained, and (d) what was the cost of maintaining these roads in the 1981-82 financial year?

ANSWER

(a) 150 pastoral leases.

(b) 60 km to Western Creek.

(c) Average length of road within a pastoral lease: 17.5 km
Average total length of pastoral access road: 31 km.

(d) Average cost of maintenance: $200 km/year. (Total length of pastoral access roads is approximately 4650 km).

Loan - Katherine Meatworks

729 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. Was a government loan made available to the operators of the Katherine meatworks?

2. If so, (a) was this loan to the value of $1.4 million, (b) what is the current status of this loan, and (c) is it being serviced correctly?

ANSWER

A Commonwealth loan was made available to Northern Meat Exporters Pty Ltd, operators of the Katherine meatworks.

Repayments are being made in accordance with the agreement and the amount of the loan is $1 000 000.

Buffaloes

732 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

1. How many buffaloes have been received at the government's facility at Annaburro Station?

2. Have the suppliers met the conditions required in terms of buffalo type and age?

ANSWER

1. The marshalling facilities at Annaburro Station are an integral part of the buffalo domestication program and were established by the government to receive, test and quieten young female buffalo. 435 head of buffalo have been received and a total of 700-1000 is expected for the year. The government is satisfied that progress is being made with this unique program.

2. All animals received at the facility have been satisfactory in terms of type and age, although there have been 2 deaths from unspecified causes and 2 animals were destroyed for humane reasons.

'High Rise' Development, Alice Springs

737 Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

1. How many applications for 'high rise' development - that is, for buildings of more than 3 storeys - in Alice Springs have been received by the Planning Authority in the 12 months to 1 August 1982?

2. Has the Planning Authority rejected any such applications outright considering the height constraint currently imposed by the 1980 Alice Springs Town Plan, or has the authority advised developers to put their plans 'on ice' until it has considered more carefully the issue of 'high rise' development in Alice Springs?

3. What is the nature of the Planning Authority's consideration of the issue of 'high rise' development in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

1. One.

2. The application received was deferred by the Planning Authority pending consideration of a height policy for buildings over 2 storeys and the provision of car parking spaces.

3. Proposed alternative height policies were exhibited at the Alice Springs Show and continued on public exhibition for 42 days to 12 August 1982.

Twenty-three submissions and 2 petitions relating to the matter have been received. The Planning Authority is to further consider the matter.

Industrial Subdivision, Alice Springs

738 Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Is the government considering any alternatives to the Sadadeen East location for its planned Alice Springs industrial subdivision, bearing in mind the disputed nature of the Sadadeen East site?

ANSWER

The government examined alternative locations for industrial subdivision in 1981 and found that significant cost penalties were involved. An approach to the Commonwealth to obtain financial cover of the additional costs was unsuccessful. The matter was referred to by the Chief Minister in the Legislative Assembly on 2 December 1981 - pages 1805 to 1812 of Hansard refer.

Access Road, Beetaloo

741 Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Bearing in mind that the route for the realigned section of the access road to Beetaloo Station has been determined in consultation with traditional owners and that large numbers of stock are expected to be turned off in the near future, when will work to upgrade the access road be completed?

ANSWER

Upgrading work will commence in mid-October and should be completed in mid-December.

Stormwater Canal, Tennant Creek

742 Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

1. Does the government plan to upgrade the main town stormwater canal located adjacent to a motel, caravan park, residential areas and a school in the northern and eastern areas of Tennant Creek?
2. If so, when is the work likely to commence?

ANSWER

1. No.
2. Not applicable.
3. The drain to which the question refers is one of a number of drains being considered by an inter-organisational committee formed to examine the various aspects of drains in centres where local government operates. The committee has not yet reported.

   Planning of any upgrading is impracticable until the government has had an opportunity of studying the committee's report.

Roads, Plenty-Sandover Region

743 Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer to his press release of 28 July and ask what are the details of the government's 'plans to improve pastoral roads' in the Plenty-Sandover region?

ANSWER

A recent development study of the central Australian road network identified priorities for the improvement of road services in the Plenty-Sandover area.

The major works planned to be undertaken in our forward program include the following:

- Continuation of upgrading and sealing of the Plenty Highway. We hope to get beyond the 100 km mark in 1986.
- In addition to work presently under way on the Mud Tank to Delny road, there will be further development of the network in the Dneiper-McDonald Downs area.
- A new link is planned from Ammaroo on the Sandover Highway towards Murray Downs.

Further development of rural arterial and local roads in the area will be considered for inclusion in later programs.

Causeway, Alice Springs

744 Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

When does he expect the extent of residential development east of the Todd River and south of Heavitree Gap will be sufficient to justify reviewing the location of the existing causeway, which is a government undertaking revealed by him in his latest communication to me on the subject?

ANSWER

The causeway across the Todd River at Heavitree Gap provides a convenient flood-free crossing of the river for a considerable number of people for most of the year.

At this time development at the east of the Todd and south of Heavitree Gap does not justify an additional crossing.

A crossing at a site south of the existing causeway has been considered, however it is difficult to predict just when traffic volumes will reach a sufficient level to warrant its construction.

Solar Power, Yulara

746 Mr BELL to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Can he detail his department's plans for using solar energy as a means for supplying power to Yulara village, described in 'The Age' of 11 August 1982, as a 'solar power tower'?

ANSWER

The Northern Territory government has had protracted discussions with the McDonnell Douglas Corporation concerning a solar thermal power station, commonly known as a solar tower, since mid-1979. These discussions have centred on a 1-2 MW power tower-type station, sited at the planned Yulara tourist village.

The plant proposed for Yulara, or other remote site, consists of reflecting heliostats (mirrors reflecting sunlight in a fixed direction), a tower-mounted central receiver, a molten salt heat transfer system with heat storage and a conventional steam turbine generator system. Initially the plant will generate 1 MW although it can be upgraded to 2 MW. There is also potential for waste heat to be utilised, which could increase the plant value markedly.

As the accepted commercial value of the plant, in terms of liquid fuel saved, is considerably less than its estimated cost of $16 million, funding from an external source is required. The Department of Mines and Energy has ascertained that the technology is acceptable, the project will conserve liquid fuels, the cost of future plants is projected to be less than commercial plant value and there is significant technology transfer benefit to Australian industry.

The government is currently considering the funding options open to it. The outcome of these deliberations will affect the future of the project.

School, Lake Nash

747 Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I refer to an advertisement lodged by the manager of Lake Nash Station in the 25 March edition of 'Queensland Country Life' seeking the services of a mechanic in which conditions of employment listed included the phrase 'no school' and ask, will he take steps to inform or convince the manager of Lake Nash Station that the Department of Education does indeed operate a school on that station?

ANSWER

I am quite sure the manager of Lake Nash is aware that there is a school on the station and the remainder of the statement/question is thereby rendered pointless.

Community Government, Borroloola

748 Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Does the majority of the Borroloola community oppose the introduction of community government?
2. If so, will the government continue to negotiate the introduction of community government despite the fact that the community generally opposes it?
3. If the government concludes negotiations, what is the likely date for the introduction of community government at Borroloola?

ANSWER

1. Residents of Borroloola have not made an application for the introduction of community government. However the government has been assisting a body elected at a public meeting to become incorporated as the Borroloola Progress Association. A dispute has arisen within the community over the composition of the executive of that association.
2. The government has not been negotiating the introduction of community government at Borroloola. Although a dispute still exists, the Borroloola Progress Association is proceeding with its plans for incorporation. It is understood that the Borroloola Aboriginal Council has now decided to commence incorporation proceedings.
3. The dates when the Borroloola Progress Association and the Borroloola Council are to be incorporated are not known.

Alpurrurrulam Community

749 Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Following receipt of a letter sent to his department dated 28 May 1982 from the Alpurrurrulam community at Lake Nash which states: 'We want to tell you that we do not want to move to Bathurst Downs. We want to stay here in this country, Lake Nash, that we call Alpurrurrulam.', does he acknowledge that the Aboriginal community wants to remain in its present location at Lake Nash?

ANSWER

Present indications are that the Alpurrurrulam community do not wish to move to Bathurst Downs although they had originally expressed a desire to do so and had themselves selected the proposed site.

Further discussions will be held with the community as soon as the water situation at Bathurst Downs has been clarified.

Tourist Operations Standards

750 Mr BELL to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. As a rule, does the NT Tourist Commission critically assess the standard and quality of a tourist operation before it offers the operation promotional support?
2. If so, what general procedures are followed to make such assessment?
3. If consumer opinion indicates a tourist operation is sub-standard in any respect, does the Tourist Commission consider withdrawing its promotional support from this operation?

ANSWER

1. Yes.
2. New tourist operators are required to serve a probationary phase for 12 months to ensure the standard of their product meets market demand as well as to achieve a demonstrative indication of the operator's willingness to provide a first-class service during both peak and off-peak seasons. Brochures are held under the counter and distributed on a request basis only during this trial period. At the conclusion of 12 months the product and service is critically evaluated before full support is given and publications are placed on the shelves of the tourist bureaux.
3. Yes, where an operator's performance is the subject of consistent consumer complaint or that performance is identified clearly to being of detriment to Northern Territory tourism.

Parkinsonia Eradication

751 Mr BELL to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Does the government offer incentives to pastoralists and other persons to control and eradicate the noxious species Parkinsonia before it affects access to stock-watering places and, if not, why not?

ANSWER

The control of weeds on private property is the responsibility of the owner. The Department of Primary Production has an extensive program designed to assist pastoralists in the control of Parkinsonia and other noxious weeds. This program includes the distribution of specific agnotes to all pastoralists. In instances where it has been necessary to issue a notice under the Noxious Weeds Act, the government may provide direct assistance with the provision of chemicals, equipment, and labour.

Loss of productive capacity of land is considered to be sufficient incentive in itself for pastoralists and other people to control and eradicate weeds.

However, in cases where this inducement is not adequate the government has regulatory powers under the Noxious Weeds Act.

In addition the government has allocated funds in the current budget to provide a dollar-for-dollar subsidy for the purchase of herbicides to control noxious weeds including Parkinsonia.

Grants-in-aid, Community Service Organisations

752 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

In 1981-82, under the grants-in-aid scheme to voluntary community organisations working in the youth, sport and recreation fields, how much money was given to organisations for (a) administration, (b) equipment, (c) facilities, (d) salary subsidies, (e) special projects, (f) training-coaching, and (g) travel subsidies?

ANSWER

In 1981-82 the following amounts were given to organisations working in the youth, sport and recreation fields:

(a) Administration	$ 37 924	(e) Special projects	$ 148 858
(b) Equipment	$ 88 767	(f) Coaching-training	$ 13 178
(c) Facilities	$ 1 123 491	(g) Travel subsidies	$ 175 845
(d) Salary subsidies	$ 239 320

Further expenditure occurred under the youth, sport and recreation heading as follows:

Aboriginal Recreation Program	$ 395 317
Vacation Care	$ 85 945
Life Be In It	$ 22 000

Total youth, sport and recreation grants-in-aid 1981-82 is $ 2 330 645.

Farm-fuel Projects

754 Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is the government giving any encouragement to farm-fuel projects and, if so, can he give brief details?

ANSWER

There has been little Australian activity in recent times in successful projects by the private sector involving the production of alternative hydro-carbon fuels from farm crops.

The government believes that it is pointless diverting resources into this area at this time, and will maintain a watching brief over the academic research projects being conducted in other states.

The government has given maximum priority to the development of a viable agricultural and horticultural industry in the Territory and to the eradication of bovine brucellosis and tuberculosis. Efforts in this direction are being maximised and will not allow any direct involvement of a significant nature in an area of research which is the development of farm fuel crops where the outlook for success is quite clearly less encouraging.

BCF Fire Extinguishers

755 Miss D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

1. Is he aware that some state fire prevention authorities recommend against the use and installation of bromochlorodifluoromethane (BCF) fire extinguishers in confined spaces, and in hospitals, nursing homes and child care centres?
2. Is it proposed to replace BCF fire extinguishers in hospitals in the Northern Territory?
3. Is it proposed to discontinue the use of BCF fire extinguishers in any other types of public buildings in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

The fire safety authorities in NSW restrict the use of BCF in the non-ambulant areas of hospitals and other health care establishments.

1. NEW SOUTH WALES restricts the use of BCF extinguishers in the non-ambulant areas of hospitals such as intensive care and post-operative wards only.
2. MELBOURNE METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADE - The use of BCF extinguishers is not recommended in hospital areas where non-ambulant or respiratory patients are accommodated.
3. CANBERRA ACT - No restrictions in patient accommodation areas.
4. ADELAIDE METROPOLITAN FIRE SERVICE - Restrictions on use of BCF in hospitals.
5. PERTH METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADE - No restrictions on use of BCF in hospitals.
6. BRISBANE METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADE - No restrictions on use of BCF in hospitals.
7. NORTHERN TERRITORY FIRE SERVICE - No restrictions on use of BCF in hospitals except in confined spaces, intensive care and non-ambulant areas.

Supporting Data

All inert-gas fire extinguishants are irrespiratory to a greater or lesser degree. The basic aim in extinguishing the fire is to replace the oxygen in the air with the inert gas. Thus the flame is starved of oxygen and dies - just as a person would if he or she remained in the oxygen-deficient atmosphere. For this reason all such extinguishers carry a warning about use in a confined space and or the need to ventilate the area before re-occupation.

BCF (the trade name for bromochlorodifluoromethane) has an advantage over most other extinguishants in that it is suitable for use in all classes of fire, viz., electrical, oil, paper-wood, etc. Most other extinguishants are not suitable for one or other class of fire, e.g., CO^2 is not recommended for a typical paper/wood/waste type of fire, a water extinguisher should not be used on cooking fats, electrical or petrol/oil fires, and so on.

BCF is approved by the Australian Standards Association.

BCF has slight anaesthetic properties, and for this reason only the smaller sizes are recommended for smaller rooms.

In summary, the products of combustion - should a fire occur - are far more dangerous to the patients than the effects of using a BCF extinguisher. Further, the acrid smell of BCF when used on a fire would automatically prompt people to move out of the room or away from the area, hence the restrictions on usage in non-ambulant areas.

BCF, weight for weight, has a higher inhibitory factor (extinguishing concentration) than all other inert gases. For example, when compared with CO^2 (carbon dioxide) the smaller 1 kg BCF is twice as effective, and in the larger sizes the effectiveness is increased by a factor of 4. Thus smaller extinguishers more easily handled by females can be installed in most locations.

BCF, when used in a fire, will leave hydrogen halides in the atmosphere. There are easily detectable by odour at as low a level as 3 parts per million. At about 100 parts per million, strong irritant effects are experienced making occupancy of a room uncomfortable - but not necessarily dangerous. Tests have shows that 50 000 parts per million should be considered the maximum exposure limit.

BCF is approved in UK and USA in addition to 20 other countries.

The Northern Territory Fire Service does not see any reason to vary its present procedures regarding the use of BCF in hospitals and similar institutions.

Residential Tenancies

756 Mr R. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

In regard to residential tenancies:

1. What is the average bond paid in respect of (a) 1 bedroom units/flats, (b) 2 bedroom units/flats, (c) 1 bedroom houses, (d) 2 bedroom houses, and (e) 3 bedroom houses?
2. In respect of categories (a) to (e) above, how many leases are there existing at present?
3. What is the average term of residential leases?

ANSWER

Assuming the question relates to Housing Commission tenancies -

1. Security deposit charged general public tenants is $50 for all units of accommodation throughout the Territory. Northern Territory public servants and pensioners are not charged security deposit.
2. 6540 as at 22 October 1982.
3. Statistics are not kept on average lengths of tenancies. Tenants are located and retain the accommodation for an indefinite period.

System-wide Testing in NT Schools

757 Mr COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. What steps have been taken to introduce system-wide testing into NT schools?
2. (a) How many people will be involved in the implementation of system-wide testing, (b) how much will it cost, and (c) how much time is it likely to take on the part of the professional people involved?

ANSWER

1. A working party has been established to plan and supervise the implementation of the testing program. It is intended that these will be developed for trial early in 1983 and hopefully introduction in urban schools in the second half of that year for years 5 and 7. Testing in Aboriginal schools for years 5 and 7 will be undertaken in 1983. The working party will also be making recommendations on appropriate form of school-based screening programs in the early childhood years.

2. (a) There will be teacher involvement through part-time attendance at working party meetings. There will be 5 teachers involved in each of the 3 levels in English and in mathematics, i.e. a total of 30 teachers for 5 days each, or a total of 150 teacher days.

(b) Costs of the exercise will be met from within departmental funds.

It is estimated that the costs will be in the order of $15 000 for the employment of relief teachers where this is necessary whilst teachers involved in the working party discussions are absent from a class, as well as the salaries of approximately 2 full-time staff.

(c) One officer will be involved full-time. Part-time input will be made by officers of the Evaluation and Assessment Unit as part of their normal duties.

Loan to Government Printer

758 Miss D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

1. Why were the terms and conditions of a government loan of $3.5 million to the Government Printing Office not established at the time the loan was made?

2. Have the terms and conditions of this loan yet been settled and, if so, when did this take place?

ANSWER

The question has been asked in 2 parts, but it is simpler to provide one answer covering both parts.

The amount of $3.5 million shown in the financial statements of the Government Printing Office as a fixed asset borrowing, represents the value of capital assets acquired by the Government Printing Office from funds provided by the Commonwealth government and the Northern Territory government.

Of that amount, $2.5 million relates to the building, which was constructed by the Commonwealth government and handed over to the Northern Territory at no cost. There is no obligation on the Territory to repay that money to the Commonwealth and it is considered that the placing of an obligation on the Government Printer to repay the funds to the Territory would achieve very little. It would only increase the Government Printer's costs, which are passed on to departments, and the overall effect would be simply to inflate both the receipts and payments sides of the Budget. These funds might be regarded as the government's equity in the Printing Office.

On the question of funds provided for capital purposes by the Territory since self-government, there is an argument that these should be treated as loan funds and should attract an interest charge to reflect the cost of the funds and, in some measure, to place the Government Printer more on a commercial basis. The government believes that, as far as possible, the full costs associated with its various functions should be fully brought to account and that hidden subsidies are to be avoided. However, this principle needs to be balanced against the undesirable bloating of the Budget that would result if all the various agencies of government were to charge one another for services provided.

After considering these factors, I have decided that funds provided to the Government Printer by the Territory government are to be treated as loan funds. The various amounts provided since self-government are to be consolidated as at 1 July 1983. The aggregate amount thus obtained will be regarded as a loan repayable on demand. The interest rate to apply from 1 July 1983 will be 10% per annum and will be subject to review from time to time.

Book Purchases - NT Library Service

759 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What was (a) the value of books purchased by the Northern Territory Library Service since 1 January 1982, (b) from which suppliers or book-sellers were these purchases made, both Territory and interstate (c) is the library service still purchasing books direct from publishers, and (d) what was the total expenditure by the library service on book purchases in the financial year 1980-81?

(d) Page 8:

What is the explanation for the underspending of about $44 000 in the area of administrative expenses, educational facilities, last year?

(e) Page 10:

The government appears to have overspent about $50 000 in the area of administrative expenses, professional services last year. What is the explanation?

Why is there a reduction in the requirement for recruitment in the general administrative expenses section of the education budget?

(h) Page 23:

What additional loans does the government expect the independent non-government schools to take out that requires an extra $82 000?

(j) Page 33:

(i) What is the explanation for the apparent underspending by about $124 000 in the transition from school to work program last year; and

(ii) how is the extra allocation likely to be spent this year?

(k) Page 34:

(i) Will the extra funding in Aboriginal Education Assistance mean the Aboriginal teacher replacement program will be fully catered for?

(ii) Why was only $83 000 of last year's allocated $125 000 for the December-June period spent?

(m) Page 35:
The government appears to have underspent in the area of non-government student hostels by $53 000 last year. What is the explanation?

2. DIVISION 46
Page 43:
The government appears to have underspent in the 3 main areas of expenditure for the Community College of Central Australia: i.e.

Allocation 1981-82	Expenditure
$ 1010	$ 870
$ 382	$ 362
$ 208	$ 162

What is the explanation?

ANSWER

1. DIVISION 44
(a) Page 5:
(i) The variation between the administrative expenses appropriated for the Executive activity and the actual expenditure in 1981-82 related to the cost of the department's interstate travel program.
In previous years the costs of interstate travel had been shown across the full range of Education activities but in October 1981 it was decided that the full cost should be shown in this activity to achieve tight control.
(ii) The seemingly significant increase in duty travel relates to the provision of $120 000 for interstate travel in 1982-83. In fact the increase over 1981-82 is $6000 or 4.2% and is less than the actual increase in air fares and travelling allowances.

(b) Page 6:
The allocation for the biennial conference of the Australian Institute of Inspectors of Schools is $15 000.

(c) Page 7:
(i) The underspending in the management services activity in 1981-82 was the result of the late delivery of office machines purchased in line with the recommendations of the Price Waterhouse Management Review.
(ii) The recent 'management review' was the Northern Territory Advisory Committee on Technology in Education conducted by Price Waterhouse. The reference in the Budget Paper relates to the general equipment and machines allocation which provides for the purchase and hire of computer and word processor visual display units and photocopiers to implement the recommendations of the review team.

(d) Page 8:
The underspending in the education facilities activity in 1981-82 is attributable to the late delivery of furniture and fittings items. Part of this was caused by poor performance by contractors but another contributing factor was the failure of a local company which had been a major supplier of wooden furniture.

(e) Page 10:
The apparent overspending in the administrative expenses for professional services was in fact the result of transfers into and out of the activity during 1981-82 as part of the process of adjusting to the activity budgeting format.

The transfer out related to expenditure on professional development and the operational grant to approved education centres shown against 'other services' in the 1982-83 Budget Paper No. 4, page 10. The transfer in covered the cost of payroll tax, recreation leave fares and transport previously shown in the general expenses item.

(f) Page 19:
The reduction in the provision for recruitment reflects the department's assumption that the level of Northern Territory Public Service recruitment action will diminish in certain areas because of the increasing stability of existing staff.

(g) Page 20:
(i) At the beginning of 1981 a number of new schemes were introduced but at that time very little information was available as to the likely claims against these schemes. As a result of the 1981-82 experience, the department is in a better position to project usage and in this sense the demand has stabilised.
(ii) The expansion of student assistance schemes introduced during 1981-82 and the estimated increase in awareness of the various schemes and benefits were expected to cost an extra $273 000 on top of a baseline budget for 1981-82 of $626 000. In the event the demand was considerably less than had been anticipated resulting in a shortfall of $98 000.

(h) Page 23:
The additional loans which the department expects to service during 1982-83 would take account of the following building projects -

(i) St John's College - Library and associated specialist rooms;
(ii) St Paul's Primary - Library, Nightcliff;
(iii) Catholic High School - Stage I, Alice Springs; and
(iv) Catholic Primary School - Stage I, Sanderson.

(j) Page 33:
(i) The underspending in transition school to work in 1981-82 resulted from the fact that the forward program agreed to by the Commonwealth and Northern Territory ministers did not prove as adaptable to the Territory as had been hoped.
(ii) In regard to the 1982-83 financial year the department is examining program options to ensure that full expenditure is achieved and that value is obtained from Commonwealth funds.

(k) Page 34:
(i) The Aboriginal Education Assistance Scheme provides for the payment of Aboriginal teacher assistants in homeland centres (outstations).
(ii) The shortfall of expenditure was caused by the need to clarify the nature of Commonwealth responsibility for funding in the long term.

(m) Page 35:
The shortfall in expenditure occurred due to the closure of John Paul Hostel at Alice Springs.

2. DIVISION 46
Page 43:
Explanations in relation to underspending in Community College of Central Australia.

Sub-division 1 (Salaries and Allowances)

Throughout the year the college had difficulty in recruiting suitable teaching staff and in consequence the level of staffing throughout most of the year was less than the establishment provided for in the appropriation.

Sub-division 2 (Administrative Expenses)

The underspending in this area is attributable to the following:

- delays in fulfilment of overseas library orders;
- due to the difficulties in recruiting staff the placement of orders by the program coordinators were delayed and consequently orders were not fulfilled in time for full expenditure to be achieved; and
- delays in placement of orders for furniture and fittings requirements at the Sadadeen campus. The resulting revote expenditure will be reflected during 1982-83.

Sub-division 3 (Capital Items)

Delays in placement of orders for new plant and equipment at the Sadadeen campus. The revote expenditure will be reflected during 1982-83.

Statements of Accounts

764 Mr SMITH to TREASURER

1. Under section 30(1) of the Financial Administration and Audit Act, for which government undertakings has he directed that statements of accounts be prepared?

2. In each case, when did he first direct that such statements of accounts be prepared?

ANSWER

1. The government undertakings for which directions have been given under section 30(1) of the Financial Administration and Audit Act, are the Darwin Omnibus Service and the Government Printing Office.

2. The direction in relation to the Darwin Omnibus Service was given on 29 February 1980 and in the case of the Government Printing Office on 21 August 1980.

Guarantee to Federal Pacific Hotels

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Has the government given a guarantee to Federal Pacific Hotels that it will not allow any other organisation to set up a casino-type operation in the Territory? If so, what is the life of that guarantee?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would refer the honourable member to the relevant legislation on the subject which, if I recall correctly, provides that, for a fixed period, the Northern Territory government can only issue 2 licences to operate casinos in the Northern Territory.

Fire in Jape Building

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he yet provide information related to the issue of a certificate of compliance prior to the occupation of the Jape building and breaches of the terms of that certificate?

ANSWER

My department does not issue these certificates of compliance. I think the honourable member is referring to whether the fire brigade approved the installation of the equipment that was in the Jape building before it was occupied. I said at the last sittings that, whilst there had been irregularities relating to some of the equipment installed, that had since been cleared up and the fire brigade is satisfied with the fire equipment installed in that building now.

North-south Rail Link

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that it appears that consideration has been given to running the north-south railway up the existing Stuart Highway completely bypassing the town of Batchelor? With a view to the development of the town of Batchelor, what will the Chief Minister do about this?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in summary, it is a question of whether the railway should go through Adelaide River or through Batchelor. It would be pretty difficult to run the railway through both places without doing quite a spectacular zigzag. We want this railway. I am fairly content to allow the organisation which knows best about railways - that is, the Australian National Railways - to determine the course of the line because, obviously, whilst effecting economies during construction, it will want to serve areas which will attract to the rail the greatest number of consumers and the greatest volume of freight. I am aware that the likely corridor in the Batchelor area will not pass through the town but the preference of ANR is for an alignment close to the Stuart Highway. If there were major developments likely to occur at Batchelor of a nature that could seriously influence rethinking the route of the proposed rail, I would be prepared to make the appropriate representation but, I do not think this is the case at the present time.

A bridge exists over the Adelaide River which was used by the old railway. Whilst I am not certain about this, I believe that some of the bridges used by the old railway may well be suitable for the new rail construction. Obviously that is something which must be borne in mind. Mr Speaker, whilst I would like the rail to meander through every town in the Territory, unfortunately it is not possible. However, I am quite sure that Batchelor, through its very close proximity to Adelaide River and to the route of the railway, will derive a great deal of benefit from it.

Crown Land at Myilly Terrace

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Are negotiations still continuing for a change in usage of the vacant Crown land at Myilly Terrace formerly occupied by Flagstaff House and, if so, what is the status of these negotiations?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member's question is not absolutely clear to me and perhaps she could expand it a little further. The Crown land she refers to has been vacant since the cyclone in 1974 and I am not au fait with what the honourable member means.

Mrs LAWRIE: Mr Speaker, may I amplify by saying the last time I asked the question, the honourable Minister for Lands and Housing admitted that discussions were under way with the Commonwealth Department of Defence with a view to perhaps rebuilding a house there. I am asking him if there have been further negotiations and, if so, what the outcome was. Last time, he knew what I was talking about.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members should make questions very clear so that ministers know what their questions are about.

Mrs LAWRIE: I cannot be clearer than that.

Mr PERRON: Mr Speaker, I apologise to the honourable member for Nightcliff for not recalling in fine detail every conversation that I have had with her.

Mrs LAWRIE: It was a question in the Assembly.

Mr PERRON: I answer her question by saying that the Northern Territory government is still negotiating with the Commonwealth on a number of sites for a residence for the commanding naval officer in the Northern Territory.

Location of Admiralty House

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has consideration been given to moving Admiralty House from its position on the Esplanade to another site?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, consideration has been given to this matter. In 1979, the Commonwealth identified areas of the Northern Territory which it sought to have vested in the Commonwealth as freehold land following self-government and an arrangement was made that, when this particular site on the Esplanade in Darwin was required for development, the Commonwealth would hand it over to the Northern Territory. That time has arrived. There are indications that the site is required for development now and the Northern Territory government has taken the matter up with the Commonwealth in accordance with its agreement.

Recently, the National Trust forwarded a nomination to the National Heritage Commission for this particular building to be entered into the National Heritage Register. At present, it is on the interim register and objections are being sought. The Commonwealth has asked the Northern Territory to replace the residence of the senior naval officer in the Northern Territory as part of the arrangement and that is agreed to by the Northern Territory government. Negotiations have continued with the Department of Administrative services with a view to finding suitable premises or a suitable parcel of land for the Commonwealth on which a house can be built. We have said that the present building for the senior naval officer on the block on the Esplanade will be moved at Northern Territory government expense and erected on another suitable site if that is the Commonwealth's wish.

Mr Speaker, this matter is one of particular interest at present. The residence in question is not of particular historical or architectural significance for the Northern Territory. In fact, those points have been outlined in an objection to the National Heritage Commission. It was built in the period 1937 to 1939 and moved to its present site in 1951. The building has been considerably modified over the years with extensions and changes to its style. We believe that it does not have any particular significance when compared with other buildings in the Northern Territory. There are a couple of examples of particularly fine homes of that era. In particular, Audit House has been supported by the Northern Territory government to the degree that is has been vested in the National Trust. Funds will be spent on restoration work to bring it up to a standard that can withstand the climate in the Northern Territory. There is no particular historical significance to Admiralty House other than the fact that it has housed successive naval officers commanding the northern area. The ground put forward by the local National Trust and the National Heritage Commission for its registration is that the building survived the Second World War and Cyclone Tracy and, for those reasons alone, it is an important building. Many houses - some of them much older than this one - survived both the Second World War and Cyclone Tracy. I do not think that that in itself is a particularly good argument for its preservation.

Mr Speaker, the site is a fairly attractive one. The old house is set in a very nicely kept garden that is a credit to the Navy. The government has supported a number of historical projects for preservation at taxpayers' expense. Naval Headquarters was reconstructed at a cost in excess of $700 000 and probably will continue to consume a reasonable proportion of public funds for maintenance. It has been turned into the office of the Administrator. It is a very fine building and certainly we give our full support to its preservation for future generations. Lyons Cottage is another example. It is only a few feet from the house we are talking about at present. It has been preserved at government expense. Indeed, an annual subsidy will be paid by the government, presumably forever unless a sponsor can be found, for that building to be preserved for future generations. There are other examples around the Territory and in Darwin. I refute any suggestion that the Northern Territory government is not interested in the preservation of suitable historic buildings. However, people must bear in mind that, once a decision is made to preserve a building on a site, it will mean a cost to the community, not only for the upgrading of the building but for ongoing maintenance work. It will mean a continuing drain on the public purse and the site in question would be lost where such preservation is agreed to. Therefore, such decisions should not be taken lightly. They are decisions that may mean costs to the community for 100 years. Such projects must be carefully assessed prior to any government deciding to support a permanent national heritage listing and the continuing preservation of any particular building.

Sewage Treatment Plant

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Since the Darwin Central Zone Sewage Treatment Plant opened, it has been considered necessary to man it on a 24-hour basis. What major modifications have been made to the system which will now enable it to be operated safely on a 40-hour per week basis? Will he give the Assembly an assurance that no health and environmental problems will result?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, presently the treatment plant has been operating on a 3-shift basis requiring a manning level of 15. When the treatment plant was first constructed, it was designed to be fully automated. We are moving towards automation in an effort to reduce the expense of operating the facility. The people working in that area have been informed that the manning level will be reduced from 15 down to 7 by 10 December. Once full automation is effected, if a fault occurs an alarm bell will ring in a security firm's premises and that firm will then notify an officer that something is wrong at the plant and he will go straight there. It is said that that can be effected within one hour.

The plant was commissioned in 1977. It was designed to treat sewage for a population of 40 000. With an additional stage, it would have treated sewage from an estimated population of 80 000. The plant is currently treating sewage from an estimated population of 15 000. On current predictions, it will be many years before that population approaches 20 000. The department has been concerned for some time by the high cost of operating the plant relative to the population served. It is approximately 4 times the cost of that for the remainder of Darwin.

A consultant report in 1980 recommended modifications to the plant and a reduction in staffing levels. Certain modifications have been made. A recent review of the plant's operation and the consultant's report resulted in modification to operation and staffing arrangements which will take effect from December 1982. Under the new arrangements, the plant will be manned for 1 shift, 5 days a week instead of the 3 shifts, 7 days a week. This will involve a reduction in staff from the present establishment of 15 to 7. Surplus staff will be redeployed to other sections maintaining essential services. When unmanned, the plant will operate automatically as desired, with the exception of the sludge vacuum filters. The vacuum filters, which remove water from the treated sludge prior to its removal from the plant in solid form, will be operated only while the plant is manned. The volume of treated sludge is well within the capacity of the 2 vacuum filters operated on a 1-shift basis. During unmanned operation, crucial items of the plant will be monitored automatically. Operators will be called out to attend plant malfunctions.

Operators of the plant were informed of these arrangements on 12 November and held a stop-work meeting on 15 November. No industrial action has been taken or foreshadowed. In the event of strike action, the plant will be operated by management and other staff as was the case during the recent industrial action associated with terms of employment.

With regard to my giving an assurance to the honourable member for Fannie Bay that there will be no health risk, I can give a partial assurance because, if this plant were to break down in the wet season, with the quick flow some water would certainly move, not into Ludmilla Creek but into the ponds without that effluent being treated. My officers advise me that the risk to health in that circumstance would be minimal.

Review of Local Industry Preference Policy

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has any review of the local industry preference policy for public contracts been undertaken and, if so, what are the results?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the department is constantly reviewing procedures for the letting of contracts. Recently, I made an announcement. We were looking for a way whereby nominated subcontractors could be identified by the department to enable them to put bids in for various types of work. This particular request was given to us by the Master Builders Association. What was happening was that each time a job appeared in the paper or the Gazette, nominated subcontractors had to ask almost for pre-qualifications. What will happen now is that a nominated subcontractor will file particular information with the department. When he puts a bid in for a particular job, he will be assessed on that information. He would have to do that on a yearly basis. The only time that would change would be if a nominated subcontractor were heavily involved in other work within the department and the department considered that that particular contractor's resources might not be able to stand any new work. The department would call in that particular person and discuss it with him to see whether he had the resources. We are constantly reviewing the tendering system. As I said at the last sittings, we had problems with it in the public works area. To avoid confusion, the department is trying to work out a firm strategy that will be known by all.

Sale of Land Subdivided at Mataranka Station

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

I understand that one of the blocks produced by the subdivision of Mataranka Station is to be offered for purchase to a Mr Roy Lumpa of Hollister, California. Will he explain why this was done and why the usual conduct of a ballot amongst selected applicants was not resorted to in this particular case?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I wish to confirm to you and other honourable members that the honourable member for Tiwi's assertions substantially represent the facts. You might wonder why I am answering this question. It is because of my close involvement in this particular transaction.

The honourable member will appreciate that my government has applied itself energetically to the development of a cropping and horticultural industry in the Northern Territory. Government initiatives in this area include the setting up of ADMA, the establishment of ADMA farms and the acquisition of suitable properties for similar agricultural development in the near future. Other initiatives include the introduction of the successful crop contract scheme, the provision of various agricultural subsidies proposed by the Cropping Development Committee and intensified research by the Department of Primary Production into the agronomy of potential crops such as sorghum, mung beans, soya beans, maize, rice and so on. Horticultural research has also received priority attention with the development of a major and expanding section within the Department of Primary Production which has already produced results which herald valuable future horticultural dividends. However, such research needs to be complemented by horticultural know-how and we have been fortunate to attract some people to the Territory with considerable expertise who will augment the solid core of Territory pioneers, such as the Herseys, the Dahlenbergs and others, who have brought horticulture in the Territory to where it is today. The development of a mango estate at Manbuloo is another initiative which will be of major value to the Territory while the recent entry upon the scene of a South Australian grower with a proposal to produce onions and potatoes in the Katherine area could be another milestone in the agricultural development of the Territory. I understand that he has now purchased a farm in the Katherine area.

It is against this background that the offer to Mr Roy Lumpa was made. Mr Lumpa is a Californian farmer with extensive experience and expertise in modern methods of horticulture and cropping production under irrigation on a large scale. His knowledge and experience will be of immense value to Territory agriculture. Mr Lumpa is greatly attracted to the Territory and has expressed a wish to settle here. After considerable negotiation, he was very nearly successful in purchasing Willeroo Station but lost out to the present owners at the last moment, and not for want of the necessary finance. He then put in a bid for Mataranka, Roper Valley and Coolibah Stations as a joint venture with a local interest but this was thwarted by the government's compulsory acquisition of Mataranka. In these special circumstances, and with the advice of the minister and the Department of Primary Production at the time the decision to acquire and subdivide was made, I offered Mr Lumpa the opportunity to purchase one of the subdivisions of Mataranka Station at a price to be negotiated after valuation. In all the circumstances, the sale of a section of Mataranka to Mr Lumpa represented, in my view, an honourable course of action and I hope that it will have the desired effect of securing for our agricultural industry invaluable know-how to the long-term advantage of the Territory. The decision was mine and that is why I have answered the question.

Commuter Airline Licences

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Did he state to the Katherine and Tennant Creek town councils that a condition of the granting of commuter airline licences for services linking Darwin, Katherine, Tennant Creek and Alice Springs on weekends was that the fares of passengers required to back track would be no higher than the direct air fare? If so, has this been enforced?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, at the time of negotiations with Airlines of Northern

Australia for a reduction of the service from the 7-day-a-week Fokker to a 5-day-a-week jet service with commuter services operating on the weekend between Tennant Creek and Alice Springs on Saturdays and Sundays and Katherine to Darwin on Saturdays only, it was hoped that the on-through fare would not be passed on to the commuter. TAA did not accept the proposal for the on-fare and, in some cases, people travelling TAA were forced to pay the additional money. I believe that further arrangements have since been made with the airlines that people will not pay the on-through fare. If they are paying it, I have not been advised of it.

Oil Storage Area at Frances Bay

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

When is it expected that the relocation of the oil storage area at Frances Bay will be effected?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, no specific date has been set for relocating the oil storage area that is currently in the heart of Darwin. However, it is quite obvious - and certainly this should be clear to the honourable member for Sanderson - that, at some time, such an oil storage area should be relocated on the outskirts of the city in a far more suitable location. The recent announcement took a few people by surprise. It should not have taken very many people by surprise because anyone who thought about it carefully would see that it is quite obvious and inevitable. At present, the government is examining alternative sites around Darwin suitable for a future tank farm. Once such sites are identified, lead time can then be drawn up for the infrastructure timetable and the costs involved in having alternative storage built. This would have to be done before existing storage can be shut down. Without question, it will be quite a few years at the earliest. I could not put a specific time on it.

Darwin Civil Airport Terminal

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

The indecision of the federal government in choosing a suitable site for its tactical fighter base has raised the question of the future of the proposed Darwin civil airport terminal. Is the proposal to build a new civil airport terminal for Darwin being proceeded with as planned and, if so, is he able to indicate when building is likely to commence?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, one could have a field day with a question like that, but I will attempt to be brief. The federal government announced its intention to upgrade the Royal Australian Air Force base - it is not a civilian airport - at Darwin to enable that base to cater for FA-18 fighters which it is purchasing from the United States. In the interim, the base was to handle Mirages that are to be withdrawn from their present station at Butterworth in Malayasia. They are to be based at Darwin until they are phased out of service in 1986 or 1987. In any event, all this caused the Royal Australian Air Force to decide that it needed a greater area of land at Darwin air base and that it required the removal of the existing civil terminal and general aviation area.

In a way, that is a blessing in disguise because it requires the construction of a new civil terminal capable of handling domestic and international arrivals with some degree of civilised decency rather than as happens at present. The general aviation area at Darwin air base is very overcrowded at the present time and lacks facilities. I know of at least 2 large general aviation firms operating throughout Australia that have wanted to establish in Darwin which would have been of considerable benefit to the Northern Territory, particularly with the facilities they could have provided. But there was absolutely nowhere that the Department of Transport, as it then was, could accommodate them so these establishments went to other places; in one case, to Townsville. Therefore, it was with considerable enthusiasm that I greeted the announcement that not only was a new domestic and international terminal to be built but, also, a new and expanded general aviation area was to be provided on the northern side of the existing runway.

Then there was a change of ministers, a change of chiefs of general staff and, of course, a change of mind as well. The Royal Australian Air Force and the Department of Defence have since been looking at a proposal to very much upgrade the base at Tindal. I understand that that close examination is continuing and that everything points to the FA-18s being based at a much upgraded air force installation at Tindal with perhaps some sort of army establishment nearby as well. I greet the news also with great enthusiasm, although at this stage it does not have the strength of federal Cabinet endorsement.

Mr Speaker, the position as I read it at the moment is this. Firstly, I have been assured verbally, but have not yet received anything in writing, that the civil air terminal will proceed on the northern side of the runway and will, as far as possible, adhere to the timetable announced by the Minister for Civil Aviation, Mr Wal Fife, when he was in Darwin in June or July of this year. I await written confirmation of that. I do not have any certain information on the general aviation area at this stage other than that it will be expanded. It may possibly remain in the same area when the final decision on FA-18s going to Tindal and Tindal being upgraded is made. I am afraid that that probably will not take place until the new year because of the detailed studies that are needed and are still continuing, and because it will cost a mint of money which I will be pleased to see spent in the Territory. I am sure that you, Mr Speaker, will be pleased to see it spent in the Katherine area. But that decision will not be firm till after Christmas, even though I had hoped for it earlier.

The Mirages will come to Darwin next year as planned I believe and housing will be rented for the personnel who will accompany them. Those personnel will be moved into Darwin progressively during 1983. I hope that I have covered all aspects of it. I have covered the civil terminal, the general aviation area, FA-18s and Tindal and Mirages and Darwin. I think that that is about it. I am very hopeful that this considerable expenditure of funds will take place, particularly as it relates to the defence of northern Australia, which I, you and many members of this Assembly have said has not been particularly well looked after by this or any federal government since the Second World War. If Tindal is upgraded, it will represent a very major advance for northern defence. The Northern Territory government is cooperating to the fullest extent with the Commonwealth and I know that the Northern Territory and Commonwealth governments both intend to involve the Katherine municipality as soon as that preliminary planning reaches a stage where firm decisions can take place.

Tancred Meats Application for Pastoral Leases

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Was a meat producer and processor, Tancred Meats, prevented from taking over 3 pastoral leases in the Territory? If so, what were the grounds for rejecting the applications?

ANSWER

I have no application before me on the subject the honourable member refers to.

Report on Horticultural Seminar in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has he received a report and recommendations from the recent horticultural seminar held in Alice Springs? If so, is it intended to release the report to the public?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the seminar to which the honourable member refers was conducted by members of various departments concerned with providing land, water and expertise for the further development of horticulture in central Australia. The member for Alice Springs attended and his contribution was greatly valued. A report will go forward to government and Cabinet will consider its findings in due course.

NT Unemployment Rates

Mr DOOLAN to CHIEF MINISTER

In a recent radio talk he indicated that the employment situation in the NT was better than in southern states and gave some figures purporting to prove this as a fact. As the unemployment rate in Aboriginal communities runs between 30% and 70%, have these communities been taken into consideration in assessing the NT rate of unemployment?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, yes, the unemployment rate in Aboriginal communities has been taken into account in assessing the total employment situation in the Northern Territory. I am prepared to agree with the honourable member for Victoria River that unemployment amongst Aboriginal people is a very vexed problem. It is a problem that concerns me and I frankly confess that I do not have the answer. But if you have a moment, Sir, I would like to postulate some of the problems.

The problems are, of course, that Aboriginal people live, generally speaking, in areas remote from those markets and services that one usually requires to generate industry successfully. Unless you can stimulate industry successfully, you cannot generate any meaningful number of jobs. As you know, Sir, in most Aboriginal communities of any size in the Northern Territory there are already local government-type organisations that are established and funded by the government and that employ, I think, as many people as they reasonably can on projects around the community. Of course, whenever government funding has been channelled into these communities in the form of facilities, my colleague, the Minister for Transport and Works, has ensured that as many of those contracts as possible go to Aboriginal people. If they cannot manage them, then they have as much participation in them as is reasonably possible. I know that an amount in excess of $1m, if not millions of dollars, has actually gone to Aboriginal communities in terms of direct contracts in the last year or 2. That is one of the problems: remoteness.

Another problem is education and training. People just do not have job options these days unless they have a pretty highly sophisticated degree of education. While I am on my feet and answering this question, it might be a word to the wise to say that parents who are thinking of removing their children from school at the intermediate stage - I think it is called grade 10 these days - this year could well consider, if their circumstances allow it, enabling their children to go on to matriculation. I say this from a general observation of job columns here and elsewhere in Australia. I can remember when I was in about grade 8 some girls left my class in primary school to become hairdressers and to do apprenticeships. I noticed an advertisement for hairdresser apprentices the other day that said matriculation would be required.

Mr B. Collins: That's absolutely ridiculous.

Mr EVERINGHAM: All I can say, Mr Speaker, is that that is what employers are asking for. If an applicant does not want to meet the employer's requirements, I guess he or she will not get the job. I am simply passing on my observations. I am not saying that it is right or that it is wrong; I am saying that that is the employment market of today.

It occurred to me a few years ago that the only industry that I could think of - aside from mining to some degree - that offered considerable employment potential for Aboriginal people if they wished to involve themselves in it - was the tourist industry. Of course, they do not have to let tourists into their communities. They can let tourists view attractions near their communities or they can set up facilities away from their communities that might interest tourists; that is, if they want them to come. As you and other honourable members of this Assembly know, Mr Speaker, I wrote a circular letter to all Aboriginal communities, I think in 1979, inviting them, if they were interested in the tourist industry and its potential for job creation, to make contact with me or my officers. At the time, I was criticised for sending that circular by, I think, the very honourable member who asked me the question this morning. It might be that I was also criticised by the now Leader of the Opposition who was then the member for Arnhem.

Mr B. Collins: No!

Mr EVERINGHAM: The fact is I drew considerable criticism from honourable members opposite for daring to suggest that Aboriginal people might be interested to consider the potential for employment afforded by the tourist industry. I have not received any real response to my letter from any Aboriginal community. The offer is still open. It always is. If anyone has any better ideas on how Aboriginal people can gain useful employment certainly I would like to hear them. I have been waiting now for several years to hear any better ones.

Policy Statements on Education

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I remind him of previous commitments he has given on this matter. Will he be tabling any policy statements on education during the current sittings of the Legislative Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not anticipate being in a position to do so at this sittings.

Prevention of Pests and Diseases in Horticultural Industry

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What is being done to ensure that adequate precautions are being taken to prevent any undesirable pests such as fruit fly and also diseases that might have a very damaging effect on our newly-emerging horticultural industry in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

The honourable member refers to a very serious matter. It is not possible to guarantee that such pests and diseases will not occur in the Territory. It is possible only to reduce the risk of entry of any pest or disease to the Territory and such reduction relies heavily on cooperation from the community, particularly tourists. The government has legislation to apply quarantine restrictions if required and these have been successful in situations such as the recent advent of Mediterranean fruit fly in Alice Springs. Additionally, the government currently seeks to strengthen its control over the possible importation of diseases from our southern neighbours through regulations requiring specified produce to be certified free of pests or diseases before importation.

Department of Primary Production entomologists and pathologists continue to monitor for new pests and diseases including those which may be imported from overseas. Eleven monitoring stations have been maintained around the Northern Territory coastline since 1975 to prevent the importation of fruit fly species not endemic to the Northern Territory. Additional stations are located at Adelaide River and Katherine. A monitoring network has been established at Alice Springs to provide an early warning against any future visitation of Mediterranean fruit fly. The Christmas holiday season is again close and many people will be travelling back to the Territory from eastern and southern states. These travellers can help to ensure the Territory's freedom from some insect pests and diseases by contracting the Agricultural Quarantine Service in Darwin before bringing any plant or fruit material into the Northern Territory. If Territory residents plan to bring back with them seedlings or cuttings, they should be careful to deal with only reputable nurseries that produce high quality stock which is certified free of pests and diseases.

Salt Water Crocodile

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Has the Conservation Commission made representations to the federal government to transfer the salt water crocodile from Appendix 1 to Appendix 2 of the Convention of International Trade on Endangered Species and, if so, what was the outcome?

ANSWER

As I have advised this Assembly previously, in answer to questions about crocodile farms and preservation of crocodiles, the government has taken steps to have the crocodylus porosus transferred to another schedule of the CITES agreement which relates to endangered species so that the offspring of crocodiles that are captured in the wild may be harvested for commercial purposes as well as being used to re-stock areas where the crocodile population is depleted. I think, from memory, the proposal has gone through the Council of Nature Conservation Ministers. I have not been to the last couple of council meetings because they have been held too far away or at inconvenient times. The proposal has been ably guided by the Director of Conservation, Dr Goff Letts. In fact, there is not really much need for me to go when I can send Dr Letts. Recently, he attended a conference in Zambia or Zimbabwe that also related to the CITES. I understand that this subject was raised at that time and apparently was favourably received. Further steps are now being taken. I could have given a much better answer if I had had time to check the details. I would suggest that the honourable member for Sanderson write to me and I will send her a very detailed reply. In essence, the proposal to transfer them from one schedule of the CITES agreement to another is proceeding. At this stage, to the best of my knowledge, although it appears to be a tortuous and wearisome exercise, it has not met with any substantial mishap.

Alice Springs Town Basin

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he any plans to implement a plan of management to control the water level in the Alice Springs town basin?

ANSWER

The short answer is yes. Hopefully, early next year, the department will carry out a survey in that area for the requirements of management strategy.

Administrative Arrangements Orders on Collection of Archival Material

Mrs O'NEIL to CHIEF MINISTER

The Administrative Arrangements Orders determined by the Administrator gives responsibility for archives to the Department of Community Development. However, a notice recently published in the official gazette of the Northern Territory Department of Education advised that that department had received a request from the Chief Minister's department regarding collection of archival material. While the collection of archival material is very valuable and admirable, will the Chief Minister ensure that the legal requirements of the Administrative Arrangements Orders are recognised by his department with regard to archives?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, since I know nothing about this matter, it is difficult to answer. But I am not sure who in the Chief Minister's Department would be seeking from the Department of Education material to go into archives. I suppose that it is possible that someone in the Chief Minister's Department has done something to stimulate the consciousness of other departments in relation to the preservation of material of historic importance. Of course, there is a history unit in my department which, no doubt, because it is pretty close to this sort of thing at all times, has archival material in the forefront of its thinking. I will certainly look into the matter. There is certainly no intention on my part to usurp the archival function. I would suggest that, if anything has been done in relation to seeking this material, it has been done for a genuine purpose. In the final analysis, it seems to me that all that really matters is that the material is stored and preserved, not so much who stores and preserves it. But I agree that the establishment of a central archive has been vested in the Department of Community Development and I will look into this matter.

Private Hospital in Darwin Hospital

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for HEALTH

I understand that negotiations are under way for the lease of an entire floor of Darwin Hospital to a group wishing to establish a private hospital there. Could he indicate to the Assembly what stage these negotiations have reached and which floor is to be transferred, if any?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can advise the honourable member that she has part of the story right. It is probably the wrong part that she is placing greatest weight on. I am happy to advise the Assembly that within the Darwin Hospital management there is a group of 3 or 4 people which has been investigating the possibility oi a privately-operated ward within the Darwin Hospital. There are several reasons for this matter being considered. I will run through them for the benefit of honourable members so that, if there are any aspects that people would like to bring to my attention as time goes on, they can be fed back into the department and considered by the parties who are looking at the program.

There is no doubt that there is a desire within the community for people to have access to private beds within hospitals. Given our present state of development, it is possibly not viable at the moment to have a private hospital anywhere in the Northern Territory because the economics are not there for it to survive. Very definitely, there is a need because the evidence shows that there are many people in the Northern Territory who pay top-of-the-scale medical insurance fees so that they are covered for private hospital accommodation. Given that people pay premiums for this, it is not unreasonable, if it is possible, for us to try to provide private accommodation within the infrastructure that we have. I do not think it is any secret to the honourable member that we have a little excess space at the hospital at the moment.

It is not a new scheme. It is not outrageously adventurous. It is practised in about 5 to 7 major hospitals throughout Australia at the moment. The Queen Elizabeth in Adelaide, I understand, has a private section where people can choose to have private beds and private ward status if they so wish. They pay accordingly for the service. There are other hospitals in other states that do the same thing. About 2 months ago, a team from the Darwin Hospital made an investigatory study of how these private ward facilities operate in major hospitals elsewhere. I have not read the report in detail but the consensus of the team was very simply that it is possible to have a private ward inside a major institution like the Darwin Hospital. It functions quite satisfactorily in other places and it would be possible to do it here. There are a number of matters that need to be resolved: where in the existing infrastructure would we put it, what sorts of costs would be incurred to create private accommodation, how would it function, how would it relate to the other hospital facilities that operate, what charges would there be for a facility of this nature and would the charges in fact be sufficient to warrant the department in this case providing the private accommodation. Mr Speaker, the team is looking at that fine detail now.

If any honourable member would like to make suggestions or seek information on the proposal, I would be quite happy to make available what I know about it. It is not as though we are re-inventing the wheel. We are trying to provide for the people of the Northern Territory a facility that exists everywhere else in the country and one that obviously ...

Mr B. Collins: Boring, boring.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, I am obviously not boring enough because he is still awake, but I will work on it.

Obviously, people have an expectation for this sort of facility because they pay for it in their medical benefits fund subscriptions. If they are prepared to pay for it, we ought to endeavour to offer it if that is possible.

Isolated Students' Benefits

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is there any reciprocal arrangement between the Northern Territory, South Australia, Western Australia and Queensland - that is, the border states - so that isolated students known as 'border students' can obtain isolated students' benefits regardless of the state or territory in which they choose to receive their education?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, before I could deal with this question in any depth, I would have to do some research on the matter. It seems to me that the matter falls primarily within the Commonwealth's responsibility. That being the case, of course, it does not matter where one resides. There is an entitlement to assistance for isolated children. The parents in fact are entitled to the assistance. The Northern Territory's assistance would relate purely to people within its political and geographic boundaries and would not extend across any border. I have no idea what arrangements the states have for their students but, to the best of my knowledge, there is no reciprocal arrangement other than that already in force pursuant to the Commonwealth's provisions.

Water Bores in Darwin Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the unsatisfactory water situation in many places in the rural area, will he agree to change the system of obtaining an advice bore to include all landholders in the rural area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the short answer is no. I am not prepared to change the existing system which relates purely to pastoral and agricultural properties. The honourable member referred to those people living in the immediate rural area. We have facilities in the Water Division of the department which supply advice to rural landowners regarding their water situation. My department, with that of the Minister for Health, has a caravan situated in that area to provide information to people seeking assistance there. I understand that that caravan will be moved to another location in the next week or so to allow other members of the rural population access to that particular infrastructure for advice.

Bus Passes for People Receiving Benefits

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware that, while persons receiving age and invalid pensions, supporting parents' benefits and unemployment benefits are entitled to bus passes in the Darwin area, those receiving sickness and special benefits are not? Would he consider extending the entitlement for bus passes to cover persons receiving sickness and special benefits?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the general question of assistance to pensioners and the aged has been raised on a number of occasions here. I am quite sure that any honourable member who looked at the budget papers would be well aware of the extent of the Northern Territory taxpayers' commitment to that cause out of Northern Territory revenues. There is a limit to the amount of assistance government can give. There are probably additional recipients of Commonwealth pensions and assistance over and above those mentioned by the honourable member for Fannie Bay who are not in fact receiving assistance under Territory schemes.

Recently, I initiated an examination of the entire range of assistance which is and can be made available to the various recipients of Commonwealth benefits. If we start in an ad hoc way to include people, one at a time, in the list of beneficiaries of Territory subsidies already made available, eventually, because of the quite proper process of pressure - that is, after all, why we are here - we will have to admit all recipients of Commonwealth subsidies to benefits under our own schemes. If honourable members look at the budget papers, I believe the commitment at the moment, in all forms, exceeds $1m for a pensioner population the size of the Northern Territory's. The various options to include the complete range of Commonwealth beneficiaries as being eligible for Territory schemes range between an additional $600 000 and $1.2m. When honourable members make representations of this type, we must at least endeavour to stick to it within reasonably affordable boundaries or, alternatively, start to look at programs which we would have to cut to admit all recipients of Commonwealth benefits. If we did that, we would lose control of that section of the budget entirely because a Commonwealth government of one persuasion or another has it open to it to vary the eligibility criteria for recipients of Commonwealth benefits at will. If we had a policy that would pick them all up automatically, we would lose control of our own budget as a result of the Commonwealth varying its budget. I do not think anyone would want to see that sort of irresponsible management.

Purchase of Housing Commission Homes in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Have the Housing Commission and Nabalco yet reached an agreement which would allow the sale of Housing Commission homes to interested tenants in Nhulunbuy?

ANSWER

In relation to the negotiations between Nabalco and the Northern Territory government in so far as subleasing land at Nabalco is concerned to enable persons to purchase their own houses, we believe that Nabalco is considering the final document at this time in Sydney. We hope to hear from the company any day now. It is holding a meeting in Sydney to consider this document which we hope will eliminate all areas of disagreement between the 2 parties and enable people at Nhulunbuy to purchase their own homes.

School of Health Research

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for HEALTH

It was reported in the NT News some time ago that part of the old Darwin Hospital facilities would be used to establish a school of health research. Was that report correct and, if so, what form of tenure will the school of health have over those facilities?

ANSWER

I have not seen the report to which the honourable member refers. However, I point out, and I have said this in the Assembly before, the Department of Health no longer has any jurisdiction over the buildings and facilities on the original Darwin Hospital site. They were transferred to my colleague, the Minister for Transport and Works, some months ago. I am able to say that the department is very supportive of the higher learning program that could be established in conjunction with the new university of the Northern Territory. I understand that discussions have taken place between medical and administrative personnel of the department and the Planning Vice-Chancellor of the university. I have no further information on what progress has been made. Certainly, there would have to be room for research in that area because we have so many health considerations in the Northern Territory that are unique in Australia. I will endeavour to obtain some details for the honourable member in relation to the premises, the costs and the areas of activity that we would be involved in if such a program proceeded.

Darwin Community College Students

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

My question concerns the Darwin Community College where third-year students in the 4-year certificate course for medical laboratory technicians have just been advised that the course has been cancelled. Would he indicate what procedures are under way to allow them to finish their final year and gain the certificates?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have been expecting this question. It is necessary to look at the history of the course. It was originally conceived between the then Commonwealth Department of Health and the Darwin Community College in late 1966. That is confirmed by a letter from Dr Shaw of 19 April 1977. I have looked right back through the documentation on this matter and it seems that the Darwin Community College has done all in its power to maintain the course and its viability. With the passage of time, the requirements of the medical profession and the para-medical profession areas naturally change. The medical laboratory technicians certificate, as it was then known, is no longer necessarily appropriate to modern training requirements at the Darwin Hospital. Nonetheless, it is not a matter of the students having been informed just recently. I am informed that counselling of these students has been going on for quite some time. The majority of them have taken electives in similar disciplines. The Darwin Hospital, under the present government's administration, will continue to honour its agreement with the college. The 3 students who wish to continue the certificate course will be able to do so. The arrangement was that the college would be the facilitator of the course and the Darwin Hospital would provide the lecturers. We are all aware of the difficulties imposed by a transient population although this is now steadying. Nonetheless, the part-time lecturer in the very important area of what is called histo-pathology left this year and this led to the deletion of units 1 and 2 this year from the college. The college has done everything it can to recruit another lecturer. Another lecturer simply is not available. Therefore, the Darwin Hospital has done the right thing. Those 3 students will be continuing the course. The balance will be continuing electives selected by them as a result of counselling.

There is one other person who is not employed by the Darwin Hospital and is unlikely to be so employed. That person has been told that, if he wishes to continue with the course on a part-time basis, then the facilities of the Darwin Hospital and the college will be made available. That does not mean to say that, at the end of the line, there will be employment for that student in the Darwin Hospital system. It is not as bad as the honourable member for Nightcliff originally thought. Let us face it, requirements change. We cannot continue a course indefinitely if it is no longer appropriate to the needs of the employing institution.

Mr Speaker, I think the hospital and the college have acted in good faith at all times in this matter. It is just unfortunate that students get caught up in these difficulties. We try to avoid them. I am sure the hospital tries and I am sure the college tries. Nonetheless, situations like this will occur from time to time. Institutions such as the college and the hospital, or any other employing or teaching agency, must minimise the effects of changing technology and changing course requirements as far as possible.

Social Workers at Darwin Hospital

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it the intention of the Department of Health to reduce the number of social workers working in Darwin Hospital and, if not, what is being done to fill the 4 positions that have remained vacant for several months?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no knowledge at all of any proposition to reduce the number of social workers in the hospital. I will endeavour to get information requested in the second part of her question.

Gunn Point Prison Farm Horticultural Produce

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he assure me that Gunn Point Prison Farm will receive help and assistance from the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority in the coming year to market its horticultural, and any other produce where necessary, whilst realising that the interest of private growers has to be watched but also having regard to the interest of wholesalers supplying the general market?

ANSWER

I can give that assurance. Arrangements have been made with the Department of Community Development in respect of produce from Gunn Point Prison Farm. We do not want it to be in competition with the local growers. We would provide assistance to market that produce interstate.

Concessions on Electricity Connection in Rural Areas

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

Will the government consider the spreading of fees relating to the connection of electricity to rural areas so as to minimise the financial burden that will arise if total payment is required at the time of installation and will the government consider any concessions to producers involved in important horticultural production that might promote a more rapid development of that particular industry?

ANSWER

The first part of the honourable member's question relates to current requirements by the Northern Territory Electricity Commission that any cost in excess of $2000 for connection of electricity to a rural block is paid by the applicant at the time of connection. We need to consider NTEC's point of view that it is an authority which is required to operate as efficiently as it can. It already provides this direct subsidy of $2000 per block for connections. Some connections to small farms, as distinct from rural residential areas, really amount to very substantial sums. I recall applications for electricity connections which would probably cost in the vicinity of $30 000 to $40 000 each. Of course, NTEC's subsidy towards that figure is only $2000 leaving a very substantial sum to be picked up by the applicant if he wishes electricity to be connected.

It has been put to me that perhaps NTEC could collect the balance over a period and thereby extend what would be a loan to applicants. Unfortunately, the reticulation of electricity throughout the Northern Territory is undertaken by NTEC with loan funds that are raised by the Northern Territory government, on its behalf, at interest rates of some 16% to 17%. NTEC advanced the argument that an applicant could obtain a loan himself at similar interest rates or better rather than have NTEC extend credit to him at the 16% or 17% rate. As far as NTEC is concerned, there is not really very much room for movement.

If, to promote agriculture, a policy decision is taken that subsidies should be provided for these facilities, that will be handled by another department and not NTEC. Such matters should be referred to my colleague, the honourable Minister for Primary Production, whose department funds various forms of assistance to the farming sector of the Northern Territory.

The honourable member also asked whether different electricity rates could be struck for the rural sector so that agricultural activities, such as irrigation, could be charged at a lower rate. From NTEC's point of view the problem is that it is charged with the responsibility to raise as much income as it reasonably can to try to supplement the very substantial subsidies which are applied to it. As all honourable members know, at the present time some 50% of all electricity supplied by NTEC is paid for by the Australian taxpayer. It is therefore very difficult to make concessions to one area only of the consuming public. NTEC argues that, if there are to be concessional electricity rates - be it for farm production, pensioners or whatever - then government should address that through the relative department and make a conscious decision to provide additional subsidies over and above those provided to generate electricity in the Northern Territory at the present time.

To answer the questions of the honourable Leader of the Opposition, NTEC must keep its accounting systems as straight as it can and be seen to be operating as fairly as possible right across the board. Any contemplation of subsidies should be addressed through channels relating to the industries concerned.

School Visits by Community Health Sisters

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for HEALTH

Why has the Department of Health stopped daily visits by community health sisters to the Rapid Creek School?

ANSWER

The honourable member asked me that question yesterday and I undertook to get the information for him. As soon as it is in my hands, I will convey it to him.

Coastal Plains Research Station Staffing Levels

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he assure me that staffing levels at the Coastal Plains Research Station are adequate considering the work that is done there and the programs already in motion?

ANSWER

There are 6 staff at the Coastal Plains Research Station and another 3 at Beatrice Hill. It could be said that there is insufficient staff for the amount of work that must be done. Both establishments are very important research centres for the government. The development of the buffalo program is centred at Beatrice Hill and a wide range of activities is being undertaken at the Coastal Plains Research Station. Mr Speaker, we would like to increase the staff but we must consider other policies and other programs that we are pursuing. For the time being, there will be no increase of personnel at those establishments.

Redeployment of Grumman Trackers for North Australia

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

The defence committee examining the future of fixed-wing naval aircraft concluded its deliberations and presented its report on 11 November, which is fitting, because it is Remembrance Day. Can he advise the Assembly if he has received any advice from the Minister for Defence as to the likelihood of redeployment of Navy Grumman Trackers in the north Australian area?

ANSWER

The question sounds like something from 'Those Wonderful Men in their Flying Machines'. However, I have not received any word on the deliberations of the committee on naval fixed-wing aircraft. In fact, I think it likely that the time of that committee is fast drawing near because the word around the traps seems to be that very shortly there will be no further speculation about an aircraft carrier for the navy. I assume that, if it does not have an aircraft carrier, it will not need fixed-wing aircraft.

In any event, the Minister for Defence has not yet chosen to confide in me the results of the deliberations of this committee. As the honourable member for Nightcliff advised us that it reported to the minister only on 11 November and today is 17 November, I do not consider that the Minister for Defence, with his many other responsibilities, including the possible establishment of a major airforce base at Tindal near Katherine, has been derelict in his duty in not yet sending a copy of that report for my perusal. I am mindful that Grumman Trackers could make a contribution to surveillance in the Northern Territory but I would draw also to the attention of the honourable member for Nightcliff the fact that, if the Grumman Trackers are placed here, it will undoubtedly lead to the displacement of other people who are presently engaged in that surveillance work. That is an aspect that should be borne in mind because a considerable number of pilots have been recruited to man and run the existing surveillance facilities. If the Grumman Trackers were to be based here to augment those facilities I would be happy but, I would not like to press for them to be based here to replace the existing facilities. I would like some clarification from the honourable member for Nightcliff as to what she is about. Perhaps she could refer to that in the adjournment debate this afternoon. I have always been quite favourably disposed, and have pressed the minister, to base the Grummans here but on the basis that they did not supplant the existing civilian pilots and operations which provide a reasonable level of surveillance within the constraints that are placed on them.

Employment Hot Line

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware of proposals to establish an employment hot line as mentioned on the front page of the NT News yesterday? Does the government support such a move?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am delighted with the move of the NT News to establish an employers' hot line. I would like to read to you and other honourable members details of the service that the NT News proposes to provide free of charge. I think it is an important community service and the derisive noises emanating from the corner by the honourable member for Nightcliff and other members opposite show that they apparently do not regard the question of unemployment very seriously because here is a positive move being made by the local paper as a community service. I have criticised the paper frequently but here is something positive. I will just read this if I may:

> The NT News will offer employers a free hot line classified advertising service as from tomorrow. The number to telephone is 816589. Employers with jobs to suit Territory school leavers should phone this special number. The job descriptions will be taken down and double column display classified advertisements printed free of charge. In Alice Springs, the Centralian Advocate will offer the same service.

Mr Speaker, I hope that we can extend the same service to other Territory centres even if on a limited basis. I would certainly like to ask you, Sir, to suggest to the Editor of the Katherine Advertiser that he provide a similar service. Perhaps you would be happy to make telephone facilities in your electorate office available to help run the service. I am sure my colleague, the Minister for Health, would be happy to do the same with the Tennant Times and I hope that the honourable member for Nhulunbuy and the Gove Gazette could put their heads together. I think this is very worth while. I am pleased to see it and I know that it will be of service to employers and to school leavers alike.

Timber Creek School

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I asked this question at an earlier sittings. Has he yet made a firm decision on the location of the school at Timber Creek, whether it is to be at Bulla Camp on Auvergne Station or Timber Creek township itself?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the difficulty I indicated at that time still applies: the lack of stability in the population in both of those centres. Indeed, this problem haunts us more than any other in the delivery of school-type education facilities to remote communities, Aboriginal communities in particular. There is such a high level of mobility among the children that it is almost impossible to set up a permanent school in many of these areas. Mr Speaker, the position has not altered since that time. There is insufficient evidence available to me to justify the establishment of a permanent school. When I have sufficient evidence of stability of population and student numbers then, of course,in the normal course of events, a school will be provided in one or other of the centres.

Former Health Department Stores in Fannie Bay

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has a decision been reached as to the future use of those government buildings in Fannie Bay formerly used as Health Department stores?

ANSWER

The Northern Territory Cabinet has given approval to make the facilities known as the Parap health stores available to sporting organisations. The property is actually in 2 sections. At the front is the administration section and the rear section is the old warehouse area which is quite a large facility that will provide a home for the Northern Territory Gymnastics Association and the Northern Territory Badminton Association. A smaller facility will be made available to the Darwin Sub Aqua Club. These organisations have been approached by the government with a proposal that they take over these facilities, purely for recreational services, on a 3-year basis so that, at some later stage we can evaluate the decision that we have taken now.

The important thing is that the facilities will be made available to these sporting organisations. Last year, in the 1981-82 budget, the Northern Territory government made some $1.1m available to sporting and youth organisations for facilities. Construction of the Marrara Indoor Sports Stadium will start next week. I shall officiate at a turf-turning ceremony on Friday of this week which will allow construction to commence. That complex will cost $3m, Mr Speaker. Recently the Northern Territory government announced that stage 2 of the Marrara Indoor Sports Stadium will commence. That is a basketball stadium. That involves $4m this year. I estimate the value of the health store to be in the area of $0.5m, so that $4.5m will be going to sport. This is contrary to a particular statement made by the shadow spokesman for sport in a recent newsletter that he circulated in the community that there was to be a downturn in funding to sporting organisations in the 1982-83 financial year. Once again, I believe he has communicated concern to the community because he is not up with the facts. He is always moving around advising sporting organisations that there will be less funds this financial year than last year.

Taking all those things into consideration, Mr Speaker, I believe that the Northern Territory government is moving in the right direction because, in this financial year alone, 1982-83, in excess of $4.5m will go to sporting facilities. I believe that the sporting community really appreciates it. In fact, the response that I have had from the organisations to which this allocation has been made at Fannie Bay was overwhelming. They are delighted and look forward to being able to move into the premises in a couple of weeks' time when we have finalised the details of the lease arrangements.

Social Workers at Darwin Hospital

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HEALTH

This relates to my previous question concerning social workers at Darwin Hospital. In view of the vacant positions that currently exist for social workers at Darwin Hospital, what are the reasons for transferring social workers from Darwin Hospital to the Health Department secretariat?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think that is a question that should be reasonably directed to the Secretary of the department. I will obtain a reply from him for the honourable member.

Land Acquisition for Railway

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

A corridor of land will be required for the railway that will pass through the Northern Territory. Knowing that this proposed corridor will pass over freehold land in several places, who will acquire the land, the Northern Territory government or the Commonwealth government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the agreement which exists between the Northern Territory government and the Commonwealth government in relation to the corridor from Alice Springs to Darwin, to the best of my recollection, requires that the Northern Territory government as its part in support of this act of national faith will indeed provide the corridor for the project. This will mean that the Northern Territory government will acquire the area of land required to enable the corridor to be settled. I hope to be in a position fairly shortly to announce at least the actual properties. We have held up a number of subdivisional applications until such time as the corridor is quite clear. Hopefully, we will have information for the public on that subject soon. Honourable members will be well aware that the corridor may, in fact, cross Aboriginal inalienable freehold and the Northern Territory government has no power whatsoever to acquire such land. That land will have to be acquired by the Commonwealth as it is the only instrumentality in this country that has the power.

BTB Eradication Strategy

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has the northern Australia sub-group of the national BTB planning group completed the preparation of its strategy for the eradication of both brucellosis and tuberculosis in northern Australia? If they have completed it, will the minister make the document available?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the group has just about finalised its deliberations and is trying to get some early information for the industry. We have communicated with the federal minister and asked him to convene a special meeting of the Australian Agricultural Council towards the middle of December so that some of the items that have been put forward as firm proposals by the industry and the Western Australian, Queensland and Northern Territory governments can be recognised by the Commonwealth in the budget process. Whether or not it will do that remains to be seen. I have had no advice from the Commonwealth in respect of its intentions. The report that the honourable Leader of the Opposition talks about can be made available at a later time. It is not available at present.

Film Libraries

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Has the government decided whether it will amalgamate the public film library and the Department of Education film library?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was not even aware the matter was under consideration. It may have some merit and I will take it up.

Hardship caused by Housing Act

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

The Housing Act passed at the last sittings will cause some hardship to Territorians who entered into various home loan schemes before that act was passed. Is he investigating this matter further and, if so, at what stage are his investigations?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the new Housing Act passed by this Assembly at the previous sittings cannot be brought into operation until such time as regulations have been prepared. A number of submissions made to me by various parties who are concerned that regulations are being drafted to require people in certain classifications - particularly public servants who resigned from the public service - to go on to an escalating interest rate basis, have been taken into consideration. We have sought details of their income and mortgage levels with a view to ensuring that the regulations will not cause undue hardship. Certainly, it will cause those persons to pay more money than they would have had they not left the public service. However, the matter is somewhat complex and I propose, during the course of these sittings, to make a ministerial statement on the subject to give honourable members information to relay to their constituents whilst we are waiting for regulations to be prepared and promulgated.

Joint State Commonwealth Meat Inspection Service

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What is the current state of negotiation between the Northern Territory and Commonwealth governments with regard to the establishment of a joint state Commonwealth meat inspection service?

ANSWER

The Northern Territory has been in the forefront in Commonwealth state discussions on the proposal for a joint state Commonwealth meat inspection service and riding instructions have just been given to the Chief Inspector of Stock for the Northern Territory to talk to the Canberra officials about a final proposal which would embody the requirements of both the Commonwealth and the Northern Territory. We have proposed a service to be run by the Northern Territory with the Commonwealth providing an official as the number 2 in the service. We would provide an agency arrangement ex officio under the Commonwealth powers. Certainly, we are ready to go. The Commonwealth is not quite in a position to adopt our proposal just at this time.

Tour of Aboriginal Health Facilities by Journalists

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

What was the cost of the intensive tour of Aboriginal health facilities in the Northern Territory recently organised by the Department of Health for a considerable number of journalists from southern states?

ANSWER

If the honourable member can contain her impatience for a few more hours, this afternoon I will inform her and her colleague, the mental giant on the backbench ...

Mr SPEAKER: Order, the honourable member will withdraw that remark!

Mr TUXWORTH: I withdraw that remark, Mr Speaker, about the honourable member. I was being very careless with the truth, Mr Speaker. I will canvass all the points raised by the honourable member and the opposition spokesman on health in the adjournment debate this afternoon. I am sure they will find that interesting.

Committee Examining Safety of School Crossings

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Has the committee he established to examine the safety of school crossings finished its deliberations and presented a report and, if so, would he make that report available to honourable members?

ANSWER

I thought that the honourable member for Nightcliff would remember that she asked me that question at the last sittings or the sittings before. I called for a report from this committee late last week. I have not, to the best of my knowledge, received that report and I will certainly produce it for honourable members' information as soon as it is to hand.

Truancy in Alice Springs Schools

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Has he any plans to combat the high truancy rate in the Alice Springs area?

ANSWER

I have no specific plans to combat it other than those that I outlined in the second-reading speech of the Education Amendment Bill which is before us and which was designed to establish school councils. Obviously, the answer to that problem depends on closer cooperation between parents and the school system. That is what the legislation seeks to effect. As the matter will probably be debated later today, there is no need for me to add further to it now. However, I have had discussions with a number of principals in Alice Springs, a primary school principal in particular. The problem - which must obviously worry the honourable member for Alice Springs - is very serious indeed. The general standard of schools' performances must be affected by such things as truancy. I am among the first to accept that. Nonetheless, the answer lies in close cooperation between parents, teachers and the education system. That is what we are seeking through the legislation which is before us.

Export Licence for the Tennant Creek Abattoir

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has he received any advice as to the status of an export licence for the Tennant Creek abattoir for the 1983 killing season?

ANSWER

The short answer is no.

Advertisements in United States to sell Pastoral Land

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What investigations has the government made into recent misleading advertisements in the United States about pastoral land available for sale in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

The Department of Lands has not made any investigations in regard to the allegations that appeared in the press. Perhaps the honourable member could refer the question to the Attorney-General. I have not consulted with him but he may have taken some action.

Mr SMITH to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Mr Speaker, I refer my question to the Attorney-General.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I did not take any action, I must confess, because I did not see what action I could take. The advertisements apparently appeared, if they appeared at all, in the United States of America. My jurisdiction does not extend there. It is very difficult to imagine what course of action one might have taken had one tracked down the newspapers in which the advertisements appeared. If they appeared, and if one wanted to rectify the position one would have had to bear the cost of inserting other advertisements more or less setting out the correct position. That could have been considerable. I am afraid that I did nothing in the hope that people who saw this advertisement, if in fact the advertisement appeared, would be cautious and careful people and would try to check out for themselves the veracity of any statements made in the advertisement.

Medical Engineering Services Contract with Department of Health

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is the Department of Health negotiating currently with a former departmental employee to have medical engineering services currently performed by the medical engineering services branch in Alice Springs carried out on contract? Will this involve the sale or lease of a substantial amount of departmental equipment and machinery to the private sector?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member has asked a question about which notice should have been given. It will require a fair amount of research to answer it in detail. I will endeavour to get the information and send it to her.

Answer to Question

Mr TUXWORTH (Health)(by leave): The honourable member for Millner asked why has the Department of Health stopped daily visits by community health sisters to the Rapid Creek school? Mr Speaker, I regret that I did not have this answer earlier. The honourable member gave me notice yesterday and I am grateful for that. It just was not in my hand at the time he asked this morning. The answer is as follows. Parents have a responsibility for the health of their children and this should not be abrogated to teachers at school who then have to call on community nurses to take the place of doctors, the profession best trained to look after sick children. Parents should be contacted in each instance when a child is ill but, where this is not possible, school staff should have the authority to take whatever action is required and the parents should be advised as soon as possible thereafter. Community health nurses will visit primary schools on a regular basis as a part of the schools' health screening program. They are not there to replace doctors and provide treatment for specific illnesses. I am advised that the practice of a nurse attending to children at school and providing treatment is not in the best interests of the children themselves and that, if a child requires medical attention, a doctor should be consulted. There are sufficient GPs in Darwin to provide the required service and departmental medical officers attend at departmental health centres. In the event of an emergency, the child should be taken to the casualty department of the Darwin Hospital. There is a specified routine for school personnel who take children to hospital from school.

Answer to Question

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister)(by leave): Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Sanderson asked me about changing the status of crocodylus porosus from one appendix to another of the Convention on International Trade on Endangered Species agreement and I am able to answer her question more fully this morning. Appendix changes can only be made at a full CITES meeting and these are held biennially. The next such meeting will be in May 1983 at Botswana or possibly Geneva. Now there is a contrast, Mr Speaker. In conformity with CITES regulations, an application for a change of appendix rating was made to the secretariat in May 1982. Australia is party to the convention and such applications are forwarded through the Department of Home Affairs and Environment, although the case was compiled largely by a working party of CONCOM which is the Council of Nature Conservation Ministers of which I am chairman at the moment. This council endorsed the application. The application was referred to the crocodile specialist group of the International Union for the Conservation of Nature and discussed at its meetings in Africa in September. Those are the meetings I mentioned yesterday that Dr G.A. Letts attended on our behalf. Some progress was made in putting forward the CONCOM viewpoint, although it was clear that some countries have reservations and consider the application a little premature. According to Dr Letts, this is conservation politics at an international level and we have a tough battle ahead. It is expected that Dr Letts will be invited to be a member of the Australian delegation. Supplementary information is now being prepared in support of our earlier application. Dr Letts' assessment is that, if we do not succeed in 1983, we have excellent prospects of success at the following meeting in 1985. Crocodylus johnstonii, for the information of honourable members, remains on appendix 2.

Meat Industry Bill

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

When does he intend to introduce into the Assembly the Meat Industry Bill?

ANSWER

I am hoping that the bill and the second-reading speech will be available today. If the contents are satisfactory, we should be in a position to introduce the legislation next week.

Construction Work at Heavitree Gap

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise the Assembly of complete details pertaining to the construction work presently under way at Heavitree Gap in central Australia?

ANSWER

A contract worth $486 740 was let to Dissen Constructions on 8 October 1982 to upgrade the Stuart Highway at Heavitree Gap in Alice Springs. This work is part of the national highway program. The work at Heavitree Gap consists of raising the level of the highway by up to 1.5 m to provide immunity from the 1 in 20 years flood. In addition, the road will be widened and a footpath-cum-cycle way will be provided. In conjunction with this work, a large trunk water main will be installed.

King's Canyon National Park

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

At what stage are negotiations with the lessees of Tempe Downs Station on the acquisition of portions of that particular lease for the purpose of creating a national park in the area of King's Canyon?

ANSWER

The protracted negotiations with the lessees of Tempe Downs to obtain the very valuable tourist and recreation area at King's Canyon on that pastoral lease have broken down. Action is being taken by the government in the interests of Northern Territory people to acquire the land concerned from the pastoral lessees because of its very distinct importance to the Territory. Indeed, the area is thought to be amongst the top 4 national park areas in the Northern Territory. Because of its importance to tourists and conservationists, we felt that it was simply not good enough to let go altogether simply because we could not obtain agreement from the lessees to purchase that section of the property by negotiation. Unfortunately, acquisition measures are being taken now.

Safety of Pedestrians at Casuarina Shopping Centre

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What steps are being taken to ensure the safety of pedestrians at Casuarina Shopping Centre and the retail premises in that vicinity?

ANSWER

The honourable member for Sanderson raised this question in the adjournment debate yesterday afternoon. I had the department prepare a brief regarding action proposed in that area. Representations have been made by the Department of Health to the Darwin City Council concerning crossing facilities for pedestrians near the intersection. Signalisation, including pedestrian facilities at the intersection, has been advanced. Work is expected to be commenced in early 1983 and to be completed by July or August. In the interim, the Darwin City Council is being approached for assistance to provide a temporary pedestrian crossing in the vicinity of its section of Trower Road. This will be removed when there is permanent installation of traffic signals.

I agree with the member for Sanderson that a great deal of development is taking place in that particular area. The opening of Casuarina Plaza has exacerbated the problem because people are moving between the Casuarina centre and the plaza. With the Department of Health taking office space and other administrative areas in Casuarina Plaza, the traffic has definitely increased. Taking this into consideration, I asked my department to make some investigations. It said that it would install this crossing as soon as possible.

Herbicide Subsidy Scheme

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he assure me that all areas controlled by the government will be maintained free of noxious weeks as an added incentive to people to participate in a newly launched herbicide subsidy scheme?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government is responsible for many land areas, including road reserves and government properties such as the Department of Primary Production research farms. Within its financial and manpower limitations, the government has attempted to contain infestations of noxious weeds and minimise their rate of spread to new areas. There has been a very rapid spread of some noxious weed species, for example, noogoora burr, and a costly major campaign would be required to eradicate such outbreaks if, indeed, eradication is considered feasible. The government has sought to increase vigilance and activity against noxious weeds on all land. The Department of Primary Production aims to control noxious weeds on its research farms. In some cases, initial control by herbicides is feasible. However, in other areas, longer-term control may well be secured only through biological control agents. The government recently introduced a herbicide subsidy scheme to encourage property owners to control weed infestations on their land. It is obvious that the government must make every effort to prevent reinfestation from weed areas under its control. Mr Speaker, the department is reviewing its total legislation on weeds and its programs. It is our wish to conduct a public seminar so that new legislation can be brought before this Assembly in the first sittings in 1983.

Traffic Corridor for Brinkin Residents

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has a study been done relating to a traffic corridor for the residents of Brinkin and, if so, what are the results of that study? If not, what options is Cabinet considering to get Brinkin residents to and from their homes at peak hour?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Nightcliff asked that question several sittings ago. At that time, I said that Cabinet was not considering a causeway across Rapid Creek to relieve the traffic that may be generated from Brinkin. Cabinet still has not taken any action and, in fact, the matter has not been discussed since the honourable member asked the question last. A traffic study is being carried out by the department to establish what traffic uses Trower Road and Lakeside Drive. Results of that study are not yet available to me. As soon as they are, I will pass them to the honourable member for Nightcliff. At this stage, Cabinet has no plans for a causeway in the Rapid Creek area.

Tempe Downs Lease

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer to the answer to a previous question. What is the anticipated time-scale for the acquisition measures he referred to in his answer in relation to the Tempe Downs lease?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I cannot give a specific timetable. I have signed the necessary documents to initiate such an acquisition. There is a statutory series of procedures to be undertaken in accordance with the Lands Acquisition Act, notices to be served and then, depending upon the response to those notices, possibly a pre-acquisition hearing and then an acquisition hearing and so on. I refer the honourable member to the Lands Acquisition Act for specific details. I understand that it could take some months.

Disposal of Poisonous Substances

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HEALTH

A service club in Darwin, with the cooperation of certain government departments, is to conduct a pick-up of poisonous substances in the Darwin area. Does he have any information on the methods by which it is proposed to dispose of these substances once collected?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, my short answer is no, but I assure her that, if there is any way that the department can cooperate with service clubs in such a project, we will be only too willing to do it. If she would like to give me the name of the clubs at a later time, I will ask the department to contact them and see that everything is done in a formal manner.

Prison Farm for Southern Region

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What progress has been made regarding the proposed prison farm for the southern region?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I dare say this is a question that the honourable member for MacDonnell would have asked had he had the opportunity. In answering this question I might make some observations about the comments of the honourable member, if the Assembly will permit me. Mr Speaker, the position is that negotiations are proceeding successfully with the holders of a pastoral lease for the excision of an area of land from that pastoral lease for the purpose of establishing a prison farm. Quite obviously, and as the honourable member for MacDonnell was well aware, it is necessary not only for the excision to take place by negotiation but also, of course, to find suitable water. We have so far sunk 2 successful bores. While the quality of water from some samples from these may be marginal, we believe that it can be treated at a reasonable cost.

The honourable member to whom I referred earlier mentioned the lack of relevant appropriations in the budget which this Assembly has recently considered. That demonstrates the total lack of understanding of the opposition in respect to monetary management. What an absurd proposition it would be to tie up in a budget a sum of $600 000 to $1m for the purpose of establishing a prison farm at a time when the government was in no position to know whether or not that prison farm could proceed. I noticed the rather remarkable anxiety displayed by the honourable member for MacDonnell to excise land from a pastoral lease. I have yet to hear him suggest that it would be proper to excise land from Aboriginal land for the same purpose. It seems, Sir, that pastoralists ought to expect to have land taken from them compulsorily yet a Labor government would not support the prospect of public purpose lands being acquired, where needed, from Aboriginal land.

Mr Speaker, it is envisaged that the prison will hold between 40 and 60 medium-security prisoners. A staff of some 20 prison officers will be necessary initially. To give honourable members and the public some concept of the enormous expense of operating the prison system in the Northern Territory, it would be true to say that we could block-book an international hotel such as the Travelodge, put every prisoner in the Northern Territory in it, and then send the taxpayer quite a good refund cheque. The expenses are enormous in a prison farm where 1 prison officer is needed for every 2 prisoners just to run a reasonable program. Obviously, the government must be certain that a proper result will flow from this sort of expenditure. We believe it will.

This government announced its intention to establish a prison farm in the southern region. In fact, it will be a combination of a prison farm and a normal correctional institution. I would envisage it as a place that people would be somewhat discouraged from ever visiting again and I do not mean that in the sense of any form of cruelty being used. Nonetheless, it will be a place where work will be the essence. Let me make that point quite clear. 'Hard labour' will mean just that. It is hoped that the prison farm will be operational by the end of this financial year subject to the necessary investigations which I have already outlined. The Cabinet subcommittee on establishments has endorsed the necessary number of prison officers who will be required to run the institution. I can assure the Assembly that, when the problems I have outlined are overcome, necessary funds will be made available.

Alice Springs Prison Farm

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

My question refers to his answer to the previous question. Had these bores been sunk before the excision had been finally negotiated?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, once again what an extraordinary demonstration of total lack of understanding of reasonable use of taxpayers' money. What an idiotic thing it would be to excise hundreds of hectares of land from a pastoral lease and go through all the legal procedures necessary to do that, on a blind speculation that there might happen to be water there. Is the honourable member suggesting that we wander around the Northern Territory, excise 15 or 20 areas of pastoral land in the southern area, go through all the procedures with the Registrar-General, do all the planning and then think about getting our pick and shovel out and digging for water? The question contains the most preposterous proposition I have heard in this Assembly since the honourable member opened his mouth last night.

Aerial Medical Service

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Will he advise the proposed fate of the Nomad aircraft presently being used by the Aerial Medical Service?

ANSWER

The saga of the Nomad aircraft has been with us for a long time. In view of the Auditor-General's report and a news item last night, I do not think it is unreasonable that the matter be canvassed again because it really is a difficult problem for the Northern Territory. For the benefit of members, the Nomad aircraft were phased into the Northern Territory in the 1976-78 period. In fact, they were to replace the Doves that had been operating with the Northern Territory Aerial Medical Service. The government of the day took a decision to use an aircraft which was not recommended by people in the Northern Territory or by advisers in Canberra representing our interests. It was a political decision which governments are entitled to take that we would have these aircraft and not only would we have these aircraft but we would have 6 of them; and God protect us from our friends.

The difficulties that arose with the aircraft were many and varied and were compounded by the fact that it was a brand-new unproven aircraft being used in a very remote part of Australia without the normal maintenance facilities that one would expect to have to support a new aircraft in an operational phase with less than 12 000 hours experience. Even though the Department of Health in Canberra took the matter back to Cabinet twice to try and have it reversed, having been presented with a fait accompli, the department's job was to try to make the Nomads work. In fairness to TAA and Ansett, which have both been responsible for maintaining the aircraft, and the officers of the department who have put in a lot of effort, the exercise has been an extremely difficult one.

The aircraft cost in the order of $360 000 to $600 000 each. That was the first and the last price for them as they were delivered to the Northern Territory. The 6 aircraft would have had a value in the order of $2.5m to $3m at the factory gates at the time that they were delivered. That is quite an investment, Mr Speaker. Our experience showed that the operating costs for the aircraft, not taking into account capital, was $400 an hour. For $400 an hour, you can go to the airport and hire about the flashiest aeroplane there. For $400 an hour, we have had a plane that has spent most of its time on the ground or on blocks in an unserviceable condition. As well, it flew at about 120 miles an hour at less than 9000 feet and with operating performance that was less than satisfactory for the very high temperatures in which it had to function. In essence, the operational problems in central Australia were so difficult that, in 1980 when the department was handed over to the Northern Territory, after discussions with Dr Gurd and other personnel, I asked that the 2 aircraft in Alice Springs be returned to Darwin. You can fly these planes anywhere you like but you cannot take them more than 50 miles from a maintenance depot. Because of the maintenance problems we have had in the Centre and the difficulties of operating the aircraft in very high temperatures, the 2 Alice Springs aircraft were returned to Darwin. I subsequently asked the Royal Flying Doctor Service to step in and fill the gap and it has been doing that job for us for 2 or 3 years now. It is working fairly well. From time to time the Royal Flying Doctor Service thinks it should get more money than it is getting. Nevertheless, the service it provides is a very good one and I would hope in the course of time that its activities in the Territory would spread.

Mr Speaker, we plugged along pretty well whilst operating 4 aircraft out of Darwin and 2 out of Nhulunbuy. However, during the times the aircraft were on the ground, we were not able to provide a service. The planes were not always available when the staff were ready to go. The number of hours we were getting out of each engine and the very simple faults that were developing with the planes were a bone of contention for the maintenance people, for the pilots, for our staff and for the people we were trying to service in the remote areas.

In April last year, a series of events caused some concern and, in fact, caused a representation from the Nurses Federation to be made to myself about the performance of the planes. We had 3 incidents in a period of several days which concerned me so much that I asked the Regional Director of East Arnhem to give me a brief on the problems we have had with the planes up until 6 months ago when Ansett took over the operation of the planes at Gove.

I would like honourable members to listen because it is not an easy problem. I am not reflecting in any way on TAA or Ansett. On 13 April 1981, DHU shed part of the right main undercarriage wheel rim. Take off was aborted and the flight changed to DHQ. The wheel rim was found on Groote Eylandt. Delays on that day resulted in the pilot being forced to have 14 April 1981 off. On 22 April 1981, DHQ took off at 8 am but returned due to problems with the generator. It took off at 9.58 am but the wheels and undercarriage were not retracting. It returned to do test landing and hoping to break the circuit. It was unsuccessful and took off again. It repeated the circuit then landed at 10.07 am - flight cancelled. Upset and emotional patients were returned to hospital to be readmitted.

On 24 April 1981, DHQ was sent to Darwin for mechanical checks. It returned on 27 April 1981. On 28 April, DHP's engine overheated. The changeover to DHP flights was a day late due to unexpected changeover of aircraft. On 5 May 1981, DHU's undercarriage would not retract after leaving Milingimbi. Work was carried out on remainder of sections. It was replaced with DHP on return to Gove. On 5 May 1981, DHP starboard engine overheated on Lake Evella trip. Power to this engine was reduced. On 13 May 1981 DHU was grounded at Numbulwar due to raised oil pressure. Staff had to be collected in DHF which upset routine flights for the day. On 14 May 1981, GFC was chartered to take pilot, engineer and spare parts to repair DHU. It was paid for by NTAW. On 18 May 1981, MAF was chartered for an unlicensed airstrip medical evacuation - stretcher case; cost $51. The Nomad was not available due to routine flight. On 22 May 1981, MAF was chartered for an unlicensed station. On 25 May 1981, DHU went on a Gove-Darwin leg mercy flight, resulting in pilot out of hours. On 26 May 1981, routine rostered flights were cancelled due to DHU being in Darwin. DHF was unserviceable due to loose engine mounting and faulty navigational equipment. It was serviceable after 1400 hours. However, the chief pilot was off due to being out of hours. On 27 May 1981, DHF went on a Gove to Darwin emergency evacuation. On 27 May 1981, an executive air charter Gove-Numbulwar-Groote-Gove cost $427 due to DHF being in Darwin. DHP was unserviceable in Gove - metal chips found in the oil - and was out of action from 1150 hours.

Mr Speaker, this page goes on and finishes with a story about a plane that had to come back following the coast because one engine shut down 50 miles out of Gove. That is about 3 or 4 months in the saga of the operation of running Nomads in the Northern Territory.

The dilemma is with us. It is being worked on feverishly by ourselves, NTAW and other people in the government who have an interest. I think the fact that the Commonwealth government decided this year to close the government aircraft factory is really a testimony to what I am talking about. We have been handed a lemon. I guess the consoling feature of it all is that we did not pay for the planes other than meeting the cost of trying to maintain them in an experimental period. Our challenge now is to find an alternative system to evacuate patients in the Northern Territory and provide routine medical visits for people. For some 5 months now, officers of the Department of Health and NTAW have been assessing the qualities of a variety of aircraft and the department has been re-assessing its modus operandi for providing services to the Northern Territory's widespread population. At this stage, there are no firm proposals to replace the Nomad aircraft with any type of plane. The studies are proceeding. These are very involved because we have to provide a service to so many varying types of sommunity over such a widespread area.

In closing, I would like to say that the comments by the Auditor-General in his report are noted and understood and are not treated lightly by the department. There are limitations on how we can respond to his comments given the situation that we are in. We do not wish to sign a formal contract for the aircraft. We would like to negotiate an arrangement to have an alternative aircraft replace them. It would be silly for us to go through that process of negotiation at the same time as we are signing a contract for the maintenance of the existing aircraft.

Mr Speaker, I would like also to pay tribute to the staff who have flown in the Nomads for a long time. They have done it very loyally. I received a representation from the Secretary of the Royal Australian Nursing Federation Northern Territory Branch in September this year saying that it was very concerned at the risks to which its members were exposed due to the poor performance of the aircraft. That was one of the factors that instigated the removal of the aircraft from Gove. I would like to assure the Assembly that every effort is being made to rectify the situation. It is a problem that would affect every electorate in the Northern Territory. If honourable members have a particular problem in their electorate with the operation of the Aerial Medical Service I am sorry but we are doing all we can in the circumstances to correct the situation.

Rental Rebate Recipients

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

It would appear that the Housing Commission rent increases are announced at the same time the pension increases are announced. On occasions, this causes some misunderstanding for rental rebate recipients. Is it necessary for Housing Commission rent increases to be announced at the same time as pension increases are announced?

ANSWER

Unfortunately, to some degree, it is. Calculations of rents for pensioners in the Northern Territory for their Housing Commission accommodation is in fact 15% of their income. That is quite a concession and is very heavily subsidised by the taxpayer. Of course that situation does not prevail only in the Northern Territory but also across the country. All states receive their funding under the Commonwealth States Housing Agreement. The Commonwealth has been urging the states to accept uniform policies of rent setting, particularly for those persons in the community who are unable to pay what is being termed these days as an 'economic rent' or 'market rent'. Indeed there are a great many, apart from pensioners, who simply cannot pay a level of rent to the Housing Commission which would even sustain a break-even point on the cost of administration of those houses. Therefore, those people are entitled to rental rebates and the rebates are based on a formula related to income.

The pensioners are in a slightly different situation because their rent is determined as 15% of their income. Clearly, whenever pensions rise, Housing Commission rents for that category rise as well. I point out that the Housing Commission takes only a percentage of the increase. I can understand why pensioners feel a bit aggrieved that they receive advice in the mail or through the press that they have an increase in their pension of a few dollars and, shortly after, they receive a notice saying that their rents have increased. From their point of view, it seems that the government is always grabbing away at the small funds they have. I am not sure of the actual rents but I believe that pensioners are entitled to single-bedroom accommodation from the Housing Commission for about $7 to $12 a week. This is not really a great deal of money when one considers the accommodation that is provided. However, I can understand that some pensioners feel that it is inappropriate that, every time they receive an increase to their pensions, there is an increase in their rent. I assure them that we obtain the best deal we can for them in this regard. The government really does not have a great deal of power to vary the system that we are locked into at the present time.

Workmen's Compensation for Crews of Vessels

Mrs O'NEIL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that persons employed on vessels working out of Northern Territory ports, for example prawning boats, may not be covered under the Northern Territory Workmen's Compensation Act and is consideration being given to a solution to this problem?

ANSWER

I have a vague recollection that this question was raised with me quite some time ago. I am not certain of the position. There could be jurisdictional problems. If the honourable member would like to write to me on the subject, I will ensure that she gets a detailed response.

Tourist Groups Ltd

Mr VALE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can he advise why contracts with Tourist Groups Ltd have not yet been signed for leases of both the Katherine and Malanka Lodges?

ANSWER

Earlier this year, the government leased hostels in the Northern Territory to private enterprise groups. In regard to the Tourist Group Ltd's successful bids for Katherine and Alice Springs hostels, they were required to take up occupancy fairly quickly after the tenders closed. The group has managed to pay its rent in advance as required under the terms of the contract. However, the company is having some difficulty in putting together the financial guarantees required by government to complete the necessary requirements formally. Until such time as the financial guarantees can be put together, and I think they are in the order of $260 000 for a performance bond, the government will not enter into a formal lease contract. Certainly, the situation has gone on longer than we had expected and we have been placing increasing pressure on the company to produce the performance bond as required so that a lease can be signed. However, the rent payable for the property is being met by the company so we do not have concern that the government is losing revenue. We will continue to exert pressure. If we are convinced it cannot put the performance bond together, obviously we will have to review the contract.

Diploma Course in Community Health Nursing

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Could he briefly advise whether a diploma course in community health nursing will be offered in 1983?

ANSWER

As a result of cooperation between the Department of Health, the Darwin Community College and the Northern Territory Committee of the College of Nursing Australia, a Diploma of Applied Science course in community health nursing will be offered at the Darwin Community College next year. The course will, at first, be a 1-year full-time course although I hope, at a later stage, it will be possible to open the course on a part-time study basis. The accreditation of the course was approved last week on 11 November and the path is now clear to commence the course in February. This is another first for Territory nurses as it will be the first diploma-level nurse education course ever offered in the Territory. Along with the midwifery nurse education program, which commenced in Darwin and Alice Springs this month, the course is the result of a review of nurse-education needs carried out earlier this year.

Mr Speaker, I believe that arrangements for the diploma course have been carried out with great dispatch and efficiency. Credit for this significant achievement must go to the nurses on the Northern Territory Committee of the College of Nursing who put in a great deal of their own time in developing and attaining accreditation for their program. I might also add that the committee met all the costs and I, for one, congratulate the nurses for their initiative, dedication and application in seeing the project through to completion.

Dump for Disposal of Hazardous and Noxious Materials

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What is the current status of a proposal to provide a dump in the Darwin area for the disposal of hazardous and noxious materials?

ANSWER

I do not have the details. I recall reading a briefing note on this matter quite recently and I think the best way to answer the query would be for me to write to the honourable member in due course.

Regulations for Commercial Vehicles

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it his intention to issue an easily understood guide to new safety and loading requirements for commercial vehicles and, if so, when might such a guide be available?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to place the question on notice.

Motel at Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he give me details of the building of a motel at Jabiru and under what conditions it will be open for business?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Tiwi would be aware that, under the special conditions on which Jabiru was established, there are some problems in relation to the establishment of what one would call normal town facilities there. The restrictions on motel and other tourist development are placed by the Plan of Management of the Kakadu National Park, are the relevant authority. The plan prohibits the development of any facility to accommodate visitors even, apparently, business people and others with legitimate concerns in Jabiru. Despite strong representations to the Australian government by the Territory government, there has been no relaxation of the Commonwealth stand.

Our government is now exploring other options, for the tourist trade in any event, and has commissioned the Territory Development Corporation to undertake a study of possible sites for tourist accommodation facilities required in the Alligator Rivers region. I have suggested to the Prime Minister that a major tourist accommodation development along the lines of the Yulara Tourist Village could be contemplated and I am currently awaiting a response from him. However, in the meantime, to meet the demands arising from permitted visits to Jabiru by persons having business in the town, the Jabiru Town Development Authority is moving quickly to establish a hostel which will provide superior accommodation to that currently existing in the construction camp. This is a ghastly waste of public funds when a small motel of, say, 20 or 30 units, probably with a restaurant, could be permitted to be built in the town and would afford a useful facility for the townspeople and visitors alike. However, such is the intransigent nature of the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service that no such thing will be contemplated.

Medical Reports for Workmen's Compensation Claims

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it true that patients requiring a medical report in the course of making a claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act are asked to pay the Department of Health $100 prior to receiving such report and, if that is true, does he intend to allow the practice to continue? I might just add that some of these patients are in fairly dire financial straits.

Mr SPEAKER: Will honourable members keep their questions as brief and as much to the point as possible.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the department charges for reports sought by legal personnel or insurance companies in relation to workmen's compensation claims. The level of charge for those reports varies. I am not aware of the case mentioned by the honourable member where somebody has been asked to pay $100 prior to receipt of the report but, in any event, I think that, if we are doing that, the account should be sent not to the individual but to the legal firm or the insurance company that sought it. In fact, the honourable member for Nightcliff raised a similar problem with me some time ago and I thought that it had been solved. If it has been solved in Darwin and not at Nhulunbuy, I will take it up with the Secretary of the Department of Health and see what can be done to regularise the matter.

Post-graduate Courses in Northern Territory

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he give details of any post-graduate courses available, or soon to be available, in the Northern Territory?

Mr B. Collins: There are heaps.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition just pointed out that there are heaps. I do not know to what the honourable member refers. One might assume that it is to the proposed school of tropical medicine. Perhaps at another time, we can clarify the particular question which the honourable member wants to ask.

Dismissals and Resignations of Executive Public Servants

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Following my question to the Chief Minister on 13 October about dismissals and resignations of public servants in the executive division, is the report he undertook to compile available?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have received certain information from the Public Service Commissioner. However, I have not yet compiled a report. I might say that I am quite happy to provide all the raw information to the honourable the Leader of the Opposition on a confidential basis. Since everyone's name and pack drill is given in this raw information when preparing a formal report, I will be seeking to give people as much anonymity as possible. I am quite happy to send the material that I hold to the Leader of the Oppsition. If he could have his staff contact mine later during the week, I will mail it off to him.

Sales Tax on Freight Subsidy Scheme

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Has he undertaken a detailed assessment of the economic benefits of the government's sales tax on freight subsidy scheme and, if so, would he make those findings available to this Assembly?

ANSWER

The answer is no. The government has not made any further evaluation of the sales tax on freight rebate scheme. The government scheme proceeds today as it did when it was introduced. Refunds are being made to various commercial enterprises in the Territory on the sales tax component of freight. Implied in the honourable member's question was the fact that there perhaps might not be any economic benefit in this but that would be absolute nonsense. The benefits of any lesser government imposition would flow to the community. In this case, it is a Northern Territory government initiative to rebate to commercial enterprises a Commonwealth tax which, we all agree, is totally inequitable. To draw from that any inference that such rebates would not be of benefit to the community would also destroy any argument people might have that lessening payroll tax, for example, does not benefit the community because it does not go directly into the pockets of employees. Of course, Mr Speaker, that is nonsense. I think every thinking person appreciates that lesser government imposts in any area are of benefit to the community generally.

Water Points on Arnhem Highway

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In the construction of the new water pipeline along the Arnhem Highway, has any provision been made for water points for the bushfires brigade to use?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, 3 hydrants have been connected on the Arnhem Highway for that purpose.

Pay for Prisoners under Prisons Act

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I preface this by saying I tried to contact his office this morning to give warning of this question, but was unsuccessful. He has been very busy. What is the rate of pay for prisoners in Northern Territory prisons at the moment as determined under section 69 of the Prisons Act?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the exact amount is not known to me although I suppose it should be. I know it is very paltry in terms of modern day expenses. I believe that it is worth reviewing the amount made available to prisoners while they are in prison, not so much from the point of view of a prisoner earning a living while in gaol, but there is a wide range of products which individual prisoners believe are essential for their comfort while in prison, such things as tobacco, deodorant and so on. I think they can quite properly expect to have access to such goods, but the taxpayer should not provide them willy-nilly. With prices rising over the years since the original rate was set, I think it is time for a review. My department is conscious of this. I expect to discuss this with my Cabinet colleagues in the near future.

Opposition Contribution to Land Rights Debate

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the recent statement to this Assembly by the Leader of the Opposition that he is quite prepared to contribute to any constructive debate in relation to the resolution of problems in relation to the application of land rights legislation and his subsequent failure to provide such contributions, will the Chief Minister provide the opposition with a further opportunity to make a constructive contribution to the debate?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the honourable member for Port Darwin for this question. An opportunity has now been provided by the government to the opposition, particularly to the Leader of the Opposition in deference to his request, for time to talk on the resolution of the vexing problems related to Aboriginal land rights. Certainly, this government would like to know the opposition's attitude to the package of proposals winnowed out through process of negotiation over many months between the government, the Commonwealth government and the various land councils. In giving notice of a motion this morning, I would like to indicate that the government is prepared to suspend Standing Orders if need be to give the honourable Leader of the Opposition as much time as he likes to talk, firstly, about my parentage and, secondly, about my contribution to these negotiations. We then would be more than happy to move for a suspension of Standing Orders to allow him time to go on at length to deal with all aspects he considers necessary to provide a relevant contribution to the government's attempts to resolve the question of land rights. Mr Speaker, I would like to serve notice on the honourable Leader of the Opposition that, so far as the government is concerned, he will have as much time as he would like tomorrow to make his contribution to this debate.

Housing Commission Sale of Houses in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

How will a price be determined for those Housing Commission houses which are sold to tenants in Nhulunbuy and will purchasers be able to avail themselves of the government's Home Loans Scheme?

ANSWER

To answer the second part of the question first, certainly occupants of government houses in Nhulunbuy will have access to the government's Home Loans Scheme when we have completed the necessary arrangements to enable houses to be sold in Nhulunbuy. Of course, that is provided that they are eligible for those loans. Loans are available only to people who are making a first home purchase in the Northern Territory.

It will be difficult to determine the price of homes in Nhulunbuy. The Housing Commission is at present sorting out with the Valuer-General how to place a valuation on homes in Nhulunbuy. Honourable members would know that Nhulunbuy has been a closed mining town since its inception. It is on a mining lease and, as a result of that, there have not been many house and land transactions in the past. Whilst I am aware that some blocks have changed hands over there for fairly steep prices, that may not be a good guide to establishing a market value because very few transactions have taken place. That is not a true reflection of the market. I cannot provide the honourable member with specific information on this question, but I am anxious to see what the Housing Commission and Valuer-General recommend to the government on the value of government houses at Nhulunbuy which will be made available for sale. Obviously, I will provide information to the honourable member in this Assembly in due course.

Leprosy Patients

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Would he advise at some stage during the sittings, the number of long-term leprosy patients who previously attended the leprosarium at East Arm who are not attending in Katherine now and their possible location? I believe some of them are living in fringe camps around Darwin without medical treatment or attention.

ANSWER

When the leprosarium was closed earlier this year, there were some 22 patients many of whom had been there for quite some time. It was determined that about 2 of them needed to be in a continuing hospital environment for their own benefit. The others could return to their own communities. Some became independent in their own right and were given Housing Commission accommodation because they were well enough to be able to look after themselves and be treated by visiting rural sisters on a regular basis. I have no knowledge that any of our former patients are living in a fringe camp environment and not receiving treatment. If the honourable member can give me names and places where these people might be, I will pass it on to the department and have it examine the matter. In any event, I will endeavour to obtain a full report on the people who were in the leprosarium for the honourable member so that her fears can be allayed.

Youth Services at Amoonguna

Mr BELL to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

What is the extent of cutbacks for youth services at Amoonguna consequent upon the minister's decision in the budget?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have had some forewarning of this particular question. It is a very difficult one. The Northern Territory government budget allowed some $411 000 in relation to services being provided by the YMCA and YWCA and other youth groups throughout the Northern Territory. Off the top of my head, I do not have details of every particular project because there are some 18 or 19 people employed in this regard. If my memory serves me right, I think we are providing some financial assistance to Amoonguna on a 6-monthly basis but I am not certain of that. I will take the question on board and provide the honourable member with the information at a later date.

Katherine Sportsmen - Travel

Mr VALE to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can he advise whether or not he is aware of the hardship Katherine sportsmen and women experience through having to travel so far to compete with other teams?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, you would be aware of the travel subsidy schemes that the Northern Territory government has instituted over the last couple of years to provide financial assistance to sporting organisations for participation in both national and Territory championships. Of course, the Northern Territory government is very interested in developing interaction between the various town centres but, unfortunately, there is no provision for financial assistance to teams which wish to participate from Katherine, Darwin or even Tennant Creek and Alice Springs.

Just recently, I had the good fortune to open the go-kart track in Katherine. That facility will provide a good service to people in that area. It will not only be a go-kart track; it will also be a BMX track. I believe that, over a period of time, some interaction will develop between Darwin and Katherine to allow weekly competition. Currently, Rugby League and Rugby Union teams come up to Darwin on a regular basis and play in the Darwin competition. People come from Jabiru to Darwin to compete in various competitions.

Mr Speaker, I believe that, as we increase our Sports Development Fund through the revenue of Sports Lotto, at some future date some allowance may be made to help promote sporting competitions between towns. However, I am unable to give any assurance that we will be addressing that problem in the immediate future.

Policy Statements on Education

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

This question follows on a question I asked last week. Can he advise exactly when he will be in a position to release the promised policy statements on education and explain to the Assembly in this last sittings of 1982 why these statements have taken so long given that he has had the Green Paper since March 1981?

ANSWER

A policy statement could be issued forthwith on a number of areas. Indeed, a number of them have been prepared to date. I had hoped to be in a position to release a package rather than just dribble them out like confetti at a wedding. There are a number of other issues, however, about which a great deal of further investigation needs to be done over and above that which has already taken place. We must examine areas recommended for discussion in the Green Paper; for example, senior secondary colleges. In order to take a decision in respect of senior secondary colleges, we must examine the whole spectrum of education itself. We must examine the cost of providing such a system, the impact it will have on the pattern of secondary education and the number of years that will apply to secondary education which in turn affects the number of years which apply to primary education. We must also look at the type of curriculum which those secondary colleges will have. That in turn will affect the direction of education that will apply to secondary schools and the number of years and units involved. In turn, further down the line, that will affect what happens in primary education.

Until the decision at the top of the ladder is taken, it is very difficult to make a definitive policy statement covering the whole spectrum of education from pre-school through. I know the delay must be frustrating for many who have an intense interest in the area of government White Paper policy relating to the field of education. Nonetheless, it is far better to get the act right the first time rather than patching it up over the years and adding confusion thereby. I would prefer to face the occasional criticism which is levelled, and probably justifiably, in the minds of people for not having produced these statements earlier. Nonetheless, the process of assessing the impact of all these policies on neighbouring policies must be addressed before I make a definitive statement. The aims and objectives in Aboriginal education are well known and clear. Certainly, those sorts of policy statements can be made. The basic, objective, policy statement on education is available. I think the preamble to the Education Act itself is as clear a statement of that as any that I could produce by way of a White Paper. I believe this is something which needs to be done very thoroughly in the first instance. When I am satisfied that it is in the interests of education to put the government imprimatur on that policy statement, then I will bring it forward. I do not intend to do so beforehand.

Pets at Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Whilst taking into consideration the special conditions of the establishment of the township of Jabiru and in the interests of normal life for the people living there, can he assure me that all requests to keep animals and birds, with the exception of cats, for personal and recreational reasons at Jabiru will be treated with consideration by the JTDA?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in this context one must refer to the Plan of Management for the Kakadu National Park, the head lease under which the Jabiru Town Development Authority was granted a right to occupy the townsite and the regulations made under the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Act. The special conditions under which Jabiru was established will clearly frustrate any attempt the government may make to seek relaxation of the current position. The Jabiru Town Development Authority is not in a position to allow pets, other than dogs and indigenous fish, to be kept in the town. The Plan of Management under which the development of the town and the national park is regulated comes up for review in 1985 and that will be our earliest opportunity to secure relaxation of any of the current restrictions should we deem it advisable. However, the extent to which the town cooperates in observing the current restrictions will no doubt have some influence on any revision of them.

Housing for Aboriginal Health Workers

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Aboriginal health workers employed by the Department of Health have indicated for some years their need for appropriate housing. Has any progress yet been made by the department towards provision of housing for Aboriginal health workers?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member is quite right when she says that Aboriginal health workers have expressed an interest in having accommodation made available to them in the areas in which they live. It is not an unreasonable proposition at all. One of the things that I have asked of 2 consecutive Conferences of Health Workers is that they let me know what their concept of housing is so that I can advise the Chief Minister whose responsibility it is to provide accommodation for public servants in the Northern Territory. I think that is very important because, all too often in the Northern Territory, government has built $30 000 to $60 000 homes out of tar and cement in its own traditional way that had no meaning for the people for whom they were built. Over a period of time, some of these places have been abandoned, some wrecked and, on quite a few occasions, they were accepted very graciously and lived in and maintained in the finest condition. Because of the diversity of our communities, I felt it absolutely essential that the health workers tell us what they believe to be the priorities for housing in their communities.

We already provide accommodation in most communities for medical staff and, where these staff are withdrawing and health workers are taking over, the health workers have said: 'Those places you built for the white sisters are not really what we want. They do not interest us. We have husbands and children and would rather live with our friends and relatives in another area'. In the last few weeks, I believe the health workers have arrived at a decision on what they see as the way they wish to handle accommodation. As I understand it, and this matter has yet to be considered by government, the health workers believe that funds for the accommodation of health workers could reasonably be made available by the government to the council or the housing association in their communities. That council or housing association would then have responsibility for providing suitable accommodation for the health workers involved. The standard and situation etc of the accommodation that is to be provided would then become a matter for the community as would the ultimate responsibility for maintaining that accommodation and the decision as to who should go into the house if the health work workers move on or whatever.

Mr Speaker, the short answer is that I have not received the proposition. I believe it exists and it sounds reasonable from what I have heard about it. In the course of time, the government will address itself to it and I will be able to pass the matter on to the Chief Minister for his final imprimatur.

Development Corporation Conference in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Would the honourable minister undertake to evaluate the many entrepreneurial ideas put forward at the recent Development Corporation Conference in Alice Springs and advertise at least those which are judged to have the best chance of success?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no problem agreeing with the implied suggestion that the government consider these ideas to see where they can be applied. Certainly, I think it is a good practice for the Small Business Advisory Service to conduct meetings of this nature and allow the minds of business people to range freely over subjects very close to their hearts. Indeed, I understand that at this particular meeting, pay, interest rates, the availability of land and things of that kind were very thoroughly discussed. I will take heed of what the honourable member has said and try to agree to everything he proposes.

Ro-Ro Facility for Darwin from Singapore

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What is delaying the towing of the Ro-Ro facility from Singapore to Darwin? When is it expected the Ro-Ro will arrive and what effect will the delay have on the completion of the project?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, recently I had the satisfaction of attending a launching of a Ro-Ro. We have had some problems regarding the delivery of the Ro-Ro because the main contractor, Marine Contractors, has entered into some kind of dispute with Land and Sea, the constructors of the barge of the Ro-Ro. At the moment, negotiations are being conducted between solicitors for the Northern Territory and solicitors acting on behalf of Land and Sea and Marine Contractors. I will be in the position to answer this question more fully within the next 24 hours. There are legal problems and we hope they will be sorted out in the next 24 hours. If they are, the Ro-Ro will depart in the next few days and arrive in Darwin in about 3 weeks. If they are not resolved in the next couple of days, there could be problems because it would be very unlikely that we would be able to obtain insurance for it to sail after 30 November. It is very ticklish and complicated in legal terms. As I said earlier, I will be in a position to advise the Assembly more fully in regard to that particular problem within 24 hours.

Electricity Supply for Daly Waters

Mr VALE to TREASURER

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can he advise the Assembly what steps are being taken to provide electricity to the township and residents of Daly Waters?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am advised that the 5 or 6 consumers in the town of Daly Waters have an electricity supply. I further understand that probably it is not an entirely satisfactory one, and that steps are being considered to upgrade some of the equipment used. As far as the Northern Territory Electricity Commission is concerned, it is not in charge of the electricity supply at Daly Waters. At the time of self-government, NTEC took over most of the major operations of generating and distributing electricity throughout the Northern Territory. Quite a number of small centres, such as Daly Waters, are still under the control and administration of the Department of Transport and Works. This is largely because the towns are not served from a major power-station but have small in-house generators.

I am led to believe that the generators at Daly Waters are at the police station and there is a distribution system from there to the half dozen consumers in the town. Unfortunately, the cost of running small generators is very high and the estimated loss per annum on generating electricity for the consumers at Daly Waters is in the order of $45 000 to $50 000. This also takes into account the contribution for the standard Northern Territory electricity tariff which is applied right across the Territory. NTEC is not particularly interested in taking over all these small centres, not because it does not have the expertise but because picking up of such losses would further increase the very substantial losses that it incurs. Obviously, these losses are absorbed within the Department of Transport and Works' vote and perhaps some of it flows to the Department of Community Development because funds are provided for the purchase of fuel or diesel sets. In a nutshell, NTEC does not provide electricity to Daly Waters and does not propose to do so under any current arrangements. It is a very small town with very few consumers. Whoever generates electricity there will incur substantial losses. The real solution for these towns in the long term is that, as our major transmission system grows, large powerlines will be run down the track to put these small towns on a power supply from the major powerhouse. In time, NTEC would propose to supply Katherine from the Channel Island Power-station. When Darwin has a coal-fired power-station and the costs of generating electricity are reduced, the possibility of transmitting electricity down the track from Darwin will be a very favourable one from an economic point of view. At that time, I believe there will be further consideration of connecting more small towns throughout the Northern Territory to a major and more reliable supply of electricity.

Subdivision in Sanderson

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

What requirements, if any, were imposed upon subdividers in the Sanderson area in respect of the provision of public open space?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would have to seek specific details to answer the honourable member's question. I can only recall, in a very broad sense, the requirement for buy-back of land by the Northern Territory government from these developers. There was also a requirement to provide land to the government for school sites etc, as part of the lease arrangements. I will have to seek information and provide it to the honourable member in due course.

Ablution Facilities for Kargaru Bush Camp

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has the minister received advice from his department on improved ablution facilities which are urgently required at the Kargaru bush camp in Tennant Creek?

ANSWER

No.

Student Assessment Programs in NT

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Following the minister's statement to the Assembly regarding the results of Australian studies on the student performance project, many points were raised. One of those points was that the results of the student assessment programs in the NT would be used. Could the minister inform the Assembly what progress has been made in this matter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am very pleased to advise the Assembly that, following the first meeting of a working party on assessment of student performance in Northern Territory schools on 18 November, consensus has now been reached on the major issues. The working party was comprised of representatives of the department, the principals association, the Northern Territory Teachers Federation and COGSO. Mr Speaker, if I may, I would like to depart from the normal procedure in question time and use notes rather extensively in answering this question. I would like the media to take note of the simplified agreement of which I shall now advise the Legislative Assembly.

The proposed guidelines were unanimously accepted and endorsed by the executive of the Northern Territory Teachers Federation over the weekend. I would like to commend the spirit with which the federation entered into these negotiations, notwithstanding publicity about opposition by it to so-called system-wide testing through its journals and press statements. I think the federation came to realise that there was nothing sinister in the government's proposal. There was nothing to fear from it but everything to gain from it. Again, I would like to place on record my commendation for the level of cooperation and assistance which the federation executive has given.

I have asked my staff to simplify the education jargon which was used in the agreement itself. It is designed for people in the profession and is of little use to parents or students and others vitally concerned in these matters. My staff has reduced it and I will now indicate what the agreement contains. Firstly, a report on student achievement would contain a description of the assessment program which will be related to curriculum undertaken in our schools. This would put any assessment in its correct context. Secondly, the report will indicate areas in which performance has been satisfactory on the basis of standards established by the particular subject committees and the working party. Here, the analysis would describe the results in general terms. Any more detailed analysis would be confidential but may also be used as the basis of a detailed report to principals which will allow them to compare their school level analysis with that of the overall Northern Territory analysis. Thirdly, the report will be a valuable instrument in that it will give the department an indication of possible causes of any deficiencies in student performance together with remedial strategies to overcome such deficiencies. Examples of remedial strategies could include such things as curriculum revision, in-service activity and staffing considerations to name a few. Fourthly, there will continue to be emphasis on positive aspects of the program so that it may be developed and maintained in the interests of education in the Northern Territory. Fifthly, the report from the Northern Territory assessment program will, in the first instance, be prepared by the Evaluation and Assessment Unit of the Professional Services Branch of the department. This would then be considered by the working party mentioned before. It would then be presented to the Secretary of the Department of Education for consideration. Sixthly and finally, after consideration, the report would be released on a confidential basis to regional councils of principals, the Northern Territory Council of Government Schools Organisation and the Northern Territory Teachers Federation. Following study by these groups the report would be made available to principals, teachers and school councils. At a later date, a summary of the report would be made available for media release.

Mr Speaker, since the debate referred to by the honourable member for Port Darwin, a great deal of effort has gone into this program. It is a credit to all those who have been involved in it, not just the Northern Territory Teachers Federation but also the Northern Territory Council of Government Schools Organisation and the officers of the department. It is rare that I name any officer of my department but I would like to put on record my appreciation, and the appreciation of the government, of the efforts of Mr Geoff Spring in this very difficult exercise. I would like to put on record my appreciation of his very skilful handling of all of the people involved who had some reluctance about participating in this scheme which I believe will be of tremendous benefit to Northern Territory education.

Ablution Facilities at Kargaru Bush Camp

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I refer him to my previous question and his brief answer. Will he undertake to solicit from his department information on the current status of ablution facilities provided to the residents of Kargaru bush camp in Tennant Creek?

ANSWER

The first thing I would like to do is to assess the status, to use his own word, of the bush camp itself. If it has an appropriate status, then certainly I will look at the facilities available to it.

Water Reticulation in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What is the government doing about reticulating water in the rural area given the moratorium that was announced on subdivision below 20 acres about a year ago?

ANSWER

I have had forewarning of this question. So that we get the record right, I have a reply prepared because it is important. Many people in the rural area have been wondering what has been going on.

There was a report. At the moment, the recommendations contained in that report are being studied by the government. One aspect of the study covered the provision of reticulated water supplied to the rural area. Private bores and wells will still be utilised and reticulated water only provided in instances where lot sizes prohibit certain criteria being met from within designated village areas. The cost of reticulation will be met by the developer. Consideration is being given by the Planning Authority to the lifting of the subdivision moratorium in conjunction with the adoption of a development policy designed to protect public health interests. This policy will cover requirements for proper construction standards for bores and wells and effluent disposal systems, and specified minimum separation distances between the fresh water and waste water systems.

Upgrading of Parap Primary School

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

The stage 2 upgrading of Parap Primary School has not been completed because of the financial collapse of the builder. Will he ensure that such action as is necessary will be taken to have the work completed for the beginning of the 1983 school year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was anticipating a question from the honourable member regarding the Parap Primary School and the financial difficulties faced by the contractor. I would like to give the honourable member the information that I have. Without mentioning any names, the contractor is experiencing financial problems. He had apparently successfully negotiated materials from suppliers to enable him to proceed with the work on 11 November. However, a major subcontractor, Neata Glass, pulled its men off the site when it learned that the financial security arrangements had apparently fallen through. It is understood that it is waiting for confirmation of new financial security arrangements before returning to the site. Until this time, the contractor's rate of progress had been such that it was anticipated that the contract would be completed by the end of December. But this is in doubt now. Following the hearing of a petition to wind-up the company on 18 November, and in the event that the company folds up or is put into liquidation, the work will obviously take longer to complete.

We are confident, however, that the classrooms will be ready for occupation in time for the new school year. Should completion by direct management be required, we would first arrange for the classrooms to be made ready for occupation while other finishing work would be carried out after or, when the opportunity permits, during school hours.

Tourist Information Bay North of Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the fact that we have a tourist information bay on the Stuart Highway south of Alice Springs, can he advise if and when a similar installation will be installed on the Stuart Highway north of Alice Springs?

ANSWER

One will be installed north of Alice Springs. It has been brought forward on the 1982-83 minor capital works program and hopefully work will be completed by about April 1983.

Aboriginal Rangers at Ayers Rock Mount Olga National Park

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Will he give an undertaking to employ Aboriginal rangers at the Ayers Rock Mount Olga National Park in numbers comparable with those employed by the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service at Kakadu National Park.

ANSWER

I should preface my answer to this question by saying that it is government policy that Aboriginal people be employed throughout the public service and not just in the ranger service of the Northern Territory Conservation Commission. Very early in the piece, I directed the attention of the Conservation Commission to government policy in that area. I understand that the Conservation Commission employs a considerable number of Aboriginal people in its ranks and that it employs Aboriginal rangers throughout the Territory. I am not in a position this morning to give any undertaking on behalf of the Conservation Commission that it will employ a specific number of rangers of Aboriginal descent in the Uluru National Park, but I can assure the honourable member that it is the desire of the government that the Conservation Commission continue to employ substantial numbers of Aboriginal people. I understand that a Cabinet submission is on its way from the Conservation Commission in relation to further Aboriginal ranger training programs and I hope that Cabinet will receive that submission before Christmas.

Community Centre for Malak

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

The YWCA has a proposal to construct a community centre in Patterson Street, Malak. Can the minister confirm whether land has yet been made available for the erection of this building?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have only seen reference to it being processed through the lands allocation system. I can undertake to find out specifically for the honourable member and advise her.

Registration of Trailed Vehicles

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

A long time ago you mooted the idea of a system of interchanging registration of trailed vehicles which may be only used intermittently to enable more rational and economical use of that registration. Has your idea grown to fruition and, if it has, could I have the details?

ANSWER

The department is investigating the scheme proposed by the honourable member for Tiwi. However, amendments must be made to the Motor Vehicles Act in conjunction with an examination of several other relevant registration issues. I have stated, on earlier occasions, both inside and outside this Assembly, that we were looking at methods to hasten the process of registration not only of motor vehicles but also caravans and trailers. The question the member asked relates to much of the same study. When I have that information, I will provide it to her.

Local Government for Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has the government's discussion with Nhulunbuy leaseholders produced any means by which local government could be conferred on Nhulunbuy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, negotiations that have taken place to date could only be described as being in the very early stages. It is a worthwhile project for us to take on in the New Year with considerable energy now that we have the obvious support of the honourable member for that area. It is a very complex issue. Most of the government's dealings with the joint venturers, having regard to the nature of the leased land in that area, are complex by inheritance. I would anticipate that any negotiations which may lead to a formal form of local government in Nhulunbuy would take quite some time. Nonetheless, I confirm that energetic overtures will be made to the joint venturers during the New Year.

Chan Park Nursing Home

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

The Chan Park Nursing Home was recently opened at Palmerston. However, there is no bus service yet between Darwin and Palmerston. Is he considering providing such a bus service in order that friends and relations may visit the patients at the nursing home?

ANSWER

At the moment, a study is being carried out but it is very unlikely that a service into Palmerston will be provided for at least 12 months or 2 years or until it is warranted. The Darwin bus service is costing something like $2.5m a year. At this time, no funding arrangements have been made to provide an additional bus service into Palmerston. However, I have said outside this Assembly that I will be prepared to look at the possibility of private enterprise providing that service. Unfortunately, at the moment, I cannot really say to the honourable member that we will put a bus service in. However, a review is being carried out and, once we know the results of that review, the community will be advised.

Bilingual Programs in NT Schools

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Could he inform the Assembly of the present situation in respect to the evaluation of bilingual programs currently operating in Northern Territory schools? Further, does he believe that the bilingual education project is of value in the development of skills in literacy and numeracy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer to the last part of the question is a very strong affirmative. By coincidence, I have a statement which is fairly short and I wonder, with your leave, if I could deliver that in answer to the question. It is a fairly complex matter and one that I would rather not attempt to respond on off the cuff. Since in excess of $1m a year is spent on the program, the Assembly deserves some information. Perhaps I could frame it in a statement later on this morning.

School Crossings

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Has he yet received a report from the committee he established to examine the safety of school crossings? My insistence in this matter is because I would like it resolved before the beginning of the new school year.

ANSWER

I have received a report from the committee, which was comprised of the Police Commissioner and the Secretary of the Education Department. The Police Commissioner's recommendation was that there should be no distinction between crossings. In other words, motorists should not have to attempt to distinguish whether a particular marked crossing is a normal pedestrian crossing or a school crossing. The intent of his recommendation was that the law should be altered so that all crossings would become normal pedestrian crossings and, if schools wish to monitor these crossings, then it would be open to them to do so. I must say that I cannot find much fault with that sort of logic. If we need crossings outside schools, then why not be done with it and call them normal pedestrian crossings to which the normal laws apply. Schools can monitor them and teachers, parents or senior students can be present with flags to give motorists additional warning.

I have asked the Police Commissioner to prepare a Cabinet submission in consultation with the Education Department for an amendment to the act. I think it would be the Traffic Act. My colleague, the Minister for Transport and Works, will need to be involved because of that. I would expect the Cabinet submission fairly shortly. I do not know what Cabinet's view will be but the force of the Police Commissioner's logic impressed me. I will be arguing for that change. Although the legislation cannot be introduced in the Assembly this year, it should be possible to introduce it in the first session of next year.

Development in Storm Surge Areas

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Following the tabling of the storm surge report, what policy does the government have towards land development proposals that would increase the number of residential blocks in storm surge areas?

ANSWER

I cannot recall specific details of the storm surge policy in relation to further development in storm surge areas. From recollection, it is not that development will definitely not occur in storm surge areas, although the policy is generally directed towards discouraging residential development in those areas.

A statement on the subject is still on the Notice Paper. One must bear in mind that fairly extensive areas of Darwin are within the secondary storm surge zone. To discount this land altogether for productive or even for more intensive use would not be a sensible development in view of the fact that already many people live in the storm surge areas. Many dwellings in fact survived Cyclone Tracy. The Emergency Services system for cyclones in the Territory relies heavily on the fact that people will have to be encouraged and assisted out of those areas in the event of a serious cyclone threat. There is no possibility of shifting them although the DRC, at one stage during its doodling with the replanning of Darwin, proposed to wipe these areas off the map completely until the citizens told it exactly what they thought of the idea. Bearing in mind that there will be an evacuation process for persons living in these areas, we need to consider rationally the prospect of allowing further development in the area.

Darwin Waste Water Treatment Plant

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

An article in yesterday's NT News was critical of the Fannie Bay Waste Water Treatment Plant and its operations. Were any of the allegations made in that paper correct?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have had the allegations in the newspaper report extracted in a question and answer form so that I can provide information to honourable members. In the last 3 days, the Darwin Waste Water Treatment Plant has become an emotive issue both on talk-back and in the NT News. For the benefit of honourable members, especially the members for Fannie Bay and Ludmilla, I will answer these allegations. I hope that the Assembly will be patient with me while I go through them so that not only will the Assembly know where we stand but also the general community.

In the article that appeared in the NT News of 23 November, the first allegation was that a $1m furnace had been shut down for 3 years because of an out-of-balance fan. When this furnace was designed, the cost of electricity was quite low and the burning of waste solids was seen as an economically viable method of disposal. With the steep rise in energy costs, this is no longer the case and, after taking advice from the Department of Health, the Department of Transport and Works elected to use the treated waste to fill the area immediately adjacent to the treatment plant. Allegation 2: 'Solids are now dumped into Ludmilla tidal flats polluting water and affecting fishing'. There is no evidence to suggest that this exercise is affecting either people living in the area or the fish. The high lime content of this sludge, resulting from the treatment process, makes it useful as a soil improver and it has been declared fit for such use by the Department of Health. The sludge is not a problem. Allegation 3: 'Leaking of chlorine gas to the surrounding areas could be a disaster'. The leak of chlorine occurred in the chlorine room. There is a maximum discharge rate of 9 kg per hour. Obviously this would not be a major leak because within half an hour of detection by alarm sensors, the situation would be under control. If the gas storage cylinder were to rupture, it would not matter whether the men were present or not. They, and nearby residents, would have to be evacuated. I have been assured that the cylinders are extensively checked by the suppliers before refilling and that it is entering the realms of fantasy or sabotage for the idea of a disaster to be entertained. I would dismiss this allegation. Allegation 4: 'The chlorine room was not automatic and every valve had to be operated manually'. There are alarm sensors in the chlorine room - 2, in fact; one acting as a back up. As I pointed out, the maximum discharge rate is 9 kg per hour. Therefore, there is no need for concern in the unlikely event of a leak occurring. The equipment is checked regularly and repairs are carried out when required. Allegation 5: 'In the event of the Telecom lines going down and the alarm not working, leaks would continue unchecked'. The Department is at present having a new system put in. It is called a trace line. This is a direct line to Wormald which is electronically monitored every hour by that company. If this failed and the current system, which would act as a back up, did not work, the security company would call out the rostered staff who would be there until the fault was rectified. Allegation 6: 'The alarm system is presently connected to Wormald but not yet activated'. This work was carried out recently and, unfortunately, the person who made the allegation was out on strike and presumably had not made himself aware of that fact. Allegation 7: 'Some of the pipes are paper thin and leaking chlorinated water'. Close inspection of the work has not revealed this to be the case but, should any leaks become apparent, they will of course be attended to immediately. Allegation 8: 'The automatic generator did not switch on when there was a power failure'. Some trouble was experienced with this piece of equipment some time ago but it has been rectified and no difficulties are being experienced currently. Allegation 9: 'Raw sewage was discharged into Ludmilla Creek every time there was a malfunction'. There is, under normal working conditions, a holding capacity of up to 8 hours if there is a malfunction. This means that maintenance crews have plenty of time to carry out repairs. In heavy downpour conditions during the Wet, there could be a time when a by-pass situation is required. At these times, there would be a very diluted flow into the creek and the effects would be minimal and temporary. Allegation 10: 'Danger of tropical disease from outside influences because authorities insist all staff are inoculated against typhoid and cholera'. As far as inoculation against typhoid and cholera is concerned, this is standard procedure with all personnel in any type of sewerage works or sewerage-related works. Allegation 11: 'Plant now removing 8000 kg per day when only designed to remove 2800 kg per day of suspended solids'. The gentleman who made these allegations confused what is known as 'filter cake' with suspended solids. We remove 8000 kg per day on average by filter but that is not suspended solids. This is a cake consisting of solids, oils, grease, hexine extractable material and a considerable amount of water. It is estimated that the amount of suspended solids at present entering the plant is in the region of 1500 kg per day. The plant was designed to treat sewage from a population of 40 000. It is now servicing about 15 000. In other words,it has a capacity 2½ times greater than its current operation.

Mr Speaker, I thank the honourable members for their patience in allowing me to answer the allegations. These things seem to develop into emotive issues. The community should know where it stands. I would hope that the answers to the allegations will be conveyed to the public by the NT News.

Group Examining Housing Finance

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer him to a press release he issued on 16 March this year in which he said that a think-tank group of government and private industry representatives would examine ways of boosting the amount of housing finance available to Territorians. Was that think-tank group in fact formed? If so, what policy initiatives flowed from its deliberations?

ANSWER

The think-tank group was formed and is still doing its work. Quite a range of innovative options has been put together by the group concerned in discussions with building societies and banks. I think we are hamstrung a little by the conservatism that seems to be inherent in financial institutions in this country. We need to examine truly innovative methods of using money. As was indicated in the budget speech, the government is prepared to put some funds towards an innovative scheme, yet to be designed, to extract more private funds for housing in the Northern Territory. The options are continuing to be explored. It is not a project that the government can undertake on its own. We cannot have sole control because we need the complete cooperation of financial institutions concerned. They will need to provide additional loan funds for housing in the Northern Territory and treat applications for housing in a different fashion than in the past otherwise we will not change the status quo at all. The matter has not been put to rest at all; it is still quite active. It is something that simply cannot be resolved easily or quickly. We will have to keep working at it until we find a resolution.

Technology Kit for Singapore Government

Mr VALE to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

I understand that, following the recent government private sector business mission to Singapore, arrangements have been made to present a kit of Northern Territory technology to the Singapore government. Can he advise details of this?

ANSWER

As honourable members will be aware, a total of 12 Territory businessmen participated in the recent mission to Singapore and a number of important trade discussions were initiated. One of the mission members was John Parry of Quack Pest Control who has developed a system of injecting chemicals underneath trees to protect them from insect attacks for up to 25 years. Mr Parry had discussions with the Singapore authorities responsible for Singapore's Garden City and beautification schemes and they were most impressed with this technology. I have had communications with the Singapore Minister for National Development, Mr Teh Cheang Wan, the Singapore Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, Mr Key Chin Hin, and the Singapore Trade Development Board on Mr Parry's behalf.

I have also been in touch with Miss Jenny Lim who assisted our trade mission in so many ways. For the information of members I would like to read Miss Lim's communication which was received this morning: 'I am confident that our government and its relevant authorities concerned would certainly be much obliged of the presentation of technology contribution to our garden environment. Singapore is a garden city and modern technology schemes are both a major aim and concept of our honourable government rewarding performances in the republic. Your attentive gestures towards our republic's surroundings will no doubt enhance deep appreciation of your keen participation in similar paramount objectives. I have liaised with Mr Chan Jin Fo, Deputy Director of our Trade Development Board, who has kindly agreed to coordinate this assignment with the board of authorities concerned who have received already your request. I will be in touch shortly regarding arrangements'.

Members will be aware that Mr Parry developed a unique system for treating trees against insect pests. In the simplest description, the technology involved use of an air-powered hydraulic jack to supply the tree's root system with chemicals which crystallise and keep white ants and insect pests away for between 10 and 25 years. I would like to place on record my appreciation to Mr Parry for deciding to present this technology free of charge to the Singapore government as a goodwill gesture. Mr Parry's decision will contribute towards the already substantial goodwill which exists between the Northern Territory and Singapore.

Government Staff Housing Scheme

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Last week in the adjournment debate, I outlined problems facing permanent public servants who wish to purchase their houses under the government staff housing scheme when the tenancy was placed originally in the spouse's name. Could the honourable minister advise if he has had time to study the problem and whether he has found a solution?

ANSWER

I have not had time to get to the bottom of this matter as yet. I have provided my staff with the information given to me by the honourable member. The Housing Commission, in conjunction with the Public Service Commissioner, is preparing a briefing for me with the options spelled out and reasons for actions taken to date. Hopefully, in the not too distant future, those papers will be with me and some decisions can be made.

Gunn Point Prison Farm

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Can he assure me that all help will be given to the Gunn Point Prison Farm in relation to the supply of equipment for its planned program for agricultural development this year.

ANSWER

Honourable members will be aware of a report by the Conservation Commission relating to the 3-year program for the Gunn Point recreational area. If anyone reads that report, he will note that a significant role is planned for the inmates of Gunn Point Prison in the development of that project. One would assume that the equipment required for agricultural projects will go largely hand in hand with any equipment required for the 3-year upgrading of the Gunn Point Recreational Reserve. At the risk of attracting the ire of the honourable member for Nightcliff, I might make the observation that, when I was out there I noticed quite a number of graders, bulldozers and slashers. I did not have a look at the toolshed but I did not see any picks and shovels around the place. One tends to wonder what the meaning of the words 'hard labour' is.

Maco Tours

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Are the operators of Maco Tours in receipt of financial assistance from the Northern Territory Development Corporation?

ANSWER

I am not aware of any assistance to Maco Tours. I understand that it is in considerable financial difficulty at present and discussions are taking place today as to what the company's future may be.

Undergrounding of Electrical Reticulation

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

A development in McMinn Street is being frustrated at the present time through powerpole alignment. What is the government's policy with regard to the undergrounding of electrical reticulation in the older suburban areas and, in particular, McMinn Street?

ANSWER

I would wish that all my frustrations were merely powerpoles. It is not government policy generally to underground all powerlines in Darwin. Following Cyclone Tracy, it was decided to underground powerlines in the Central Business District of Darwin bounded by the Esplanade, Daly Street and McMinn Street, as well as the new residential areas in the northern suburbs. Parts of the northern suburbs and Palmerston have underground electricity reitculation. After the cyclone, Darwin Reconstruction Commission funds were provided for the undergrounding of electricity reticulation in the Central Business District of Darwin and those northern suburbs which were then under construction. All these funds were expended during the 1979-80 financial year. The Northern Territory Electricity Commission has no current plans for undergrounding existing assets in the older suburbs of Darwin but will continue to monitor areas of concentrated commercial development where undergrounding of assets may be expected to be carried out based upon the technical requirements of the particular development.

Cyclone Advice for Residents in Storm Surge Area

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

In his comments when tabling the Storm Surge Report, he indicated that public warning systems on imminent cyclone situations should contain special advice for those people living in storm surge areas. When will this be implemented?

ANSWER

Responsibility for the Northern Territory Emergency Services belongs to the Chief Minister. I am not completely familiar with the emergency procedures around Darwin other than as I outlined them to the honourable member in answer to his earlier question. I am sure that, if he cares to place the question on notice,more specific details can be provided to him.

Proposed Recreation Site at Welatje Therre

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I refer him to the fact that officers of his department were pegging a road route to the proposed recreation lake site north of the old Telegraph Station in Alice Springs. Does this action indicate the government's intention to proceed with the construction of the proposed recreation lake?

ANSWER

The way the honourable gentleman keeps referring to things as facts when they are not never fails to amaze me. To the best of my knowledge, the Department of Community Development is rather short on surveyors and engineers and does not survey roads. The question itself is based on a false premiss. If the honourable member wants an answer on the attitude or intentions of the Northern Territory government - again, this is outside of my area - I am happy to answer it. On the question of whether we intend to proceed with the construction of the lake at the site referred to by the honourable gentleman, our answer is a very amphatic yes.

Pedestrian Crossings in Central Australia

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the present safety standards set on the construction of pedestrian crossings, will he give an undertaking to review these standards to allow for provision of pedestrian crossings in Larapinta Drive in central Australia and for the senior citizens in Head Street?

ANSWER

The 2 streets the honourable member mentions come under the province of the Alice Springs Town Council. However, standards are under constant review. Perhaps the question of standards could be raised in the submission to Cabinet which the Chief Minister mentioned earlier.

Accommodation for Isolated Students Attending Urban Schools

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is it the government's intention to continue to provide urban accommodation such as is provided at Katherine House for students from isolated areas attending urban schools in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as demonstrated by the fact that we established Katherine House, quite clearly the government is most anxious that this type of arrangement continue. Where resources, facilities and people to carry out the task exist, and the need exists, we intend to expand that program. I am not saying that we will duplicate the colleges of the university; that would be beyond our resources. Honourable members would be aware of the report of the Education Advisory Council on need. Clearly, I accept its observations. There is a need; there is no question about that.

I might take the opportunity to inform you, in particular, Sir, of difficulties we have at Katherine House. The family which has been running it wishes to terminate its contract at the end of this school year. The prospects of finding people of that calibre are extremely remote. We have been attempting for some time to attract applications from people who are capable of handling a place like that. I propose, therefore, in the absence of success in attracting replacements for the existing house parents, to approach church institutions and the like to see if we can obtain interest from them to take over the management of Katherine House. Obviously, it would involve a substantial government subsidy to make the thing worth while and viable. We would not expect them to take it on at a loss. Nonetheless, we are facing difficulties in ensuring the opening of Katherine House by the beginning of next school year. Every effort will be made to ensure that Katherine House does open but, between now and then, I am afraid we are going to have to talk to a number of church groups to see if indeed they can take on the management.

The government's commitment to St Phillips College in South Australia will continue. I think that Alice Springs and Katherine would be the logical areas for any extension of the program rather than, say, Tennant Creek or Darwin, particularly Darwin. That excludes of course the need for a different type of student accommodation; for example, accommodating students to attend the Darwin Community College. These matters are not only expensive in capital; they are extremely expensive in recurrent terms. Nonetheless, within the resources available to us, it is the government's intention not only to maintain the programs of student accommodation but to increase them if we can.

Todd River Bridge-Undoolya Road Connector

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Are negotiations between the Department of Lands and the Sacred Sites Authority continuing regarding sacred sites in the path of the Todd River Bridge-Undoolya Road connector and, if so, what stage have negotiations reached?

ANSWER

Negotiations in Alice Springs with Aboriginal organisations, and even individual Aboriginals, have never really stopped. As I indicated before, the problems of settling a route for the road off the Todd River Bridge into Sadadeen and eventually towards the Undoolya area have been going on for a couple of years now. Capital works programs have been put off a number of times as a result of this inability to settle on a site. The last indication I had from officers of the Department in Alice Springs was that they were very close to a solution. I have not received any details but, hopefully, a solution has been found. Quite clearly, we cannot go on as we have in the past because that side of Alice Springs, the eastern side, has been growing all this time. There are major residential settlements. The traffic flow from east to west in Alice Springs is increasing all the time. The bridge was built as the major connector from east to west in Alice Springs but, at the moment, we have the absurdity that it virtually stops when it gets to the other side of the river and meanders through side streets. Hopefully, within the near future we can get on with the construction of the rest of the road.

TIO Investments

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

When does he propose to report to the Assembly on the number and type of investments undertaken by or on behalf of the Territory Insurance Office as he committed himself to do on 12 October this year?

ANSWER

I do not think I undertook to do anything other than indicate by classification the types of investment of the TIO. The TIO is run as nearly as possible as an ordinary insurance company and it would be quite inappropriate for it to provide any more information in relation to its investment and loan portfolios than any other insurance company provides. Quite clearly, it is in a competitive market and needs to be seen as another insurance company that does its work well but keeps confidential those matters which should be kept confidential. This morning, I will be tabling the report of the Territory Insurance Office. I think there is some information in there that may satisfy the honourable member as to the nature of the investments of the TIO.

Encephalitis Case in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware of a recently reported case of encephalitis in Nhulunbuy and will he recommend the reintroduction of direct financial assistance for effective control?

ANSWER

I do not have any information on this at the moment. I am more than happy to obtain the information for the honourable member. I will write to him after the sittings.

Land Grant in Humpty Doo

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS

Can he assure me that an application for a grant of land adjoining the Humpty Doo School and Humpty Doo High School for use as a school farm, camping area or agricultural use will be given prompt and favourable consideration?

ANSWER

The information I have is that two 15 ha sites, which sounds like a lot of land to me, have already been identified near the school. The Department of Lands is waiting further information from the Department of Education as to the suitability of the sites for the activities proposed by the school.

Child Welfare Legislation

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Child welfare legislation has been in preparation for several years by his department. When I last asked a question on it, he indicated that he hoped it would be ready this year. Can he now indicate when that legislation will be ready for introduction into the Assembly?

ANSWER

I understand the honourable member's concern about this. The matter went to Cabinet and was extensively considered. It was in a bill form at that stage. Cabinet was of the view that a number of operational changes needed to be made to it. This affected the entire legislation and it is now back with the draftsman for implementation of the wishes of Cabinet in that regard. It is clearly impossible to introduce it at this sittings but there should not be any difficulty in introducing it in the March sittings.

Occupational Therapist for Central Australia

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he advise if any steps are being undertaken by his department to obtain the services of an occupational therapist for central Australia?

ANSWER

I am happy to advise that the recruitment process is well under way and an appointment to that position will be made in the very near future.

Welatje Therre Recreational Lake

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer him to the answer given by the Minister for Community Development earlier in question time in which he gave an emphatic affirmation of the government's intention to proceed with the proposed recreational lake at Welatje Therre. Is he aware of the determined opposition to the development of this lake on the part of an erstwhile Country Liberal Party candidate employed on his personal staff?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think that I gather the drift of that almost indecipherable question. The Minister for Community Development outlined the government's position which has been well known to the honourable member opposite as well as to the general public, particularly in central Australia, for some time. The government has been negotiating with people who claim to have an interest in this area. I am not aware of the opposition to which the member for MacDonnell refers but no doubt negotiations will continue. An evaluation of alternative sites was carried out by myself as well as by the group which decided on the Telegraph Station site. I inspected alternative sites both by land and air. It is quite apparent that there is no other similar suitable site available in central Australia within reasonable reach of Alice Springs. Therefore, the government has no alternative but to pursue negotiations on the site in question if it wishes to proceed with a recreational lake for Alice Springs.

In relation to the area concerned, the government has made various offers to the people who claim to be interested and, at this stage, those offers have been spurned. The government certainly remains open to discussions and negotiations on the matter.

Welatje Therre Recreational Lake

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Would he inform the Assembly of the alternative proposals that have been spurned and which he referred to in answering the previous question?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I cannot recall the precise details of the negotiations because they took place last year. I recall that, at one particular site, various people saw a stand of gum trees as an impediment to the construction of a dam and lake in the area because the trees would be submerged. An offer was made to construct as near as possible to that site. A tableau was set up in a building specially designed in tasteful fashion for the purpose to recreate as nearly as possible the layout with the trees. As far as I am aware, that offer was not acceptable. A sacred site, which is the principal bone of contention, is a rock in the bed of the Charles River or the Todd River. That rock would not come to any harm as a result of a dam being built. It would simply be submerged which happens already when the river runs. However, the people who claim to have an interest in the area apparently do not want it to be submerged permanently.

Batchelor College

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Could he advise the Assembly of the status of fourth year accreditation for the Batchelor College?

ANSWER

I am not in a position to give the information that the honourable member seeks. Perhaps the best thing I can do is to arrange for a briefing for the honourable member. I will personally attend that briefing to fill him in on the exact position.

Sobering-up Centres

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he give details in regard to costs, administration etc of the sobering-up centres proposed to be built by the Northern Territory government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the honourable member for giving me a few minutes notice of this question. At this stage, we have not identified any firm capital costs since we have committed ourselves to developing these facilities in conjunction with established regional drug and alcohol groups, local government, community organisations and interested religious groups where it is possible to do so within our existing resources. However, I would be more than happy to take a submission to Cabinet for additional funds for these projects. To this end, proposals are being sought from various communities so that services and facilities may be developed according to needs they have established and identified. Until these proposals are firm and have been considered, no definite estimated costs will be available. It is not clear what method of administration will apply nor the degree of involvement of government departments.

I can assure the honourable member that the government hopes to see these facilities developed and run by community groups with support and assistance being provided, where necessary, by relevant government departments. It would be absolutely tragic if the Department of Health set out a method for handling this problem, designed only for one community in the Northern Territory, and tried to make that apply to all the communities. Our communities differ distinctively and answers to the problems will be different in each place.

Degree Courses at Darwin Community College

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Following the accreditation of a Bachelor of Arts course at the Darwin Community College, are there any plans under way for further degree courses to be accredited at that college?

ANSWER

At the moment, no. That is not because we do not want them but because we believe the time is not right. There is little point our putting forward a proposition to the Tertiary Education Commission for a further degree course knowing full well that it has absolutely no chance of success. I have indicated previously that the next degree course we need to offer locally is a Bachelor of Science, because it is the other part of the type of degree course necessary to establish a nucleus of secondary teacher education in the Northern Territory. We are quite convinced that we would have no prospect of getting the agreement of the TEC or the Commonwealth government for the establishment of such a degree course at this time. It is obviously important that a BSc be offered as soon as possible. Negotiations are now continuing in line with the Commonwealth government's decision to establish a school of external studies to tap into the resources of a university elsewhere so that tutorial assistance may be provided for students who wish to do a BSc through the Darwin Community College. That would seem the only course of action available to us and, accordingly, it is the course we are pursuing.

Lake Nash Meeting

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

An allegation was made this morning on the ABC's After Eight program that the Northern Territory government attempted to prevent the attendance of an ABC journalist at a meeting at Lake Nash today despite the fact that the journalist was invited to attend the meeting by the community. Is that allegation correct?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that the Office of Aboriginal Liaison indicated to the various other parties concerned in a meeting at Lake Nash that the Office of Aboriginal Liaison and the Department of Community Development representatives would not be interested in attending that meeting if media representatives were to be present. The view taken by responsible government officials was that they were there to attempt to reach a reasonable solution of the problems relating to the people at Lake Nash and not to provide some sort of Roman holiday and spectacle for the media. I fully support the actions of the officials concerned.

Mereenie Appraisal Drilling Program

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Can he advise the current status of the Mereenie appraisal drilling program?

ANSWER

For the benefit of the honourable member, who has always shown a keen interest in the development of this field, since the award of the lease in November, 6 wells have been drilled by Oilmin as operators for the Mereenie joint venture. More work still remains to assess the best methods of completing the wells so as to maximise economic recovery from the field. The good news is that reserves will almost certainly be more extensive than previously thought due to the discovery of what appears to be a new oil pool on the south-east nose of the Mereenie anticline. Flows of up to 548 barrels a day have been obtained from this sector of the Mereenie anticline.

Nitrate Levels in Watercourse at Bathurst Downs

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

My question relates to the question I just asked the honourable Chief Minister. Is it a fact that the watercourse found at Bathurst Downs, which is the site where attempts are being made to move Aboriginal people to, contains nitrates which exceed the levels acceptable to the World Health Organisation?

ANSWER

I am sorry to disappoint the honourable member but I do not carry around in my head details of the acceptable level of nitrates in water that should or should not be consumed by humans. I am happy to tell the honourable member that I would be prepared to investigate the matter as far as it involves my department. I point out to him that the investigations and negotiations taking place at Lake Nash are primarily the concern of the Department of Community Development, the Department of Transport and Works and the Department of the Chief Minister's Office of Aboriginal Liaison, and that the Department of Health is acting in a consulting capacity where required. If it is necessary for us to advise the responsible departments on a matter of this nature, I should imagine that the public servants involved in the exercise would be quite capable of ascertaining that information themselves.

Maintenance of Parks and Gardens adjoining Block 8

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand that the Department of Transport and Works has responsibility for the maintenance of parks and gardens immediately bordering Block 8 and other government buildings nearby. Do the same conditions apply to the garden area beside the police headquarters and, if so, when will the Department of Transport and Works do something about bringing this garden up to the standard of others adjoining government offices in the area?

ANSWER

There is some confusion as to who owns those 2 particular blocks - blocks 4794 and 4328. The Department of Transport and Works has contract for a period to maintain the block adjacent to the Chan Building in Mitchell Street. The other lot the honourable member mentioned is being maintained by the Police Force itself. I believe that a long-term solution will have to be found in regard to the ownership of those particular lots. If it is felt necessary, we could transfer those areas to the council. However, I ask the honourable member to take the problem up with the Minister for Lands and Housing who has that responsibility.

Katherine Community Health Centre

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the Department of Health intend to divest itself of the Katherine Community Health Centre building by the end of 1982 as was recommended in the Kirton and Whiting Report on Community Health Services?

ANSWER

I have no knowledge of that recommendation in the Kirton and Whiting Report being adopted by the department. As I mentioned during the last sittings, the report was the basis for discussion and was circulated widely throughout the community. We are expecting a response from people in the Health Department in Katherine and, in fact, from other citizens of Katherine. If it is felt that the proposal by Kirton and Whiting, to shut the health centre in Katherine and transfer its activities to other areas, would be deleterious to the people of Katherine, it just would not proceed. I am not sitting in judgment in this particular matter. The proposals put forward in the report related to really very important issues and should be discussed widely through the community. When that discussion has taken place, we will be able to more seriously address ourselves to what happens to infrastructures such as the health centre at Katherine.

Port Charges

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Have new port charges been decided upon and, if so, when will they come into effect?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, Cabinet is evaluating a proposal by the Port Authority for the various charges. Until such time as Cabinet completes its deliberations, I am unable to provide the information that the honourable member seeks.

Government Meeting with Aboriginal Organisations

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Does the government intend to hold a meeting with representatives of Aboriginal organisations in the Territory as a follow up to last year's Darwin meeting and, if so, when and where?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the particular meeting to which the member refers. The Northern Territory government is continually holding meetings with various Aboriginal organisations and persons. We hold an annual meeting with Aboriginal community councils. Perhaps that is the one that he is referring to. Also, every couple of months, we hold consultative meetings with land councils and we meet with the National Aboriginal Conference representatives from the Northern Territory from time to time. If the honourable member is, in fact, referring to the usual annual conference with Aboriginal community council representatives, as far as I am aware, it will be held again next year because that is what it is - an annual conference. Where it is held is pretty much in the hands of the people who attend it and the officials who organise it. Usually, they try to hold it at Kormilda College because there is residential accommodation there. Therefore, they are limited to school holidays. They might hold it during the first or second semester break. I seem to recall attending one at least 6 months ago so it must be in the first part of the year.

Stuart Highway

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise when the remaining narrow sections of the Stuart Highway will be widened and upgraded to national highway standards?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Department of Transport and Works, with assistance from the Commonwealth government, is constantly upgrading the Stuart Highway. In fact, there is only about 500 km to go to complete the widening of that section. It is hoped that, by 1988, some 350 km will have been widened, leaving about 150 km to go. Earlier this year we opened the section between Katherine and Darwin and that has reduced the travelling time by at least 1 hour. I understand that further sections between Katherine and Tennant Creek will be widened this year and other sections between Tennant Creek and Alice Springs. The government's program is to upgrade not only the Stuart Highway but also the Barkly and Victoria Highways. By 1988, hopefully, most of the Stuart Highway will have been widened with the exception of about 150 km.

Negotiations on Ro-Ro

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

On Tuesday, he indicated that, within 24 hours, he would have more definite information on the Ro-Ro dispute in Singapore. What is the current situation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am unable to advise the Assembly on the latest position regarding negotiations with the consortium and the builder. I understand that a meeting is being held in Singapore at 11.30 Darwin time. Hopefully, during the adjournment debate this afternoon, I will be able to advise on the latest position.

Government Meeting with Aboriginal Organisations

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

In my previous question, I was not referring to meetings the government holds with councils in Aboriginal communities of which I am aware. I was referring to a meeting which I understood took place last year with Aboriginal organisations, based in Alice Springs and other urban centres, such as the Central Australian Aboriginal Congress and the Institute for Aboriginal Development.

ANSWER

I do not know whether another such meeting is proposed. I will have to seek advice from my officers.

Stockfeed Mill

Mr VALE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he advise if Australian Agricultural Consulting and Management Group have prepared a report on the need for, size and location of a Territory stockfeed mill and, if so, when will the report be released and what recommendations did it contain?

ANSWER

The stockfeed mill study commissioned from the Australian Agricultural Consulting and Management Group by the NT government through the NTDC in conjunction with ADMA has been received and is under consideration by government. The report is positive in that it recommends that a market exists in the Northern Territory to establish a stockfeed mill of around 20 000 t annual capacity provided there is a modest growth in the intensive livestock industries. The government is in the process of distributing copies of this report to various organisations and potential investors who have previously expressed interest in this area. Following recent trade missions to South-east Asia, discussions were held with a Singapore company which was extremely interested in the venture and indications are that a second Singapore-based company could well be interested. A contract to construct a feedmill could be negotiated between now and early 1984 and all the indicators are positive for such a conclusion.

High School for Sanderson

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I refer to his advice to me in August that it was not expected that a high school would be required in Sanderson within the next 10 years. In view of the large number of primary school enrolments, can he inform me whether this decision has been subject to review?

ANSWER

Following mention of this matter by the member for Sanderson and by the Chief Minister, who is particularly concerned to ensure that adequate high school facilities are made available in the northern suburbs, I asked for a complete review of projected enrolments in secondary schools in the Darwin area. On present projections there may be accommodation difficulties for the year 1985. It is anticipated that at a school such as Dripstone, it may be necessary to provide demountable accommodation for one or perhaps two years at the most. From projections available to me it appears that when Palmerston High School is commissioned, the resultant relief on high school accommodation throughout the Darwin area generally will result in spare capacity.

Sufficient capacity is indicated by the figures given to me as a result of detailed analysis by demographers in the Department of Lands and the Department of Education. Capacity is sufficient to cope without the expenditure of some $6m or $7m with the exception perhaps of a little bit of difficulty in 1985. I am quite sure that honourable members would not wish us to spend that sort of money if it was not entirely necessary. Capacity within the present school system will be further enhanced with the commissioning, probably in 1986, of the high school at Palmerston. Nonetheless, the government will be keeping a very close eye on the situation.

Driving Licences for 16-year-olds

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I have pursued this matter through correspondence and questions previously. What is the current position with regard to 16-year-olds in country areas who have the necessary skills to warrant the issue of a licence but who are without access to high school driving schools and thus unable to obtain a driver's licence?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am unable to provide the honourable member with any further information other than to say that the Motor Vehicle Registry is examining that particular question. However, some further advice was given to me regarding people living in the Darwin area. There could be some 16-year-old apprentices in the motor mechanic trade for whom special provisions could be made provided they were able to get their licences through the student education driving section. I will take the matter on board and endeavour to give the honourable member update information regarding her proposal.

Lake Nash Site

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is the government planning to spend approximately $1.5m to duplicate facilities at Bathurst Downs that are currently available at Lake Nash despite the fact that the community has consistently advised members of various government departments, the Minister for Community Development and the station management, that it does not wish to move from the site it has occupied for over 50 years?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am aware that the provision of facilities for Aboriginal people in the Lake Nash area will cost in the order of $1.5m as indicated by the honourable Leader of the Opposition. Certainly, since the expenditure of a sum of that magnitude is no light undertaking, consultations and adequate planning should take place before authorisation of the project goes forward. I am of the understanding that officials of my department and the Department of Community Development were in fact requested, with other parties, to attempt to negotiate a living area on this station for the Aboriginal people at Lake Nash. At that time, I understand, the Aboriginal people were interested in the area known as Bathurst Downs. It has been stated recently that the Aboriginal people have changed their minds and wish to remain at Lake Nash. I understand that one of the purposes of the meeting to which the honourable Leader of the Opposition referred earlier is to try to resolve the position and find out what in fact are the true wishes of the Aboriginal people themselves rather than hear them from self-appointed spokesmen on their behalf. It is my earnest wish that the matter be resolved. It is a matter of complete indifference to the government where the people decide they want to live. We just want to know that they are satisfied with it, that there is water there and that they are going to stay there before we spend $1.5m. I think we must do that to satisfy the taxpayers' interests.

Auctioning Darwin Primary School Land

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

It has come to my notice that the government is giving consideration to the auctioning of blocks of land which form part of the Darwin Primary School. Is he able to inform me if my information is correct?

ANSWER

I am having this matter looked into to establish exactly whether it was proposed to sell land which, as I understood it, was in fact part of the Darwin Primary School. Apparently there are a series of separate leases on the block that it occupies. I think they have been in existence for many years but have never been alienated. I am having a brief put together on the subject so that I can review the situation and any proposal to sell the blocks.

Registrar-General's Office

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

An advertisement recently appeared in the Australian Financial Review relating to the advantages of conducting a business by means of a company incorporated in the Northern Territory. This resulted in a very critical article in the Bulletin which alleged that some advantages accrued because of the unsophistication of the Northern Territory Registrar-General's Office. Does the Chief Minister consider that that statement is justified and, if he does, has he taken any action to enhance the capacity and efficiency of that office?

ANSWER

I do not consider that the statement is justified. I may as well talk now about the National Companies and Securities Scheme because, apparently, that is what the honourable the Leader of the Opposition is referring to. The position is that Northern Territory corporations are still registered, and operate, under the Companies Act as amended from time to time. Recently, laws were enacted on national corporations and securities and a uniform code now exists between the states. Quite frankly, the sophistication of that code is well beyond the capacity of the Northern Territory, in its relatively unsophisticated, developmental stage of commerce, to undertake and absorb. The position is that the provisions of the Companies Act, if properly enforced, are quite satisfactory in respect of transactions likely to occur in the Northern Territory. When one knows that the NCSC is in fact stifling commerce in the south, fouling up almost every takeover bid, causing detriment to shareholders, creating a gold mine for QCs, one shudders at the thought of NCSC provisions coming into operation in the Northern Territory.

Mr Speaker, I believe that we must have the most simple and easily enforceable laws we possibly can. Judges have said that they cannot understand legislation under which the NCSC is established. They have said: 'Do not come before me again with that sort of legislation'. Apparently, the Leader of the Opposition is advocating that we should become a party to this scheme. The Northern Territory Companies Act is sufficient unto the day. Should there be any need to revise it at any time, this will be undertaken. Staffing of the Territory Companies Office is reasonably sufficient and I might say that the service offered by the Companies Office and the courts in the Territory is second to none. In Sydney, you have to do your own searches these days. In Brisbane, you have to wait months for searches because they have gone onto microfiche and they cannot work it out. In the Territory, you have your searches done the same day and documents are on the file in a matter of a few days. Titles are registered promptly. Court delays in the Territory are minimal. In that regard, the citizens of the Northern Territory live in a good place. It could well be that any sensible entrepreneur would see these things and say, 'If you want to do business in a less complicated, speedy, efficacious way, then register your company in the Northern Territory because that is where the best possible service is from any government anywhere in Australia'.

Apprentices for Department of Transport and Works

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Following reviews which have been undertaken in government circles over the past few weeks, can he indicate whether there is to be an increase in the intake of apprentices for 1983 within his department and, if so, by how many?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, at the moment, I am unable to give exact details of our intake. In the debate last week regarding the employment situation for school leavers, I indicated that the Department of Transport and Works had already started to make progress in trying to encourage more apprenticeship, not only within the department but also with consultants. We are also trying to organise more apprenticeships with nominated subcontractors for the department. In the next couple of weeks, the department will have completed its review and will be in a position to make some recommendations to me for further consideration. We are certainly very anxious to try to increase the intake of apprentices in the Department of Transport and Works for next year.

Todd River Bed

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Will he undertake to investigate and, if necessary, rectify in the interests of flood mitigation the filling of the Todd Rover bed by dust, sand and dirt held in place by the introduced couch grass?

ANSWER

I will ask my department to provide me with some information regarding this.

Elsey Homestead Film Set

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

My question concerns a saga that is becoming almost as compelling as the film. Has the government now decided to call new tenders for the relocation and re-establishment of the Elsey Homestead film set and, if so, why?

ANSWER

The Chief Minister has been handling this in his capacity as minister responsible for conservation.

Tanami Highway

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise when the next stage of upgrading the Tanami Highway will commence and details of the work?

ANSWER

Hopefully, work will commence in June 1983 on 20 km of the highway and will cost something like $2m. I believe a further stage to seal the Papunya turn-off is proposed early in the 1983-84 financial year.

Elsey Homestead Film Set

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Mr Speaker, I redirect my question on the Elsey Homestead film set to the honourable Chief Minister.

ANSWER

Over the last several weeks, some controversy has been generated by Mr Jack Taylor, formerly of Bloodwood Caravan Park, who is now a resident of Green Park Caravan Park at Larrimah. Mr Taylor claims that it is the best caravan park in the Northern Territory. He keeps crocodiles there, perhaps to handle unwary travellers. Mr Taylor is apparently very miffed that the homestead film set is not to be given to him to erect at his caravan park and he and I had a rather heated altercation on talk-back radio a few weeks ago. He shed many crocodile tears in the course of that altercation. This altercation, and the controversy that has been generated by Mr Jack Taylor, has trampled on the feelings of a Mrs Sylvia Wolf of Mataranka who was to have provided the land on which the Conservation Commission was to have re-erected the film set in a more permanent fashion so that it would not blow away in the wind. The Conservation Commission was to have spent something like $80 000. It intended to erect a fence around it and Mrs Wolf was going to collect $1 admission fee from all applicants which she was to put in a bank account with which the Conservation Commission would administer and pay for repairs.

I should make it clear that not one cent of that $1 was to go to Mrs Wolf. She was making the land available until a recreational park of some sort is gazetted in that area and the Conservation Commission can place the set there permanently. Unfortunately, Mrs Wolf decided that she had had enough because of Mr Jack Taylor's allegations on radio, TV and everywhere else he could get his name in lights. She wrote me a very short and terse letter the other morning. She is known for her mercurial temperament. I like and admire the lady highly. She has guts and she is prepared to give things a go. Jack Taylor is the same. It is a bit of a blue between 2 pretty strong-willed people. She said: 'Well, you know what you can do with your film set'. Mr Speaker, there we were. I am jolly sick of this film set at this stage. To be honest, I almost wish the film company had burnt it.

In any event, I requested the Department of Community Development - for some reason it carries out the calling of tenders - to hurry up and advertise the thing again. I received a telex yesterday to the effect that Lambert and Sarny, the operators of the Mataranka Homestead, are now interested in tendering to put it up at their own expense, maintain it and keep it open to the public in the precincts of the Mataranka Homestead. That sounds jolly good to me. If they are the only applicants, I will be happy to authorise it.

Removal of Buildings at Dhupuma

Mr LEO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Does the Department of Education intend to complete the removal of the buildings remaining at Dhupuma which, at the least, are an environmental blight?

Mr B. Collins: They are a frightful mess.

ANSWER

In answer to the member's question and also to the interjection of the honourable Leader of the Opposition in which he described them as a frightful mess, I have had a number of complaints, Mr Speaker, variously describing them as a frightful mess in language which you would have me thrown out for using. I understand they are in very poor shape. What can be done about it is rather a difficult question to answer. It is my belief that the property has been vested now in Mr Roy Marika. It was part of an arrangement between the Northern Territory government and Mr Marika. It is not government property. It is not on government land. Under the federal Land Rights Act, it would have belonged to the trust but there is an arrangement, as I understand it, whereby Mr Marika is in fact the proprietor of the whole. So, it is out of the government's hands altogether.

I understand that Mr Marika put the proposition to the government that he wanted it for family purposes. I hope I am right. If not, I would be the first to apologise to Mr Marika for the error. That is my understanding of it.

In any event, it is no longer the property of the government.

I do not know what can be done. The matter was first brought to my attention about a week ago and I will certainly look into it, not so much in my capacity as Minister for Education but because I dare say the Department of Community Development would have to have some input. I will instruct officers to look into the matter and report back as soon as possible.

Services to Humpty Doo

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

As the sum of $2 231 240 is to be expended at the Humpty Doo Village site for the provision of services of water, sewerage and electricity, when will the government consider extending these services to people who are already living in the area nearby?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to place her question on notice.

Marlow's Lagoon at Palmerston

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

It has been suggested that Marlow's Lagoon, which is the lagoon situated at the town of Palmerston, should be filled in. Is he aware of such a suggestion and, if so, can he give me some assurance that this will not take place?

ANSWER

I would hope that the honourable member does not think that I authorised the filling in of the lagoon. This rumour came to my attention a while back and I understand that it stemmed from the discovery of a large stockpile of earth in the vicinity of the lagoon. The Chairman of the Palmerston Development Authority assures me that the earth has been there for some time and has not been placed there with a view to filling in the lagoon. Indeed, the Palmerston Development Authority would not even contemplate such a move. The lagoon will form part of an area which will include a golf course. It will be one of the nicest recreational areas in Palmerston. I can assure the honourable member that there is no intention whatsoever on the part of government or its authorities to in any way interfere with the natural state of Marlow's Lagoon.

East Arm Leprosarium

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What is the intended future use of the now disused East Arm leprosarium, both site and buildings?

ANSWER

The Department of Transport and Works has a caretaker role in relation to the East Arm leprosarium. In fact, any decision on it would have to be made by the Minister for Lands and Housing.

East Arm Leprosarium

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I redirect my question to the Minister for Lands and Housing.

ANSWER

It seems that I have responsibility. I cannot think who else I can pass it on to. There has been no final decision on the future use of the facilities. There are, however, a number of possibilities which I will not canvass because I cannot recall them all. I know some interest has been expressed by various people. It is tied in with the future of the East Arm area. Recently, a land offer was made to a company which proposes, initially, to put in a clinker-grinding plant and, eventually, a full cement factory. That should be a catalyst for further interest in the East Arm area to be expressed by persons proposing industry that needs to be near port facilities which, I think, in the very long term, will be at East Darwin. No specific decision has been made on the future of those buildings and the area. However, they are unlikely to remain unoccupied for very long.

Smith Street in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise what approaches have been made to him for assistance to reconstruct and widen Smith Street in Alice Springs and what action, if any, he will take?

ANSWER

I received representations from the honourable member for Stuart and the Mayor of Alice Springs, Mr Smith. I understand that the Department of Transport and Works has had discussions with the council and there is a proposal to widen Smith Street at a cost of some $400 000. The Department of Community Development has responsibility for providing those funds. When a decision has been made to widen Smith Street, no doubt I will receive instructions from the department to proceed.

East Point Reserve

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has agreement been reached with the Darwin City Council as to the future management of the East Point Reserve area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer is no. I am still awaiting a formal response from the city council to an offer made to it to take over the East Point Reserve plus adjacent areas, including most of the former golf course. We propose to vest control in the council provided we can reach agreement on matters of principle, such as funding. I understand from the Lord Mayor that he is having some work done by council officers on costs etc and will be putting a proposition back to government in the near future.

Motor Vehicle Registration

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What stage has been reached in the adoption of national standards for the registration of motor vehicles and motor cycles?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, my recollection is that a constant review is being carried out by the Motor Vehicle Registry. I will write to the honourable member advising him of the latest position.

Rural Old Timers' Association

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for HEALTH

What is the current position regarding a block of land in the rural area for the Rural Old Timers' Association?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, honourable members would be aware from the statement I delivered in the Assembly some months ago that the government is seeking to identify an area of land in the rural area for the establishment of a senior citizens facility. As a result of discussions with the people concerned in the rural area, recently my department organised a bus tour of all the possible sites available for consideration. The conclusion of the group which made the tour was that the site picked out by officers from the Departments of Lands and Health was the best available. It is on the south side of Fred's Pass Reserve. I am happy to say that the Minister for Lands has agreed that about 7 ha of that 200 ha area will be set aside and held for the purpose of developing a senior citizens facility in the rural area. I hope that very early in the New Year plans will be made for the ultimate development of this area. I would be very keen to see funding made available in next year's budget at least for the development of the community centre hall. From there, the project will proceed at a fairly rapid rate.

Alice Springs Golf Course

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer him to this morning's news report of the successful completion of negotiations for a $90m development on the Alice Springs golf course. Has his department been involved in those negotiations and, if so, to what extent?

ANSWER

Obviously, the government has a role in this proposed development by the Alice Springs Golf Club, the holders of a special purposes lease. Since adjacent roads and Crown land are the responsibility of the government, the department in Alice Springs was involved during the last year or so of negotiations.

Answer to Question

Mr PERRON (by leave): The honourable member for Sanderson asked me if the government would grant a lease of land to the YWCA in the northern suburbs.

I advise that a lease in perpetuity to the YMCA was approved on 17 September 1982. Issue of the title is dependent upon rezoning which is currently being processed. The title is expected to be issued in about February or March 1983. The design documentation and tendering for the youth facility is being handled by the Northern Territory Housing Commission as agent for the YWCA.

The member for Sanderson also asked a question in relation to the provision of open space in private development subdivisions in the northern suburbs. I advise that the documentation included a requirement that open space be provided at the developer's expense and handed back to government. I am advised that, in relation to open space areas in both Leanyer and Karama, the developer has to service these blocks only to the extent of providing water to them. They will then vest in the government as vacant Crown land at nil cost to the government. The government has in fact commenced landscaping of the areas concerned in Leanyer and Karama.

Environmental Impact of Proposed Channel Island Power-station

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

Has he received advice on any likely rise in the temperature of the water adjacent to Channel Island when the coal-fired power-station is operational and, if not, will he undertake to ask for such information?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have any specific advice. All power-stations which require substantial quantities of water for cooling and distillation purposes usually discharge warm water back into the sea. This matter will be addressed no doubt in the environmental impact statement for Channel Island powerhouse which is being prepared at present and will go on public display later. I could also indicate that such temperature changes in the harbour would not necessarily be to the detriment of the fish. It seems that the environment can adjust to these things. I understand that the warm water outlet at Stokes Hill Powerhouse, for example, is a very popular fishing spot. The variation in temperature seems to attract small fish, and other marine life, which in turn attract bigger fish. Consequently, it is a fairly popular spot to fish. Whilst not saying that there will be no change to the marine environment in the vicinity of such outlets, it will not necessarily be for the worse.

Council Rates in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware that in Alice Springs, the receipt of council rate bills followed closely by sewerage and water rate bills is causing financial hardship to some residents? Would he undertake to review, in consultation with the Alice Springs Town Council, the mailing dates of these accounts?

ANSWER

I thank the honourable member for the question. This matter has been brought to my attention by himself and other parties over the last few weeks. I suppose there is very little the council can do about the timing of its issue of rate notices. I suppose it could take on board the possibility of staggering the period of payment. That council, like any council, is tied to the financial year structure which is part and parcel of the financial management of this country. It is around October/November by the time rate notices are issued. The same would apply to residents of Tennant Creek, Katherine and Darwin.

The matter goes beyond just the issue of council rates. It has been brought to my attention that the Department of Transport and Works, in the normal course of issuing accounts, has a cut-off date for payment of water bills of, I think, 20 December. Logically, there would be quarterly payments for telephone and electricity bills etc. I have no doubt at all, Sir, that this does not necessarily mean a happy Christmas at all. Council rates are $400 to $700 for the average residence. Electricity bills are in the order of $130. Add bills for a telephone service etc and it can become quite a problem.

I drafted a letter for the Chief Minister this morning for consideration by Cabinet as to what the government can do to stagger bills of this nature to the community. The government cannot forgo these charges. They do not even cover the cost of providing the services. But I think we could examine the timing of some government accounts. I think that councils could look at the possibility of having 2 payments a year to cover rates instead of one, particularly if rates are charged in the period October through to Christmas. It does not help people who are looking forward to having sufficient funds for Christmas. It does not help to have to make a $700 or $800 or even $1000 payment in the period November to December. To the average family, that is a lot of money.

Mr Speaker, I am aware of the problem. Certainly, the government will examine what methods can be used to lessen the impact of the timing of these imposts. The other matter, of course, is one that can be referred to local councils, and I undertake to do so.

Darwin Women's Centre

Mrs O'NEIL to CHIEF MINISTER

Will he undertake to consult with the Darwin Women's Centre organisation about the future use of the building it occupies in McLachlan Street, Darwin, before a decision is made as to the use of that building?

ANSWER

I do not have to give such an undertaking because consultations have already taken place. I understand meetings have occurred between my women's adviser and members of the collective that occupies the house in McLachlan Street. The honourable member for Nightcliff said a few words about all this in the adjournment debate the other day and I was going to address it in the adjournment debate myself.

The honourable member for Nightcliff said that a collective was ideally the organisation to run a centre such as this and that the Salvation Army was peculiarly unsuited to running it. On the contrary, my investigations would tend to disclose that only one such centre is run by a collective elsewhere and collectives have been progressively replaced. In any event, I will find those further details and say a few words on this subject in the adjournment debate today.

Consultations have taken place and included the Department of Community Development. I understand the sole reason for taking this action is that the place simply has not been run for the purpose for which it was intended.

Really it has just been used as a residence.

Use of Sanderson High School Site

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Has consideration been given to using the site set aside for Sanderson High School for a technical high school?

ANSWER

Consideration has not been given to that use. However, the subject of a technical high school or a vocational high school similar in philosophy to the Sadadeen High School project has certainly been considered. At this stage, as I indicated in reply to an earlier question, the government is keeping a very close watch on student population trends in the Darwin area. For that reason, I can indicate to honourable members that it is the intention of the government to keep that land for the purpose of a high school should it be so required.

There is something that I did not mention. If we were to reach the population stability that exists in the southern cities, then another high school would be necessary. There are no indicators yet but, as all honourable members and the public would be aware, because of self-government and because of many of the efforts of this government, our population is a lot more stable than it has been in the past. That stability curve is improving all the time. If we attain the same sort of stability - although I hope that we do not because that would mean that we would be stagnating - as places like Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide, then it would be quite likely that we would need that site at a later time. So, it will be kept for that purpose at least for the time being.

Alice Springs Lease

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS and HOUSING

I refer him to my previous question. Has he decided to extend the original Alice Springs Golf Club lease and, if so, when did he make that decision?

ANSWER

This matter is the subject of a briefing from my department, which I have not yet received. I am only aware of the matter in broad principle and the honourable member may care to place the question on notice.

1. How many times were infants and children under the age of 12 years, who are resident at the Karguru bush camp in Tennant Creek, hospitalised during (a) the previous 12 months, and (b) the previous wet season?
2. How many infants and children under the age of 12 years, who are resident at the Karguru bush camp in Tennant Creek, were hospitalised during (a) the previous 12 months, and (b) the previous wet season?
3. In general, what was the most prevalent cause of hospitalisation?

ANSWER

The permanent population of Karguru bush camp is 9 adults and 5 children. Sixteen others visit the camp.

1. (a) There were 9 admissions to hospital during the previous 12 months (1 child was admitted 4 times). Two of those admitted were not permanent residents.

   (b) There were 5 admissions to hospital during the previous wet season. Three of those admitted were not permanent residents.

2. (a) There were 5 children hospitalised during the previous 12 months, 2 of whom were not permanent residents.

   (b) There were 5 children hospitalised during the previous wet season, 3 of whom were not permanent residents.

3. Diarrhoea.

Power Station Costs

797 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What is the cost of operating power stations at (a) Bamyili, (b) Beswick Station, (c) Duck Creek (Djembere), (d) Maranboy Police Station, and Roper Settlement (Ngukurr)?

ANSWER

The cost of operating the following power stations during 1981-82 was as follows: Bamyili $291 313; Beswick $135 000; Duck Creek $30 000; Ngukurr $252 000; and Maranboy police station $13 000.

A small proportion of the above costs would be applicable to the provision of other essential services, e.g., water and sewerage, on the 4 Aboriginal communities.

The operating costs for the Maranboy police station power plant is for fuel only with daily maintenance handled by the policeman on duty.

Electricity Reticulation

798 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

At the November 1982 sittings the minister then in charge of NTEC spoke of supplying towns such as Daly Waters with electricity from a Darwin-based coal-fired power station. What preparations are being made to reticulate electricity when the station comes on line?

ANSWER

NTEC maintains ongoing review of the economics of supply of electricity from Channel Island power station to towns remote from Darwin. Formal proposals are anticipated in the near future.

Economic studies already completed examine cost benefits resulting from the connection of both Pine Creek and Mataranka to Katherine by 1984, i.e. prior to coal-fired generation in Darwin.

Further studies examine cost benefits of connecting Darwin to Katherine by 1988, to coincide with the commissioning of Channel Island power station.

It would seem that connection of other minor centres, such as Daly Waters, would not be shown to be economically justified at this stage.

Studies will be continued.

St Vidgeon Station - Caretaker

801 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

Has the government employed a caretaker to protect its recently purchased St Vidgeon Station or is it satisfied that its cattle, improvements and tourist attractions are safe?

ANSWER

No action has been taken to appoint a caretaker for St Vidgeon Station.

As very few cattle remain on the property, and all improvements are in an extremely poor state of repair, the appointment of a caretaker is not contemplated.

The government is reviewing long term land use in the area.

Clearing of Blocks - Katherine

802 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware that there is no law or by-law whereby owners of vacant blocks of land in Katherine can be forced to keep their blocks clear of rubbish, vermin and long grass?

ANSWER

On 4 March 1983 the notification of Katherine Town Council By-laws was gazetted, and the by-laws came into effect. Members of this Assembly, as always, have an opportunity to consider these by-laws and move a motion to disallow all or part, during the 2 sitting days following notification.

By-law 6.13(1) states: 'Where there is upon any land or premises any material or accumulation of materials which is likely to cause a public nuisance, to give rise to a condition dangerous to public health, or to attract vermin to that land or premises or to form a harbourage form vermin the Council may cause a notice in writing to be given to the occupier of the land or premises requiring him -

(a) to place such material in a vermin-proof receptacle or receptacles of a kind specified in the notice within the time specified therein; or

(b) to remove, dispose of, destroy or otherwise deal with such material within the time specified in the notice.".

Other by-laws give the Council the authority to rectify the situation if the occupier does not comply, and recover the expenses.

Fitzroy Pastoral Lease - Land Claim

803 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. Is he aware that the viability of the Fitzroy pastoral lease will be threatened by an Aboriginal land claim on the permanent water called the 12-mile waterhole?

2. Has the government, as landlord, agreed to this action?

ANSWER

The Northern Territory government has no record of an Aboriginal land claim over the 12-mile waterhole on Fitzroy Station.

Pedestrian Crossings - Katherine

804 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

1. Is he aware that recently 4 pedestrian crossings were eliminated in Katherine because they were not 'up to standard'?

2. Was the Road Safety Council and or any organisation consulted or was the decision to alter what had been a satisfactory circumstance an arbitrary one disregarding local knowledge?

ANSWER

1. Yes. During a recent visit to Katherine I inspected the areas where these crossings had been removed and discussed the issue with the Mayor of Katherine.

2. The crossings in Katherine had usage levels far below nationally accepted standards and constituted a potential hazard to pedestrians.

   National experience has demonstrated that pedestrian crossings which do not attract sufficient usage represent a greater hazard than crossing the road where no road markings are provided at all.

   The Road Safety Council is in agreement with this proposal and prior to removal of the crossings in Katherine advertisements were placed in the local newspaper which attracted no response.

Aboriginal Interpreter Service

805 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Can he advise whether the federal government has given any commitment in relation to the necessary funds sought to establish an interpreter service as recommended by the working party?

2. If the federal government has not been prepared to provide such funding for an Aboriginal interpreter service, will the Northern Territory government make a firm and unequivocal commitment to establish, as soon as possible, an interpreter service, whether or not the Commonwealth government is prepared to partly fund the project?

ANSWER

1. To date the Commonwealth government has not committed funding to establish a separate Aboriginal interpreter service as recommended in the 'Report on the Need for Aboriginal Interpreting in the Northern Territory'. Representations have been made to both the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs and the Department of Aboriginal Affairs seeking comment on the report as this is a Commonwealth responsibility elsewhere.

   The former Minister for Aboriginal Affairs indicated that the matter was being considered jointly with his ministerial colleague responsible for ethnic affairs. In the interim the language services section of the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs is now providing interpreting services in Aboriginal languages. Similarly, the NT Interpreting-Translating Service maintains a list of Aboriginal interpreters who are called upon by government departments.

   It is anticipated that discussions will be undertaken with the Commonwealth in March-April 1983 to consider the NT government submission to provide improved interpreting-translating services particularly for Aboriginal languages.

2. The NT government cannot pre-empt these discussions by unilaterally implementing the working party report recommendations. The government is, however, firm in its commitment to provide multilingual services and information including Aboriginal languages.

Mineral Leases - CRA

812 Mr MacFARLANE to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it a fact that CRA has negotiated mineral leases with Aboriginals but cannot get access?

ANSWER

I assume that the honourable member's question relates only to CRA interests in his electorate. The company is of course negotiating on mining matters elsewhere as well.

In the Katherine area CRA is a party to a joint venture agreement over the Mt Todd mineral leases which are within the area claimed as the Katherine Aboriginal Land Claim. At the moment, there is nothing to prevent access to these leases. The company intends to make submissions to the Aboriginal Land Commissioner during the hearing of this land claim, in order to protect access to the leases (which were issued before the claim was lodged).

Fitzroy Station - Occupation

815 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. What are the details of the occupation of the Fitzroy Station pastoral lease by Aboriginals?

2. If the lease is occupied by squatting, is it with the consent of the owners of the lease?

ANSWER

1. A group of up to about 30 Aboriginals has been occupying an area of land adjoining the 12-mile waterhole on Fitzroy Station for about 2 years.

2. These people are squatting on the area, apparently without the consent of the owners.

Air Service - Darwin/Alice Springs

821 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Will the 'milk run' service between Darwin and Alice Springs be made a regional airline by forbidding competition against it by TAA and Ansett as competition against Qantas by TAA and Ansett is forbidden on intra-state services?

ANSWER

The 'milk-run' (Darwin-Katherine-Tennant Creek-Alice Springs-return) is very definitely a part of the regional air service provided by Airlines of Northern Australia.

The service is protected thorugh the exclusivity provisions of ANA's RPT licence, which forbids commercial activity along the route without the express permission of the licensee.

Direct Darwin-Alice Springs-Darwin services provided by TAA and Ansett will continue as part of the national trunk network.

Use of Firearms by Security Guards

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the serious deficiencies in training security guards in the use of firearms disclosed in the case of R v Giuseppe Truglio, is the government revising its present policy in relation to tightening the regulations on the use of firearms by security guards?

ANSWER

During the last session, I had an exchange of questions and answers with the honourable Leader of the Opposition on this subject. The Registrar of Firearms, who is also the Commissioner of Police, is an expert in the use of firearms. It has been his attitude that the existing requirements for anyone, let alone security guards, to obtain a firearms licence have been more than sufficient to ensure that no one who would not use a firearm responsibly would ever receive a licence. A noticeable amount of the correspondence that passes over my desk is from persons who have been unsuccessful in obtaining a firearms licence. On the face of it, some of these applicants seem to have good and sufficient reason to obtain a licence. Nonetheless, I must say that, in all cases, I have upheld the registrar's decision.

Mr Speaker, the registrar is still of the opinion that his standards are sufficient. However, having received what amounts to a representation from the Leader of the Opposition, I will take the matter up with him again. I think I advised the Leader of the Opposition last year of the various requirements laid down by the registrar. Nonetheless, I will look at the matter again and see if the registrar has had any change of viewpoint.

Barramundi Fishery

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Comments have been made that the poor wet season could have an effect on the Northern Territory barramundi fishery. What is the current state of the industry, and is the barramundi fishery threatened as a result of the poor wet season?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the impact of the lateness of the Wet on the barramundi fishery was a matter of concern to the government. Cabinet was briefed by one of the department's fisheries experts on the impact it was likely to have on the fishery. Barramundi fishermen seem to be taking a reasonable catch at this stage of the season. It has been suggested that this level of catch might be short-lived. It might peak and then drop off very quickly, and the rest of the season may not be as good. It has also been put to us by the fisheries expert that, if there is any adverse impact on the fishery as a result of the late Wet and a possibility of fishermen catching fish with roe at this early stage of the season, the impact on the fishery would be seen in 3 to 4 years' time rather than later this year or in the next season.

Mr Speaker, this matter is of great concern to the government because the barramundi fishery is a unique asset of the Northern Territory. We will watch it very closely and follow the advice of the fisheries experts.

Hospital Bed Charges

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of the federal government's commitment to a system of free public hospital in-patient treatment for all Australians, can he give an undertaking that he will not increase hospital bed charges prior to the introduction of that scheme?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask that the question be placed on notice.

Stuart Highway at Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise when work will actually start on the realignment and reconstruction of the Stuart Highway through the town of Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was able to obtain agreement from the previous Minister for Transport that the Commonwealth would fund 75% of this project - a total amount of approximately $3m. Tenders are expected to be called on 21 March and it is anticipated that a contract will be let in late May. Work on the project should be completed by June 1984.

Wildman River Station

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

For what public purpose was the Wildman River Station acquired or bought by the government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not want to make an exhaustive statement on the reasons for which Wildman River Station was purchased. The honourable member for Nightcliff would know the location and virtues of that property which, unfortunately, has not been run very successfully since it was first released to the public. My recollection is that Wildman River was first leased to Mr E.J. Connellan of Alice Springs, who either turned in the lease or forfeited it. It appears that no greater success has been achieved by subsequent owners because the government tendered to purchase Wildman River Station at either a receiver's or liquidator's sale. From memory, that occurred late last year. A very detailed examination of the property is being undertaken now by a working party. Wildman River has been used as a safari camp by Wimray Safaris over the last several years and therefore it has tourist potential. As Minister for Lands, I have in hand an application from Wimray Safaris for a lease for safari purposes over a portion of the station. I have directed the Secretary of the Department of Lands to issue a lease upon reasonable terms to Wimray Safaris so that it can establish a base safari camp at a location on Wildman River. It has also applied for what amounts to a game reserve on another part of Wildman River and that application is being held in abeyance pending the complete examination of the assets of the property.

I am informed that, on the agricultural and horticultural side, there is land there suitable for growing horticultural products quite extensively. I might indicate, Mr Speaker, that very serious approaches have been made by persons who wish to engage in agriculture and horticulture on a large scale. It may be possible to accommodate these people from the land that will become available on Wildman River.

Basically, I think that you could say that there are a number of reasons for the purchase of the area; for example, tourism and conservation. There are areas on Wildman River which we want to dedicate for conservation purposes, and also for agricultural and horticultural purposes. Of course, any remnant of the property would still be available for buffalo domestication projects should it be decided to extend those there. The owners of Point Stuart Station have shown interest in purchasing part of Wildman River.

There are a number of reasons for the government purchasing a property such as Wildman River Station. This sort of move will not be uncommon in the future as the government attempts to rationalise land holdings in the Territory and to obtain maximum utilisation of land in the community interest.

Sunday Air Service for Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he say when a replacement air service into and out of Nhulunbuy on Sundays will commence?

ANSWER

Unfortunately, Nhulunbuy is not serviced by any other means of transport. The road is closed during the wet season. It is a hopeless situation. The people there rightly feel very isolated when there is a disruption to the air services provided. In recent weeks there have been changes to the air services to the disadvantage of the community there. The Chief Minister and I went to Nhulunbuy to talk to various people, particularly the Confederation of Industry. Airline representatives went there at my request and talked to a number of townspeople affected by changes in the air services. I understand that Airlines of Northern Australia has committed itself to review schedules so that a Tuesday service can be returned to Nhulunbuy. I understand from Mr Jack Cue, the TAA South Australian manager, that he has undertaken to review Sunday services. The government is not in a position to impose a strict schedule on services that emanate from other states. We can only try to cooperate with the airlines so that they will provide the best service that they can to the people of Nhulunbuy.

Schwartz Crescent Crossing

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has he had any response to his letter to Alice Springs Town Council urging it to use money provided in the 1982-83 budget to build the Schwartz Crescent crossing?

ANSWER

I have not seen any such letter but that does not mean that there is not one in my office. I will advise the honourable member later.

Community Health Programs

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

The Australian Labor Party platform in the recent federal election committed an injection of $20m into community health programs. Can he undertake not to reduce Northern Territory community health centres staff or services any further until details of these programs are negotiated?

ANSWER

It will take time for us to assess the impact of the Labor health policy on the Northern Territory. Until such time as a proper assessment is made, I am unable to answer the honourable member.

Brandt Road

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

After repeated requests to Department of Transport and Works officers for repairs to be done at Brandt Road in Berrimah, will he give consideration to such repairs?

ANSWER

The road in question is outside the municipal boundary and is regularly maintained by the Department of Transport and Works. During the current financial year, some major repairs have been made to one section by raising the road level and installing a relief culvert. The estimated cost of this work is $10 000. Like much of Knuckey's Lagoon area, there are severe drainage problems on Brandt Road. The road was not constructed to a high standard and a need has been identified for upgrading. That project is included on a list of roads in the rural area for upgrading to seal standard in 1984-85. Apparently, some local residents have suggested that the proposed Knuckey arterial road should follow Brandt Road rather than the Secrett Road line. This will be discussed by local residents at a public meeting at Berrimah on 9 April and one of my officers will attend that meeting.

Meadowfresh Products

Mr VALE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Could he indicate if a milk-type product known as Meadowfresh is currently being sold in the Northern Territory and if approval has been given for its sale? Can he indicate why the Queensland government banned that particular product in that state?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member has given me notice of this question. A company known as Meadowfresh Farms of Australia is marketing a dairy-based food drink in some areas of Australia of which, it is claimed, 75% is derived from cow's milk plus vegetable fats, sweeteners, butters, stabilisers, emulsifiers, vitamins and flavouring. Queensland has just prohibited the sale of the product in that state on the ground that it does not comply with the provisions of Queensland's Field Milk Act. Previously, Western Australia and Victoria banned sales. Whilst sales have not been prohibited formally in South Australia and New South Wales, both states have not approved sales of the product as current labelling does not conform to the requirements of the Pure Foods Act and health authorities are querying the vitamin and mineral supplement of the product. I am advised that, provided these matters are resolved, there will be no trade restrictions on sales of the product in South Australia and New South Wales.

Mr Speaker, unlike Queensland, the Northern Territory has no field milk legislation and there is no impediment to the sale of the product in the Northern Territory from the agricultural point of view. However, I understand that the Northern Territory Food Standards Act, administered by the Department of Health, contains a provision that a food cannot be sold in the Territory unless it is approved for sale in the states of Australia. The Minister for Health has asked his department to ascertain the details of the market requirements for the product in the states and the ACT and it is not appropriate for me to comment further at this stage. I am not able to say why Queensland refused the right of sale of that product recently other than that I believe Queensland has a very strong dairy lobby which may have had some influence in the matter.

Statement by Women's Adviser

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Are the views expressed by his Women's Adviser, Mrs Lynn Ryan, at a public meeting to mark International Women's Day on 8 March last the views of his government and, if not, what steps has he taken to assure the public that the views expressed by Mrs Ryan on that occasion are not the views of his government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, my recollection is that my Women's Adviser spoke to a meeting a week ago on the occasion of International Women's Day. She brought to the attention of a wide audience in the Territory the provisions of the international convention relating to discrimination against women. It is surprising to me that the honourable member for Sanderson would even raise the subject by way of a question because it has been debated in this Assembly before today. The honourable member for Sanderson was in the Assembly at the time and needs only to refresh her memory by reference to Hansard to see that the Northern Territory, together with all other Australian governments including the federal government, was at that time examining the convention. I think it had been signed at that stage by the federal government and was subject to a federal clause. This, of course, entailed ratification. The convention was being examined clause by clause and, in due course, that process was finalised. The convention is supported by all Australian governments. I think that the Women's Adviser, Mrs Lynn Ryan, performed a useful service in bringing this convention, which is virtually unknown outside a select circle, to the notice of the community generally. Based on the response to my office, the community certainly is concerned with some provisions of the convention. The fact is that this document is not just a Northern Territory document nor an Australian document, but a world document. In some places that document is the only thing that women have as legal support in circumstances that are much more adverse to women than they are in Australia.

I feel that the airing given the subject by my Women's Adviser has been well worth while in that it has brought the matter to attention. I notice that none of the honourable members opposite really did anything about bringing to public attention the provision of the document before that was done by my appointee.

Members interjecting.

Mr EVERINGHAM: The honourable squawky members opposite have been very silent on the subject out in the electorate. The various provisions of this convention will now become much more familiar to women in the Territory because many of them who had never heard of it, despite the fact that we have 4 women members in this Assembly, will now make further inquiries.

Mr Speaker, although the support of my government for the convention is well known, the speech made by the Women's Adviser has been extremely useful and has indicated to Territory women the existence of this convention, which certainly has now been agreed to by all of us in this Assembly.

Statement by Women's Adviser

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware that, at a public rally held on 8 March to mark the occasion of the International Women's Day, his Women's Adviser, Mrs Lynn Ryan, called for the rejection of the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women? In view of the fact that he now thinks Mrs Lynn Ryan performed a commendable service to the women of the Northern Territory, does the statement that she made on that occasion signal retraction of the support of government members expressed in this Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I wonder where the honourable member for Sanderson was on the day of the rally. As I understand it, she was not present to point out the positive sides, as she sees them, of this particular document. It is a shame that my appointee was the only representative of government there. I was in Alice Springs at the time and, as far as I know, there were no honourable members of this Assembly present at the rally, which is a matter of considerable shame. As far as the government is concerned, its policy is settled. We do not run an organisation in which no other views are tolerated. I would have thought that criticism would have been forthcoming if my Women's Adviser did exactly as I told her to do on all occasions. She is entitled to her own views and, whilst those views do not necessarily represent the government's view, I think that what she has done has been very useful.

Corporal Punishment in Schools

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he assure me that common sense will prevail when regulations currently being considered pertaining to the use of corporal punishment in schools are decided upon?

ANSWER

Whether the view expressed is common sense or not will depend on one's own outlook. The policy statement on education which I will be tabling during the course of the sittings has a section on discipline and in that section the subject of corporal punishment is mentioned. Although it has yet to be tabled, I will quote from the document a short passage on the subject of corporal punishment. There has been a lot of interest in this subject. I am not sure if honourable members receive the sort of mail I receive on the subject of corporal punishment but many people in this country are concerned about it. I quote from the document:

If, in the extreme cases, corporal punishment is considered necessary, it should be carried out. It will, however, be kept to a minimum, not administered in the presence of other students and administered only by the head teacher or a person authorised by the head teacher.

Mr Speaker, we believe that that is a sensible and reasonable approach to the subject. Obviously, it will not be one that will meet universal acclaim. However, we believe that, taking views generally in the community, it will be supported.

Medical Over-servicing and Fraud

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Medical over-servicing and fraud have been alleged to be a major cost to the Australian taxpayer. In view of the proposed return to a free hospital system, can he indicate what measures have been adopted in the Northern Territory to control this problem since it was given wide publicity some months ago?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, to my knowledge, no medical fraud has been carried out in the Northern Territory but I could be wrong. The system has been implemented by the department so that the hospital charges are very varied. In their dealings with the medical societies or health funds, to my knowledge the doctors in the Northern Territory have acted very correctly. Of course, we are always looking for any loopholes that may eventuate. The honourable member's question is quite unfounded.

Corporal Punishment in Schools

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

My question is supplementary to one asked by the honourable member for Tiwi. I too have a vital interest in this area. What will be the legal position under the new policy and the regulations to be promulgated if parents or guardians of a child advise the principal of a school, in writing, that they do not wish their child to be subjected to corporal punishment?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member asks for a legal interpretation which I certainly could not provide to her off the cuff. I will take the question on board with a view to giving some sort of response during the course of the sittings.

Government Printing Contracts

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Does the government have an expectation that, when the Government Printing Office lets printing contracts to private printing firms, the work will be done within Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware that printing had been undertaken outside of Australia on behalf of the Government Printing Office although, on occasion, there could be a need for some printing to be undertaken in support of exhibitions and trade missions conducted by the government overseas. If the honourable member has any instances that need examination, I will be pleased to accept his representations on the matter.

Old Darwin Hospital Site

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS

Expressions of interest have been called for the future use of the old Darwin hospital site. Is he able to inform me what responses have been received to date?

ANSWER

The government has been receiving expressions of interest regarding the whole of, and various parts of, the old Darwin Hospital site and proposals for its usage. I considered that the frequency of these applications warranted the government taking action to determine what purpose the site could be put to and what degree of interest there was in using it for those purposes. Last year I requested the Secretary of the Department of Lands to examine the best purposes to which the site might be put. Mr Speaker, I would remind you and honourable members that the site consists of several hectares. It is a unique site. It is what a real estate agent might describe as the 'never to be repeated offer'. It is adjacent to Darwin Harbour and is a very large area of land contiguous to the central business district. It even has a small beach adjacent to it.

It seems to me that, in putting this site to use, the government must ensure that it selects the best possible proposal. After taking advice, it became clear that, to break the site up and farm it out in small parcels willy-nilly or piecemeal, would not be the best way to deal with it. In my opinion, it would be a bad way of dealing with that site. By arrangement with the secretary of the department, the proposed usage was determined and advertisements were prepared and have appeared throughout Australia. They appeared in the Territory and even worldwide in various publications. I recall seeing a copy of the advertisement in the Economist, the English weekly news journal, only a couple of weeks ago. No doubt, honourable members will have seen the advertisement in Australian publications recently.

Mr Speaker, I have had no comment at all from anyone on the proposed uses for this site as outlined in the advertisements. I have not kept track of any applications or proposals that may have come into the Department of Lands at this stage. I believe the closing date for applications is still many weeks away. By intention, we set quite a long period for response because one wants to give people at a distance from the Territory the chance to put in very detailed proposals. They may well need to travel to the Territory and engage local consultants in order to put a detailed proposal to government.

When the applications close, I expect a report from the Department of Lands telling me how many responses have been received with a brief description of each application. Even then, the matter will be far from over. There will need to be a detailed evaluation of the proposals by ourselves and by the government's own specialists. It may be necessary to engage some outside specialists to help on that. When this evaluation is completed, Cabinet will need to examine the whole thing and satisfy itself that the best proposal is to be accepted and then, obviously, an approach will have to be made to that applicant to seal an agreement in watertight terms. I would say the whole process will take several months yet. Personally, I would not expect it to be completed by the end of June.

While I am on my feet, Mr Speaker, I might just speak about the site adjacent to the Casuarina Square which has been subject to a similar process. Although I have not seen any of the applications, I understand that we have 3 proposals: 2 by southern concerns and another involving at least some local people perhaps with some southern backing. That is all I know about them because the process of evaluation is being carried out by officers in the Department of Lands. When they have formed an evaluation, no doubt they will come to me with their recommendations. At that time, I will have a look at the whole thing myself and then put it before Cabinet. We will proceed to deal with the proponent who is offering the best deal for the Territory and for the people who live in that area.

Maintenance for Aerial Medical Aircraft

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

What new maintenance procedures have been adopted for the Aerial Medical Service Nomad aircraft, which are to be returned to Nhulunbuy, to correct the appalling maintenance record described 8 months ago by the previous Minister for Health?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, we have 6 Nomads and one of them operated out of Nhulunbuy last year. As outlined by the former Minister for Health, it was a terrible aircraft. One wheel had fallen off after take-off. Hub-caps fell off. The door fell off. The engine caught fire. Those incidents did not give the nursing federation members in that area any confidence. Consequently, a request was put to the former minister to make alternative arrangements for air evacuation services out of Nhulunbuy.

After examining the situation, and after discussions with nursing federation members in that area, they agreed to the Nomads returning to Nhulunbuy provided certain requests were met. The first was that we had to give them a guarantee that the aircraft would be maintained at a level that they would accept. We accept as adequate the level of maintenance that is being carried out on Nomads in the Broken Hill Royal Flying Doctor Service. The second request was that the Nomads be air-conditioned. Air-conditioning kits are available from the manufacturer free of charge to the government. We will have them installed. The third request was for sound-proofing for passenger and patient comfort. The fourth request was for a communication mode between the rear of the cabin and the pilot. Those measures will be undertaken. The Nomads will be upgraded. Two will be based in Darwin and 2 will be based in Gove. As well we will employ an extra maintenance operator in Gove to ensure that the aircraft in that area receive proper maintenance. When those aircraft are used to evacuate people to Darwin, they will be checked in Darwin. Therefore, we feel that we have the maintenance side covered.

Mr Speaker, if we were to replace those 4 aircraft with another 2, which might not be sufficient, it would require an outlay of some $5m. By spending $110 000, we feel that the service can be provided to the people of Nhulunbuy and the east and the west regions of the Arnhem area. We are even investigating the possibility of using those aircraft as far down as Borroloola. Charter operators will be used in the event that the 4 Nomad aircraft are all in use at any one time. We have a procedure which will enable doctors in those regions to organise the charter of aircraft from one of our local operators at very short notice. I am happy to say, Mr Speaker, that the Royal Australian Nursing Federation is happy with those arrangements. I would like to get that service into operation as soon as possible. It will take several weeks to update and improve the condition of the aircraft because of the type of work that will be carried out on them. That work will be evaluated in about 12 months time. The consensus is that, provided the aircraft that was stationed originally in Gove is no longer in the area, they are quite happy to accept the Nomads. Consequently, I have instructed the department to dispose of that particular aircraft and also another one because we feel that 4 should do the job.

Valuer-General in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise if there is a proposal to open an office of the Valuer-General in Alice Springs and, if so, when this might occur?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Valuer-General of the Northern Territory is a Commonwealth official. Nonetheless, he is appointed by the Northern Territory government under the provisions of the Valuation of Land Act. He is based in Adelaide but he has a substantial number of valuers in Darwin - 14 from memory. This agency operation, where the Territory uses Commonwealth valuers as its agents, is quite satisfactory. It has worked well in the past. I can see no reason why it will not continue to work well in the future. In fact, it is a similar arrangement to the one that we had with the Auditor-General. You will recall that that arrangement, which was working satisfactorily, was terminated and the Territory had to secure the services of private firms of accountants to audit government departments' accounts and accounts of statutory authorities and other government agencies under the general supervision of the Territory Auditor-General and a small office staffed by 7 or 8 people.

It has been a matter of concern to me that no valuer has been based in Alice Springs. With the expansion of that town, delays were experienced, although one could not really complain about the service. I spoke to the Valuer-General on his last visit to Darwin and mentioned to him the problems that we were experiencing in Alice Springs. He agreed to consider the appointment of a valuer to be based in Alice Springs to look after valuation in central Australia. I am confident that this step will be taken. It requires approval by the Commonwealth government as well as the Territory government and its processes are much slower than ours even though ours sometimes work slowly enough. It will probably have to obtain approval from the Public Service Board in Canberra. I would expect that, within the year, a valuer should be based in Alice Springs to operate an office on behalf of the Valuer-General. I think this reflects the continuing growth of Alice Springs and central Australia, and the needs of that community.

Toy Library at Batchelor School

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is it the intention of the Department of Education to increase funds to their previous level in order to finance activities for the toy library at Batchelor School as the school council believes that the toy library provides a most valuable service to the general public?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have before me details of the specific activities of the toy library at Batchelor School. If the member is referring to the Northern Territory Toy Library Association, the government has recently agreed to assist with funds after the association was informed a few weeks ago that federal funds would not be forthcoming. The reason the Northern Territory has agreed to support the organisation is that the Department of Education, in particular, uses extensively the facilities that the Toy Library Association provides as do some other government agencies such as the Department of Community Development and the Department of Health. Subsequent to the Territory government's decision to assist with the funding, the Commonwealth agreed to fund the organisation again. Previously, the association was wholly funded by the Commonwealth. We are now waiting to see what funds will be provided by the Commonwealth with a view to assessing what funds will need to be provided by the Territory to continue these services. Certainly, we see value in the work that is being done and will take all reasonable steps to ensure that it is continued.

Local Government in the Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Can he outline the criteria upon which people were selected as members of the advisory council to look at the question of local government in the rural area?

ANSWER

There were no specific criteria under which people could apply to become members of the advisory board. In fact, that was done quite deliberately. Often, when applications are called for, people take up position as of right under certain criteria. They become carved in stone and regard it as their divine right to be there forever.

The government sought applications from people who had an active interest in the rural area and in the concept of local government for that area. I was quite open-minded, Mr Speaker, about anybody who was prepared to apply. I noted with interest that members of the Darwin City Council felt it was their right to be on the new committee. I noted other people saying that nobody from Humpty Doo is included. In fact, 2 people from Humpty Doo are on the committee. Someone else has complained that a representative of small businesses should have been included. The list could go on forever. I am of the view that the committee is very well-balanced and is broadly representative of the rural community. I would be quite happy to discuss the matter with anybody who has some dissatisfaction with the selection. I believe that all the members are very capable. They will play a very positive role in discussion of the concept of local government for the rural area and I intend to work very closely with them. I do not have a deadline for the committee to complete its work. I was involved in a similar exercise over many years with the Town Management Board in Tennant Creek. Discussions and consultations with the government and the community went on for nearly 7 years. That was rather a long time. It could have been cut shorter if various parties had so wished. If the people in the rural community wish to take 3 or 5 years to arrive at a conclusion about local government for their area, I do not have a problem with that.

Half-yearly Water Bills

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it still the government's intention to introduce half-yearly water billing?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the question of water billing is under review and it may be that further flexibility is desirable. At present, I am not able to say that we will introduce half-yearly billing.

Liquor Act

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

As a result of an amendment to the Liquor Act passed last year by the government, a person who was innocent of any offences had his property forfeited under the act. Will the government amend the act urgently so that property of innocent persons is not at risk?

ANSWER

I am aware of the concerns of the honourable member for Fannie Bay relating to the strict legal interpretation of section 101 of the Liquor Act. Because of this, I have sought a legal opinion and I will advise the Assembly of this opinion at a later date. Section 96(1) of the act says: 'A thing seized under this part is, by the force of this section, on the conviction of a person for an offence in connection with which it was seized, forfeited to the Territory'. Section 101 states: 'All things forfeited under this part may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of in such manner as the chairman thinks fit'.

I did some more research and looked at the original debates regarding this legislation. Of course, the member quite rightly said that the opposition had an amendment which was defeated in the Assembly. I had a good look at what the former Minister for Health said and, in some respects, the intention in the debates tended to favour an owner of a vehicle which had been forfeited to the court. I give the honourable member an undertaking that we will have a good look at it. As I said earlier, I have asked for a legal opinion and I will be in a position to provide the member with that information at a later date. However, the information I have to hand is that the Acting Liquor Commissioner has acted within the law and has not done anything wrong. I believe it is for us as legislators to try to work out what the method should be.

Sand Mining in Alice Springs Area

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Has a decision been made regarding the future of sand mining in the Alice Springs area, particularly in relation to the Todd River and allied areas?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am well aware that the honourable member has raised this issue with me before. There is little doubt that the amount of sand required in the Alice Springs area for construction work and so on greatly exceeds that which would be available in the Todd River bed and probably in all riverbeds adjacent to Alice Springs. A final policy has not been determined because clearly we have not arrived at a position of grave crisis yet. As I have indicated, in the longer term, the resources available for that purpose within the riverbeds around Alice Springs will not be adequate. This means that further survey work has to be done on different types of deposits for the purposes of sand extraction. Recently, I wrote to the honourable member pointing this out. A study is being undertaken by the Department of Mines and Energy on likely sand resources for future needs.

Velodrome in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

Is he aware of a near fatal accident which involved 4 young cyclists in Alice Springs early in March and can he advise when and what funding will be made available to the Alice Springs Amateur Cycling Club for the construction of a velodrome in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

I am aware of the near fatal accident that those young cyclists had. The only information that I can give the honourable member is that discussions have taken place between the Amateur Cycling Club in Alice Springs, an officer of the Department of Youth, Sport and Recreation and myself. In the 1982-83 allocation, some $19 000 was made available to the Alice Springs Amateur Cycling Club for the development of a velodrome in that area. Unfortunately, the advice that I have is that the club does not want to proceed at this stage because it feels that $19 000 might not be sufficient to carry out the type of construction that will be most suitable in the long term. Discussions are continuing. Hopefully, within the next financial year, we will be able to come up with a sensible development arrangement.

Floods in Alice Springs

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Could he advise the Assembly of the situation in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

The problems in Alice Springs became rather more intense last night than they have been since it commenced raining there several days ago. I understand that torrential rain commenced in Alice Springs at about 5 pm yesterday and that some 120 mm of rain, which I think is somewhat over 6 inches, fell by 9 pm. As a consequence, there was a great rise in the level of the Todd River and considerable flooding of low-lying areas of Alice Springs. I was called to a meeting at police headquarters last evening. The Police Commissioner convened a meeting consisting of himself, the Acting Secretary of the Department of Transport and Works, the Chairman of NTEC, the Director of Emergency Services and various senior police officers including the Deputy Commissioner. The purpose of that meeting was to assess the situation in Alice Springs and decide what measures, if any, needed to be taken to lend assistance to the town and to ensure that normal services were brought back into operation as quickly as possible. I was fortunate in that, before the meeting, I had been contacted by a number of people whom I know in Alice Springs and they apprised me of their personal circumstances. Almost everyone who spoke to me was in pretty good humour. In fact, the mood of the people who spoke to me was that they were almost enjoying what one might call the crisis situation. It seems that human beings respond well in an emergency.

The main problem was that the Alice Springs power-station had had to close down because of seepage due to the very heavy rainfall. Honourable members may not be familiar with the location of the Alice Springs powerhouse. It is located in a valley behind the Alice Springs golf course. I have requested the Minister for Mines and Energy, the minister responsible for NTEC, to institute an in-house inquiry to ascertain precisely the reasons for the shut-down of the power-station. I cannot say this with any certainty at this stage, but I imagine that the 120 mm of rain within a 4-hour period caused a considerable run-off into the valley.

Apparently, the powerhouse was not flooded directly but there was seepage of water into a pit or basement underneath the generators or turbines. The pit is there to enable maintenance to take place. This problem would have been easy to rectify if it had been possible to bring pumps from the other side of the Todd River. The pumps were dispatched and were transported over the town bridge which I understand at no stage was submerged. Unfortunately, there is a 400 m stretch of road which is not bituminised. It is referred to as the back way to the power-station. That 400 m of road has not been bituminised because of a dispute between persons desirous of registering a sacred site and the government. The fire engine which was taking the pumps to the power-station bogged on that stretch of road and the pumps were not used. That occurred some 1.5 km from the power-station and a sizeable hill lay between. For that reason, those pumps did not reach the power-station. Therefore we decided in Darwin that, if need be, we would dispatch pumps from here to the power-station. In any event, other pumps were located and I believe that they are now operating at the power-station to extract the water from the pit. Infra-red drying machines were dispatched from Darwin at midnight last night after a meeting I attended where a decision was taken to charter an aircraft to take them down. They will be needed to help dry the equipment. I might say that the equipment itself was not submerged but, apparently, there was flashing because of the presence of water in the pits. If that had continued, it might well have destroyed the equipment which, for that reason, had to be shut down.

Mr Speaker, in summary, the main consequence was that the people of Alice Springs had to have a candlelight supper last night. That is not necessarily a laughing matter or one that I take lightly. We are doing all we can to have power restored as quickly as possible. I hope that will occur very soon. To the best of the knowledge of the people who are advising me, there has been no loss of life as a result of these floods. However, a report is being investigated which could result in a finding that there has been one drowning. This is a very vague report.

Undoubtedly, there are some pretty wet households around Alice Springs at the moment, but the local office of the Department of Transport and Works has advised that it considers that it can handle the situation in the town without needing to call on resources from outside. I would say that it looks as though the damage to private and government property is relatively minimal. Almost certainly there will be erosion of causeways. There were reports on the radio that the causeway to the casino had been washed away. I understand that that report is incorrect. That causeway was submerged but not washed away.

All in all, Sir, I think we will have gained some valuable experience from this exercise. It has been a flash flood. One of the problems that we had to face last night was that we knew we could get the plane into the Alice Springs airport but did not know whether we could get the equipment from Alice Springs airport to the powerhouse. There were helicopters at the Alice Springs airport but the pilots were at home in town. The problem was to get from the airport to the town in spite of the water surging through Heavitree Gap. There is really no way of getting through the gap when water is surging through with the terrific force generated by these torrential downpours.

I understand that the weather is easing now. I might say that there are beneficial aspects to this rain. Certainly, it has alleviated the situation of pastoralists in central Australia. I believe it should do a great deal to take them well into the season and, in that way, there is a silver lining to the cloud. We hope that the clouds over Alice Springs disperse soon because the town is anticipating the arrival of His Royal Highness Prince Charles and Her Royal Highness Princess Diana, Prince and Princess of Wales, on Sunday.

Mr B. Collins: I want an answer, not a travel guide.

Mr SPEAKER: Order, order!

Mr EVERINGHAM: I am sorry, Sir, that the members opposite seem so disrespectful of my comment in relation to the members of the Royal Family who are shortly to visit Alice Springs. I was asked what the situation is in Alice Springs and I think it fairly relevant to let the public of Alice Springs know whether the Leader of the Opposition was sincere in his question or just trying to grab a few headlines. The people of Alice Springs are interested in this visit. The Leader of the Opposition may not be. Their Royal Highnesses should experience no problems in pursuing their visit to central Australia provided that the weather abates. After all this rain, I would expect that the town would be able to put on a much better face than if the season had been dry.

I believe that Emergency Services in Alice Springs have learnt several valuable lessons from this experience, as has NTEC. I can assure you, Sir, that pumps will be based and maintained at the Alice Springs power-station in the future.

Transient Camps at Kulaluk

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

He has been engaged in correspondence and discussion with Gwalwa Daraniki, the people who have the lease of Kulaluk, with a view to establishing transient camps. Could he advise at what stage those discussions are at present and, if the transient camps are to be established, what assistance will be given to Gwalwa Daraniki to control behaviour in the area?

ANSWER

I am sure that the honourable member for Nightcliff will be pleased to know that I cannot stretch my answer out for 18 minutes. If I could, I would. In fairness to the honourable member, I would like to report that both my predecessors had discussions with the Gwalwa Daraniki people concerning the establishment of camps at Kulaluk. Until recently, I was of the view that those discussions had reached a certain degree of finality and that things were getting into place. The government has committed itself to assist with the establishment of these camps if that is possible.

In recent days, I have had correspondence from Mr Day who says he believes the course that we are embarked upon is not satisfactory so far as the people are concerned and he would like to have more discussions and perhaps review the whole proposition concerning the establishment of the camps on the Kulaluk area. I do not have any strong commitment other than to try to help the people to a reasonable solution of the problem. At this stage, the matter is in abeyance and I will try to talk to the people as soon as possible. I will be happy to keep the honourable member informed of the results and content of relevant discussions because I appreciate that the area is very close to her electorate and many of the people involved are her constituents.

Humpty Doo High School Farm

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What is the situation at present with regard to the establishment of a farm at the new Humpty Doo High School?

ANSWER

The stage 2 proposals will incorporate an agricultural facility at the high school designed to accommodate a number of agricultural science courses. It is intended to make agricultural science a compulsory subject for years 8 to 10 and a full-time study option for years 11 and 12. The school farm which will form the focus of these courses will contain facilities to teach farm mechanics, livestock management, plant propogation and cultural practices. Stage 2 of the high school is currently undergoing design development and is an item on the 1982-83 design list. Current planning is for the work to be completed by June 1984.

Northern Territory Development Corporation

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Could he advise on progress of the investigation into the Northern Territory Development Corporation?

ANSWER

As Minister for Lands, Industrial Development and Tourism, it has been interesting to become involved with the operations of the Northern Territory Development Corporation. Might I say at the outset that there has been no investigation of the NTDC. There has been a review of the NTDC's administration and procedures. This review was commissioned last year when Mr Ted Simpson was Chairman of the Northern Territory Development Corporation and the present Minister for Transport and Works was the minister responsible for the corporation. It has been a fairly lengthy and all-encompassing review. The NTDC had seconded to it from the Commonwealth Development Bank a fairly senior officer who is normally based in Sydney. He has been given the task of reviewing the administrative procedures of the NTDC, its forms, its securities, the way it deals with its applicants and the way it handles the administration of loans, the collection of moneys outstanding and the taking of security for loans. This review has been proceeding steadily. I understand that the NTDC has already implemented certain changes.

At this stage, there has been no final report from the consultant. To the best of my knowledge, I have not had any report from the consultant although the chairman has reported to me from time to time on the various steps that the consultant has taken. I cannot recall all those various steps but I could provide this information to the Leader of the Opposition by way of briefing. I would be happy for him to have a briefing by the Chairman of the NTDC. As I indicated in this Assembly yesterday, there is a bill relating to the NTDC brought before this Assembly by the opposition. I understand from my colleague, the Leader of the House, that there will probably be a general business day next week if the circumstances of the sittings so allow. I anticipate making a very full reply to the second-reading speech of the honourable member for Sanderson, the sponsor of the bill. I would prefer to wait until then to give any further particular details on this matter. However, I am ready to arrange a briefing of the Leader of the Opposition on the subject of the review of NTDC's operations by the consultant at any time convenient to him and the chairman of the corporation. I believe the new chairman has taken up office efficiently and it seems to me that a certain reinvigoration of the board has already taken place.

Various changes that have been made over a period are now beginning to gel and I think that credit for some of these changes should be given to the former Chairman of the Northern Territory Development Corporation, Ted Simpson. We now have on the corporation a merchant banker and so have that tremendous expertise available in considering the day-to-day business of the NTDC. We have on the board a chartered accountant, Mr Ellis of Adelaide. There is no reason, in theory, why a local chartered accountant should not have been appointed to the board of the NTDC. There are many reputable local accountants well able to handle the task. The only problem is that a local chap would probably have many conflicts of interest because usually accountants handle applications to the NTDC. Those are 2 reforms instituted by Mr Ted Simpson.

Unfortunately, when in the business of lending money, there are always people who have to be turned down, people on whom the screws have to be tightened when they do not meet the terms that they have agreed to. There are people to whom money is lent who spend more than they should and come asking for more. All these people tend to become dissatisfied if the answer they receive is negative or not quite what they want. I think one must take all that into account when construing criticism of previous Chairmen of the Northern Territory Development Corporation. Any person in that job is under tremendous pressure and always open to a great deal of criticism from dissatisfied applicants. Personally, I believe that Mr Simpson, in his tenure of the office, did as good a job as anyone could. You have only to look at the record.

There was only one default - the Buntine case - in a time when the NTDC had lent well over $20m and given a number of guarantees. Certainly, the NTDC has a number of bad debts, or what I prefer to call doubtful debts at this stage, but we are moving to restructure these. We are moving to come to arrangements and compositions with the people involved. Many of these doubtful debts are in the fishing industry. Under the direction of the government, the NTDC was there to take a punt on things like the fishing industry. The punt has not worked out in some cases but this government will not back off because it believes that the Territory economy needs the injection of venture finance through the NTDC. I will report at much greater length to the Assembly in the course of debate next week but I am more than happy for the Leader of the Opposition to have briefings from the chairman on any subject concerning the NTDC at any time.

Future of Northern Territory Aerial Work

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise on the future of the company, Northern Territory Aerial Work, if the Grumman Trackers are returned for surveillance work in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

The company, Northern Territory Aerial Work, is engaged in 4 distinct activities: maritime surveillance, coastal surveillance, aerial medical and aircraft maintenance. The company is a separately-registered member company of the Ansett group. The fortunes of NTAW have been of interest to government because they have been linked with the general viability of ANA. This is no longer a valid concept since the company faces a number of challenges to its future which, in all probability, will result in a significant reduction in its overall level of activity. One is the cancellation of maritime surveillance, carried out on behalf of the Commonwealth, using 2 specially-equipped L-series Nomad aircraft. This ceases at the end of March 1983 because the Commonwealth no longer perceives the flights to be necessary. Northern Territory Aerial Work is currently tendering to use one of these aircraft for surveillance on the Barrier Reef. It has also approached the Commonwealth for relief for some of the capital costs of $4m entailed in purchasing a special aircraft for what ultimately proved to be only 2 years work.

The littoral surveillance task utilising 3 Nomad aircraft is currently guaranteed only to mid-year. The Commonwealth government has stated it intends to reintroduce Navy tracker aircraft for this task. It is therefore probable that this source of work will also dry up. Loss of the coastal surveillance contract by Northern Territory Aerial Work could have a direct impact on up to 36 jobs. The contract supports 9 pilots and 12 observers. These jobs would definitely be lost. In addition, 15 ground staff, which includes engineers and clerical people, are employed by the company. At the moment, Northern Territory Aerial Work is trying to obtain more maintenance work to protect those 15 jobs.

Mr Speaker, representations are being made to the new Minister for Aviation in respect of this crisis. We hope to put those facts before the new minister so that some sympathetic consideration can be given in respect of NTAW.

Issuing of Bookmakers' Licences

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Will the Racing and Gaming Commission continue to issue bookmakers' licences to applicants from outside the Territory, despite submissions from numerous local applicants?

ANSWER

To my knowledge, the Racing and Gaming Commission, which calls applications for every bookmaker's licence available in the Northern Territory, has never issued a licence to a person outside the Northern Territory. The policy on which the commission operates, with the government's complete concurrence, is that the most suitable applicant will be the successful applicant for a bookmaker's licence. There are no other criteria that we should adopt in an area as sensitive as gaming and gambling. It is something on which we keep a fairly close eye in this industry and one for which we want the very best people that we can possibly find. Every bookmaker's licence which becomes available is advertised. Applicants are scrutinised and screened. The licence goes to the best person available. The question of who has been in the Northern Territory longest is not a criterion in these circumstances.

Unsold Reserves from Nabarlek and Ranger

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Approximately what percentage of reserves from Nabarlek mine are currently unsold? Approximately what percentage of reserves from the Ranger mine are currently unsold?

ANSWER

I am surprised that the honourable Leader of the Opposition would ask a question seeking such detailed information. I can seek the information from the respective companies. I guess the purpose of the honourable member's question was to seek information to cast further doubt upon the marketing ability of the uranium mines which have yet to get off the ground.

As the Chief Minister indicated, it is for those companies to indicate to the present federal minister their prospects for sales. My information is that there is a very significant market for new products from the uranium province.

It is not just a matter of looking at the spot price in isolation. The utilities are anxious to diversify their sources of supply. This diversification motive on the part of utilities and users of uranium oxide will ensure the future of the industry. The principals of the 2 firms proposing to establish uranium mines in the province are quite confident the markets are there. With the greatest respect to the new federal minister, I found it rather extraordinary that he should ask where the contracts were when no one would sign a firm contract without having an export licence. The difficulty is that neither of those 2 companies has been able to get into the position to get an export licence.

The other nonsensical thing, which has been brought out in the press mainly through the auspices of the honourable Senator Walsh and the honourable Leader of the Opposition, is the statement by Queensland Mines in relation to the world market. I think Queensland Mines would be very foolish indeed if it went about actively encouraging competition to its own business. It is a standard practice in times of a perceived tight market for one to do everything one can to protect the market. I am not saying that the directors of Queensland Mines have, in any way, told anything to any minister or the Leader of the Opposition that is untrue. However, I must say that that particular company is not going to say anything which would encourage the establishment of competition. It is also very curious that, if the position Queensland Mines put forward is the world position in uranium mining and the availability of markets, that very same company plans to expand its operations and continue exploration. It would not throw its money down the drain if it thought there was no market.

Jabiru Area School

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In view of the urgency of the situation of the Jabiru Area School with regard to establishment of a science laboratory facility, can he inform me when this will be built?

ANSWER

The story behind the establishment of a science laboratory facility at Jabiru Area School is a very good example of why the Northern Territory government has always believed that the control of uranium mining should belong to the states as should control of such things as activities in national parks. At this stage, I cannot provide the honourable member with an answer as to when an adequate science facility will be provided at the Jabiru Area School. It was proposed last year to convert a couple of classrooms at the school to a science laboratory and some funds were allocated for that. However, as demographic figures were taken and reanalysed, it was quite clear that was not the course to take and that an additional facility should be provided at the school for the science laboratory. It seems that the most economic way to go about the project would be to provide a transportable science classroom which would cost an estimated $120 000.

The project to provide a transportable classroom is subject to funding being provided by the Commonwealth government through the Jabiru Special Purpose Grant Agreement. Honourable members will know that funding for infrastructure at Jabiru, as part of the uranium province and being within a national park, is provided by the Commonwealth government specific purpose payment to the Territory for these purposes. This arrangement is designed to keep the Territory happy while it does not have control of matters such as the levying of uranium royalties. However, a submission was made to the Commonwealth government to provide additional funds for an extra classroom at the Jabiru school. The Commonwealth came to us recently seeking more details. Since that time, we have not been able to get any further answers from it. This situation is quite unsatisfactory and I will be making immediate representations to the relevant ministers in Canberra to see if funds can be provided urgently for this project.

Obviously, the area school should have these facilities. Hopefully, Jabiru will eventually grow to be the third largest town in the Northern Territory, and we should have all the infrastructure there that those people require. To have a situation persist whereby we have to go to the Commonwealth to get essential infrastructure is simply an outrage to people in the Northern Territory and demonstrates the reasons why these affairs should be totally under the control of the Northern Territory government. We will continue to argue that point as well.

Floods in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the flooding experienced last week, can he advise the current situation in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I reported to the Assembly last week in relation to the flooding that was experienced in Alice Springs. Together with most other people, I thought that the worst was over by Thursday afternoon. Unfortunately, when I got home at about 8.30 that evening, a call was waiting for me from the Commissioner of Police requesting that I accompany him to Alice Springs on a special charter flight because the Alice Springs powerhouse had been flooded again. Indeed, things were at a fairly critical stage and it was thought that the alternators would be inundated. The powerhouse had then been out of commission for quite some time. During the time that we were flying to Alice Springs, NTEC and the Department of Transport and Works staff managed to get a couple of large pumps into the powerhouse and controlled the flooding. A bund wall was built as an emergency measure. Steps are now being taken to ensure that work is carried out to bleed the water from the pits and alter the drainage arrangements around the power-station so that such an indicent cannot recur.

The main damage caused by the floods was to roads and to the causeways that cross the river. I understand, from estimates prepared by the Department of Transport and Works, that the cost of reinstating roads and causeways will run in the order of $1m. It may be possible for the NT government to recoup some of these funds from the federal government under special programs it has for such things as flood damage relief. The situation with the Alice Springs Town Council is not clear to me yet. I understand that the damage caused to council roads, causeways and property may be in addition to the $1m estimate that the government has to hand.

Private damage amounted principally to water flooding into houses and causing damage to floor coverings and the like. There were incidents of roofs leaking and damage to goods in shops. In one case, a man in Gregory Terrace who runs a small computer business had about $40 000 worth of equipment damaged when his roof leaked. The damage was so bad that his equipment was a write-off. I extend the sympathy of the government to people who suffered loss and damage as a result of the floods.

As well as that, some lives were lost. We are not sure how many. Two fatalities have been confirmed. One was an old gentleman who lived in a caravan in the middle of the Todd River. I am told that, whenever he heard that the Todd was coming down, he would have his caravan towed out of the river bed. He lived somewhere behind the Old Timer's Home, past Heavitree Gap. This time he was not warned and was swept away with his caravan. His body was recovered the next day or the day after.

A young fellow from New Zealand, who had been working in Alice Springs for a time, somehow or other became stranded on the Heavitree Gap causeway. He strapped himself to a post with his trouser belt. A semi-trailer went in to rescue him but, in trying to get on to the semi-trailer, he missed his hold and away he went down the river. They found his body yesterday. There are other reports as well. The police are trying to verify these as quickly as they can, realising the inconvenience, apprehension and anxiety that it must be causing to the people concerned.

Mr Speaker, basically, that is the situation as I learnt it whilst in the Alice. The town rallied magnificently. At the same time, the weather came good in a big way. One minute the rain was pouring down, the river was running a banker and then all of a sudden, next morning, there were blue skies, the river was down and we are able to get on with the task of restoring facilities. Frankly, I did not expect that things could be righted as quickly as they were.

Everyone involved should be thanked by the government: the Emergency Services personnel, police, community development people, transport and works, the Alice Springs council employees, NTEC, volunteers and relief agencies. Generally speaking, it was a crisis but matters turned out well. It could have been a lot worse. We have learnt some things and we will try to make sure, as far as is humanly possible, that such a situation does not arise at the Alice Springs power-station again.

Free Trade Zone for Darwin

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is the submission regarding a free trade zone for Darwin, which he announced would be submitted to the new Labor government, the same submission that was under preparation last year for submission to the Liberal Country Party government and, if so, can he advise whether that submission was ever submitted to Canberra?

ANSWER

I advise the Leader of the Opposition that no detailed submission has ever been put forward by the Northern Territory government to the federal government in respect of a free trade zone for Darwin. We were convinced that we should get the decision on the railway line and the timing of its construction right first. Having achieved those objectives, we proceeded with the detailed submission on a free trade zone. This will go to the new federal government during the course of this year. I might say that there is nothing terribly unique about free trade zones. They exist in the United Kingdom. Certainly, there are many in the United States, some in quite small places. I understand that later in the year some personal inspection may be made of one of the most successful of the United States free trade zones near Miami in Florida. We will put a detailed submission together as quickly as possible and pass it on to the federal government. I do not expect that it will go to the federal government before the second half of this year.

Marrara Sporting Complex

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

Has he called for plans for the distribution of land at the Marrara Sporting Complex and can he give details?

ANSWER

The land in question at Marrara has been allocated by the Darwin City Council to various sporting organisations. I think the honourable member's question may stem from a desire to know what is to happen as far as the Northern Territory Football League is concerned. Recently, the Treasurer and I, with officers of the Darwin City Council, members of the Northern Territory Football League and staff of the Department of Community Development, had discussions regarding the future of Gardens Oval. As the population of Darwin increases, Gardens Oval No 1 could become too small for the Northern Territory Football League. A proposal has been put to the Northern Territory Football League and the council that perhaps we should discuss, and hopefully decide, the future of the Northern Territory Football League by allocating some land at Marrara to it with the hope at some stage in the very near future of building a Northern Territory Football League headquarters at Marrara. Discussions are taking place between football league officials, the council and government and should result in the submission of a proposal in mid-April.

An announcement has been made on the new indoor basketball stadium at Marrara. A stadium of national standard is under construction and will be completed by November this year. A decision is under consideration by government at the moment to proceed with the basketball stadium which is stage 2. Land has been allocated to the South Darwin Sports Club and its playing field has been established and hopefully will be in use this year. The Northern Territory Rugby Union's headquarters has been established and I understand competition fixtures of the Northern Territory Rugby Union will be played at Marrara. It is anticipated that the juniors will commence playing there within 3 or 4 months.

Land has been allocated to Darwin Gun Club. I understand the Darwin Gun Club facility at Marrara is considered to be one of the most attractive in Australia. Land has recently been allocated to Jingili BMX. It is getting its act together. Hopefully, competition will start very shortly. The Darwin Bow Hunters are there. Of course, there is not very much land. I have a plan of the area. If the honourable member wishes to see it, I am only too pleased to give it to her.

TIO Insurance against Flooding in Cyclone Surge Zones

Mr SMITH to TREASURER

Does the TIO provide insurance against flooding in cyclone surge zones and, if it does, is the insurance available both for buildings and contents?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Territory Insurance Office does not normally cover insurance against flood. I indicated that to the Assembly before. However, there is an option in most policies to take out flood insurance and the TIO would be prepared to consider applications for insurance against storm surge. I am informed that each situation would have to be examined individually to determine the exact degree of risk. As honourable members would be aware, insurance companies operate on the probability of an event occurring and obviously must structure their premiums to make an overall profit. At the same time, they must give a degree of protection and assurance to persons who take out policies with them.

The TIO would look at individual applications from persons living in surge areas in the Territory and would compute a special premium. It would apply to the contents of a house if required, as well as to the house itself. The premium would be computed on a percentage of the value of the items to be insured.

Wildman River Station

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

This follows the exhaustive and welcome reply he gave to my previous question regarding Wildman River Station. Would he undertake to table in the Assembly, or otherwise make public, a map of the area with hatching showing areas already alienated and those it is proposed to alienate prior to any further lease in the area being granted?

ANSWER

No.

Sealing of Road to Alice Springs Power-station

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What plans has the government to seal the remaining section of road to the back entrance of the Alice Springs power-station and why has it not been sealed before?

ANSWER

The road into the back entrance of the Alice Springs power-station will enable that facility to be serviced from the other side of the Todd River during times similar to those we have just experienced. It will also enable servicing of the new golf course subdivision, the Alice Springs Country Club Casino and the other establishments down the east bank of the Todd River. There are a number of houses in what used to be called the old inner farm area. I think that that valley, the Mount John valley, will gradually become more and more residential. Obviously, the golf course subdivision is the first manifestation of that though it is perhaps a little bit more exclusive than the sort of subdivisions I am thinking of.

Together with other improvements, the road was scheduled as part of the Sadadeen East Industrial Subdivision, but there were disputes regarding sacred sites and the whole thing was deferred for a considerable period. However, I am informed that, in the last few weeks, the road itself has been cleared in relation to sacred sites. Funds have been committed and the roadworks will proceed now without any further unnecessary delay. I shall propose to my Cabinet colleagues that the road be constructed and alterations made to the powerhouse premises to ensure that the road will service the golf course subdivision and the Alice Springs Casino and its environs during times of flooding and wet weather. In fact, no one in his right mind would bother to use the road other than at those times because, in normal circumstances, there is much more direct and convenient access.

Contract to Reprographics Holdings (NT) Pty Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to the TREASURER

Can he explain how a contract for aerial survey was let under the General Tender Board's local preference policy to a company named Reprographics Holdings (NT) Pty Ltd in April 1982 when that company was not incorporated until 25 May in that year?

ANSWER

If I recall correctly, I answered some questions on the letting of this contract at the November sittings. The matter was somewhat complex but I addressed the subject of the incorporation of the company. I think I made the point that the registration of a company in the Northern Territory was not, in itself, a requirement for a company to receive local preference. Indeed, quite a number of companies have operated for many years in the Territory, have substantial holdings and create employment in the Northern Territory, but are not necessarily registered locally. I can seek further details for the honourable member, but certainly this company fitted within the guidelines of the letting of the contract. Analysis of the tenders indicated that the successful tenderer would have been successful even without the award of local preference percentage. That fact overruled all other considerations. That company was indeed the lowest tenderer.

Sale of Housing Commission Houses in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HOUSING

Can he say, with any degree of certainty, when Housing Commission houses in Nhulunbuy will be available for sale to interested tenants?

ANSWER

I am unable to give the honourable member for Nhulunbuy any clear and precise idea of when the Housing Commission will be able to sell its properties in Nhulunbuy. Recently, at a meeting in Nhulunbuy of the general business community, I understand the Chief Minister castigated the joint venturers, Nabalco, for its lack of attention in trying to come to grips with the land question in Nhulunbuy. Apparently, the Sydney-based manager was at that particular meeting. He has returned to Sydney and I believe that the wheels are now turning towards an opportunity for the government to be able to negotiate finally lease arrangements on land in Nhulunbuy. The only information I can give the honourable member is that, on 17 March, a meeting was held between interested parties. At this stage, discussions are still taking place.

Power Reticulation to Acacia Hills Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What plans does NTEC have to reticulate power to the Acacia Hills area?

ANSWER

As the honourable member is no doubt well aware, NTEC has a policy on rural reticulation. Basically, that involves a maximum subsidy of $2000 paid by NTEC to the potential consumer.

The position in Acacia Hills is that, of 48 blocks in the subdivision, the owners of 15 have indicated a wish to have electricity connected. The cost is in the order of $220 000 to reticulate electricity to the subdivision. Simple arithmetic would indicate that the amount payable by those 15 would be in the order of $12 000. Of course, if more of the people who hold blocks were to come into the scheme, then the cost for each block would be less.

Mr Speaker, the danger from the point of view of the owners of those 15 blocks is that they will pay their $12 000 and receive only $2000 in subsidy while the rest of their friends wait around to benefit from the reticulation of electricity. The rules of the game are quite clear. Any person who wished to come into the scheme after the electricity is connected - largely at the expense of those block holders in the area who previously indicated their desire to have electricity - would have to pay full tote odds. In other words, the NTEC subsidy of $2000 would not be made available to them.

It is a lot of money to pay to have electricity connected to their blocks. Nonetheless, NTEC must act, as far as possible, as a commercial undertaking. That situation is created statutorily through the commission's own act and, more importantly, because of the arrangements we have with the federal government for a 50% subsidy from the taxpayers of this country for the provision of electricity to Northern Territory consumers.

NTEC is of the view, and I cannot dispute it at this stage, that the offer of $2000 subsidy per block is about as good as the commission can possibly be expected to offer in all the circumstances.

I know, Mr Speaker, that you have raised on behalf of your constituents areas of concern in relation to people who are not normally defined as Darwin, Alice Springs, Katherine or Tennant Creek rural. Of course, Sir, you have raised the question of subsidies and assistance to such people as pastoralists. Sir, I note the point made by you as the member for Elsey that, where a 50% subsidy is made available to people who choose to live in urban areas, then it would be reasonable for people in rural areas to expect that a 50% subsidy be made available to them as well. I am talking about tourist operators, pastoralists etc. The request would involve many additional millions of dollars. The matter will be kept under review. I have quite a bit of sympathy for the situation as, no doubt, you have, Sir, having raised the matter.

Nonetheless, the position of NTEC at the moment is that it incurs a loss of some $50m a year. That loss is subsidised by the taxpayers of this country and I dare say there is a limit to how far those taxpayers will go in the provision of further subsidies, particularly if they were almost to double as a result of such a proposal. As I say, I have sympathy for the position of your constituents and those of the honourable member for Tiwi. These matters will be kept subject to review. If resources become available in future years, those needs will be taken into account by the government.

Motor Accidents (Compensation) Act

Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Is he aware of the comments made by Mr Justice Nader in a recent judgment regarding the case Roberts v The Board of the TIO when his Honour referred to various sections of the Motor Accidents (Compensation) Act by saying, among other things, 'Unfortunately, it can be seen that the drafting of these provisions would not have won prizes for clear expressions of thought. The obscurity of some of these passages is the main reason for this costly litigation.'? Can the Attorney-General indicate whether this legislation is to be reviewed?

ANSWER

Firstly, I would like to point out to the honourable Leader of the Opposition that any proposal to amend the Territory Insurance Office Act would be brought forward to Cabinet by my colleague, the Treasurer. He is the minister responsible for that legislation. I have read the comments of his Honour. At the risk of giving an opinion which Standing Orders prohibit and which I am not qualified to give anyway, the facts are that, having had the law settled in relation to those provisions - and I have read the judgment and forwarded a copy of it to my colleague, the Treasurer - any further cost of litigation in respect of those sections is now most unlikely. If we start to tamper with those same provisions, then any meaning which counsel representing claimants or the TIO itself may wish to impose on them would have to be assessed again. The law has now been settled and it would seem illogical to tamper with it.

Facilities for Psychiatric Patients

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of continued concern expressed in courts and elsewhere about the lack of appropriate accommodation in the Northern Territory for psychiatric patients, what action is he taking to provide such a facility?

ANSWER

I advise the honourable member that, during the course of this sittings, I will be making a full statement on that matter.

Carinya Flats

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for HOUSING

Carinya flats is a very old block of Housing Commission flats situated in the inner city area. Is he aware of the problems associated with the hot water system in those flats and can he indicate what is being done to upgrade the existing inadequate service?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am aware of some of the problems at Carinya flats. I asked the Housing Commission for a full briefing before this sittings. Unfortunately, I have not followed it through. However, I will obtain the information for the honourable member during the course of this sittings.

Literature Production Supervisor at Maningrida

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In view of the Territory government's stated commitment to the further development of bilingual education, can he say when the position of Literature Production Supervisor at Maningrida school will be made a permanent one?

ANSWER

I cannot give the honourable member an undertaking. The position he refers to at Maningrida is under no threat at present. The bilingual program is continuing. There appears to be an enormous amount of concern about years beyond the present one and, beyond doubt, the matter must be settled. I will address it when I can.

Dual Carriageways

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

With regard to the problem of drivers keeping their vehicles abreast of each other on dual carriageways, has he given thought to amending the legislation to stop this sometimes dangerous practice?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the practice is very annoying. The matter has been discussed in national forums. There is no Territory proposal to change the legislation. Indeed, it would be difficult to effect legislation to satisfy the honourable member's requirement. However, there is a need to come to grips with this particular problem. I believe that the Road Safety Council of the Northern Territory should look again at the matter and the department should try to resolve the problem by signposting along the relevant highways.

Land at Bynoe Harbour

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

His predecessor in that capacity announced that an auction of land at Bynoe Harbour would be held, including land presently occupied illegally. Could he indicate if that auction will proceed and, if so, give a likely time?

ANSWER

It will proceed soon.

Remote Area Power Supply Investigation

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What is the current status of the remote area power supply investigation announced by the government some 3 years ago and, if this investigation is still active, will he undertake to report progress to date?

ANSWER

Certainly, I will have the matter investigated. There are a number of investigatory projects under way, including that into the provision of power to all the smaller communities between here and Katherine. Quite obviously, energy resources which will be made available through the connection of piped gas to Alice Springs are also under examination to determine what use can be made of them. There are investigations into the use of small solar plants to be made available to small communities throughout the Northern Territory. These range from the type of proposal which came from the McDonald Douglas Corporation to solar ponds to small solar units such as those used by Telecom. Extensive investigations are continuing. The success or otherwise of investigations of this kind takes time simply because of the nature of the evolution of technology in these areas. There is little point in coming to a firm conclusion as to the provision of power to small communities in remote areas when the technology is in its infancy. We could embark upon a program using existing technology which, in 2 years time, could become obsolete. I know that that can be seen as a good excuse for never doing anything because technology will always improve. Nonetheless, in the area of straight conversion of solar energy into electricity via reflectors into heat exchangers or in the technology of solar ponds, great advances are being made now. I think it would be wise to leave it for a little while at least - perhaps a couple of years - to allow these projects to be proven up. They are very exciting indeed. Recently, I wrote to all members and invited them to inspect the projects we have under way, particularly with solar air-conditioning. The solar pond experiments in Alice Springs are fascinating. I commend a visit to all honourable members to obtain an understanding of just what good work is being done in this area. Technical problems still exist in every one of these areas but we are quite confident that, within a couple of years, a technology will be made available to the Northern Territory for use in the very communities referred to by the honourable member for Sanderson.

Management of East Point Reserve

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS

Now that it seems probable that the Darwin City Council will refuse to accept responsibility for East Point Reserve, what arrangements is the government considering for the future management of this important area of land?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, frankly, I am amazed at the attitude displayed by the Darwin City Council over the East Point Reserve. For years we have been the subject of complaint by the city council for taking our time in disposing of the trust established at present to maintain the reserve. Now that action can and will be taken to dispose of the matter without further delay, we find that the council wants $4m or $5m from the government to upgrade East Point Reserve before it is handed over. As I explained to the Lord Mayor, the Northern Territory government accepts considerable responsibility for urban beautification in Darwin and in towns throughout the Northern Territory. However, we feel that our responsibility should relate principally to areas not just of interest to a particular municipality but to those that would be of interest and significance right through the Territory and perhaps even nationally. Of course, we feel a commitment to beautify those areas that open up, such as the new northern suburbs - Karama, Leanyer and the like. Work on urban beautification will proceed apace there this year. That work will be carried out almost entirely by the Conservation Commission on behalf of the Northern Territory government. When the roadsides and parks have been brought into shipshape order, they will be handed over to the council for maintenance, although we find more and more that the council is reluctant to accept that responsibility.

Mr Speaker, the Territory government is prepared to pay in the order of $1m over the next couple of years in a 2 or 3-stage program to improve and upgrade the Botanical Gardens. In fact, that program was created on our initiative. It was not even at the council's initiative. We instigated it. We said to the council: we will help you because we want the Darwin Botanical Gardens to become not just another gardens but a national showplace if possible, just as they were regarded before the cyclone. The Conservation Commission and the Darwin City Council have been working well together in the gardens. I must pay some tribute to George Brown. I might not agree on everything with George Brown but we agree on many things, particularly in the area of making this city, as far as possible, an example to the rest of the country. I think that he and I would both like to see it as green as Singapore. That will happen. It might be when he and I are pushing up daisies and being used as human fertiliser but it will happen.

I just cannot see how, as the person responsible for the overall management of this government, I can hand $5m of Territory and Australian taxpayers' money to the Darwin City Council so that it can do up, to its satisfaction apparently, the East Point Reserve. East Point Reserve is virtually a passive recreation area for the people of Darwin. We could give the council an initial establishment grant by transferring the funds we allocate to the trust every year to maintain the reserve - some hundreds of thousands of dollars. If he, as representative of the people of Darwin, wants to upgrade East Point Reserve - and I think many people would like to see it remain much the way it is now - he and his aldermen should not come cap in hand with their rice bowl to the government, asking for more and saying: 'Give me, give me'. He must go out and ask Darwin people - as mayors in other states do - if they want this project. If the people want it, then they must accept another 20¢ or whatever on their rate notices. That is what happens in Queensland. It happens in Cairns. That is the way local government must operate in this Territory, and not keep coming to the government and saying: 'Give us some more'. It must start operating as local governments operate elsewhere in Australia and make the people within the municipalities recognise where the money comes from. It must win from those people the support for projects that they want.

Shortly, the Northern Territory government will vest the East Point Reserve in the Conservation Commission. We are sure it will manage it well until the city council comes to its senses and decides that it does in fact want to control parks within its boundaries. As far as I am concerned - and I have to talk to my Cabinet colleagues about this - I would like to see the existing organisations which use the East Point Reserve continue to use the area. I do not think we would give exclusive tenancy to anyone. We want to see the fliers of model aeroplanes, the Equestrian Club etc continue to use the area. Also, we want to protect the interests of Mr Dave West, the curator of the East Point Reserve, who lives at Peewee Camp. We will see that he gets some sort of security of tenure over his place there and will not be thrown out on the street after all the years of good work that he has done.

High Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Has the Department of Education grossly underestimated the demographic trends in the northern suburbs of Darwin? Is it true that a decision not to build Sanderson High School will cause both Casuarina and Dripstone High Schools to take in an additional 300 students each within the next 2 years?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will obtain some details for the honourable member. Unfortunately, I cannot carry around in my head the results of demographic studies of the Department of Education, which are quite extensive. However, it appears on the surface that there has been some miscalculation. Student numbers did not accord with projections. The matter is under review and I am taking a personal interest in the subject of school facilities. Decisions will be taken in due course on exactly which way the government should approach the subject. The government is prepared at all times to look at the most appropriate way to go about the provision of educational facilities in the Northern Territory and I will do exactly that. If the honourable member wants specific details of the demographic projections and the numbers of students turning up at schools, I will be happy to provide them to him.

Resource Teachers in Primary Schools

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What is the government's current policy with respect to the provision of resource teachers in primary schools?

ANSWER

The situation in regard to resource teachers in primary schools has not changed, to my knowledge, for some time. Her question seems to imply that there have been some recent changes to the formulae provided to schools by the department.

Aboriginal Teachers

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Could he advise of his government's current policy on the replacement of Aboriginal teachers in Aboriginal schools who go to ATEC at Batchelor?

ANSWER

I think that honourable members opposite had better get used either to placing such questions on notice or giving me some advance warning of them. If honourable members expect me to carry in my head the whole range of education policies, they are very much mistaken. I give them forewarning now that I will not be able to answer questions off the cuff.

Mr B. Collins: You had better liven up your departmental briefing procedures.

Mr PERRON: The honourable Leader of the Opposition is obviously getting a bit flappy over there in his corner. He does not like the idea. He can try a little bit harder and have a bit more influence in the Northern Territory to do the things that he really thinks should be done.

Yipirinya School

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Could he advise the current state of legal action in respect of the funding of Yipirinya School?

ANSWER

The carriage of the legal action related to Yipirinya School is in the hands of the Attorney-General.

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr PERRON (Education) (by leave): The honourable member for Nightcliff asked if parents had the right to prevent corporal punishment being administered to their children in schools in the Northern Territory. I am advised that parents, in fact, can remove a principal's authority to administer corporal punishment in a school either by an oral or written request and principals must comply with that request. However, if parents take this action and a principal deems that a particular child is obviously quite troublesome in a particular school, he has the right to request the parents to take some appropriate disciplinary action themselves.

Core Curricula for Northern Territory High Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

How far advanced is the program of developing core curricula for Northern Territory High Schools?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is pretty difficult to put a finger on the degree of advancement. If the honourable member wishes specific information, I will be happy to provide it to him. I do not know whether it happens to be 26% or 36%.

Unfortunately, I do not have the figures with me.

Rural Roads Conference

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise where and when the next Rural Roads Conference will be held?

ANSWER

The annual Rural Roads Conference will be held in Alice Springs on 11 April. This will provide a forum for pastoralists, road users, tourist operators and so on to state their problems to government and provide some input for the budget to be brought down in August of this year.

Sand Mining at Howard Springs

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

I ask him this question on behalf of a well-known Territory prospector, Mr Fabian. It relates to an application to mine sand at Howard Springs. Why is the registrar the sole objector to his application? Did Howard River Sand Supplies knowingly overpeg with the department's approval? Why was the permit which was to have been issued to the company subject only to readvertising and withdrawal from private land? Why has the application been readvertised under the same number, EPN18, when, after inspection by the Department of Mines and Energy and Mr Fabian, no such data existed as that readvertised?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in answer to the speech just made by the honourable member for Victoria River, I would suggest that he obtain a copy of a letter which I have written to the gentleman setting out the matters in detail. It is a pretty complex matter. It is not the only one of this nature so I hope that I have the right one. I have written in detail to the gentleman concerned explaining the position. That gentleman, if it is the same one, has written back to me apologising for the confusion and saying that he did not understand the rules.

Relief Teachers' Salaries

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is it government policy to pay relief teachers as if they were not qualified until such time as they produce documentary evidence of their qualifications? Is it government policy to back pay teachers at the appropriate rate once evidence of their qualifications has been produced?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I suggest that the honourable member place the question on notice.

Security at Katherine Rural College

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

He will be aware that there have been security problems at the Katherine Rural College with students at times being harassed by inebriated persons, presumably from the environs and township of Katherine. Could he indicate what steps have been taken to overcome these problems?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Katherine Rural College went through a period of some turmoil, particularly over the Christmas period. The matter has been addressed in some detail. Officers of the Department of Education have investigated the matter. I would rather not give a lot of detail on that. The college now has a new principal who is a man in whom everyone has placed a great deal of faith. From my brief chat with that gentleman when I went to meet him in Katherine, he seems to be a very upstanding sort of man who could pull the Katherine Rural College together. Some of the difficulty there stems from the fact that we have people working there with 2 distinct backgrounds. There are lecturers, educationists, professionals and also farm workers who are there to do the more manual and practical tasks of instruction on tractors and farm work etc. In the past, a degree of jealousy has built up between them and I think that is unfortunate. I can see that being dissipated by sensible discussion. Altogether, only about 9 people are involved. If it is not possible for them to sort a few problems out round a table, we will have to look at the question again.

However, I can assure the honourable member that the matter is very much under the eye of the Department of Education. I have given specific directions about the chain of command to the principal of the Katherine Rural College so that he will not have to go through a number of people to get urgent decisions if he needs them. We have to bear in mind that it is a residential college. It is not an institution that opens its doors at 8 or 9 in the morning and shuts down at 5 o'clock. I hope that the bubble that we have had over the past 3 months has now burst. I would be interested to hear if there is any recurrence of the problem.

Northern Territory University

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

If the government's current submission is approved by the TEC in June, what is the timeframe for the establishment of a Northern Territory university?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the submission indicates that the Northern Territory government is seeking funding in the 1985 to 1988 triennium. If the Tertiary Education Commission accepts the submission, and certainly we hope it will, particularly now that the full weight of the new federal government is behind the establishment of a full university in the Northern Territory, we will be watching very anxiously for evidence of that government's support. As the honourable member will be aware, the submission argues for the progressive establishment of a university. We do not propose it would be built in one capital works program and then filled with a couple of hundred lecturers and a couple of thousand students. It is a matter of developing full university facilities in the Northern Territory.

I think the honourable member has asked a fairly facetious question. If he reads the submission, he can see quite clearly the section which relates to the timing of the establishment facilities.

Fire Control in Darwin Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the fact that he has responsibility for the Police Force which has responsibility for the Fire Brigade which has responsibility for fire control in the Darwin rural area, has consideration been given to forming a fire management committee to look into fire control in the rural area and, if so, will there be representatives from the rural area on this committee?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have had discussions recently with the Commissioner of Police and senior representatives of the fire service as well as representatives of the Conservation Commission and the Bushfires Council in relation to currently foreseen fire control problems in the rural area. The fire authorities informed me that they foresee no greater fire danger for this year than in any previous Territory dry season. In relation to burning off, the fire control authorities believe that slow, early burn-off should take place rather than at a later time when it could get out of control or occur accidentally.

At this stage, the matter is more under the control of the Minister for Conservation, although I formulated the policy in relation to the rural areas. At this stage, I am not entirely familiar with progress. I know that the matter is progressing. I believe that it may be at a stage where consultants have been engaged to provide a further report to Cabinet subsequent upon various public meetings held last year to gain views from people. I cannot say at this stage whether a fire management committee will be formed. Therefore, I cannot give any undertaking in respect of representation on it by people from the rural area. I will bring the question to the attention of the Minister for Conservation when he returns to Darwin. I am sure that he will be able to write to the honourable member and give her a detailed response.

Northern Territory Air Charter

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Could he advise the present situation regarding Northern Territory Air Charter Pty Ltd?

ANSWER

There has been some media coverage of events concerning Northern Territory Air Charter Pty Ltd. I have a copy of a telex sent to the Managing Director of Northern Territory Air Charter Pty Ltd by the Department of Aviation, South Australia-Northern Territory region, concerning that company:

> It has been brought to my attention that there are serious doubts regarding the safety of your commercial flying operation. These doubts have been raised following direct communications from your approved Chief Pilot, Mr S. Mailer, that he has withdrawn his services and no longer oversights your operations. Operational competency of your flight crew has been highlighted through 2 incident reports involving Piper PA 31 aircraft VH WJK: an unscheduled diversion during a flight Darwin/ Goulburn Island/Croker Island due to fuel shortage or management problems on 21 March 1983 and a forced landing today on the beach near Charles Point due to engine failure. Other allegations which require investigation are related to pilot qualifications, route checking, recent experience, flight time limitations, aircraft serviceability.
> *In consideration of the matters before me, I consider sufficient doubt exists regarding the safety of your operations to suspend your operating licence. In accordance with my delegated powers under Air Navigation Regulation 200A, I herewith suspend your charter and aerial work licence No SANTA69 and your supplementary airline licence No SANT3 for the purpose of investigating these matters. Palm Leaf Beetle

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

A number of parasites have been introduced into the environment to control the palm leaf beetle. Is he able to inform me whether the spread of the parasites is going according to plan?

ANSWER

The palm leaf beetle parasite has been released in the Darwin city, Stuart Park, Kahlin, Parap and Fannie Bay areas. Releases in the northern suburbs are about to commence. Before the end of March, the first surveys will be made to see how successful the establishment has been. Members of the public are advised not to expect improvements to their coconut palms overnight as it will be some months before any effect of the parasite may be seen, even after the insect has become well established.

Medical Fraud and Over-servicing Recommendation

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

One of the recommendations of the medical fraud and over-servicing progress report of the Commonwealth Joint Committee on Public Accounts was: 'State and Commonwealth governments, in consultation, could introduce uniform medical registration legislation to provide for national registration of medical practitioners'. Does the Northern Territory government support this recommendation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am unable to provide the honourable member with the information she requires. However, I undertake to provide it during this sittings.

Insurance against Flood Damage

Mr VALE to TREASURER

Has he directed the Territory Insurance Office to advise people that they are not covered under normal household policies for flood damage?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the short answer is yes. I would like to elaborate a little. Yesterday morning, I addressed a conference of state government insurance managers, which is being held in Darwin. I took the opportunity to suggest to them all that they revamp some of their forms of application for insurance for householders to make it absolutely clear exactly what is covered when insurance is taken with a particular company. There are, of course, quite a number of what one might call ordinary exclusions from a householder's policy. Most of them can be picked up for a small extra premium. Certainly, the question in the Territory at present relates to flood insurance rather than any other type. But there are such things as: high water resulting in inundation from the sea, including storm surge; erosion or earth movement which, in some areas in the Territory, could be a significant factor; storm damage to gates, fences and retaining walls; and another normal exclusion under a householder policy is plate glass unless a specific request is made for it to be included. There are other general limits and exclusions. There are limits to the amount that an insurance company will pay on the loss of valuable items such as furs, jewellery, curios, works of art etc. They are normally covered but there is a fairly low limit set on the amount that the insurance company will pay without specific provision being made at the time of taking out the policy. Some items are not covered at all unless specified; for example, deeds, securities and coin and stamp collections. No doubt, that will be of interest to a number of Territorians who have those things. Accidental damage and breakage is covered only in limited circumstances. That refers to things like plate glass. In some insurance policies, damage by tenants is not covered unless specifically asked for.

I have asked the Territory Insurance Office to revise completely its application form for householders insurance to make it absolutely clear that, when a person takes out a policy, he has to specifically indicate what he wants cover for. The policy will show what extras are available so people will know without any shadow of doubt exactly what they are covered for in the event of disaster. Unfortunately, insurance is one of those things we all take a little for granted. People hope that their house will not be damaged in a storm, fire or flood. It is very easy to just pay the basic minimum premium and say: 'Well, I am covered'. Of course, once the damage is done, people feel sorry afterwards that they were not adequately insured.

I will ensure that the Territory Insurance Office heeds my request and improves its system of advising at least policy holders and potential customers exactly what the position is. I am talking about the TIO because it is one of my portfolio responsibilities. There are, however, many other insurance companies in the Northern Territory which hopefully will heed similar warnings. I will be writing to most of those companies requesting that they take similar action.

Insurance Cover for Storm Surge Areas

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

This relates to the answer just given. In the list of the exclusions which can be covered by the payment of an extra premium, he mentioned storm surge as damage due to cyclone. Can he confirm that the Territory Insurance Office will not cover that area of insurance at any premium? In fact, it is my understanding that no private insurance company in the Northern Territory will either.

ANSWER

Advice given to me over the last few days is that an applicant who wishes to insure against storm surge will have his application assessed. There may be situations where the Territory Insurance Office may not give storm surge coverage at all. I believe that there are areas where it will give it. There are a number of surge zones in Darwin. The possibility of cyclone surge can be determined statistically. Provided that an insurance company is very careful about how it calculates its premiums, there would seem to be no particular reason why coverage should not be offered in this field. I must admit that such coverage could be fairly expensive.

Cost of Royal Visit

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What has been the cost to the Northern Territory government of the visit of their Royal Highnesses, the Prince and Princess of Wales?

ANSWER

The matter of cost of the royal visit was raised yesterday or the day before during the course of some ravings by a political activist, Gary Foley. He was in Alice Springs purporting to launch a book about Aboriginal health that was published in 1981 and which is already out of date if it ever was factually correct, for the most part anyway.

It is not possible at this moment to give a precise estimate of the cost to the Northern Territory of the royal visit. However, I must say that I believe that the royal visit was of untold benefit to central Australia and to the Northern Territory generally from the point of view of the enormous amount of national and international media coverage which just could not have been bought. Frankly, if $100m had been budgeted, it would not have bought the sort of publicity resulting from the juxtaposition of the royal visit and the flooding at Alice Springs. I express my sympathy for the people who have suffered as a result of the floods but, if you look at the silver lining in the cloud, those 2 or 3 days of crisis in Alice Springs rivetted the attention of the world on the centre of Australia. The arrival of the Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince William maintained that interest for another 2 or 3 days. The royal couple visited Ayers Rock and highlighted that remarkable tourist attraction in central Australia. Judging from the number of calls that I received from international media organisations, such as the NBC network in the United States and the BBC in Great Britain, I am sure that the coverage of the whole event was extraordinary. Photographs of establishments such as the Alice Springs Hotel Casino and the Gap Hotel Motel featured on the front pages of papers overseas. Thus those people have benefited tremendously from the visit.

Everyone associated with the visit worked very hard. I would like to pay a tribute to the people in the Northern Territory protocol area, the Northern Territory police and 11 other organisations concerned with the visit. Everything went pretty smoothly considering that we had to deal with 150 media people, many of whom were hard to please and all of whom had spent a lot of money to get here and wanted the best photographs or the closest closeup. Aside from 1 relatively small incident at Ayers Rock, everything went pretty smoothly although there have been complaints by the public in Alice Springs that the media, to some extent, prevented the ordinary people of Alice Springs getting to see as much of their Royal Highnesses as they would have liked. I am sure that we all appreciate that the extreme popularity and newsworthiness of the royal couple means that they will always be surrounded by a large group of people.

Mr Speaker, the town of Alice Springs must settle down now after the excitement and clean up the flood damage. The government will be helping the town council to meet its expenses. Our own expenses to repair damage will run in the order of $1m. I think the people of Alice Springs behaved pretty well in all the circumstances, responding as they did to the royal visit. I think the visit was a morale booster to the people.

Our preliminary estimate of costs of the visit is $50 000. I can provide more detailed information later. It was the bargain of the century for the Northern Territory taxpayer because normally we spend $5m or so a year in tourist promotion. This was just beyond price.

Ro-Ro Facility

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that seawater was used as ballast in the Ro-Ro facility on its journey from Singapore to Darwin? Is it a fact that the internal section of the Ro-Ro has not been painted and, as a result, extensive corrosion has occurred?

ANSWER

I am not aware whether seawater was used as ballast in the Ro-Ro or not. I know that there are continuing differences between the contractor and the subcontractor and those matters are yet to be resolved.

Reprographics Holdings (NT) Pty Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

This relates again to the letting of a contract to a particular firm.

Will he confirm his previous advice to this Assembly that a tender for aerial photography was let to Reprographics Holdings (NT) Pty Ltd on 30 April 1982 and not to the Queensland company Reprographics Pty Ltd to which his answer of yesterday related? If so, will he advise the Assembly how it was possible to let a tender on 30 April 1982 to a company which was not incorporated until 26 May 1982?

ANSWER

I will seek the information the honourable member has asked for. I referred yesterday to answers I gave in a previous sittings on the subject when this tender was first let and caused some concern. Now she has created some confusion in my mind on the companies by mentioning Queensland and so on. The word 'reprographics' rang a bell with me of course. Whether she referred yesterday to Reprographics Northern Territory or Reprographics Queensland, I am not quite sure. In the light of this, I had better have a look at the subject and provide a written reply. It is a sensitive matter, of course, once one goes into the letting of past contracts. However, from time to time we examine complaints on this subject. This one has been looked at thoroughly by the Tender Board at least twice to my knowledge. Both times, it confirmed completely the course that was taken and I am sure that any future review will do the same. However, I will endeavour to provide a written statement to the honourable member on this subject.

Repair of Flood Damaged Property in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Would he be prepared to meet, at an early date, with the Acting Mayor of Alice Springs and the aldermen to discuss repairs to the many facilities under the control of the Alice Springs Town Council, which were damaged by recent floods?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, during my visit to Alice Springs this week, the acting mayor expressed his concern at some of the liabilities the council might incur as a result of flood damage in the town. He indicated that he would be very keen to meet with the government, and myself in particular, as soon as the council has made an assessment of its position. I accept that so much effort was put in during the 2 or 3 days before the visit of their Royal Highnesses that there was little opportunity for the council to make a comprehensive assessment of its position. As soon as the council has done that, I will be only too pleased to meet with it and discuss any problems created by the flood damage.

Inmates at Gunn Point Prison Farm and Darwin Prison

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I ask, on behalf of the member for Tiwi, if it is correct that numbers of inmates at the Gunn Point Prison Farm and Darwin Prison are down and whether he can suggest reasons for this?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, numbers are down in all the Northern Territory prisons. In fact, at this stage, we have more warders than we have prisoners. This is a phenomenon that has not occurred very often in the past and it has raised some questions within the department as to where we are going. Preliminary investigations have started as to why the prison numbers may be dropping at their present rate and where they will level out. At this stage, no definite information is available to suggest why jail numbers are continuing at a low level. If any solid information becomes available to explain the trend, I will be only too pleased to bring it to the attention of the honourable member.

Class Sizes in NT Primary Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Given that a working party was appointed some time ago to look into the issue of class sizes in Northern Territory primary schools and that that group made recommendations to the department in September last year, can he indicate when he intends to make those recommendations available to the Assembly and what action he will take on them?

ANSWER

I cannot advise the honourable member when I will make those recommendations available to the Assembly or indeed if I will. The subject that he refers to is covered to some degree in a document I will be tabling in the Assembly this morning. If I recall correctly, class sizes for primary schools will also be considered by the Northern Territory government in the near future in the budgetary context. Until that time, I am reluctant to give out any further information on the subject.

Former Federal Member for the NT

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Has the former federal member for the Northern Territory been interviewed for a job in the Northern Territory Public Service or any of the Northern Territory statutory organisations?

ANSWER

I cannot say that I envy the honourable member for Nhulunbuy his mind which must lurk somewhere in the dimmer recesses of the sewer. The former federal member for the Northern Territory - whose friendship I value and who served the Northern Territory well in the term for which he was elected to represent this Territory - has only just become officially aware that he has lost the seat. As far as I know, he has not been interviewed by any public or governmental body for a position. However, I cannot give any categorical assurance in relation to that because I do not know to what area the innuendoes of the so-called honourable member for Nhulunbuy refer. I can say that the services of the former member for the Northern Territory, Mr Grant Tambling, would be an asset to any government. I notice that, down in Victoria, the Cain government is hiring Labor Party hacks as fast as it can. In New South Wales, we have the example that the former Leader of the Opposition for the Northern Territory, Mr Jon Isaacs, is second in charge of the Department of Aboriginal Affairs, which obviously has not helped Aboriginal affairs in New South Wales. I understand that Mr Wran is in really hot water with land rights in New South Wales. Aborigines in New South Wales want the same land rights as apply in the Northern Territory. Mr Isaacs, Mr Wran and Mr Walker are just not prepared to give that to them.

Mr Speaker, if I receive an application from the former member for the Northern Territory for any position in the government, I will treat that application on its merits. Mr Tambling is a person of some considerable merit.

Katherine Hospital Facilities

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware of the strain placed on the operation of Katherine Hospital by the lack of facilities for the care of geriatric and convalescent patients who should not be hospitalised?

ANSWER

I am aware of the problem in Katherine. I would like to advise the honourable member that in June 1981 the Department of Health funded a study to the tune of $6000 for a steering committee to look at that precise problem. I understand that that steering committee has made a recommendation to the Department of Health and the Commonwealth government. Once the results of those discussions are known, I will provide the honourable member with the relevant information.

Provident Fund for NTEC Employees

Mrs LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I am aware that he has had discussions with union delegates regarding the establishment of a provident fund for some categories of NTEC employees. Can he advise if it is his intention to establish such a fund and, if not, what alternative arrangements will be made?

ANSWER

I am sorry that the honourable member for Nightcliff was absent from the Assembly yesterday when I made my statement on superannuation. If the member had heard that statement made yesterday morning in relation to the Superannuation Bill, she would know that arrangements have been made for industrial category employees of NTEC with their union, that these arrangements are apparently satisfactory to all the parties and that they will be implemented under the provisions of the Superannuation Bill when it becomes an act.

Research Activities of Department of Primary Production

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he give details of investigations being carried out by his department into rationalisation of its research activities?

ANSWER

I can assure the honourable member that the new Secretary of the Department of Primary Production is very keen to review all activities within the department at the moment. He has expressed concern about some of them and has asked me to take an interest in 1 project in particular which I had the opportunity to visit last week. I refer to Tortilla Flats. The new secretary has indicated his concern that it will be extremely difficult to sell rice at a viable price in the years to come and that the Tortilla Flats project should be reviewed in that light.

As I understand it, Tortilla Flats has operated in the Northern Territory as a rice support investigation project for about 20 years and it has had various degrees of activity during that time. At the moment, about 10 people work on the Tortilla Flats rice project and we spend $230 000 to $240 000 a year in that area. The work is very interesting and fairly comprehensive. At this stage, the rice agronomists are concentrating their efforts on establishing rice varieties which might do particularly well in that environment. The agronomists have shown that they can hope to harvest about 5 t of rice per hectare from a wet season crop. It is unlikely that anybody will make any money from a harvest of 5 t of rice per hectare on a wet season crop. Additional attention has now been turned to the possibility of cultivating a dry season crop as well which, ultimately, would give the rice farmers viability.

Even if wet season and dry season crops can be established and proven economic for a farmer, there remains the difficulty of having a single-crop farm. Most agriculturalists like to produce a variety of crops so that they can benefit from the highs and lows of markets that develop during the course of time. If we were to look for farmers to come to this area and suggest to them that they grow only a single crop, that would not be in the best interest of the farmers or ourselves.

It has been put to me that Australian rice production at the moment is about 700 000 t a year. 85% of this product is exported and the 15% that we consume locally is sold at very high prices when compared to the export price. From the Northern Territory's point of view, we would have to produce very high quality rice to benefit from the high domestic price or, alternatively, accept that our rice would all have to be export quality. That would present more problems for the fledgling rice industry that we would have to establish. There has been a complete upheaval in the international rice market in the last 2 to 5 years as a result of several factors, Mr Speaker. The first is that former rice importing countries in the world have made a very concentrated effort to become self-sufficient in rice. Secondly, the former exporters of rice, such as Japan and Indonesia, have now reached the stage of production where there is a glut of rice in their own countries and they are unable to sell it.

Against this background, cultivation and marketing of rice by the Northern Territory would seem a pretty precarious proposition. Another aspect of the development of rice production in the Northern Territory is the contribution that someone would have to make to infrastructure. The level of infrastructure necessary would be almost unbelievable. If we look at production of dry season crop, we are talking about irrigation for that crop that would require the construction of a dam, particularly in the upper Adelaide River area. That dam would cost in the order of $40m in 1979-80 dollars. We would also have to take into consideration the cost of drainage to alleviate the possibility of flooding for 3 farms at a cost of about $500 000. On-farm development costs in that area would be particularly expensive because access roads to the rice fields would not be cheap to build. Further to that, the cost of infrastructure relating to the milling, storing and handling requirements for a rice facility in the Northern Territory would be in the vicinity of $10m. The initial capital necessary for a concentrated rice effort is pretty considerable.

Because of the doubts that have arisen in the secretary's mind and the obvious arguments that confront us, I have asked him to obtain for me some papers from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics and the New South Wales Ricegrowers Cooperative that would give an indication as to where the rice market is heading, because we are really looking at a long-term project. As I said last week, I had the opportunity to talk to the staff involved in the Tortilla Flats rice project, and they expressed to me concern that the programs they are conducting currently could take between 5 and 20 years of intensive agricultural investigation and, at the end of that period, we could find that rice is not a viable proposition in the Northern Territory.

Against that background, it is important for us to consider our options. There is an urgent need for us to evaluate the agricultural and horticultural priorities and opportunities that are available to us. There are areas close to Darwin for instance, that would accommodate the establishment of 10 to 15 horticultural farms, each of about 100 ha. The obvious advantage of such farms would be that, in the short term, we would know without much doubt whether they would be viable. I think that, within a very short period, the ADMA experience has given us a great deal of hope and encouragement that agriculture in that area will be viable if we persevere with it. We need to develop some horticultural farms around Darwin to see whether we can make them viable. If so, then we can grow locally the food that we can consume ourselves and stop spending our hard-earned money on importing all our food.

In the Katherine district, Mr Speaker, which you know particularly well, private investment in recent years has established that there are some exciting market prospects for horticultural projects. As a result of that horticultural investment, it is not unreasonable for the department to offer a great deal more support to the horticulturalists in that area to have more people involved in growing things, particularly with a view to exporting products to the southern markets.

Further south, it is possible to establish a table grape industry in the Ti Tree basin. Honourable members might recall that I referred to this briefly the other day during debate on the address in reply. This is a great opportunity for horticulture in the southern part of the Territory. The table grape industry developing there will operate without any competition at all. Their table grapes come on the market 2 to 3 weeks before grapes are available from other parts of Australia. There is nothing like being first into the market with any product and I am sure, Mr Speaker, that, as a pastoralist, you appreciate the value of that.

The other day the Chief Minister indicated that there is a need for us to centre our investigative efforts in agriculture and horticulture in the Northern Territory into a concentrated area rather than spreading them too thinly. Mr Speaker, I was very encouraged to hear the Leader of the Opposition say: 'If we are to have an industry of any scale here, we must be able to produce crops that are competitive in an international commodity market'. That is pretty sound thinking on which agriculture and horticulture in the Northern Territory should go forward.

That is the background against which the secretary of my department is looking at the priorities in the agricultural and horticultural areas within the department. There is no big secret about anything that is going on. If members have a particular interest in any project, I will be happy to open up the files to them and let them be a part of the investigations and considerations that are proceeding. If any member has a point to make in relation to this particular matter or other assessments that the department will be making in the course of time, I will be only too pleased to listen to what he has to say.

Australia Day Date

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

What has been the reaction from industry, unions and community groups to the Chief Minister's proposal to celebrate Australia Day on 26 January?

ANSWER

As I mentioned when introducing the bill to amend the Public Holidays Act last week, I had indicated the government's intention on Australia Day itself. Since then, I have sent telexes to all the state premiers, to the Prime Minister, to Australia Day Councils throughout the various states and I have written to all the various industrial groups in the Northern Territory. When I say industrial, I mean organisations such as Master Builders, Chamber of Industries, Trades and Labour Council and the like.

To date, the response has been somewhat disappointing. Although there has been quite massive support from within the community for the change in relation to the celebration of Australia Day on the day itself, and indeed surveys show that quite an overwhelming majority of the community wants that, nonetheless the response from the 2 state governments from whom I have since heard has disappointed me. Both Victoria and Queensland came back with a negative response. They have indicated that the present situation suits them. It seems to me that I have a job in front of me to convince those 2 states to change that attitude.

One of the brighter lights on the horizon, of course, is the support of New South Wales and, hopefully, the continued support of the Commonwealth government. The former Prime Minister was of this mind and I hope that the new Prime Minister is also. Within the Northern Territory there has been a great deal of support and it is sad to say that the only opposition has come from the Trades and Labour Council which has written back to me and said that it can see absolutely no point in changing the date for the celebration of Australia Day. Therefore, it appears that the government will not have the support of the unions at the time that it makes any meaningful application to an industrial tribunal in relation to the changing of various federal awards which also run in the Northern Territory.

This is a great pity because I believe that we will never get Australia Day off the ground as a day for national consideration of what this country is all about rather than just a day of national celebration, although I celebrate the fact that I am an Australian. I think all of us have cause to celebrate the fact that we are Australians, no matter what colour and what race we may be. It does seem a pity that the Trades and Labour Council seems to be putting other considerations in front of those which should, in these circumstances, motivate it.

Archives Building in Alice Springs

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I preface my question by advising that on 5 February the honourable minister announced that, because of climatic conditions, he intends to establish an archives building in Alice Springs. The honourable minister will be well aware that that is a lot of rot because any archives building is humidity and temperature controlled. Has he sought or received advice on the disadvantage of establishing the archives in Alice Springs over 1000 miles from the major research institutions in the Northern Territory, particularly the hoped for university?

ANSWER

The decision to place the archives in Alice Springs was taken for very good reasons. Firstly, there is a difference in cost of establishing such a facility in an arid zone rather than in a humid area like Darwin. I can also advise the honourable member that, since that statement was made and the position was reiterated, I have received a great deal of correspondence on the matter from people who are particularly interested in the archives establishment and its activities.

As well, I visited both the Queensland and Western Australian archival operations to inspect the way in which things are done there and what problems they have. The government intends to review the location of the establishment of the archives in the foreseeable future. When the consideration has taken place, I will be happy to give the honourable member advice on the final outcome.

Dundas House

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the Department of Health intend to take over the premises known as Dundas House in my electorate from the Department of Community Development and, if so, to what use does the Department of Health intend to put this property?

ANSWER

At the moment, the rehabilitation centre is operating out of the old Darwin Hospital in association with the Commonwealth Department of Health and the Northern Territory Department of Health. The Secretary of the Department of Health has examined the Dundas House operation with a view to the possible transfer of that operation from the Darwin site to the Dundas House site in Parap. At the moment, it is only a proposal. Until such time as the secretary of the department has a chance to make a proper assessment, I am unable to provide the honourable member with any further information.

Education for Children at Larrimah

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he advise when the 12 children of school age at Larrimah will have a school room and a teacher?

ANSWER

I am advised that officers of the Department of Education have been to Larrimah twice - in February and about a week ago - to assess the situation there. Eleven children there have been identified as being of school age. A report has been written on the subject for the Secretary of the Department of Education recommending facilities that could be provided at Larrimah so that these children can attend school. I understand that some of the children are doing correspondence work but a number of them probably are not receiving any schooling at all. I will ensure that the department makes an early decision on this subject and that it is communicated to the honourable member and the people of Larrimah.

Activities of Conservation Commission

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

I refer him to the Auditor-General's comments on the Conservation Commission's Statement of Income and Expenditure for the year ended 30 June 1980 which was only tabled in this Assembly on 24 November last year. Will he give an undertaking to provide full details of the substantial amounts of money expended on certain forestry, soil conservation and environmental activities which were performed outside of the commission's terms of reference?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to put the question on notice.

Employment Strategy for School Leavers

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

What was the outcome of government strategy as outlined in the last sittings to employ people who left school at the end of the 1982 school year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, whilst I cannot give the honourable member full and precise details of the outcome of the government's strategy in that regard, I welcome this question because it highlights the steps the government has taken since December last year to put in train various moves to open job opportunities, particularly for young people in the Northern Territory.

It is always the government's concern to maintain a high level of employment in the Northern Territory. Whilst the national economy is straining at present, I think we have done fairly well to keep the level of job creation in the Northern Territory rising. During the last 12 months or so, there has been an increase in the number of jobs available in the Northern Territory by about 1000. I would hope that job opportunities in the Northern Territory during the course of this year are considerably enhanced by the commencement of construction of at least one of the large uranium mining facilities in Arnhem Land, either Jabiluka or Koongarra. From the point of view of jobs, one would have to prefer Jabiluka because it will create about 1500 to 2000 jobs in the construction phase and several hundred permanent jobs once construction is complete.

I have outlined the opportunities that will be available in relation to the railway. There is also the new civil terminal for Darwin airport, the works associated with the basing here of the squadron of Mirage Fighters from Butterworth and the major work associated with the upgrading of Tindal and the construction in Katherine of many more houses to accommodate defence personnel. One of the side effects of the commencement of Jabiluka will be the fact that Jabiru will almost double in size. The present federal government has said many times that it believes the expenditure of money on housing is one of the best ways to prime the pump.

Mr Speaker, we hope all those projects will proceed this year. As His Honour the Administrator said in his speech last week: 'Prosperity is the best antidote to welfare'. Where there is prosperity, where there are jobs, there are many less disadvantaged people. There will be fewer disadvantaged people when more people have the opportunity for employment.

There were 100 jobs made available at base-grade level in the public service and set aside for school leavers. I believe that almost all those positions have now been filled. In many ways it was almost a struggle to fill them despite the suggestion that there were no jobs available for school leavers. Apparently, many school leavers prefer to wait until they get the sort of job they want. I believe they ought to obtain work experience in any job at all so that they will know something about the employment market and receive an income. In any event, almost all those jobs made available at base-grades have now been filled. Also, apprenticeship positions were created in various departments and authorities and I understand that they have been filled.

The Conservation Commission had certain positions made available to it which effectively amounted to hard work in the hot sun. We found some difficulty in filling all those positions. We had no trouble at all in filling 4 positions of computer technician in training for which we received 100 applications. Unfortunately, not everyone can be a computer technician. Let us hope that that area does not have the same experience as the teaching profession and, indeed, professions such as medicine, law, engineering and geology, which have passed through such phases of over-popularity at different times. They all seem to have their vogue. When I started in law, there were 60 students in the whole state of Queensland. Then Perry Mason started on television and, in the first year alone, there were something like 600.

Mr Speaker, in one way or another, I will publicise the precise details of the government's program. Honourable members would have heard last week of the job-creation program whereby federal funds are to be made available to the Northern Territory pursuant to savings made as a result of the wages pause. We were able to hand the first cheque, by way of instalment, to the Fred's Pass trustees last week. They are employing a number of people for quite a long period at Fred's Pass to put in some rather good facilities for the people of the rural area.

Every municipal council in the Territory has been successful in gaining some of those funds. I understand that further details are being sought from them and from other applicants to that we can acquit these funds to the federal Treasury or Department of Finance or whoever we get them from in the federal organisation. As soon as all these details are in hand, the funds will be disbursed. We would like to disburse them as quickly as we can.

We saved some money for Nhulunbuy because there was not even one application for funding of job-creation projects in the Nhulunbuy area. If the honourable member for Nhulunbuy is living in such an idyllic place that there is absolutely no room whatsoever for job-creation projects of any sort, where there is no unemployment and everything is fine, then I would be pleased if he would let us know during the adjournment debate or otherwise. If he can tell us what the story is, we can dispose of those funds down the track or in the bush or here in Darwin. In the meantime, until we hear something one way or the other, we are keeping quite a swag of money for Nhulunbuy.

Southern Section of Department of Primary Production

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has he any plans to give a degree of autonomy to the southern section of the Department of Primary Production?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no plans for the devolution of autonomy to the southern area of the Northern Territory but I understand the secretary of the department is looking at this as a matter of urgency. It would seem that, with the brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication program and some of the horticultural activities that are going on in central Australia at the moment, there is a need for a fair degree of autonomy and responsibility in that region so that the people who are working on the ground can be directly responsible for the decisions they have to make every day. As an example, last year in the Northern Territory we spent a total of $6m on the brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication program. This year, that amount of money is likely to quadruple and I say that in anticipation that the Commonwealth government will support the program that was ratified at the Agricultural Council ministers' meeting recently.

So far as I can see, and I know that the secretary of the department holds the same view, it is pretty unreasonable to quadruple the amount of activity and expenditure in an area such as the southern part of the Territory, which is heavily involved in this program, and at the same time try to administer it from Darwin. I think that it is reasonable that there should be a devolution of responsibility and autonomy in that direction. When it is likely to take place and how it is likely to be done, I do not know. As I receive information, I will make it available to the honourable member.

Dick Ward Drive and Ross Smith Avenue Intersection

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand that a consultant to the Darwin City Council recommended that action should be taken to improve traffic flow and pedestrian safety at the intersection of Dick Ward Drive and Ross Smith Avenue. Does the government intend to provide funds to the council to enable it to overcome problems with this intersection which have resulted from the government's decision to build the connector road?

ANSWER

We have conflicting advice as to the best way to improve the intersection of Ross Smith Avenue and Dick Ward Drive to lessen the impact that those thoroughfare have on the Fannie Bay shopping centre and the people who live in Kurringal flats. Recently, I had a meeting with the Lord Mayor of Darwin and we agreed that changes would be made to the thoroughfare to improve the flow of traffic with minimum disruption to those people who live in the area. One of the difficulties that we are experiencing is the bussing of people from Kurringal flats to Darwin. We are looking at alternative sites for that bus stop and rerouting of the bus. Decisions on those possibilities have not been finalised. As soon as that is done, I will write to the honourable member for Fannie Bay with the relevant information.

Water Supply for Napperby Station

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Following investigations by the Department of Transport and Works into ways of providing a reliable water supply to the Aboriginal people on Napperby Station, a number of recommendations have gone to the minister. When does he expect to make a decision so that this ongoing difficult problem may be resolved?

ANSWER

Immediate action is taking place concerning the establishment of a tank and the cartage of water in the short term so that the Aboriginal people of Napperby can move to the special purposes lease that has been made available to them. Since I became Minister for Community Development, the member for Stuart has been with me on several occasions at meetings with the Aboriginal people at Napperby to try to resolve the water problem. It is not as simple as it may appear.

I will outline for the honourable member some of the difficulties. We have 200 people at Napperby who are keen to move on to their lease and one thing that is preventing that is the lack of an adequate water supply. One option is to pump the water from a bore about 17 km away. That possibility has a price tag of well over $1m. However, the government has not ruled it out. Another option is to put a spear system into the reservoir near the creek and take water from there. Again, there are problems with that in that the quality and quantity of the water cannot be guaranteed. Another option is to cart water by truck from the bore. The bore is 17 km away and, in economic terms, that is quite a realistic proposition. Another proposition that is not totally outside the realms of possibility and is being examined at the moment by the Water Division of the Department of Transport and Works is the establishment of a dam on the creek to hold enough water to provide a regular water supply.

The immediate job is for us to have a tank established on the lease for the Aboriginal people so that they can move down and set up their camp. I might add that the Aboriginal people already have a health clinic there. It does not have services to it but they are able to work from it. Once the tank is in position, in the short term we will be able to cart water until the Water Division has further assessed the options available to us and a decision can be made.

I would emphasise for the benefit of the honourable member and also the member for Stuart, who has a very sincere interest in this matter, that we are determined to provide a reliable water supply for the people of Napperby. The government is working hard on it and the matter will be resolved as soon as possible.

Children's Ward at Katherine Hospital

Mr VALE to MINISTER for HEALTH

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can he advise when the children's ward at the Katherine Hospital will be replaced?

ANSWER

The Department of Health is examining development proposals for the Katherine Hospital in the light of the extension of the RAAF base at Tindal. At the moment, the Katherine Hospital Board, in conjunction with the Department of Health, is examining proposals to redevelop the whole of the Katherine site. Originally, there was a proposal simply to rebuild the children's ward but the Katherine population has expanded in the last few years and the trend is expected to continue. In that light, I have asked that it be put on the 1983-84 design list. If it is successful in a budgetary context, construction should start between 1984 and 1985.

Pensioner Concession Scheme

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I understand that he received a submission from his department regarding anomalies in the present pensioner concession scheme. Could he outline if he intends to extend that scheme to include widows, invalid pensioners and particularly those on repatriation benefits?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can advise the honourable member that we will review the scheme in the next few months. As soon as there is news, the honourable member will be the first to hear about it.

Betting Shop at Casino

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

Is he aware of a proposal, reported in the NT News yesterday, to establish a betting shop at the casino and is such a proposal permissible under the act?

ANSWER

The Racing and Gaming Commission and I were as surprised as anyone to see the article in the Northern Territory News about a proposal to open a betting shop at the new Mindil Beach Hotel Casino. Certainly, no approach has been made to the Racing and Gaming Commission on the subject by either Federal Hotels, the owners of the casino, or any other concern. Such an application, in fact, would be contrary to a provision in the Racing and Betting Act which provides that a bookmaker's shop shall not be in the vicinity of premises where liquor is sold and consumed. If such an application were entertained, it would probably require an amendment to the act.

Also, it is current policy that the Racing and Gaming Commission advertises for applications before a new bookmaker's licence is issued so as to enable selection of the most appropriate person to hold that licence. We have a fair way to go should a serious application be received by the Racing and Gaming Commission for an additional bookmaker's licence.

Education Statement Booklets

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In view of the general nature of the education statement released yesterday, can he advise when the supplementary booklets referred to in that document will be available and if they will be released all at once or progressively?

ANSWER

A number of the documents are virtually ready for release. To date, there are about 9. We can release the completed ones shortly. As new areas of interest emerge in the education field, more documents will be produced. We can release those that are in hand and I will endeavour to see that all members receive copies of them as soon as possible.

Funding for BTB Program

Mr VALE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he advise if the government will ensure that the $24m required to fund the BTB program is made available to the cattle industry immediately so that the BTB program can use the short mustering season to full advantage?

ANSWER

The honourable member would be aware that, for some time now, I have been canvassing with the federal government the possibility of the Northern Territory speeding up its BTB eradication program. The federal government is the prime funder in this area. Funding of the BTB eradication program, and the $24m that the honourable member refers to, was made up by 50% from the Commonwealth, 25% from the meat industry through a levy charge and 25% from the Northern Territory government. The program is considerably behind the level of activity in the states and we need to press on with it and make some progress. Prior to the federal election, the Northern Territory's program was endorsed at the Agricultural Council ministers' meeting. It was regarded as a sensible program to proceed with this year. We received a commitment by the then government that funds would be available.

The Northern Territory has made representations through the Chief Minister to the Prime Minister and from myself to the new Minister for Primary Industries, Mr Kerin, seeking confirmation that the Commonwealth funding will be available. I am happy to read the context of a telegram sent from the Chief Minister's office on 15 March 1983 and to which there has been no reply:

To the Right Honourable R.J. Hawke AC MP, Prime Minister.

Northern Territory Brucellosis and Tuberculosis Eradication Program.

No doubt you will be aware that the Northern Territory fully supports the accelerated program for the eradication of brucellosis and tuberculosis as agreed recently in Agricultural Council, and endorsed in your government's policy speech. The immediate implementation of this program in the Northern Territory is essential so that the additional assistance measures can be in place for the opening of the cattle working season around April of this year.

I therefore seek your assistance in concluding negotiations for the BTB campaign funding arrangements and in executing an agreement between the Northern Territory and the Commonwealth as soon as possible. The Northern Territory Minister for Primary Production, Ian Tuxworth, has today contacted the Honourable John Kerin on this matter which is of vital importance to the Northern Territory. Officers of the Northern Territory Department of Primary Production have been discussing this matter with Commonwealth officials and I understand that the agreement is now close to its final form. I trust that arrangements can be made to have funding available in the Northern Territory for the accelerated program in the last quarter of the 1982-83 financial year. Any assistance you can give to the speedy conclusion of the execution of the agreement and the funding program for the Territory's BTB campaign would be appreciated.

Paul Everingham, Chief Minister.

Mr Speaker, I thought that the response from the federal government would be reasonably prompt considering the urgency of the matter for the government's program. I was concerned that the Leader of the Opposition indicated during debate in this Assembly that he believed this whole program would be subject to financial assessment along with everything else that the federal government had on its plate and that we could not expect that this program would proceed automatically.

Mr Speaker, I make the point again that I believe that programs to stamp out disease in this country are above party politics and I hope that the federal government will respond in an affirmative manner in the very near future.

Family Law Court in the Territory

Mrs LAWRIE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

He will be well aware of the shortcomings and lack of privacy presently faced by people attending the family law court in Darwin, and possibly in Alice Springs. Has he made, or is he making, any approach to the federal Attorney-General to have separate facilities established for a family law court in the Territory?

ANSWER

This difficulty relates to the Chidlren's Court also. I have not had any specific information given to me in relation to privacy of the family law court. I would not think that the federal government would be of a mind to spend money on those sorts of court buildings. Nonetheless, now that the honourable member has raised it, I will certainly take the matter up with officials of the department and perhaps court staff themselves to see what proposals may be put to the Commonwealth government to alleviate the problem. To construct a completely separate family law court for the needs of Darwin might be thought to be somewhat excessive. It would require a library, facilities for counsel, interview rooms, judges' facilities and so on. It would be an enormously expensive undertaking, having regard to the number of family law matters which go through the family law courts in the Northern Territory. Nonetheless, I will certainly raise the matter with the appropriate officials and see what the position is. We will follow it up from there.

Ophthalmologist for Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

What efforts are or have been made by the Department of Health to attract an ophthalmologist to Alice Springs?

ANSWER

The department has advertised extensively for an ophthalmologist for Alice Springs. I had discussions with the Vice-President of the Royal College of Ophthalmology to see whether we could obtain assistance in recruiting an ophthalmologist for the Alice Springs area. I am unable to give the honourable member any further information other than that the department is continuing at all times to try to fill that position.

Carriageway Intersections on Vanderlin Drive

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

When is it expected that improvements to carriageway intersections will be effected on Vanderlin Drive between Lee Point Road and McMillans Road?

ANSWER

Improvements to those intersections will take place in the next couple of months. I have been advised that 3 sets of traffic lights will be installed in the northern suburbs. One will be at the intersection the honourable member refers to. Another will be just a bit further down opposite the garage. As well, lights will be installed where Lakeside Drive enters Trower Road. I will check the facts again and advise the honourable member.

Taxi Confiscated by the Liquor Commission

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HEALTH

What will be the future of Mr Noel Swan's taxi which was confiscated by the Liquor Commission?

ANSWER

I refer the honourable member to the answer I gave to the honourable member for Fannie Bay last Tuesday. I referred to sections 96(1) and 101 of the Liquor Act. At the same time, I advise the honourable member that I will obtain a legal opinion regarding the action of the Liquor Commission. As far as I am concerned, the Acting Liquor Commissioner acted responsibly in this matter. I understand that the Acting Liquor Commissioner has written to Mr Swan advising him that his original decision to take $1000 off him for the return of his vehicle stands. However, I understand that Mr Swan has been given an extra 70 days in which to pay the penalty.

Self-government Lotteries

Mr VALE to TREASURER

Can he advise if he is considering lotteries to celebrate self-government - in other words, annual self-government lotteries? Can he also advise the reaction to date of the proposed 1 July lottery this year?

ANSWER

We have had a very encouraging response to the proposed lottery. Tickets will first go on sale on 7 April. I have been advised that agencies around town are already taking names of people who want to be on the list to buy one of the new Northern Territory government lottery tickets, of which there will be 50 000. We expect that they will be fairly popular.

At this stage, we have not made a decision about running the lottery again. It has been suggested that, if this one is successful, it could become an annual event as part of self-government celebrations. The government will decide that in the future. Specifically, it was looked at as a one-off event.

Bankers' Seminar

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he inform the Assembly of the outcome of the Bankers' Seminar which was to have taken place last year? Has any success been achieved on the government's stated intention of encouraging commercial funding of agricultural development in the Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will obtain that information for the honourable member.

Job Skills Course at DCC

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Have funding problems for the job skills course at the Darwin Community College been resolved yet?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer is yes. Some few weeks ago there was concern that an Aboriginal job skills course run by the Darwin Community College would not be further funded this year. After some toing and froing between ourselves and the Commonwealth government, it agreed to fund the course again this year. It is of concern to state and territory governments that Commonwealth governments - and at present we are talking of past Commonwealth governments - have tended to take such initiatives as this, fund them for the first 1 or 2 years and, once they were running, pull out and leave the state either to pick up the tab or wear much of the odium of the activity shutting down.

The Commonwealth government adopts this practice very deliberately and quite openly. At many ministerial councils and premiers conferences that I have attended, this practice has been condemned persistently by all states. The argument put forward is that, if the Commonwealth proposes a new initiative, it should either continue to fund the project or make financial adjustments in favour of the state involved so that it has the capacity to continue funding it. This was just one example where we got into trouble. The Commonwealth proposed pulling out but, at the last minute, agreed to fund the course for this current year. It will be interesting to see what happens when the problem arises again at the beginning of the next study year at the Darwin Community College.

Buffalo Export to Thailand

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is he aware that the director of the King of Thailand's buffalo herd, Dr Tim, is in Australia? Has any contact been made by the Northern Territory government with this gentleman with a view to interesting him in Northern Territory buffalo?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, over the past few weeks, the government has been looking closely at the possibility of exporting buffalo to Thailand. This was as a result of an initiative taken within the private sector. Our advice from the Department of Trade and the Department of Foreign Affairs is that, while there is a buffalo bank in Thailand and there is opportunity from time to time for people to do business with that bank, there is no great export potential for the Northern Territory in this area. At this stage, we do not foresee any real opportunity of selling buffalo to Thailand. From time to time, there may be an opportunity to present buffalo to Thailand, in very small numbers, as an act of goodwill between governments. I can assure the honourable member that the matter is not being treated lightly and it will be monitored by the government very closely over the years to come. We are very keen to export buffalo to our northern neighbours and make it a viable industry. To do that, we must peddle our wares continually in that part of the world, look for opportunities and make the most of them when they become available.

Pastoral Leases

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS

Have all pastoral lessees met the requirements of their covenants regarding payment of annual rents and, if not, what action is being taken to ensure compliance?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I cannot answer that question off the top of my head. I can advise the honourable member that not all pastoral lessees have met all of their covenants. I requested a review of that position a couple of months ago. I cannot really remember the details of the review but I provided details to the press. I can recall seeing articles in the newspaper indicating that the Barkly region was the region with fewest defaults, central Australia was second, the Victoria River district third and the Darwin and gulf region had the most. It is almost certain that there are lessees who have not paid their Crown rent but I cannot say how many. I suggest that this is an appropriate question for the honourable member to put on notice or write to me about. It is ridiculous to expect a minister to carry round in his head the number of pastoral lessees in the Northern Territory who have not paid their Crown rent for the current 12 months.

As for what is being done to enforce covenants, I am arranging for notices of default to go out to pastoralists who have not complied. I have already signed a number of notices that have been sent to pastoralists in various areas. I must say that, generally, the position is quite reasonable. I refer the honourable member to the newspaper article of a couple of months ago which was fairly complete on the subject.

Driving Licences for 16-year-olds

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Tiwi. During the last sittings of the Assembly, she asked the Minister for Transport and Works to comment on the position in relation to 16-year-olds in country areas obtaining driving licences. Could he advise current government policy on this matter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government has assessed the situation very carefully and will allow 16-year-olds to obtain driving licences. The department, in consultation with the police, Road Safety Council and the Department of Education, is developing a package of conditions that might be attached to the driving licences of 16-year-olds. This will balance the benefit and privilege of driving at this younger age with a need to reduce the likelihood of accident or injury and incorporate a positive approach to driving skills and road safety.

Issues that will be considered will be the possibility of restricting these first-year licences to A class and E1 class and strengthening practical tests for obtaining a driver's licence. An A class licence is for private motor vehicles under 4.5 t gross vehicle mass and an E1 is for motor-cycles under 250 cc. I hope to be in a position to introduce any necessary amendments to the Motor Vehicles Act in the May sittings.

Pensioner Flats

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HOUSING

Last year, the Northern Territory Housing Commission made an application to the Northern Territory Planning Authority regarding the erection of 24 single-storey pensioner flats on a large area of land in Parap Road in Darwin. This proposal has not yet been proceeded with, I understand, because the land has not yet been given to the Housing Commission. Does the Housing Commission still intend to proceed with this proposal in view of the grave shortage of ground-level pensioner flats in Darwin?

ANSWER

My understanding is that the Housing Commission will not proceed with that particular development but has secured land in the northern suburbs. For example, the Housing Commission has successfully negotiated the purchase of land in the Coconut Grove area off Dick Ward Drive for the construction of that type of accommodation. The Housing Commission is also looking at another block of land on the corner of old McMillans Road and Trower Road for the establishment of some pensioner flats there. I am unable to confirm that it will not proceed in the Parap area but my understanding is that other locations are being sought. I will clarify that for the honourable member and advise her at a later date.

Trade Apprenticeships for Females

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I understand that a number of females have taken up apprenticeships in the Territory in trades which have previously been dominated by males. Could he provide any details of those apprenticeships?

ANSWER

I am advised that, with the exception of hairdressing, most trade apprenticeships have been considered in the past to be non-traditional areas for female participation. But I am pleased to advise the Assembly that, whilst in 1979 there were only 2 female apprentices in non-traditional trade areas - that is, trade areas other than hairdressing - in 1982 the figure had jumped to 35 and in 1983 we have 42 female apprentices. These are in the areas of horticulture, electrical work, fitting mechanics, motor mechanics, carpentry and joinery, hand and machine compositing, upholstery, butchery, dental mechanics and instrument fitting.

Mr Speaker, if this trend continues, it will show that there is a definite erosion of the traditional attitude in the community that such trades are really only for male participation. I am sure that some honourable members will be most interested in those figures, having regard to earlier debates.

Old East Arm Hospital

Mrs LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

I understand that responsibility for the administration of the old East Arm hospital has passed from the Department of Transport and Works to the Department of Lands. Could he advise on any future plans for this area?

ANSWER

I am not aware of any specific plans for the East Arm area at the present time. My recollection is that we will locate a cement or clinker grinding plant there but, aside from that, I am not aware of any specific proposals. There is a noxious industry zone in that locality. To the best of my knowledge, no one has made any specific proposals for the use of the East Arm area.

Northern Territory Budget

Mr VALE to TREASURER

In view of speculation about the federal budget deficit, is the Treasurer willing to make any forecasts concerning the Northern Territory budget?

ANSWER

The best I can do is indicate that, with some 3 months to go, it is clear that the Territory should complete the financial year as it has managed to do the previous 4 years: with close to a balanced budget. We will be aiming, of course, for a small surplus. However, there is a little way to go. Even over a 3-month period, much can happen by way of unforeseen circumstances which could affect the outcome of the current year. As far as projecting - as the federal government seems to do - a deficit 15 months hence, I would not even like to try. Certainly, this government has never adopted a strategy that even considered planned deficit budgeting. As long as I am Treasurer, I hope we shall not plan for deficit budgeting in the Northern Territory.

Bus Service for Karama

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Are there any proposals to provide an express bus service to and from Karama during the morning and afternoon peak hours and, if so, when is it expected that such a service will become available?

ANSWER

I do not have that fine detail available to me this morning, but I shall be happy to investigate the matter and advise her as early as I can.

Pumping of McMinns Lagoon Bores

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Tiwi. With reference to pumping from McMinns Lagoon bores into the Darwin water supply, could he inform me how much is being pumped on a daily basis, how long it will continue and how does this pumping affect the level of the bores of individuals living in the area?

ANSWER

An average of 11 mL is pumped per day. There are no plans to vary substantially the amount being pumped at present. Under normal circumstances, pumping from McMinns bore field has little effect on the groundwater available to individual householders. In the extreme, in isolated cases water levels could drop by 4 m which would still leave a depth of 12 m of groundwater available.

Boundaries of Koolpinyah Station

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

Has any decision been taken on the realignment of the boundaries of Koolpinyah Station?

ANSWER

In fact, Cabinet considered a submission from the Department of Lands some little time ago regarding Koolpinyah Station. Cabinet reached certain decisions in relation to the rationalisation of the area of that particular property. Negotiations are presently proceeding between the landholder and the Secretary of the Department of Lands. Those negotiations will be somewhat protracted because taking land is like extracting teeth. We appreciate that there are areas of Koolpinyah that are valuable for reasons other than for pastoral purposes. There are a couple of places on Koolpinyah; the Black Swamp, from memory, is one of them. It is a breeding ground for crocodiles and interests the Conservation Commission. There are other areas of particular interest to the Department of Mines and Energy and some are of interest to the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority.

I am trying to remember details from documentation that I saw before Christmas and I cannot vouch for the absolute accuracy of this information. My recollection is that, after a full investigation of Koolpinyah Station, it was found that there was very little good agricultural land there. It seems that the bulk of it is suitable only for pastoral purposes. Although we want certain rationalisations, changes to roads and a bit of land here and there to add to the Gunn Point Reserve, from memory I do not think any radical changes are proposed.

Housing Commission Contracts

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HOUSING

Can he advise on procedures adopted by the Housing Commission to assess the economic viability of firms tendering for Housing Commission contracts?

ANSWER

My understanding is that the Housing Commission investigates all tenderers for Housing Commission contracts. There is a special committee which involves the technical branch of the Housing Commission. It evaluates all tenderers. Before a contract is let to a successful tenderer, the committee makes a recommendation to the Board of the Housing Commission, advising if that tenderer has the financial and technical capabilities to fulfil the contract.

Marina at Sadgroves Creek

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS

What stage has been reached in the development of marina facilities at Sadgroves Creek?

ANSWER

I am not the best minister to ask about the development of marina facilities. Whilst strictly speaking, this falls within my portfolio, a couple of other ministers are a lot more active in the development of marina facilities. I understand that plans are advanced with the Port Authority for a system of moorings which will be located in or near Sadgroves Creek. The moorings are of a fairly complex nature and will enable a considerable number of craft to anchor there. I seem to recall that some dredging will be necessary. Certainly, Mr Speaker, you can rest assured, as can the honourable member for Millner, that this is a subject of lively interest to at least a couple of members of Cabinet. The matter is proceeding with all reasonable expedition.

Housing Commission Contracts

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HOUSING

Have any Housing Commission contracts been let to tenderers in the last 12 months without a preliminary economic assessment being made of the tenderer?

ANSWER

At the moment, I am unable to provide that information to the Leader of the Opposition but I will obtain it for him. My understanding is that the answer would be no.

Medical Superintendent at Gove Hospital

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

The former Minister for Health in this Assembly last August said that Department of Health doctors would be rotated in and out of remote areas such as Gove. Is this still his department's policy in relation to the Medical Superintendent at Gove Hospital?

ANSWER

It has been the practice of the Department of Health to rotate its medical staff in remote areas on a 3 to 6-month basis. The reason for this is that, once young doctors come up from south and are employed in remote areas, they tend to lose contact with their peer group. It is a good idea to bring them back into the mainstream of the health services to keep them abreast of changing technology and to give them a chance to provide the department with information on what is happening in remote areas.

The honourable member referred to Gove Hospital. At the moment, we have a very good hospital superintendent there, Dr Howard Baker. He has been doing a very good job. In the last 3 or 4 months, the health situation at Gove has settled down under his guidance. Originally, Dr Baker was a private practitioner operating out of the Tennant Creek region. Members of this Assembly placed undue strain on the former Minister for Health by asking him various questions about the arrangements pertaining to Dr Baker's private operations in the Tennant Creek Hospital. The former Minister for Health's loss in this matter has been the Gove area's gain. I would certainly pay tribute to Dr Baker for his services to the people of the Gove area.

Agricultural Development Study

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has the joint Conservation Commission, DPP and ADMA study for the achievable scale of agricultural development in the Top End been completed?

ANSWER

I know that it has not been completed because I asked the other day about areas that are of particular interest to me. My advice was that there was still some work going on by the 3 agencies of government which have been interested in this field. I will be pleased to obtain an updated report for the honourable member but I can assure him that the study is not completed yet.

First-Aid Information in Motor Vehicles

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he given any consideration to the desirability of permanently fixing basic first-aid information in motor vehicles?

ANSWER

The answer is no.

Overseas Travel by Senior Public Servants

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Have senior public servants, who have travelled overseas on official business over the last 12 months, been accompanied by their spouses at government expense? Can he explain the government's policy on senior public servants being accompanied by members of their families on overseas trips?

ANSWER

Some senior public servants have been accompanied on their overseas journeys by their spouses. I take personal responsibility for approval of overseas travel. Such visits are reviewed by a committee consisting of 3 very senior heads of the department who submit their recommendations to me. In certain circumstances, I have suggested that a particular senior public servant be authorised to take his spouse with him. Many of the senior and middle management people in our public service work very hard and long for the Northern Territory because of the tremendous amount of travel involved in operating out of the Territory. When you go south for something, you are gone for 3 days. I know that my wife is not terribly happy with the sort of life that she has to lead as a result of my continuous movement. I do not expect that the wives of senior and middle management public servants are much different. I know of 1 person who is sitting in this public gallery at this very moment who, in the next 3 weeks, probably will not be at home for 1 day because he will be attending to 2 essential commitments in the south. Also, he has to go to Singapore in the middle of all that, again for something that is essential to the interests of the Northern Territory.

I have approved the visits of spouses overseas and within Australia with their husbands. It is an ad hoc situation. Sometimes there is a request for such travel to be allowed and, at other times, there is not. I see all requisitions for overseas travel and travel within Australia for people within my department. Sometimes when there is no request for the spouse to travel, and I know that someone has been required to travel a great deal and work hard, I suggest - quite frankly, as a perk to try to help the spouse accept the situation - that the spouse go with the husband. I am not ashamed of that at all. I believe that it happens in private enterprise. If my wife wants to come with me on some of my visits, why should not the same be the case for the spouses of other men and women whose jobs involve considerable travel? If it is good enough for me, it is good enough for them.

Marrara Sporting Complex

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

Does he intend to establish a management committee for stage 1 of the Marrara Sports Complex?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that a manager for the new Marrara indoor stadium has commenced work in the Darwin area. I intend to let him settle in for a couple of weeks to adjust to the conditions relating to his position. Once I have had a chance to have a discussion with him, I will propose that the Director of Youth, Sport and Recreation consult with him to work out what kind of management operation we want for the Marrara indoor sports stadium. It has been said to me that, since the manager is now here, it might be a good idea to involve the user groups and sporting organisations in our management committee. I see that as a pretty fair proposal but I need a couple more weeks to assess what the final solution will be.

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr DONDAS (Housing) (by leave): The honourable member for Port Darwin asked me a question regarding Carinya flats. It related to the provision of a hot water service to some of the flats. I am happy to advise him that work will commence on the installation of a hot water service for those units before July of this year.

Specialist Medical Services

799 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

Is it a function of Darwin and Alice Springs Hospitals to be a pool for specialist services such as pathology and radiology and, if so, is this function being performed satisfactorily?

ANSWER

Darwin and Alice Springs hospitals are responsible for providing relief staff for specialist services such as pathology and radiology to the small hospitals during leave and illness.

This function is performed satisfactorily provided the hospital in question writes in sufficient time to the Medical Superintendent, Darwin Hospital or the Regional Director, Alice Springs, asking for relief staff. This allows the major hospital to plan its staff movements such as leave etc. to fit in with the requests from the smaller hospitals.

Kalano Association - Department of Health

816 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

How are the financial arrangements with the Kalano Association and the Department of Health proceeding?

ANSWER

The financial arrangements with the Kalano Association are:

1. The Department of Health provides a grant-in-aid to the Kalano Association to assist in the employment of a doctor and an operational grant for an alcohol rehabilitation scheme.
2. The approved funding levels are: employment of doctor, $21 000; and alcohol rehabilitation scheme, $30 000.
3. Payments are made quarterly in advance.
4. The association is required to acquit advances on a quarterly basis within 2 months of the end of the quarter.

The advance payments for the final quarter are due for payment in late March. However, these payments will be held pending satisfactory acquittance of the December quarter advance. An acquittal statement was provided, however, details were incomplete and the association has been requested to provide a revised statement.

Aerial Medical Services

818 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

1. What are the comparative costs of providing aerial medical services, including routine medical and aerial evacuations, at Katherine, Gove and Darwin?
2. In view of cost benefits will Katherine be considered as the regional centre for top end aerial medical services?

ANSWER

1. The cost per flying hour associated with the Aerial Medical Service in Katherine and Darwin is similar. In Katherine it ranges between $398 to $437 per hour depending upon the use of the aircraft, i.e., whether for evacuations or routine visits. In Darwin the cost of the Nomad aircraft is $420 per hour for all operations. However, the costs in Gove are higher as departmentally-owned aircraft have not operated there since late 1981 and are approximately $560 per hour.

2. There is no cost benefit associated with making Katherine the regional centre for top end Aerial Medical Services.

Noxious Weeds - Eradication

823 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION and CONSERVATION

Are all property owners in the Daly River basin cooperating with the Department of Primary Production in eradicating noxious weeds such as noogoora burr?

ANSWER

Not all property owners in the Douglas-Daly basin are cooperating with the Department of Primary Production in the eradication of noxious weeds.

In the case of noogoora burr there has been substantial activity by the department in approaching landholders on the necessity of controlling this weed, but certain landholders are still reluctant to commit time and resources. I also advise the honourable member that the department served a notice under the Noxious Weeds Act to one landholder in the Katherine region because of his repeated failure to control devil's claw.

Under the Noxious Weeds Act, it is the obligation of the landholders to control noxious weeds on their land. It is recognised that some landholders face economic restraints, but the department has assisted in many ways, such as providing advice on control methods, the loan of spray units, and the establishment of the herbicide subsidy. In some instances departmental personnel have undertaken spraying on private property. However, the department requires the landholder to play a much greater role than has generally been the case in the past.

Stuart Highway - Realignment

827 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he aware of plans to realign the Stuart Highway and by-pass the township of Larrimah?

ANSWER

My department has a proposal to upgrade approximately 26 kilometres of the highway in the vicinity of Larrimah during the 1983-84 financial year.

The work involved will provide a wider pavement and realign some sections.

However, it is not proposed to change the alignment through the town. Rather, it is intended to provide for improved road safety, better parking arrangements and substantially decrease the present dust problem.

Newcastle Waters - Power Supply

831 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

1. When was Newcastle Waters (a) provided with a public power supply, and (b) what was the cost of the provision of that power supply?

2. What is (a) the capacity of the Newcastle Waters power station, (b) how many consumers are using the power, and (c) how many people from Newcastle Waters township signed a petition seeking the provision of a public power supply in October 1980?

ANSWER

1. (a) The public power supply at Newcastle Waters was commissioned on 10 April 1981.

   (b) The cost of providing the public power supply was $96 566.

2. (a) The power station at Newcastle Waters is fitted with 2 sets of 65Kw capacity each.

   (b) There are 7 consumers including the school and the town water supply.

   (c) There were 6 signatories to the petiton dated 28 October 1980.

Mt Wells Battery

833 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER ofr LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. Is the area of the Mt Wells battery still part of the Ban Ban pastoral lease?

2. If so, is this the reason for the delay in full payment by Jingellic Minerals to the government for the Mt Wells battery and associated leases?

3. If so, when will this be resolved?

ANSWER

1. No, it was excised from the pastoral lease in 1982.

Questions 2 and 3 should be referred to my colleague, the honourable the Minister for Mines and Energy.

Pathology Laboratory - Darwin Hospital

835 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

1. Can he inform me as to the fate of the pathology laboratory at the Darwin Hospital?

2. Has he considered the future of the laboratory in the light of a lack of such scientific facilities in the Department of Primary Production?

ANSWER

1. The pathology laboratory at Darwin Hospital is to continue to provide services to the hospital and to support and service other hospitals and medical practitioners in the Northern Territory as the need arises.

2. As the department is still using and will continue to use the facility for its intended purpose, no thought has been given to the needs of other departments.

Salvation Army Nursing Home for Aged Persons

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the government support the proposed establishment of a nursing home for the aged in Darwin by the Salvation Army and, if so, will it offer the Salvation Army the same level of financial support that it gives to the Chan Park Nursing Home?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government would support an application from any organisation of the repute of the Salvation Army for the establishment of another nursing home as demand requires. With regard to the level of funding, consideration would have to be within the budgetary context of overall grants-in-aid to organisations that receive those funds from the Northern Territory government.

Use of Police Aircraft for Tourist Purposes

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer to an article in a certain publication recently. Is it a fact that the police plane has been used for tourist purposes in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there is no need for the honourable member for Tiwi to be modest or discreet about the name of the publication. The publication she referred to was the Australian weekly news magazine, the Bulletin. In the Bulletin recently, there have been a number of articles complimentary to the Northern Territory. The Bulletin has not always been so complimentary. I refer to an article that appeared in the issue of 14 December last year. In his column, David McNicholl wrote - and I omit all unnecessary verbiage: 'Shooting a Northern Territory buffalo is about as thrilling and as dangerous as approaching a herd of jersey cows on their way to milking and letting one of the beasts have it with a .303. I speak from some experience having spent a long time in the Territory and having, to my shame, shot 4 or 5 buffaloes'.

Mr Speaker, since I was aware that this was not quite so, especially if one hunts buffalo on foot - and this is my advice from experienced hunters and I am not aware that the Leader of the Opposition is an experienced hunter - I decided to write to the Bulletin inviting Mr McNicholl to come to the Territory to try his skill and, generally speaking, to try to improve the image of the Northern Territory. As a consequence, Mr McNicholl advised that he and Mr Trevor Kennedy of Consolidated Press - Mr Trevor Kennedy is the Editor-in-Chief and Mr McNicholl former editor of the Sydney Daily Telegraph and a well-known Australian journalist - would come to the Territory. They spent a few days here, principally at the Nimrod Safari Camp, where they were guided by the Commissioner of Police. As a consequence, I received an undated letter from the member for Nhulunbuy about a week ago:

Dear Mr Everingham,

I have recently read an article in the Bulletin dated 10 May 1983 in which a David McNicholl writes about his exploits at a place he describes as Channel Point. While I am pleased that Mr McNicholl obviously enjoyed himself and that he conveyed his delight to his readers, I am alarmed that he also told his readers that the Northern Territory Police Commissioner, who appears to have a residence in the Channel Point area, could be used as some sort of tour guide. It would also appear as though the police aircraft can be used as a charter aircraft.

I would appreciate an answer to the following questions because I consider the events as described by Mr McNicholl require some explanation. 1. Was the Police Commissioner on or off duty? If he was on duty, is the role of tour guide part of his job description? If he was off duty does he have the use of a very expensive aircraft, which belongs to the Northern Territory public, while he is off duty? 2. Who flew the aircraft and, if the pilot was a policeman, was the policeman on or off duty? 3. What insurance cover did the aircraft and its occupants have for this flight? 4. Was the flight logged? 5. Which department paid for the expenses incurred on the flight? 6. Was the commissioner acting with or without your knowledge and consent? 7. Does the Commissioner of Police intend to fly any other journalists to various parts of the Northern Territory in a police aircraft?

I feel these questions should be answered in full as it must affect public confidence in the police if the Police Commissioner of the Northern Territory can be perceived with anything other than the dignity and impartiality which his post should hold.

Mr Speaker, I have been weighed down with various decisions the federal government has made and I only got around to replying yesterday:

Dear Mr Leo,

I acknowledge receipt of your letter received on 12 May concerning a recent article in the Bulletin. I note your comments in this regard. If there is any impropriety about the Police Commissioner's actions, which I strongly dispute, I accept full responsibility. The point is that Mr David McNicholl, who is a very senior and prestigious Australian journalist, in his column in the Bulletin magazine dated 14 December 1982, made some disparaging remarks about buffalo hunting in the Northern Territory that could have been very detrimental to the Territory's tourist industry. I enclose a copy of Mr McNicholl's column containing the remarks together with a copy of a letter that I wrote to him on 27 January 1983 following that. Mr McNicholl accepted my invitation extended in that letter to come to the Territory and see for himself. Mr McNicholl was accompanied by Mr Trevor Kennedy, the Editor-in-Chief of the Packer press group. You will appreciate that buffalo hunting and, for that matter, any sort of hunting, is not to be taken lightly by the inexperienced and it was essential that a senior representative of government look after or, as the term goes, host Mr McNicholl and Mr Kennedy. Bearing in mind considerations of safety for these 2 senior people, the only person at a senior level in the government that I know of who is an accomplished marksman and hunter is the Police Commissioner, although the Attorney-General is a marksman. I therefore requested the commissioner to undertake the duty of escorting Mr McNicholl and Mr Kennedy.

As a reader of the Bulletin, you will already have seen that the Northern Territory has had favourable publicity in a couple of issues and, in fact, the 2-page article where mention is made of the Commissioner of Police and the police plane, which is always flown by a police pilot, is an example.

That aside, I would remind you that Commissioner McAuley does have official responsibilities in connection with public safety and in his capacity as Registrar of Firearms. He has been concerned for some time, and I share his concern, that various articles appearing in sporting magazines have tended to promote a belief in the minds of inexperienced hunters that there are minimal risks associated with hunting water buffalo on foot with small calibre sporting rifles. In fact, the contrary is true. I expect that the Police Commissioner should do all within his power to remove these fallacies.

The visit of Mr McNicholl and Mr Trevor Kennedy afforded an opportunity for him to put these matters back in their proper perspective through the medium of an extensively read magazine such as the Bulletin. David McNicholl's article went a long way to achieving this. Mr McNicholl's article in the Bulletin is the sort of publicity that just cannot be bought even if one were able to do so. Advertising is not half as effective as a satisfied customer writing his own story. In any event, the cost of a page in the Bulletin for advertising purposes amounts to $4080. So, spending the Police Commissioner's time and using the police plane for a couple of hours at a total cost of about $450 to fly Mr McNicholl to Channel Point and back in fact saved the taxpayers money.

You might be interested to know that both Mr McNicholl and Mr Kennedy paid their own fares to and from the Territory. Both expressed themselves as most impressed with what they saw of the Territory and I expect that we have only seen the first instalment of goodwill, for which we can partly thank Peter McAuley, in Mr McNicholl's article.

Mr Kennedy expressed his views on how he proposes to use the information and experiences he gained in a letter to the honourable Roger Steele and I quote:

> I cannot thank you enough for your enormous kindness and generosity to me on my recent visit to the Northern Territory. It was a real eye-opener and a great learning experience and made all the more pleasurable by your company and your overwhelming hospitality. I much enjoyed meeting the various people who run the place and it was most impressive to experience their freshness and optimism, something which seems more or less confined to the frontiers these days. David is doing a piece on Nimrod and I am hoping to put together something on the Northern Territory when I fly to London at the weekend. Even though the experience was an enriching one, it has whetted my appetite for more information about the Northern Territory and it should contribute to all of our magazines being better informed on what is a most interesting part of our land.

As the host, if the Police Commissioner had not used the police plane, the government would have had to charter a private aircraft at a cost of about $1320 to take the commissioner and Messrs Kennedy and McNicholl to Channel Point and back.

I consider your letter to be the usual sort of miserable and carping criticism so often made by members of your party against people who are prepared to work long hours, and out of hours, on behalf of the Northern Territory. If Mr McAuley has a residence at Channel Point, it is no business of mine nor is it of yours. I understand several people have purchased land there and all I can say is that I envy them their situation.

I am happy for you to inspect the police aircraft logbooks whenever you wish. Furthermore, it may well be necessary for other journalists from time to time to be flown in the police plane and I make no apology for such arrangements. I trust the above puts into proper perspective the role of the Police Commissioner and the police plane and the occurrence you expressed concern about, and that the dignity and impartiality of his position is indeed enhanced by actions of this nature.

Mr Speaker, all I can say is that, if we are to have that sort of nitpicking persecution of senior officials in this Territory, who are doing the job that they are asked to do by the ministers - and I am the Minister for Tourism - where will we end up? The fact is we have to entertain literally scores of ambassadors, consuls-general, consuls and many other people, some of whom contribute to the Territory. What is the Territory likely to get out of a visit from the Ambassador for Bulgaria? We have to lay on much more for the Ambassador for Bulgaria than we have to lay on for these people. I welcome the visit of the Ambassador for Bulgaria but we get 20 of them a year, 30 consuls-general and scores more consular officials. These are the people within Australia who are going to do our tourist industry a great deal of good.

Employment of Shooter by Conservation Commission

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise me that, to his knowledge, the Conservation Commission for the Northern Territory does not employ one experienced shooter?

ANSWER

The Leader of the Opposition will have to redirect his question to the honourable Minister for Primary Production and Conservation, because I relinquished my post as minister responsible for conservation back in November.

Sale of Housing Commission Houses in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Is the government any closer to resolving the issue of the sale of commission houses to interested tenants in Nhulunbuy?

ANSWER

This is not a matter that has come across my desk in recent times. Indeed, I have not sighted anything on it since I was minister responsible for housing.

Report on Staffing in NT Primary Schools

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Have the findings of the report on staffing in Northern Territory primary schools undertaken in 1982 by a joint departmental and NT Teachers Federation working party been accepted by the government and, if so, when is it proposed that the implementation of the findings of this report will commence?

ANSWER

This matter is currently before Cabinet and, as no decision has been finalised, I am unable to answer the balance of her question.

Fred's Pass Police Office

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the future of the Fred's Pass Police Office and is it a fact that the status of the Fred's Pass Police Office is about to be downgraded?

ANSWER

It is expected that, as population and general activities in the Fred's Pass area and the adjacent rural area increase, the scope of police duties there will be expanded. There are no plans to downgrade the status of the office. The only matter of relevance currently under study is the desirability of installing a telephone transfer system so that, in the event of a call being made to the office during a time when staff members are temporarily absent, the call will be switched to the Darwin Police Station. This arrangement will enable existing staff to engage in more external duties than is currently possible.

Employment of Shooter by Conservation Commission

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Mr Speaker, I would like to redirect my question on the dearth of shooters in the Northern Territory Conservation Commission.

ANSWER

I regret to advise the honourable member that I do not carry that information around in my head but I would be happy to provide it as soon as I can in this sittings.

Ownership of Victoria River Downs and Newcastle Waters Stations

Mr VALE to MINISTER for LANDS

Have applications been received for change of ownership for the cattle stations known as Victoria River Downs and Newcastle Waters?

ANSWER

I understand that, at this stage, an application for transfer of ownership of Victoria River Downs pastoral lease has been received. I am advised that an application for the transfer of ownership of Newcastle Waters pastoral lease should be in my hands shortly. This question has been asked at the request of the vendors and the proposed purchasers. Apparently rumours of the impending transactions are rife around the Territory and I have been asked by the parties to make a statement.

The situation is that it is proposed that the 3 Newcastle Waters Station leases, totalling 10 358 km^2 be transferred from Ashburton Pastoral Company Pty Ltd to Consolidated Press Holdings Ltd and Victoria River Downs Station, comprised of 12 359 km^2, be transferred from Hooker Estates Ltd to Consolidated Press Holdings Ltd. The total area involved in these transfers is 22 717 km^2. I want to bring this matter to the attention of this Assembly because these transfers, if agreed to, will result in the purchaser holding in excess of the maximum area allowed under section 38A of the Crown Lands Act.

My reasons for considering agreeing to a single owner holding such a large area of Northern Territory pastoral lands are as follows. Firstly, the purchaser is an Australian company of substance. The chairman of that company, Mr Kerry Packer, is a well-known Australian who has very diverse interests and the capital and managerial resources to continue to improve each station in the best interests not only of his shareholders but of the Territory's cattle industry. The change of ownership will result in Mr Ken Warriner of Newcastle Waters Station having overall managerial responsibility for the group of properties. Mr Warriner is well known in the cattle industry and is highly regarded as a result of his management of Brunette Downs and, more recently, Newcastle Waters. During Mr Warriner's period of management of both stations, he was responsible for the rapid progress made in eradicating tuberculosis and brucellosis from these herds.

The government believes that, if it agrees to the purchases going through, it will result in a group of pastoral properties that are highly complementary in terms of the BTB program. Successful eradication of disease can only be achieved where fencing, yards and watering points are adequate to control cattle. In those cases where destocking is necessary, it is essential to have access to clean areas for testing breeders. The disease eradication program is now sufficiently well advanced at Newcastle Waters to provide clean areas. The nature of the country at Victoria River Downs means that more rapid progress will result with the partial destocking of this property and the transfer of clean cattle to Newcastle Waters. Once Victoria River Downs is largely destocked and areas declared free of disease, the expanded Newcastle Waters herd will have the ability to restock Victoria River Downs and the adjoining Humbert River lease.

Accelerated funding for the BTB program is now in doubt. The capital that Consolidated Press Holdings will bring to the group of properties will contribute largely to establishing additional improvements on each property. As members of the Assembly will now recognise, successful disease eradication is capital demanding. I am told that Consolidated Press Holdings has committed $1m to such works. I have been advised that the disease control program by the Consolidated Press Holdings group will result in a disease-free herd of approximately 100 000 head of cattle, which could serve as a supplier of breeders to other stations undertaking destocking programs. At present, there are few other herds in the Katherine, Victoria River and Darwin districts that could supply this restocking market. This will benefit the Territory's cattle industry at large.

Members of the Assembly should also note that changes in the corporate policy of the Hooker group have led to a decision to dispose of its pastoral holdings. With such a sale pending, my government was of the opinion that it would be preferable to have a new owner without meat processing facilities. The Consolidated Press Holdings group has no direct involvement at all in meat processing and export and, therefore, will be able to adopt more flexible marketing policies, including the further development of the live cattle export trade.

As stated, the transfer of the 4 pastoral leases to Consolidated Press Holdings will result in a land aggregation of 22 717 km^2. Mr Kerry Packer, Chairman of Consolidated Press Holdings, has advised that he is willing to enter into a commitment, upon successful completion of the disease eradication program on Victoria River Downs Station, to offer sufficient land for sale to reduce the aggregate holding of Consolidated Press Holdings to that permitted under the Crown Lands Act. Application to subdivide into 4 separate leases will be made shortly.

In addition, honourable members should note that Humbert River Station, at present owned by Rural Improvements Pty Ltd, is being sold to the Consolidated Press Holdings Group by way of a sale of shares in Rural Improvements Pty Ltd. This sale is not subject to ministerial consent. It will, however, be incorporated in the group management program and it is the intention of the owner, on completion of the disease eradication program, to dispose of the property.

Mr Speaker, in light of the uncertainty created by the deferral by the federal government of accelerated financing for the BTB eradication program, this could provide an opportunity to maintain a level of effort by an Australian company which would be very hard to refuse. I emphasise that I am still awaiting detailed written submissions from Consolidated Press Holdings over and above the oral submissions that I have already received in the course of several meetings with the principals. It seems to me that, prima facie, we have a situation here where, as minister, I should exercise my discretion to allow the holding in excess of the provisions under section 38A. This is an Australian company which has the necessary capital and entrepreneurial skill, a company that is well known around Australia for its success in virtually everything that it undertakes. It is the sort of company that we should be wanting to get into the Northern Territory. For those reasons, I would be reluctant to refuse consent, particularly in light of the various provisos that have been put to me about subdivision in the future - destocking, clearing of the herds and so on. Nonetheless, if I were presented with a convincing reason, I would refuse consent. While I have not arrived at a final decision by any means yet, I say quite clearly to the Assembly that I am disposed to grant these consents unless someone in this Assembly or outside can show me good reason within the next week or so as to why I should not, assuming I receive the submissions that I have asked for.

Yarralin Aboriginal Community

Mr DOOLAN to CHIEF MINISTER

As the Aboriginal community at Yarralin exists at present solely through the good offices of the Hooker Pastoral Company - no lease of any description has ever been granted - what will be the status of this community of some 200 people if ownership changes?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand from Mr Packer's representatives that there will be minimal changes on the VRD property in terms of personnel, occupiers and so on. I do not think Mr Packer would be in the slightest bit interested in having any confrontation with the people at Yarralin. I imagine they would continue their negotiations for a lease with Consolidated Press Holdings as they have negotiated with the Hooker Pastoral Company in the past.

Service Station Site at Yulara

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer him to negotiations that have been carried out for ownership of the service station site and for building on and operation at the service station site. I also refer him to his claim that the Malpa Trading Company put in a nil bid for this particular service station site. Is he now satisfied that it is not the case that Malpa put in a nil bid and will be reopen negotiations on that contract?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not satisfied that the Malpa Trading Company put in a nil bid. In fact, I am more satisfied than ever that it put in a bid of $1. Mr Speaker, I cannot locate my notes at the moment. Perhaps you could proceed with the next question while I look for them.

Proposed Amendments to Mining Act

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER FOR MINES AND ENERGY

Is it his intention to introduce amendments to the Mining Act to provide for free range exploration licences and strata titling of mineral developments and, if so, what is the intention of these proposed amendments?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the proposal for free ranging is just that. It is a proposal I put to industry by way of a letter to all the people that we could locate who have an interest in mining and exploration activity in the Northern Territory. In addition, it was one of the many major points that I put to mining industry interests in both Sydney and Melbourne during the Northern Territory government's recent investment promotion tour of those 2 centres.

The idea of free ranging was put to me as one that should be put to industry for its reaction. I would like to say that, personally, I do not have a view on it. I can see some plusses in it, particularly for the smaller person and in terms of getting a wider-ranging exploration program going in the Northern Territory. On the other hand, I can see difficulty for the major companies who have spent millions of dollars in exploration in the Northern Territory. I am anxious to weigh up the views of the exploration industry in respect of that subject. Any decision Cabinet makes on that matter will be based upon the submissions made by the industry.

In respect to the question of strata titling of mineral resources, mining as such, honourable members will be aware that a bill is currently before the Legislative Assembly which deals with that. I have no doubt that, during the course of this sittings, honourable members will be making their views known on that proposal.

Mr Speaker, it is a matter that would interest everyone from accountants through to taxation officials. The intention was not to direct it towards taxation although, in some circumstances, it would have an effect on the taxation structure of mining companies. It is peculiar, in some ways, to the nature of some deposits in the Northern Territory that we have different minerals at different levels and we have an infrastructure requirement at the surface of the mine which may be different for each of those different levels. Some companies have different subsidiary companies which operate those different levels. For practical purposes, it may be wise to do so.

The matter is currently before the Assembly. I would appreciate honourable members' views on the provisions currently before us on strata titling. It is one that was put forward to us by industry. It is a matter put forward by myself, with the concurrence of Cabinet, to the Assembly on behalf of industry. If there are more problems in it than there are benefits, then we will take that into account at an appropriate stage.

Radium Concentrates in Mussels

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is he aware that the Office of the Supervising Scientist has discovered high radium concentrates in mussels in the Mudginberri, Quondong and Georgetown Billabongs? Is he aware that, based on international dose limits, the amounts of radium that have been found in these mussels would indicate that if local residents eat several kilograms a year radium levels in their bodies could exceed those that are considered safe? Are the investigations that are being carried out to his satisfaction?

ANSWER

This is a complex question. Quite clearly, it is one that the Co-ordinator-General has been involved in and, therefore, the Chief Minister has been briefed on it too. It is true that, in the Mudginberri Billabong, mussels have been found with a radium content in excess of desirable levels. On the current figures, the quantity which would be required to be consumed to be potentially hazardous would be in the order of 5 kg in a year. While it is highly unlikely that any non-Aboriginal person would consume that quantity of mussels, I suppose it is at least possible that Aboriginal people who eat them - and the honourable member for Nightcliff who seems to include herself amongst those who consume mussels - would perhaps consume 5 kg each in a year. We have had extensive discussions with the Supervising Scientist. Further investigations are being carried out now. There is no evidence available to me at this stage that these levels are related to mining activities. It could well be a cyclical effect, the last samples, as I understand it, having been taken in about 1972. Obviously, that was well before uranium mining. The health authorities have been aware of a higher than usual level of radium concentrates in mussels for many years. Apparently it is a figure which fluctuates from time to time. Nonetheless, my information is that, while there is no evidence that it is connected with mining activities in that region, there is perhaps some reason for concern. The matter will be very closely monitored and, if necessary, appropriate warning will be issued, particularly if we cannot come to a satisfactory answer to the problem in the near future. Investigations are in hand.

Rates at Berrimah

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

To relieve the anomaly of the situation of people paying rates at Berrimah, has he given thought to section 15 of the Darwin Rates Act which gives the minister power to reduce these rates?

ANSWER

As a result of representations by the honourable member for Tiwi, I have addressed this issue. There seems to be a case that can be considered for the reduction of rates in this area. This issue should also be taken into account with other reviews that are going on in the local government area at the moment. It is a matter that I would also like to discuss with the new advisory committee on local government for the rural area. I have agreed to meet with the people in the area and the honourable member for Tiwi some time after the sittings to gain a better appreciation of the problem and so be able to make a decision.

Koolpinyah Station Boundaries

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

This is a question that has been asked previously by myself, the Leader of the Opposition and the member for Victoria River. Has any decision been taken or agreement reached on the realignment of the boundaries of Koolpinyah Station?

ANSWER

It is probably too soon to say that agreement has been reached. I think that substantial agreement has been reached, to put it rather nicely. I received a report this morning from the Department of Lands that negotiations are very close to finalisation. However, I feel it is tempting fate for me to say that. Nonetheless, that is what I am told. I understand that action in respect of the areas that it has been agreed should be acquired will be undertaken very shortly. One should appreciate that, in the Northern Territory, it is not possible for government to walk in willy-nilly and acquire anyone's land. Soon after self-government, we passed the Northern Territory Lands Acquisition Act which provides many safeguards for owners of land.

Of course, the owner of Koolpinyah is very desirous of retaining all of his property. Indeed, as I understand it, he is desirous of expanding it. Nonetheless, there are certain areas that the government considers to be of greater importance than the rights of the owner. One is in the area of conservation. I think Melacca Swamp and Black Jungle are 2 areas of importance. They are both about 20 ha. There are other recreational areas stretching up towards Gunn Point. Perhaps some horticultural and agricultural areas that we have agreed on should be acquired for some reason from the owner. To the best of my knowledge, that action should be commenced by the Department of Lands shortly.

NT Stock Squad

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the current number of personnel in the Northern Territory stock squad and will this number be maintained throughout the year? What is the expertise of these members at present regarding stock knowledge and what requirements will be necessary for any future appointments to the stock squad?

ANSWER

There are 2 members attached to the stock squad and this level will be maintained. They both have a background in stock matters and experience in rural police stations. Members of the squad are required to attend investigators' courses and have a knowledge of specific stock-related legislation. In addition, both members have attended seminars and stock inspection courses and their duties have been directed towards all aspects of the pastoral industry. These qualifications are seen as the minimum requirements for selection.

Tenders for Channel Island Bridge

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that the successful tenderer for the Channel Island bridge was able to vary its tender after tenders had closed? If this is true, why was that allowed to happen?

ANSWER

My understanding is that Jennings won the contract and its tender was $500 000 less than the next lowest tender bid. I am unaware of any specific variation that may have taken place but I will undertake to seek the information for the honourable member.

Service Station Site at Yulara

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Mr Speaker, I ask the Chief Minister to answer my question about the service station site at Yulara.

ANSWER

I will read a letter that I wrote on 24 May to Mr Charlie Walkabout, Chairman of Malpa Trading Co Pty Ltd, PO Box 45 Alice Springs:

Dear Mr Walkabout,

Thank you for your letter dated 3 May 1983 concerning arrangements for the development and operation of the service station at Yulara and the involvement of the Malpa Trading Co in the operation of the resort.

In my press statement dated 3 September 1981, I referred to opportunities for the provision of housing, the employment of Aboriginals, the manufacture and sale of Aboriginal arts and crafts and the ownership or operation of private enterprise components by Aboriginal people. These opportunities are being taken and work under way includes the construction of Aboriginal housing and workshop facilties for those people who wish to move from Ayers Rock to Yulara.

Aboriginals have been and are being employed on the construction of environmental fencing, walking tracks, lookouts and the housing and workshop facilities. It is intended that employment will continue to be available during the construction period and on a long-term basis on work associated with operating the resort.

Regarding ownership or operation of private enterprise components, White Industries were instructed to negotiate with the Malpa Trading Co with a view to seeking an involvement in operating the commercial facilities of Yulara. These include the service station, the Aboriginal arts and crafts centre and the supermarket. Malpa was invited to bid for the right to develop and operate the service station site and was provided with detailed information on the project. Malpa does enjoy a privileged position in relation to negotiations through the availability of information and the government's wish that your company be involved in Yulara.

However, it has always been quite clear that the right to any commercial facility at Yulara would be subject to the negotiation of a satisfactory commercial arrangement and, unfortunately, this was not the case in relation to the service station. You must bear in mind that the construction of Yulara will cost the Territory government $150m and we must ensure that as much as possible is recouped for the benefit of the taxpayer.

On 16 February 1983, Malpa was advised to consider making an offer for the land cost, with or without a premium, and that any proposal would be compared with others received. On 11 March 1983, your company responded by offering $1 for the land and development rights which were worth several hundred thousands of dollars as a result of the investment at Yulara by the Yulara Development Company. This, of course, could not be accepted in the light of substantial offers by other companies.

Further, as the Yulara tourist resort is being constructed to accommodate visitors to Ayers Rock and to allow for existing facilities to be demolished and the areas occupied by them to be rehabilitated, Malpa was requested to consider relinquishing the lease held over the existing service station to facilitate the inclusion of this area in the rehabilitation program. In reply, your company advised that the Aboriginal community at Ayers Rock wanted the existing service station to remain to meet their needs and those of visiting Aboriginal people and to operate as a training centre for mechanics. Your company also stated that tourists would be served with fuel, but that Malpa did not propose to encourage tourist trade. From this advice it did not appear that there was any intention by Malpa to offer the closure of the existing service station to coincide with the development of Yulara and the rehabilitation of the national park. The final decision took into account that Malpa offered neither a competitive cash bid for the site nor to relinquish their existing lease which might have been considered as an offset.

There are still a number of opportunities for Malpa to be involved in commercial activities at Yulara, including retail outlets in the centre for Aboriginal arts and crafts. Your company has been invited by White Industries to make submissions for these facilities and they will be given every consideration. It should be noted, however, that operators will be required to meet normal commercial criteria in relation to financial strength, experienced management skills and the ability to provide the required services. The government continues to support the involvement of Malpa at the Yulara Tourist Resort and negotiations for the retail facilities will include the opportunity for you to seek advice and provide additional information.

It is anticipated that meetings concerning the operation of the retail facilities will be arranged in June 1983 and you will be contacted in response to any submission you may have made. I hope that any further proposals you may put forward are made in the light of commerical reality and the fact that the Chairman of the Aboriginal Development Commission, Mr Charles Perkins, has advised me that financial backing is available to you.

Alice Springs to Darwin Rail Line

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

Has his attention been drawn to media comment that, despite statements to the contrary by the Leader of the Opposition, the South Australian Premier will not accompany him to Canberra for talks on the future of the Alice Springs to Darwin rail line?

ANSWER

My attention has been drawn to comments to this effect. I must say that I am extremely surprised by them. Last Friday, when the Leader of the Opposition was attempting to snow the media, he stated that he and the South Australian Premier would travel to Canberra for talks with the federal government. The front page of the Northern Territory News declared: 'Collins and Bannon join forces'. The Leader of the Opposition was quoted as saying that he and South Australian Premier, John Bannon, would be joining forces to ask the federal government to reconsider its position on the railway.

Let me quote from the story in the NT News: 'Mr Collins said that he and Mr Bannon would be going to Canberra at a time yet to be decided to suggest that the federal government should considerably moderate its request to the Territory to share the capital funding'. The Leader of the Opposition also made that claim in a press release that he issued last Friday. He said virtually the same thing: no decision had been made about the timing of the trip to Canberra but he and the South Australian Premier would be making a joint approach.

In case other honourable members have not seen the media reports, Mr Deputy Speaker, let me tell you what they say. The South Australian Premier is not travelling to Canberra with the Leader of the Opposition. He has gone on holiday. The Deputy Premier will not accompany the Leader of the Opposition. He had considered going but has a heavy schedule and has decided against it. The person who might go is the member for Stuart, an electorate in the north of the state. The member for Stuart is the Chief Secretary in South Australia, the man responsible for police and prisons. That is how much importance the South Australian government seems to attach to the Leader of the Opposition and his talks in Canberra. South Australia, which would certainly benefit from the steel and railway sleepers required, is a sleeper itself. The railway would need 156 000 t of steel for rails - steel that would be rolled at Whyalla. It needs 2.5 million sleepers which could be made at the concrete sleeper plant at Port Augusta. But the South Australian government attaches so little significance to the Leader of the Opposition that the Premier has gone on holiday and the Deputy Premier is too busy. Perhaps the Chief Secretary was the only person left standing when the rest of the Cabinet ducked for cover.

Mr Deputy Speaker, one point that emerges from this news item is the fact that the South Australian Premier never intended going to Canberra with the Leader of the Opposition. The Leader of the Opposition has misled the people of the Northern Territory once again with his willingness to mishandle the truth. Lest there be any confusion, let me make it quite clear that I am not misrepresenting the facts in this matter. The Premier's office in Adelaide is telling the press, quite openly - and we have it from the ABC and AAP - that the Premier never had any intention of travelling to Canberra or anywhere else with the Leader of the Opposition. The honourable Leader of the Opposition seems to think he can give a version of what he does for consumption in the Northern Territory and that the real facts will never come to light. Mr Deputy Speaker, once again, he has been caught with his pants well and truly down and it is not a pretty sight.

Tobacco Product Advertising

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

I hope he feels free to answer my question with as much zest as the Chief Minister. It concerns the recent Commonwealth-State Health Ministers' Conference held in Hobart, which the Minister for Health attended. We heard of his energetic activities during the course of that conference. The question of uniform legislation on tobacco product advertising was discussed and I ask the Minister for Health what attitude he took on behalf of the Northern Territory to the issue of tobacco advertising, particularly in relation to tobacco company sponsorship of sporting activities?

ANSWER

A paper on the subject was delivered at the conference in Hobart. The paper was sponsored by the Western Australian government and it proposed a ban on all forms of tobacco advertising, both through the electronic media - on which there is already a ban - and in the newspapers. However, there was some concern that the electronic media ban was not successful by virtue of the fact that the names of certain large tobacco companies, by way of sponsorship, appear on the ABC and commercial stations; for example, the Benson and Hedges Golf Tournament and the Marlboro 500 race.

The only thing that came out of the conference was that Western Australia was not supported. The first state that declined to support the recommendations of Western Australia was New South Wales. It was closely followed by Victoria, then South Australia, Queensland, the Northern Territory and finally Tasmania. Therefore, Western Australia was left to go it alone.

However, the ministers resolved to ask the Australian Media Council to provide to them at a conference in Canberra on 15 June - which will discuss the introduction of Medicare - a paper on the tightening up of the voluntary code. Of course, the Northern Territory and the states supported a recommendation that the voluntary code for the advertising of tobacco products by both the electronic media and the newspapers be tightened up. That is where we are now. We are waiting to see the recommendations in the paper.

The honourable member has asked what attitude was taken on behalf of the Northern Territory to the idea that the advertising of tobacco - and the advertising of alcohol was brought into the question at the same time - was probably harmful to the development of various sporting organisations in the Northern Territory. At the time, I commented that the tobacco companies were providing financial support to sporting organisations and that, as we had such a very small population base and the Northern Territory government, whilst it was doing a pretty good job, can only provide limited financial support to sporting and other community organisations, the proposal in relation to the advertising of tobacco products would certainly not be in the best interests of the Northern Territory.

Road to Koolpin Gorge

Ms LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I understand that the status of the road through Gimbat Station to Koolpin Gorge has been referred to the Department of Law for an opinion on whether it is a public road or not. Has that opinion been received and, if so, what was it?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, the preamble made by the honourable member for Nightcliff is not strictly correct. The situation is that representations have been received by me, as Minister for Lands, from 4-wheel-drive recreational groups and also from the lessee of Gimbat Station, Mr Helmut Schimmel, in relation to the closure of what is known as the Sleisbeck Road. I would like to point out that the Northern Territory government does not have unfettered control over the Gimbat pastoral lease. The lease is owned in fact by the Commonwealth of Australia and I understand that the Commonwealth, through the Department of Administrative Services, has asked us to administer Gimbat while we are administering all the rest of the pastoral leases in the Northern Territory. The situation is that the transfer of Gimbat to Mr Schimmel was approved by the Commonwealth rather than by the Territory although, nominally at least, the Territory Minister for Lands provided the consent to transfer. Mr Schimmel has been the owner for some time and, apparently, he has closed the gate across Sleisbeck Road. The 4-wheel-drive people complain that this interferes with their access to the property. In strict law, once they take their vehicles off the road on to the property itself, I think they are trespassers anyway. That nice point of law no doubt escapes them.

I have asked the Secretary of the Department of Lands to seek that the Solicitor-General take the matter of the status of the Sleisbeck Road before the Supreme Court for a declaration as to whether or not it is or is not a public road. Frankly, I do not have the resources personally to determine that fact. I do not believe the Attorney-General is in a position to determine that fact because it is the sort of thing where interested members of the public should have a forum in which to put forward their views. As I see it, the best possible forum for a determination of whether Sleisbeck Road is or is not a public road is the Supreme Court of the Northern Territory. No doubt any parties who are interested may come forward in the course of the case and put their evidence and their lawyers can put their legal argument. I asked the Secretary of the Department of Lands to expedite this matter. I think it was at least a month or 2 ago that they saw me. I do not know what has happened to it since but I hope that the wheels are being greased. Maybe the fact that this question has been asked will help to grease them even further.

Sentence for Manslaughter at Roe Creek

Mr D.W. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Is he aware of the widespread concern expressed in Alice Springs at the perceived lightness of the sentence imposed on a person convicted of the manslaughter of a crippled man at Roe Creek earlier this year?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, I thank the honourable member for Alice Springs for that question because I am aware of that expression of concern. As Attorney-General I have received a number of telephone calls from local people and I would like to spend a few moments addressing myself to that question.

The killing occurred at Orange Creek, not Roe Creek. The defendant's name was Kevin Donnelly and the deceased's name was Harold John Porter also known as Michael John Connors. The conviction was for manslaughter. Sometimes, there is a vast difference in such cases between the facts as believed by the public and the facts available to defence counsel, the prosecution and the court. This is a classic example of that problem.

What is the public perception of what happened? All the public knows is that a disabled and almost crippled man was shot dead at Orange Creek, south of Alice Springs. They know that, for some time, the person who apparently did the shooting was missing. That person was subsequently discovered in Kalgoorlie and extradited to the Northern Territory. It is probably known widely by the public that that person initially denied the offence. They know that that person was arrested and arraigned on a charge of murder. They know that that charge was reduced to manslaughter and that the sentence given by the court was 2 months imprisonment and that the person had spent 5 months in custody. That is the knowledge of the public and, for that reason, they feel some sense of disquiet with a sentence of that nature.

The information available to the court was completely different. The deceased had picked up the accused and offered him a lift to Katherine. The deceased carried a loaded rifle cocked, with the safety off, in his vehicle. The deceased was suffering from a physical infirmity which had made it difficult for him to use that rifle otherwise. On the day of the death, the deceased and the defendant had been drinking until 3 pm and they were sitting in the back of the car with the seats laid back. The defendant asked to use the rifle and got out of the car with it. When getting back in he had his finger on the trigger and it discharged killing the deceased. The bullet entered the back of the deceased's skull at an angle such that it was consistent with the defendant's version and not consistent with a deliberate shot. This was confirmed by forensic tests. All of the evidence available to the Crown pointed to an offence of gross negligence leading to manslaughter. The defendant had no record of any crimes equivalent to this.

The role of the courts in sentencing offenders is to impose an appropriate penalty in view of the relevant circumstances. These include: the parliament's view of the seriousness of the crime as reflected by the prescribed maximum penalty; the offender's motives; his family background, age and mental and physical health; any previous criminal record - and it is to be remembered in this case that there was no record which would have been consistent with this sort of behaviour; how often the particular crime occurs; and the consequence of imprisonment and, especially, whether it would help the person come back into society as a useful citizen.

There is certainly a well-founded view that the role of government is limited in relation to sentencing. In order to make sure that the courts retain their independence, it is believed by most that governments should not interfere by making representations to judges and magistrates other than through its law officers as and when cases are dealt with. Personally, I believe that there is a role for the Attorney-General to discuss community views with judges. I am giving some consideration to doing that. That does not mean to say, in any way, that I believe that this sentence or any other was anything other than perfectly proper. The public will be informed of that when the Crown appeals.

The particular point that I am making is that, regrettably, the information available to the public, was quite different from that available to the court. Having set out the scenario, I can well understand public disquiet at a sentence of 2 months imprisonment for that person's death. But when we understand the full circumstances, we see that, at worst, it was an act of gross negligence. While there has been disquiet on many occasions on the part of the public at sentencing by the courts, it is a shame that the public cannot have information which is available to the courts. I am quite sure that any person who knew the facts of this case would not differ for one moment from the judge's decision.

Undesirable Effects of Overcrowded Accommodation

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HOUSING

Will he accede to my requests for an inquiry into the socially undesirable effects of overcrowded accommodation upon which the Housing Commission is currently unable to make any impact?

ANSWER

During the course of this sittings, I will be making a ministerial statement on housing in the Northern Territory. Hopefully, during that statement, I might pick up the honourable member's question.

Aboriginal Employment in the NTPS

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Is the level of Aboriginal employment in the Northern Territory Public Service increasing or decreasing?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, I am very pleased to answer this question. I told the Legislative Assembly in April 1980 that the Northern Territory government aimed to increase the number of Aboriginals employed within the Northern Territory Public Service to 10% of the service by 1982. It is now very pleasing to be able to say that recent figures reveal that this aim has been achieved. The Public Service Commissioner has advised me that a total of 1137 Aboriginals are now employed as public servants, 543 males and 594 females. This number represents 10.5% of the total NTPS workforce. On the best advice that I have, these figures compare very favourably with those of the southern states which maintain similar statistics. In New South Wales, for example, 1.6% of the state public service is Aboriginal and, in Victoria, only 0.12%. For the Australian Public Service the figure is 0.47%. This shows we have been rather more successful than our southern counterparts in carrying out our policy.

I would also like to make the point that the dispersion of the Aboriginals within the Northern Territory Public Service follows a pattern similar to that of non-Aboriginals with the majority of employees in the base-grade administrative levels. I shall not be satisfied though until there is a larger number of Aboriginals employed above those levels and I have asked the Public Service Commissioner to provide training facilities to enable this to be achieved. Of course, we want to better the figure of 10.5% and we will continue to work on that.

Gold Mine in Pine Creek Area

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is it a fact that a new gold-mining operation is to commence soon in the Pine Creek area? If so, is it a fact that the owners of this gold mine will not be required to pay royalties to the Northern Territory government?

ANSWER

I am not in a position to say whether or not there will be a gold mine in the Pine Creek area. I think the honourable member would be well aware of the need for some degree of confidentiality in these matters. May I say that the Pine Creek area, in terms of gold, is a very prospective area indeed. I have little doubt that there will be a number of new gold mines in the Pine Creek area in the near future. As to the last part of the question, I cannot imagine any circumstances under which people would not pay royalties to the Northern Territory where those royalties are due and payable.

Taxation on Lump Sum Superannuation Payments

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

My question refers to this morning's news item quoting the claim of a leading trade union official, Mr Barrie Unsworth, that certain deals were struck at the recent National Economic Summit Conference. Was the Chief Minister a party to any arrangements at the National Economic Summit Conference whereby commitments were given to the ACTU or any other party that there would be no taxation of lump sum superannuation payments?

ANSWER

It came as a bombshell to me when I heard a news report early this morning with a voice-over from Mr Barrie Unsworth who is the vice-president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions as well as being a very prominent unionist in New South Wales. I think he may even be a member of the New South Wales Legislative Council. In any event, he is a very senior ACTU figure and he claimed that there had been an agreement at the summit conference that there would be no additional taxation of lump sum superannuation payments. I can assure you that neither the Treasurer nor myself were party to any such agreement. Indeed, although there were rumours at the summit of a deal between the ACTU and the government on pay increases, the federal government, and Mr Hawke himself, denied those rumours at the time, and I believed implicitly in what the Prime Minister said. It seems, from what Mr Unsworth says, that not only may there have been an agreement regarding pay increases but further agreements with the ACTU going so far even as no taxation of lump sum superannuation payments. For an agreement to get as far as that, one would imagine it to be a very comprehensive one.

Yesterday, we heard the Leader of the Opposition preach about restraint. One can only say that apparently these deals were selfishly struck behind closed doors between certain parties to the summit and other parties were not privy to them and, indeed, apparently were deceived about them. I believe that the Australian public needs to know, and should be told by the federal government, what other deals were struck behind closed doors at the summit. Every Australian has the right to know what deals the federal government made with the ACTU and what deals were connived at at the summit. Mr Deputy Speaker, all I can say is that it sounds very much to me as though we have all been duped.

Toilet Facilities for Rapid Creek Water Gardens

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Will the government erect toilet facilities in the Rapid Creek Water Gardens?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, I seem to recall that the honourable member for Millner asked a similar question at the last sittings or raised it during an adjournment debate. I am not too sure what response the government gave to him at that particular time. I understand that the water gardens is a very pleasant place for people to congregate and make use of the environment at Rapid Creek. I am not too sure that facilities such as toilets have been planned at this particular time. I will take the question on notice and respond to the honourable member as soon as I can.

Bag Limits on Waterfowl

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Is it his intention to introduce a bill to the Assembly to allow him, upon the advice of his officers, to set bag limits for the taking of waterfowl depending on seasonal prospects?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, I do not have such a proposition before me at the moment. It might be of interest to all honourable members to know that this issue has been raised with me in the last 4 or 5 days by people outside the government and the Conservation Commission. It is believed in some sections of the community that we should have a bag limit, particularly for the duck shooting season. I have raised this matter with the Conservation Commission and I have not had a reply yet. When that advice is received, I will be happy to let the member know.

Bus Service for Palmerston

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand the new timetable for bus services will include Karama. Does the government also intend to include Palmerston in new bus schedules?

ANSWER

There has been some discussion about the inclusion of Palmerston in new bus services. I understand that a petition emanating from the City of Palmerston has been circulated to that effect. The government finds itself in a very serious position in respect of the provision of bus services to the people of Darwin. The government subsidy before income this year is expected to be in the vicinity of $3.15m. We are in a very grave position in respect to financing extended bus services and, until such time as all the ramifications of services in Darwin have been considered - and that includes the discussions that are to take place with the drivers in respect of various aspects of their employemnt, such as leave loadings and part-time employment - no further extensions to Darwin bus services will be considered.

Radiological Services in NT Hospitals

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware that patients have been refused emergency x-rays on weekends and public holidays at Tennant Creek and Alice Springs hospitals? Will he ensure that emergency radiological services are available at all Northern Territory hospitals?

ANSWER

In most cases, x-ray facilities are available. In Alice Springs, Darwin, Tennant Creek and Katherine, facilities are available Monday through Friday. On weekends, they are only available in emergencies. However, I will examine the situation and give the member a more detailed response at a later date.

Application of Construction Safety Act at Nabalco Plant Site

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Why doesn't the Construction Safety Act, which regulates the safety standards for rigging, scaffolding and related work, apply to the Nabalco plant site? It is a fairly major plant site but no acts relate to construction there.

ANSWER

I will have the matter investigated. I am certainly unable to given an answer now. I will report back to him later.

Darwin Airport

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise if there is any indication on whether or not plans to upgrade the Darwin airport will be completed by the original target date of late 1986?

ANSWER

The honourable member is correct in saying that an $86m plan to upgrade Darwin airport was originally scheduled to be completed in late 1986. In fact, a newspaper headline on 24 November 1982 indicated that it was an official government proposal and that an $86m project would commence to upgrade the airport. The previous government was committed to the establishment of a terminal on a new site to the north of the main runway by the end of 1986 with work beginning at the end of this calendar year. This target date now seems unrealistic due to the change in government. As the length of the project is 4 years, the project, if it proceeds, will not be completed until 1987 at the earliest. The delay is one year.

Police Exhibit at Fred's Pass Show

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Why was only one police officer on duty at the police exhibit at the Fred's Pass Show held in May?

ANSWER

For several years, it has been the practice to have only one officer on duty at such show exhibits. There is no reason why there should be more than one officer on duty at a show exhibit at the one time. The police displays are of the walk-through type. In any event, in addition to the officer on duty at the exhibit, other police were present at the show from the Fred's Pass Police Office. As well, plain clothes police from the Darwin Criminal Investigations Branch carried out patrols of the area together with other police. Although the honourable member for Tiwi seems to think that there should be more than one policeman on duty at a show display, I am afraid I cannot see any value in wasting valuable police resources and taxpayers' money.

Study of Salaries, Wages and Employment in Aboriginal Communities

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What study of salaries, wages and employment in Aboriginal communities is currently being carried out by his department?

ANSWER

I ask him to place the question on notice. It would require a fairly comprehensive answer and I would prefer to do it in writing.

Report on Investment Seminars

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Does he intend to report to the Assembly on the recent investment seminars which he conducted in southern cities and, if so, when may we expect his statement?

ANSWER

I was not intending to report to the Assembly on the recent industrial investment seminars that were conducted by the Northern Territory Development Corporation in Sydney and Melbourne. I reported extensively to the Northern Territory public through the media upon my return. I see no particular reason for a special report or statement to the Assembly on the matter. Suffice to say that, if the honourable member for Sanderson has a particular interest, I would be happy to receive a letter from her and I would try to provide her with any details that she might want.

The investment seminars were very successful. Two other ministers went with me, the Minister for Mines and Energy and the Minister for Primary Production. We were accompanied by the Chairman of the Northern Territory Development Corporation, Mr Ray McHenry, a couple of other officials from the NTDC, the Secretary of the Department of Primary Production, Mr Baden Cameron, the Secretary of the Department of Lands, Mr Don Darben, the Chairman of the Tourist Commission, Mr Eric Poole, and the Secretary of the Department of Mines and Energy, Mr Creed Lovegrove. In Sydney, where we stayed for 2 days, we started each day with a working breakfast with 80 or so businessmen and industrialists. After that, persons who wanted to discuss any particular matters with a minister or official were given appointments. Then, an hour or so later, there was a 2-hour seminar on a particular aspect. In the 2 days in each city, we had 4 seminars. For instance, there would be a seminar on rural industries in the morning, a seminar on tourism in the afternoon, a seminar on mining the next morning, and a seminar on something else in the afternoon. These seminars were very well attended. In Sydney, as many as 150 people were at the seminars. In Melbourne, they were not as well attended as that - over 100 at one and between 50 and 100 at most of them. The same sort of thing occurred in Melbourne: at lunchtime you would speak to members of the Chamber of Commerce, the Japanese Chamber of Commerce, the Committee for Economic Development of Australia or whatever. Every day there was a major lunchtime function with a speech, which received good media coverage, a seminar in the afternoon, more appointments with ministers and then an evening function. For instance, one night the largest firm of stockbrokers in Sydney organised a dinner for us with their major clients and another night there was a dinner with all the superannuation fund investment managers.

Quite honestly, after about 2 days of it, you are ready to go outside and cut your throat. You hardly get out of the hotel. But, it was very rewarding in terms of interest in the Northern Territory and actual lists of projects that are likely to come out of it. I do not want to name people or industries at this stage but I think those who have shown an interest are entitled to get a front run. Melbourne exceeded Sydney in terms of firm interest and people desirous of coming up here to put proposals to the NTDC and acquiring land. Of course, we are helping to sell the Territory on the basis of the north south railway which would make the Port of Darwin Australia's front door and the gateway to South-east Asia. Many of these people were looking at the Northern Territory, and the Top End in particular, in terms of basing establishments here with the advantage of knowing the ropes in a part of Australia yet very close to the markets of South-east Asia. I think that, probably within 12 months, we will see quite definite signs of the results of that investment mission. I would not want to do one too frequently, Mr Deputy Speaker. I would prefer to leave them as far as possible to officials, but I think they are well worth while.

Harvesting and Husbanding of Native Birds

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

What incentives can the Conservation Commission advance to people to harvest and husband native birds?

ANSWER

Perchance, Mr Deputy Speaker, I have some advice for the honourable member from the Conservation Commission. It arrived this morning. I am not sure that she will be very happy with it but, nevertheless, I will give it to her. The harvesting of native birds in the Australian states has inevitably led to a serious reduction in the numbers of rare and or attractive birds. Only one state, Western Australia, presently allows the trapping of native birds. This is limited but considerable pressure is being brought to bear to stop this practice. Currently, thousands of native Australian birds are being bred successfully in aviaries and it is the considered opinion of most wildlife authorities that there are enough behind wire now to satisfy the aviary trade.

Finally, Australia is bound by international agreements which are honoured by the Northern Territory and which require detailed management plans before any harvesting for trade purposes should occur. The question of aviculture versus wildlife laws raises a number of complex issues and the Conservation Commission is currently preparing a policy statement regarding aviculture. If the honourable member, any other member of the Assembly or people who know anything about aviculture would like to make a submission to myself or the Conservation Commission about the matter, we would be only too pleased to hear from them.

Funding of East Coast Shipping Service

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is there any basis for the allegations made in the Assembly yesterday that the Commonwealth government will seek contributions from the Northern Territory government for any extensions to the east coast shipping service?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, it is pretty hard to work out entirely what the Commonwealth may or may not do in respect of services to the Northern Territory. However, one thing is fairly sure, and that is that contributions will be sought. I do not know just how many bingo games the Northern Territory can run to supplement its income in this respect. I have received a letter from Mr Morris, the Minister for Transport in the federal parliament, in respect of the shipping service. I will read this short letter which is addressed to me:

I refer to your letter of 6 May 1983 concerning the Australian National Line's east coast to Darwin shipping service. I note that your aim was to send me a submission on the justification for the continuation of ANL's east coast shipping service to Darwin by 20 May. You will recall that, at our meeting in Canberra on 3 May, the difficult budgetary position we had inherited and the greatly increased loss forecast by ANL for this service were mentioned. It was also suggested that the Northern Territory government might consider contributing to the losses incurred. No doubt that will be part of your submission.

Mr Deputy Speaker, the government has made a submission to the federal minister. We are not prepared to make a contribution towards the subsidisation of that service. The Northern Territory government has a $25m program for upgrading the port. It hired a crane at $600 000 to ensure that the new Townsville Trader service was unloaded in an expeditious manner. We have recommended to the Commonwealth as follows: the Commonwealth government establish an inquiry into the Darwin east coast shipping service as required under the Australian Shipping Commission Act; concurrently, the Commonwealth and the Northern Territory negotiate a 3-year agreement - and that has been our proposal for some time; and present subsidy arrangements continue until a formal inquiry and negotiations on a 3-year agreement have been completed.

Wet Dump

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

In view of the decision that the Darwin City Council will cease wet dumping operations at its Leanyer site in November this year, what progress has been made delineating a new site where wet dumping operations may continue?

ANSWER

Mr Deputy Speaker, the new dump site is under current consideration between the Darwin City Council, officers of my department and officers of the Department of Lands. The Department of Community Development does not have a particular vested interest in the siting of the dump. We are involved in the continuing operational costs of the dump. The siting is more a matter for the Minister for Lands. Whilst I have a fringe interest, I think it would be appropriate if the honourable member directed her question to the Minister for Lands.

Wet Dump

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for LANDS

Mr Deputy Speaker, I redirect my question to the Minister for Lands.

ANSWER

Various government departments and statutory bodies have been working on proposals to relocate the Darwin municipal dump. At present, several alternative sites are being considered. One possible site, which was mentioned in a press release recently by the Lord Mayor, is in the vicinity of Shoal Bay. However, there are serious problems with that site. For example, it is located on land owned by the Commonwealth and used by the Royal Australian Air force. The process of actually obtaining the land would be very time-consuming even if it were likely to succeed. There are possible difficulties with clearing the site of any live bombs remaining on it which could be a deterrent to people using the dump. They might not want to chance having their legs blown off. However, I can assure members that an announcement will be made as soon as a decision has been made about a site.

TAB in NT

Mr VALE to TREASURER

Following wide speculation concerning the possible introduction of TAB in the Territory in recent days, is there any change in the government's attitude to TAB?

ANSWER

I can certainly confirm that there is no change in the government's attitude. Nor is there any reason for commentators to suspect that there has been. But, it appears from the odd snippet in the local press that some people seem to think that the introduction of TAB is imminent. I will be introducing legislation on the next sitting day which will address a revamping of the Racing and Betting Act. That has been foreshadowed ever since an extensive review was undertaken. However, at no time have I indicated that the basic principles of the racing and betting system in the Northern Territory are proposed to be changed by the Territory government. We will be maintaining the off-course bookmaking system which exists throughout the Northern Territory and which, with the exception of one town in South Australia that has a few off-course bookmakers, is fairly unique in Australia. On-course totalisators will be legal in the future as they have been in the past. TAB stands for 'Totalisator Agency Board'. In the states, this is a widespread off-course betting system that works on a totalisator averaging system. For a long time in the Northern Territory, we have had legislation which has allowed on-course totalisators. This will be perpetuated in the new legislation. As far as the major principles of off-course betting systems are concerned, there will be no change.

Use of Police Aircraft for Transport to Nimrod Safari Camp

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he give the Assembly a categorical assurance that at no time prior to the transporting of Mr David McNicoll to the Nimrod Safari Camp was the police aircraft used to transport any non-police personnel or stores to the Nimrod Safari Camp?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, how could I give a categorical assurance to the Leader of the Opposition ...

Mr B. Collins: You said so yesterday.

Mr SPEAKER: Order! Order!

Mr EVERINGHAM: ... without having checked this matter out. The Leader of the Opposition again advises me. What I said yesterday or the day before was that the logbook relating to the police plane is open for inspection by the member for Nhulunbuy as opposition spokesman on the police. I do not know who the police plane has transported to the Nimrod Safari Camp in the past. I do not even know that it has been to Nimrod Safari Camp in the past. I would suggest that, if the honourable Leader of the Opposition wants this information, then perhaps he could send the member for Nhulunbuy to have a look at the logbook of the police plane.

I might say that the Leader of the Opposition seems to treat this plane as though it were absolutely the exclusive property of the Police Force. Whilst it is true that the plane was purchased through the police allocation, there is no doubt that it is an asset of the Northern Territory. I accept full responsibility. If there was any impropriety in the use of the police plane by the Commissioner of Police to take Mr McNicoll and Mr Kennedy to Nimrod, then that impropriety is mine and not the commissioner's. I viewed it as an asset of the Northern Territory government that could be used in these circumstances. It is the first time that I have asked that anyone be taken on the police plane. One can see now that, for the sake of peace and quiet for the Commissioner of Police, one should not even attempt to do these sorts of things. Indeed, the Leader of the Opposition takes his usual carping, small-minded attitude to the whole thing. As I pointed out in this Assembly earlier this week, it saved the taxpayers money as well as making use of the plane when it was not detailed for duties of another nature.

Government-sponsored Lotteries

Mr VALE to TREASURER

In view of the success of the government's first lottery, has any decision been taken about any future government-sponsored lotteries?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government is awaiting a report from the Racing and Gaming Commission on the various aspects of the first government lottery which, as the honourable member for Stuart said, was an overwhelming success. Suggestions have been put to myself and to other ministers that the government should move quickly into running further lotteries and various alternatives have been suggested. At this stage, we have decided not to take any decision on moving to run another government lottery now or next year or ever. We will await the report from the Racing and Gaming Commission which will put a series of options to the government. The matter will be considered then and, no doubt, an announcement will be made at the appropriate time.

Review of NTDC Operations

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has the report of the Commonwealth Development Bank officer seconded to review the operation of the NTDC been completed and when will that report be available for investigation by this Assembly?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have not undertaken that the report will be available for investigation by the Assembly. I indicated that, after consideration of the report by myself and Cabinet, I would be prepared to consider tabling it in the Assembly. I certainly do not envisage any investigation of the report by the Assembly. No doubt the Assembly can debate the report if it wishes. In any event, the report became available to me on Monday evening and I have taken it home. For obvious reasons, I have not had a chance to read it yet, let alone put it into shape for submission to Cabinet. I see no prospect of its being available to the Assembly until the next sittings.

Mr Speaker, I might take this opportunity to advise you and other honourable members that the only appointment I can secure to see the Prime Minister regarding the railway is at 2.00 pm tomorrow. I attempted to secure an appointment for Monday but that is impossible from the Prime Minister's point of view. Therefore, I will have to leave the Assembly early this afternoon to catch the plane to Melbourne and go to Canberra tomorrow morning. I do not think I will have much time for reading this report over this weekend either. It runs into several hundred pages. Many pages relate to forms and procedures and the substance of the report amounts to no more than 50 or 60 pages. However, I would say that there is no chance that the Assembly will be considering the report before the next sittings.

ABC Telecasts to the NT

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he able to inform me why Northern Territory citizens were denied the opportunity to see the important telecast by the ABC of the mini-budget that was brought down by the federal Treasurer last Thursday and also the FA cup final last Saturday morning?

Mr Bell: Hear, hear!

ANSWER

For the first time, I have heard an intelligent interjection by the honourable member for MacDonnell. I fully support the honourable member for MacDonnell's concern about 'The Winners' and the honourable member for Port Darwin's concern about the ABC not broadcasting to the Northern Territory the mini-budget that was brought down by the Treasurer, Mr Keating, in the federal parliament last Thursday evening. As well, it did not transmit to people outside Darwin the FA cup final on Saturday. Fortunately people in Darwin were able to enjoy the FA cup final by courtesy of Channel 8 and its sponsors but there was a great deal of concern that this major sporting event in which there is intense interest right around Australia was not televised by the ABC. It goes even wider than that. The ABC and the Minister for Communications were apparently not prepared to relent and declare it an event of national significance. As for 'The Winners', I am campaigning, as I know many Territory representatives are campaigning, for the restoration of the program to ABC television on Saturday evening when it used to run. I think it said that it may run it in future on Monday or Tuesday evenings. I believe that there is a great deal of support for that particular code of football right throughout the Territory. I think that the ABC should reconsider its priorities seriously.

I cannot understand why listeners to radio network 1 were able to hear the mini-budget yet Territorians, as far as I could judge when trying to tune in to the radio at Cobourg Penninsula, were being treated to a concert by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Certainly, it was a very nice concert but most of us wanted to hear what was going on in Canberra because it so vitally affected, as we now know, the future of the Northern Territory. Frankly, it is impossible to divine by what means the person who does the programming arrives at his programming conclusions.

Chief Minister - Meeting with Prime Minister

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of discussions I had with the Prime Minister's office yesterday and the statement that the Chief Minister made this morning, could he advise whether the statement he made to the Assembly yesterday, which was accurately reported on page 1 of the NT News last night, that the Prime Minister had refused to see him, was a true statement?

ANSWER

Absolutely, Mr Speaker. I received a telex from the Prime Minister the other afternoon and I conveyed its terms to the Assembly almost as soon as I received it. The Prime Minister said he was not in a position to see me because he had legislative and other commitments. He said also that his overseas visit, which commences next week, precluded the possibility of his seeing me. What is that but a refusal? I was told that I could have a meeting with the Treasurer. As a consequence, I had my office pursue the Prime Minister's office and the Treasurer's office. It now transpires that, through our persistence, we have an appointment for 2 pm tomorrow afternoon. If I had accepted the Prime Minister's telex, I certainly would not have had the opportunity to see him before the Premiers' Conference at the end of June. The Premiers' Conference is on 30 June and 1 July. That would be the next opportunity to see the Prime Minister because he will be overseas for several weeks. If that is not a refusal, the Leader of the Opposition is now displaying to members the reason why so many of us consider that he distorts the facts.

Lights at Intersections in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I have been in touch with the minister on several occasions regarding this matter. Has he any further information on the erection of lights at the Palmerston, Howard Springs and Arnhem Highway turn-offs from the Stuart Highway?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the traffic is very busy at the intersections the member refers to. The Department of Transport and Works will be installing lights at the Palmerston and the Howard Springs turn-offs. The Arnhem Highway turn-off is still under consideration.

Service Station at Yulara

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I gave him a copy of these questions yesterday. Did the Valuer-General value the land on which the service station is to be built at Yulara? If so, what was the valuation? Was Mobil Oil Company advised of the valuation? Why was Malpa Trading Company not advised? If there was no such valuation, how did the Chief Minister arrive at the figure of several hundred thousand dollars for the value of the land and development rights?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, again a member of the opposition rises to his feet and says that he has given me notice and seeks to convey an impression that I have been given plenty of time to obtain this information. In fact, I was given a written series of questions by the member for MacDonnell at 4.45 pm yesterday afternoon. As he well knows, the information has to come from the Yulara Project Office in Alice Springs. Nonetheless, I was able to communicate with the Yulara Project Office. Although I am not in a position to give a detailed response to the question, I can say that the Valuer-General has not carried out a valuation of the service station site. As I explained to the honourable member the other day, Northern Territory taxpayers are putting up, in one way or another, $150m for the construction of the Yulara Tourist Village. Northern Territory taxpayers, I would think, would expect their government to get back as much as possible of that $150m from the sale of the commercial site when the time is ripe.

The Yulara Development Company or White Industries - I am not sure which one did it - advertised nationally that this site was for sale. A premium payment for the site was invited. I can say that the Yulara Development Company received several offers, including an offer of several hundred thousand dollars from Mobil Oil Company and an offer of $1 from the Malpa Trading Company. In my view, that is where the Yulara Project office, or whoever was dealing with it, deviated from the normal rules. It called in the Malpa Trading Company, counselled it about the situation and invited it to revise its offer. It refused to do that. We now have the situation of its crying that it did not get the site. The fact is that it refused to close down its own old service station, which might have been taken as some sort of compensation. In other words, it wanted to have its cake and eat it too. It is keeping the old one open at Ayers Rock. But, we are supposed to give it the site at the new village and not get anything more than $1 return for the monstrous amount of capital works that have been done at Yulara: a powerhouse, water reticulation, roads, kerbing and guttering, and accommodation for staff. There is an enormous amount of money to be receovered and we have to seek the keenest possible prices that we can in this area.

Mr Speaker, the Chairman of the Aboriginal Development Commission phoned me several months ago and said that, in relation to whatever money was needed, he would be prepared to consider approaches from Malpa. I believe that Malpa has adopted a bloody-minded attitude over this whole thing and has sought to use its particular position and influence to try to get the site for nothing when, in fact, it could have borrowed the money from the Aboriginal Development Commission had it been inclined to do so. It was its refusal to do that that led to the current situation. I believe that the Malpa Trading Company should be looking at the behaviour of some of its officials rather than the behaviour of the Yulara Development Company, White Industries or any other party. It is the behaviour of its staff that has landed it in the jam that it is in at the moment. If it does not change the attitudes of its staff before the other proposals come to light, such as the store and everything else that will be offered by expression of public interest, then it will land itself in exactly the same jam. We have to get money back for Yulara. Money is available to Malpa and it will have to run its operations there in a commercial way. It should be borrowing the money so that it can run in a true commercial sense.

Darwin Performing Arts Centre

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Following the investigation carried out by the Darwin City Council into possible management arrangements for the Darwin Performing Arts Centre, will government now introduce legislation to establish a trust in accordance with the precedent set by the Araluen Arts and Cultural Trust Act in 1979?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as far as I am concerned, final details of how the management of the centre is to be organised have not yet been decided. When they are decided, I will be happy to advise the honourable member of the direction that the government will take in the matter.

Archives Building Site

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Following on a question I asked on Wednesday 23 March, has a decision yet been taken on the siting of the new archives building?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, officers of the Departments of Community Development and Lands are currently working on a possible site for the archives building in the Darwin area.

Computer Billing by NTEC

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

I put my question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Can the minister advise how many people were displaced by the introduction of computer billing by NTEC?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer to the question is none. It is obvious that, by introducing a system of computer billing, certain efficiencies will be made. The computer system of billing was introduced into NTEC to achieve that objective and not to achieve the objective of the loss of people's jobs. At this stage, no one has even had to move from any section because the computer system still has some work to be done on it. It will probably be necessary for 5 or 6 people to be trained for redeployment or, in the normal course of their duties, to fit in elsewhere with the commission at the same levels as they occupy at the moment. That would be the intention. It was not designed to displace people but rather to provide a more efficient and accurate system of billing. I might make the observation, Mr Speaker, that your question clearly arises from concern that computers, in many instances, cause people to lose their jobs. In the use of computers, this government generally has had the attitude that it is not for that purpose but to provide a better and more efficient form of service to the Northern Territory public.

Sunday Air Service to Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he say when Sunday air services to Nhulunbuy will be introduced?

ANSWER

I thought that the honourable member would have been asking Mr Beazley that question because all our efforts so far have been fruitless. We have been in touch with the airlines and we have written to Mr Beazley. We will be holding further meetings with the Ansett organisation. Its proposition will be something that gives it sole rights over Nhulunbuy and I do not think that the honourable member would like that. There is no proposal at this time to provide a return of the services that the honourable member wishes although we are still trying to obtain the best possible solution.

School Councils

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is the minister satisfied at this stage with the progress of the establishment of school councils throughout the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Last year, the Territory passed quite innovative legislation to allow school councils to be established. These will have a high degree of involvement in the operations of schools. I am pleased to say that, despite the complex provisions that are required for a school community to move towards becoming a formal school council under the act, quite a number of applications have been received and 4 of them have been approved.

The requirements are that a constitution which has certain provisions embodied within it must be passed formally and submitted to me, as minister, for adoption. The Department of Education has been assisting those school communities which have sought information from it on what is involved in forming a formal school council under the act. To date, the 4 approved are Casuarina High School, the Malak Primary and Pre-school, Leanyer Primary School and Tiwi Primary School. Unfortunately, to date, they are all in Darwin. Perhaps it is not that important. Others will no doubt be coming through the system. We have received more applications which have been assessed. I am not sure whether any of those are from areas outside Darwin. However, I am sure a number of school communities will sit back and watch how the brave ones who come in first operate before moving themselves. Some of the responsibilities of school councils under the act are indeed quite important. They must run formal accounting systems because they will be handling taxpayers' funds. They can even go as far as employing staff and administering small contracts. It is quite important and involved. It is important that school councils run a fairly sophisticated administrative system if they are to come under the Northern Territory act. I am sure it will be a great success. Indications to date are that it will be and that additional schools will follow these brave leaders who have my full support.

Bus Services to Karama

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he confirm whether extensions of the public bus service to include Karama will be implemented in view of the review of public bus services currently being undertaken?

ANSWER

The figure that I mentioned yesterday of the subsidy overrun to provide bus services in Darwin included provision of services to Karama. The service has not been commenced but it will be as soon as some of the difficult management arrangements are dealt with.

Sale of Pastoral Leases

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS

Has he considered the remarks that I made in the adjournment debate last night on apparent limits to the minister's discretion in approving the sale of pastoral leases to a single owner and could he state if he agrees with my interpretation of his discretion on this matter?

ANSWER

It has been impossible for me to consider the remarks of the honourable member for Millner because I had an appointment in my office at that stage of the adjournment debate. I heard the gist of what he said, namely, that the minister has no discretion in excess of 20 000 km^2. I cannot but agree with him. In fact, I foreshadowed in my answer to a question that the people would be hiving off property so that there is no dispute at all.

Submission on Tourist Industry

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Did he make representations to the federal government regarding incentives to the tourist industry to be included in last week's mini-budget and, if so, what response has he received to his submission?

ANSWER

In terms of the mini-budget, obviously the federal government decided to ignore a very major area of possible growth and that is the tourist industry. In my view, that is most unfortunate. If it wished to boost real economic growth, I think it would have been timely for the federal government to pay some attention to the tourist industry in the mini-budget. In fact, subsequent to the summit meeting, I asked the Tourist Industry Advisory Council of the Northern Territory to put together a summary of proposals for initiatives in the tourist industry that could help both the industry and Australian economic growth. I was able to put this submission, which I think is a fairly sound one, to the Prime Minister, the federal Treasurer and various other federal ministers fairly well in advance of the mini-budget. Unfortunately, at this stage, it seems to have fallen on deaf ears.

Mr Speaker, I would not want you to think that we will allow that situation to continue because I know that everyone in the Northern Territory is at least conscious of the benefits that the tourist industry can have for Australia. My colleague, the Treasurer, will be representing me at the Tourist Ministers' Council meeting in Sydney tomorrow. I have already ensured that the Northern Territory submission will be an agenda item. Hopefully, the Tourist Ministers' Council will agree on it and it can then go forward to the federal government with the combined weight of the Tourist Ministers' Council behind it. I do not think that the federal government can continue to ignore the tourist industry for much longer if we are to have any real hope of raising levels of employment in this country in the short-to-medium term. It is the tourist industry that holds out the principal hope for employment growth in this country.

Agriculture at Deep Well Station

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is he aware that a recent Water Resources report recommends that an area of Deep Well Station is the best area to establish agriculture in central Australia and will he undertake to bring this matter to the attention of the Deep Well Station people with a view to encouraging such a development?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will be happy to bring this matter to the attention of the mangement of Deep Well Station. In fact, I will also raise it with the Department of Primary Production and the Conservation Commission because these 2 units of government are currently doing an assessment of land that would be suitable for both agriculture and horticulture. It has been shown during the last couple of years that Alice Springs is quite able to cultivate products which can be sold competitively on southern markets. If suitable land is available on Deep Well Station and people are interested in developing it, whether it is the management of Deep Well Station or others, I think we should be looking at it. I can assure the honourable member that I will bring that matter to the attention of the people concerned.

Pensioner Concession Scheme

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is the review of the pensioner concession scheme completed and can he indicate if it is to be broadened to include widows, invalid pensioners and those on repatriation benefits?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the pensioner's concession scheme is always under review. It is a scheme operated by this government that does not seem to exist in any of the states. It is one of those schemes which, like many others, has the capacity to consume enormous amounts of money. It is not that the government would not like to pay money to everybody that it could but there has to be a limit. No steps have been taken at this stage to broaden the scheme to include the groups mentioned. However, I would emphasise that the government would like to help as many people as possible through the scheme; it is constrained only by the financial problems.

Malpa Trading Company

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

I preface my question by referring him to this letter to the Malpa Trading Company in which he said that it did not appear that there was any intention by Malpa to offer the closure of the existing service station to coincide with the development of Yulara and the rehabilitation of the national park. I would also draw his attention to a newspaper report in the Centralian Advocate ...

Mr SPEAKER: Order! What is the question?

Mr BELL: I am prefacing it, Mr Speaker. There are 2 documents that relate to the question. The Centralian Advocate reported that the Conservation Commission said that the store and service station at Yulara will be phased out when Yulara is completed. Who is right, the Chief Minister or the Conservation Commission?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I cannot vouch for the accuracy of the report in the Centralian Advocate but I have my advice. The letter was drafted for me by the Yulara Project Office which is an offshoot of the Conservation Commission. I know that the Conservation Commission had hoped that every facility of that nature within the park - the motel, the service station, the store - would be phased out. In the rather irregular interviews, in terms of commercial practice, held with the Malpa Trading Company, it refused to budge on the question of phasing out the service station and store in the park area. Whilst the Conservation Commission might desire that end, it appears that the Malpa Trading Company will resist it stoutly.

Tax on Beer and Soft Drinks

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey, and it needs a preamble to explain its purpose. Realising that drinkers in Katherine pay 22.2¢ per can of beer in tax at present, does the Chief Minister accept the Mayor of Katherine's suggestion that another 5¢ tax per can be added to help finance the Alice Springs to Darwin rail link, and will soft drinks be taxed similarly?

ANSWER

I cannot answer for the Mayor of Katherine but if she is proposing to introduce that tax on beer and soft drinks in Katherine, I do not think that she will be mayor of that town for very long.

Registration of Chiropractors

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Some time ago in the Assembly, the former Minister for Health introduced, and subsequently withdrew, legislation to register chiropractors in the Northern Territory. Does the present Minister for Health intend to proceed with the registration of chiropractors?

ANSWER

The matter is under consideration and, hopefully, I will be in a position to introduce such legislation during the course of this year.

Proposed Berry Springs Zoo

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Has a detailed site plan yet been prepared for the proposed zoo at Berry Springs and, if so, is the plan available for public information and inspection?

ANSWER

I recall seeing a plan on the Berry Springs zoo. I cannot recall whether it was a mud map or a comprehensive plan of what was proposed for development over a period of 5 years. I think honourable members will recall that the government committed itself to a rather large expenditure over a period of time to bring the Berry Springs zoo up to a satisfactory standard for the benefit of the public. I will seek the map out and, if it is one that can be distributed easily, I will give it to each member of the Assembly for information.

Future Site for Fuel Storage Depot

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for LANDS

I am concerned about future fuel storage in the Darwin area. Has an area of land been set aside for a future fuel storage depot and, if so, where is that depot to be sited?

ANSWER

My predecessor as Minister for Lands, the honourable Treasurer, apparently unveiled to a planning seminar in Darwin some time last year, a proposal that there should be a relocation of the fuel installations that are presently, by and large, in the Frances Bay area of Darwin, in the triangle formed by McMinn Street, Stuart Highway and Frances Bay. I cannot but agree with him. I think anyone would agree with the former Minister for Lands that, from a planning point of view, it is time that we started phasing the fuel installations out of such a potentially important urban area.

I understand it has now become the policy of the Planning Authority that, over a period of time, it will proceed to relocate the fuel storage area of Darwin. An area has been set aside on the coast adjacent to Channel Island where this relocation will take place. Although it is not proposed to complete that relocation for a period of 15 years or so, obviously planning, and to some extent action, has had to begin. The first action that the government is likely to take in respect of implementing this policy is that, now that Caltex Oil Company's fuel installation has become surplus to its requirements and has come onto the market, the Northern Territory government intends either to purchase or acquire it. It may lease the facility for some time into the future. Through a process of consultation and negotiation with the oil companies - and I want to emphasise that - the policy and even the time can be allowed to remain sufficiently flexible to attempt to suit everyone's convenience. When I say 15 years, that is an indicative rather than a firm period, Mr Speaker. We would hope that by about the year 2000 at the very latest, all fuel facilities will be away from the urban area of Darwin, and that land will be available for commercial or other types of urban development.

Seminar on Future of Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

What has been the response to the Co-ordinator-General's efforts to set up a seminar on the future of Nhulunbuy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, some months ago, following on a visit to Nhulunbuy by myself and discussions over there with the Confederation of Industry, the Tourist Promotion Association and various other groups within the town, I considered that it would be a contribution to certainty and progress in the town of Nhulunbuy if some indications could be gained from various parties as to the future of the town as they saw it. Naturally, these parties would need to include: the landowners of Nhulunbuy through their representatives, the Northern Land Council; the mining company, Nabalco; the townspeople of Nhulunbuy through their representative organisations, including the Nhulunbuy Town Board; and the various groups that I have spoken to as well, of course, as the Northern Territory and federal governments.

I requested the Co-ordinator-General to endeavour to set up a seminar on the future of the town through a process of consultation with these various groups. The intention would be to try to work out a plan as to where Nhulunbuy is headed so that people there could attempt to take decisions for the future with some degree of certainty. The seminar seemed to be coming along pretty well. I think the Co-ordinator-General had anticipated a successful conclusion and had fixed a date for the seminar when he received word that the Nabalco Company, at that stage, was not prepared to participate. Mr Speaker, you would appreciate that, in the circumstances of Nhulunbuy, Nabalco's participation is essential. Virtually nothing at all can happen over there unless Nabalco agrees to it. Even if the Territory and Commonwealth governments and the Northern Land Council agreed to participate in a seminar, the absence of Nabalco would render it a futile exercise. As a consequence, I said to the Co-ordinator-General that he had better postpone the seminar and use his good offices to attempt to persuade Nabalco to adopt a more flexible approach and perhaps a more cooperative attitude in this regard. If this can be effected, perhaps Nabalco will let us all in on its plans for the future as well as hearing everyone else's plans. The Co-ordinator-General is attempting to induce Nabalco to be part of it all. I can assure the honourable member that I will inform him, as I have in the past, as soon as I have any information.

Fort Hill Wharf

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Which consultant firm is responsible for the design of Fort Hill Wharf?

ANSWER

The only wharf I am familiar with is the one that approval was given for in August 1978. The consultants for that work were Cameron McNamara.

Disease in Pigs in the Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINSITER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he give details regardingthe recent outbreak of disease in pigs in the rural area?

ANSWER

It is my intention to make a comprehensive statement to the Assembly on the events of the last 4 or 5 days.

Fort Hill Wharf

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

When did the government first become aware that there were design problems at Fort Hill Wharf?

No answer given.

Amendments to Local Government Act

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When will the amendments to the Local Government Act be introduced to enable the city council to set a minimum rate?

ANSWER

As honourable members would know, a review of our local government legislation is taking place. I have no knowledge that there is any urgency for the purpose put by the honourable member for Port Darwin. I would see that issue being taken in the total context of the review of the Local Government Act.

Tenders for Container Crane

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Did the government engage consultants to assess the tenders received for the construction of the container crane?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to put his question on notice.

Large-animal Pound for Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When will we have legislation for a large-animal pound for the rural area?

ANSWER

There is before me at the moment a paper to make provision for a pound in the rural area. I do not believe it is absolutely essential at the moment to have the proposal enshrined in legislation. There are administrative steps that we can take. I believe it will be necessary, in the future, for this issue to be covered by legislation. As it is a local government function, this issue will be taken in the context of the review of that legislation.

Fort Hill Wharf

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Did the government seek advice from the original designers of the Fort Hill Wharf on work needed to upgrade it to meet the requirements of the new container crane? If so, what was that advice?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable gentleman to place his question on notice.

Vehicle Powered by Mereenie Crude Oil

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is it true that a diesel vehicle powered by Mereenie crude oil recently ran from Sydney to Melbourne as part of a southern investment campaign? If it did, what is the future of such oil as an alternative to the refined product known as automotive distillate?

ANSWER

A motor vehicle was indeed driven from Sydney to Melbourne on Mereenie crude oil. The motor vehicle was a Mitsubishi Pajero turbo. The oil was unrefined. The Mereenie partners use unrefined Mereenie crude to power all of their diesel plants at the oil field itself. The crude there is used for everything including four-wheel-drive vehicles, small lighting plants and 330 kw diesel generators. The oil is taken direct from the well and allowed to settle so that the gas dissipates. It is then put through a high-speed centrifugal separator to get rid of impurities - filtering mechanism. That crude then is used to power diesel motors. The motor vehicle that was used in the proving run from Sydney to Melbourne worked perfectly, I am told from the people who were in it who included motor magazine writers. I believe both Wheels magazine and Australian Motor were involved in the exercise. It was quite good publicity for the Northern Territory. It was done as part of our campaign for investment promotion in both New South Wales and Victoria.

As for the last part of the question, I do not believe the partners would ever see the use of Mereenie crude in that form as a substitute for diesel. We would wish to see a refinery set up, in Alice Springs hopefully, to supply the region. It would produce everything from motor spirit to normal distillate to aviation gasoline and, hopefully, naphtha. We would hope to use naphtha in the Tennant Creek power-station. I have asked NTEC to examine urgently the possibility of using the naphtha byproduct to power the Tennant Creek power-station. I understand that it is quite feasible. The honourable member for Barkly, the Minister for Primary Production, would be aware that the time is approaching when we will need further capacity in the power-station at Tennant Creek. One would hope that naphtha would be one of the means of powering the station. I would certainly not wish to see a very valuable light crude such as Mereenie crude used as a substitute for diesel. Nonetheless, it demonstrates that it is a world class light crude. While it may have appeared to be a gimmick to run a vehicle from Sydney to Melbourne like that, the publicity it received was amazing.

All the television stations in Sydney had agreed to film the start of the run but, regrettably, only Channel 9 turned up because some inconsiderate hound set fire to a public building in the heart of Sydney. We all know that a good fire is much better than a good gimmick. Our television promotion somewhat bombed out but, nonetheless, Channel 9 carried it. The story has been run in the Financial Review and the Weekly Times, complete with photographs and descriptions. It was something that we made a fair bit of play from in respect to petroleum exploration companies based in Sydney and Melbourne. I believe it is the type of thing which attracts a lot of interest. It certainly proved the quality of Mereenie crude oil.

Fort Hill Wharf

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Were changes made to the original design of the Fort Hill Wharf and, if so, who authorised the changes?

ANSWER

The opposition has already given public notice that it wishes to discuss the matter in the Assembly. The information requested is contained in several documents in front of me. I am not able at present to single out specific dates in respect of quick questions.

Proposed Hilton Development in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the current situation regarding the proposed Hilton development in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

It has long been the government's desire to see established in Alice Springs at least one 4-star international standard hotel. We are after quality accommodation, probably for the middle to upper tourist market. Obviously, it would also be preferable if that establishment could be run by one of the world's leading hotel chains for the very simple reason that it would have well-established in-house promotion facilities and a network of business connections. We have been negotiating with a group in Alice Springs and Adelaide which has been trying to set up such a venture for some time. Even though a hotel might be called the Sheraton or the Hilton, it is most unlikely that that hotel chain in fact owns that hotel. It merely operates it on behalf of the owner. I understand the operating fee is a base fee plus a percentage, which covers costs and probably includes a margin of profit. There is an additional incentive in the form of a percentage of the profits. These sorts of agreements no doubt vary.

The group that put together the Hilton Hotel project in Adelaide were in touch with the people in Alice Springs who were proposing to redevelop the golf course there. Part of the golf course redevelopment included a substantial area of land for an international hotel. It is still owned by the golf course developers and there is an option over the land in favour of the hotel developers. As I understand it, after many attempts the hotel developers have recently been successful in putting together a package of finance which should enable them to proceed with construction in the not-too-distant future. For some time, they had the Hilton group interested. I think that is the reason it became the Hilton Hotel project. But there was a time delay in putting together the financial package. This is the big problem with the Northern Territory that is very hard for the ordinary person to appreciate. Big financial institutions - not necessarily Australian ones - do not just flock to invest their money in the Northern Territory. They want to put their money in the places where they have invested many times before. Superannuation funds are happy to build hotels in Sydney because hotels in Sydney have proven track records.

Even so, the Premier of New South Wales assured me only a month or two ago that hotels in Sydney often take as long as 5 years or more to become economically viable. This is one of the problems in the Territory. Big hotels do not have a track record in the Territory because we have never had them before. All that can be done is to carry out feasibility studies and try to produce cash flow statements etc based on assessed occupancy. These things are viewed sceptically by the financial institutions. I think that everyone will acknowledge that it is unlikely that a hotel of between 200 and 300 rooms in Alice Springs would become profitable in the first 3 years of operation, and probably not even 5 years if that is the case in places like Sydney. It is necessary for the development of the Territory's tourist trade that we get into this area because these hotels have a spin-off effect in that smaller accommodation facilities grow up around them to service them. For instance, in Hobart, where the Wrestpoint Casino is situated, little motels have grown up to service it. Because it took so long to put the finance package together, Hilton has tended to go somewhat cold on the proposal. It is having troubles with its hotel in Adelaide. I understand that the occupancy rate is only 25% to 35%. I think the first time it was full - although I am not sure - was at the time of the constitutional convention. Hilton are a bit wary.

We believe that our tourist strategy involving Yulara must have another first-class hotel in Alice Springs. We are talking now not only to Hilton but also to Sheraton. Sheraton Hotels is a well known chain which has also expressed interest in developing a hotel in Darwin and it is interested in Yulara. It is fair to mention that Hilton is also interested in Yulara. When I go overseas next Sunday, I will be going on from Malaysia and Japan to the United States for 3 days. On one day, I will meet with Hilton in New York and Sheraton in Boston the same afternoon. I hope to obtain some indication from their head office executives as to their intentions. If we cannot have Sheraton or Hilton, we shall have to start looking at others. Obviously, those are the 2 most desirable chains to attract to the Northern Territory. They are world wide and the flow-on benefits to the Northern Territory tourist trade are almost incalculable.

Money Missing from Safe at Darwin Prison

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

He will be aware that a sum of money went missing from the safe at Darwin Prison. Could he indicate why this matter was not reported immediately and if his department has concluded its investigation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I confirm the details given by the honourable member for Nightcliff. An investigation was carried out by the department at the prison as a result of funds being found to be missing. The exact details of the incident are not in my head. In order to give the honourable member a complete answer and to afford the person concerned a reasonable degree of protection, I propose to answer that question in writing today or tomorrow.

Fort Hill Wharf

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it true that the consultant for stage 1 of the Fort Hill Wharf was not invited by the government to tender for the consultancy services for stage 2 and, if so, why?

ANSWER

I ask the honourable member to place her question on notice.

Impact of Increased Cost of Aviation Fuel

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What impact has the recently announced 2¢ per litre increase in aviation fuel had on travel into and within the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is not just a question of the 2¢ impost on aviation gasoline. As a result of the so-called mini-budget, we have seen a complete abnegation once again of solemn promises and undertakings of the now federal government when it was seeking election by Northern Territorians. We were told that the cost of motor spirit would come down 3¢. What have we seen? We have seen an increase proposed by the removal of the equalisation subsidy scheme. Mr Speaker, in relation to the Cessna 210, 206 or Cherokee Lance aircraft which are the basic charter aircraft used around here, 2¢ a litre in aviation gasoline happens to correspond almost exactly to 2¢ a minute. With the larger twins, that can become 5¢ or 6¢ a minute. One must bear in mind in the Northern Territory the thousands of hours which are flown. Preliminary estimates are that it could cost the commuter in the Territory up to, or perhaps slightly in excess of, $2m in a year. I do not know whether those figures are accurate. Certainly, they seem very high to me. The Department of Transport and Works has a fairly good indication of the hours flown in commercial planes. Many thousands of hours are involved. If one talks in terms of 2¢ to 6¢ a minute and relates that to thousands and thousands of hours flown in a year, an astronomical impost on the people of the Northern Territory in that order is not unbelievable.

Control of Marauding Stock in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Would he undertake to get a definite policy thrashed out between the Conservation Commission and the police for the control of marauding, uncontrolled stock in the rural area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not really know what marauding stock are. I presume the honourable member for Tiwi refers to missing or straying stock. I am not sure that it is the responsibility of the police to care for wandering stock unless they cause some hazard to the public. Neither am I sure that it is the responsibility of the Conservation Commission. I would have thought that the Department of Primary Production would have had somewhat more responsibility than either of the 2 authorities referred to by the honourable member. Frankly, I think it much less a responsibility of any government department than of the owners of the stock. The owners of such animals have a responsibility to fence in their stock properly. I suggest to the honourable member that the problem of wandering stock can be alleviated by people building adequate and proper fencing.

Fort Hill Wharf

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Does the bringing forward of Fort Hill Wharf stage 2 mean that strengthening of the dolphins on the iron ore wharf has been deferred?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask the honourable member to place the question on notice.

Fort Hill Wharf

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Does the government intend to take any legal action against persons or organisations resulting from changes in the design of Fort Hill Wharf?

No answer given.

Sadadeen Subdivision

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

When are the blocks from Sadadeen stages 1 and 2 expected to be ready for turn off?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, unfortunately, I do not have that information immediately to hand. I will be happy to answer the honourable member as soon as I obtain the information.

TIO Policy

Mr VALE to TREASURER

My question relates to the issue by TIO of an insurance policy to a paraplegic to cover him to drive speed cars at Darwin speedway. Will TIO now adopt an open door policy on the issue of insurance coverage to disabled people to compete in other sporting events?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would like to make it clear to anyone who may have misunderstood the action of the TIO in issuing special coverage to a paraplegic to race at the speedway from time to time that that was a commercial action by the TIO. The office has the usual reinsurance in such coverage that it would have to cover any other person racing at a speedway. It is notoriously difficult to obtain coverage for activities such as buck-jumping and car racing which are prone to injure people. However, if one is prepared to pay the price when the insurance company assesses the relevant risks, coverage can be obtained. The fact that the TIO commendably issued ordinary commercial coverage for a paraplegic to drive a car on a speedway does not mean that the TIO is in a position to insure the uninsurable. Under its charter, the TIO has to run on commercial insurance principles and it has to make a profit. I would like to make it clear that the TIO will be assessing risks which are presented to it from time to time in a normal commercial sense.

Power for Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Does the NT government subsidise power production in Nhulunbuy and, if so, under what conditions? Are those conditions being reviewed?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am unable to answer the question. I know that there is an arrangement between the Northern Territory and the producers of the electricity in respect of government needs. I am also aware of a subsidy arrangement but I cannot give the details. It would be better if I wrote to the honourable member later.

Causeway in Heavitree Gap Area

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the recent floods in Alice Springs and the inconvenience caused to residents of the farm area, will the government give urgent consideration to the need for an all-weather causeway across the Todd River in the Heavitree Gap area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, during the floods, people were marooned on the other side of the river and unable to get into the city of Alice Springs. The Department of Transport and Works is looking at other sites for causeways further down from the Gap. That side of Alice Springs is growing quite extensively in terms of rural developments. I am not saying that, at this stage, the government will commit funds for such a project but we are certainly making that investigation.

Poker Machines in Clubs

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

There has been considerable comment about the introduction of poker machines into clubs in the Northern Territory. What is the government's attitude towards this issue?

ANSWER

As the honourable member for Port Darwin says, the subject of poker machines being made available in clubs is very topical because the Australian Licensed Clubs Association is holding its annual meeting in Darwin at present. I addressed that organisation this morning and took the opportunity to point out that there had been no change whatsoever in this government's position or its policy towards poker machines: they will not be permitted outside the casinos.

The arguments that have been presented by the Licensed Clubs Association, and indeed the opposition, are full of holes. Clubs already have an array of opportunities open to them to raise funds internally, many of which they either do not really appreciate or have not taken advantage of. Many of these are not available to clubs elsewhere in this country. I refer to such things as bingo. The Northern Territory is the only place in this country where there are no controls on bingo games as to size, frequency, jackpots etc, provided the club is an association approved by the Racing and Gaming Commission. Virtually all licensed clubs could be approved associations on those terms. Bingo is a game by which a great deal of money is raised in this country to assist charitable organisations and clubs. I do not think the Territory is anywhere near its saturation point there.

Under the legislation passed last year, those clubs can install approved gaming machines. Few of these are being installed at the moment. Again, I do not think clubs have explored sufficiently the market that is available to them for such machines but they generally require a degree of skill as well as a degree of chance in order to reach a score whereat one can obtain a prize. Again, the Northern Territory is the only place in Australia where this activity is permitted by law. All clubs can conduct major lotteries with permission, and they can conduct minor lotteries without permission. The old days when the chook raffle was an illegal event are certainly long gone in the Territory. As I mentioned in the Assembly before, the Territory is in the forefront in Australia in the reform of this kind of gambling. We make it legal. Another activity that clubs can engage in is calcuttas. There are no controls on beer ticket machines. All we want to know is how many they have and where they are installed. We do not want any information about returns or turnover. Clubs are also encouraged to sell Instant Sports Lotto tickets on an agency basis from Tattersals in Victoria. Unfortunately, the clubs have not made a great deal of use of that opportunity.

Some people in the clubs appear to think there is some easy way in which they can get over their financial problems. They believe poker machines would provide it. I can assure them that they are wrong, particularly in a town this size. It is not simply a matter of lining the machines along the walls, preparing the treasurer for the inflow of money and establishing a special committee to work out how to spend it. We pointed out to the Licensed Clubs Association that there are more clubs per head of population in the Northern Territory than anywhere else in the country. Indeed, we have almost twice as many clubs per adult person as New South Wales, which is regarded as a state with many clubs. Per head of population, we have 4 times as many clubs as some states in Australia. It is no wonder some of the clubs have difficulty. I have someone on my staff who is a member of 7 clubs in Darwin. If any of those 7 clubs believes that it will receive substantial revenue from such a member, it is joking. Such people are almost phantom members so far as significant contributions to the revenue of the club are concerned. I can assure honourable members that many people in Darwin are members of at least 2 and, in many cases, more clubs. They cannot be counted upon as normal contributors who will drop in every evening on the way home from work to spend a few dollars, be it on a poker machine, over the bar or however. The government has not changed its policy. Unlike the ALP, we do not favour the proliferation of poker machines throughout the Northern Territory and it will not occur as long as this government is in office.

Prison Farm for Alice Springs

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When can the citizens of central Australia and the people involved in the provision of correctional services there expect the establishment of a prison farm?

ANSWER

The honourable member's question is timely because the matter of another prison institution in the central Australian area has been under active review for quite some time. The government committed itself to the establishment of a prison farm in the Alice Springs area some 12 or 18 months ago and wheels were put in motion to identify sites and look at how it might be done. During that period, the prison population has dropped off considerably. That is a phenomenon for which we have no explanation. Neither do we have any expectation that numbers will rise subsequently to the stage where they will justify the establishment of a new institution. I can advise the honourable member that the matter is under constant review because it is one that the government treats very seriously. Overcrowded prisons are not desirable under any circumstances, nor is it desirable to build an institution which will not have anybody to go into it. I will advise the honourable member of any change in the prison population or trends in the numbers of people being committed to prison. The government would act quickly to rectify any problem situation.

Community Facilities at Sanderson High School

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Will he advise if he is satisfied with the community facilities which are to be provided by the construction of the Sanderson High School?

ANSWER

I certainly am. I do not have a list before me of the community facilities which are being incorporated in the design for the Sanderson High School. However, I can assure honourable members that they are indeed quite extensive. These days schools are designed for more community use than ever before. We have taken particular note of the wishes of citizens in the Sanderson area which have been expressed to the government about particular requirements as they see them. We have not been able to meet every request for facilities to be included in the design of the school. For example, a swimming pool was asked for and we felt that, at this stage, we had to say no. We believe that the education dollar should be used for more direct education facilities than a swimming pool. We pointed out to the community that there was substantial land available at the high school site and that negotiations could continue with other parties, such as local government, should it so desire on the subject of the installation of a community pool. However, other facilities more directly related to a school - an oval, tennis courts, car-parking, toilets, possibly a library - have been taken into consideration. I believe the new high school, which we hope will open its doors at the beginning of the 1985 school year, will be the Territory's most modern school in design and its most progressive by incorporating all the reasonably practical suggestions that have been put forward to us by the community in that area.

Northern Suburbs Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Could he advise the Assembly what interim arrangements will be made to handle the expected overload at Casuarina and Dripstone High Schools in the period leading up to the opening of Sanderson High School and whether any programs need to be scrapped or curtailed?

ANSWER

I am certainly not aware of any programs that would be scrapped or curtailed. In fact, a small amount of additional accommodation can be provided at other high schools. I cannot be specific without obtaining more details. However, other high schools in the Darwin area will be able to accommodate the small bubble, as it were, in students prior to the opening of Sanderson

High School. It had not been intended to build the Sanderson High School within the foreseeable future but that the students from that area would be accommodated at other high schools in Darwin, some of which have declining populations because their feeder areas are getting older and older. However, there will be no difficulty at all in meeting the needs of Darwin citizens in that regard.

Prison Farm for Alice Springs

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

My question relates to the answer to a previous question on a prison farm in central Australia. Will he give an indication of the numbers of prisoners that, in his view, would justify the establishment of such a prison farm?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can do that but I would need to refer to the department for statistical data and advice. I would prefer to answer by letter. It is something I would prefer not to do off the top of my head.

Federal Deficit

Mr D.W. COLLINS to TREASURER

Is he aware of an article on page 2 of the Weekend Australian titled, 'The story of the Treasury and the Exocet missile', in which it is claimed that yet a third estimate by federal Treasury on the budget deficit gives a figure something like $8000m instead of the much touted $9600m?

ANSWER

Like all interested Australians, I am aware of the particular article. As I hope most Australians have, I have taken renewed interest in the subject of deficits since they seem to be touted around in the breeze so regularly and so firmly these days as an excuse not to carry out former commitments. As honourable members are aware, less than 3 months ago, we were advised that the coming financial year would produce a federal deficit of $9600m. I spoke earlier in the Assembly on this and I am pleased to note that the article the honourable member refers to seems to confirm the points I made. Predicting a deficit so far away would seem to be a very imperfect sort of science which would produce very rubbery figures, to take a cliche from another place. The factors impinging on a deficit, particularly a federal deficit, are such things as growth in the economy, the inflation rate, world oil prices, levels of unemployment and the effect they have on the federal deficit by way of welfare payments, and wage increases. That, of course, is a great subject in the community at present: what wage increases the country can afford over the remainder of this year, let alone the balance of the next financial year. It demonstrates how the deficit factor of the federal budget is influenced by a whole series of imponderables. By way of example, the federal salaries' bill for the public service is $4300m a year. For every 1% increase in national wages that is granted, there is a $43m impact on the federal budget and on the federal deficit. The federal government could not tell you exactly how much will be granted in the next round of wage increases for which cases are being heard at present by the Arbitration Commission, let alone subsequent increases that may be applied for over the period from Christmas to the middle of next year. Predicting deficits 13 months away is a very imperfect science. Mr Howard is asking the federal Treausrer to release much more information than has been released to date on how the $9600m figure was arrived at. Mr Howard suggests that the figure, without any action being taken by the federal government since it came to office, could well have been $8000m and not $9600m. Earlier this year, the figure was $4200m, it then rose to $9600m and it is now being suggested that perhaps it is $8000m. It is all over the place.

One thing we can be very sure about is that it will continue to be used and there will be further crystal-balling by all and sundry. It is crystal-balling whether we are talking about Treasury's figures or John Howard's or those of any other expert who claims some knowledge of the subject such as the academics who are called upon from time to time to put forward their views, As mentioned in the article that the honourable member for Alice Springs has brought to our attention, John Howard said, and this is yet another guess, that it will be in the vicinity of $8000m. Obviously, no one really knows and no one shouldbe game enough to state absolutely what the deficit will be. However, I am sure that we will have the thing touted many times over the next 12 months as a reason why the federal government cannot fulfil the promises it made so recently.

Sale of Beef to South Korea

Mr VALE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he advise the implications for Nothern Territory cattle producers and Northern Territory abattoirs if South Korea obtains beef from New Zealand instead of Australia as proposed?

ANSWER

I believe that all honourable members will be concerned at reports in the press last night and this morning that the Korean beef importers would not purchase any more beef from Australia in retaliation for Australia's attitude towards Korean investment in a Queensland gas project. As a matter of urgency, I raised this matter with the department this morning because I believe that the Northern Territory's position is such that we cannot afford to lose any markets where we have our foot in the door. I was particularly keen to obtain a briefing from the department. If South Korea reduces its purchases of Australian beef, the Northern Territory will be affected. However, the effect is likely to have more serious long-term rather than immediate implications. At present, the beef market is relatively buoyant. However, it is subject to notorious cyclical fluctuations. The implications of the loss of established markets are particularly serious when market conditions are declining. In such situations, the loss of overseas market outlets may have marked and serious effects on overall Australian supply-demand relationships.

In 1981-82, South Korea imported only 10 t of Northern Territory beef. During the same year, it imported 5466 t from South Australia. A proportion of the South Australian shipment is likely to have been processed from Northern Territory cattle. During the past 2 years, the quantity of Australian beef imported by Korea has increased sharply from 6079 t in 1980-81 to 54 011 t in 1981-82. Shipments during the current financial year are running at levels above those in the preceding year. Korea is now Australia's third largest beef customer after the USA and Japan. Although the South Koreans have specific carcass requirements, a number of Northern Territory pastoral districts are capable of producing the required carcass type. Consequently, the Northern Territory beef industry's potential is seriously threatened by the foreshadowed closure of the South Korean market.

Frances Bay Drive

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Could he indicate why work has stopped on the road linking the Frances Bay connector road with Reichardt Road, Winnellie?

ANSWER

I indicated in a press release that that road would become Tiger Brennan Drive. A short section is called Frances Bay Drive at present. The proposal is that that will extend to Palmerston. We are looking at about 15 years lead time to when the population of Palmerston grows to such an extent that there will be a need for a major connecting highway. It was decided that, when the first contract was let, the road would be left so that the parts across the swamp areas could settle and that further work would be picked up in the next contract stage. I am not sure of the details of when that will be undertaken. I will obtain further information and provide it to the honourable member later.

Northern Territory Aerial Work

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is the minister aware that it has been reported today that Northern Territory Aerial Work is about to terminate its operation in the NT? Is the minister further aware that Airlines of Northern Australia is continuing to operate at quite substantial losses and can he advise whether the closure of NTAW will lead to any changes in services offered by Airlines of Northern Australia?

ANSWER

I understand that Northern Territory Aerial Work presently holds the Commonwealth aerial surveillance contract in the Northern Territory which expires on 30 June 1983. I discussed this matter recently with the general manager of ATI, Mr Yates, and he advised me that Airlines of Northern Australia will again lose money during the current financial year but its losses have been reduced substantially to around $0.5m. He indicated that, as a result, all he can foreshadow at present is that there may be some changes in respect to the Katherine to Darwin service and that will involve further negotiations with Tillair. Those changes will be picked up by Tillair. It is only a possibility at this stage.

Soil Conservation Techniques in Douglas-Daly Farming Region

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Can he assure me that adquate attention is being paid to soil conservation techniques in the Douglas-Daly farming region?

ANSWER

The honourable member gave me advance notice of this question. The answer that I have been provided with by the Department of Primary Production, ADMA and the Soil Conservation Unit is not a long one but is fairly comprehensive. I am aware of the potential for soil erosion in the Douglas-Daly project farm area. I am pleased to advise the honourable member that it is being actively combated by the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority and its project farmers. Prevention rather than cure is the principle being pursued.

ADMA has obtained the services of the Soil Conservation Unit of the Northern Territory Conservation Commission to plan a soil conservation strategy for the region. Officers of the Soil Conservation Unit were active in the area last year and are continuing their excellent work this dry season. Up to date, they have surveyed most of the country in the area and the balance of the cleared country will be surveyed by the end of this dry season. They have prepared plans for soil conserving structures for all or part of each of the 6 project farms and the Douglas-Daly research farm, and they have supervised the construction of diversion banks, contour banks and waterways on part of 5 of the farms and on the Douglas-Daly research farm. Further construction to protect a much larger area will take place this dry season. It is anticipated that all construction work on the 6 project farms will be completed by the 1984 dry season.

You would be aware, Mr Speaker, that soil conservation does not rely on engineering structures alone for its success. An integral part of all successful soil conservation is surface management of the soil. This involves minimum tillage of the soil with a view to retaining large amounts of crop stubble on the soil surface. I am also pleased to say that the Department of Primary Production will commence direct drilling or zero tillage trials in the Douglas-Daly area this coming wet season. Its principal benefit is in the reduction in soil lost through wind and water erosion to very low levels. I further understand that the Soil Conservation Unit consults regularly with ADMA and the project farmers on a range of issues related to soil conservation on the farms. It also confers with other groups who may be involved with the program; for example, the Roads Division of the Department of Transport and Works. I am happy to say that I believe adequate attention is being given to soil conservation strategies, techniques and their implementation in the Douglas-Daly area.

Northern Territory Aerial Work

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I would like to ask in another way the question that I previously asked the honourable Minister for Transport and Works. He may have misunderstood what I was trying to ask. Is it true that the pilots employed by Northern Territory Aerial Works are likely to receive termination notices in the next few days?

ANSWER

I am advised by the same general manager that NTAW intends to issue retrenchment notices to some 7 to 10 pilots. I do not know if the figure has been determined. That was today. Those retrenchments will take effect at the end of June. If the surveillance contract is extended, I am advised that the notices will be rescinded. I do not think a greater effort could have been made to try to influence the Commonwealth Department of Transport to extend these contracts. It is a matter that has been going on for many months. The Chief Minister made representations to the federal government, as we have done through our own office. Mr Speaker, I have no answers. Representations have been made by the Northern Territory government and we will have to see what happens in the next day or so.

TIO Insurance against Flood Damage

Mr BELL to TREASURER

In the wake of the recent floods in central Australia, has the Territory Insurance Office received any requests for quotes for flood insurance protection and, if so, has he any details?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no details before me of any approaches that have been made by Alice Springs residents to the TIO for flood coverage. I suspect that there would have been some approaches following the unfortunate reminder Alice Springs' people had recently that many of them in that town are, indeed, within zones where their homes could be flooded. Certainly, we would encourage them all to find out fully, from their own insurance companies or from the Territory Insurance Company, what coverage is available to them and at what price. I point out that flood coverage probably will vary from place to place or zone to zone as the likelihood of flooding is assessed on each individual property. I do not have any details on how many people have made approaches for such information.

Palm Leaf Beetle Control

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What is the present position with regard to the spread of the parasite that was introduced to control the palm leaf beetle?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I undertake to provide an answer for the honourable member in tomorrow morning's session.

Electric Fencing in Douglas-Daly Area

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Is it true that a substantial amount of electric fencing was erected in the Douglas-Daly farms area prior to the survey being carried out? Is it also true that, now that the survey has been carried out, the fencing has to be relocated at a cost of about $100 000?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is my understanding that there is a considerable amount of electric fencing in the area. I have no details at the moment as to whether the fence is in the right place or whether a cost is to be incurred in order to move it. I will undertake to obtain this information for the member and let him know as soon as possible.

Northern Territory Aerial Work Standards

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the government require that Northern Territory Aerial Work maintain a standard of service based on RPT requirements for the provision of aerial medical services?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would question the honourable member's reference to RPT service. The Aerial Medical Service does not provide an RPT service. It provides an aero-medical and evacuation service to those remote communities that are in need of that type of service. RPT routes are allocated by the Northern Territory government to those charter operators who are willing to pioneer routes over various areas of the Territory. Of course, this is of financial benefit to themselves. Her question is somewhat ambiguous in that she referred to the Aerial Medical Service having RPT routes.

Proposed Berry Springs Zoo

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Can he give me details of the present position regarding the establishment of the Berry Springs zoo?

ANSWER

I can give the honourable member some information. The honourable member for Sanderson raised the issue of the Berry Springs zoo last Thursday. She asked if a conceptual plan is available for the zoo. Mr Speaker, if one of the attendants could distribute these papers to honourable members, I would be grateful.

In answer to the honourable member for Tiwi's question, at the moment a site office has been established there. The boundary line has been totally cleared. Preliminary documentation of the proposed water supply and sewerage system has been received from consulting engineers. A dirt entrance road has been established between the Darwin River Road and the entrance fence. The reservoir earthworks have been completed. Three bores have been sunk to an average of 30 m and one is activated with a pump and a tank has been attached. Two km of service road have been formed inside the zoo and tenders for the reticulation of water, the installation of a sewerage system and the erection of a boundary fence will be called for during the 1983-84 year. I believe honourable members will accept that a fair amount of work has been done on the establishment of the zoo. The Conservation Commission would be very pleased to receive any comments that honourable members might have to make on the conceptual plan that it has arranged. I have found the commission very conscious of the public's views on things. I am sure that, if honourable members wish to make a contribution on that, the Conservation Commission would be only too pleased to hear from them.

Northern Territory Aerial Work Standards

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the Northern Territory government require that Northern Territory Aerial Work maintain its aero-medical aircraft to RPT standards?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, a certain level of airworthiness is required by the Commonwalth in relation to the licensing of any aircraft that is to be used in the Northern Territory.

Sale of Housing Commission Houses in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Has any department in the Northern Territory government reached any agreement with Nabalco which would enable Housing Commission houses in Nhulunbuy to be sold to tenants?

ANSWER

I have recited the problems involved in this matter for the benefit of this Assembly on several occasions. To the best of my knowlege, the Northern Territory government has still not reached an agreement with Nabalco that would enable us to sell Housing Commission homes. I have asked the Housing Commission and the Department of Law to expedite this matter on a number of occasions. Our people have used their best endeavours to resolve this matter. Nonetheless, it seems that achieving agreement with the various parties involved in what I think is called the Gove joint venture is an almost impossible task. To the best of my knowledge, it is not possible at the moment for us to sell the houses otherwise we would be doing so, as previously indicated.

Public Bus Services

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he give an assurance that public bus services will not be curtailed as a consequence of the review of the Darwin bus services which is currently being undertaken?

ANSWER

There was a very interesting item on the ABC this morning that said that bus services in Darwin would deteriorate as a result of proposed changes by the Department of Transport and Works. The secretary of the TWU accused the department yesterday of becoming involved in a political decision over the future of the Darwin bus service. He said that a letter circulated last week to drivers from the Deputy Secretary of the Department of Transport and Works stated that the present costs of subsidised public transport would be better spent on other community requirements.

Mr Speaker, for the benefit of members, I will read that letter into the public record. This letter was sent to all drivers. It states the government's position. It was discussed with me before the deputy secretary of the department sent it out. It was sent out on 23 May and it reads:

I am writing to people employed in the Darwin Bus Service to let everyone know of the problems which we have and the actions which we intend to take. We estimate in this financial year the bus service will cost the government (the community) some $3.15m. This figure is the difference between the costs of providing the service and the revenue we collect. The difference has been growing each year despite our efforts to hold costs down and to attract customers. The cost is equivalent to the payment by the government of $1.73 per trip for every person carried by the bus service during the year. Most public bus services are subsidised but the average level in Australia is equivalent to around 60¢ per passenger carried.

While there are some reasons of location and city development which increase our costs, I think you will agree that we are not doing well by comparison with other bus systems. I do not believe that we can expect the government or the general community to continue to pay out this amount of money. All governments are now faced with constraints on available funds and the level of subsidy to the bus system reduces the money which could be better spent on other community requirements.

We have already commenced looking at the costs of servicing and repairing our buses and of administration of the bus service. Next month we intend to start looking at different ways of running the services we now provide. Salaries, wages and related costs make up more than 70% of our costs and this is an area which we will have to examine closely. This is not to be read as a threat that those currently employed will lose their jobs as a result of the review. However, it may require non-replacement of people in present positions or changes in working arrangements. I would like to arrange meetings with small groups over the next few weeks to discuss what we are doing and to find out your views of ways of providing services to the community at lower cost. If you wish to discuss the matter personally, please contact David Smith on 89 6390 to arrange a suitable time.

Yours sincerely,
N. Gordon.

Mr Speaker, it is not the government's intention to reduce services but to look very closely at the costsand methods of operating the service.

Northern Territory Aerial Work

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he able to add anything to comments made by the Minister for Transport and Works regarding the termination of the contract with Northern Territory Aerial Work by the Commonwealth government?

ANSWER

In fact, I had a conversation with the general manager of operations for Ansett Transport Industries, Mr Alan Yates, 5 minutes before coming back to the Assembly so probably my knowledge of these events is somewhat more fresh than that of the Minister for Transport and Works. I notice that he indicated that my office had been lobbying the federal government very strongly for some time in relation to the renewal of the aerial surveillance contract with Northern Territory Aerial Work, which is an Ansett Transport Industries subsidiary. I thought that the honourable member for Millner was going to ask me a question on the matter but apparently he has decided that discretion is the better part of valour. This is a matter of federal relations, an area within my portfolio.

I have been making representations to the federal government in respect of aerial surveillance since 1977. Apparently, the federal government has decided that it will not renew this contract and 32 people, not all of them pilots, are about to be served with redundancy notices. These notices must go out because the company will go into liquidation virtually unless this aerial surveillance contract is renewed.

We made representations to the previous federal government along the same lines: that Nomad aircraft were specified in the original tenders yet, on renewal of tenders some time ago, no mention was made that any particular preference would be given to Nomad aircraft. Northern Territory Aerial Work took over the Nomad aircraft purchased previously by Northern Airlines to do the same job. Northern Territory Aerial Work is now facing the end of this contract at 30 June. It is required to give notice on agreements it has with the airline pilots and the rest of its employees. The only person who can ensure that these notices of redundancy are withdrawn is the federal Minister for Transport, Mr Peter Morris. I guess that, if he wants Territorians to pay 40% of the cost of a railroad, then we are unlikely to see these notices withdrawn.

Mr Speaker, aerial surveillance is necessary around the Northern Territory coastline. What we are now seeing is the encroachment of companies from Western Australia and Queensland to do this work over the Northern Territory. This company, which at least employs Northern Territory people, is about to have its contract terminated. The Territory government supports that company with Department of Health contracts. Obviously, Airlines of Northern Australia and Northern Territory Aerial Work, as far as Ansett Airlines and its shareholders are concerned, are virtually one and the same thing in regard to the return of profits to the group. Fortunately, the profit haemorrhage of Airlines of Northern Australia has been slowed down although there is still a loss on the routes. I understand that seat occupancy ratings averaged 66% over all routes for the first time last week. Airlines of Northern Australia is starting to look a bit healthier, but the whole thing will be undermined if NTAW loses its surveillance contract. Territorians will lose jobs.

The honourable member for Millner is trying to sheet responsibility for this contract onto the Minister for Transport and Works, but the contract will be cancelled by the federal government. It has nothing to do with the Northern Territory. Perhaps he could get the boneless wonder down in Canberra, Senator 'Territory Watchdog' Ted Robertson, to ask a question of the minister in the Senate about this particular contract. Perhaps a question could be asked in Canberra about this contract because that is the appropriate place for it to be asked. It has nothing to do with the Territory government. We have been fighting to save these jobs for months.

Mr SPEAKER: I request honourable members not to use terms which can be taken as slightly offensive about people who are not in the Chamber.

Victoria River Downs

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for LANDS

Might the Kerry Packer group purchase Victoria River Downs Station at some future date?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is impossible for me to prognosticate in that regard. I do not know whether the Kerry Packer group will come back in respect of Victoria River Downs or not. I suspect that, after an inspection of Victoria River Downs Station, Mr Packer found some things not quite as he thought they might be. It is difficult for me to say because my conversation with him was not lengthy. He indicated that, at this stage, the company did not propose to go ahead with the purchase. I should confirm for the benefit of honourable members that the government had in its hands at the time that I made the statement to the Assembly an application signed by the Hooker organisation for consent to the transfers. The government moved on the matter only when it had a written application for consent. So far as the terms of whatever contracts existed between the 2 parties went, I know nothing of them. I have not seen them and I do not believe it is common for copies of such contracts to be received by the government. It may be that Packer will come back. He certainly expressed a great deal of interest in the Territory. He said to me that he intended to make Newcastle Waters the showplace station of the Territory and that we would certainly not regret his becoming a pastoral lessee in this area. Only time will tell.

Dingoes in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

What is the Conservation Commission doing about the increasing numbers of marauding dingoes in the rural area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I did not realise that we had marauding dingoes in the rural area. I believe that they have been present there. I am aware that the Conservation Commission has examined ways to deal with the problem. However, it has advised me that it has certain difficulties in handling the problem in the rural area. In other parts of the Territory, it has been able to use baiting programs to reduce the number of dingoes which have had a serious impact on stock and calves in certain areas. The option is not available to it in the rural area. The commission has found also that the use of firearms for control of dingoes is not the most appropriate way to go about it. I will ask the Conservation Commission to be more specific about what it is doing so that I can advise the honourable member that a positive approach is being taken rather than a negative one. However, I would make the point that dingo control in an area such as that covered by her electorate is not easy. The government is conscious of the problem and keen to assist in any way it can to keep the numbers down.

Yirara College Principals

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is he aware that Yirara College has had 4 different principals in the last 6 months?

ANSWER

I appreciate that there have been some changes at Yirara College over the last 6 months. I do not receive details of actual numbers of changes of principals in our educational institutions around the Northern Territory. If the honourable member assures me there have been 4 changes, I accept that.

Wildman River Station

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

What was the purchase price for Wildman River Station when it was acquired recently by the Northern Territory government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have that figure in my head at the moment. The purchase was effected by tender 6 to 8 months ago. I think it was obtained from the mortgagee in possession at the time. I am pretty sure it was not at auction. The Territory government, of course, wanted to purchase Wildman River Station for several reasons. It has areas that are suitable for agriculture and horticulture. It has areas that are suitable for preservation in terms of conservation and it has areas that are suitable for recreation. Naturally, with so much of the land around Darwin especially, and elsewhere in the Northern Territory, locked up it is one of the objectives of the government to provide as much access to recreational land as is possible for the people of the Top End and of Darwin in particular. I understand that if it has not done so already, the Conservation Commission will shortly make available to the public certain areas of Wildman River Station for recreational pursuits. I believe also that an area may be set aside for safari purposes. A safari operator, Wimray Safaris, had certain rights from the former owners which were registered against the title by way of caveat. It seems equitable for the government to recognise those interests. Whilst I cannot guarantee the accuracy of this answer, I think that the purchase price was in the order of $300 000. If the honourable member for Nightcliff wishes to pursue the matter further, she has only to drop me a line.

Katherine Water Quality

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I ask this question on behalf of the honourable member for Elsey. What is the government doing to overcome the problem of water quality in Katherine?

ANSWER

Some complaints have been received from residents of Katherine about discoloured water in the town supply since treated water from the Donkey Camp pool was introduced into the system. Our investigation has found that the water treatment plant in the reticulation system is not the source of the problem. Discolouration appears to occur in domestic pipes between the meter and household taps and is more prevalent in galvanised iron pipes. At this stage of the investigation, it seems that a scale formed in the pipes by the previous bore supply has combined with the iron in the pipes and is now being broken down by the soft water from the Donkey Camp supply. This causes discolouration of the water but definitely does not present any health threat. The problem is most noticeable first thing in the morning after the water has lain dormant in the pipes overnight. The discolouration disappears after about 10 litres of water has passed through the tap. Two hundred sample bottles have been distributed around Katherine to get public assistance in resolving this problem. Fifty of those bottles have already been returned to chemists from the Department of Transport and Works, who are in Katherine at present analysing the samples to try to find a way to eliminate the problem. The honourable member can be assured that the Department of Transport and Works will continue its efforts to ensure that the water is brought back to a satisfactory standard.

Aerial Medical Services in Darwin Region

Mrs O'NEIL to MINSITER for HEALTH

If Northern Territory Aerial Work withdraws from the provision of aerial medical services in the Darwin region, will the government replace those services with ones provided by air charter operators?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, until such time as provision is made by NTAW, through its major company ATI, to withdraw its services, I am unable to answer that question.

Jabiru Town Development Authority

Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

What changes, if any, are proposed in the operations of the Jabiru Town Development Authority?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I attended a meeting of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council 2 or 3 weeks ago with a view to discussing any matters of interest that members of that council might have wanted to raise with me. It appears that the Jabiru Town Advisory Council is functioning pretty well and has the Jabiru Town Development Authority firmly under control. It really did not have any great problems to discuss with me. The one area it wanted to discuss, aside from the provision of a motel and camping ground in the town which it seems to consider a desirable objective, was the progress of Jabiru towards further local government, particularly bearing in mind the apparent decision of the federal government to suspend any activity in terms of opening new uranium mines. Jabiru, as members would appreciate, was originally planned to accommodate people who would be working at the Jabiluka mine not so far away. It would be further away than Ranger but it was expected that, when Jabiluka came into production, the size of Jabiru would more than double. The provision of so much housing would be an enormous benefit to the Territory and Australian construction industry.

Apparently, the Sydney Morning Herald carried an article this morning indicating that new or fresh contracts for the sale of uranium have been approved by the federal government. I cannot vouch for the accuracy of this. The contracts relate to Ranger and Queensland Mines or ERA and Queensland Mines. One wonders, if these contracts can be approved, where the federal Minister for Resources and Energy stands because he said that there was no market for uranium and ...

Mr B. Collins: Don't you want them approved?

Mr EVERINGHAM: I am delighted to have them approved, Mr Speaker. We are just examining the rationale behind the various statements that we have heard. We have been told that there is no market for uranium and yet 2 new contracts have now been approved. That is terrific. Obviously, if there are 2 new contracts out there, there could well be more. I am wondering why approval for Jabiluka to go ahead was withdrawn by the government within days of the federal election. I am wondering what the hold up is in relation to approval for Koongarra to get out into the market place. As we know, the majority of the traditional owners there want to develop the project. I understand that they were asked by the federal Minister for Aboriginal Affairs, Mr Clyde Holding, to defer any action for a period of 3 months. I hope that these signs of approval of contracts with existing mines, which means, I would have thought, the expansion of those mines, presages a turnaround in federal policy. Hopefully, we may shortly see the injection of $1000m into the Territory economy and the consequential growth and jobs that that would create. Hopefully, too, that will mean that Jabiru will grow to a much greater level of population.

Mr Speaker, at present, Jabiru has a population of about 1200 people. I have asked the town advisory council to come forward, in consultation with the Jabiru Town Development Authority, with a proposal to the government for local government if that is what they wish. It is now up to them to come forward with this proposal. When it is formulated - hopefully in consultation with myself, as the minister responsible for the Jabiru Town Development Authority and the advisory council - I will put it forward to Cabinet. We will see where it goes from there, Mr Speaker. It may be that it will decide not to do anything. At the moment, it has carte blanche to come up with a proposal for its own future government provided it can secure the agreement of the development authority which, of course, largely represents ERA at this time.

World Demand for Uranium

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Has he any information pertaining to the federal government's and the opposition's claim that the world demand for uranium is now declining?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, what a remarkable coincidence that is. The honourable Chief Minister has just been advising the Assembly and the public, through Hansard and the press, that there is a great demand for uranium throughout the world. The honourable Chief Minister has just cited the Sydney Morning Herald as a paper which produced an article on this very matter. By an equally extraordinary coincidence, the Australian of 31 May 1983 carried a very similar article. Of course, both of these articles bear out the very thing that the Chief Minister and I have been saying for the last several months: that it is nonsense to suggest that there is no market for uranium throughout the world.

Let us look at the headlines: 'Looming US uranium shortage spells good news for miners'. Of course it would, if we did not have a federal Labor government. Nonetheless, let us have a look at the facts. The article goes on: '"For the first time in decades, the consumption of uranium in the United States is outrunning domestic supply", one of the major sources of information in the uranium mining industry said. This trend is likely to accelerate as a great deal of US capacity has been taken out of production and is unlikely to be recommissioned'. These are the very things that we have been saying, not only in respect of the United States, but also in respect of the diversification program in Canada. It continues: 'US consumption in 1982 was 9483 t of uranium oxide while production was 30% lower than in 1981 - 11 751 t. Consumption is rising steadily and will reach 13 793 t next year. But, in the meantime, production is continuing to fall and will drop to only 5445 t next year. The US has a stockpile until 1988, when inventories will amount to 2 years' supply. The country is expected then to become a major new importer at this point'.

Mr Speaker, as I said before, this government has been trying to get the message through to the Commonwealth that there is a very significant market for Northern Territory uranium overseas. It is nonsense to suggest otherwise. The mere fact that 2 further export contracts have been agreed to by the Commonwealth is indicative of that. We are talking about the requirements of major utilities which will use this resource in energy for the next several decades. The facts speak for themselves. Firstly, consumption in the major industrialised countries that have any uranium resources at all is slipping beyond production in those same countries. Korea is having to go to Canada whereas, logically, in transport terms, it would come to Australia. Canada itself is trying to diversify through companies like Denison which is a Canadian parent company. It is anxious to get into uranium production here to diversify its sources. Whilst that major Canadian company is following that line, Korea is turning to Canada to try and get the resources necessary to warm its homes, cool its buildings and provide refrigeration, light and power for the various essentials of an emerging industrial nation.

Clearly, there is a set of circumstances of increasing use and decreasing production of uranium oxide by these industrialised nations. Surely, it is a matter of conscience, if not common sense, for this country to provide those resources to overseas buyers. In these circumstances, for the federal government to try to pretend - not only to the people of the Northern Territory but to all Australians - that this very valuable and vital world resource does not exist here, is a classic example of the behaviour of the ostrich.

Yirara College Staffing

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I refer to his previous answer in relation to senior staffing at Yirara College. Does he find the rate of turnover that I mentioned in that question unacceptable in a Northern Territory school and will he undertake to investigate it?

ANSWER

I do not think it is simply a matter of finding the rate of turnover unacceptable. I would suggest that most staff turnover in schools is detrimental. One of the big problems in the education system in the Northern Territory is that we have a turnover rate which requires us to recruit between 300 and 400 teachers every year. We even have to recruit headmasters.

Teachers in the Northern Territory have relatively good conditions of service and remuneration. However, as in many areas of the community, some people accept employment in the Northern Territory but do not really intend to stay. That is one of the advantages of living in a free country. A person can come to the Northern Territory and work and, when he wants to, return to where he came from. We will be stuck with that until such time as we can build a greater permanent workforce and put through our own educational institutions, like the Darwin Community College, many more Territorians who are likely to stay here for some years. Only then will we have the benefit of continuity that stems from Territorians being trained in our institutions and making their lives here.

I do not think it is a question of whether I am satisfied with the rate of turnover. Any turnover rate is detrimental and it is unfortunate. But it is also a fact of life, and it will occur from time to time. In some institutions in the Northern Territory, the teacher turnover rate is much greater than in others. I guess there are quite a number of reasons for it. One or two institutions are almost notorious for staff not wishing to stay there for any great length of time. Others do not have such a high turnover rate. However, it is a subject that we have in our minds almost all the time. The Northern Territory Teaching Service Commissioner is constantly looking into the question of teachers, their conditions, their complaints, their reasons for resignation and ways to recruit people who are likely to stay a little longer than others have in the past. Certainly, we will continue to investigate those avenues.

Mentally-ill Prisoners at Darwin Prison

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Could he advise the current position with the psychiatric proposals for Darwin Prison? Will the prison officers be consulted before they are implemented? Could he advise particularly as to the arrangements that will be made in respect of the medical staff provided for the facility?

ANSWER

Discussions are taking place with officers of the Department of Health and also with representatives of the Prison Officers Association. At this stage, it is uncertain what the attitude of the Prison Officers Association is. A meeting was held during this week with Dr Chalmers, Mr Donnelly and members of the association in relation to the problem. This morning, the Minister for Community Development approached me with a view to setting up a meeting between ourselves and officers of both those organisations to see what arrangements can be made to satisfy the Prison Officers Association. The situation is that a couple of points are still outstanding. One of them is the query of the Prison Officers Association concerning a mentally-ill prisoner in the prison hospital. An occupational therapist would be on duty most of the day but not for the full 24 hours. Very little occupational therapy would be required at night except for an emergency. If prisoners were really sick, they would be in Darwin Hospital. There are some problems. We are trying to talk them out. Apart from being mentally-ill, a person might have a heart problem or a blood disorder. If he had a particular problem, he would go to hospital. It is a very complicated issue. We are trying to solve it.

Yesterday, I received a letter of reply from Dr Cornwall, who is the Minister for Health in South Australia, about our request for South Australia to look after those types of people. The letter was encouraging. At this stage, it is being assessed by the department. Hopefully, by midday, I will have a brief regarding the contents of that letter and whether our chronically mentally-ill people can be placed in South Australia. The Northern Territory government has taken all the steps that it possibly can to overcome this problem. As I said earlier, discussions are to take place between the Minister for Community Development, myself and officers in regard to the problems that the prison officers, and presumably some of the nursing staff, are having with the implementation of this proposal.

Facilities at Katherine for RAAF Squadron

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise me on progress in the development of facilities at Katherine relating to the relocation of the RAAF 75 Technical Fighter Squadron?

ANSWER

Honourable members will be aware that the squadron of RAAF Mirage fighters is scheduled to be withdrawn from Butterworth Air Base Malaysia by 1987. Developments at Katherine involve not only the upgrading of Tindal to a standard necessary for F18 operations but also infrastructure in Katherine such as roads, housing and an increased capacity for water supply. The construction phase for the project at the air base would take about 2 years, preceded by a period of assessment, planning and decision making. On 18 April 1983, the Prime Minister gave me an assurance that the Commonwealth government was pressing ahead with investigations into the feasibility of using Tindal air base. He said that, in the context of the forthcoming budget, the Commonwealth government expected to consider a specific proposal from the Joint Government Consultative Committee. The Prime Minister added that if in the Commonwealth government's opinion the costs appeared excessive, alternatives would need to be examined. If the Commonwealth government gives the project budget priority, an announcement could be made later this year. Because of its magnitude, the project would then have to undergo scrutiny by the federal Public Works Committee. It appears that this would be unlikely to occur before the second half of1984 because of the backlog of projects that the committee has to look at.

One hopes that some urgency might be attached to this project if the federal government takes the decision in the budgetary context and that a hearing before the Public Works Committee may be scheduled at an earlier date than it otherwise might were it considered to be just a routine project. At present, it is very difficult to get any firm indication from the federal government of what will be happening with that project. I think a firm decision is unlikely before the budget.

Housing Commission Allocations

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HOUSING

I refer to his statement yesterday which did not indicate the number of unsuccessful applicants for out-of-turn allocation accommodation who are living in inadequate and socially undesirable circumstances. Will he undertake to advise on the numbers of families and people who are involved?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I give that undertaking.

Mining Leases in Pine Creek Area

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Concern has been expressed about the length of time involved in obtaining mining leases in the Pine Creek-Mt Wells area. Is he aware of this delay and that, in many instances, prospectors and small companies are being refused leases in this area?

ANSWER

I have heard the gentlemen who have re-established the Small Miners Association - I am not sure what the exact title is now - mention figures of up to 4 years. That is distinctly possible. I am aware of a number of applications for mining licences in that area that have been outstanding for some time. One must look at the reasons. It is not necessarily inactivity on the part of the department. In that area, there are a large number of people with exploration and prospecting interests who wish to convert those interests into mining tenements. There is a wide range of conflicting interests in the area. I understand there are conflicts between various claimants. Generally, it does not take anything like that time to issue mining leases.

I have asked the department to establish the best possible working relationship with the small miners as quickly as possible. The department is held in high regard by the big mining concerns and I would like to see that relationship extended to people who have a local interest. By and large, a great regard is held for the Department of Mines and Energy by the smaller operator. However, there has been some public comment from 1 or 2 people, particularly Mr Ken Day who is very active in the area. We welcome Mr Ken Day into the field. He has been at it a long time and has put a great deal of effort into trying to make good in the Territory. A detailed survey of the region is now being conducted with a view to identifying the difficulties and overcoming any backlogs. The Department of Mines and Energy is anxious to overcome these delays and have people satisfied wherever possible.

National Tuberculosis Advisory Council

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of the fact that the Northern Territory has the highest rate of tuberculosis in Australia, why does the Department of Health not intend to send a representative to the 34th Session of the National Tuberculosis Advisory Council to be held in Canberra next week?

ANSWER

The Department of Health sends officers to various conferences throughout Australia and, on occasion, they attend international conferences. I am not aware of the particular conference to which the honourable member for Fannie Bay refers. However, I will endeavour to make some inquiries and find out what the reason is for not supporting an invitation to attend that conference. I will let the honourable member know privately.

Proposals for Retirement in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS

Will he inform me of the results of the study commissioned by the Department of Lands in March this year into servicing of land as proposed by the Rural Old Timers and Friends Association at Fred's Pass?

ANSWER

I am advised that the study addressed 3 specific types of development: a standard suburban residential development, a rural village-centre development and a low-density retirement village concept. The first option would need some $5.5m for internal servicing and is not a desired option as it loses the rural concept. The second option would require some $1.4m on internal works only and the third option would require some $0.5m on internal works. The cost of services to the site has not been included and the cost of buildings and facilities has not been estimated. An area of land has been set aside by the Department of Lands and the Department of Health is examining the needs and wants of elderly people in the rural area so that a final proposal can be considered and a decision taken.

Stamp Duty on Purchase of Rural Blocks

Mr SMITH to TREASURER

I understand a review is being undertaken to determine if stamp duty exemptions should apply to the purchase of 8 ha blocks in the rural area by first home buyers. Has any decision been made on this?

ANSWER

Decisions have been taken. I am not fully aware of the details but, no doubt, they will be announced at an appropriate time.

Criminal Code

Mr D.W. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Could he indicate when he hopes to commence the Criminal Code and what allowance will be made for police training which will be necessary on the introduction of that code?

ANSWER

The member's question raises 3 matters: the commencement date of the Criminal Code and any complementary legislation, the legislative timing that I have in mind and training of police. We need a very definite commencement date set to which we must adhere without fail. Any date in my mind for the commencement of this important legislation is not good enough. It must be firmly fixed in the public mind so that the public will not become confused. To me, Sir, the only date that could possibly fit that need would be 1 January 1984. Not only the Criminal Code would commence then but also the wide range of complementary legislation which would be needed. As to legislative timing, it is obvious to honourable members that I have not yet even presented the complementary legislation which flows from the Criminal Code itself. The earliest time that that could be done would be at the August sittings. Those sittings commence on 23 August. It is conceivable that, at the August sittings, we may not be in a position to deal fully with the Criminal Code itself. However, the possibility of a further deferral is remote.

As the honourable member for Alice Springs implied in his question, there is a distinct need for training. If those 2 pieces of legislation were left until the October sittings, particularly if we allowed all parties involved in this to string out the matter unnecessarily, the 2 months remaining could well be insufficient to train the police in this new and fairly complex piece of legislation. In most cases, however, police officers would be aware of the nature of the criminal law anyway. There are no radical departures on what is a criminal activity and what is not. There is a different approach to many of those issues. Nonetheless, it is conceivable that there would not be sufficient time between October and 1 January in which to commence the act.

I propose to discuss this matter in detail with my officers in the Department of Law, in conjunction with the Chief Minister, who is the minister responsible for the police, and with the Commissioner of Police, to see what assistance the Department of Law people, the Queensland law school and the like can provide. Nonetheless, it is possible that, through the Chief Minister, I may have to approach you, Sir, for a special sittings to deal with this very vital matter some time between the August sittings and the October sittings. If one were to introduce the legislation and comply with Standing Orders, 28 days after 23 August would be something like 20 September. I am merely floating this to the Assembly as a warning. It may be necessary to approach you, Sir, for the purposes of looking at this very important matter as a package to allow sufficient time for training to proceed and for the public to be made aware of the 1 January 1984 commencement.

Water Supply Restrictions

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Following the fairly disastrous wet season, can he indicate to the Assembly that the capacities of Darwin and Manton Dams are sufficient to supply water without restriction? By restriction, I do not mean the normal save-water campaign but specific restrictions.

ANSWER

The aspect that the honourable member raised in her question has not been raised with me by the department as a matter for concern. Now that she has raised it, I will take the suggestion back to the department and ensure that the information is made available for her.

Rent Subsidies for Teachers in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

As he is no doubt aware, teachers in Nhulunbuy held a stop-work meeting this week. Are there any proposals to subsidise those teachers' rents? I believe that was the cause of the stoppage.

ANSWER

The question of rent levels at Nhulunbuy for teachers or other public servants is really one for the Chief Minister. The matter has been under investigation. However, I can inform honourable members that, over the last few weeks, as the Teachers Federation knows, this matter has been examined by the Public Service Commissioner who makes recommendations to the Chief Minister. Also complicating the situation in Nhulunbuy is the fact that the Housing Commission has general public housing there. It is not occupied by public servants. Therefore, there is that additional level of rent paid by the community at Nhulunbuy. Nabalco applies a considerable subsidy to housing for its employees, making a further complication to the whole equation. However, I suggest that the honourable member address further questions on this matter to the Chief Minister.

Rent Subsidies for Teachers in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

I redirect the question to the Chief Minister. If he has any further information, I would certainly appreciate it.

ANSWER

I discussed this matter with the Public Service Commissioner again this morning. I took the risk of having a meeting with the Public Service Commissioner despite the fact that it may appear that I was interfering in the administration of the public service. Be that as it may, I think I can safely say that there is reasonable news in the pipeline. I will be in a position to make an announcement within the next couple of days that should please the people concerned and perhaps even a few others.

Staff Turnover at Yirara College

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I refer him to my questions and his answers in relation to senior staffing of Yirara College. If he finds the tenure of 4 principals in 6 months acceptable at Yirara College, what rate of turnover would he find unacceptable at Yirara College or any other school?

ANSWER

I do not think that I indicated yesterday that I found the turnover rate mentioned by the honourable member acceptable. Could I say in explanation that Mr Deslandes was appointed as principal at Yirara College for this year but is now absent on approved long service leave. Mr Benz was brought in to replace

Mr Deslandes while he was on long service leave. Because of reasons which I will not go into here, Mr Benz decided that he would not stay on. He has left and a new acting principal, Mr Allen Phillips, has been brought in. He has taken over until such time as Mr Deslandes long service leave is over. Those changes are really somewhat beyond the control of the Department of Education. I understand the secretary of the department is in charge of the stationing of the teachers and principals around the Northern Territory in various institutions. However, a number of things that might happen cannot always be foreseen. Health can be a factor as can unexpected leave applications. These things occur from time to time. They are the sorts of things we have to accept in administration generally and not just in regard to principals.

Upgrading of Alice Springs Airport

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What is happening about the necessary upgrading of the Alice Springs Airport?

ANSWER

In June 1982, the Northern Territory government asked the Commonwealth to expedite the upgrading of passenger terminal and aircraft movement areas in Alice Springs. The Commonwealth advised the Chief Minister in September 1982 that it would conduct a feasibility study on local ownership. This proposal was put to the Alice Springs council on 11 November and accepted. The council and the Northern Territory government restated at that time that neither was in favour of local ownership. The council appointed a consulting firm, Airport Planning Pty Ltd, which recently submitted a report to it recommending local ownership. Officers of the Department of Transport and Works carefully examined the report and revealed a number of deficiencies which indicated that the airport might become a heavy financial burden to the council. On 31 May 1983, the Alice Springs council rejected the concept of local ownership of the airport. It called on the Northern Territory government for assistance in endeavouring to have the federal government proceed as early as possible with upgrading works. I will be happy to help in this regard. In another move, which has affected future airport plans in other places, the federal Treasuer on 19 May 1983 indicated that some changes to local ownership procedures may take place but he has not supplied any details so it appears that this system may also be under review by the government at present.

MV Islander

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

It is important that a vessel the size of the MV Islander be retained in Darwin for future tourist activities. This vessel has been losing between $40 000 to $60 000 a year. Has an approach been made to the Chief Minister for assitance to retain the MV Islander in Darwin? Would the government consider subsidising the MV Islander to see the vessel through its current financial difficulties?

ANSWER

I cannot recall receiving any application for assistance for the MV Islander but, if I did, I would have referred it directly to the Northern Territory Development Corporation. To the best of my knowledge, I have notbeen asked to provide a subsidy for this vessel and I was not aware of the extent of its losses. Certainly, they surprise me. One would assume that a loss of $40 000 or $60 000 a year must consist largely of salaries paid to staff. One cannot imagine that the fuel bill would be enormous for a vessel running harbour cruises. It may be that there is money owing on the vessel. I am not sure of that. I am loath to indicate any support for a subsidy arrangement for this sort of enterprise because I think it would open the floodgates to a huge influx of requests for subsidies. These sorts of propositions should be capable of showing themselves able to operate viably.

I will take the expression of concern and the inquiry of the honourable member for Port Darwin on board. It may be that I can, by way of discussions with the Director-General, if it does not represent too much of an interference with the administration of the Department of the Chief Minister, request him perhaps to lend support to the vessel in terms of using it for government functions or for harbour cruises for visiting VIPs. However, he may say that I am interfering in his job and tell me to go and dip my eye in fig jam, Mr Speaker.

Possible Extension of DMZ to Broome

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Does he intend to support moves by the Western Australian government to have the DMZ of the northern prawn fishery extended along the Western Australian coast as far as Broome and, if so, what effect does he anticipate this action will have on the Territory-based prawning industry?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, all I can say to the honourable member at this time is that we are seeking to hold discussions with the Commonwealth, Western Australian and Queensland governments on the management of the northern prawn fishery. In our view, the excessive effort in the fishery, which has been allowed to develop over the last few years by the federal and state governments against the wishes of the Northern Territory, is doing a great deal of damage to the prawn fishery. Certainly, it needs to be reviewed. The Northern Territory has taken a very firm and extreme stance on the matter. The Commonwealth and Western Australia do not regard that as a practical proposition. Nevertheless, those discussions have to continue with Western Australia and the Commonwealth government on the management of the fishery. Whether the boundary for the fishery is extended one way or another is really academic. The most important thing that we need to do at the moment is to reduce the effort in the fishery by about 50%.

It was put to me recently that the prawn fishery would have to produce 17 000 t of prawns a year for the 298 licensed operators to be able to exist without even making a profit. The reality is that the fishery produces between 4000 t and 8000 t a year, depending on the season. It is pretty obvious that the dilemma of the fishery will not be overcome by moving a boundary one way or another but only by reducing the effort. The sooner we succeed in our efforts to convince Western Australia and the Commonwealth that the present policy is a stupid and futile one, the better the whole of the northern prawn fishery will be.

Degree Courses at Darwin Community College

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Successive Australian governments have not been able to indicate a starting date for the Northern Territory university. Could he indicate if further degree courses are being considered for the Darwin Community College and, if so, which degree courses and when would they be likely to commence?

ANSWER

At present, I am not considering further degree courses at the Darwin Community College. I am not sure whether or not the community college itself is putting together proposals to submit to the government. I have not asked the college or the Post-School Advisory Council to examine this question with a view to making recommendations to government. The government is proceeding with its submission to the Tertiary Education Commission for a university for the Northern Territory. Indeed, hearings will be conducted in Darwin in July this year. The Territory submission will be supported by verbal evidence to the TEC from a number of parties. The TEC will report to the federal government on the matter in next January or February.

Bridges over Rapid Creek

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Each year, the bridges over Rapid Creek at both Trower Road and McMillans Road flood after particularly heavy rains. Does the government have any plans to ensure that at least one of the bridges can provide access even after the heaviest rainfall?

ANSWER

There was serious flooding this year but we had one of the most unusual seasonal patterns that I have ever experienced in the Northern Territory. Obviously, upgrading would have to be weighed against the amount of money available. I undertake to examine the matter and I will advise him by letter.

Nhulunbuy Air Services

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise the Assembly of any proposed changes to Nhulunbuy air services and the future of those services generally?

ANSWER

As I indicated last week, I have written on a number of occasions to Ansett, TAA and the federal Minister for Aviation requesting action to improve these services by spreading the number of flights more evenly over the week to provide a greater frequency. Both the Chief Minister and myself have visited Nhulunbuy and we have arranged with representatives of TAA and Ansett to make similar visits. Passenger loading statistics indicate that, while air services to Nhulunbuy are relatively well patronised, 25% of seats remain unfilled. The number of seats offered appears to be adequate. The problem is therefore one of improvement to onward connections and the spread of days of operation.

In a letter to me dated 11 May, Ansett put forward a proposal which is being examined. After discussions with department officials, I have decided to distribute a questionnaire to residents to determine the views of the people of Nhulunbuy on the service changes suggested by Ansett. Earlier this week, Ansett management expressed a belief to me that Australia-wide airport development projects that are not yet under construction may be curtailed or significantly delayed. This includes the work at Gove airport. In the letter from Ansett Transport Industries, Mr Yates, the general manager, said: 'Although there are some commercial and operational problems, our company would be prepared to alter the Boeing 737 schedule to provide a Tuesday Darwin-Gove-Cairns service in place of the Wednesday schedule. This would be achieved by the B737 operating Darwin-Port Headland-Perth and return on Monday Tuesday in place of the current Tuesday Wednesday operation'. In another part of that letter he said: 'If the control tower is constructed at Gove and 737 DC9 flights are doubled, as is suggested, there would be no F28 services to Gove and services to Groote Eylandt would be jeopardised also. By an all F28 operation, the total services for Arnhem Land would be improved and so would the economic stability of Airlines of Northern Australia'.

Mr Speaker, if the Gove control tower is not constructed, the Department of Aviation may withdraw its approval for 737 DC9 flights into Gove which have been operating under dispensation because Gove does not have controlled air space. This would mean that ANA may have to provide the sole service to Gove. That is the reason for the questionnaire so that the attitude of residents of Nhulunbuy may be determined in respect of this serious matter.

Forest Areas of Howard Springs

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

What plans have been made for the future use of the forest areas at Howard Springs?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there is no proposal to release marauding animals in the Howard Springs Forest Reserve. The Conservation Commission is awaiting final survey descriptions before declaring the reserves under section 12 of the Territory Parks and Wildlife Act. Once this is done, plans of management for the areas will be available for public input. Basically, the areas will be developed as recreation forests to supplement the existing Howard Springs Nature Reserve.

Child Care Course Through Darwin Community College

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

When will a child-care course be offered at Darwin Community College similar to the one available in Alice Springs?

ANSWER

I do not have details with me but I understand that the Darwin Community College is proposing to introduce a child-care course. I am not fully aware of its actual commencement date but I can find that out for the honourable member and advise her.

Review of Role of Vocational Training Commission

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Has the government ordered a review of the role of the Vocational Training Commission and, if so, what terms of reference will be used?

ANSWER

I can assure him that I have made no request for a review of the role of the Vocational Training Commission. At present, I understand that a staffing review is being conducted within the ranks of the Vocational Training Commission by the Public Service Commissioner. That is not an unusual occurrence. In fact, the Public Service Commissioner conducts staffing reviews, in whole or in part, of departments and statutory authorities continually. As to the actual role of the Vocational Training Commission, I am not quite sure what the honourable member means.

Palm Valley Gas to Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What is the proposed date on which Palm Valley gas will flow into Alice Springs and the powerhouse?

ANSWER

I do not think that anyone could give a precise date for the arrival of gas in Alice Springs. The contract between NTEC and Magellan was executed on 12 October 1981 at an agreed wellhead price of $1.12 kJ CPI adjusted quarterly. As at 5 May 1983, 44 km of pipe had been laid and 2772 wells completed. The scheduled date for transmission of the gas is 31 August 1983. However, I do not think that anyone could rely on that as being an exact date. To date, the progress on the pipeline has been very encouraging and has been handled very well by the contracting company. I have been informed, however, that a small problem has arisen in relation to the exact survey definitions of the kilometre-wide corridor which is the subject of agreement between the Northern Territory government, the company undertaking the construction and the Central Land Council, with the concurrence of the federal Minister for Aboriginal Affairs. Given all that, one would hope that there are no major difficulties to be overcome.

If there were, having regard to the need for all the parties to be in agreement and signatories of any leasing or agreement arrangements for the purpose of the pipeline, one could yet see very significant delays occurring. My department is doing everything it can. The CLC has been extremely cooperative in this matter, particularly in the last year. I am quite sure that the Central Land Council will be as anxious as any of us to overcome the minor difficulties which are now seen in relation to the exact definition of the corridor. It seems as if part of that corridor may have been established in an area which may not be conducive to the laying of the gas pipeline. We do not know who was responsible for that and, quite frankly, I do not think that anyone is concerned as to whose fault it is. We hope to overcome the problem in the very near future. I have no doubt at all that we will have the cooperation of all parties in this endeavour. There is no reason, at this stage, to fear that these temporary difficulties will result in a delay because the pipeline is not being laid in that sector of the route at this stage. We had hoped to see the pipeline flowing gas at the end of October or very early in November.

In relation to the NTEC side, a contract has been let to Hawker Sidley Engineering and APE for the purposes of upgrading the various plants in the Alice Springs power-station. A contract has been let to APE Australia for conversion of Nos 6 and 7 engines to dual fuel operation and to Hawker Sidley Engineering for the conversion of Nos 3, 4 and 5 enginees. Hawker Sidley Engineering are also responsible for the construction of the gas distribution system within the power-station. The contract was awarded on 14 March 1983 to APE Australia for the supply and installation of No 8 generating set which will be the third 5 to 7 megawatt dual fuel Pilstick engine installed in Alice Springs. As honourable members in Alice Springs would be aware, the other engines there are Merlees. The Pilstick won the recent competition through the tendering system very narrowly over the Merlees. Both of them are excellent plants which have been well proven world-wide in both marine and fixed plant operations. It was very difficult to pick between the 2 tenderers who put forward excellent propositions to provide No 8 generating plant. It went to Pilstick on the basis of a spare parts capacity and a proven record of response to maintenance problems. That is not to say the agent for the Merlees, Hawker Sidley, is not also an excellent company in terms of backing up its contracts and agreements. On balance, having regard to the expected 20-year life of the equipment, Pilstick was the successful company.

Solar Ponds in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Could he report on the solar ponds experiment in Alice Springs and comment on its possible future commercial development?

ANSWER

It is far too early to comment on the possible future commercial development of a solar pond technology in the Northern Territory. Nonetheless, it is an encouraging system that is new to us. Of course, the technology is well known to the Israelis. However, advances have been made in Alice Springs which could teach the Israelis a thing or two. A pond of some 2000 m^2 to a depth of 2.5 m^2 was set up in Alice Springs for 2 reasons: the very high incidence of sunshine in that location and the availability of salt, which is an essential ingredient in the construction of a solar pond. The salt has varying layers of density, depending on depth, to prevent the effects of convection. That is the principle upon which it works. A gas form is then taken which will turn from liquid into gas and is pumped through a gas turbine.

The one in Alice Springs has the potential to drive a 20-kilowatt turbine generating system with which the developers hoped to power the vineyard, restaurant and house complex at Chateau Hornsby. The temperature required is in excess of 80°C at the base of the solar pond. In October 1981, the temperature reached 82°C. Recently, we had very heavy rains which could be described as almost monsoonal and which allowed water to get between the polythene layer and the soil. That resulted in a very rapid conduction of heat away from the last place one would expect: the bottom of the pond. The whole technology is designed to prevent radiation and convection of heat away from the top. New systems are now being developed to prevent this loss of heat from the bottom which brought the temperature down to 50°C which was insufficient to drive the turbines successfully.

Mr Speaker, new soil drying techniques are now being applied. It is a joint project which has been funded by the Commonwealth and Northern Territory governments. Naturally, we were grateful for the previous Commonwealth government's contribution to this project. I have little doubt that we can look forward to the same sort of support from the present government for this very exciting project in Alice Springs. Total funds made available between 1980 and 1983 by the Commonwealth have been $178 000 with $81 469 from the Northern Territory government. Hopefully, in the long term, benefit will flow to the public from this technology.

Technical Education

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is it proposed that the roles of the VTC and DCC in the policy and planning area of technical and further education will be considered by the government?

ANSWER

The question is not being further considered by the government. Over the past month, I have clarified for the Darwin Community College, the Department of Education and the VTC the role of the VTC in TAFE policy formulation and coordination. As members will find in the act, the VTC has a very real role in this. However, there was a small area of confusion. Perhaps some people did not want to believe what the words said and I clarified it for them. A couple of people may have had their noses put out of joint as a result of that clarification. However, this was certainly a proper role of the minister and not an undue interference in the public service in any way.

Sadadeen Subdivision

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has he been able to ascertain the turnoff date for the first blocks of land from Sadadeen stages 1 and 2 as promised earlier this sittings?

ANSWER

I obtained the answer to this question but I seem to have mislaid it at the moment. I seem to recall that the turnoff date is September 1983.

East Point Reserve

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for LANDS

In March, he advised that the Northern Territory government would shortly vest East Point Reserve in the Conservation Commission. Has that happened and, if not, what are the management arrangements at the moment for East Point Reserve?

ANSWER

At the moment, East Point Reserve is still run by its trustees. The employees of the trustees are continuing to maintain the reserve. I was a bit late for the performance of Antony and Cleopatra the other night so I took the opportunity to have a look around East Point. It seemed to be in pretty good shape from what I could see by the car headlights. The grass seems to be mowed. There are plenty of wallabies leaping to get under your wheels. We only wanted the Conservation Commission to take over the East Point Reserve as a last resort, not that we believe the Conservation Commission is a last resort by any means. We believe the reserve is truly the responsibility of the Darwin City Council. Unfortunately, the council, through its Lord Mayor, sought a sum of $5m and, after picking myself up off the floor, I said that it just could not be done. There was a well-publicised dispute as to what would happen. We said: 'If you will not take it, we will give control of it to the Conservation Commission and make what funds we can available to it over the years to improve it slightly'. Mind you, I do not think we should create something artificial out there. I think we should leave it pretty much as it is. We could perhaps add a few facilities and maybe upgrade the roads. It will not be in my hands; it will be in the council's hands.

The problem is that the Northern Territory government is already contributing by far the lion's share of funding in this city for urban development. I forget how many million dollars we are to spend this year in beautification work throughout the city, especially in the new northern suburbs - planting median strips, parks and the whole bit. I am not belittling the council's contribution, but the NT government, for instance, is funding, and in fact initiated, a 3-year program to upgrade the Botanical Gardens. There will be provision for an area of rainforest and waterfalls, duck ponds, lakes, lagoons etc, that will add greatly to the beauty and attraction of the gardens when completed. The rainforest is well advanced. I think that the government is making a more than reasonable contribution to the beautification of Darwin. I believe that the Darwin City Council is close to agreement with the Minister for Community Development regarding management of East Point. I have heard though that it will receive $250 000 as a one-off capital grant and then a certain sum each year towards maintenance of the reserve.

Library Books for Darwin Community College Students

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Given what appears to be an extraordinary internecine struggle that is going on, to quote one columnist, 'in the halls of academe at the Darwin Community College', what is the precise situation in regard to the provision of library books for Darwin Community College students?

ANSWER

I am certainly aware of an internal wrangle going on in the Darwin Community College over library services. The chairman of the college council will report to me tomorrow morning on that very question. As soon as the matter came to my attention I asked her personally to investigate the matter thoroughly. Tomorrow I will receive a report on that. I understand that the Darwin Community College has had about $1m worth of books supplied to it since its inception. As honourable members would be aware, that is a very substantial sum for books alone. I am not talking about buildings or staff; I am talking about books.

However, it has to be appreciated that, in an educational institution like the college, quite a number of books very quickly become dated because of technological advances in the various courses and the content of those courses and books must be updated fairly regularly. I am advised that, as a result of commencing the Bachelor of Arts course at the Darwin Community College, there is an obligation upon the college to provide additional books to its library to the tune of $30 000 per annum for 5 years to cover the requirements of that course alone. That is rather a surprising figure to me, Mr Speaker, but I am assured that it is largely correct. It is based on the fact that, as people progress through the Bachelor of Arts course, the books that are required become more sophisticated and expensive. Whilst I do not have definitive figures before me on the numbers of books in the Darwin Community College library, I can assure honourable members that it is a very handsome establishment. It has a very effective indexing system which is probably more modern than that in most other institutions in Australia.

However, there is a dispute between a couple of factions within the Darwin Community College. I aim to get to the bottom of it as soon as I possibly can. If there is any substance in the allegations, then the government will certainly look at them. Following information I receive tomorrow, it may be necessary for me to engage outside people to examine the situation to see what action needs to be taken. I can assure honourable members that this matter has my interest and will continue to receive my attention until it is resolved.

Youth Needs in Northern Suburbs

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for YOUTH SPORT and RECREATION

When can we expect some government action to implement the recommendations of the Manzie report on youth needs in the northern suburbs?

ANSWER

The Chief Minister and I exchange memos on a weekly basis regarding the 4 recommendations that came out of the public meetings. One was that community support services be established in the northern suburbs. There was a proposal by the YWCA - which had been successful in obtaining some land from the department - to construct a youth facility in the area. When this proposal was first put to the Northern Territory government, we agreed to a 3:1 level of funding in view of the government's policy to provide financial support to community organisations which wish to provide youth facilities. Of course, it began as a $170 000 exercise and the YWCA was to put in its share. Subsequently, the YWCA amended its building program and the Northern Territory Housing Commission became involved and provided its expertise. The cost to build increased to about $210 000 which meant that the YWCA would have had to put a greater proportion of funds into the project. However, we agreed to provide additional funding to the YWCA for the construction of that particular facility on the land allocated by the Lands Branch. I had discussions with the YWCA regarding its operation and agreed to proceed.

The collapse of the trustee company in Victoria would have knocked that on the head anyway. However, about a month ago, I had discussions with the Director of the YWCA. Because of the YWCA's financial constraints, we offered the old Northern Territory Housing Commission site office for use as a youth drop-in centre. She thought it was a good idea. I am unable to proceed with that at the moment because that particular facility has not been zoned. A memo is being drafted to the Chief Minister explaining that the need for zoning is delaying occupation of the facility. I have also had informal discussions with the Chairman of the Town Planning Authority who said that, if we are to proceed with the old site office, it is his opinion that a zoning change might be necessary. Those are the complications in that area. That would have given us our second area in the northern suburbs. With the change in mind of the YWCA and the problems with the site office, we may have to go back to the drawing board. I asked the Director of Youth Sport and Recreation to see if he can find space that could be rented in the northern suburbs to provide this facility. That investigation is being carried out now. Some suggestion has been made that the Casuarina Plaza could be a possible location.

Regarding the second recommendation, the government intends to enclose part of the Casuarina High School and turn that into a community facility. That is being designed at the moment and the government is anxious to complete it as soon as possible and has attempted to include it on the 1983 capital works list. It has been listed on an informal basis until such time as the Departments of Education and Transport and Works work out what the extensions are to be. The third recommendation related to transport. The Minister for Transport and Works has asked the bus service to come back with a proposal to provide a mini-bus service. At this stage, no firm arrangements have been made. The fourth recommendation related to the setting up of a coordinated volunteer youth organisation within the area. That has been done.

The recommendations have been assessed seriously. I think that a couple of points need to be driven home a little bit harder by myself in the next couple of weeks. The Chief Minister is anxious that those recommendations be carried out. There are those difficulties: the change of mind by the YWCA and the zoning problem with the old site office. The Chief Minister has said that he will fix that and we will have to wait and see how it will pan out. If we cannot find a location to build on immediately, I would be quite happy to rent a certain area in one of the northern suburb community shopping centres to get this thing off the ground.

Aboriginal Teaching Assistants in South Region

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is it correct that a directive has been issued by the department to Aboriginal schools in the southern region that would result in Aboriginal teaching assistants being removed from those schools that have one teacher only?

ANSWER

I am not aware of that directive. If he could provide me with more details, I will seek information from the Department of Education.

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr TUXWORTH (Conservation)(by leave): Mr Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition asked me to advise whether the Conservation Commission for the Northern Territory employs an experienced shooter. With the exception of those only recently appointed, all rangers are competent in the use of firearms. The Conservation Commission uses a wide selection of firearms for specific duties. The majority of rangers are above-average marksmen. Some have a much higher degree of marksmanship than others: for example, Queen's Shoot Prizewinner, ex-police marksman, ex-serviceman etc. The Conservation Commission conducts a firearms course once a year to have those rangers who lack the necessary expertise brought up to the degree of competency required by the commission. The Conservation Commission presently employs 86 rangers of whom approximately 80% are experienced marksmen. There are a number of other persons within the commission's structure who are also experienced marksmen. These persons can be called upon to perform field duties with firearms at any time should the need arise.

Tindal - Education

819 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What is being done to anticipate the educational needs of the proposed RAAF base at Tindal?

ANSWER

On the basis of the limited initial advice received from the Commonwealth government, the Department of Education has projected enrolments on the assumption that an influx of RAAF personnel occurs at a linear rate up until 1987.

Based on present enrolments a new pre-school unit is proposed for the 1986-87 financial year. However, to accommodate projected enrolments due to RAAF personnel moving into Tindal, additional demountable accommodation would be required in the short term. In the longer term, the provision of a new primary school and a new secondary school could be warranted.

However, until a definite indication is received from the Commonwealth government, the Department of Education alone is unable to take any positive moves towards the implementation of any building program.

Lot 384, Katherine

822 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. Is he aware of the neglected condition of lot 384, Katherine Terrace, Katherine?

ANSWER

1. Yes.

2. The former lot 384 has been subdivided into 2 new lots, numbered 1881 and 1882. Lot 1881 is subject to a Crown lease and the lessee, the Territory Insurance Office, has undertaken to have the lot cleared by 30 April 1983. The lease for lot 1882 is administered by Australian National and is therefore outside NT government control.

   I understand the Katherine Town Council has written to the lessee seeking to have the site cleaned up.

Protective Custody

828 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Since its inception in 1979, in regard to Division 4 of Part VII of the Police Administration Act, on a yearly basis -

1. how many persons have been apprehended;
2. how many of those apprehended were (a) Aboriginal, and (b) non-Aboriginal;
3. how many of the persons apprehended were subject to subsequent apprehension;
4. what is the average period of apprehension;
5. how many persons were released under the provisions of section 131(1); and
6. how many persons were dealt with under section 132?

ANSWER

The question relates to protective custody of intoxicated persons under the Police Administration Act.

This legislation commenced on 1 August 1979, but statistics relating to Aboriginals were not kept until 1 August 1980.

1. Number of persons apprehended:

1 August 1979	-	31 July 1980	15 149
1 August 1980	-	31 December 1980	4 910
1 January 1981	-	31 December 1981	13 980
1 January 1982	-	31 December 1982	16 611
		TOTAL	50 650

2. Number of (a) Aboriginals, and (b) non-Aboriginals apprehended:

			Aboriginal	Non-Aboriginal
1 August 1979	-	31 July 1980	No statistics kept
1 August 1980	-	31 December 1980	4 226	684
1 January 1981	-	31 December 1981	12 332	1 648
1 January 1982	-	31 December 1982	14 709	1 902

3. Persons apprehended who were subject to subsequent apprehension:

No statistics are kept. Those apprehended are not positively identified by fingerprints. However, on a names basis only, statistics were gathered from Darwin, Katherine, Nhulunbuy, Alice Springs, Tennant Creek and Elliott, covering the period March to December 1982 (both months inclusive).

The following table shows (a) the total apprehensions for each centre over that period, (b) the total number of persons apprehended more than once, and (c) the percentage of persons apprehended more than once as shown in (b):

March to December 1982	Darwin	Katherine	Nhulunbuy	Alice Springs	Tennant Creek	Elliott
(a)	2 410	1 494	272	4 697	976	609
(b)	378	520	36	791	274	225
(c)	15.7%	34.8%	13.2%	16.8%	28.0%	36.9%

4. Average period of apprehension:

No statistics have been kept but the figure is believed to be approximately 6 hours. This is due mainly to the provisions of section 129(3) which states -

"(3) A person who has been taken into custody under this section and who is in custody after midnight and before half past 7 o'clock in the morning on that day, may be held in custody until half past 7 o'clock in the morning on that day, notwithstanding that the person is no longer intoxicated.".

5. Persons released under the provisions of section 131(1):

No statistics are kept but the number would be exceedingly few. Volunteers to take over the care of intoxicated persons from the police are rare.

6. Persons dealt with under section 132:

No statistics are kept but the number would be very low.

'Boozers are Losers' Campaign

834 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

1. How much is being spent on the 'Boozers are Losers' campaign?
2. For what reason was the contract awarded to a southern firm?
3. Has any contact been made with the liquor industry with a view to controlling the nature of liquor advertising?

ANSWER

1. The approved budget for the public education campaign against alcohol abuse from December 1981 to December 1982 was $130 000.
2. Invitations were issued to advertising agencies to put forward proposals for the campaign, and one was selected. Unfortunately, there was no advertising agency resident in the Northern Territory, at that time. In any event, the fact that one might be established in the Northern Territory might not necessarily mean it had the capability even though the government might want to support it and would hope that in due course the marketing industry will establish itself in the Northern Territory.

   Clear directions have been given that, in the expenditure of funds in a campaign such as this, all possible resources available in the Territory must be used provided they are economical.

   About $60 000 of the budget went to Territorians in one form or another.

   It is the policy of the government that, wherever possible, local business will be used and indeed there is the preference provision in relation to the awarding of contracts.
3. Prior to the campaign being launched, it was suggested by some that the liquor industry may mount a counter-advertising campaign to combat the anticipated impact of the 'Boozers are Losers' campaign on sales. To attend to this concern, the Chief Minister sent personal letters to the managing directors of various brewing companies whose products are sold and promoted in the Northern Territory; the Northern Territory Hoteliers' Association, the National Spirits Merchants Association, and controllers of various national retail liquor outlets operating in the Northern Territory. All these people were advised of the nature of the campaign and their support for its aims was sought. Generally responses were positive. Local licensees and retailers were also invited to a function to mark the launching of the campaign. Currently, at a national level, and the NT is represented here by the Drug and Alcohol Bureau, there is ongoing negotiation with the advertising and liquor industries on the issue of the advertising of alcoholic beverages.

Pastoral Properties - Breach of Covenants

836 Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. Why did the government decide in 1980 not to take action against pastoral lessees in breach of their covenants?

2. A recent report on the ABC program 'After 8' stated that 59% of pastoral properties in Victoria River District, 66% in Darwin and Gulf regions, 23% in Barkly region and 25% in Alice Springs region were in breach of their covenants. In each region, how many properties in breach of covenants were (a) locally owned (i.e., owned in the Northern Territory), (b) owned by Australian interests outside the Northern Territory, and (c) owned by overseas interests?

3. In each region, what were the main breaches of covenants recorded?

ANSWER

1. Action against breach of covenants on pastoral leases was suspended on 19 March 1980 whilst an inquiry into pastoral land tenure was undertaken. This inquiry has subsequently been referred to as the 'Martin Report'.

2. A detailed analysis of pastoral lessees in breach of covenants, on the basis specified in the question has not been carried out.

3. The main breach of covenants throughout the Territory has been for lack of maintenance of existing improvements with non-compliance with stocking and fencing requirements being the next most neglected areas.

(b) Criteria for Determining Use of Government Vehicles

The policy on usage and acquisition of all motor vehicles and plant items within the Northern Territory Public Service is laid down in Public Service Commissioner's Memorandum 1980/27, which was promulgated in accordance with Cabinet Decision Nos. 333 and 980.

Following lengthy investigation and discussion at meetings of the Co-ordination Committee, Cabinet endorsed the issue of principles to be adhered to by departments/authorities (PSC Memorandum 1981/54) in the use and home garaging of official vehicles. In essence, these principles gave full responsibility to Chief Executive Officers and prescribed authorities in the use and operation of vehicles under their control.

The principles, however, provide that departments and authorities should ensure:

1. Vehicles have appropriate identification;
2. Internal instructions are issued to provide for:
   (a) Regular reviews and vehicle criterion and allocation,
   (b) maintenance and security procedures;
3. Home garaging, unless in exceptional circumstances, shall be on the basis of work requirements.

The proper administrative and financial procedures for the recording of government vehicle usage is covered under the Financial Administration and Audit Act, Division 10 Treasurer's Directions and accounting and property manuals. Specifically, the Treasurer's Directions on the Use of Official Transport, Section 15.4 and 15.5.

All drivers of government vehicles are required to hold a current Northern Territory driving licence appropriate to the classification of the vehicle.

In addition, some departments/authorities (e.g. Primary Production and Health) require employees to hold an internally issued permit or authority to drive.

Internal circulars, memoranda or procedural manuals relating to use of government vehicles are issued by the Port Authority (Circular Nos. 32 and 33); Electricity Commission, (Use of NTEC Vehicles); Development Corporation (Procedure Manual No. 155); and Department of Law (Circular No. 80/75).

Only in exceptional circumstances will approval be given by the responsible minister for government vehicles to bear private number plates.

(c) General Policy on Officers Garaging Vehicles Overnight or Weekends

Extensively covered by PSC Memorandum 81/54, Principles on the use of Government Vehicles and Home Garaging.

Generally, permanent arrangements for home garaging are reviewed at least every 12 months and in many cases, particularly in the larger departments, reviews are carried out every 6 months. Normally, written approval is required and can only be given by Chief Executive Officers and the prescribed authorities. For casual home garaging to meet operational requirements, individual approval is provided by the delegated officer, at divisional or branch head level.

(d) Restrictions Placed on the Use of Vehicles Garaged

Vehicles with government number plates are restricted to official business only and must be secured in accordance with PSC Memorandum 1980/27. Government vehicles must not be parked on the street or in a public place overnight. Employees home garaging government vehicles are required to utilise the most direct route to and from the workplace.

When an employee is absent from work or away from his/her home location, the home garaged government vehicle must be made available for official use.

Vehicles with non-government number plates have no restriction on usage overnight or weekends other than for 'reasonable' private use.

(iii) Two additional chlorine detectors have been installed.

(iv) An alarm system connected to Wormald International Security Service was installed to monitor critical items of the plant.

Secondary Mortgage Market - Report

853 Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

The fourth annual report of the Department of Law (p. 10) indicates that a report on the 'Secondary Mortgage Market' would be provided to you. Has the report been provided to you and, if so, what are its recommendations?

ANSWER

The report on the feasibility of a Territory secondary mortgage market has been presented to me.

Several conclusions and recommendations were reached but essentially the finding was that a secondary mortgage market was unlikely to develop unless various changes took place. The major drawbacks were seen to relate to the characteristics of home loan interest rates. As these are usually below those which generally operate in Australian financial markets, trading in home mortgages would not provide the returns that could be obtained from alternative forms of investment. Concessional rates of interest have been brought about by Commonwealth, State, and Territory government action to encourage home ownership. In addition to the problem of the interest rate level, there are also problems as a result of the majority of loans being long term at a variable rate and of a 'credit foncier' nature which are difficult to package into marketable securities. Investors are generally looking for short term investments that are readily marketable. In Australia, limited secondary mortgage transactions have generally been based on short term, interest only, loans with high rates of interest. In countries where secondary mortgage markets are more significant there is a greater proportion of home loans having these characteristics.

The report also concluded that it was unlikely that a market would develop in the Territory alone but that there could be benefits for the Territory if a market developed at the national level. The possibility of a national market is to be examined by the Commonwealth which has recently announced the formation of a working party to investigate this. It is our intention to liaise with the Commonwealth on this matter and to offer any assistance we can.

Transcription Services - Contract

854 Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Will he provide details of the contract with Spark and Cannon Pty Limited entered into in April 1981 for transcription services and advise what steps are being taken to obviate the necessity for this work to be carried out outside the court service?

ANSWER

I will provide the honourable member with a copy of contract documents.

I do not propose to change the current arrangement. The contractor is providing at Alice Springs a good service at a lower per page cost than the government service in Darwin. The contractor employs Alice Springs residents and has been required under the terms of the contract to establish an office there. Very little work is performed by the contractor's staff outside the Territory and introduction of a government service would not significantly add to employment opportunities in Alice Springs.

Expenditure in respect of this contract by financial year is 1980-81, $292; 1981-82, $84,047; and 1982-83 (Projected), $96,000.

Upgrading - Katherine Terrace

856 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Are there plans to upgrade the pavement in Katherine Terrace to a standard such as the Mall in Darwin in the 1983-84 financial year?

ANSWER

There are no plans to upgrade Katherine Terrace footpaths during 1983-84.

However, my department is aware of some deterioration in the kerb and footpaths in the Katherine Terrace commercial area. The department proposes to include appropriate reinstatement works in the maintenance program for 1983-84.

The Darwin Mall is purely a pedestrian way and footpath reinstatement treatment in Katherine Terrace needs to take account of different considerations. Reinstatement of the pavement to the previous standard is all that is planned at this stage. If at some time in the future subsequent upgrading is undertaken discussions with the Council will then take place to determine the appropriate treatment to be utilised.

Beef Export Licence

857 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION and CONSERVATION

Has any decision been made on the need for a special export licence for beef killed to Australian domestic standards?

ANSWER

Yes. Following initiatives taken by the Northern Territory at meetings of the Standing Committee on Agriculture (SCA) and the Australian Agricultural Council (AAC) in Adelaide in February 1982, the need for export licences for beef killed to Australian domestic standards has been acknowledged by the Royal Commission into the Australian Meat Industry, the Commonwealth Department of Primary Industry (CDPI), and by SCA at its 127th meeting in Sydney in February 1983.

A Draft Standard for Construction of Australian Meatworks has been distributed by CDPI and a meeting of Commonwealth, State and Territory officers will be convened in the near future to consider the draft and to recommend such amendments as may seem to be appropriate.

Standard export licences will be issued to meatworks conforming to the common Australian standard, and ... such abattoirs will be eligible to supply meat to interstate markets and to such international markets as are prepared to accept meat of the same standard.

Special export licences will be issued to establishments complying with such additional, special requirements as particular importing countries may require.

Non-export licences may be issued to slaughterhouses complying with requirements for the marketing of meat within prescribed local areas; but not licensed to supply interstate or international markets.

BTB Eradication

858 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION and CONSERVATION

What steps will be taken to fund the BTB eradication campaign in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Following the adoption of the national BTEC plan by Agricultural Council in February 1983, officers of the Department of Primary Production have been negotiating an agreement with the Commonwealth for the introduction of the new measures of assistance to commence in the 1983 cattle working season. This agreement is now close to finalisation.

Mr Kerin, Minister for Primary Industry, Canberra, has advised that funds for the existing forms of assistance, namely, campaign operational costs and compensation, will continue to be made available by the Commonwealth. While the Commonwealth is unable immediately to provide funds for the additional measures of assistance, funding for these additional measures will be considered in the 1983-84 Budget context.

Housing Need - Katherine

859 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

1. Is he aware of the urgent need for houses and flats in Katherine?

2. When can action be expected for the alleviation of this problem?

ANSWER

1. Yes, for NTPS staff housing.

As at 1 April 1983 the following numbers are on waiting lists:

Staff:	1-bedroom flat	33	Wait time	22 months
	2-bedroom flat	Nil	Wait time	Unknown
	3-bedroom house	22	Wait time	17 months
	4-bedroom house	Nil	Wait time	Unknown
General public:	1-bedroom flat	61	Wait time	10 months
	2-bedroom flat	48	Wait time	12 months
	3-bedroom house	44	Wait time	12 months
	4-bedroom house	4	Wait time	15 months

The optimum wait time for all types of accommodation units is 12 months and wait times for NTPS staff and general public 4-bedroom houses exceed this period. The staff housing list has been closed off. New staff applicants go on a combined general public staff listing. Residual applicants on the staff housing list will be offered staff housing but they have the option to transfer to the general public wait list.

2. Twenty-nine houses are yet to be completed on the 1982-83 Housing Program and a further 74 units of accommodation are proposed for 1983-84 Housing Program. Completion of both programs should alleviate the staff housing problem and maintain all wait times at 12 months.

Rotary Road Safety Centre - Katherine

860 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Are Katherine school children taking full advantage of the Rotary Road Safety Centre near Clyde Fenton School?

ANSWER

Katherine school children are taking as full advantage of the Rotary Road Safety Centre as circumstances allow. It must be realised that schools have a crowded curriculum with many competing demands for school time. While schools are well aware of the importance of education in road safety and devote as much time to it as they can, there is only a proportion of this limited time which might properly be spent utilising the facilities of the Katherine Rotary Road Safety Centre.

Already this year, Year 5 and 6 classes from Clyde Fenton, and Year 5 from Katherine School of the Air, have used the centre. Other classes from Katherine primary and pre-schools will use it as the year progresses. On 7 April 1983, the Regional Superintendent circularised all Katherine town schools encouraging use of the centre.

Beef Export

863 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION and CONSERVATION

1. What advantage would there be for NT cattlemen if Darwin became the outlet for its export beef?

2. What advantages would there be for NT cattlemen if all export meatworks practised a uniform Halal kill approved by Muslim law?

ANSWER

1. Australian beef exports to its major customers are handled by various conferences (commercial associations) of individual shipping lines. The Australian Meat and Livestock Corporation (AMLC) designates the individual shipping lines that are approved for the trade and sets a maximum freight rate for each of the major trade routes. The AMLC does not designate ports that the lines must serve. This is purely a matter for commercial judgment.

   If services for the direct export of beef through Darwin were available, the export beef processors at Mudginberri, Point Stuart and, to a lesser extent, Tennant Creek would save a significant proportion of the costs they currently incur due to the necessity to transport export product to one of the larger southern ports.

   In the case of the Katherine abattoir, this works is a party to a special centralization cost-sharing agreement. Under this scheme, Katherine production is uplifted from Wyndham at the shipping line's expense. Thus, the implications of direct export through Darwin are different for Katherine abattoir compared to other Territory abattoirs.

Adequate quantities of cargo must be available for uplift if international shipping lines are to be induced to call at the port of Darwin. However, Darwin could be of interest as a 'topping-up' call for lines operating the Australia-Japan trade.

Discussions are currently being held with a major shipping line interested in utilizing the port of Darwin in this manner. Beef shipments would hopefully be part of the cargo available for uplift. Because most of the Northern Territory beef exports are destined for the United States of America this beef would have to be transhipped in Japan.

2. Quality control of Australian rural exports is administered by the Commonwealth Department of Primary Industry. Australian meat exports to importers stipulating a requirement for Halal kill must be accompanied by Department of Primary Industry documentation certifying that the meat has been prepared in accordance with the requirements of the Islamic faith. Halal kill is primarily required by Malaysia and the Middle East nations.

   Malaysia requires all meat imports to have been slaughtered according to the Halal ritual and will only permit the importation of meat slaughtered at establishments that are approved and listed by the Malaysian government.

   The latest official Malaysian inspection tour took place during the seasonal closure of works in northern Australia and, consequently, none of the Territory's abattoirs are currently listed for export to Malaysia. The AMLC is attempting to have this situation rectified. Iran also requires special listing but since this trade is primarily in mutton it is of less concern to NT processors.

   It is a condition for Department of Primary Industry certification of Halal killing that the slaughtering is performed by a member of one of several recognised Islamic groups or individuals. These groups and individuals charge a fee for performing the Halal ritual. This fee varies between organisation but averages about 20 cents per carton or $1 per carcass where exports are in whole carcass form. The AMLC and the recognised Islamic groups are currently negotiating a single system of certification of slaughtermen and a single set fee.

   Because of the additional charge involved, it would be disadvantageous to have the entire throughput at export abattoirs slaughtered according to Halal requirements when this is not required by all importers.

NTDC Loan

864 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS, INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT and TOURISM

1. Has a NTDC loan been granted to the Territory based company, Northern Research Pty Limited?

2. If so, what was the value of the loan and for what purpose was it granted?

ANSWER

1. No. The corporation has not at any stage provided financial assistance to a company of that name.

2. Not applicable.

Reclassification - NTPS 'E' Levels

865 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

1. How many public servants in the 'E' levels of the NTPS have been promoted or reclassified upwards since 1 January 1982?

2. Have any promotions or positions reclassified upwards since 1 January 1982 not been published in the Government Gazette and, if so, why?

ANSWER

1. For the period 1 January 1982 to 30 June 1983, 62 NTPS employees were promoted within the executive levels.

2. In the same period, one only promotion was not notified in the Northern Territory Government Gazette. A position in the Housing Commission was reclassified to the executive level E4 as a result of reorganisation.

   The employee promoted, had performed the role at a lower level for a number of years; was considered competent; and, no good reason would have been served by either advertising the position or notifying the promotion in the Northern Territory Government Gazette.

Tenders - Low-cost Housing, Alice Springs

866 Mr BELL to MINISTER for HEALTH and HOUSING

In response to advertisements inviting tenders for low-cost houses in Alice Springs, (a) how many tenders were received, (b) how many houses will be built and how many blocks has the Housing Commission set aside, and (c) when will the first building associated with this project be commenced?

ANSWER

(a) Helm Constructions Pty Ltd, 3 tenders (3 house types); H. Muller, 1 tender (1 house type); Universal Constructions (N.T.) Pty Ltd, 1 tender (2 house types); Acinorev Pty Ltd, 4 tenders (4 house types); Robri Constructions, 2 tenders (2 house types).

The entries were judged by a panel consisting of H. Weber (representing Alice Springs Council), M. Juett (Master Builders), R. Polwika (Director, Alice Springs NTHC) and Director Technical NTHC.

(b) At present no houses will be built. All entries except the one from H. Muller failed on the grounds that they were not low cost, Mr Muller has been offered one house but he is not available for 2 to 3 months.

The NTHC provisionally set aside 7 blocks but some of these have now been used.

(c) Possibly 3 months hence.

Vocational Training Commission - TAFE

869 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. Since the Vocational Training Commission has been given overall control of policy and planning in relation to TAFE, have the terms of reference of the TAFE Advisory Committee changed?

2. If so, what are the new terms of reference?

ANSWER

The TAFE Advisory Committee came into existence following a resolution of the Vocational Training Commission at its meeting of 17-18 February 1983.

The terms of reference set for the TAFE Advisory Committee at that meeting have not altered and are as follows:

To make recommendations to the commission on:

- the formulation of policy and planning advice on matters relating to the co-ordination of TAFE in the Northern Territory;
- the preparation of co-ordinated funding proposals on TAFE;
- advice on TAFE funding and building needs as they relate to both Commonwealth and Territory sources; and
- accreditation of TAFE courses.

Conditions at Berrimah Prison

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Given that prison officers have stated to the Supreme Court that conditions in Berrimah Prison for 2 chronically mentally-ill persons currently held there are inhumane, what will the government do to provide 24-hour hospital and medical care for these and similarly-placed persons?

ANSWER

I advise her that the matter is sub judice.

Retirement Centre for Rural Old Timers

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for LANDS

What is the position regarding allocation of land to the Rural Old Timers' Association in the rural area for a retirement centre?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think that,2 or 3 weeks ago, Cabinet received a submission from the Department of Health regarding the provision of land and other assistance for the establishment of an old timers' home in the rural area. This submission came as a response to requests from the Rural Old Timers' Association with the support of the honourable member for Tiwi. The Cabinet decided to lend certain assistance to the Rural Old Timers' Association and, in addition, to allocate to them approximately 7 ha of land. Judging from submissions made to me by the honourable member for Tiwi since then, it appears that this particular piece of land is not entirely suitable in the view of the Rural Old Timers' Association. The land is apparently across the road from where they would like to have their land. Although the Department of Lands is of the opinion that this is superior land, the Rural Old Timers' Association apparently wants the land across the road because it believes it would allow for future expansion. I point out that it has been offered an area of approximately 15 acres which, I would imagine, would allow for considerable expansion.

The land across the road is considered to be inferior in that it is rougher terrain and is also partly covered by old hard standing areas established in the Second World War to service Sattler airstrip. Nevertheless, I have requested the Department of Lands to accede to the request of the Rural Old Timers' Association. Steps are now being taken to reverse the Cabinet decision in relation to the particular lot number and make available a similar area of land across the road. There is only one drawback from the government's point of view in that services will have to be extended to the other area which will cost additional money. In the interests of peace, harmony and cooperation with a very active group in the rural area, we have conceded that it may have the particular piece of land that its heart is set upon.

I hope that this will be satisfactory both to the honourable member for Tiwi and to the chairman and members of the Rural Old Timers' Association. We certainly wish it well in its endeavours to establish facilities in the rural area including a retirement village for older people. It will require considerable financial assistance too from the Commonwealth and from the Territory government. Let us hope this will be forthcoming.

Criminally Insane Persons

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

What provisions does he intend to make for that category of persons requiring specialised medical attention who are known generally as the criminally insane?

ANSWER

The Leader of the Opposition would be aware that I made a statement in the Assembly earlier this year. That statement has not been debated yet and I advise him that I will address myself to his question at the appropriate time.

Gas Reticulation for Darwin

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is the suggestion to reticulate gas along the Esplanade and other city streets in Darwin under consideration by the Northern Territory government and, if so, what stage have those considerations reached?

ANSWER

The government, through the Department of Mines and Energy, has indeed been approached by a well-known national distributor of gas products, Boral. Its proposal is very similar to that mentioned by the honourable member for Port Darwin. Members would be aware that it is the normal practice of governments throughout the western world not to deal directly with companies but to call for tenders or expressions of interest. Although that system is designed to protect the taxpayers' money against collusion between governments and various companies, it results inevitably in the delay of very good project ideas. It is the government's intention to call for expressions of interest in gas reticulation throughout Darwin. If that is successful, I would like to see a similar call for expressions of interest in reticulating gas in Alice Springs and other centres if and when that ever becomes economically viable.

As Minister for Mines and Energy, I will be inserting advertisements in newspapers nationally within the next couple of weeks calling for that expression of interest. Naturally, we would expect detailed proposals to be put forward including routing, structuring, aesthetic considerations, storage and safety facilities to secure the tanks against accidents. The logical place for a gas storage facility in Darwin would be down from the cliffs, probably in an area adjacent to this building. Of course, the environmental and aesthetic impact of that would have to be considered carefully. Such things as traffic disruption, the method of laying the trenches and the amount of inconvenience to the public generally would have to be considered. With regard to the reticulation of gas in this manner, we are talking about a long-term benefit to the people of Darwin as opposed to short-term inconvenience while the system is installed.

We would also want to be assured of continuity of supply. We would want the expressions of interest to address themselves to such issues as the compatibility of the reticulation system and the possible advent of natural gas from offshore. There is an enormous deposit but, of course, it is enormously expensive to bring it onshore having regard to the remoteness of the known gas fields in the Bonaparte Gulf and elsewhere.

Mr Speaker, all of those matters will be addressed in the advertisement calling for expressions of interest. I have little doubt we will receive very good responses from Boral and perhaps its competitors such as CIG and so on - the more the merrier; the greater the competition, the better. When we have those responses, they will be subjected to detailed analysis by government and, based upon the worth or otherwise of those projects, decisions will be made at that time. I hope to see a positive response from industry in order that the government's response may be positive. I can see a great deal of benefit in this as an alternative and perhaps long-term and secure heating supply. Any form of heat can be used also for air-conditioning purposes as was demonstrated by the use of kerosene for many decades. There is a wide range of application for such reticulation. In view of the diminishing fossil fuel reserves of the world, the enormous reserves of gas in its various forms which are available to us would render such a reticulation system very desirable indeed.

Solar Appliance Rebates

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What are the reasons for discontinuing the solar appliance rebates which have been available to eligible householders for the past 2 years?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, they have not been discontinued at all, as I made clear in a press statement recently. Those rebates will continue. It is only necessary for people to apply to NTEC as they always have. If any confusion has been caused, I accept responsibility for it. There is a Cabinet submission currently before government which addresses itself to the possible extension of rebates to photovoltaic cell use and so on. Within the resources available to us, we would prefer to extend the program rather than curtail it. I do not know where the honourable member for Sanderson obtained her information. The Cabinet submission must have fallen off the back of a truck because it asks for Cabinet's formal approval for the continuation of the scheme. Obviously, I did not make it clear to NTEC that I did not want the matter of its continuation brought into question at all. Of course, we will continue with that very worthwhile scheme. For my part, I would like to see it extended, not only in terms of percentage of rebate - that may be a little difficult in the budgetary sense - but certainly to encourage the wider use of solar technology in the urban environment and particularly the rural environment.

Mr Speaker, this technology is advancing very rapidly. Recently, we were treated to a display of photovoltaic developments in the USA by a group of USA designers and engineers. It was quite a fascinating study. They are now obtaining megawatts in electricity production. These trackers are large, photovoltaic panels about 32 inches by 32 inches. I apologise to Gus Henry of Professional Services Branch of the Department of Education. I use those figures because the USA is not yet metric. While producing electricity from solar energy at only 12% efficiency, these panels are nonetheless now providing grid electricity in the megawatt range.

While the McDonald Douglas project - and I am diverting a little here - was aesthetically displeasing to many, the newer technology coming on stream is not. While these systems are producing megawatts in city reticulation systems, they also have a very good application in the rural environment and in remote communities all of which the government would like to address to see whether assistance can be made available.

Members who took the opportunity to visit the trade fair at Dripstone High School would have observed a photovoltaic cell-powered pumping system. If we translate the image of that system from an air-conditioned building into rural areas, and couple its incredible capacity for pumping water with a solar-powered desalination or purification plant, and the consequent saving in dieseline, then, where we are looking at general subsidies as taxpayers, if we can subsidise the solar side rather than the diesel side, we will be doing a service to everyone. It is true that the subsidy scheme will be continued and hopefully extended.

Land Reserved for Public Access

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

My question relates to the rationalisation of the boundaries of Koolpinyah. I must preface my question by advising the Assembly that I have been advised that the government has acquired a beach frontage 1 km deep from the Tree Point to Gunn Point boundary. Is it now the government's policy to reserve such land for public access when the opportunity arises?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the member for Nightcliff has asked me for a statement of policy on the reservation of beach frontage land. Of course, it has always been the Territory government's policy in a general sense to reserve the foreshores for public use. My predecessor in the office of Minister for Lands put on public display the Darwin Foreshores Protection Scheme. I think that was adopted by the Darwin Town Planning Authority and other relevant authorities after a considerable period of public display and without a great deal of public debate. Perhaps that was because the scheme appealed widely to the community.

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the full details of the acquisitions that the government has undertaken at Koolpinyah. I know that we have acquired several areas of land after investigating the needs of the government and, of course, the needs of the public for land in that area. After protracted negotiations with the lessee, certain acquisitions have taken place. From memory, we have acquired an area on Gunn Point that belonged formerly to the lessee of Koolpinyah. Again, from memory, this was a special purposes lease or freehold area. I am assured by my colleague, the former minister who has had somewhat more to do with the matter than I have, that it was freehold. That would have a seafront area. The whole purpose of this project is to integrate this area with the government's proposal for a recreation area at Gunn Point for the people of Darwin and the Top End in particular but, for that matter, any people in the Territory or Australia who choose to avail themselves of it. Through the Conservation Commission, we have been taking steps in that area to put in boat ramps, access roads, toilets, barbeques and other facilities so that, whilst in a sense people will be roughing it, nonetheless, they will have the basic amenities. Hopefully, this will cause them to congregate together and not camp all over the place and perhaps damage the environment.

Certainly, it is the government's intention that that area of foreshore at Gunn Point be reserved for the use of the public. Honourable members will appreciate that areas of foreshore in the Northern Territory are particularly valuable because somewhat in excess of two-thirds of our coastline is not open to the public. Indeed, a good part of the coastal waters for 2 km offshore in those areas is not open to the public and, in fact, can be alienated as well. Therefore, the Territory government has a settled policy to try to make available as much seafront land as possible for the recreation and enjoyment of the public although there will have to be alternative uses from time to time for sailing clubs, marinas, lifesaving clubs etc that cannot be located a mile or two inland. Nonetheless, we certainly intend, as far as possible, to keep the maximum amount of seafront land available to the public.

Spot Checks on Vehicles

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Are Transport and Works transport inspectors still operating spot checks on vehicles on the roads?

ANSWER

Transport inspectors carry out spot checks on taxis, hire cars, buses and vehicles in excess of 4.5 t in the course of their daily operations. Private vehicles up to 4.5 t which have safety defects are detected during normal patrols. All vehicles which have reported minor defects are liable for call in.

Hermannsburg Road

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer him to my petition in relation to the Hermannsburg Road. Is he aware of the dangers to my constituents, to visitors to Palm Valley and other tourist attractions in the Northern Territory and to people constructing the Palm Valley to Alice Springs pipeline? If the government is so aware, what action is proposed?

ANSWER

I thank the honourable member for his question. We do treat petitions seriously. Obviously, the petition will be considered by the department and a report will come to me on the status of the road and what action will need to be taken. We do not regard his petition as frivolous and every consideration will be given to it.

Spot Checks on Vehicles

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Would he consider a system of spot checks on heavy vehicles and buses on the owners' premises?

ANSWER

There are practical problems in undertaking spot checks of vehicles on the owners' premises as distinct from a field situation. However, the registrar can call vehicles in or ask to inspect vehicles which he believes may be unroadworthy. Advice is available on suitable standards of maintenance. The Australian Transport Advisory Council has endorsed a maintenance code for buses and copies have been circulated to all Northern Territory bus operators. Consideration is being given to whether all school bus contract vehicles should comply with the code and the records being available for inspection from time to time.

Employment of Mr Combe as Lobbyist

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Could he advise if the amount of money involved in the employment of Mr David Combe as a lobbyist for the Northern Territory government in Canberra is in the order of $150 000?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this question is intersting. For the Opposition Leader even to have asked this reflects some doubt on my reputation for truthfulness. I have already told this Assembly and I have certainly told the media - and it has been given wide publicity - that the Northern Territory government is paying Mr David Combe a retainer of $25 000 a year. We have heard from Mr Peter Morris, the federal Minister for Transport, who has a reputation for saying anything that comes into his head, that we are paying Mr Combe $1000 a day. No one knows where Mr Morris got that figure from and he certainly has never enlightened us as to where it came from.

Mr B.Collins: Mr Combe.

Mr EVERINGHAM: The Leader of the Opposition says that he got the figure from Mr Combe. That shows us that Mr Combe's contacts with the federal ministry are as good as they ever were.

I believe, Mr Speaker, that a retainer of $25 000 per annum is not unreasonable in the circumstances. As I have previously told this Assembly, we use 'lobbyists' as they are called or 'consultants' as they actually appear in the public service documentation that talks about them to attempt to gain for the Northern Territory information, usually at the bureaucratic level, about events, programs or policies that are likely to be taken up which will have an impact on the Northern Territory. The processes by which the federal government operates usually mean that developments occur in the departments even before ministers get to hear of them. If one has consultants who have widespread connections through the bureaucracy, through political staff and so on, one obtains intelligence that enables one to take necessary remedial action where the interests of the Northern Territory are being threatened. It is for that reason and for no other that the Northern Territory employs lobbyists.

It has been said that we should use our federal representatives. We do, Mr Speaker. We use our federal representatives and always have done so to the best of our ability but there are only 3 federal representatives from the Territory and they spend a great deal of their time on committees and in the House. When they are in Canberra, they are usually flat strap anyway and they have very little contact with the bureaucracy. For that matter, it takes them years to build up the sort of contacts that are of any use. That is why, to put it bluntly, you buy information from these people called 'lobbyists'. It is certainly one of the oldest professions in the world.

I think that lobbyists are recorded as having been in the precincts of the Roman Senate and, no doubt, they were received.

Mr B. Collins: Were their conversations monitored?

Mr EVERINGHAM: They were probably written on tablets of stone, Mr Speaker. I understand too, from my reading on the subject when I was younger, that lobbyists in the days of the Roman Empire received substantially larger fees than they do today.

While I am on my feet, and reflecting on the Leader of the Opposition's apparent disbelief of my statements, I think I have told the media at least 20 times that this government does not propose to have an early election. We believe that, unless some extraordinary event occurs, we should run our full term. The Leader of the Opposition appears to doubt my veracity on this subject as well by referring in an off-handed way to elections. However, I would like to try to put this subject to bed because I believe that the efforts of the media and the opposition to keep the subject of an early election at the forefront of people's minds are simply unsettling to the community at a time when we really need to be getting on with the job. Unemployment figures in the Territory are high and perhaps that can be attributed to the season. But, we want to keep this community in a state of confidence and, as far as possible, tranquility, so that people will put their hands in their pockets and pull their money out or go to see their bank manager or their financier and borrow money to get on with projects. We do not want totally unnecessary talk about early elections.

I do not know how many times I have given what virtually amounts to a categorial assurance. It is with great reluctance that I raise this subject in the Assembly because I should not have to. The Leader of the Opposition seems to be intent on creating uncertainty about the whole subject. I believe that sort of uncertainty can only do harm to the Territory's situation. If the Leader of the Opposition is interested in jobs and employment, he should cease talking about an early election. I have said more than most leaders of any government anywhere would say on the subject. I have said that, unless some extraordinary event occurs, the Northern Territory will have its election at the normal time.

Commonwealth Financial Assistance for NT Electricity Generation

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

What has the Territory government been doing to ensure continuous Commonwealth financial assistance for electricity generation in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, members will be aware of the importance of our funding arrangements for electricity with the Commonwealth. They are important to our very future. It is the one area of Northern Territory funding that, if it ceased, would probably send the Northern Territory broke. Honourable members will be aware that the Memorandum of Understanding which was settled at self-government provided that, for the first 4 years of the agreement, actual losses in the electricity system in the Northern Territory would be picked up by the Commonwealth. That arrangement was put in place in the absence of any other arrangements and in order to settle the matter and not have self-government delayed as a result of uncertainty about the electricity system.

In June last year, at the end of that 4-year period, agreement was reached with the previous federal government in regard to a formula subsidy arrangement to apply until 1987. This formula arrangement included assistance with the construction of the Channel Island power-station stage 1. Unfortunately, the formal written details of that agreement were only finalised by officials of both governments early this year. The new Labor government refused to endorse the agreement when we raised the matter with it in March this year. Very shortly after its election, the Chief Minister and I saw Senator Walsh, the minister responsible, and asked him to confirm his government's support for that particular agreement. At that time, he refused.

I can assure honourable members that, because of the importance that we place on these arrangements with the federal government and the terrible consequences to the Northern Territory of those arrangements not being confirmed, the Chief Minister and I have made repeated representations to both Senator Walsh and the Prime Minister on virtually every one of the many trips made by the Chief Minister, and to a lesser extent myself, to Canberra since the Labor government came to office. We have sought to reinforce the importance which the Northern Territory government places on this particular agreement which, we are adamant, had been reached completely with the previous federal government but simply had not been signed at that state. Mr Speaker, during the period in which we raised this matter with those respective ministers and the Prime Minister, our case was not assisted at all by the rantings of the Leader of the Opposition in this Assembly and the NT member of the House of Representatives about how the Territory was over-funded in their view. Honourable members will be well aware of what has been said in that regard. That attitude certainly did not help those negotiations. However, there is a satisfactory ending. I am pleased to advise that the Prime Minister has written as recently as this morning to the Chief Minister informing the Northern Territory that the federal government has now confirmed the agreement reached last year with the former federal government which, up until this morning, the present federal government had refused to ratify. I am satisfied that, in the end, justice has been done. It has been an agreement all along. However, agreements are only as strong as the people who are to stand by them. We now have this assurance that the new federal government will stand by that agreement, as indeed it should because it is a specific part of the basis of the self-government settlement.

Ratification of Electricity Agreement

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Is it true that the electricity agreement to which the Treasurer has just referred had not been signed by the Fraser government for a period of 7 months after it had been drafted?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is not true. In fact, the documents were prepared finally for signature between the former federal minister, Senator Carrick, and myself. They were ready for signature at the time the federal government called the election and were not signed for that reason. The documents had not been ready for 7 months.

Shooting of Buffalo from Helicopters

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Is he aware that about 600 head of buffalo have been shot from helicopters this year and left on the ground at Kakadu? In his liaison capacity with the federal minister whose portfolio includes the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service, would the minister undertake to stop this wasteful and useless slaughter of buffalo?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am concerned that the honourable member may have a view that the destruction of buffalo is a useless and wasteful slaughter. I do not think that view should prevail in our community. While every effort is made to remove buffalo from the park in the most acceptable way, regrettably, it is not always possible to satisfy everyone. As a result of receiving the honourable member's representations, I took the matter up with the Conservation Commission because I was worried that an image like that should exist. I would like to read the advice from the Conservation Commission because the area in Kakadu to which the honourable member refers is under the control of the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service. Our relationship with that body is one of consultation and cooperation. Advice on this matter was received from Mr Chris Haynes of the ANPWS:

> The policy of the ANPWS is to remove feral animals from Kakadu National Park and they make every effort to cooperate with musterers and pet meaters. However, where buffalo are unmusterable or otherwise inaccessible, the rangers eradicate those remaining by shooting. For example, the buffalo at Malabanbandju were repeatedly mustered and shot by pet meaters and yet a small number of buffalo remained forcing the rangers to complete the elimination in another way.

The answer to the honourable member's question is that there will always be times when we have to shoot buffalo from helicopters because of the inaccessibility of the terrain. However, it is never an intention of the ANPWS nor the government to be seen to be uselessly and careflessly slaughtering animals in an inhumane way to the disadvantage of the community.

Report on Staffing in NT Primary Schools

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Have the findings in the report on staffing in Northern Territory primary schools undertaken last year by a joint departmental working group and the Northern Territory Teachers Federation yet been accepted by the government, and, if so, when will the findings be implemented?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member refers to the report being accepted by government. It has been accepted inasmuch as it has been received. I do not have particular details before me but the report itself advised caution in looking at its recommendations because of the very poor statistical basis of the information in it. It indicated that caution should be taken with interpretations because of poor sampling, poor responses to samples and so on. Whilst I have the report at this time - and I provided a copy to the NT Teachers Federation which was on the working party that prepared it - I cannot give the honourable member any further information about it at this time.

Old Darwin Hospital Site

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

I am continually asked about the future of the area of land that was previously occupied by the old Darwin Hospital. What is the current situation with regard to the future development of that piece of land?

ANSWER

Expressions of interest were invited in relation to the old Darwin Hospital site. I think everyone here agrees that, if it is to be redeveloped, and we believe it should be, it must be approached by us with considerable caution. We must get the best possible use out of the land in the interests of the whole community. Expressions of interest were invited earlier this year and, from memory, they closed at about the end of July. Several expressions of interest were received from local and overseas parties and I understand that, at present, these are being evaluated. Of course, evaluation includes discussions with the proponents and the seeking of further information. I have advised the Secretary of the Department of Lands that the government would rather do nothing with this land than give it away to someone who would use it for an inferior purpose.

I anticipate that the process of evaluation may take many months. In due course, when the various proposals have been developed to a level where they can be taken to Cabinet, that is where I will take them. In the meantime, Mr Speaker, I have confirmed to the YMCA and YWCA that the lease that they have over the old nurses' quarters will continue and that the government will see that it is honoured to the extent that they have tenure within the terms of the lease. I believe that they may have an option. We have indicated that the lease will be honoured.

As to the likely future use of the site, all I can say at this stage is I imagine it will be something in the order of hotel or commercial condominium-type development. It could even be something in the nature of a total resort complex because a beach fronts onto the site. I think all honourable members would want to see that the site receives very special treatment.

Labor Proposal for University

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is it the intention of the government to support the opposition's proposal for the establishment of a university and can he advise if the recommendation of the TEC's 1981 submissions on the university render the Labor proposal unworkable?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, we would be most unlikely to support the ALP's narrow-view university. I think it has been described as a lean-to university, a tin shed university, a cluster of demountables down the back of the community college. That is hardly appropriate in our view, Mr Speaker. I think it would be rather inappropriate for me to hold up the Assembly by listing specific items which we feel are quite inappropriate as far as the Northern Territory is concerned if it wants a university of any credibility whatsoever, a university other than in name which it seems the honourable Leader of the Opposition is proposing. It seems the proposal was framed without any information from the University Planning Authority which expected him to fulfil an undertaking that he gave to it that, following some discussion on the various aspects of the government's case for the university put forward at recent meetings of the Universities Council held in the Territory, he would give more information on the ALP's case. More recently, it was released in the press. It seems that what has been released in the press subsequent to his confidential talk with the universities council has, if anything, attempted to torpedo the government's case, the case we have been putting for some time and refining from time to time after further talks with the universities council.

The honourable member has taken considerable exception to the fact that I have said that the Commonwealth Tertiary Education Commission had already indicated in its earlier report on the Territory's first submission that what the ALP is putting forward now is totally inappropriate. It stated that it would not be considered by it at all as far as the establishment of a university is concerned. I would refer him to page 23, paragraph 3.31, of the report of the Tertiary Education Commission on the proposal to establish a university in the Northern Territory. As a matter of fact, I think it would be quite appropriate in answering the honourable member's question, particularly since he asked for my reference point, to read this paragraph. I quote from the report on the first proposal put forward:

> Another of the commission's concerns stems from the fact that the proposal is based largely on the transfer of advanced education courses from one institution to another rather than the establishment of further opportunities for higher education for residents in the Territory. Leaving aside the problems that this would create in staffing the courses and the implications for the future development of the Darwin Community College, the commission believes that this would not provide an adequate base for the successful development of a university and that it would prejudice the future of advanced education. Moreover, the commission has reservations generally about universities offering subgraduate courses and would be prepared to support such arrangements only where a university is the only local institution with the resources necessary to offer courses at the level in the relevant disciplines. This is clearly not the case in Darwin where, under the present proposal, the Darwin Community College would continue to offer some UG3 courses in those areas forming the basis of this university's operations.
> Then comes the key part of the paragraph:
> The commission considers that a future university in the Territory should develop independently from the beginning. It should offer recognised university courses from which teaching and research activities can develop logically and progressively.

Mr Speaker, I suggest that the ALP have a good hard look at that because the case it has put forward in its policy is particularly shallow.

It totally overlooks considerations such as that the Darwin Community College site, in a few years, will prove to be inadequate for its own activities. If honourable members opposite would care to have a look at the Darwin Community College's master plan for its whole site at Casuarina, they will see that there is simply no room at all for any additional activities on campus. One would have to abolish the car-park and landscaping etc.

The opposition seems to think that Palmerston is way down in the bush and no one could possibly want to travel a few kilometres down there. I think it undersells the importance of Palmerston - the population that is there now, the population that will be there in just a short few years and communications networks by way of roads etc which will exist between Darwin and Palmerston. For it to put forward the view that Palmerston is simply an outback area with an atmosphere like Timber Creek demonstrates that it simply has not taken the issue seriously. It seems to me that it wanted to develop a case which did anything but support the government's case. That is what it has done.

Buffalo and Cattle Eradication

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Will he undertake to have the Conservation Commission fully cooperate with pet meaters in buffalo and cattle eradication on land controlled by the Conservation Commission?

ANSWER

I confirm for the honourable member that the Conservation Commission's policy in destocking feral animals from land which it controls is one of cooperating fully with pet meat operators and other people involved in the industry. I would make the point, though, that one of the conflicts of interest that the Conservation Commission officers have is that, in trying to balance the needs and the requirements of pet meat operators, they have also to balance the impact that these operators have on the environment, particularly with the vehicles they use and the sort of operation that they conduct. However, I confirm that pet meaters will be used wherever possible. If there have been cases from time to time where people believe pet meaters should have been used, then I can only say that the commission must have felt that damage done by the operators may have been greater than the benefits derived from putting the animals through a pet meat works.

Accommodation at Old Darwin Hospital

Mr DOOLAN to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the fact that it has been reported in the media that there are now 7000 unemployed people in the Northern Territory, could some part of the old hospital at least be used as temporary accommodation for needy people?

ANSWER

I do not believe that the old hospital could be used as temporary accommodation for needy peoply. Firstly, all the old wards other than the sisters quarters, as far as I know, have been demolished and removed. There are some flats on the site,which, I understand, are being used by government employees at present. Mr Speaker, the former administration buildings etc have not been designed to provide accommodation. They would require very extensive and expensive renovations. It would cost a mint of money to bring the services at the old Darwin Hospital back into operation. It is far more economical to continue to put all the government's money into the housing program rather than attempting to convert buildings to a use for which they were never intended.

East Coast Shipping Service

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

He has stated that shipping companies other than ANL could provide a satisfactory service to the east coast if they were given the opportunity. Which shipping companies have expressed an interest in the provision of such a service?

ANSWER

The Department of Transport and Works and the Port Authority have made many attempts to secure adequate shipping services for Darwin outside the existing subsidy arrangements with the Commonwealth. Most of the responses we have received from various organisations, such as TNT Bulk Ships, Bourkes and State Ships have involved some subsidy requirement. Our proposal has been that the Commonwealth pass to the Northern Territory the subsidy required and enter into a 3-year arrangement with the Northern Territory government so that it may choose the right shipping service to meet Darwin's needs. This has always been our proposal. At no stage has the Commonwealth agreed to that proposal. The federal government has decided to fund the operations of ANL on a year-to-year basis. This has been unacceptable to the Northern Territory government because no one would know where the subsidy was applied and we would not be prepared to make a contribution to a subsidy on that basis. Recently, we have agreed that we would go all out in the marketing of ANL on the basis that the federal minister has offered to subsidise the ANL operation again during the current year. At this point, we have no advice from the federal minister as to the extent of that subsidy. He has announced a $2m subsidy and we hope that there will be some advice, either in the budget or in a covering letter, in the next few days.

Purchase of Housing Commission Houses in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for HOUSING

This relates to a situation which has persisted for ages. When will Housing Commission tenants in Nhulunbuy be allowed to purchase the houses in which they live?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member is right when he says this situation has lasted for ages. I imagine it will continue for a further period. As the honourable member would be aware, the housing question in Nhulunbuy is tied up with the joint venturers' lease held with the Aboriginal community in that area. Until such time as the Department of Law can resolve the question with the joint venturers, I am unable to answer the question.

Heavitree Gap

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TOURISM

What action does the government propose to improve the present state of the gateway to Alice Springs at Heavitree Gap?

ANSWER

When I was there a couple of weeks ago, there was a lot of earth lying around as a result of digging from the gap pipeline. Certain roadworks were under way. I understand a new causeway is programmed to go across to the farm area for which tenders are to be called shortly and a contract let in about October. There is a park area which, as I understand it, is the responsibility of the Alice Springs Town Council. Certainly, the area from Heavitree Gap into Alice Springs is quite clearly the responsibility of the Alice Springs Town Council in terms of beautification. I acknowledge that the area is not looking its pristine best at the moment but the situation is difficult when one considers that transport and other services all converge in that area. The railway line, the road, the river, the pipeline, electricity and telephone wires, sewerage lines and the water supply lines all go through the Gap. Naturally, work has to be done on these things from time to time.

I feel certain the relevant authorities will see that, after the work is carried out, restoration and beautification will be done. This year, we have had the added troubles of a flood through the Gap which at least left the roadway substantially unharmed this time because of the new methods of securing the foundations. However, there has been considerable work there and I am sure that beautification will be carried out over the course of the next few months. To have tried to plant grass and trees during an Alice Springs winter would have been undesirable. The grass and trees would have died back in the first frost that came along and certainly would not have been shooting until spring time. I expect that the Conservation Commission and the town council know this as well as anyone and will be planning to get on with the work when the weather is more congenial.

Air Services in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he received any recommendations on the future of air services in Nhulunbuy following a recent inquiry on the matter?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I acknowledge that there has been no improvement in the services to Nhulunbuy as a result of my actions and whatever actions the honourable member has taken himself in this matter. The government has initiated passenger surveys of all air and bus services throughout the Northern Territory. Particularly in relation to the Gove situation, a public meeting was held. I understand a meeting was held also at Groote Eylandt to determine the attitude of users of those services. As further information comes to hand, I will be happy to pass it on to the honourable member.

Job Opportunities for Territorians

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Given the increase of 17.1% in federal funding to the Northern Territory announced in last night's federal budget and the fact that most of this money is untied grants, will the government ensure that this funding will be used to generate the maximum number of job opportunities for Territorians?

ANSWER

It will certainly be up to the Northern Territory government, in its budget, to try to generate the maximum number of jobs for Territorians because the federal budget certainly has not done that as far as specific Commonwealth initiatives are concerned. I would like to point out that the increases in payments to the Northern Territory government almost exclusively are not the result of specific federal initiatives and decisions taken to assist the Northern Territory. They are a result of the federal government fulfilling obligations, some of which are 5 years old, in formulas laid down in the Memorandum of Understanding. Virtually all the Northern Territory's funding stems from those formulas. To have the view portrayed over the last few hours that local members of the opposition have been enormously influential in getting additional funds for the Northern Territory is simply nonsense.

In relation to the electricity subsidy, there is a formula for assistance to the Northern Territory from the federal government. In fact, this ties the federal government's hands to some degree in the amount of money allocated to the Northern Territory. On top of that, the Grants Commission has a specific special grant to the Northern Territory of $16.9m which was provided to us after an assessment of the Territory's needs. In addition, the Bi-centennial Roads Development Program and housing funding are matters which have been settled for some considerable time and present no surprises in the budget because the federal government has fulfilled obligations rather than taken specific initiatives in the Northern Territory to create jobs. In the area where it could have done so - Commonwealth capital works - it has been decidedly short on activity of past years. Honourable members will be well aware that the good news of the commencement of upgrading and relocation of the Darwin Airport brings with it the news that a mere $1m is to be spent this year. Very much of that $1m will be taken up in design and documentation and probably very little work will be done on the ground. Where that will create jobs in the Territory is hard to see because most of it will be done in South Australia and some of it in Western Australia by consultants engaged by the Commonwealth government.

There is precious little Commonwealth capital works in the budget. There are some 9 or so houses to be built for Commonwealth public servants in the Northern Territory. The good news is that a control tower will be commenced at Nhulunbuy. Other than that, there is very little. When we consider the levels of Commonwealth capital spending in the Northern Territory in the past on things like the patrol boat base, we seem to be missing out on many of the opportunities the federal government has to create employment in the Northern Territory. How the suggestion by the federal government, that this budget will stimulate private investment, will come to pass escapes me completely because I can see where there would be specific disincentives to private investment coming out of this budget rather than incentives.

Amongst the disincentives in particular which will affect Territorians very seriously, and which has been played down by commentators from the other side, is that petrol and diesel fuel prices will rise some 5% or 2¢ a litre, and that will be indexed. That is bad news as far as the Territory is concerned because we have persistently advocated to federal governments that to touch the cost of transportation in the Territory affects us more than elsewhere in Australia. In the first year, the cost of that impost is likely to be in the vicinity of $8m a year. Of course, only one group of people will pay that $8m: the consumers. It must be passed on. The cost of transporting goods and persons to the Territory by road, air or sea will rise. The only way you will escape it is to walk or ride a bike in the Northern Territory. Obviously, the cost of food, clothing, houses, cars, travel etc will rise.

That is only part of the bad news. The most dangerous aspect is that the government has taken steps to index the excise on fuel and other products such as cigarettes and fortified wines. The indexation of a tax is a particularly nasty move by a government because it enables it to forever gather from the populace ever more revenue without wearing the odium of having to say 'We have just put it up again'. Not only will the government receive the benefit of increased turnover and activity from increased consumption of goods like fuel as Australia's economy recovers, it will also receive an additional loading every 6 months. That will build in a spiral of rising prices which will reflect in the CPI. It can do nothing else but reinforce inflation in this country for as long as taxes are indexed. It is a most detrimental thing to have done to Australia. It has established a new line of evil in imposing taxes on people. This will affect the Territory more than most because of our reliance on transportation throughout.

Honourable members opposite who claim that this budget is a marvellous fillip to the Northern Territory ought to rethink. The advantages to us in this budget stem from the Memorandum of Understanding and the electricity agreement which are fixed obligations on the Commonwealth government. There are no favours there. Where it does have a discretionary power, we have been sold short.

Darwin Performing Arts Centre

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Recently, he made some very strong statements in regard to the Darwin Performing Arts Centre and the government's involvement in that project. Is he planning to have further meetings with the Lord Mayor of Darwin about the Darwin Performing Arts Centre?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, prior to my assuming the portfolio for community development and the responsibility for the arts centre and its funding through the Department of Community Development, the Lord Mayor raised with the Chief Minister the concept of the Northern Territory government setting up a formal Araluen-type trust to take over the operation of the arts centre in Darwin. My understanding from the Chief Minister is that he advised the Lord Mayor that the government would not favour such a course of action and that the council was to be responsible for the operation and the administration of the centre. How it did that was really a matter for itself and we would not be involved. Subsequently, the Lord Mayor met with me and some of my officers and raised the matter again. I advised him that it was not the government's intention to become involved with the administration and operation of the arts centre and that, in fact, if the council wished to have an autonomous body to run it, it was really a matter for itself. Subsequently, I understand that the council was seeking a meeting of officers to find the best way of setting up a body. While the expertise of the department would certainly be available to the council to discuss what options might be available, it is certainly not the government's intention to become involved.

For the benefit of some people who have said that Araleun has a trust and therefore the Darwin arts centre ought to have a trust, I think there is a distinct difference. The body in Alice Springs that sponsored the Araleun centre was a community group. It was not sponsored by the Alice Springs council. In the case of the Darwin arts centre, the project has always been sponsored by and understood to be the responsibility of the Darwin City Council. We do not intend to become involved in the operation of the Darwin arts centre. We have an agreement with the city council that we will contribute to the funding of the centre and we will meet that obligation. Discussions will be held in the months to come about the level of funding required. It is early days so far as setting a level of funding is concerned. The centre is not due to be opened for about 12 to 15 months at the earliest. We expect to be involved in consultation with the city council to arrive at a level of funding that we believe the government is committed to. I hope that answers the honourable member's question and puts the matter into perspective.

Housing Grants

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HOUSING

In view of the previous answer - if you could call it that - from the Treasurer, could he confirm whether the 41.7% increase in the federal budget in housing grants for the Northern Territory is part of the Memorandum of Understanding?

ANSWER

To my knowledge, Mr Speaker, not all of it.

School Buses

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Do all school buses undergo full mechanical tests over the pits on re-registration?

ANSWER

They do in areas where testing facilities exist. Further, inspection is mandatory every 6 months. Periodic spot checks are carried out in the interests of road safety and to determine the extent of voluntary compliance by the operators. In areas where testing facilities are not available, all buses are inspected at 6-monthly intervals by the Vehicles Standards Section inspectors on site.

Apprentices at Territory Training Centre

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

My question concerns the automotive and diesel apprentices attached to the Territory Training Centre, at the old bus depot on the corner of Bagot Road and the Stuart Highway. Could he advise if they will be stationed there permanently or, if not, what future arrangements will be made for that depot and for the apprentices?

ANSWER

I agreed a little time ago with the Vocational Training Commission that it could take over the old bus depot on the corner of Bagot Road and the Stuart Highway as an interim move to accommodate additional apprentices. It wanted to take on further apprentices but there was insufficient room at the Territory Training Centre in Armidale Street. At present, there is an interim arrangement which ensures that those trainees are not unduly affected. We will consider the long-term use of that particular site. No doubt, we will consider the possibility of continuing to use it for those types of activities, depending on a whole range of questions to be raised about its suitability for that use, for long-term growth and so on. I can assure any trainees who are attending that site that we will ensure that they are adequately accommodated so that their training is not interrupted unduly.

Upgrading of Girraween Road

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of repeated requests to repair Girraween Road in the rural area, and considering its importance as a through-road from Howard Springs to Humpty Doo and to the extractive industries,can the road be considered immediately for upgrading?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the development of an extractive industry in the Girraween Road area has resulted in an increase in traffic for which the present road was not designed. I can assure her that the Northern Territory government appreciates the nuisance this must cause. Memebers will be aware of the government's policy of progressive upgrading and reconstruction of the rural road system between Batchelor and Darwin. However, because of the massive funds involved in this program, demands will only be satisfied over a number of years. Girraween Road has been programmed for re-gravelling next month and this will reduce the dust problem. Minor upgrading of a causeway on the road will also be carried out at that time. I have asked my department to conduct a study, including traffic counts, to determine whether higher priority for sealing the road is warranted.

Federal Funding for NT Rehabilitation Centres

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

In light of the Treasurer's statement this morning, is the increase in the federal budget announced last night in the desperately needed area of rehabilitation centres for the Northern Territory from $800 000 to $5.3m - an increase of 560% - part of the Memorandum of Understanding?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the only funds that we will receive from the federal health budget is an additional $7m which is anticipated to be the loss of revenue from the introduction of Medicare on 1 February 1984. In the health budget, some $20m has been allocated for the provision of community health services. That is additional. Of that additional funding to the Australian community, the Northern Territory will receive about $14 000.

Control Scheme for Quota Meats to USA

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

It is understood that the Australian Meat and Livestock Corporation has implemented a control scheme limiting Australian shipments of quota meats to the USA for the balance of 1983. Is he aware of this scheme and will it disadvantage the Territory meat export trade?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I became aware yesterday of the proposal outlined by the honourable member. I would like to read a sentence from a telex I received. It was addressed to my colleague, the Chief Minister, and came from the Northern Territory Meat Exporters Association. The information in the telex is that the AMLC has implemented a control scheme from 16 August 1983 limiting Australian shipments of quota meats to America for the balance of this year and it has released 40 000 t to be divided amongst eligible exporters. This scheme is disastrous for the Northern Territory meat exporters and cattle growers as other Australian exporters have shipped without restriction since January. Honourable members would be aware that our killing season starts later in the year, in April-May.

There are several matters of concern about this. The first is that we have received no information at all from the AMLC or the federal department, which I would have thought was appropriate under the circumstances. I would like to brief honourable members on a paper that has been given me by the department on the significance of this restriction. Negotiations between Australia and the USA over the limitations on beef shipments during 1983 have concluded with Australia agreeing to a restraint level of 272 000 t. Australia's traditional export level to the USA is approximately 290 000 t. and trade agreements should have provided access for about 305 000t. Higher than expected levels of shipment from Canada and New Zealand in the first half of 1983 meant some restraint on imports would be required in the second half of the year. Australian trade officials refused an American offer of access for 255 000 t, which was made early in July, and a second offer of 262 000 t made later the same month. The USA offered 272 000 t and we accepted this on 12 August.

This agreed restraint level means that the balance of shipments for this year will total between 40 000 t and 45 000 t. Quota entitlements for individual abattoirs are based on their total export tonnages last year as a proportion of total Australian exports. This allocation mechanism is extremely unfair to the Northern Territory beef processors because of the seasonal nature of the killing season in the Northern Territory and because Territory beef exports are almost entirely directed to the American market. The southern abattoirs have 3 or 4 months unrestricted access to the American market over and above that of their Territory counterparts. In addition, through-puts at the Territory abattoirs are predominantly manufacturing-class meats suited to the United States trade. This means they have little opportunity to diversify their market outlets and are further penalised by the quota system.

The combined effect of these 2 factors seriously disadvantages the Northern Territory processors. In fact, it is estimated that beef quotas at Northern Territory abattoirs could be filled by early September while entitlements at southern abattoirs may not be filled until mid-October. When entitlements have been filled, beef exports to the United States will have to be placed in bonded storage. This will have adverse consequences on the cash flow position of Northern Territory exporters.

I am very concerned at the developments that have taken place in this area and I propose to take the matter up with the Australian Meat and Livestock Corporation and also with my federal counterpart, the Minister for Primary Industry because, as is outlined in the paper, the proposition that the Northern Territory be curtailed in its production, primarily because we have a killing season that runs for about 6 months instead of the whole year, is inequitable and unreasonable. It needs to be re-negotiated with the people concerned. I can say to the honourable member that we are concerned about it and we will try to do something about it because it cannot go on if we are to maintain a stable meat industry in the Northern Territory.

Rehabilitation Centre

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Does the minister intend to transfer the rehabilitation centre from the old Darwin Hospital to Dundas House at Parap, despite the fact that there is insufficient space at Dundas House to maintain the range of services currently offered at the existing centre, in view of the increase in allocation for rehabilitation centres in the federal budget to the Northern Territory from $800 000 to $5.3m - an increase of 560%?

ANSWER

The original intention of the Department of Health to transfer the rehabilitation patients from the old Darwin Hospital to Dundas House was to be done on a short-term basis until evaluations were carried out by a person who had been employed by the Northern Territory Department of Health, Dr Makita. Until such time as the evaluation has been completed, Dundas House will be used on a short-term basis. However, the subject of constructing a facility at a cost of almost $1m is under consideration.

Primary School for Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Has the Department of Education investigated the need for another primary school at Nhulunbuy and, if so, what recommendations have been made to the minister?

ANSWER

I expect to receive a report later this week from education officers following a visit to Nhulunbuy. A proposal has been put forward that some demountables be moved from the primary school to the high school. There is concern by some members of the community over that move to place Year 7 students on the high school campus. I will receive that report later this week and perhaps report to the honourable member later in the sittings.

Net Gain for NT from Federal Budget

Mr B.COLLINS to TREASURER

Can the Treasurer confirm, using official figures contained in the budget papers, if the real gain in net terms for the Territory - discounting the non-farm sector inflation rate which is the way in which the budget papers present this figure - this year from the federal budget is 8.8% as compared with 4.5% for last year's budget?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have all the Commonwealth budget papers before me so I cannot answer the honourable member's question specifically. Quite clearly, he is trying to continue the smokescreen which was raised very effectively by the federal government in the pre-budget process to have everyone shuddering in his boots about a horror budget. I would like the Leader of the Opposition to tell me that the federal government did not create an environment of a horror budget.

Mr Collins: If you do not know the answer, sit down.

Mr PERRON: When the budget did indeed come down, a great deal of the expected bad news was not realised and the people felt somewhat relieved. It will take a few days for the real message of this budget to sink in and the charade that it is in so far as creating a climate in Australia that will create 500 000 jobs over 3 years. In its budget, the Northern Territory government will move to fill many of the gaps that the federal budget has left in the Northern Territory and allocate funds to areas which are specifically short in funding. The honourable member mentioned that we should be feeling really good about an increase in housing funds. Housing funds rose from something like $20m to $28m. We spend $50m a year on housing. The Commonwealth is merely topping up the base which we double every year. I think he had better get the whole scheme into perspective.

Mosquitoes

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Mosquitoes may not be in plague proportions in the northern suburbs and I am very pleased to hear that. I can assure the minister that there are a few mosquitoes flying around the inner city area. Is the government monitoring all of the suburbs in the Darwin district and how often will the larvaciding operation be carried out?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member's question reminds me of the 'Don't be a little mozzie breeder' campaign that was launched by the Department of Health.

We have had significant success in the northern suburbs with a chemical called Temphos. Recently, the Northern Territory government accepted the recommendations of a joint working party - comprised of people from the city council, the Department of Health, the Conservation Commission and the Department of Transport and Works - to upgrade the drains around the Darwin area through a 5-year program. It is hoped that that will reduce the breeding areas. We have an education campaign . I think it is important that that particular campaign be maintained. We have the areas under surveillance and surveys are carried out by the Department of Health. Hopefully, this problem will be eradicated in those areas still affected. There is no short-term solution to the problem. The Department of Health and other departments are doing all they can to alleviate the problem.

Regulations Governing Pet Meat Operations

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Would he undertake to re-examine the regulations under the pet meat legislation to make sure they are not causing hardship to pet meat operators?

ANSWER

I would be more than happy to consider that proposition. I ask all members of the Assembly if they have any knowledge of unreasonable regulations that are causing unnecessary hardship to people in the pet meat industry. We would be only too happy to look into the matter. Pet meat regulations are designed to prevent pet meat being put into export packages and misrepresented as an export product. While it is the intent of the pet meat regulations to ensure that contaminated meat is not sold, if those regulations are unreasonably harsh and need redressing, I am happy to consider any specific points that the honourable member may raise.

Electricity Charges

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Will the federal government allocation of $64.7m for fuel for NTEC be sufficient to hold electricity charges at their current level next financial year, outside, of course, of the agreement to keep them in parity with north Queensland?

ANSWER

The amount of money allocated in the federal budget is the amount NTEC sought in pursuance of the agreement between this government and the Commonwealth government. I understand that, in so far as that goes, there is no problem. At the moment, we are investigating a rather horrendous possibility that, as a result of removing other fuel sources, such as avtur, from the list of products previously exempt from excise and then indexing that by 4.3%, it may well catch up heavy fuel oil.

Mr B. Collins: Is that speculation?

Mr ROBERTSON: I am having it confirmed. The wording used in the budget speech is not very clear. To answer the question, I understand that the amount of money is sufficient for the purposes of maintaining the agreement between ourselves and the Commonwealth.

Darwin Arts Centre Statutory Authority

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

My question follows on from one by the member for Port Darwin about the Darwin arts centre. Why has the minister rejected the conclusion reached by the Darwin City Council after long deliberations that a statutory authority with a majority of members appointed by the council is appropriate for the Darwin centre?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, quite simply, the government had an agreement with the Darwin City Council concerning the level of funding, operational costs and the method of management. That was agreed on some years ago. We believe that agreement is fair and reasonable. It enables the council to conduct any form of management it wishes.

Mrs O'Neil: It wants a statutory authority.

Mr TUXWORTH: If it wants a trust, I guess it is well placed to see its family solicitor and establish one. The government has never indicated, intended or agreed in any way at all to have an Araleun-type trust for the operation of the centre. It is quite inappropriate given that the arts centre is being sponsored by the Darwin City Council, which is a government organisation in itself.

Freight Inquiry Support Staff

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What support staff does the freight inquiry have?

ANSWER

I understand that, at this stage, an officer has been allocated to support the freight inquiry. No limit has been put on the number of people who are available to service or conduct research for the members of the inquiry. So far as I know, the staff involved are quite capable of doing what needs to be done. If the chairman of the freight inquiry should suggest to me that additional assistance is required, I would be quite happy to consider that request.

TMPU Funding

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I preface my question by referring him to my comments in the adjournment debate yesterday about TMPU funding for town camps in Alice Springs. Does he regard the special purposes leases held by Aboriginal associations in the vicinity of Alice Springs as Aboriginal communities? If so, will the government continue TMPU funding for them as is done for other Aboriginal communities in the Territory?

ANSWER

I heard with interest the points raised by the honourable member in the adjournment debate yesterday. This morning, I asked the secretary of the department to obtain the files on the origins and funding arrangements for all the special purposes leases we have in all towns in the Territory. My understanding is that these are not considered to be remote communities. They are not considered or funded as remote communities and are members of a normal town community. On that basis, their responsibilities within the community should be the same as those of anyone else. However, I will look through the relevant files to see what the origins of these sites are and where we go from here.

Unemployment in Remote Communities

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I refer to his previous answer in which he said that such leases are not regarded as remote communities. Is he aware of the amount of unemployment in those communities that would necessitate the same special consideration as would be necessary in the remote communities to which he referred?

ANSWER

I am most conscious and concerned at the level of unemployment in Aboriginal communities in the Northern Territory, be they in town, on special purpose leases, in fringe camps or in remote areas. Whenever possible, the government has made every endeavour to try to employ as many Aboriginals as possible within the resources that it has available to it. From the information that is available to me, I do not see that the level of Aboriginal employment in the Northern Territory is a criterion for deciding whether a town lease is a remote community.

Policy on Aboriginal Education

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he indicate when the government's policy on Aboriginal education will be released?

ANSWER

I cannot indicate a specific date. I have looked at 2 drafts of the particular document concerned and I am not entirely satisfied with it. For one thing, it was far too long. I have asked for a more concise version. Unfortunately, it was not available prior to these sittings. I was hoping that it would have been. As soon as it is available, I will have it circulated to all members of the Assembly.

Vanderlin Drive and McMillans Road Intersection

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What steps are to be undertaken to reduce the hazardous conditions at the corner of Vanderlin Drive and McMillans Road in the Sanderson electorate?

ANSWER

There has been considerable representation to the government about the intersection that the honourable member refers to. There will be specific references made to this in the budget papers when they are handed down next week. As soon as the budget is handed down, I will be happy to provide additional information.

Building Code

Ms LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

Following a request from me at the last sittings, he circulated copies of the new Building Code. Could he indicate when those regulations are to be gazetted and confirmed?

ANSWER

I cannot indicate at this stage when the regulations will be gazetted. However, I will seek that information and advise the Assembly at a later time.

Local Government at Jabiru

Mr SMITH to CHIEF MINISTER

At a public meeting in Jabiru last year, he indicated that full local government could be expected in the town in about 3 years. What progress has been made towards this end?

ANSWER

Due to the fact that no further uranium development is expected as a result of federal government policies, the town of Jabiru would appear to have stabilised for the time being. The original concept of Jabiru was that it would service not only the personnel attached to the Ranger Mine but also the personnel from the Jabiluka Mine when that mine was given the go ahead. The personnel of the Jabiru Town Development Authority were looking forward to renewing their efforts and probably doubling the size of Jabiru. As it stands at the moment, I think it has a population of approximately 1200 people.

Unfortunately, with the change of government, the future of uranium mining is at the best uncertain. The considered view of this government is that there is unlikely to be any development of uranium mines over the next couple of years, at least in the Northern Territory. For some reason or other, the federal government policy provides that existing mines may continue - although there is some reference to even those being wound down - and that Roxby Downs, which is only in the exploration stage, apparently has the go ahead in some sort of exception to the general policy. It seems extraordinary that a mine in South Australia can be given the go ahead but mines in the Northern Territory cannot. That seems to make a nonsense of the policy and to be extremely discriminatory against the Northern Territory, especially in terms of the companies that hold the leases at present getting on to the market and securing contracts. No doubt, if Roxby Downs is able to market its product, it will probably make it harder for Jabiluka and Koongarra to market their product in due course because one of the first acts taken by the present federal government was to withdraw the approval that Jabiluka and Pancontinental had to be in the marketplace attempting to secure contracts.

All this has bedevilled the future of Jabiru. It is true that I said to the people of Jabiru last year that, as far as I was concerned, they could have local government immediately, provided they were prepared to accept a couple of basic premises. One was that they would have to pay rates if they were to have local government. The other was that there were certain complex negotiations going on between the government and the Ranger company at that time that would have had to continue with Jabiluka. At that time, Jabiluka had its go ahead. It was out in the marketplace and everything looked as though the wind was fair to France.

Mr Speaker, the position has quite changed. We are now winding down the Jabiru Town Development Authority. This is causing a great deal of heartburn to me personally and even more to the people in the Jabiru Town Development Aurthority because we have either to find other spots for them in the government or declare them to be redundant. I have instructed the Co-ordinator-General, who is responsible to me for the Jabiru Town Development Authority, to do his utmost to try to find alternative employment for the personnel of the Jabiru Town Development Authority.

Subject to a Cabinet submission, we are proposing to devolve responsibility for local government functions, with the consent of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council, on that council, with the request that it has them undertaken on an agency basis by the authorities that are presently carrying them out: Transport and Works etc. As I understand it, we have not yet put this plan in detail to the Jabiru Town Advisory Council. It has not been to Cabinet. It has had its genesis in the Chief Minister's Department and the Jabiru Town Development Authority. We hope it will be acceptable to all the parties. I hope that no one is upset by the information I have disclosed in trying to answer this question as frankly as possible.

We believe that is certainly the next step on the road to local government for the people of Jabiru, if they want it. We can only find that out when we talk to their representatives about it. Of course, the final step to local government will be a difficult one for Jabiru because no one out there owns his house. The land-holding situation is, to say the least, a most complex one. There is a lease from the Aboriginal people through the Northern Land Council to the Director of the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service. As I understand it, he subleases the area of the town of Jabiru to the Jabiru Town Development Authority. Leases which could be issued by the Jabiru Town Development Authority, with the approval of the 2 previous parties who have better title, would obviously only be for a term. I forget what is the term of the headlease from the NLC to the Commonwealth. The worth of these titles will be very hard to determine. As well as that, in any event, Ranger will want to hang on to its houses for its changing personnel. It is doubtful whether it will want to sell.

Therefore, introducing a rating system in Jabiru will be, when it is finally accomplished, one of the wonders of the western world. But, I do not believe that one can really have true local government unless there is some responsibility on the local people. They will have their representation but it has always been part of having representation that there is some taxation to make it responsible representation. It is a very complex question which is being addressed. We see an intermediate step happening in the relatively near future. The final evolution to local government will need to be accompanied by a great deal of consultation.

Cost of Self-government Celebrations

Mr DOOLAN to CHIEF MINISTER

Will he make public the total cost of the self-government celebrations as he promised to do on the local talk-back radio program?

ANSWER

I have a statement of expenditure here in relation to the self-government celebrations. The self-government celebrations were throughout the Northern Territory and extended to places like Bathurst Island and other remote areas. The sub-total is here. I will table this document: Government Printing Office - $49 917; entertainment - $71 179; media information campaign - $45 778; community gifts - $45 369; fireworks - $20 142; celebrations in Territory centres - $18 871; contract co-ordination fees - $17 839; freight charges - $7753; photography and video hire - $7785; casual employment - $2731; miscellaneous - $8468. The total is $295 832.

Vanderlin Drive and McMillans Road Intersection

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

This question relates to my previous one concerning the intersection of Vanderlin Drive and McMillans Road. Isn't it a fact that last week the minister made a statement to the press announcing that a traffic island would be constructed at this intersection and, that being the case, why in answer to my previous question did he refer me to the budget of next week?

ANSWER

The honourable member is perfectly correct. I did make a mistake; I think my hearing must need a bit of attention. I thank her very much.

Coastal Management Policy

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS

Does the government still intend to release a coastal management policy as promised by the then Minister for Lands some 15 months ago?

ANSWER

Certainly, the government will develop a coastal management policy. I understand that we have already approved a Darwin foreshores management policy. The development of a coastal management policy will take considerably longer and is being developed between the Conservation Commission and the Department of Lands.

Public Service Staff

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he confirm the government policy with respect to employment in the Northern Territory Public Service as enunciated by him in his radio talk of 29 November 1981 - that there will be no redundancies and that natural wastage will be the only method used in reducing staff numbers where necessary? I refer the Chief Minister specifically to employment in NTEC.

ANSWER

The first thing to be aware of when the Leader of the Opposition raises the subject of employment at NTEC is that, to the best of my knowledge, NTEC is outside the Northern Territory Public Service. There are certain arrangements in relation to NTEC which exist between the Territory and the Commonwealth whereby, immediately after self-government, a consultant was appointed to study the staffing arrangements of NTEC. I must say that I found this to be a rather hypocritical exercise but the Territory had little option but to come to the party on it because NTEC and electricity consumers in the Northern Territory are totally dependent on the Commonwealth subsidy which amounts to approximately 50% or more of NTEC's operating funds. The Commonwealth required that a consultant be appointed to study the staffing arrangements at NTEC. Of course, NTEC was an amalgamation of the old sections of the Department of Northern Territory that dealt with the clerical and billing side of the electricity supply undertaking and those elements of the previous Department of Construction that dealt with the actual generation of electricity, maintenance and repairs etc. These 2 areas were welded together into NTEC. The Commonwealth, which had employed all these people, then required that a consultant be appointed from the Victorian State Electricity Commission to study whether the staffing was too high.

After 9 months, the consultant submitted a report which we proceeded to argue with the Commonwealth about for approximately 3 years. Finally, in the course of the negotiations for the ongoing subsidy, we were forced to concede. I do not have the figures off the top of my head. If the Leader of the Opposition wanted a precise and detailed reply, he should have given me a bit of notice. There were about 900 to 1000 employees of NTEC and the consultant said there should only be 750. We were eventually forced to concede that we would have to reduce the staffing of NTEC to about 850 plus 50 or 60 apprentices.

I guess one could say that the Commonwealth finally met us halfway between what the consultant recommended and the number of people that it had hired in the first place. It is true to say that, in the meantime since its inception, NTEC had hired a very large number of apprentices. Since that time, because of the very overt supervision by the Commonwealth of NTEC's finances, it has been necessary for us to waste staffing at NTEC to bring them down to the required number. We cannot have any more staff at NTEC than the Commonwealth is prepared to fund. I can assure you that the present Minister for Resources and Energy seems to adhere very strongly to the arrangements that were made previously. In my discussions with him in April and May this year, he considered the arrangements made for NTEC were extravagant, lavish and a luxury. Although he has now caused the federal government to adhere to the previous agreement, we have to get the staffing numbers down otherwise the Northern Territory electricity consumer has to foot the bill.

As far as I know, NTEC is attempting to waste the staff. I am not aware that NTEC has embarked on any policy of creating redundancies. I hope that that is the case. If NTEC is not to receive further criticism for increases in tariffs then, obviously, to meet the Commonwealth subsidy obligations, it has to waste its staff down to the requisite number prescribed in the agreement between the Commonwealth and the Territory.

Undoolya Road Connector

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

When will work start on the connector road from the Undoolya Road to the Todd River bridge?

ANSWER

The contract for this work was awarded only last week. McMahons was the successful contractor and the total value of the work is $800 000. The work is due for completion in February next year.

Training of Motorcyclists

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he under consideration a proposal to legislate for compulsory training for motorcycle riders prior to the issue of a licence?

ANSWER

I am unable to state that this proposal is under consideration. Much of our legislation in respect of land transport is under review and it may be that, in the review process, that matter is being considered.

Heavitree Gap Causeway

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

What is the present position with regard to the reconstruction of the Heavitree Gap causeway south of Alice Springs?

ANSWER

Other members have made representations to the government in respect of this causeway. The causeway was damaged during the March floods which caused extensive damage in and around Alice Springs. I am pleased to be able to advise that design for permanent reinstatement of the existing causeway at Heavitree Gap has been completed and tenders for the first stage of the work will be called today. All work is expected to be finished by the end of October. As a result of approaches made by the Alice Springs members, the government accepts that there is a need for the provision of a much better crossing of the Todd River south of Heavitree Gap and this proposal is the subject of feasibility study.

Tindal Air Base

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he confirm that $1.7m has been allowed for in the federal budget for preliminary planning for Tindal air base in Katherine and that it is a budget list C item - that is, a budget allocation for preliminary planning and EIS work without necessarily a policy decision on construction?

ANSWER

We heard with interest the remarks made in the media by the Leader of the Opposition. We rang Mr Scholes' office this morning and he has checked with Mr Hurford. He has received confirmation that the $1.7m is for detailed preliminary design work. That is the information we received from the minister. The amount does not show up readily in the budget and he doubts if we could find it even if we looked for it. Those are the words from the personal staff of the minister, Mr Scholes.

Mr B.Collins: You could have me.

Mr SPEAKER: Order, order!

Mr STEELE: You might have that available to you but we do not.

Mr B. Collins: I do.

Mr STEELE: The project is now at design list C status, meaning it is not yet in the budgetary process. He was not prepared to comment on whether it would go into the budgetary process, saying only that the Commonwealth would not spend $1.7m lightly.

Assessment of Student Performance Program

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In the July 1983 edition of the Northern Territory Education Bulletin, there appeared an article on the program for the assessment of student performance in the Northern Territory schools. Can he explain why the element of secrecy in regard to the results of this assessment is necessary, especially in relation to parents who, according to this article, are to be informed of the results only after the regional council of principals, COGSO, the Teachers Federation and school councils?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, there is no element of secrecy at all in regard to the release of the results of student assessments. It is more a matter of interpretation of how the system works. The purpose of assessment in schools is so that people may be aware of relative performances and action can be taken to keep everybody up to the barrier. The aim of the system is to ensure wide dissemination and understanding of the results and that is particularly important. It is very easy for lay people to draw unreasonable conclusions from results if they cannot interpret them properly.

There are 2 distinct kinds of reporting in relation to the results of student assessment. The first is the report to individual parents who will be interested mainly in the results of their own children. This kind of reporting already exists in schools in the form of school progress reports and parent-teacher interviews. In the Northern Territory assessment program for Years 5 and 7, which is the particular point the honourable member refers to, the children will be continually assessed for competency in the core skills in English and Mathematics. Apart from school progress reports and parent teacher interviews, parents can find out how their children have performed at any time from the school.

The second kind of reporting is embodied in the departmental report which is intended to give information on the performance of Territory children from the schools as a whole. The report will focus on areas in which it has not been satisfactory and recommendations for remedial provisions. The departmental report goes first to the working party on student assessment and to the regional councils of principals, COGSO, the Teachers Federation and school councils, so that implications of the report can be fully studied and schools can compare their strengths and weaknesses against the overall Northern Territory results. It is essential that principals and school councils go through this process so that they are able to explain the implications of the report to individual parents. The summary will be made available to the public,and parents, if they wish, may examine the detailed departmental report made available to their school council.

Mr Speaker, I hope that satisfies the honourable member that indeed we are not running an assessment program and keeping the figures totally in house. However, it will be run carefully so that, hopefully, the wrong construction will not be placed on the results.

Katherine High School

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he advise the Assembly - and I do understand the situation is an extremely sensitive one - of the problem at the Katherine High School? I understand that this problem has caused the resignation of 3 teachers over the last few weeks.

ANSWER

Unfortunately, the Leader of the Opposition was out of the Assembly last night when I touched briefly on this matter. There will be a major meeting in Katherine tonight of the parents and friends organisation of Katherine High School, and a meeting of the school council after that meeting. A departmental officer will be present to assist or be a fly on the wall, whichever is appropriate. I can assure the honourable member that, at my request, the Teaching Service Commissioner spent Friday in Katherine looking into the matter. The secretary of the department spend Monday and, I think, Tuesday in Katherine. He may still be there. I have also been looking into the various aspects of this subject. In fact, I have received phone calls from parents in the area. I would like to leave the matter, if I may, pending the outcome of tonight's meeting. I am taking a personal interest in the situation and hope it can be resolved without people being named, which will not serve any particular purpose.

Palm Leaf Beetle

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

I have always been concerned about the spread of the palm leaf beetle in the Darwin area. With the wet season coming, with its high humidity, can he tell me whether the introduction of the parasite to control the palm leaf beetle has been successful? If not, what is the government doing to make sure that the spread of that particular beetle does not continue?

ANSWER

I can tell the honourable member that our office uses the expressions 'Tom's beetle' and 'Tom's weed': the palm leaf beetle and coffee bush. The honourable member, over the years, has waged a crusade against both these pests. They are very important and serious environmental issues for us to resolve.

The information from the Conservation Commission is as follows. More than 3300 adults of the palm leaf beetle parasite have now been released in the Darwin metropolitan area. The release sites extend from the city to Kahlin, Parap, Fannie Bay, the Narrows, Winnellie, Ludmilla, Nightcliff and Wanguri. Two recent searches for the parasite pupae in sites of early release have not been successful. While this is discouraging, it does not prove that the wasp has failed to survive. In some overseas countries, it has taken up to a year or more after the release of the parasites for their numbers to build up. It is quite possible that our present parasite stock, which has been in captivity for some generations, is weak in some qualities important to its success in the field. A new stock of the same species freshly collected from the field could be sought from entomologists in New Caledonia which has areas of seasonal rainfall similar to Darwin.

I would also make the point that the program has suffered a temporary setback in that our technician who has been working on the parasite program has temporarily left us. We are in the process of filling that position. I would like to assure members that we regard the elimination of the palm leaf beetle as a very high priority. The department and the Conservation Commission will not rest until we have succeeded in eliminating it.

Child Abuse

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What additional staff has been made available to the Department of Community Development to cope with recently introduced legislative requirements for the reporting and investigation of incidents of child abuse?

ANSWER

I cannot answer her question in specific terms. I am aware that the child abuse area within the department is receiving a very high priority. I will obtain for her specific details of people who are working in this area. I will also try to ascertain if there is any need for additional staff and, if so, whether that need has been addressed. The government places a very high priority on the matter of child abuse. The frequency of child abuse in our community is of great concern. If there is any way at all that we can improve matters, the department will be quick to respond.

Regulation of Insurance Brokers

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

Does the government propose to introduce legislation to control the activities of insurance brokers and, if so, when?

ANSWER

I have answered questions on this matter in the Assembly previously. The Northern Territory government was taking a close interest in activities in the states on this matter and we were examining the line that we should take with legislation on the subject of insurance brokers because of considerable concern about the effects of their departure from the commercial scene. We have been advised unofficially that legislation for the registration of insurance brokers and agents has been prepared by the Commonwealth. Whilst there has not been any public announcement, it is possible that legislation could be introduced during the current session of federal parliament. The Northern Territory government believes that the subject is more appropriately handled by national legislation because some of the brokers have Australia-wide organisations. We would be happy to step back from this field if the Commonwealth is going to do something. For the time being, the Territory government has dropped proposals to introduce legislation on the subject.

Construction Safety Act

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Will the Department of Mines and Energy make those provisions of the Construction Safety Act which relate to rigging and scaffolding safety apply to all those sites where these skills are used?

ANSWER

I understand that traditionally there have been separate arrangements made in respect to the operations of Nabalco on the Gove Peninsula. Nonetheless, I am willing to have the matter thoroughly examined. I will advise the honourable member later in the sittings.

Mutitjula Community Adviser at Ayers Rock

Mr BELL to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

I preface my question by referring him to the funding in the federal budget of a community adviser position at Ayers Rock for the Mutitjula community there. Does he accept the necessity for this particular position in the context of the increasingly complex social situation caused by the development of Yulara village and, if he does accept the necessity for that position, why does he not fund it through the Department of Community Development and its Community Government Division for which he is responsible?

ANSWER

The member poses a question that crosses a few areas. It is the prerogative of the Commonwealth to fund positions in the Northern Territory

It does so as often as it wishes in matters that are important to it. I am not aware of what the role of the community adviser would be. Until I have some knowledge of the intended role of that officer, I cannot comment on it or even give an indication as to whether it would be appropriate for our government to offer funding for it. The role of community advisers throughout the Northern Territory is well known to all members of the Assembly. It is quite likely that the nomenclature has been picked up by the Commonwealth and given to an officer in an enclave of the Commonwealth in the Northern Territory who will carry out work that might not have any relationship to the sort of activities that our community advisers perform. If the honourable member would like to leave it with me, I would be quite happy to obtain a report from either the Conservation Commission or the Department of Community Development on what the role of the community adviser is likely to be and whether there has been, in our judgment, a need for the position. If there has been a need, I will ask why the funding was picked up by the Commonwealth rather than ourselves.

Rubbish Dump

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What is the current position with regard to using part of the Darwin rural area for the establishment of a rubbish dump?

ANSWER

Consideration for the establishment of a rubbish dump in the rural area has been taking place at departmental level for some time. I understand that some areas have been selected in terms of their suitability. One of the areas that has been considered is also under the control of the defence forces. At the moment, our departments are discussing with the defence forces the possible release of this area so that it can be used as a rubbish dump. We are very conscious of the need for a suitable rubbish dump facility in the rural area. We are working quite intensively to try to overcome the problem.

Accommodation for Handicapped Children

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Will the government continue to support the provision of non-institutional residential care for handicapped children, such as at Bunyip House, or will more handicapped children be accommodated in the future in the nursing home?

ANSWER

Through Somerville Homes, the people at Bunyip House have been advised that the pilot project will continue for another 12 months. At the moment, Dr Makita, who is the Director of Aged and Special Services, is evaluating the need for the types of facilities that will be required in the Northern Territory and not just in the Darwin area. At one stage, there was a proposal that the Chan Park Nursing Home should incorporate a children's facility isolated from the rest of the home. At this time, there is a question mark over the subject of licences through the Commonwealth. That came out in a press release last week which said that it was being held up by the bureaucracy in Adelaide which ignored the Commonwealth interests in the area. It is the government's intention to provide facilities for the handicapped. If we eventually accept facilities similar to those at Bunyip House, I have no doubt that we will continue. The government's intention is to improve existing facilities to cater for special circumstances.

Giles House

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What progress, if any, has been made towards implementing the proposed day program for difficult schoolchildren at the Giles House education centre?

ANSWER

Quite by chance, I had the opportunity to visit Giles House last week and to look at the progress that is being made there. I would like to say that Giles House is a real success story in child remand. It really is going very well. There are some children in the Alice Springs community who, while they are not offenders, could certainly benefit from the sort of educational system that Mrs Daff and her willing workers run at Giles House. To enable Giles House to take these children in, work has been done on an adjoining block of flats to establish an accommodation unit and a schoolroom. The first admissions to this new program were taken early in August. As far as I can see, it can only expand and do well in the community because it is a very excellent program. It is the result of the department's own initiative. The Department of Education, the Department of Community Welfare and people involved in the care of difficult children in Alice Springs should be very proud of it.

Land in Bynoe Harbour Area

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

When will land in the Bynoe Harbour area be released for auction?

ANSWER

I said at the last sittings or the sittings before that it would happen soon. I then realised that I had spoken too soon. I went back to my office and was assailed with briefs from the department to advise me that there is a land claim over this land at Bynoe Harbour: the Kenbi (Cox Peninsula) Land Claim. Of course, that claim is a long way from conclusion. It is wending its way through the different legal tribunals because, as members know, part of the land is in the extended Darwin Planning Area.

Mr Bell: Which is greater than London.

Mr EVERINGHAM: I heard a remark from the honourable member for the wild and woolly wastes opposite. I seem to remember that some Australian states are entirely covered by planning legislation. In fact, I think that New South Wales has planning legislation that covers every part of that state. Obviously, as the Northern Territory grows, whether the honourable member for MacDonnell likes it or not, planning legislation will have to cover areas outside the major cities. It is indicative of what is happening that the honourable member for Nightcliff, who represents people in the Darwin area, obviously asked on behalf of her constituents who are concerned because they want to get a holiday block of land at Bynoe Harbour where they have had shacks for years. That is uncontrolled development on Crown land. Is there any better illustration of why the government extended the planning area of Darwin than the reasons behind the question asked by the honourable member for Nightcliff.

To revert to the question, obviously nothing can be done until the land claim is resolved. As I recall it - and this was some months ago - I requested the Department of Lands to proceed with survey work so that the land could be subdivided or offered for sale as soon as possible after the land claim is resolved, assuming that the land claim over the area is unsuccessful. That is not an assumption that I would make a book on.

Imported Fuel Levy

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Did he become aware yesterday of a levy of 9¢ a litre on imported fuel oil imposed in Tuesday's budget? What will the government do about it and what effect could this have on the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I became aware yesterday morning of a provision in the Commonwealth budget which would impose a 9.02¢ per litre levy on fuel oil used at Stokes Hill power-station. At that stage, I disbelieved it; I could not accept that such an impost would be levied by the Commonwealth government and that is why I was very cautious in my answer yesterday to a question from the Leader of the Opposition. Subsequently, we have had the matter very accurately checked out. At this stage, that levy would apply. Once I had confirmation of that, I alerted the Chief Minister who has been in personal contact with the Minister for Energy and Resources. He has also been in contact with the Prime Minister's office. As a result, I understand a number of interdepartmental committee meetings were held in Canberra yesterday but, as of this morning, there is no resolution of the problem. The Chief Minister's proposal, of course, was to obtain exemptions from that totally crippling tax. That is the position this morning - the tax still applies. Nonetheless, the Chief Minister and I are doing everything possible, through our various departments and personally, to persuade the federal government that this tax simply cannot be borne by the Northern Territory under any circumstances. The result of the imposition of this tax, in a full financial year, would be a loss to the Northern Territory Electricity Commission by way of payment back to the Commonwealth of $14.9m. The result of that application would be probably an immediate increase of 28.24% in electricity tariffs throughout the Northern Territory. I note the honourable member for Nhulunbuy nodding his head over there. The resultant effect on his area, of course, would be far more catastrophic. It would be something like $30m a year. We are still trying to persuade the Commonwealth that an error has been made and that these sorts of imposts simply cannot be borne by the Northern Territory. There would not be a person on either side of this Assembly or a member of the public who would accept for a moment such an impost. We are still hopeful of a satisfactory resolution.

Mr Speaker, I might just touch briefly also on the effect of the distillate tax increase of 1.5%, and its effect on NTEC. It would result in an expenditure back to the Commonwealth in the initial phase of $553 000 in a full year. As I said yesterday, we are very happy that the Commonwealth has seen fit to honour previous agreements and we are not ungrateful for that.

Under that rebate system, in respect of distillate, we would have returned to us by the Commonwealth $359 000 so the net loss to NTEC would be in the order of $194 000 in a full year in respect of distillate for its various power plants around the Northern Territory. In respect of petroleum distillate used for the purposes of transport and lubricating oil, NTEC expenditure would be about $250 000 but most of that would come back to us. This one does not cause us a great deal of difficulty as the net cost to the Northern Territory would only be about $50 000.

The $14.9m figure that I have given, or the resulting 28.24% increase in the tariffs, is over a full year. That would apply if we had to pay that impost as of yesterday. The position is that, whereas the budget takes effect as from today, there will be some savings because the excise does not apply for the full financial year. The figures I quoted are for a full financial year. In addition, NTEC does have certain stocks on hand. Obviously, we are not buying fuel oil across the wharf at the moment. We do have considerable stocks in hand so there would be some lead time before the actual impact would occur. I understand that the Leader of the Opposition is also horrified at what his colleagues have apparently done to us. As a result of all of our efforts, we are hoping that sanity will prevail.

Report on Wharf Construction

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has the report by McDonnell, Wagner and Priddell into wharf construction been received and, if so, what does it say?

ANSWER

A report from the consultants has been received. The report is in response to questions framed by the department in consultation with the Port Engineer, taking into account the matters raised by the ALP in this Assembly. That report is under consideration. I propose to send a copy to the Leader of the Opposition in the next few days.

Tennant Creek High School

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he advise what progress is being made on the design and construction of the new Tennant Creek High School?

ANSWER

The government is certainly very much committed to the construction of a high school in Tennant Creek to serve the worthy citizens of that fine town. I do not have specific details of matters such as construction dates etc. If he can possibly wait until about Tuesday of next week and the Northern Territory budget, we hope to be able to give specific times of construction, commencement and completion.

Responsibility for City Parks

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Given the apparent reluctance of Darwin City Council to maintain many of the urban parks, including several in my electorate, have any discussions been initiated with the Conservation Commission with a view to that commission being responsible for both the establishment and maintenance of city parks?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand the frustration that underlies the honourable member's question, which results from endeavours to get the Darwin City Council to meet its obligations in relation to parks and many other things in the community. We are in somewhat of a dilemma because, for the government to take up responsibility for Darwin parks, footpaths, pop-up sprinkler areas and whatever else is not fair and reasonable for the whole of the Northern Territory. Most people would acknowledge that, in many areas in Darwin, the Conservation Commission has helped with the establishment of parks and the installation of equipment and pop-up sprinklers, planting programs, lawns, footpaths etc. However, it takes only a little while before people say : 'Why has it all gone to rack and ruin?' Generally, the answer is that it is because the city council had not placed the priority on it that we would have given. It is fair to say that the Conservation Commission is happy to help people, whether it be the Darwin City Council, departments, the Spastic Centre or whatever, in the establishment and occasional upgrading and improving of beautiful areas such as parks and gardens. But, it is not a reasonable proposition for the government to take over in toto the maintenance of all the parks and gardens in Darwin or any other centre in the Northern Territory. That is what city councils are for and the responsibility should not be taken off their shoulders. We should encourage them to accept their responsibility and do their job properly.

Alice Springs Recreation Lake

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the current position regarding the Alice Springs recreation lake, particularly in relation to the federal government inquiry?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, a couple of weeks ago, the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs, Mr Holding, wrote to me after an interregnum of 2 or 3 months, during which time he was considering the draft terms of reference prepared by the Northern Territory government for the inquiry into the Alice Springs recreation lake. Apparently, he spent that time consulting with various groups and individuals in relation to the terms of reference. They were finally returned to me a couple of weeks ago. It is unfortunate that the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs seems to have 2 standards in relation to consultation. He consults with anyone at all over terms of reference submitted to him by the Northern Territory government and proposes whatever changes those people suggest. But, in relation to a matter that affects the Northern Territory in a most intimate and controversial way - namely, the Aboriginal Land Rights Act - the minister established an inquiry under Mr Justice Toohey and gave that judge terms of reference without so much as one scintilla of consultation with the Northern Territory government over those terms of reference. The NT government is the government most interested because it will be affected much more by it than the Commonwealth government. Yet there was not one word of consultation. To secure any consultation on the terms of reference to Justic Toohey, we have had to make strong representation to Mr Holding. He has refused to alter the terms of reference to Mr Justice Toohey by one iota, but has given us an oral assurance, for what it is worth, that Mr Justice Toohey will entertain the whole of the Northern Territory government's submission to him.

Mr Speaker, that is an illustration of the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs' double standards in relation to consultation. That is something that really irks me about this government that preaches consultation and consensus. Continually, we hear of things arising about the Northern Territory - the business of Kakadu over the last few weeks for example. We sent a telex to the Prime Minister back in June over these proposed liquor regulations for Kakadu. What consultation was there with the Northern Territory? We pointed out our concerns over the introduction of this kind of proposed special law for Commonwealth enclaves and for select groups in the Northern Territory over and above the normal liquor laws, especially in the light of the lengthy consultations that the Northern Territory Liquor Commission has had over licensing in the Kakadu area. I might point out that the Northern Land Council withheld itself from that process of consultation and went running to the Commonwealth in an attempt to have the 'big stick' technique used once again. Of course, the Commonwealth complied willingly and without consultation with the Northern Territory government. I read these regulations in a copy of the Commonwealth Gazette, Mr Speaker. That is consultation and consensus a la the Hawke government. It talks consultation; it talks consensus. It does not practise either. Sooner or later the public of Australia and the media will wake up.

I could produce to this Assembly numerous other telexes that I have sent after learning of things from newspapers. We received these terms of reference a couple of weeks ago. I took them to Cabinet informally to get them through as quickly as possible without submission. I have since responded to the minister in the last few days. One of the suggestions made by the Northern Territory government is that all parties to the inquiry should exchange all relevant information. I hope that that point is accepted by the Commonwealth because we want this to be a frank and open inquiry and not held in any way behind closed doors like the Combe Royal Commission. Let us hope that this inquiry gets under way fairly soon.

Overseas Visitors to NT

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TOURISM

Will he give details of the present and proposed cooperation with the Australian Tourist Commission for the purpose of attracting overseas visitors to the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Obviously, this is a question that should be put on notice. I could reply to it in about 10 or 20 pages of detail. I suggest that, if the honourable member for MacDonnell doubts the good relations the Northern Territory has with the Australian Tourist Commission, he should be aware of the expressions of support that I have received for some of the Northern Territory's proposals vis a vis tourism. I notice that none of these have been accepted by the federal government in the budget. There are no concessions to people who want to build tourist industry infrastructure. None of these proposals that would have helped get the economy moving and help create jobs has been reflected in the federal budget.

What we have seen in the federal budget in relation to tourism is a boosting of the funding to the Australian Tourist Commission from about $15m to about $22.5m. I might say that the Australian Tourist Commission's budget, in national terms, is not significantly greater than the Northern Territory Tourist Commission's budget. Only last week, I approved a visit by a Northern Territory Tourist Commission officer with an Australian tourist mission to South-east Asia and up as far as Hong Kong and even Taiwan or Korea. The Northern Territory is paying $3000 towards the cost of that mission in addition to our officer's fares and other travelling expenses. That is a concrete example of how the Northern Territory works in with the Australian Tourist Commission. I suggest that the member for MacDonnell telephone the Australian Tourist Commission and satisfy himself from them.

First-aid in Schools

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for EDUCATION

By way of explanation, a child of one of my constituents had a nasty accident at school in the playground when there was no teacher available. Has any consideration been given to the teaching of basic first-aid lessons in schools?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would have to seek some advice on that matter. I will answer him later during the sittings.

Design Work for Tindal

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can the Minister advise whether the announced design work for Tindal air base will go to local or interstate firms?

ANSWER

It is not known exactly what the Commonwealth contemplates. We are writing to the ministers concerned with the construction projects that are coming on stream in the Northern Territory: the airport and the preliminary design work being undertaken at Tindal. We will be informing the ministers responsible in the federal sphere that facilities and expertise does exist in the Northern Territory and that much of the work in relation to these contracts could be undertaken in the Northern Territory. I understand that there is a major Housing and Construction Department personnel contingent in Adelaide which will be doing some of this work. We would hope that some of the work can be done by Northern Territory people.

Job-creation Scheme

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Will moneys allocated under the job-creation scheme for road construction be available to the Nhulunbuy corporation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I certainly cannot give an answer on that. I would imagine that moneys that have been allocated to the job-creation program will be generally available to Northern Territory community organisations and perhaps to councils. As to whether the road funds will be available to the Nhulunbuy corporation, I could not say. This job-creation scheme has been established and it has quite a complex system of approvals. All proposals have to go to quite a large committee which considers them and the local federal member has to have some input. The Territory government has some sort of say in it but I am not sure where. Then, I believe, it all goes down to Canberra. I am not sure when these jobs will even start. It certainly will not be able to be operated as swiftly and efficiently as the last scheme.

I might point out that, in its scattergun approach of a month ago, the Commonwealth issued a press release condemning all the states and the Territory for not spending their funds under the previous job-creation scheme. We had spent about 90% of our funds at that time but we were included with the others because their administrative machinery is a lot slower than we get things done. Now, we really have had our style cramped because, the way this will operate, it will take ages to get anything through this vested interest group - which is what it amounts to - of a committee. I only hope that my predictions are untrue but the way this new scheme has been set up is certainly not, to my mind, good administration. It is likely to lead to delays.

Flood Mitigation Model

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Will he undertake to set up the lake flood mitigation model at a suitable spot in Alice Springs and arrange demonstrations for interested people at advertised times?

ANSWER

The model will be displayed in the foyer of the government centre. It will be on show from 12 to 23 September from 12 noon to 2 pm each working day. Advertisements will be placed in the local papers prior to these dates.

Control of Therapy Equipment

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware that something called magneto pulse therapy is being advertised to the public in the Northern Territory? As there are no direct controls over this type of equipment or treatment, when will the minister introduce legislation in this area for the protection of Territorians?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will have the matter investigated and correspond with the honourable member privately.

Funding to Aboriginal Communities

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I preface my question by drawing his attention to the scant town management and public utility funding provided to 2 communities in my electorate: Mt Ebenezer and Kintore. What provision will be made for equitable TMPU funding on these communities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would have to seek advice on Mt Ebenezer. As far as Kintore is concerned, there are discussions going on between ourselves and the federal government at the moment. One of the difficulties that we have with TMPU funding, community government funding and outstation funding is that there needs to be determined between ourselves and the Commonwealth a way of deciding when a community is an outstation and when a community is a community. The funding for both of those is done separately.

The Commonwealth sets up an establishment fund for outstations and we maintain it. At a later stage, it becomes a community with greater services provided: not just basic water and power services but schools, health clinics and a range of other municipal-type services. Kintore is a fine example of a group of people who moved from Papunya and set up at Kintore. I believe that they were funded by the Commonwealth. Even at this stage, our government is providing a level of service but whether it is what the people want and expect is another issue. I also understand that the Commonwealth has undertaken to fund an independent health service for Kintore but that is a matter for the people of Kintore. The matter of the provision of services such as water, power, drainage, airstrip, roads etc will have to be addressed as the days go on. I am looking forward to working closely with the Department of Aboriginal Affairs on this issue because it is closely involved. The Chief Minister has had discussions with the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs on how we should approach these issues. As soon as officers have some papers for us to consider, we will be in a better position to finalise the matter. It is not a simple matter of writing out a cheque. Some very serious issues are involved that need to be considered because the ongoing expenses will be very great.

Alice Springs to Darwin Railway

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

At a recent meeting in Alice Springs, the federal member, John Reeves, suggested that the Alice Springs to Darwin railway could be funded 30% by the NT government and then have the money claimed back through the Grants Commission. Is such a course of action tenable?

ANSWER

If that suggestion was made, it shows a decided ignorance on the part of the honourable member of another place on the operations of the Grants Commission. Unfortunately, the Grants Commission is empowered only to make recommendations to the federal government. The power of the Grants Commission is that its recommendations have so far never been ignored by any federal government. Let us hope that that situation continues, at least from the point of view of the people of the Northern Territory. It can make recommendations only in relation to recurrent expenditure and not in relation to capital expenditure. In any event, the Alice Springs to Darwin railway is beyond the scope of the Northern Territory and its constitutional powers. Railways are not amongst those powers that are vested in the Northern Territory government under the Northern Territory (Self-Government) Act of 1978. The suggestion, if it was made by the member for the Northern Territory, is one that might sound good to members of the media but does not bear examination.

Housing for Police and Fire Officers

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HOUSING

What is being done to ensure that public servants such as police officers and fire officers who are required to serve in any part of the Northern Territory are not disadvantaged when they transfer between centres and, as a consequence, have to rent out the houses they are purchasing under the Public Service Home Sales Scheme, thereby moving their interest rates up to the highest rate applicable on the table?

ANSWER

The public servants who are transferred to other Territory centres are given the opportunity, on a short-term basis, of renting their houses out in Darwin.

Mr Everingham: The police get a free house.

Mr DONDAS: That is correct. If a public servant is able to use the system to charge an extravagant rent, then a high interest rate must apply. If a public servant comes to some arrangement with the Housing Commission that he will charge a reasonable rent, that particular application will be assessed on its merits.

Pastoral Leases 785 and 786

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

Are the holders of pastoral leases 785 and 786 - that is, Point Stuart and Carmor Plain - in breach of their covenants? If so, what action has been taken to ensure that the breaches are rectified?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it really does the Leader of the Opposition no great credit to ask questions such as this. In fact, it is rather demeaning to this Assembly that I should be asked a question about 2 specific pastoral leases when there are over 400 pastoral leases extant in the Northern Territory. If I am supposed to carry details of the defaults of these pastoral leases around in my head with me, then I would have to be a remarkable man. If the Leader of the Opposition places the question on notice, I will see that an answer is obtained as soon as possible. If he wants to ask questions of such a specific nature, perhaps he could give me a few hours notice of them.

Stuart Highway through Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

When will a contract be let in Alice Springs for the reconstruction of the Stuart Highway through that township?

ANSWER

Tenders for the contract closed on 12 August. It is the government's intention to award the contract early this week and it is expected that the work will proceed early in September.

Northern Territory Motor-cycle Association

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

Is he considering a request from the Northern Territory Motor-cycle Association for a grant of land to enable it to continue its voluntary driver tuition courses?

ANSWER

On Friday of last week, I received an application from the Northern Territory Motor-cycle Association for a grant of land. Even the honourable member for Nightcliff would appreciate that the weekend has intervened and insufficient time has elapsed for even a department that operates with the efficiency of the Department of Lands to process such an application.

Mereenie Joint Venturers

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What is the outcome of the investigation undertaken by the Department of Mines and Energy into a proposal by the Mereenie joint venturers to bring into production wells in the Pacoota sandstone formation?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will seek some detailed information. I could give a broad answer to that question but I think it would be better if I gave that answer at a later hour.

Cane Toads

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

An item in yesterday's NT News indicated that cane toads were moving into the Territory. What is the Northern Territory government doing to contain the spread of the cane toads into the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have asked the Conservation Commission to provide some information for me. My officers tell me that there is some very comprehensive work being done. I would be happy to provide details to all members later hour.

Dam on Adelaide River

Mr B.COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is the government considering the development of the Warri Dam on the Adelaide River as a future source of water for the city of Darwin?

ANSWER

The government is considering several sites as part of an ongoing investigation into water requirements for the years ahead. I understand that that dam site is being considered with the rest. Of course, the government's main concern is for people to conserve water so that there is less need for capital works of this nature to be brought on urgently.

Doctor for Jabiru

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Why has the position of a doctor for Jabiru not yet been advertised in accordance with the undertaking given by him to a meeting of residents of the town several weeks ago?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Secretary of the Department of Health has made arrangements with the Public Service Commissioner's Office to advertise locally, nationally and internationally. Until the Public Service Commissioner's Office processes the paperwork for advertisements to be placed, they will not appear. In the meantime, the department has made arrangements to provide a doctor at Jabiru, on a temporary basis, who has been recruited locally. Until that particular doctor takes his place on a more permanent basis in Jabiru, the Darwin hospital will maintain a service there.

Regional Office of Department of Housing and Construction

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise whether the federal Minister for Housing and Construction has responded to his request to establish a regional office of the Department of Housing and Construction in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, some months ago, at the request of the Institute of Engineers, the Institute of Architects and the Master Builders Association, I made representations to the Minister for Housing and Construction, Mr Hurford, for the re-establishment in Darwin of a regional office of his department. At the time, these various organisations were extremely concerned that the regional office of the Department of Housing and Construction in Adelaide, which has the oversight of Northern Territory projects, was placing consultancy work for architectural and engineering projects for Northern Territory projects, such as the Darwin Airport and the Tindal air base, with consultants in South Australia, Western Australia and, indeed, Victoria. They believe that the Northern Territory's interests will not be best served whilst the housing and construction operations are oversighted from Adelaide. Presumably, the occupants of the regional office in Adelaide would know best how the consultancy works.

I took this matter up with the Minister for Housing and Construction directly when I met with him in Parliament House, Canberra, some months ago. He said that, if I made a written submission, he would look into the matter. Accordingly, with the assistance of the groups that I have mentioned, we have prepared a written submission which has been sent to the minister. After a couple of months, he responded that he is unable at this stage to re-establish a departmental regional office in Darwin. Nonetheless, we are not taking this lying down. I have again contacted the various groups and asked them to assist me in preparing a response to the minister because I believe that consultants in the Northern Territory, and the Northern Territory construction industry generally, will not be properly and adequately serviced until the regional office of the Department of Housing and Construction is once again re-established in Darwin, and not located in Adelaide basically to suit bureaucrats' convenience.

Racing and Gaming Bill

Ms LAWRIE to TREASURER

My question concerns his circulated amendment to the Racing and Gaming Bill. Has he taken steps to ensure that this proposed amendment has been circulated to licensed bookmakers operating within the Territory?

ANSWER

The particular amendment was proposed to me by the Racing and Gaming Commission and I took steps to have it circulated to honourable members last week. I have not sent it to licensed bookmakers in the Territory. If I had had a bit more time, I would have had it circulated. I can advise the honourable member that, as a result of the circulation of quite a number of copies of the Racing and Gaming Act Bill, there has been only one response from a bookmaker. No clubs or other bookmakers responded. The only other response was from the Federated Clerks Union which certainly supports off-course bookmakers and licensing of clerks.

Motel at Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the winding down or at least the going-nowhere-fast policy forced on Jabiru town development by the non-opening of the uranium mines at Jabiluka and Koongara, is the Northern Territory government still pressing ahead for the building of a motel at Jabiru?

ANSWER

The question of a motel at Jabiru certainly raises the much more important question of tourist accommodation at Kakadu National Park. Over the years, the Northern Territory government has been negotiating with the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service and the federal government, especially the Department of Conservation and Environment, for the establishment of adequate and proper tourist facilities in or adjacent to the Kakadu National Park. Obviously, from the point of view of economics, and in the light of our experience with Yulara, the Northern Territory government favours the establishment of a tourist accommodation complex in or near Jabiru. The reason is that the provision of services to these tourist complexes is one of their most expensive features. The Yulara complex will cost about $150m. A great deal of that money is being taken up in providing electricity, water and other services. Indeed, Telecom has refused to make provision for telephonic communications with Yulara so the Northern Territory government has had to find $5m, I think, to enable Yulara to have telephonic communication with the rest of the world.

Regarding Kakadu, we really are getting into a desperate impasse. Provision has to be made urgently for tourist accommodation in and around Kakadu. We have supported the South Alligator Motor Inn. I forget how much money the NTDC loaned the proprietors of that establishment - probably most of the money that they required to get it off the ground. Indeed, we would welcome the opportunity to lend them more money if they can put a viable proposition to us. But the inn will not solve the problem entirely because it is at one extremity of the park and it is a long drive from there to the features that the tourists want to see. We do not have uranium development, and it is not likely to happen for a couple of years at least. The federal government is going through all sorts of intricate manoeuvres in that area. Frankly, it seems to me that it cannot do anything about uranium mining until it alters its policy at a national conference but I hope, Mr Speaker, that I am wrong. However, I would say that any new uranium development in the Northern Territory is a couple of years away at best. I suppose also that we will have to get around the vested interests that Roxby Downs seems to have established in the ALP hierarchy where, for some reason or other, it has been given the go ahead but approval for Jabiluka to proceed has been withdrawn.

Tourism is becoming vital to the Northern Territory and the establishment of tourist facilities at Kakadu has to happen. It cannot be put off any longer. No longer can we be subject to the whims of the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service which, for so long, has seemed to want to run the park solely for its own benefit without regard to the benefit of anyone in this Territory or, indeed, Australia. I have asked the Prime Minister, and he has agreed,that Northern Territory officials meet urgently with federal officials to try to resolve the problems over Kakadu generally and to get some sort of progress going in that area. We are building hotels here in Darwin. We need them to accommodate tourists. If Jumbo-loads of tourists are to come here, there must be beds to put them in. Then, they have to be taken to places they want to see. What is there for them at Kakadu? At the moment, we have permission from the ANPWS to build a 25-unit motel at Kakadu for people having genuine and bona fide reasons to go there . There is not camping ground at Jabiru. This situation simply cannot continue. We are doing our very best. The previous federal government was no better about Kakadu in this respect but, at least, we had the hope that the Territory's short to medium-term future would be propped up by uranium mining. Now we know that we must have tourism and we must have it quickly. Decisions must be made about Kakadu and tourist accommodation.

Motel at Cooinda

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TOURISM

My question relates to the answer that he has just given. Is he completely unaware that the Gunwinggu Association is already well advanced in the construction of a modern, high-quality tourist accommodation complex at Cooinda in the middle of Kakadu National Park, a project costing several million dollars? In fact, I visited it last weekend. Is he also aware that this is being constructed with absolutely no assistance whatever from the Northern Territory Development Corporation?

ANSWER

I am well aware of the establishment of a relatively medium-sized motel at Cooinda. There has been tourist accommodation at Cooinda now for many years. It is pleasing to see the establishment of this motel. I hope that it will be operated to a high standard which is satisfactory to the national and international visitors whom we are hoping to attract to Kakadu. To my mind, and I have given some thought to this, I believe that the association should attempt to enlist the services of some well-accredited national operator to assist it to run this enterprise, at least in the first 2 or 3 years, to help the complex get off the ground. I wish the association every success. However, I can assure you, Mr Speaker, that the South Alligator Motor Inn and the motel at Cooinda will not cater for anywhere near the number of tourists that we must have coming through Darwin and going to Kakadu to really make the whole thing worth while. I welcome this motel. I would welcome the association building one that was double or treble the size. However, it will not really begin to solve the problem.

Katherine High School Meeting

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I ask this question on behalf of the member for Elsey. Will he be making a statement on the meeting held between parents, teachers and the school council of the Katherine High School with officers of the Department of Education?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have a report from the Department of Education on some problems at Katherine High School. It includes reference to a meeting held last week between parents and teachers at the school. However, it is a very frank report and it would not be appropriate or serve a great deal of benefit for me to read it out or table it in the Assembly. At the meeting, a resolution was passed that the newly-formed school council should immediately investigate such things as student discipline, teacher morale and school-community relationships. The third item is probably the most important of all to be investigated. We will be assisting the school council in that regard and doing whatever else we can. I have asked the Department of Education to mobilise its resources to assist. Within the resources of the Department of Education are many experts on many aspects of education. In addition, the chairman of the school council is in Darwin at present having talks with the Department of Education officials on the next stage of action to resolve the problems at Katherine High School. I will be meeting the chairman at lunchtime today to hear his views and give him mine on the subject. I can assure you, Mr Speaker, that I will keep the honourable member for Elsey informed of progress on this matter. It is one we take very seriously and will address quickly. However, I do not believe it would serve any purpose to go into details or mention names because I just do not think that is the way to solve the problem.

Kings Canyon

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS

I refer to a proposal for an excision from the Tempe Downs head lease for a conservation reserve in the vicinity of Kings Canyon. What stage has been reached in the negotiations with the Tempe Downs Pastoral Company in relation to that excision?

ANSWER

I cannot say that I am as fully au fait with this matter as the Minister of Conservation is but, as far as I am aware, the negotiations are finalised and some sort of provision is being made for the issue of a lease to the Conservation Land Corporation.

Bus Service to Bloodwood Caravan Park

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Why was the bus service up Wallaby Holtze Road to Bloodwood Caravan Park discontinued without any prior notification to possible users?

ANSWER

The bus service was discontinued because only 1 person used it and then only on an irregular basis. The 8 km deviation from the usual route cannot therefore be justified. The honourable member does raise the point about advice going to residents about the discontinuation of the service and in future it is proposed that advice will go out to the local members in the area so that they may inform their constituents.

Working Party on Racing Industry

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

On Monday 22 August, he announced a further study into the structure and funding of the racing industry. Who is to conduct the study and when does he propose to announce the terms of reference?

ANSWER

The working party that is being established to look into the structure and funding of racing in the Northern Territory will be under the chairmanship of a very senior officer from Treasury. Having regard to the fact that most of the funding which goes to racing is taxpayers' money, we see that Treasury should play the principal role in looking at these questions and options. In addition, the Racing and Gaming Commission will be represented by the commissioner, Mr Davis. The Northern Territory Commissioner of Police will have a representative on the working party and there will be 2 members from the racing clubs - one from Darwin and one from Alice Springs - a representative of off-course bookmakers and a consumer representative. The terms of reference which we have been working on in the last few days will be announced hopefully within a few days. We have yet to receive specific nominations from race clubs for persons to be on the working party. The first meeting will determine how it will go about its task. I suspect that, some time during the course of its examinations, at least some if not all members of the working party will have to travel interstate. The government will be making announcements from time to time as the working party progresses with its work.

Working Party on Racing Industry

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Will the report from this working party be confidential or a public document?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, we would envisage that, after the government has assessed the report, there is every likelihood that the document will be released publicly. I am sure the views of many of the members on the working party will be well known even if the report is not released.

Kings Canyon

Mr VALE to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

What stage has been reached on the establishment of a proposed national park in the Kings Canyon area?

ANSWER

I am happy to advise that discussions between the principals of Tempe Downs and the Conservation Commission and the Department of Lands are nearing completion. It is anticipated that we will have a signing ceremony for the relinquishment of the proposed park area at Kings Canyon from Tempe Downs to the Conservation Commission and the creation of a national park over Kings Canyon later in September.

For the benefit of honourable members, I would like to outline the details relating to the area concerned. The Kings Canyon area was first traversed in the early part of this century by teams from South Australia who were crossing the Northern Territory. Recently, reports of that have been delivered to me as extracts from the South Australian archives and it is very interesting reading. The creation of Tempe Downs in the early days was done on the basis of drawing lines on the map and Kings Canyon was included in it. At all times, the management of Tempe Downs have regarded the area as a superb conservation area which should be set aside for the benefit of the public and future generations. Negotiations for acquisition of the area had some troubled times. Earlier this year, we were able to find common ground with the people at Tempe Downs and agree to the acquisition of the area and the sublease of an area on the south side of Kings Canyon which the company can continue to use for grazing cattle. The area will be leased back to it by the Conservation Land Corporation.

Mr Speaker, I would just like to take the opportunity to outline to members what the government sees as the future in the area. Because of its proximity to Ayers Rock and the Yulara development, the development and use of Kings Canyon will increase tremendously in the years to come. Already, we have a problem where there is an incredible amount of use by the public of the area and I would have to be the first to admit that we have very few facilities for the people going there. No rangers are stationed there and, apart from some basic barbeques and rubbish facilities, the area is devoid of any infrastructure that would assist tourists. I do not believe that, with the creation of a park over Kings Canyon, this can be allowed to continue. I have been having discussions with Dr Letts on what we might do.

If we accept the premise that Kings Canyon could have 80 000 or 90 000 people a year going through it - and that is not an unreasonable proposition in 2 or 3 years' time - we very badly need to put some infrastructure in place. The first question that comes to mind is where to put it and the impact it will have on the people already there. Honourable members would be aware that recently a lease was granted by the government to Conway and Lander who wanted to run some cattle, break-in horses and camels and provide general camping facilities for people going to Kings Canyon. Also in the immediate vicinity, the Cotterill family operates Wallara Ranch. They have been there for at least 20 years to my knowledge. I understand that the future development of the Wallara site has a cloud over it because there is some difficulty between the head lessees of the pastoral lease on which the Wallara Ranch is situated and the Cotterills and a solution has been difficult to arrive at. I have had discussions with Conway and Lander and the Cotterills on what could be put in place in the Kings Canyon area to provide motel, camping and other facilities for people who would like to go there. I believe that Kings Canyon, as a tourist destination, is quite unique. It is one that ought to be developed, even in a small way, along the lines that we used to approach the Ayers Rock destination. I believe that, if we are to maintain credibility with our international tourists, we must have good facilities at Kings Canyon. It is likely that we could keep them in the Kings Canyon area for at least a day or two.

Mr Speaker, with the discussions going on at the moment between the government and Conway and Lander and the Cotterills, and the proposal being worked up by the Conservation Commission in conjunction with the Department of Lands, the Northern Territory Development Corporation and the Tourist Commission, the Kings Canyon tourist destination will become equally as famous as Ayers Rock. I would be interested to hear from the members for MacDonnell and Stuart, who have a close relationship with the area and an understanding of it, any views they may have about the future development of the facilities there. However, there is no doubt that something has to happen and, Mr Speaker, it will.

Tempe Downs

Mr BELL to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

This question refers to his previous answer in which he referred to an area of land being offered by way of compensation to Tempe Downs Pty Ltd because of the loss of land due to the excision of the Kings Canyon area. Where is that area of land?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, for the benefit of the honourable member, I would just like to make the point that the block of land on which agreement has been reached on a lease between the Conservation Land Corporation and the lessees of Tempe Downs is not offered by way of compensation but by way of agreement. The area referred to is on the south-west corner and runs along the southern boundary flank of the canyon where the road goes. It goes out to the south west and it comes back and joins the road. It is almost triangular in shape. It is not large; it would possibly accommodate 200 head of cattle in a grazing operation. The control and supervision of the area will be agreed upon between the management of the station and the management group from the Northern Territory Conservation Commission. From discussions between the Tempe Downs people and us, it was agreed that it is an odd piece of land on the corner of the property and that it did not really fit in with the Kings Canyon park per se. Neither is it big enough to justify the separate granting of a lease for pastoral activity. We agreed that the best way of handling it was for the Conservation Commission to assume that area for use as a buffer zone adjoining the park and to lease it back to the company for grazing cattle. There is also the understanding that the agreement can continue so long as the land is not over-grazed or affected in any way that would have an impact on the park.

Rum Jungle Mine Site

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the increase of 300% in funding allocated in the federal budget for the much-needed rehabilitation of the Rum Jungle mine site, which I understand is being done through the Department of Transport and Works, could he advise the progress that is likely to be made on that in the next 12 months? Could he also advise whether, once that site is made safe, attention will be given by the Northern Territory government to its potential for tourism?

ANSWER

It is true that a program has been developed with the Commonwealth for the rehabilitation of the Rum Jungle mine site. I will be happy to provide extensive details for the honourable member. I am not aware of any proposal for tourism development in the region. Obviously, the place does lend itself to some tour operations, possibly in conjunction with the day tours out of Darwin. I will advise the honourable member further on the details of the rehabilitation program.

Safety of Women Drivers

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

He has asked the TIO to investigate reports that women drivers are safer drivers than their male counterparts. Has he had a response from the TIO regarding this and, if so, what is its conclusion?

ANSWER

I have not had any response from the TIO to my request as yet, which was actually directed from me to my colleague, the Treasurer, who has responsibility for the TIO. However, I read a month or two ago in a journal to which I attach some credence that a survey had been carried out. I forget whether it was in the USA or in Australia. It showed that, over a certain period in a certain community, women had a much safer driving record than their male counterparts and that, accordingly, they were being offered preferential treatment by insurance companies. Of course, that is fair. Insurance is like betting: you make a book and you offer odds. The odds in this case indicate obviously that women drivers are a safer bet than men; that is, on the basis that they are involved in fewer accidents. I have asked the TIO to follow this up to see if it can offer a beneficial or preferential package of comprehensive insurance. I assume it would apply to women-owner drivers. Obviously, the package could not apply to vehicles that may be driven by men.

Status of Drilling in Bonaparte Gulf

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Would he give a brief outline of what has transpired to date in regard to drilling in the Bonaparte Gulf?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the recoverable reserves which were estimated in the Puffin area, and I take it that that is the area to which the honourable member alludes, are expected to be in the order of 115 million to 230 million barrels of oil. A number of questions relate to that. One includes the current excise arrangements in relation to oil and it is indisputable that the Commonwealth has the right to impose its resources rent tax. If that is the case, it may have the effect of making that particular oil find more attractive for exploitation than the proposal of the previous government. There is also a concern in relation to further exploration and proving up of the area due to a dispute between Australia and Indonesia as to the seabed economic boundary. That is a further question which needs resolution. Vulcan 1B was completed in August 1982. In that well, no hydrocarbons were discovered. Jabiru 1A is being drilled at present and, I understand, closer in to where oil has been found. A successful result is hoped for there. Up to August last year, 500 km of seismic data was acquired and more is planned this year. Substantial acreage will be available for application and gazettal is now being prepared for further exploration in that area. The estimated reserves of recoverable gas are estimated at 141 billion cubic metres so a very substantial find has been located in that area.

As I indicated last week, NTP28 partners, in the development of the Petrel area, are examining the possibility of an onshore gas facility for Darwin. We are all aware of the enormous cost of that. Naturally, very extensive export markets would need to be found if that were to become viable. We know that huge reserves are being brought into production on the North-west Shelf and this will make the marketing of any Northern Territory gas much more difficult. There are also huge reserves of natural gas available elsewhere throughout the world. It is one of the energy sources in more plentiful supply in the world.

Mr Speaker, I could go on for some time in relation to seismic information and so on. I do not think the honourable member seeks that sort of detail. If he does, I will be more than happy to give him the information. Some 6000 km of seismic data was acquired in 1982 and 1500 km of additional data may be acquired in 1983. That relates to gas and not oil.

Palm Valley Gas for Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

When will Palm Valley gas come into use in the Alice Springs power-station?

ANSWER

Last Friday, I signed the authorisation to commence gas production flow through the pipeline. I am not sure on exactly which day the test runs will be conducted. The official opening of the pipeline will occur at 11.30 am on Friday. Gas will flow officially to the powerhouse from that day, if not a day earlier.

Director of Aged and Special Services

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is it true that the person appointed to the position of Director of Aged and Special Services in the Department of Health earlier this year will leave before the end of this year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the answer is yes.

Stamp Duty on First-home Purchases in Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to TREASURER

When will first-home buyers in the rural area not have to pay stamp duty, a privilege only extended at present to people in urban areas?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the stamp duty exemption for first-home buyers in the Northern Territory applies at present to a residential lot. That is the term used in the legislation. The Commissioner of Taxes has determined that, generally speaking, lots over 2 ha are not residential lots for the purposes of that particular exemption from stamp duty. This has caused considerable concern amongst constituents and potential constituents of the honourable member for Tiwi. However, the Commissioner of Taxes is bound by the legislation and has faced the difficulty that quite a number of semi-commercial activities are conducted where people own areas of 2 ha or more. Many of those lots are used as stables, kennels, workshops and transport depots. Others are used for agricultural produce, be it mango trees or the growing of other crops. Even though, in many cases, we would all accept that there is a very low level of activity from the householder's point of view, nonetheless, if it is of a commercial nature, even for a part of the year, it is outside the present intention of the act to allow exemption from stamp duty for those first-home buyers in the Northern Territory.

I will have to leave further advice on this matter for the honourable member to pick up in the budget to be handed down in the Assembly today. I can say to her, however, that any perceived discrimination between city and rural dwellers will be removed.

Report on Rice-growing Industry in NT

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Has the study undertaken by Dr Baird from the Murrumbidgee Irrigation Authority into the commercial potential of the rice-growing industry in the Northern Territory been completed and, if so,was the report favourable and when will it be available?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have received an interim report on the investigations of the good doctor. I have some small problems with it but I intend to wait for the full report.

Liquor Act Review

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is the operation of the Liquor Act currently under review and, if so, when does he expect to be in receipt of the findings of any such review?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Chairman of the Liquor Commission is conducting a review on the section of the Liquor Act which relates to take-away sales. I hope to provide a Cabinet submission on that review in the very near future.

Status of Salt-water Crocodile

Mr LEO to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Does the government intend to persist with attempts to have the salt-water crocodile's status under the world wildlife listing of endangered species changed?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, we will be seeking to have that crocodile species shifted from schedule 1 to schedule 2. That would be much more acceptable from our point of view. With the current classification, it would be extremely difficult for any products from the commercial crocodile farm operation ever to move onto the market. We do not think that that is terribly helpful. We believe the program that is under way at the moment is geared towards conservation in the most positive sense. The farm is breeding the species as well as hoping to harvest it. Surely, that must be the best balance that nature could ever hope to achieve. I will seek from the Chairman of the Conservation Commission, Dr Letts, a paper on the exact status of our application before the United Nations conference on the matter and provide the honourable member with details at a later date.

Subsidised Taxi Services for Disabled

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for HEALTH

What consideration has the government given to the provision of subsidised taxi services for disabled people?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, that particular proposal is under consideration. The Department of Health is investigating how those services operate elsewhere in Australia. Until such time as that information is provided to me, I am unable to make a decision regarding any implementation of that kind of service in the Darwin area.

Portability of Housing Commission Mortgages

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HOUSING

What progress has been made in relation to a system to allow for the portability of Housing Commission mortgages?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the matter is still under consideration.

Sand-mining Site for Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Has a decision been made on an alternative sand-mining site to the Todd River?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the short answer is no. Much more time is needed to explore the nature of sand deposits in central Australia thoroughly. I understand the anxiety that is inherent in the honourable member's question. It is not possible to continue with building and construction work without a ready supply of the correct type of sand. The only source of that in central Australia is in the creek beds. These are environmentally sensitive locations. They affect tourism as well. We cannot dig them up willy-nilly. That affects trees and has all sorts of undesirable side effects. At the moment, as far as the area of Alice Springs is concerned, the Todd River system up and down stream of the city would seem to be the only reasonable source close to the town. Naturally there are a number of other river systems within a hundred kilometres of Alice Springs which are of exactly the same type, and which have similar types of sand. Regrettably, the further one goes from the town, the greater the cost of transporting the sand to the concrete-making sites and brick manufacturing works. Of course, the consequence is obvious: the price to the consumer and home builder rises. It is not an easy one. We are still exploring the areas around Alice Springs to try to overcome this difficulty. It is not a pressing problem. Obviously, as development continues, we will have to go further afield for sand. Bearing in mind both the cost and environmental issues involved in this exercise, the government certainly is not taking the matter lightly.

Aerial Medical Services

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

When will the government act on the results of the inquiry into aerial medical services in the Northern Territory which demonstrated that the Royal Flying Doctor Service could provide services south of Katherine at considerably cheaper cost than the existing charter operators do?

ANSWER

The question of the Royal Flying Doctor Service operating out of the Katherine region is subject to discussions that I am having with the Department of Health. In fact, I met with the council of the Royal Flying Doctor Service in Alice Springs recently and advised it that, whilst the results of the survey had indicated that there was a need for the Royal Flying Doctor Service in that area, the report also stated that people in the area were being adequately serviced by the charter operator, Tillair. The Royal Flying Doctor Service was asking if there was a possibility of its service being used right throughout the Northern Territory. I advised it that, if it did get into the Katherine region, it would not be able to operate in the Arnhem region for the next 4 or 5 years because of the agreement that we have with the Airlines of Northern Australia through ATI. I am still having a look at the report and the results of that particular survey.

At this moment, I am not disposed to change the current operation in that area because Tillair is providing an adequate service. The aircraft being used are considered to be reasonable. Of course, the honourable member has always advocated that aircraft such as the Nomad should be used. We are using the Nomad in the east Arnhem and northern regions, provided that the medical backup is there. Most of the people in remote areas adjacent to Katherine are in radio contact with the regional health centre in Katherine, as is the case with remote areas adjacent to other Territory centres such as Tennant Creek and Alice Springs. If it really is needed to fly an aircraft to a remote locality, a doctor will be the one who makes the decision whether an aircraft goes. I would remind the honourable member for Fannie Bay that, in the old days, aircraft went out for people who had cut a finger, and that was at taxpayers' expense.

Intersection of Lee Point Road and McMillans Road

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he aware of peak hour traffic conditions at the intersection of Lee Point Road and McMillans Road? For the safety of residents in the northern suburbs, will he initiate an investigation into the feasibility of installing traffic lights at that intersection?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am happy to take the matter on board.

Racing Industry Inquiry

Mr LEO to TREASURER

When will the working party that is presently investigating the racing industry in the Northern Territory be required to submit its report to the minister?

ANSWER

I hope to be in a position to announce the composition of the working party on Friday or Monday. It will not have a specific time limit to submit its report to us because the terms of reference which are being finalised - and I will send a copy to the honourable member - are quite extensive. The working party will indeed have quite a formidable task. It would be unfair of us to impose a time limit at this stage. Certainly, it will be some months.

Tax on Fuel Products

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

In view of a succession of conflicting statements by the federal Treasurer, the Minister for Aviation, the federal member in the House of Representatives, John Reeves, and the Leader of the Opposition, can he inform this Assembly of the impact on the Territory of federal taxes on fuel products as announced in the 1983-84 federal budget?

ANSWER

I thank the member for Port Darwin for his question. We would indeed be forgiven for believing that the fuel imposts on the Northern Territory have been reduced by the federal government. We have often heard pious statements from the Leader of the Opposition in relation to the issuing to the public of totally misleading statements by this side of the Assembly. Mr Speaker, I am about to demonstrate that the man is a hypocrite.

As the NT News pointed out in its editorial of 30 August, there was a press release by Mr John Reeves: 'Federal government slashes fuel oil, heating oil, power and lighting kerosene excise by 80%'. That was from the federal member for the Northern Territory. Let us look closer to home, at the Leader of the Opposition himself. On 8DN news on 30 August, the same day, what did the Leader of the Opposition say about this vital issue for the Northern Territory? He said: 'Whichever way we look at it, the federal budget for the Territory has done exceedingly well...I am pleased that the federal government has responded so quickly and decisively to the new representations that were made to it'.

Mr Speaker, let us look at the realities of this decisive action. For the Northern Territory, the truth of this so-called decisive action will be utterly disastrous. This federal budget has been a budget of pure taxation by stealth. It has taken until last night for officers of my department, working with information from the Commonwealth's own figures for the projected fuel use for this financial year and ensuing financial years, to really decipher just what this means for every member here and every citizen of the Northern Territory whom we represent. The 1983-84 Commonwealth budget adversely affects petroleum product prices in the Territory by: increasing duty on motor spirit, distillate, avgas and avtur; the introduction of duty on kerosene, fuel oil and heating oil; indexing the above duties and movements to the consumer price index, with a first indexation increase effective on budget night, 23 August 1983; and changing the Petroleum Products Rate Subsidy Scheme so that the subsidy is payable only to the nearest retail outlet or port of loading - that is, in the case of fishing vessels. With the 26 August revision of fuel oil duty to 1.872¢ per litre, it is estimated that the direct effect of these budget measures will be to increase Territory fuel bills by about $18m in 1983-84 and in excess of $23m in 1984-85. The indirect effects of the increased fuel costs will flow on to all sectors of the Territory economy, raising the cost of living and industry cost structure.

Mr Speaker, in respect to aviation, the additional costs due to changes in duty arrangements will cost the Northern Territory's aviation industry $0.5m. In the pastoral area, in the straight additional cost due to changes in duty arrangements, it will cost the pastoral industry $0.2m. To that can be added an additional cost of $0.2m due to the changes in the Petroleum Products Freight Subsidy Scheme, making an impost of $0.4m on the pastoral industry in a financial year. The fishing industry, as a result of the increase in costs, charges and duty arrangements, will face additional costs of up to $1m. In addition, the same arrangements which are now being put in place for the Petroleum Products Freight Subsidy Scheme will cost that industry an additional $1.1m, bringing the impost grabbed by the Commonwealth government from Territory fishing operations to $2.1m.

In respect to the effects of duty arrangements on electricity generation in the Northern Territory, we have addressed ourselves only to the question of fuel oil for the Darwin power-station. Let us look at the impost to the Northern Territory. The total revenue collected by the Commonwealth as a result of these duty arrangements will be $4.1m, of which $3.6m will be in respect of the Stokes Hill power-station. Mr Speaker, I announced previously that, as a result of the revised figures, we expect the increase in levies in respect of the Stokes Hill power-station to be in the order of 6% to 7%. At that stage, we did not realise the impact of these arrangements across the whole spectrum of fuel supplies in electricity generation. Clearly, it will be more than that.

In respect of government operations involving energy use in motor vehicles, the additional cost to the NT government, in the first category - that is, duty-arrangements will be $0.4m. The mining industry is a vital industry to the Northern Territory as is tourism which seems to have been overlooked completely in respect of the exemption for diesel. Certain areas were included in that but certainly not tourism. The impost on mining will be $7.7m in a financial year. That will go by direct payment to the Commonwealth. That will simply wipe out the jobs. With respect to road transport throughout the Northern Territory, the impost will be $0.4m. The ordinary motorist in the Northern Territory has been sent a bill by the Commonwealth government, through this marvellous decisive action of slashing costs, of a mere $2.3m.

Mr Speaker, the total additional costs as a result of duty arrangements for the Northern Territory is $16.6m. The additional cost due to changes in the Petroleum Products Freight Subsidy Scheme is $1.3m, bringing the total this year to $17.9m. As I have already indicated, in a full financial year, it will be $23m.

Housing Loans

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HOUSING

I preface my question by referring him to the fact that expenditure on new loans to borrowers in 1982-83 by the Northern Territory Housing Commission was $38.996m and that this sum provided 966 loans. Is it a fact that, for the 1983-84 financial year, the appropriation is only $34.15m which will allow for only 850 new loans?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will obtain that information and provide it to the member during this sittings.

Legislation on Large-animal Pounds

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

When will legislation governing large-animal pounds be implemented?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Tiwi has been pressing for some time to have the stray animal problem in her electorate resolved to her satisfaction and the satisfaction of her constituents. I am happy to advise her that the new legislation will come into effect on 1 December. The department will be calling for tenders for people to be involved in the collection and holding of stray animals.

Deferred Finance Arrangements

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

My question concerns the deferred finance arrangements mentioned in yesterday's budget. Has he any evidence of the interest of prime contractors in participating in this type of financing arrangement in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

The answer is yes. Advertisements will appear from today onwards in the press in the Northern Territory seeking interested people to come forward and obtain more details from the government so that negotiations can commence. I understand that 2 major parties in this field have expressed interest in obtaining details immediately. That is encouraging. The scheme was originally proposed at the National Economic Summit Conference by the Australian Federation of Construction Contractors, a very substantial organisation in Australia. Therefore, the program was not just plucked out of the air by the Northern Territory government. The concept was considered in great detail by the Australian Federation of Construction Contractors which went to a great deal of trouble to put its case together for the summit.

The Northern Territory government feels that the adoption of this innovation - probably before any other government in Australia - will prove very beneficial to the Northern Territory. It will give the government the ability to bring forward works which are not programmed to commence for 2 or 3 years. It has particular application for times when there is a lack of work available, and a surplus capacity in the construction industry or when prices are more attractive than they will be at a later time. Additional benefits flow from having capital works projects constructed ahead of time. New jobs are created and economic activity is stimulated by increased payroll taxes, salary payments and spin-off commercial activity. It also gives the community the opportunity to benefit from projects before the original programmed completion dates. For example, the upgrading of the Pine Creek to Jabiru road will be able to be brought forward some years ahead of normal programming. That road will be of enormous benefit to the Territory. It will cost about $24m over a 4-year period and will be part of a bitumen triangle in the north of the Territory. During the wet season, people will not have to backtrack down the Stuart Highway when they go directly to Kakadu. They will be able to drive to Pine Creek, then to Kakadu, then to Darwin and back down the Stuart Highway or vice versa. The more I think about that particular road and the access that it will give to some of the very attractive areas in the southern Kakadu area, the more excited I become about the benefits to the Territory of sealing it. That is an example of the very many benefits that will come from this scheme - which will be carefully managed by the government - to bring forward capital works projects by using private finance. Obviously, the government will have to monitor the extent to which this new scheme is adopted so that it does not get out of hand. We will certainly be doing that, I believe that it will be to the benefit of us all in the long term.

Coffee Bush

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Lately, there has been a tremendous amount of work done around the city in removing, to use the minister's own words, Tom's weed - coffee bush. What follow-up work is proposed for the areas that have been cleared and are the areas where the cuttings and seeds of the coffee bush being dumped being treated to ensure establishment of the bush does not occur in these areas?

ANSWER

I must say that I was expecting the question on Tom's weed last week because he pursues the matter with great vigour. His distaste for the proliferation of this bush in Darwin is known to us all. The work of the Conservation Commission around Darwin in trying to eliminate the coffee bush is well known. There is a fair amount of activity going on at the moment in McMinn Street, the cliff area of the Esplanade, the Frances Bay area and around the cliffs near the casino. The preliminary program is to clear away the bush, put down weed killer or whatever it is that they put on coffee bush, leave it for one season and then come back and repeat the process. Hopefully, at the end of the second wet season, there will be no sign of shoots. If there are, the Conservation Commission will treat it again with the weed killer. A great deal of effort is being made to get rid of it. It is an unsightly bush which does not enhance the beauty of this city. As far as the destruction and disposal of the bushes are concerned, I cannot answer that for the honourable member but I will let him know when I find out. I would imagine it would be done in such a way that the bush could not start in a new area.

Civil Lists of Supreme Court

Ms LAWRIE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Is he aware that the extended waiting time for hearing the civil lists of the Supreme Court of the Northern Territory is causing a great amount of distress? If so, has he taken steps to see if we can obtain a visiting judge to help alleviate the delay?

ANSWER

While it is never a satisfying thing to say that we are better off than most, nonetheless, it is the truth. The honourable member would expect all members before all courts to be dealt with expeditiously. We all have that as an objective. The government has seen fit to appoint, for a period of a further 2 years, a fifth judge to the Supreme Court. In addition, we have 7 magistrates. That imposes a very significant impost on the Territory taxpayer. We may have to review the magisterial strength in the near future. The idea of a special or visiting judge is one that, no doubt, is well in the mind of the department and the Solicitor-General in particular. I have not received an approach to that effect from the Chief Justice. He has not communicated to me the view that that is necessary. If the Chief Justice were to do so, obviously we would consider the matter in consultation with him.

Deferred Finance Arrangements

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

With reference to the deferred finance arrangements introduced in yesterday's budget, has the government established a suitable administrative apparatus to decide the total deferred liabilities that it is prepared to incur this financial year?

ANSWER

The setting up of such arrangements would prove no trouble whatsoever to the Department of Treasury which has very extensive resources and very extensive expertise. Over the several years of my responsibility for that area of government, I have been very pleased with the level of advice and service received from the department. I could not have asked for more. My portfolios have changed over a period of time but that is one area which has not changed and it has never given me a great deal of heartburn. There are not very many ministers who could say that over a period of several years. I can assure the honourable member that, as far as setting up administrative arrangements to ensure that the government can monitor closely such things as contingent liability in the government accounting system is concerned, it is merely a matter of the right people recording the necessary transactions, liabilities and agreements. This is done all the time. Contingent liability raises its head every time the government enters into a guarantee which it does many times in encouraging investment in the Territory, particularly through the NTDC. I do not see that there could possibly be a problem.

Power Reticulation in the Rural Area

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

In view of increasing demands in the rural area for reticulated power to old subdivisions, has NTEC any plans to expedite this reticulation?

ANSWER

The honourable member would be aware of the difficulties which are being experienced in the rural reticulation scheme, not least of which is the low number of people in any given area who wish to participate. The subsidy arrangement is $2000 per potential subscriber to the electricity grid. It is necessary for people in rural areas to get together to make up their minds if they want to participate in the scheme. Clearly, there are difficulties in the administration of the present scheme. I am currently looking at proposals to take to Cabinet to undertake a re-examination of the entire scheme. I do not believe that the ordinary consumer and the taxpayer can be expected to contribute a greater subsidy to rural areas than it is currently doing. While some assistance to such areas is certainly justified, there is a limit to the extent the rest of the community should support such a scheme. Bearing that in mind, it is not an easy problem to tackle. The reticulation of electricity to these areas is extremely expensive and the utilisation is generally reasonably low. Most of these places use electricity purely for domestic purposes rather than commercial purposes. The utilisation rate on the average block is about the same as that in a northern suburbs home. Nonetheless, we are conscious of the fact that all of the people in the rural area are taxpayers and citizens of the Northern Territory and are entitled to services as soon as they can be made available to them. The matter is under review. It will not be easy.

Operational Subsidy for Bus Service

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In the budget yesterday, the operational subsidy for the bus service was reduced by $50 000. Where does he expect savings in the operation of the service to be made?

ANSWER

It is only a small reduction. I would have to go back through the papers provided by the department to give full consideration to his question.

Aboriginal Witnesses from Remote Communities

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware of the plight of members of isolated Aboriginal communities in central Australia who are transported to Alice Springs for court proceedings but are not returned to their home communities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think it is probably the Attorney-General's responsibility to return these people to their communities. Certainly, it is not the responsibility of the police. It may be the misconceived opinion of the honourable member for MacDonnell that, because police serve subpoenas on various witnesses on behalf of the court, the police should bear the reponsibility for transportation to and from the courts. Anywhere else in this country, the witnesses have to look after their own transportation. I hasten to disclaim, on behalf of the Police Force, any responsibility on its part. I think it could be a responsibility of the Attorney-General or possibly the Minister for Community Development. Elsewhere, these people would be given subpoenas and expected to find their own way there and back.

Aboriginal Witnesses from Remote Communities

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware of the plight of members of isolated Aboriginal communities in central Australia who are transported to Alice Springs for court proceedings but are not returned to their home communities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I ask that the matter be referred to the Attorney-General.

Aboriginal Witnesses from Remote Communities

Mr BELL to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Is he aware of the plight of members of isolated Aboriginal communities in central Australia who are transported to Alice Springs for court proceedings but are not returned to their home communities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is a shame that we on this side of the Assembly, unlike the other side, do not read from notes everything we say in this Assembly. If we did, I would simply ask the Chief Minister for what he said and read it out again. The taxpayer spends a tremendous amount of money on the transportation of both witnesses and people who are to be prosecuted and, indeed, prosecuted successfully, back to their home communities. I know that there are times when the sheer logistics make it virtually impossible. It is all very fine for the honourable member opposite to point out what he perceives as being the plight of these people but, as I understand it, in many cases, these people leave the precincts of the court without informing any of the court staff where they are going. They inevitably end up in the pub or in a park or visiting relatives and friends. Two days later, they come back and wonder why we have not done anything about getting them back to a very remote and distant community. The court staff cannot assist people with travel arrangements, nor can the police, and nor can officers of the Department of Community Development if people do not come to them and seek help. That is usually the scenario which gives rise to the difficulties alleged by the honourable member opposite.

Sales Tax on Tubular Steel Products

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

Will he make representation to the federal government protesting about the new 20% sales tax on tubular steel products?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as has been mentioned earlier, some of the effects of decisions made in the federal government budget are really only now coming to light as people wade through more and more detail. One which has a particular bearing on the Northern Territory is the list of products which have now become subject to sales tax. One of these is tubular steel products which are not used for drainage, water supply or sewerage services. At first glance, it may seem that there are not many other uses and such a tax would not have a widespread effect. What it has picked up is a product which is very commonly used in the construction industry in the Territory: a product called RHS or rectangular hollow section steel. Particularly in Darwin where we have to build to cyclone codes, there is a great deal more steel used in buildings than there is in most other parts of Australia. One of the very common uses of steel in house construction is RHS and SHS which is square hollow section. These items are tubular steel that are not used for drainage, water supply or sewerage and therefore they come under the 20% sales tax bracket. This will certainly have a significant effect on building in the Territory. I understand that 100 t of RHS was used in the construction of the casino. For projects like that, it will be necessary for engineers to specify alternative products.

The simple answer to the honourable member's question is yes. I will be writing to the federal Treasurer pointing out what I see as an anomaly and will demonstrate the effect of the imposition of this new sales tax on the building and other industries in the Northern Territory. It is the sort of thing which probably was not foreseen when the original documents and regulations were drawn up by the federal government. However, it is becoming clear now exactly what the federal government budget will mean to us.

Racing Industry Inquiry

Mr LEO to TREASURER

Will he consider allowing representation by owners and trainers on the working party inquiring into the NT racing industry, given their fairly obvious interest?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government believes that any further extension of the working party beyond its current composition would be undesirable. There is a whole range of people with direct financial interests in the racing industry. That is one of the arguments that the racing clubs have always put forward in presenting their case of how valuable they are to the economy of the Northern Territory. Certainly, they have a value; it is a matter of determining how extensive it is. The interests of trainers, owners, veterinarians etc will be represented by the racing clubs themselves. That is the peak of the pyramid of the racing industry in the Northern Territory. All these people can put their case to the racing clubs and, no doubt, have done so. The effect of racing is always raised at meetings between myself and the racing clubs. It is a very extensive effect. It flows right through the community. I do not see any particular point in making the committee even bigger to represent every sectional interest group because it will become so large that it will not really do any work.

It will spend all its time arguing.

Deferred Finance Arrangements

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Is it known whether the government will be required to give any guarantees or indemnities to contractors and, if so, what is the likely nature of these guarantees or indemnities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is quite clear that the government will have to guarantee that it will pay for what it gets. That is not uncommon and is not limited to these particular arrangements. Final details have yet to be worked out. We are calling for expressions of interest with a view to talking to contractors and finance organisations on arrangements suitable to them and the government. That will cover everything from the term of such arrangements, interest payments involved and securities necessary to be provided by government to ensure that the persons entering into such arrangements are suitably protected. We would hardly proceed unless that were the case. Honourable members should bear in mind that these arrangements, by and large, will be for the construction of government assets on government land. It is not the normal situation whereby the financier has the ability simply to sell the lot and recoup debts if the government does not pay. Obviously, special arrangements will have to be organised to protect the security of the parties involved for it to succeed at all. I cannot provide further details on that but I am sure that these matters will not present any problems to willing partners.

Upgrading of Alice Springs Airport

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware of the statement made yesterday by the federal member, Mr Reeves, that the Northern Territory's refusal to participate in the local ownership plan for the Alice Springs airport was delaying its upgrading?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was not aware of that statement by the federal member but the member for Stuart kindly brought it to my notice by sending me a bit of paper a couple of minutes ago. It is the first notification that I have had that the Northern Territory is expected to participate in the local ownership plan for the Alice Springs airport. To the best of my knowledge, any proposals being made by the Commonwealth government in respect of local ownership of the Alice Springs airport were made to the Alice Springs Town Council. The Northern Territory government has made its attitude very clear for the past 18 months or so. During the time that the previous government attempted to foist this local ownership plan on the town of Alice Springs, and since the advent of the current government, our attitude has been that Alice Springs airport is, without doubt, an airport of national significance and consequence. There is no way that the people of Alice Springs or the taxpayers of the Northern Territory should have to bear any responsibility for it. When the present federal member was an alderman on the Alice Springs council, he was vociferous in putting similar views. One of the 20 or so promises that he gave to Territorians as the basis on which they should elect him - and about 19 of which are now broken - was that the Alice Springs airport would be upgraded by the Commonwealth. Of course, since then, his views have been modified. He has been to Canberra and put through the indoctrination process. It is a great shame that, so often when upstanding people are elected to represent the Northern Territory and go off to Canberra, they are brain-washed by the people down there.

Ms D'Rozario: Grant Tambling was brain-washed.

Mr EVERINGHAM: At least he had more spine than Reeves.

In a very short period of time they seem to come back spouting the views of Canberra instead of representing the interests of their constituents.

The Northern Territory government - and I say it in this Assembly since I have been asked this question - adheres to its view that there should be no local ownership plans for the Alice Springs airport. It is clearly a Commonwealth responsibility. It calls on the Commonwealth to honour that responsibility. We see a hypocritical, sleight-of-hand act being perpetrated by this government, and the previous government in talking about local ownership plans for airports whereby, if you accept local ownership, all of a sudden the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow descends at the edge of your airstrip and you get money to do all sorts of things. You are also told that that money will not be available for 13 years if you do not accept local ownership.

The hypocrisy of all this is that the money is there in the federal budget. It is just kept in 2 different columns. The columm that it is kept in is the local ownership column to try to dragoon local authorities into accepting responsibilities that are properly federal. In Cairns, where the airport has been accepted by the local authority, an additional $1 or $2 must be imposed on the top of the price of every air ticket that is sold there. That affects the people in Cairns wanting to fly out rather than the visitors flying into Cairns. In effect, the locals have to pay half the cost of the new Cairns International Airport. We want the federal member to honour his commitment. We want the federal government to honour its commitment. In any case, we have not heard a proposal that the Northern Territory should be involved in local ownership of the Alice Springs airport.

Housing Commission Tenancies

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for HOUSING

In view of the fact that, when a Housing Commission home becomes available, the Housing Commission demands immediate occupancy by the prospective tenant, and considering the fact that because most landlords demand 2 weeks' rent in advance, the prospective tenant either loses his 2 weeks' advance rent or loses his Housing Commission home, would the minister examine this matter to see if some solution to this injustice can be arrived at?

ANSWER

Yes.

Palmerston Bus Service

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that the bus operating a service within Palmerston is owned by the government?

ANSWER

An arrangement was made with the Palmerston Development Authority to transfer a bus which it could use to run a bus service in Palmerston. I understand that to be the case.

Police Complement at Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Considering the halt in the development of the Jabiru township, will the police complement there still be maintained at the current high level?

ANSWER

I would hope that the township of Jabiru would become permanently and totally law abiding so that we could remove any police presence there altogether. I know of no plans to change the numbers at the Jabiru Police Station. The police have a certain basis on which they staff their stations: the population and the area involved. Certainly, the commissioner has not forewarned me of any imminent change.

Aboriginal Witnesses from Remote Communities

Mr BELL to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

My question refers to his previous answer. Does the Attorney-General accept responsibility for the transportation of members of isolated Aboriginal communities to and from court appearances and, if so, can those people be reassured that, if they make appropriate representations, they will be returned to their home communities?

ANSWER

I do not accept that responsibility. It is amazing what we in the Northern Territory will do for people which other jurisdictions anywhere in the world would not do. Certainly, I will not accept that responsibility. I am not sure whether it squarely rests with me or not. I was telling the honourable member the facts of the matter when he asked the previous question. I am certainly not prepared to say that I am responsible for it.

East Point Reserve

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

How much money has been allocated in 1983-84 budget for both running costs and capital works in the East Point Reserve area?

ANSWER

The operation of the East Point Reserve at the moment is in the hands of the Conservation Commission. I will extract the exact figures from documents that were tabled recently for the benefit of the honourable member. I would point out that, recently, through the Chief Minister to the mayor, the government made a financial offer to the city council along with the proposition that the council take over East Point Reserve. The details of that are not to hand but I can obtain them. Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the city council has accepted the offer.

Deferred Finance Arrangments

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Do the cost estimates of those projects which have been selected to be constructed under this arrangement include interest payments and, if not, does the budget make provision for the payment of such interest?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am a little confused by the honourable member's question. Projects will be offered to private contractors and finance companies to construct government facilities and have payments deferred. In general, it seems that the payments will commence at the end of the construction period. In other words, the financier and contractor will carry the principal sum during the period of construction when, formerly, government would have been making progress payments. At the time of completion of the project, the government would have 2 options. This could be arranged in advance with the particular group. One option would be to pay out the entire cost of the project on the spot. The carrying of progress payments during the period of construction would incur a penalty cost. Government could either pay the entire sum at that time or pay it over a period which would be negotiated. Obviously, this also would incur an interest cost. I must indicate to the honourable member that it is thought by a number of people that the interest cost will be recouped quite satisfactorily. In some cases, it will be more than recouped through economic stimulus. Jobs will have been generated, in some cases years in advance, payroll tax paid, personal income tax paid, which would not normally be paid,and the general economic benefits of the project itself would contribute benefits to the government as well as the community. Quite clearly, interest payments will be involved. It would be quite impossible for anyone to expect finance companies to come into the act without accruing some profit for themselves.

Deferred Finance Arrangements

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Does the budget make provision for the payment of these interest payments?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, arrangements have not yet been entered into. Projects have not been decided upon to be undertaken under this particular arrangement.

We have listed projects which are being advanced from the capital works program, not necessarily the projects which will be financed under this arrangement. A project currently on the works program, such as the construction of a $14m court building in Darwin, could be financed under these arrangements. The cash in the current financial year thereby released could be used to bring many other, usually smaller,government projects into the scheme. Such projects would be brought forward from the government's forward works program which extend some years ahead. These are in the design and feasibility stage. Honourable members need to be mindful when reading the budget papers that the list of items which are seen to be capable of commencement under this scheme are not necessarily those which would be financed under this scheme. I think the $150 000 nurses quarters at Nhulunbuy, for example, was listed among those projects being advanced. There was never any intention that we would necessarily finance that. It is not necessarily a project that we would seek to have financed privately. However, funds have been made available from private finance for that particular project. There is a difference between a program and cash, Mr Speaker. I think the honourable member needs a little lesson. If she wishes, I can introduce her to Treasury officers who will explain the difference between program and budget cash provisions.

Deferred Finance Arrangements

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Given that the deferred payments plan proposes that $33m worth of work be brought forward, what is the likely impact on the economy of the failure of contractors to obtain finance under this scheme?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I think the question is so hypothetical that it really cannot be answered. If it is suggested that we might have commissioned extensive feasibility studies on the impact on the Northern Territory of a contractor or financier somehow failing to perform during the course of one of these contracts, I do not think that the question has any real substance to it.

Funding of Landscaping Projects for Schools

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

From time to time in the past, government money has been made available to schools for landscaping projects. Under what conditions is money made available to existing schools for such projects?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand there are a number of ways that funds can be used by schools to upgrade their ovals and general landscaping. Ordinary capital funds are used by government when schools are built. Landscaping is quite often included in the contract. In addition, funds are provided by the department to maintain and expand such landscaping and oval developments from time to time. In addition, school councils and P and C associations are free to raise funds. Some of them raise tens of thousands of dollars to spend on their schools at their own discretion. Those school funds can be used for landscaping and so on. Those organisations also have the ability to apply to the government for dollar-for-dollar funds. I could not say absolutely that dollar-for-dollar funds are available for landscaping because I do not have before me all the criteria for these subsidies. If school councils or principals are in some confusion as to how to go about obtaining funds from government sources for the upgrading of schoolgrounds, they should certainly take the matter up with the relevant departmental officers. This sort of query is handled daily.

Sales Tax

Mr D.W. COLLINS to TREASURER

Is he aware that the 20% sales tax will have an adverse effect on the cattle industry, particularly in regard to fencing and stockyards? Will he undertake to take that matter up with the federal government along with the use of steel in the construction industry?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was besieged in Alice Springs recently about the effect of the sales tax on tubular steel products. Apparently, tubular steel is used extensively in the pastoral industry for the construction of stockyards. It is not a matter of simply picking up secondhand tubular steel. Quite often, new tubular steel or tubular steel which has been rejected for water supply purposes is purchased for stockyards. This tax will result in an added impost on pastoralists who wish to continue to use tubular steel for the construction of stockyards. I will include that matter in my representations to the federal Treasurer.

Housing Allocation in Budget

Mr BELL to MINISTER for HOUSING

Can he confirm that, of the $58m allocated for housing in yesterday's budget, $28m was Commonwealth funds and $20m was a revote of funds from the previous financial year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this is a very technical question. My information is that the Commonwealth-States Housing Agreement allocation announced in the 1983-84 budget increased from $20.242m to $28.679m, an increase of $8.437m or 41.6%. The Northern Territory received an increase in the allocation for Aboriginal housing. Out of a $17.8m total increase, the Territory received $5.18m or 29% of the increase. That represents an increase of 117% on last year's allocation to the Northern Territory for Aboriginal housing. In relation to the untied grants for public housing, the total increase was $150.2m, an increase of 125% on last year's allocation. The Northern Territory's share of this increase was $3.257m or 2% of the total increase. The $3.275m represents a 40% increase on last year's allocation to the Territory. Overall, the Northern Territory's combined $8.437m increase for a total housing allocation of $28.678m represents a 41% increase in funding. This is compared with the Australia-wide increase of $168m or 50.6% increase in the allocation.

Rum Jungle Rehabilitation

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr STEELE (Transport and Works)(by leave): Mr Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition asked a question yesterday and referred to a 300% increase in funding allocated in the federal budget for rehabilitation of the Rum Jungle mine site. This project is set on a time scale of 4 years and is subject to formal agreement between the federal and Northern Territory governments. It commenced last financial year with an expenditure of $800 000. For 1983-84, the federal government has allocated $5.3m, hence the honourable member's suggestion of a massive increase in funds. It is, of course, stage 2 of the federal government's commitment to a project worth $16.2m, plus provision for escalation of costs.

There are 4 major components in the work to be completed this year. The reshaping, drainage and vegetation of White's overburden heap will be carried out in the period from August to November-December 1983 at an estimated cost of $1.4m. There is also purchase and installation of a complex water treatment plant by the end of June 1984 at an estimated cost of $1.8m. The plant is due for commissioning in July 1984. The transfer of the tailings and copper heap leach pile to Dyson's open cut will commence around April 1984 and be completed in November 1984. The cost in this financial year is estimated at $1m. Engineering and management costs, including consultants for design work, equipment, use of other government resources - for example, the physicist from the Department of Health for radiation monitoring - continuous water monitoring and general minor works make up the remainder of $1.1m.

First-aid Education for Primary Schoolchildren

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr PERRON (Education)(by leave): Mr Speaker, the honourable member for Victoria River asked if consideration had been given to introducing first-aid as part of the education of primary schoolchildren. I am advised by the department that first-aid is included as part of the health and physical education of the core curriculum. Teachers following the core curriculum are required to cover first-aid in the area of health and education safety. Specific first-aid techniques are not introduced to children until Year 3. However, in Years 1 and 2, aspects of safety are presented to the children and they do discuss procedures to follow in accident situations. The initial first-aid technique given to these young children is to seek assistance from a responsible adult or organisation.

At the beginning of Year 5, first-aid procedures are further enhanced by looking at basic first-aid for both minor and serious injury and, at that level, resuscitation methods are introduced. In the secondary school, the core curriculum takes on a far more sophisticated approach, where the children are required to demonstrate first-aid procedures for a variety of common accidents. Teachers use St John Ambulance and Royal Life Saving Society officers as resources in this section of the health education program. Obviously , that is in those places in the Northern Territory where those organisations and their services are represented.

Transient Camp at Kulaluk

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

In view of the often stated desire of the Northern Territory government for the owners of the Kulaluk area to make more effective use of that area for the purpose of transient camps, could he advise what the government's current position is on the proposed transient camp at Kulaluk?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can advise him that the government is happy to see any reasonable development on Kulaluk. One of the difficulties that the government has had over a period is that proposals that come up from the people at Kulaluk for consideration are overturned within a short period by dissident groups within the community. I do not have any particular fancy one way or the other for any development of Kulaluk. I am happy to see things progress to the satisfaction of the people but it is extremely difficult for the government to help when the people cannot agree amongst themselves. Over the last few months that I have had the responsibility for community development, I am aware that funds have been available to assist the people of Kulaluk in any development they may wish to pursue. I have had great difficulty getting a consensus on what is needed, where it is needed and how it ought to be done. I would like to say to the honourable member and those people of Kulaluk who are involved in the development of their land that, as soon as we can obtain some reasonable and stable proposition that we can pursue in a budgetary sense, the government will be happy to accommodate the community.

Flooding at Emily Gap

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he as yet give a report on the engineers' study of the flooding problems being experienced by the residents of the Emily Gap area in central Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that the member for MacDonnell is also very interested in this particular matter. There has been correspondence to us over quite a long period of time. I looked at the files this morning and it appears that the honourable member for Stuart at least commenced correspondence with us back in March 1982. Of course, a report has been prepared. It is under consideration by the government. We are waiting for the final aspects of that report to come back to the government.

Electoral Provisions under Northern Territory (Self-Government)Act

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

I understand that the Northern Territory government requested the previous Commonwealth government to amend the electoral provisions under the Northern Territory (Self-Government) Act 1978. I understand that a further approach has been made to the current federal government. Can he tell the Assembly if he intends to pursue these proposed amendments with the current federal government and can he advise the Assembly of the detail of those proposed amendments?

ANSWER

I cannot remember the detail of the proposed amendments because, to the best of my recollection, they are of a technical nature. They are part of a whole package of technical amendments to the Northern Territory (Self-Government) Act. They include an amendment to deal with such exciting subjects as easements in gross. I do remember at least that part of the letter. We have had at least a couple of years of argument at officer level between federal officials and Territory officials who simply want a few minor amendments to the Self-Government Act for ease of administration.

It seems that the Leader of the Opposition is opening my mail to federal ministers. But I suppose that, when one is dealing with people without honour, then that is all that one can expect.

Mr B. Collins: Are you talking about me in that respect?

Mr EVERINGHAM: Well, anyone who would read someone else's mail could advise the Assembly what he considers his state of honour to be.

Mr B. COLLINS: A point of order, Mr Speaker! Clearly, under Standing Orders, that is improper. I have had access to no one's mail. As a matter of fact, from the tone of the question and the terms of the question, the Chief Minister would recognise the fact that these negotiations have been going on for some 2 years, to the best of my knowledge, with the previous government. That was contained in the terms of the question.

Mr SPEAKER: What is the point of order?

Mr B. COLLINS: The personal reflection, Mr Speaker, that I am person of no honour. The Chief Minister knows full well that that is based on an assumption on his part that I have been reading his mail. I have not and I would ask the Chief Minister to withdraw the imputation.

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable Chief Minister withdraw the imputation?

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, if the cap fits, then obviously the honourable Leader of the Opposition will have to wear it.

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable Chief Minister withdraw the imputation?

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, in my defence, I believe I am entitled to say something...

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable Chief Minister withdraw the imputation?

Mr EVERINGHAM: The question that I would like to address then is the fact that the honourable Leader of the Opposition indicated that, under the previous government, he did not have access to my mail.

Mr SPEAKER: Order! My question is simple. Will the honourable Chief Minister withdraw the imputation?

Mr EVERINGHAM: If there is any imputation, Mr Speaker, I withdraw it. But, as I say, the honourable Leader of the Opposition can wear whatever cap fits.

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable Chief Minister withdraw the imputation?

Mr EVERINGHAM: If there is any imputation, Mr Speaker, I withdraw it.

Mr SPEAKER: I am afraid I cannot accept that.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, I withdraw any imputation.

As I said, these amendments are of a purely technical nature. Whilst I cannot remember them in detail, as far as I am concerned, if the honourable Leader of the Opposition has copies of my mail, he is welcome to publish those copies because I am quite happy to make the correspondence available to this Assembly. There is nothing that the Territory government has to hide in relation to the proposed amendments to the Northern Territory (Self-Government) Act which are of a technical nature to the best of my recollection.

East Coast Shipping Service

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise what steps ,if any, are being taken to assist the east coast shipping service to become viable?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this question is very timely because it follows a few remarks that the member for Macdonnell made last night. Honourable members will be aware that this government successfully maintained pressure on the federal government to honour its pre-election promise of taking a social audit approach to transport problems in remote regions. We are surprised that it maintained the subsidy after all the terrorising activities about what would or would not be in the budget. We fought successfully against suggestions from the Commonwealth that the Northern Territory contribute towards the subsidy along the lines of the proposal suggested and rejected for the funding of the railway. Our approach led to a $2m subsidy for the service and, whilst this was short of the 3-year subsidy - we wanted to allow the service to be tendered out to the most suitable operator, which might have been ANL - it at least allows immediate continuation of a service.

Notwithstanding this success, I note from Mr Keating's budget statement that he says: 'The future of service now rests on the commercial judgment of ANL and on any financial assistance from the Northern Territory government'. Obviously, the subsidy is doomed. When that subsidy expires after the $2m is eaten up, probably it will disappear. Additional Commonwealth funds would only be considered in the context of the outcome of the Commonwealth's inquiry into the transport needs of the Northern Territory. I have said before that it would be economic lunacy for the Northern Territory government to contribute to a service in which it had no control or say in how the service was run. Notwithstanding that, we are taking steps to make the best of the Commonwealth's continued piecemeal approach to this particular matter.

Follow-up letters have been sent to all participants in the government's Shippers Conference asking them to use the service. The federal Minister for Transport has been asked to assist, if necessary, with the setting up of a joint Northern-Territory ANL monitoring program to keep cargo levels, revenue costs and monthly drawdowns on the subsidy under review. A letter has been sent to the chairman of ANL - he has since written to me saying that he will be up here very shortly to discuss this matter - asking for details of its marketing program for the Territory and offering all marketing assistance possible from the Port Authority. An offer has been made to ANL to assist it in setting up marketing seminars on a joint basis to promote the Territory service. The Territory government has also had confidential discussions with identified potential future users.

We do not accept the opposition's proposal that the Northern Territory should run ANL's operation. We are offering every assistance and working in closely with users and potential users. I would conclude by saying that our attempts to help ANL in the past have been frustrated by ANL's obvious lack of interest in the Territory, something which existing users of the service still bitterly complain about. It now seems that ANL are adopting a more definite approach regarding the service having sent an executive to Darwin recently for only the second time since self-government.

Grain Marketing by ADMA

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

My question refers to the recent sale of grain by ADMA on behalf of growers in the Katherine area. Is it a fact that this grain was sold by ADMA at substantially less profit than could have been obtained had it sold it in Western Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no knowledge of ADMA selling grain anywhere at a lesser price than it could have got in another part of the Australian market. For the benefit of the honourable member, I would say that that matter will be addressed in some detail within the hour.

ANL Service for Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

My question pertains to an answer he has just given. Has any approach been made to ANL to include Nhulunbuy as a port of call?

ANSWER

Off the top of my head, I cannot say whether an approach has been made to ANL to call at Nhulunbuy. I guess the matter has been considered as part of the logical movement of an east coast shipping service. I am not aware of a specific representation made by the department or even by myself in years gone by.

Concern about Asbestos

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for HEALTH

In view of recent public concern about asbestos, what is the Department of Health doing about occupational health?

ANSWER

I think the member for Fannie Bay expressed concern about this on a recent radio program. I have obtained a full briefing from the department because I believe that members of the public are concerned about the asbestos situation in the Northern Territory. The information I have for honourable members is as follows. The Department of Health has established an occupational health branch with particular expertise in health physics, dust disease and noise and air quality monitoring. Three medical staff have special experience in occupational health. The joint concerns of health and safety require maximum cooperation between departments with responsibilities in these areas. The Department of Health maintains close liaison with these bodies. An occupational health and safety working group meets regularly. Membership consists of representatives from the Departments of Health, Primary Production and Mines and Energy. The functions of the group include the pooling of available information and co-ordination of activities. I am also advised that a tripartite occupational health and safety committee has been established by the Industrial Relations Consultancy Council. The department is represented on the occupational health committee of the National Health and Medical Research Council. I might add for honourable members that arrangements have been made for NTEC workers to have medical examinations as well.

Report on Emily Hills Subdivision

Mr BELL to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

My question refers to his previous answer to the question of flood control in Emily Hills subdivision and the report that he said would be made on flooding in that area. Will he make that report available for public comment?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can give no guarantee that the report will be made available for public comment. I will examine the report when it comes before me and I will advise the honourable member of its contents.

Government Support for Youth Music Groups

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

What support does the government extend to youth music groups in view of the generous government support given to youth sporting groups?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the problem of funding musical groups throughout the Northern Territory is not difficult but it is one of those areas that falls within the purview of several portfolios and, for that reason, does not get the attention that it really deserves. I have received representations on this issue from many members of the Assembly. People involved in the arts in the community see a need for community music groups to be given support. Groups within the community, particularly the small communities, often need support to be able to travel to and from eisteddfods etc. I will ask the Department of Community Development to address the issue so that the people concerned are not left in an unfavourable position. I think it is fair to say that the arts, sport and culture generally receive very substantial support from the government. While this sector of the community is small, it is a very important one. It is one that we will attempt to give some justice to in the years to come. As soon as the policy on the matter has been determined, I will advise the honourable member.

Subsidy for Child-Care Centres

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Will the subsidy for child-care centres announced in the budget also apply to family day-care schemes in the Northern Territory for the benefit of the many hundreds of children and parents who use these schemes and, if so, how will it be done?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the mechanics of who will receive it and how it will be distributed is not in my hands at the moment. I will endeavour to provide that information later today.

Crisis Accommodation Program

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for HEALTH

What steps are being taken to implement and supplement the crisis accommodation program being instituted by the federal government?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I will provide the honourable member with information at a later date.

Sale of Ammunition

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

When will regulations governing the sale of live ammunition be amended to prevent children from buying ammunition?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this matter has been brought to my attention very recently by the honourable member for Tiwi. I do not know whether the government ought to be making regulations because of a verbal report by 1 person that 1 child bought 1 round of ammunition for a collection. Nevertheless, I will examine the matter.

Dugong

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Is he aware of concern at the local, national and international level at the decrease in dugong around the north coast, partly because of barramundi fishermen and partly because of Aboriginal people still taking dugong for protein? Are any of his officers actively investigating the life-cycle and numbers of dugong at the moment?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have the details of who is doing what in the area. However, I am conscious of the fact that there is a threat to the dugong species.

I receive mail from all over the country and I have had a couple of letters from overseas expressing concern about the declining numbers of dugong. The Conservation Commission is keeping a watchful eye on this matter. I would be happy to obtain for the honourable member a detailed briefing on the activities in this area and make it availabe to her after the sittings.

Perpetual Pastoral Leases

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for LANDS

How many applications for perpetual pastoral leases have been made and how many have been granted?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as I said to the Leader of the Opposition the other day when he asked me to give him some details about whether certain pastoral lessees were in default of their covenants or not, there are more than 400 pastoral leases in the Territory and I cannot keep all these sorts of details in my head. There have been a number of applications for perpetual leases. To the best of my recollection, there have been half a dozen but there may have been as many as a couple of dozen. One just gains impressions. This is the sort of question that the honourable member should have given me notice of yesterday or earlier this morning. I would be happy to give him a factual answer in the Assembly if I could have those few hours to get the precise details. Alternatively, he can put the question on notice or write to me.

Ciguatera in Van Dieman Gulf Area

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What efforts are being made to monitor ciguatera levels in reef fish and pelagic fish in the Van Dieman gulf area since the development of mining in the Alligator Rivers region?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in all fairness, that is a question that I could have been given an hour's notice of this morning so that I could give a responsible answer to it. There would be a fair amount of technical detail in supplying an answer to a question of that nature. It should be referred to the departments concerned so that they can provide us with a satisfactory briefing. If the honourable member is happy to do that of a morning, I will endeavour to have the information available to him at question time.

Monitoring of Turtles

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

He would be aware that, with the opening up of areas for passive recreation, such as Gunn Point, more turtle eggs are being dug up. Are any officers of his department actively monitoring turtles and, in particular, their breeding habits and their declining numbers?

ANSWER

I am conscious that the Conservation Commission takes an active interest in preserving wild eggs. I must be honest with the honourable member and say to her that I do not know what the turtle egg watchers are doing from day to day. But I will give her a briefing on the activities of the department right around the coast so that she can be informed of the Conservation Commission's role in this area.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members should take note that, if they want information which ministers obviously cannot carry around with them, they should place their question on notice or give the minister notice beforehand so that he can satisfy their thirst for knowledge.

Commissioner of Police Disciplining Firemen

Mr LEO to CHIEF MINISTER

Can the Commissioner of Police, instead of the Chief Fire Officer, continue to bring departmental disciplinary charges against firemen given the adverse industrial reactions that are likely from this procedure?

ANSWER

I am not aware who brings departmental disiplinary proceedings against firemen. Frankly, I try to remain at a distance from matters of administration of that nature. I am surprised that one would care who brought disciplinary action against one. If I was charged with an offence, I would care more about getting off. If the firemen are so sensitive about the author of the disciplinary charges against them, I will inquire into the matter and see who should legally bring the disciplinary charges against firemen. Frankly, I do not see how it could possibly matter who is the author so long as he is empowered legally to bring the charges and the charges are not frivolous or vexatious.

Payroll Tax Receipts

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Is he able to explain why, despite his estimates of growth in the Northern Territory economy, the estimate of payroll tax receipts for 1983-84 in the budget papers represents only a 5.7% increase in dollar terms over receipts last year?

ANSWER

I do not have the particular explanation before me. No doubt, such detailed explanation can be obtained and used in the forthcoming debate on the budget. However, I can indicate to the honourable member that there may be some effect from our most generous payroll tax concession system.

Road Accidents at Yulara

Mr BELL to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Is he aware that there have been 22 motor vehicle roll-overs in 10 months on the road connecting the Yulara tourist village and Ayers Rock itself and, if he is so aware, what action does the government propose?

ANSWER

I must confess to the honourable member that I have not been keeping count of the roll-overs on that road. I will endeavour to obtain information from the Conservation Commission relating to that particular set of statistics and ask it whether there is any particular reason, other than driver error, that is causing the high number of roll-overs to which the honourable member refers. If it can be stopped by the commission, then we will investigate it immediately.

Kitchen Equipment from Big Al's

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

I understand that the kitchen fittings from the old Block 8 cafeteria, known as Big Al's, are being distributed among various sporting clubs throughout the Territory. Is my information correct and, if so, what clubs will be receiving that kitchen equipment?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the member for Port Darwin's information is partly correct. There was an advertisement placed in the NT News to distribute some of the cooking equipment located on the lower floor of the Chan Building. Former members might remember Big Al's restaurant which I tried to have reopened after the cyclone without success. From memory, equipment has been given to about 6 or 7 organisations such as Tracy Village, the Northern Territory Rugby Union, Girl Guides, the Northern Territory Amateur Swimming Association, the Waratah Sports Club, Cyprus Ladies Community and some philanthropic organisations. The member for Stuart found out about it yesterday and he was a bit agitated that some of it was not given to Alice Springs sporting organisations. Much of this equipment was large and it would have been very expensive to transport it down there. It would have been very difficult to bring people here to inspect it. Tracy Village received a very large component of cooking equipment because it has extended its facilities and is really starting from scratch. It did not have any cooking equipment apart from a very small griller. Consequently, we have allocated refrigerators and deep frying equipment to it. If members are interested in what has been allocated to whom, I will provide that information to them.

Specialist Secondary Teachers

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

What administrative steps have been taken to implement the announcement in this week's budget that a pool of specialist secondary teachers would be established?

ANSWER

Approvals are being obtained through a special Cabinet committee on establishment for additional positions to be created over and above the positions currently available in schools in the Northern Territory. The Teaching Service Commissioner is preparing the necessary details of recruitment as we find specialist teachers to recruit to these additional positions. The difficulty we have had in the past is that the Teaching Service Commissioner, in his continuous recruitment drives to obtain teachers to fill the gaps in the Northern Territory teaching ranks, has occasionally come upon a specialist teacher whom he could not recruit because we did not have a position available. This pool will allow us to recruit the top people when we can find them even if we do not have an ordinary position in schools for them. They can be held pending a position becoming available. There will be a pool so that a position will be allocated to a school that loses a specialist teacher in an untimely manner. Unfortunately, not all teachers who leave the service give us the convenience of leaving over a Christmas period between school years. If a key teacher leaves us at a critical time, it means that one has to consider even abandoning a particular matriculation course. The proposed teaching pool of 10 positions will alleviate that problem considerably.

Northern Territory Budget

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

Is he able to explain why, despite his estimate of growth of the Northern Territory economy, the estimate of total Territory revenue and receipts for 1983-84 in the budget papers represents only a 5% increase in dollar terms from receipts last year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not quite understand what the honourable member is driving at. We are indicating that the Northern Territory is growing at a very rapid rate. We have a very attractive budget. We are able to allocate more funds to a whole range of functions this year than we have been able to before. The budget clearly shows the sources of all those funds. There is an inference in her question that Territory funds and taxation receipts are not growing at the rate of overall government spending. I can assure her that there are funds available for all the allocations in the $1160m budget. If she is concerned that there are insufficient funds for the budget and is proposing that the Territory government increase taxes or follow the lead given by Labor states in dredging up all the additional taxes they can possibly conceive, then I hope the public is listening to what the alternative government in the Northern Territory is supposedly offering.

Rapid Creek Crossing

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Having read the capital works program, has he under consideration any scheme to extend the bicycle track across the mouth of Rapid Creek? He will be aware that this is a rumour that surfaces about once a week in Darwin.

ANSWER

I do recall the honourable member for Nightcliff asking this same question last year. I am not aware of any specific proposal to improve the crossing of Rapid Creek by bikes or any other conveyance. If there are any such proposals in the department, none have come to my office.

Antarctic Base

Mr D.W. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he aware of concern in the community about the federal government's reduced funding for Australia's Antarctic bases which is forcing the closure of one of those bases? Would he undertake to register a protest to the federal government on the grounds that a reduced presence in Antarctica would weaken our territorial claim to that area, a matter which is before the World Court.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I was not aware of any such problem although Senator Ted Robertson may have raised it a couple of weeks ago in the local media. I thought, 'Hello, he has come alive again'. I think Senator Robertson is the chairman of the Senate Committee on the Australian Antarctic territories. I remember that he had come out of hibernation to make a statement on the matter of Australia's Antarctic territories and their great mineral potential. I suppose that we will need mineral potential in Antarctica because Senator Robertson's government is certainly opposed to the development of any mineral potential on the Australian mainland and, indeed, its offshore islands such as Tasmania. I have noted the honourable member for Alice Spring's question. I would suggest that he write to the Prime Minister. If he wanted to take someone who could interpret for the penguins, perhaps he could take the honourable member for Sanderson. I think I will leave the honourable member for Alice Springs to write his own correspondence on the subject of Antarctica.

Cane Toads

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr TUXWORTH (Conservation)(by leave): Mr Speaker, on Tuesday, the honourable member for Port Darwin asked a question on cane toads. I asked the Conservation Commission to provide a paper on it. It is a couple of pages long but it is very interesting. It has background details that I think all members should be aware of. I would like to incorporate it in my reply this morning.

Mr Speaker, cane toads are large, unpleasing members of the toad family. They are native to tropical America and feed on almost any animal matter that they can catch, subdue and ingest. They have been introduced to a number of parts of the world on the premise that they might control insect pests. They were introduced to Queensland in 1920 and 1924 to control the grey-backed cane beetle. There is little evidence that the introduction served any useful purpose. On the other hand, they appear to be capable of significant harm. They are an unpleasant nuisance around human habitation and predate on small, native wildlife. They have poisonous glands in the skin which can cause the death of larger animals which, in their own terms, prey on toads. They compete for habitat and food resources with native frog species. The toads require water to breed but are hardy and prolific. In fact, the females may produce up to 54 000 eggs and they breed more than once a year. The toads are spread over much of the wetter areas of Queensland and northern New South Wales. Much of the top end of the NT is a suitable habitat for them and they have spread steadily westward at an average rate of 33km a year.

Cane toads entered the NT during the 1982-83 wet season. The Conservation Commission has given high priority to cane toad investigations. Its officers are currently implementing a 6-point program which is as follows. Firstly, the commission will monitor the rate of spread. Annual field surveys of the western limits of cane toad distribution have been carried out from 1980. These surveys have provided the information on the rate of spread together with other basic biological data. Secondly, the commission will gauge the impact of toads on fauna. The commission has established 11 study sites which have been surveyed for wildlife. As the sites are occupied by toads, surveys will be carried out to study the precise impact on native Northern Territory wildlife. Thirdly, it will encourage public awareness. Through a variety of means, but particularly through contact with properties, police and schools in the gulf area, the commission is seeking early warning of new occupation sites. The commission follows up many reports, mostly misidentifications, of cane toad presence and has provided a number of top end schools with information, advice and a preserved specimen. Fourthly, it will tackle introduction by human agency. Cane toads have been scheduled a prohibited entrant under the Territory wildlife regulations under the Territory Parks and Wildlife Conservation Act. It is an offence to bring in, liberate orpossess a live toad except under permit. A penalty of $2000 or imprisonment for 6 months or both together with a further penalty of $100 in respect to each animal involved may be applied. Fifthly, the commission has decided that conventional control measures would be ineffective. It is important to realise that toads occur in such numbers and live in places which make it impractical to consider conventional means of control. The use of poisons, bounties, hand collection, male sterilisation, fences or barriers are likely to be ineffective, uneconomical or counterproductinve. However, the commission is investigating all reports of artificial introductions to areas in advance of those occupied by toads as a result of natural spread. Where possible, the few animals that may be involved are collected and destroyed. Sixthly, the use of biological controls are being examined. It is the commission's assessment that broad-scale effective control can and will only be achieved by the introduction of biological control using natural parasite and disease agents. This will require a long-term investigation carried out in collaboration with, and the support of, the states and the Commonwealth. To this end, Conservation Commission officers have completed a comprehensive search and review of the scientific literature on cane toads as the basis for a strong representation to the Council of Nature Conservation Ministers for national support for a biological control investigation. The subject will be listed for discussion at the next meeting of the CONCOM standing committee and ministerial councils.

Mr Speaker, I am happy to be able to advise honourable members on this matter. It is the intention of the Northern Territory government to seek the support of Queensland and New South Wales at the next conservation ministers' meeting to have a joint study carried out by the states and the Commonwealth to see if the cane toad can be eliminated by biological means. I believe that it is probably long overdue. If we do not do something in the forseeable future, canetoads will become very well established on the mainland and will be impossible to eliminate.

Cut-rate Air Fares for NT Public Servants

Mr DOOLAN to CHIEF MINISTER

He will be aware that there are many big firms employing large numbers of people who obtain discount fares from both interstate airlines. Has the possibility of negotiating a similar cut-rate system for NT public servants been investigated? It could mean a significant saving to the NT government.

ANSWER

I acknowledge the merit of the honourable member for Victoria River's question. Frankly, I think that we investigated this question in 1978 or 1979. The idea was that we would have one booking agent for all government travel - the Tourist Bureau from memory. I cannot vouch for the accuracy of my answer. The thrust of it all was that, if we did that, we would probably send some other firms broke. Furthermore, public servants should have freedom of choice etc. The concept was abandoned even though it would have meant some sort of saving to the government. It would have had negative effects in that other people would have been unemployed, travel agencies would have closed down, competition would have been reduced etc. It would not have been practical, as I recall it, in that each airline has one plane up the east coast when the other airline has one plane down the Centre. Most people, or course, are travelling to Sydney, Melbourne or Canberra. Either airline would be in it in a flash because it would obtain all of the Northern Territory Public Service's business. But then one would not be able to use the other airline without paying the full fare. Of course, to get to Canberra without overnighting in Melbourne, one must fly down the east coast. There are those practical difficulties to what, at the beginning of self-government, we thought a pretty good scheme. I am quite happy to look at it again. I am sure that we can get the discounts from the airlines but we would have the travel industry in an uproar and probably cause a few people to lose their jobs.

Rapid Creek Water Gardens

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In the last sittings, the minister undertook to place demountable toilets in the Rapid Creek Water Gardens. When will they be put in place?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I thought the work would have been carried out by now. I am advised by the honourable member for Jingili that the work has indeed commenced.

Oil Drilling at Pacoota

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr ROBERTSON (Mines and Energy)(by leave): Mr Speaker, the member for Sanderson asked a question on oil drilling at the Pacoota sandstone formation. The Mereenie joint venturers presented a technical development proposal to the Department of Mines and Energy on 5 August 1983. I was aware of that as I indicated yesterday. The proposal includes an assessment for the appraisal of the drilling programs carried out since the Mereenie petroleum leases were granted in November 1981. An essential part of the proposal is the commencement of sustained commercial production from the field. My department is studying a proposal with a view to ensuring that it is consistent with good oilfield practice and maximum economic recovery from the field. Some aspects of the proposal have been referred to a petroleum engineering consultant and the report is expected to be lodged in 1 month from now. I would expect to be able to respond to the Mereenie joint venturers soon after receiving that report.

We feel quite confident within the department that we have the technical expertise to undertake an analysis of the proposal. Nonetheless, it is not unreasonable to inform the Assembly why this is being given to a consultant. Proposals relating to open hole completions, according to our engineers, are not consistent with the views held by the previous energy consultant whom the government employed at great expense. It is thought wise to seek the opinion of a third expert in the field.

Point Stuart and Carmor Plains Pastoral Leases

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister)(by leave): Point Stuart and Carmor Plains are considered to be in default of their lease covenants. However, I recently waived breaches of lease covenants by Point Stuart and directed compliance by 30 June 1984. A similar situation applied to Carmor Plains except that the lease covenant defaults there are considered to be more serious. The lessees were advised that they had certain options such as seeking a variation of onerous covenants. If action does not ensue within the 12 months or so that they have been allowed, their leases are in some danger of forfeiture action being taken against them.

Cane Toads

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

What measures are being taken to ensure that cane toads are not brought into the Katherine area with mango plants for the mango plantation? I understand the plants are propagated in Queensland and transported to Katherine.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this particular matter has been raised with me by yourself and by other members. I have referred it to both the Conservation Commission and the Department of Primary Production for immediate investigation. As soon as I have information, I will advise members.

3. On what date did he inform the applicants of his decision to reject the application?

ANSWER

1. The Tennant Creek Town Council has made application for land for the purposes of a camp, and this is currently under consideration.
2. No application was made. However, discussions involving the Department of Lands, Tennant Creek Town Council and Department of Community Development were held to ascertain the need to formalize tenure over this area.
3. There was no application and, therefore, no rejection.

800 Mr MacFARLANE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. Is he aware that only 5 panelbeating firms in Darwin employ apprentices?
2. Do the Territory Insurance Office and other government authorities give preference to firms employing apprentices?
3. Are corporations such as Telecom encouraged to employ and apprentice local youths in their Northern Territory operations?

ANSWER

1. I am aware that there are 9 panelbeating firms in Darwin that currently employ 16 apprentices.
2. A preferential tendering system is being considered by the government. If such a scheme is adopted, future contractors will need to employ apprentices according to predetermined ratios to be eligible to tender for government projects.
3. Yes.

Aboriginal Land Claims

810 Mr MacFARLANE to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it a fact that under the Aboriginal Land Rights (Northern Territory) Act (a) water is a mineral, and (b) river banks and river beds can be claimed?

ANSWER

It is a fact that Section 3 of the Aboriginal Land Rights (Northern Territory) Act 1976 defines a 'mineral' to include water. This does not mean, however, that the owners of Aboriginal land also own the water thereon, and nor does it mean that traditional land owners can control the usage and flow of water on or from their land such that the rights of other landholders are impaired. The Control of Waters Act generally applies to Aboriginal land.

In the Daly River land claim, the Aboriginal Land Commissioner (Mr Justice Toohey) held that the banks and beds of rivers were unalienated Crown land within the meaning of the Land Rights Act, and could thus be claimed. As the law now stands, his conclusion appears to be legally correct.

The short answer to both questions is therefore 'yes'.

Timber Creek - Land Claim

811 Mr MacFARLANE to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Is it a fact that the township of Timber Creek is under land claim?
2. If the claim is successful, will the houses and improvements become the property of Aboriginals?

ANSWER

The township of Timber Creek is not the subject of an Aboriginal land claim, since no township can be claimed under the Aboriginal Land Rights Act. There is, therefore, no question that houses and improvements within the township could become the property of Aboriginal claimants.

There is, however, a land claim with respect to areas which immediately abut the township. The claim includes certain areas of unalienated Crown land, and includes also a grazing licence.

Northern Land Council - Legal Advisers

813 Mr MacFARLANE to CHIEF MINISTER

Is he able to say how many legal advisers are employed by the Northern Land Council?

ANSWER

The Northern Land Council presently employs 5 lawyers on its full-time staff. However, it also employs other lawyers on a casual basis to handle specific projects, such as individual land claims. The number of casual lawyers or legal advisers employed under contract varies from time to time.

2 km Drinking Law - Advertising

830 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

What was (a) the cost of preparation and distribution, including postage, of the 2 leaflets, (b) the cost of the recent TV advertisements, and (c) the cost of recent newspaper advertisements regarding the 2 km drinking law?

ANSWER

The total cost of the public information campaign in relation to the 2 km drinking law is as follows -

Television advertising			$ 13 562.10
Radio advertising			$ 3 601.60
Newspaper advertising			$ 14 952.00
Pamphlets and leaflets
Printing	$ 9 256.42
Translations	$ 672.00
Freight and postage	$ 4 484.00	(estimated)	$ 14 412.42
			$ 46 528.12

As distribution was handled by various departments and agencies, it is not possible to accurately assess the actual amount of expenditure for freight and postage, especially as each agency accepted the cost as part of normal administrative expenses and individual records specifically related to the 2 km campaign postage were not initiated. The majority of the pamphlets were dispatched in bulk lots per departmental mail bags. The estimate is based on the assumption that approximately 85 per cent of the 105 500 pamphlets and leaflets were sent by mail. Whilst a few single copies may have been sent at $0.24 each (charge as at June 1982) most were in consignments of multiple copies and were dispatched at the cheaper parcel rate. It is estimated that $0.05 per copy should be an approximate overall average cost for freight.

Employment Studies - Aboriginal Communities

867 Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

1. Has the Department of Community Development carried out any studies of salaries, wages and employment on Aboriginal communities, or is it in the process of doing so?

2. If so, will he provide details of these studies?

ANSWER

The Department of Community Development has not carried out any such studies. However, the Department has been concerned for some time over the confusion which exists in a number of Aboriginal communities in relation to what awards and conditions are applicable to their council operations. In order to address these problems the department has canvassed all Aboriginal Community Councils asking if they wish to apply for membership of the NT Confederation of Industry and Commerce. The confederation, as an employer group, has the appropriate expertise to assist Aboriginal councils with these matters.

Vocational Training Commission - Staffing Review

868 Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

1. What are the reasons for a staffing review being undertaken of the Vocational Training Commission?

2. Why is it necessary to have 2 reviews of the commission within a 12-month period?

3. Did the instruction for the staffing review come from the Chief Minister and, if so, why not from the Minister for Education?

ANSWER

1. Amendments to the Industries Training Act were enacted on 4 February 1983. The current review is to ensure that the Vocational Training Commission is adequately organised and staffed to carry out its new responsibilities under the Vocational Training Commission Act.

2. Because of the amendments to the Industries Training Act it is necessary to ensure the Vocational Training Commission is properly organised and staffed.

3. The decision for the staffing review was made by the Cabinet Sub-committee on Establishment which comprises the Chief Minister and the Treasurer assisted by the Public Service Commissioner and the Under-treasurer.

NTDC Loan - Corkwood Bore Abattoir

870 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has Corkwood Bore abattoir received an NTDC loan and, if so, what was the purpose of the loan?

ANSWER

Yes. Two loans, one for a mobile abattoir in 1977 for $30 000 and a second for a chiller in 1979 for $30 000. Both have been fully repaid. A further loan of $328 000 was approved in 1982, for the reconstruction of an abattoir for domestic kill. This loan has yet to be taken up and is under consideration for withdrawal.

NTDC Loan - Edward Souery

871 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

1. What is the status of the NTDC loan of $858 000 to Edward Souery's for the construction of the Tennant Creek meatworks?

2. Was (a) a second loan of some $110 000 made by NTDC to Edward Souery and, if so, (b) for what purpose was the loan made, (c) what is the security for the loan, and (d) what is the present status of the loan?

ANSWER

1. Souery's are in receivership. The abattoir has been leased to Gilbertsons. The receiver is making payments. The loan is still current.

2. (a) Yes. A second loan of $120 000 was made available at the time of construction.

   (b) The loan was for roadworks within the abattoir.

   (c) Security is a third mortgage over property.

   (d) The receiver is making payments.

NTDC Loan - Point Stuart Estate

872 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has an application been made for an NTDC loan of $500 000 by Point Stuart Estate for a buffalo domestication program and, if so, has such a loan been granted?

ANSWER

NTDC Loan - Moudal Consultants

873 Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

1. Has an application for an NTDC loan been received from a Hong Kong based company called Moudal Consultants to establish a horse meat processing operation at Tennant Creek and, if so, has the loan been granted?

2. Has land been made available to Moudal Consultants for the establishment of a horse meat processing operation at Tennant Creek and, if so, on what terms?

ANSWER

1. No. Moudal Consultants has not applied for a loan but are consultants to an applicant, Miliss Pty Ltd for such a loan. The application was rejected but a new application is under consideration.

2. A check made with the Department of Lands on or about 7 September 1983 revealed that no offer of land had been made up to that time.

Shareholdings for Myilly Point Development

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

The prospective developers of Myilly Point are the Northern Territory company, Henry and Walker, and the Korean company, Life Construction. Can he advise the shareholding that the Korean company, Life Construction, will hold in the proposed development and what shareholding will be held by Henry and Walker?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the situation in relation to proposals for the development of this area are, as I understand it, that Henry and Walker, in association with an Australian consortium, is putting together a more detailed proposal for the Department of Lands, and subsequently the government, to consider. As far as I am aware, the proposed consortium between Henry and Walker and Life Construction Co of Korea is not proceeding. I understand that Henry and Walker terminated the negotiations with Life Construction some months ago. I must say that my knowledge of the negotiations is somewhat limited but, to the best of my knowledge, Henry and Walker has been negotiating to put forward a detailed proposal to government in consultation with an Australian group which, I understand, includes some South Australian interests with which Henry and Walker has been associated previously.

However, another group has also expressed interest in the site and I understand it is also preparing a feasibility study for a proposal incorporating a hotel. From memory, it is to be of not less than 600 rooms together with a commercial and residential-type development. That is an American corporation. Unfortunately, I am not aware of the details but I understand that that corporation has Australian partners although, apparently, the American corporation is taking a lead in preparing the feasibility study. I think that some details of this were announced publicly perhaps 2 months ago now at the time that the representatives of this group first visited the Northern Territory and inspected the potential for tourist development in Darwin, Katherine, Alice Springs and Yulara respectively. Since then, to the best of my knowledge, negotiations have been going forward between them, the Northern Territory Development Corporation and the Department of Lands with a view to preparing a feasibility study.

I am sorry that I do not have a name for the other group but it is a bit early for me to be taking a very grave interest in what is happening. At this stage, it is better left in the hands of officials. These people were introduced briefly to me when they came here some time ago but I can only remember the name of one of them and I cannot remember the name of their corporation. Both groups are preparing feasibility studies for the consideration of the government. No doubt, in the course of the next few months - and I am not sure if it will even be before Christmas - there will be something put forward to the government jointly, I would expect, by the Department of Lands and the Northern Territory Development Corporation for us to consider.

Mr Speaker, there has been considerable public speculation in relation to the Myilly Point site and the old style houses that are still located on that site. I believe that there was quite some controversy about this matter last week. Obviously, the government has been placed in a somewhat embarrassing situation because quite a number of years ago, after negotiations with the National Trust, the government set aside Audit House on Myilly Point as an example of the style of Territory architecture in the 1920s. It was agreed between government and the National Trust that Audit House, which is of course occupied on a caretaker basis by Mr and Mrs Harry Giese, was the best example of this style of architecture. The government spent something like $60 000 to restore that house, which was in pretty good condition, to an excellent condition. It was dedicated and the title has been vested in the National Trust.

Approximately a year ago, government called for expressions of interest in the Myilly Point site. Of course, we are talking about the expressions of interest that have arisen earlier as a result of the question asked by the Leader of the Opposition. The government sought expressions of interest on the basis that various blocks of land would be available: the old hospital site and the sites of a number of these houses on Myilly Point. I understand there are a total of 4 houses: Audit House and another house owned by the Territory government and 2 houses owned by the Commonwealth government. It was my understanding that the houses owned by the Commonwealth government would be transferred to the Territory government. At present, action to transfer the Commonwealth houses to the Territory government has not occurred and the Territory government is somewhat embarrassed because of the controversy over the preservation of the houses and because, acting on undertakings given to it by the Commonwealth, it had indicated that these areas would be available. Obviously, the proposals from the developers might well have included retention of these buildings for whatever use the developers had in mind.

In any event, the situation now is that the Australian Heritage Commission has taken an interest in the area and the situation of the Territory government is somewhat embarrassing. Obviously, we will have to go back to the persons who have expressed an interest and inform them that it could be that the precincts at Myilly Point simply will not be available for their consideration. It is fair to say that the Northern Territory government has done a fair bit in terms of preservation of the Territory's heritage. The Territory government expended $1m of taxpayers' money to restore the offices presently used by His Honour the Administrator which were formerly the naval offices and, before that, the historic Darwin police station and cell block. We have been mindful of preservation of the Territory's history and heritage. The oral history awards are one example of that. There is also the fact that we have taken steps to preserve an example of pre-war Territory architecture in the Audit House site. It seems to me that, as a result of public interest and the actions of the Australian Heritage Commission, the Territory government would certainly not want at this stage to take any action to alter the present status of the houses at Myilly Point. I think that we will have to tell the persons interested in the development of the Myilly Point site that they must act on the footing that these houses will not be available to them.

The Territory government will await the result of the deliberations of the Australian Heritage Commission. I hope, of course, that the Heritage Commission will take some cognisance of the views of the Territory government in its hearings which, of recent years, apparently have been conducted behind closed doors and without any direct reference or representation to parties who may be affected. I hope that we will have the opportunity to make some representations on matters of fact to the Heritage Commission. No doubt, the government will be able to formulate its future policy in relation to these houses after the Heritage Commission has made a decision. As it stands at the moment, the Territory government has no power to do anything at all in relation to 2 of the houses which are owned by the Commonwealth. Any reports that the Territory government was planning to demolish those houses are quite incorrect. We do not own them and, therefore, we can neither restore them nor demolish them. After discussions in Cabinet yesterday, I intend to inform the parties who have expressed interest in the position and will be awaiting any decision that has been taken by the Heritage Commission.

Shareholdings for Myilly Point Development

Mr B. COLLINS to TREASURER

There does appear to be some division in the government. In relation to the statement just made by the honourable Chief Minister that the reports that the houses at Myilly Terrace would be demolished were incorrect, can he confirm to the Assembly that, in a press conference which he gave some 48 hours ago and which I watched on television, he did in fact state categorically that the houses would be demolished? Further to that, I imagine the Treasurer is aware that the initial development proposal submitted to the government by Henry and Walker states: 'Audit House on lot 1098 is a constraint on the orderly planning and development of the site and considerably reduces the usefulness of the site'. The developers then go on to propose that Audit House be removed and relocated. Can he advise the Assembly if he is now retracting his categorical statements of 48 hours ago that the houses would be demolished?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have any details of the submission made by Henry and Walker for the development of the old Darwin Hospital site. The matter falls within the portfolio of the Minister for Lands and Industrial Development. However, I can assure honourable members that it has never been the government's intention to do other than preserve Audit House which it has vested free of charge with the National Trust in freehold title for its preservation indefinitely. In addition, of course, the Chief Minister indicated that a very substantial sum of money was spent on the house. I have noticedthat, in publicity surrounding this matter, proponents of preserving the area as an historical precinct for Darwin have always indicated that the National Trust is protecting 1 house but that 3 others are under possible threat. What the media conveniently failed to indicate every time was that the reason that Audit House was protected and is in the hands of the National Trust for preservation is because this government undertook to hand it over to the trust in an upgraded condition. However, the new-found conscience of the Leader of the Opposition on heritage matters, which has only come to light in the last few days, has led him to represent the case without all the details.

In regard to statements by myself at a press conference a couple of days ago, Mr Speaker, certainly I indicated that the intention of government at that time was that the houses would be demolished as part of the proposal to redevelop the hospital site under what, hopefully, will be one of the biggest private developments that the Territory has ever seen. Hopefully, in due course, announcements can be made. As the Chief Minister indicated at a Cabinet meeting yesterday, the matter was extensively discussed and a decision has been taken by government that, for the time being, the houses will not be moved. The Chief Minister indicated that the Heritage Commission's findings will be considered carefully and submissions will be made. Despite what I said at a press conference, the houses are not under any immediate threat. I would say that this government is not one which cannot change direction. Indeed, we have done very well by the Northern Territory over the past 5 years by considering issues on their merits and the government has changed direction many times on many issues. I think that is commendable and I hope it will reassure the Leader of the Opposition, in his new-found interest in heritage which has been exhibited only in the last few days, that the government is flexible. I hope the opposition is too.

Moneys owed on gas pipeline construction.

Mr VALE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Is he aware that certain Alice Springs companies are owed large amounts of money by the contractor who was involved in the Palm Valley to Alice Springs gas pipeline construction and, if so, can he advise what steps, if any, the government proposes to take to attempt to collect that money?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in order to answer the honourable member's question, a bit of history on the nature of the contract is necessary. The owner and operator of the pipeline at that time, under the licence, was to be TNT Bulkships. It is a very well known Australian company but clearly did not have any direct expertise in the construction of such a pipeline and it had to take on consultants and subcontractors. Its consultant and supervising organisation was Fluor Australia, a well-known international company and now an Australian company based mainly in Perth. The principle subcontractor under the contractor, TNT Bulkships, was a company called Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd which is a Queensland registered company that has left behind it a legacy of very poor performance in terms of paying bills in Alice Springs. Indeed, if these bills are not satisfied in the fairly near future, a number of long-established Alice Springs businesses will feel the pinch very badly and, in some cases, will go to the wall. A very large earthmoving company which has been operating in the Territory for many years now is owed over $0.5m by Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd. We have a smaller engineering and construction company in Alice Springs which is owed some $35 000. A plant hire equipment firm is owed $28 000 and a local distributor of petroleum products will certainly go broke if he is not paid over $100 000 owed by the company. The list goes on.

My Alice Springs office and I have been in contact with Fluor Australia. I have been in contact personally with very senior management levels of TNT to try to resolve the issue. As I have informed honourable members, there are a number of technical variations to that contract. Obviously, Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd would be going back to its principal employers, Fluor and TNT Bulkships, to have those variations examined. We have been informed that the first series of variations upon which some money would be owing to Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd numbered from 1 to 65, and also a subsequent list of variations, numbered 66 to 80, have now been filed. Hopefully, a fair percentage of that money owing will flow from those variations in due course. However, time is of the essence.

Mr Speaker, I am reliably informed that, even if each of those variations were paid - and we all know that that is never the case; all claims are never admitted - the sum total does not appear sufficient to satisfy the debts of this foreign company - it is a foreign company within the meaning of the Companies Act - which came into Alice Springs and gave all sorts of assurances of its good credit rating. It gave assurances to the Department of Mines and Energy that it had extensive asset backing. Subsequent investigations by the creditors' solicitors have found this to be nothing but a fabrication. In fact, nearly all the equipment is on lease. Indeed, one of the principal creditors in Alice Springs is the leasing company, Coates Hire Service. We may have a man of straw. I have been told by a very high level of authority in TNT that the company has an excellent reputation for its ability to get on with the job and construct but its reputation to keep a good business house is unknown, to say the least.

I am particularly concerned for Alice Springs that this has happened. I will will not sit idly by and see Alice Springs businesses go to the wall while there is anything I can do about it as Attorney-General. Mr Speaker, honourable members would be aware that certain provisions in the Companies Act require a person who is a director of a company, when he commits that company to debt, to have regard to the ability to pay the debt. It is required by the Companies Act. This morning I referred the matter to the investigation section of the Registrar-General's Office and that investigation is currently proceeding. The reason I mention this is that I want Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd to be fully aware of my attitude and my actions and I suggest to that company that the best way it can prevent the taking of any further action which may be available to the government through the Registrar of Companies is to pay its debts forthwith.

Community Welfare and Juvenile Justice Bills

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

In view of criticism by the ALP on the finalisation of the Community Welfare Bill and the Juvenile Justice Bill, does he propose to complete the debate on these 2 bills at this sittings?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in recent days, I have noted with interest the criticism by members of the opposition in relation to the Juvenile Justice Bill and the Community Welfare Bill. It seems to me that quite a curious situation has developed. I would like to reflect on the progress that has been made over recent years in developing this legislation and the attitude of members opposite during that period. Their current expressions of interest in the press are quite inconsistent with the attitude they have displayed over the past 5 years. Honourable members opposite joined with the government in 1978 in setting up a committee of inquiry of this Assembly to look into the social welfare and juvenile justice issues of the Northern Territory because the legislation operating in 1978 was some 20 years old and outmoded. Mr Speaker, the Assembly appointed the now Solicitor-General, Mr Brian Martin, as the head of the inquiry ...

Mr B. COLLINS: A point of order, Mr Speaker!

Mr SPEAKER: What is the point of order?

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, I think I have been fairly patient with the honourable minister but this is a gross misuse of question time. Standing Order 93 provides that questions cannot refer to 'debates in the current session' of this Assembly. We are discussing - and it is quite improper, Mr Speaker - a bill that is currently before the Assembly and it is completely out of order.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mr TUXWORTH: Thank you, Mr Speaker. Continuing with the history of the legislation, that inquiry was set up on 15 June 1978 and proceeded for a year and 2 months. On 29 August 1979, the report was presented to this Assembly. I would just like to say that the report refers to quite a few issues that were very telling and important issues at the time. I will just name some of them: child welfare, youth, aged, migrant and ethnic groups, handicapped, family support services, juvenile aid panels, children in courts, alcoholism, drug addiction, mental health and community welfare.

Mr Speaker, in 1980, the Assembly, the minister of the day and the Department of Community Development went to a lot of trouble to hold seminars all over the the Northern Territory to make people aware of the findings of the report and to get information that might be available to us in the compilation of the legislation. A Ms Foreman and a Mr Brewer, consultants, were engaged by the department to attend the seminars to help with the briefings to the community.

In 1980 and 1981, extensive consultations were undertaken throughout the states, with all sorts of organisations in our Northern Territory community and with the Law Reform Commission which had just published report no 18 entitled 'Child Welfare'. Further to that, a Dr Seymour, the commissioner in charge of the Australian Law Reform Commission's child welfare report, and a Dr Crawford, the commissioner in charge of the research on Aboriginal customary law, were both sought by the government to give advice on the proposed legislation. At that stage, the department ...

Mr B. COLLINS: A point of order, Mr Speaker!

Mr SPEAKER: What is the point of order?

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, once again I must state that this is a gross misuse of the very limited time available to us in question time. Standing Order 94 says: 'An answer shall be relevant to the question'. What we are getting now is a ministerial statement. The question was very simply: 'Is the minister going to proceed with the debate in this sittings?' That requires an answer of 'yes' or 'no'. It is totally against Standing Order 94 to make ministerial statements in response to a question that can be answered with a simple 'yes' or 'no'.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, during this period, the honourable member for Fannie Bay raised with the then Minister for Community Development her concern at the rate of progress in the formulation of the bills and encouraged the government to get on with the job of presenting them to the Assembly. This was raised by the honourable member for Fannie Bay in March 1982 in a matter of public importance debate and again in November in a question without notice to the minister. In January this year, draft bills were circulated throughout the departments and, in March, using the precedent that has been set by this government over the years in bringing forward innovative legislation, I tabled draft bills and announcements were made in the press encouraging people and other members of the Assembly to come forward and give their views so that the legislation could be proceeded with and disposed of this year.

I also make the point that, at the time of introducing the bills, I specifically asked if members would like to have committee sessions, as we have had in the past, relating to these bills to discuss all sorts of matters that are not of a political nature but are really related to providing welfare and community services to our constituents. No one in the Assembly asked for that sort of in-house committee meeting with me so they did not occur. The offer was made.

Mr Speaker, the draft bills were tabled in August and the preparation of the bills was completed and they are now before the Assembly. It is proposed that the bills be disposed of at this sittings. I would just like to say to all honourable members that it is a matter of great concern to the government, myself and all those people involved that members of this Assembly should be putting forward the view that this is hastily drafted and presented legislation and that it is being disposed of in an inadequate way. All I can say is that, with a history of presentation and formulation of legislation like that, and the interest of the honourable member for Fannie Bay in having the matters settled as quickly as possible, I think it is not unreasonable that the bills come forward tomorrow and, during the rest of the sittings, honourable members can have their say. If they have valid points that they would like incorporated in the legislation, they can be taken on board. But there is no reason in my view why the legislation should be put back for another sittings.

Admiralty House

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

Mr Speaker, the loudest noise you can hear from outside is from the listeners to 8 TOP FM. Has the Northern Territory Planning Authority recommended against the rezoning of the Admiralty House site?

ANSWER

There has been some controversy generated in the media recently regarding the Admiralty House site and also in relation to the acquisition of certain land from Sir Frederick Sutton by the government. I think that this complex matter would be best dealt with if I made a short statement to the Assembly after the conclusion of question time this morning although I am happy, if the honourable Leader of the Opposition requests it, to dilate at some length on this matter during question time. I am sure that I can go at least 20 minutes on it, Mr Speaker. However, I think that a short statement would be more in order. I only finished writing this statement this morning. It was typed at about 9.45 am and I handed copies of it to your assistants as I arrived. With the leave of the Assembly, I would propose to make a short statement in relation to the Sutton acquisition, the Douglas-Daly Research Station and the Admiralty House site at the conclusion of question time.

Oolloo Pastoral Lease Valuation

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

Was an independent valuation made of Oolloo pastoral lease as well as that undertaken by the Valuer-General? What were the results of these valuations and, in round terms, what was the government's last offer to the holders of the Oolloo lease?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the current negotiations regarding the Oolloo lease. In fact, I believe that negotiations were not continuing. I will be touching on this matter in my statement but I will be more than happy to give a short history of the Oolloo acquisition now. Mr Speaker, you would recall that you and I together had some part in attempting to establish negotiations with Mr and Mrs Rixon. At the time when the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority determined that it would require to acquire Oolloo in order to expand the project farms in the Douglas-Daly area, a number of senior government officials attempted to set up negotiations with Mr and Mrs Rixon. These were unsuccessful. Following on that, a personal visit was paid to Mr and Mrs Rixon at Oolloo by the then Minister for Primary Production, Roger Steele, and subsequent to his lack of success in getting negotiations going with Mr and Mrs Rixon, who declined to negotiate and indicated that they wanted to fight the matter all the way through the courts, you and I travelled to Oolloo, Mr Speaker. I think you will recall the event. Unfortunately, Mr and Mrs Rixon showed us the door also and indicated that they would be taking this matter to the highest court in the land, as I recall their statement to us as we left. Off the top of my head, I think the Valuer-General's original valuation of Oolloo was $200 000. I do not know whether an independent valuation has been obtained. I would assume that, unless Mr and Mrs Rixon have entered into some negotiations with us, they would be the parties seeking the independent valuation.

Mr Speaker, I can find out more about this. All I want to say at this stage is that I know that there have been court proceedings. I think court proceedings are still current and pending but, despite that, the government would like to try to resolve the matter with Mr and Mrs Rixon. You may recall, Mr Speaker, that we had a dispute with the owners of Douglas Station over the acquisition of the initial area to establish the ADMA farms and we settled that. I have made the same offer to Mr and Mrs Rixon and I am happy to repeat it. The offer made to the owners of Douglas Station was that, if they did not like the Valuer-General's valuation - and they did not - then we would nominate 2 private valuers - the fact that they are independent is just assumed in the case of valuers because they are sworn valuers - and the owners would nominate 2 valuers. We would select 1 of their valuers and they would select 1 of the 2 we nominated. Those 2 valuers would then carry out separate valuations and the government would pay the average of the 2 valuations by way of compensation to Mr and Mrs Rixon as was paid to the owners of Douglas Station, together with all fees and expenses. Really, I do not think that there is a fairer way to go about trying to settle compensation with anyone.

As you know, Mr Speaker, during our visit to Mr and Mrs Rixon, to try to get discussions going, I asked them to name their price and they would not even do that. We are happy to negotiate with Mr and Mrs Rixon or any person from whom the government has to acquire land at any time. If Mr and Mrs Rixon would like to discontinue their court actions, or not even discontinue them, and sit down and talk about compensation, we are happy to do so. As I understand it, their court proceedings are on the footing that they want to set the acquisition aside in its entirety. I would not want to comment on the likely decision of the court but I would not think that one would make a book on the likely result.

Plumbers and Drainers Licensing Act

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is the government considering changes to the Plumbers and Drainers Licensing Act in view of the representations that have been made by a number of plumbers who have been affected by changes to the licensing requirements?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government has received many representations on the implementation of the act. I note that, in recent days, the opposition has also made some remarks about the impact of the act on people who are operating as plumbers and drainers. The government has reconsidered its position in the light of these representations and, in view of the hardships being experienced, will introduce an amendment to the act at this sittings which will pay due regard to competency gained through experience.

Possible Government Acquisition of Pastoral Leases

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

Is it the intention of the government to acquire Humbert River Station, Bullita Station, a portion of Victoria River Downs Station, a portion of Fitzroy

Station, a portion of Delamere Station and a portion of Auvergne Station? If so, has the government undertaken a valuation of the above areas and will it move to acquire them compulsorily?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker,I am a busy boy acquiring all those stations. For a long time, the government has been nurturing the prospect of establishing quite an extensive national park in the Victoria River district. The government would like to establish more national parks in other areas of the Northern Territory. We would like to establish a park in the Roper-McArthur area and, of course, a MacDonnell Ranges national park is an aim that we have in mind. As far as possible, we are trying to go about this without recourse to compulsory acquisition. Whilst I cannot say that the government is proposing to acquire, through purchase or compulsion, the whole or any part of those stations referred to by the honourable Leader of the Opposition, a proposal for consideration by Cabinet is being formulated to buy rather than acquire parts of various stations - certainly Humbert River is one of them. From recollection, we are looking at the purchase of Humbert River in its entirety. I know that part of Victoria River Downs is also under consideration. I think the Leader of the Opposition mentioned Delamere and I am not sure about that one. Bullita is under consideration. As far as I am aware, it is only parts of these properties that are being considered, other than Humbert River.

The submission for the purchase of these properties, which I understand has been in preparation for quite some time and has resulted from negotiations with the owners of the properties over quite a long period, should be coming before Cabinet in the near future. It is proposed that, once these properties are purchased, the major slice of them - if not their entirety - will be designated for national park purposes. However, in view of the fact that it is coming to Cabinet, and I do not know the full details yet, I cannot say that it will be accepted. But, it is a proposal that Cabinet had discussed informally on a number of occasions over the last couple of years. Certainly, it has found much sympathy and support in Cabinet and I would expect it to be a proposal that Cabinet would endorse but I cannot say that with certainty.

Firearms Licences for Private Security Guards

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the current position for registration of firearms regarding the setting of standards for the issue of C-class firearms licences, namely pistols, to private security guards?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, certain criteria have been laid down by the Commissioner of Police, who is also, by virtue of his office, Registrar of Firearms, in relation to the setting of standards for private security guards. Commencing on 2 September this year, shooter's licences or temporary permits for C-class firearms - that is, pistols - are now being issued to security personnel subject to an applicant being of good character and his producing acceptable written certification, firstly, that he has undergone firearm training in the past 12 months and is proficient in the use of the pistol required and, secondly, that he has been properly briefed by legal counsel, who is to be named in the certificate, concerning his legal responsibilities and when the use of force may be justified. Licences and permits issued are endorsed in the following manner:

... authorised to carry on the person one only registered C-class firearm whilst physically present during the transferring of money or other valuable items in the course of duty as a security guard, whilst present for practice on a recognised range or whilst performing actual security guard duties during hours of darkness. The pistol must be carried in a holster which is secure and the firearm not exposed to public view.

Mr Speaker, this policy seems to have been accepted and, since it has been implemented, no complaints have been received from the public nor, I understand, from security firms or guards.

Purchase of Cattle Stations

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

This follows on from the previous answer that he gave. In the light of that answer, can he confirm whether or not the government is intending to purchase, and not acquire, the whole of the following cattle stations: Nathan River, Billengarrah, Bauhinia, Balbirini and Tanumbirini?

ANSWER

I am not aware of any proposal to purchase those properties. The names all ring to me of the Barkly Tablelands and MacArthur River areas from memory. Tanumbirini, Billengarrah and some of those properties would probably be in the area the government would hope to establish a national park. Whether those are the properties, I am not sure. To the best of my recollection, as Minister for Lands, I have certainly not authorised any action for the purchase of those particular properties.

Funding of Sports Stadiums in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for YOUTH, SPORT and RECREATION

Is it the government's intention to fund 2 sports stadiums in Alice Springs now that the YMCA and the Alice Springs Town Council cannot agree on a joint proposal? If so, has the joint viability of the 2 stadiums been considered along with the possible detrimental affects upon existing youth facilities?

ANSWER

Recently, I have had discussions in Alice Springs with both the YMCA and the Alice Springs Town Council. By way of background, in 1978-79, the Northern Territory government gave a commitment to the Alice Springs Town Council to upgrade Traeger Park. The first part of that upgrading was the baseball diamond so that it could be used for future national championships. In fact, it has been used for junior championships. In 1986, it is hoped that the Claxton Shield will be held in Alice Springs.

Part of that development was to upgrade the Centralian Football League area. That has been done. Hopefully, this financial year, it will be completed. Financial assistance has also been given to the tennis club in that area and it has upgraded its facilities for the purposes of its members. Also my colleague, the Minister for Community Development, has given the Alice Springs council an undertaking to provide financial assistance to upgrade the hockey surface in that area.

Part of the development proposal for Traeger Park was that a basketball stadium be constructed. Consequently, I have been able to advise the Alice Springs council and the basketball association that the Northern Territory government will be proceeding with construction of that facility this financial year.

Several months ago, we received a submission from the YMCA. The YMCA's proposal was to build a multi-purpose stadium within that area. In fact, the site it chose was adjacent to the swimming pool in Telegraph Terrace. At the same time, the council had wished to use that land for further expansion of the swimming pool. So there was some discussion between the Alice Springs council and the YMCA for that site. Several weeks ago, the Chief Minister and I met with the people concerned. A decision was made to allocate a portion of land in the Sadadeen area for the development of the YMCA proposal.

There are 2 different types of proposal. One is purely for basketball and associated sports and the YMCA's proposal is a multi-purpose one to provide a whole range of facilities for people in that area. The only difference of opinion between both organisations was the site. Fortunately, we were able to resolve that and arrangements are now being made to allocate a portion of land in Sadadeen for the YMCA to proceed. There is one proviso: funds will not be made available to the YMCA until the latter part of the 1983-84 financial year.

The honourable member for Alice Springs asked whether it would be detrimental to existing organisations. I do not think it would be because the Alice Springs Youth Centre is operating quite successfully within the region and has done so over a number of years. I would like to take the opportunity to pay tribute to that organisation which has provided a facility for the youth of Alice Springs. The Alice Springs population is growing and it will take some time before the YMCA facility and the basketball stadium are completed. These 2 new facilities will hopefully provide for that population growth. All members of this Assembly would remember that, in 1978, on the advent of self-government, we inherited a dearth of reasonable sporting and community facilities. This year, some $1.3m will be made available to the Alice Springs region for facility development. An additional facility will be the construction of a velodrome to national standards. This will allow that sport to develop further.

Mr Speaker, I do not believe that the addition of these 2 new facilities will be detrimental to the operation of the existing ones. I would assure the honourable member that we do look carefully at all applications for assistance in that area. At the moment, there is a proposal by the Alice Springs Memorial Club to provide further extensions to its facilities. We are looking at that. In some respects, we are not in support of a particular proposal of the Alice Springs Memorial Club to provide additional squash facilities. Officers of the Department of Youth, Sport and Recreation are discussing additional proposals.

In conclusion, I advise the honourable member for Alice Springs that the Northern Territory government, through its grants-in-aid program, does provide the opportunity for organisations to obtain government assistance for the construction of youth-related facilities.

The 3-to-1 funding has been taken up only by 2 organisations in the Northern Territory so far this year: the Girl Guides and the Boy Scouts. A third will be the YMCA. I would add, Mr Speaker, that we will go beyond a level of 3 to 1 provided that the YMCA does proceed with its Sadadeen development.

Stockpiling of Sulphur

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he assure me that steps have been taken to alleviate problems being experienced as a result of sulphur being stockpiled by Ranger Uranium Mines in the Darwin rural area?

ANSWER

Ranger Uranium Mines established a sulphur stockpile in September 1980 in the region of Bees Creek. During the first years of operation, some sulphur left the site and was deposited in the bed of Bees Creek. During November 1982, during early rains, the pH level of the creek water dropped to a level of 3 and persisted until heavy rains in early March 1983. Shell grit was added in an attempt to neutralise the flow and weirs were constructed to trap sulphur before it reached the creek. As the creek dried out, monitoring revealed that salts were forming in the sediment. These salts, formed by bacterial action on the sulphur within the sediments, are highly soluble and cause a drop in the pH level when flow commences.

The Controller of Water Resources has written to Ranger expressing his concern at the pollution of Bees Creek and insisting on remedial action. Ranger was directed to supply details of its proposed action to meet specified minimum water quality in the outlet drain from the stockpile site. Ranger has undertaken, or is proposing, the following action: at the stockpile site, removal of all sulphur to the mine site; clean up of the bunded area by grading and sweeping of all surface material - this has been removed and taken to the Ranger tailings dam; further cleaning of the area will be undertaken by hosing down as necessary; a neutralising agent such as lime will be applied over the whole stockpile area; no further sulphur will be placed on site between October and April; the drainage system is being widened and weirs modified to improve settling conditions; contaminated material is being removed from the drain; an automatic instrument to monitor the pH discharged from the site has been installed; in the creek bed, the company has undertaken the removal of contaminated sediments from the area; at the same time, keeping disturbance of any vegetation to a minimum and placing earth-filled cylinders in the bed containing shell grit as a neutralising agent, Ranger has undertaken to rehabilitate the affected creek bed; consideration is being given to the method of operation and effectiveness of neutralising and removing salts already in the creek bed; and examination of the effectiveness of monitoring and reporting and the use of automatic controls for the longer term. Based on submissions already received, it is clearly the intention of Ranger, subject to the approval of the Controller of Water Resources, to carry out several measures in addition to the above. It is believed there is a serious recognition of the problem and a commitment from Ranger to rectify it.

NTDC Loan to Terri Hatcheries and Fish Farms Pty Ltd

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can the Chief Minister advise the Assembly if the company, Terri Hatcheries and Fish Farms Pty Ltd, the principals of which are Mr Rex Jettner and Mr Sam Calder, is in receipt of NTDC loans of some $400 000? Given that this company is facing severe financial difficulties, can he advise the Assembly as to what action the government is taking to ensure that its investment is secure?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is interesting that the Leader of the Opposition should have asked this question because I understand that the NTDC will be considering this week its first annual report which will be tabled in this Assembly subsequent to the new procedures - that I outlined in a statement to the Assembly earlier this year - whereby all defaulting debtors of the NTDC will be disclosed in the corporation's annual report. A wait of a few days would have avoided the question and no doubt would have stopped the hares running. If what the Leader of the Opposition says is true - that the company is experiencing financial difficulties - he has now helped to precipitate its downfall. No doubt, this matter will gain publicity through the media and persons who are owed money by the company will panic and rush to press their claims immediately. That, of course, has brought down many a company which could have traded through its difficulties when it was at a delicate point in its financial history.

The situation is that there has been, as far as I am aware, a substantial loan for about $300 000 to a company called Terri Hatcheries and Fish Farms Pty Ltd which has 3 principal shareholders. Two of them are Mr Rex Jettner and Mr Sam Calder. As I understand the position, that loan is secured by a mortgage over a station property - I think it is Finniss River Station. At the present time, my understanding is that the company is not in default of any arrangement that it has with the Northern Territory Development Corporation. I will undertake to check that out and report back to the Assembly as soon as possible. To the best of my knowledge, there is no default on its arrangements with the Northern Territory Development Corporation by that company.

NTDC Loan to Terri Hatcheries and Fish Farms Pty Ltd

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

I wish to ask a supplementary question of the honourable Chief Minister in the light of the answer that he just gave and his mention of a mortgage. Is the Finniss River Station in breach of its covenants? If so, what action is being taken by the government to rectify this situation? Has the Northern Territory government received proposals from Terri Hatcheries for subdivision of Finniss River Station?

ANSWER

There is a whole raft of questions there. The honourable Leader of the Opposition has asked, firstly, whether Finniss River Station is in default under its covenants, whether the government has taken action in relation to any default and whether the company has applied to the government to subdivide the station. Unfortunately, I am not aware of any of the answers to those questions. The best that I can do is seek the information. If any application to subdivide the station has been made, it certainly has not been made to me but then that would not be unusual because a lot of these things are handled directly between the lessees and the department. I will find out as soon as I reasonably can and inform the Assembly.

Chief Minister's Future Intentions

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

I refer the Chief Minister to an article in the Woman's Day magazine of 10 October where he is quoted as saying: 'If I am re-elected next year, I won't be serving out my full term of office for, at some time during that period, I will have been the Chief Minister for 10 years. That is long enough'. This puts the Northern Territory electorate in the position of supporting an unknown leader for the Northern Territory in the event of an election of the CLP government. The Chief Minister has since categorically denied making that statement.

Is the Chief Minister aware that, on ABC Radio this morning, the editor of Woman's Day not only refuted the substance of the Chief Minister's denial but also his account of how the interview was conducted? Is the Chief Minister aware that the editor of Woman's Day has stated that not only is there a tape recording of the actual interview and statements of the Chief Minister but he personally has listened to it. In the view of these statements of the editor of Woman's Day and the serious reflection they cast on both the Chief Minister's veracity and his likely term of office, in the interests of the public of the Northern Territory, I would ask him to request the Woman's Day magazine to make that tape recording immediately available to the Northern Territory media so that it may be broadcast in the Northern Territory and the electorate of the Northern Territory can make up its own mind as to who is telling the truth.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is very pleasing and interesting to see that the Leader of the Opposition has such concern for my political future. One is gratified that the Leader of the Opposition is so keen to see the situation about my political future clarified. I have already spoken to Territory media about this matter on Monday. I have spoken to both television channels, both radio stations, to the Northern Territory News and any other print media that has cared to speak to me. As far as I am concerned, Woman's Day, if it has a tape-recording, can do what it likes with the tape-recording. As far as I am concerned, I have no property in it. I have made it quite clear that I will be standing for re-election to this Assembly in 1984. I have made it quite clear to the Northern Territory electorate, as I have all along, that, if I am re-elected to this Assembly in 1984 and subsequently re-elected by my party to the position of leader of the parliamentary CLP, and if that party has a majority in this Assembly, which I confidently expect, then I will be serving out the full term as Chief Minister of the Northern Territory. That is unless the Northern Territory moves to statehood during that time which I suppose is a possibility because it is rumoured that the federal government will talk to us about statehood before 1988.

In any event, to clear up any doubt whatsoever, I make the categorical statement that, in my view, the reporter from the Woman's Day was somewhat confused. We were talking about 10 years in politics and 10 years as Chief Minister. Frankly, I believe that the reporter became somewhat confused. Mr Speaker, I think that I have made the situation particularly clear: if re-elected to this Assembly next term and if re-elected as leader of the parliamentary CLP, I will be serving out the full term.

Tourist Vehicles

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand that concern has been expressed by some tour operators who have encountered difficulties in having 4-wheel-drive vehicles registered as tourist vehicles. Can he advise what the present policy is in relation to these vehicles?

ANSWER

The requirements for 4-wheel-drive vehicles used to transport fare-paying passengers is under close review by the Department of Transport and Works in consultation with the Tourist Commission and the tourist industry. The requirements have been set out in a motor omnibus code of practice distributed to all licensed omnibus operators and to vehicle dealers in February 1982. The standards identified in that publication include those for small omnibuses as endorsed nationally by the Australian Transport Advisory Council. The standards are somewhat higher than required for similar vehicles not carrying passengers for hire and reward. This is based on the view that, where governments approved particular vehicles to operate commercially, the paying public is entitled to reasonable expectations as to safety and comfort which may be higher than for private passengers who are travelling by private arrangements.

The tightening up of standards has shown up some limitations in vehicles currently on the market. It may be that nationally-endorsed standards are too high for the type of operations that 4-wheel-drive vehicles are used for. In recognition of the absence of fully-suitable vehicles, I have endorsed some interim modifications to the standards of comfort required for new registrations to allow the industry to upgrade on the basis of what is currently available. I have asked for the Department of Transport and Works, the Tourist Commission, operators and vehicle suppliers to sit down together to consider what the desirable longer-term standards should be and over what timescale they should be introduced. There is no intention of retrospectively applying higher comfort standards to vehicles already registered although the seating number approved for some may need to be reviewed because of some safety concerns. Details will be made known to the industry on a vehicle-type basis on what the interim arrangements will be for new registrations.

Ayers Rock Tragedy

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In relation to the recent disaster at Ayers Rock, will the minister confirm that it took over 2 hours from receipt of a call by St John Ambulance for an aerial medical plane to take off? Is it further correct that this delay resulted from the Department of Health being inadequately prepared for an emergency in that supplies had to be packed in the early hours of the morning before the planes could leave?

ANSWER

I am unable to give the honourable member precise details in relation to that particular question. As I understand it, the people involved with providing medical services in the region at the time of the accident did an excellent job in providing back-up facilities. The sister-in-charge reached the scene pretty quickly. However, in relation to her specific questions, I will provide information later during this sittings.

Chairmanship of Northern Land Council

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

What is the present situation regarding the chairmanship of the Northern Land Council?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would have thought that the position of Chairman of the Northern Land Council was of some interest in this Assembly since the Northern Land Council controls approximately 14% of the surface area of the Northern Territory. The reason why the Leader of the Opposition is not so keen to talk about who is chairman of the land council is that his colleague, Mr Clyde Holding, the federal Minister for Aboriginal Affairs, has carried out a bloodless coup d'etat out at Berrimah at the offices of the Northern Land Council. The NLC had 53 elected members which formed an executive of 13, out of which came the chairman. The 3-year term of the council members and executive, including the chairman, would have expired on 29 August 1983 and the land council was geared up for elections on 27 September. On Friday 12 August, a meeting in the Department of Aboriginal Affairs office in Darwin was attended by the person whom, one would assume, would rightly be the chairman, Mr Gerry Blitner, and Mr Bill Gray from the Department of Aboriginal Affairs and several land council members and observers. The Minister for Aboriginal Affairs, Mr Holding, said that he was extending the term of the council by 3 months to allow for greater representation by Aboriginal people. Observers at the meeting were given to understand by the minister that he had extended the term of the Northern Land Council members, the Executive and the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman. The 3 months' extension of term, so the minister said, was to allow for another 27 members to be elected to the NLC in the interests of greater representation. According to Minister Holding, the new council will have 80 members. Of course, we are criticised in this Assembly if we increase the representation of the whole Northern Territory from 19 members to 25 but the NLC's representation has been increased from 57 or so to 80.

The land council meeting is scheduled for Thursday 13 October. On Monday 10 October, Mr Blitner was informed that he was no longer the chairman as the minister had no power to extend his term, although he apparently has power under the act to extend the terms of members. Aboriginal communities have been nominating members for the council over the past month and, apparently, Mr Silas Malarangura has taken over as interim chairman until the election on Thursday. In the meantime, Mr Blitner, I am told, has been denied access to NLC facilities, including telex machines. Mr Holding, as all honourable members know, is an anti-uranium activist and has clashed verbally and in the press with Mr Blitner, both as minister and whilst Mr Holding was an opposition back-bencher. Mr Holding's law firm represented the Alderson family in its last ditch attempt to block the Koongarra mining agreement. Mr Holding was vocal at the Lake Bennett meeting where the National Aboriginal Conference also had much say and attempts were made for an inquiry into the operations of the Northern Land Council. Earlier this year, the Northern Land Council's media organ 'Land Rights News' carried a story from Gerry Blitner hitting back at southern critics, including Mr Holding, of the Koongarra agreement and saying that the NLC was pro-uranium but it was pro-Aboriginal and the traditional owners wanted uranium mining. At the Aboriginal Affairs Ministers Conference in Melbourne, Mr Holding openly advocated the National Aboriginal Conference as the supreme Aboriginal body in Australia. He did the same at the Lake Bennett meeting. His expansion of the NLC numbers, coupled with the extension of existing members' termsand the sacking of the chairman, shows the federal minister is taking an unhealthy interest in the internal affairs of the NLC, particularly at its election time.

Mr Speaker, now that Mr Wesley Lanhupuy has been endorsed by the Australian Labor Party federal executive as its candidate for Arnhem, a possible deal is that Mr Wesley Lanhupuy goes to the Assembly and Gerry Blitner goes on the scrap heap. So much for self-determination when an Aboriginal gets in the way of personal views and policies of the federal Labor Minister for Aboriginal Affairs. If there is a disgrace, it is a disgrace on the part of Mr Holding for interfering in this election in this blatant way.

Chairmanship of Northern Land Coucnil

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Mr Speaker, I will give the Chief Minister an opportunity to carry on with this nonsense. Is he aware that the decision to appoint an interim chairman for the Northern Land Council was in fact taken on legal advice sought by the legal department of the bureau of the Northern Land Council? Is he aware that the decision to appoint Mr Silas Malarangura as interim chairman until the elections - which will be held tomorrow - was taken on receipt of legal advice that the federal minister only had the power to extend the terms of members and not of the chairman and that that decision was taken by the fully Aboriginal executive of the Northern Land Council itself and not by the minister?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would certainly be pleased to respond to that. I am informed that Mr Gerry Blitner has legal advice to the contrary. Obviously, there are 2 disputing legal views. All I can say is that the federal Minister for Aboriginal Affairs has set up Mr Gerry Blitner nicely. The only way that Mr Blitner can hold his position as Chairman of the Northern Land Council, which he is legally entitled to hold until the election, is by taking legal action. He has no funds and he has no resources to do so. That is the position. This deposition of Mr Blitner should never have occurred and would not have occurred without the interference of Mr Holding extending the time of the election.

Ministerial Officer in Katherine

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is he presently considering the establishment of a ministerial officer in Katherine and, if so, on what terms as this would appear to be somewhat unique in the annals of Northern Territory Cabinet history?

ANSWER

I have no information for the honourable member.

Pine Creek Water Supply

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise what steps are being taken to alleviate problems with the supply of water to Pine Creek?

ANSWER

The supply of water to Pine Creek has been a problem for some time. New bores have been drilled but there have been some delays in equipping of the bores and the construction of the rising mains. The problem has been exacerbated by the discovery of unacceptable levels of arsenic in one of the bores causing it to be withdrawn from service. At present, all bores pump directly into the reticulation as it is not possible to pump directly to storage tanks. In addition, all the bores are in danger of forking and, where possible, production rates have been reduced to avoid this.

It is expected that 3 of the 4 new bores will be equipped by the end of November and, with the construction of a rising main, the first bore should be on line by the beginning of December. The other 2 bores will come on line in January. A public meeting was held in Pine Creek on Tuesday 4 October with the Katherine Area Manager and a public works engineer present. Some 22 people attended the meeting. The department's representative explained the position, the consumption patterns required and the consequences of ignoring restrictions. Various leaks, including 4 leaking fire hydrants, were brought to the attention of the department and maintenance crews have been dispatched to rectify the situation. A departmental representative has gone to Pine Creek to call upon larger consumers individually in an attempt to obtain their cooperation. The situation will be monitored daily and the department hopes that action now being taken will be successful in alleviating the situation.

Ministerial Officer in Katherine

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he appointed a ministerial officer and staff to Katherine and does he have an office in which to locate this officer in Katherine?

ANSWER

The complement of my personal staff is presently down by one. My proposal to fill that position is to appoint a research officer based in Darwin.

Teacher Positions in NT

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

There has been public comment recently about anticipated teacher shortages for next year. Can he advise the Assembly whether applications for teacher positions in the Northern Territory are down on previous years and whether there is a demonstrable lack of interest in teacher positions in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

There has indeed been some public comment and concern expressed about the teacher situation in the Northern Territory. There has been an expectation that supply and demand of teachers in Australia may put us in the position of finding it particularly difficult to recruit teachers to the Territory in future years. I am pleased to advise that, on the advice of the Northern Territory Teaching Service Commissioner, applications now being received are reaching an all time high. This was at a time when it could have been expected that they would reach an all time low. The latest figures indicate that 687 applications have been received from interstate and applications are continuing to come in to the Teaching Service Commissioner's office at a rate of approximately 50 per day.

We believe the reason for the influx of applications is that, approximately 4 to 6 weeks ago, an intensive advertising campaign was mounted in southern states. It included advertising in national and state newspapers and teachers' union publications. In addition, a poster and publicity campaign was conducted in all colleges of advanced education. These efforts now seem to be bearing fruit. Teaching and life generally in the Territory is beginning to have more appeal to residents of southern states. The Territory is seen by Australians generally as a progressive place to be in. It appears that promotional opportunities are declining in some southern states and, generally, that there is a lack of opportunity and challenge. In some states, particularly South Australia, there is still an excess of graduates over teaching vacancies. Interestingly though, other states which do not have that problem have generated many applications; for example, we have received some 90 applications from Western Australia. It is also interesting and very encouraging to note that a considerably-increased proportion of applications are from mature teachers of several years experience. Honourable members will be aware that one of the difficulties faced in the past in the Territory was that many teacher recruits were straight out of teachers college.

Interview rounds will commence towards the end of this month. In view of the number of applicants, they may have to continue right to January. Selection will be rigorous to ensure that we obtain the most suitable teachers in terms of qualifications and experience for the Territory. We are hopeful of obtaining many more mature and experienced teachers for the Teaching Service. In common with the rest of Australia, we envisage there may still be difficulties in recruiting suitable teachers in the science and technical studies areas, as there is a national shortage. However, the picture is very encouraging over all. I understand that teacher retention rates in the Northern Territory are also improving. Together with nearly 700 applications we have received for teaching positions in the Northern Territory, it certainly places us in a very encouraging position as far as the future is concerned.

Ayers Rock Tragedy

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Can he confirm that a request was made to Ansett Airlines in Alice Springs to provide an F28 aircraft to evacuate victims of the accident at Ayers Rock? Is it a fact that the aircraft could have evacuated all the victims to Alice Springs within 1½ hours? Was the request originally agreed to and, if so, why was it subsequently withdrawn?

ANSWER

I am unable to provide the honourable member with information now. However, I will provide an answer to her.

Subsidies for Freighting Liquor to NT

Mr HARRIS to TREASURER

The Darwin Hotel manager has recently suggested to the freight inquiry that there is a scheme afoot in the Northern Territory whereby liquor wholesalers can obtain a subsidy for the cost of freighting liquor into the Northern Territory. Is such a scheme operating in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

There is no specific subsidy available for freighting liquor into the Territory. It is understood that the person who made the submission to the Northern Territory inquiry was referring to the scheme whereby the Northern Territory government refunds sales tax paid on freight for many items brought to the Territory by wholesalers. If I recall correctly, during the last election campaign, the federal ALP undertook to abolish sales tax on freight. Perhaps we could inquire whether that is another item in the long list of broken promises.

The Territory government scheme was introduced in 1980 to assist Territory-based wholesalers who were disadvantaged in relation to wholesalers in the states. The purpose was to enable Northern Territory wholesalers to keep a greater range of stocks for sale. It was cheaper for people to buy goods from southern ports, pay the sales tax there and freight the goods to a Northern Territory retailer rather than deal through a local wholesaler.

The scheme has been working successfully and Territory residents have benefited through a slackening of expected price increases. It has now attracted interest from some 46 companies in the Territory. At present, $250 000 has been allocated in the Territory budget to cover subsidies. A relatively simple administrative system enables claims to be processed quickly once the percentage of sales tax attributed to freight and handling charges is calculated on the particular goods. That percentage is then applied to the actual amount of sales tax paid and forms the basis of the wholesalers' subsidies. From time to time, I receive information from Treasury seeking approval for payments to wholesalers under this particular scheme.

The Northern Territory government introduced the scheme to try to counter some of the costs of living in the Northern Territory, in this case a cost which results from an inequity whereby Territory people and other people in remote areas of Australia have to pay sales tax on the freight component of goods. This is an anomaly in the Australian taxation system that we have brought to the attention of successive federal governments for many years without a great deal of success. It appears that the latest federal government has added it to its list of broken promises.

Public Holiday for Australia II's Victory

Ms LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

I understand that South Australia had a public holiday on Monday to celebrate Australia II's victory in the America's Cup. Is it the intention to declare a public holiday for the Northern Territory and, if so, has he considered 1 November which is Melbourne Cup Day?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I said that the Northern Territory would monitor the situation in the other states. In fact, I did ask my department to do this and, to date, no advice has been received that any other state is planning a public holiday to commemorate the victory of Australia II in the America's Cup. I will again inquire of my department as to the plans for public holidays elsewhere but, to the best of my knowledge, even Western Australia, which one would imagine would have the greatest amount to crow about, has not yet planned to have a public holiday to celebrate the arrival home of the crew of Australia II.

One other matter of interest which has been taken up by the Northern Territory Tourist Commission is the spin-off benefit to Australian tourism which will hopefully occur as a result of the yacht races that will have to be held if there are challenges to the Royal Perth Yacht Club for the custody of the America's Cup. I know the Western Australians hope that it will result in a very great influx of visitors and money to Western Australia. The Territory Tourist Commission is making plans to attempt to ensure that as many of those people as possible will be attracted to the Northern Territory during their stay in Australia and that as many as possible will be brought into Australia through the Northern Territory. This latter prospect is limited because of the lack of direct flights from our national airline, Qantas. Mr Speaker, I believe that the Tourist Commission is showing great foresight in doing this. We have an office established in Perth, but I am sure that the America's Cup will prove an extremely valuable tourist asset to the state of Western Australia.

As to the matter of the public holiday, the government certainly does not want to be a dog in the manger about this. We propose to follow the lead of other states and we have been waiting to hear what they propose to do.

Ayers Rock Tragedy

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

In the light of genuine and serious concern that is being expressed in Alice Springs about the evacuation of patients from the Ayers Rock disaster, will he establish an inquiry into the management of the disaster to ensure that delays do not occur during any future emergency in central Australia?

ANSWER

I will not give an assurance that I will hold an inquiry. The honourable member opposite asked me previously if I was aware that it took 2 hours for an aerial medical aircraft to get off the ground. I am not quite sure that that information is correct. I did not give the honourable member a precise answer because I wanted to check my facts first. I offered to provide that information at a later hour. My understanding is that the accident happened at about 1 o'clock in the morning and the people involved were treated very quickly. St John Ambulance people and professional staff in that region were on the scene very quickly. In fact, I received a minute from the Secretary of the Department of Health advising me that, as far as he was aware, the particular situation had been handled with the utmost efficiency. Accidents like this can happen anywhere in the Northern Territory and the Department of Health is able to provide the necessary equipment and personnel as soon as it receives the information. Yesterday, in the budget speech, it was mentioned that St John Ambulance would receive a grant of over $2m from the Northern Territory government to provide these services not only in the main centres of Darwin but also in some of the other areas.

My understanding of the situation is that the people involved in the unfortunate accident at Ayers Rock were evacuated as quickly as possible not only to the Alice Springs Hospital but also to a hospital in Adelaide. The victims received the most efficient service possible considering the circumstances. I will obtain the information that the honourable member asked for in relation to the F28 being on the ground and why it was not used. There may have been a mechanical problem. There are several reasons why it may not have been brought into service. As I said earlier, I will provide the honourable member opposite with the information she requires at a later date.

Security in Territory Prisons

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

In view of the recent prison officers' strike and the resultant publicity focussing on the question of security in Territory prisons, can he inform the Assembly what action has been taken?

ANSWER

The matter to which the honourable member refers was dealt with during my absence by the Chief Minister. It really relates to the industrial relations portfolio. I would ask the honourable member to redirect the question to the honourable Chief Minister because he would have everything at his fingertips as he was involved in the discussions at the time.

Security in Territory Prisons

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the recent prison officers' strike and the resultant publicity focussing on the question of security in Territory prisons, can he inform the Assembly what action has been taken?

ANSWER

It is true that, at the time of the dispute, the honourable Minister for Community Development was in Tennant Creek. As minister responsible for industrial relations, I became involved in the matter. I was approached by the Secretary of the Department of Community Development, the Director of Correctional Services and the Public Service Commissioner. The dispute centred over the feeling that the prison officers had that they would be made scapegoats for the escape of these prisoners being conveyed from Gunn Point Prison Farm to Darwin Prison.

As a result of discussions with representatives of the Prison Officers Association and the Miscellaneous Workers Union, it was decided to have an inquiry into the escape. I will read into the record the terms of reference, which also relate to security at the prison. The inquiry is to be carried out by the Police Commissioner, the former Director of Correctional Services, Mr Terry Fegan and Mr Hunter Harrison of the Prison Officers Association. Their terms of reference are as follows:

Firstly, to consider representations made by the Prison Officers Association and the Senior Prison Officers Association on matters relating to the security of the prisoners at Darwin Prison, Alice Springs Gaol and Gunn Point Prison Farm, including the escape of 4 prisoners from custody on 18 September 1983, and rosters and manning.

Secondly, to seek advice as necessary from the Director of Correctional Services and the Secretary of the Department of Community Development on these matters.

Thirdly, to submit conclusions and recommendations to the Chief Minister and to the Minister for Community Development on the understanding that they will be discussed with management and representatives of the Senior Prison Officers Association and the Prison Officers Association before submission to the ministers.

It was also agreed between the parties that immediate steps would be taken, beginning on Monday 26 September 1983, to check the security of all vehicles used for the transport of prisoners and to remedy defects. As I understand it, the various vehicles were in fact being progressively fitted with the necessary security equipment. B block will be closed earlier each day to release 3 officers plus one miscellaneous duty officer for enhancing the manning of G, K, H and L blocks. This arrangement will be for a trial period of 1 month from Monday 26 September 1983 subject to review by the end of that time by management. If, after that month, the committee of inquiry has not reached a conclusion on manning levels, management can extend the arrangement for a period necessary to enable the committee to reach a conclusion or it can end the arrangement. It was agreed, however, that the committee of inquiry would make the manning levels and rosters for G, K, H and L blocks its first consideration and provide an interim report on this matter if necessary.

The roster arrangements for Gunn Point Prison Farm will be looked at urgently, beginning on Monday 26 September 1983, by representatives of the Department of Community Development, Public Service Commissioner's Office and the Prison Officers Association to settle the matter in which the problem of single officer manning at night could be solved. As an interim arrangement, the officer on night shift would be redeployed to the afternoon shift leaving no cover on the night shift and officers would commence at 6 am for the day shift.

Mr Speaker, I asked for the inquiry to commence as quickly as possible. I understand it is doing so. Naturally, the unions are agreeable to it all and have stated so publicly. I hope to have a report fairly soon. As a result of that, I hope that these problems can be resolved.

Ngaringman Aboriginal Lease Application

Mr DOOLAN to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the government's intention to purchase Humbert River Station in its entirety, as mentioned by the Chief Minister during question time yesterday, will consideration be given to the Ngaringman Aboriginal application for a lease at Lingarra, which is located on this property, and where they have been living for a number of years, in order for the government to demonstrate its firm interest in establishing a settled community there and obtaining a lease over an appropriate area of land for the community needs? I would add that Lingarra is not a proposed community; it is an established community and they have been living on site for some years.

ANSWER

I have not followed this matter up since yesterday. I indicated in my answer yesterday that I was not precisely sure of what stations or parts of stations the government was proposing to purchase. I do believe that Humbert River is included. I will certainly inquire into the situation as stated by the honourable member for Victoria River. At this stage, I could not give any such undertaking.

Replacement of Asbestos Insulation in NT Powerhouses

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Can he advise that a program is continuing to replace asbestos insulation in the Territory's powerhouses and, if so, is that program being carried out within the guidelines of established worker, job and safety codes?

ANSWER

The short answer to both of those questions is yes. The arrangements as far as industrial safety goes are being coordinated by the Department of Mines and Energy Industrial Safety Division in conjunction with advice that came from the Department of Health and the concerned unions. I share the unions' concern. There is no question that asbestos, particularly blue asbestos, is an extremely dangerous substance. In fact, it is one of the most dangerous of all of the insulating materials available. Having regard to those concerns of the unions and government, that material is being removed from the Stokes Hill power-station in particular, and, I would hope, anywhere else where the public has access. It is a material which is no longer required. It was installed in power-stations for the purposes of very effective insulation at a time when its hazard to health was unknown.

The process of removal will continue, and with a great deal of care and consideration to workers in close proximity to this dangerous material while it is being removed. I would expect it would take some time to complete this project due to the very difficult nature of the removal of the substance itself. Blue asbestos, of course, becomes more dangerous with time. It disintegrates; it becomes powdered. When you attempt to remove it after a period of time, particularly if it has been used as a boiler wrap or a hot-water or steam-pipe wrap, it becomes even more unstable. It is the inhalation of blue asbestos, or any asbestos, which is highly undesirable. Blue asbestos, being the more dangerous of the 2, is the one that the department and the Northern Territory Electricity Commission will be most concerned to remove very carefully indeed.

Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

What investigations were undertaken by the Department of Mines and Energy to check the bona fides of Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd when it was selected as a subcontractor on the Mereenie oil field pipeline?

ANSWER

Let me make it very clear at the outset that this company was not selected at all by the Northern Territory. Indeed, as honourable members ought to be aware, the pipeline is not owned by the Northern Territory. It is owned by private enterprise. The role of the Northern Territory government is to ensure the engineering standards of that pipeline are within the meaning and terms of the Pipeline Licensing Act. That is the sole role of the Northern Territory government in this matter.

I can understand the way people in Alice Springs are feeling in that many of them think that the government ought to have had a role in it. But that would mean that, every time a private enterprise company employs a subcontracting private enterprise company, the government ought to investigate its bona fides. Nonetheless, I think it is fair to say that, during the process of the pipeline application to the Department of Mines and Energy, and particularly myself, the minister responsible for the issuing of the pipeline licence, Interstate gave information to TNT which subsequently proved to be less than truthful. I understand from the information that I have been given that it listed assets such as earthmoving equipment, wrapping equipment and the like. It subsequently turned out that all of that was either encumbered such as to make it unavailable to creditors or, worse still, just on lease.

Yesterday, I mentioned that one of the major creditors is a small business in Alice Springs which is itself an equipment hire company. Without naming the actual company, it works through Coates Hire. Quite clearly, if one looks down the list of creditors, such as the major earthmoving components of the debts, it is apparent that Interstate, rather than being an actual operator of equipment, in fact sub-subcontracted most of the contract to other people. It is its lack of payment to those local construction companies and hiring firms which is causing me a great deal of personal concern. My interest in this, apart from my obvious role to see that the correct things were done within the meaning, terms and spirit of the Companies Act, is more as a local member coming from Alice Springs. People in my constituency, and in those of the honourable member for Alice Springs and Stuart of course, have been badly hurt and are facing potential ruin as a result, in some cases anyway, of the activities of this company and its apparent inability to pay its debts.

I can only repeat what I said yesterday. I urge that company to pay its debts forthwith or I will continue with my examination of whatever mechanisms may or may not be available under the Northern Territory Companies Act.

Government Policy on High-rise Building in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the controversy in Alice Springs concerning the proposed high-rise building, can he advise what is the government's policy in this respect?

ANSWER

I presume that the honourable member for Stuart has raised this matter because of the recent controversy in Alice Springs over a town planning decision to reject a building proposal by the Aboriginal Development Commission for a 6 or 7-storey building on land between Hartley and Bath Streets. It is amazing how different points of view seem to arise in different circumstances. I think it could be properly said that, in respect of buildings that could interrupt the view anywhere between Anzac Hill and Heavitree Gap, it has been a long-established policy that there should be buildings of not more than 3 storeys. Unfortunately, the Aboriginal Development Commission apparently wants to maximise the use of the particular land which, I understand, it has purchased from the Uniting Church. It has a number of historic buildings on it that were erected back in the 1920s and 1930s when the Presbyterian Church first established its mission in central Australia.

In any event, I discussed the policy after the Town Planning Appeal Board's decision which rejected the application for review by the Aboriginal Development Commission. I discussed the policy with the Alice Springs Town Council because I believe that, as Minister for Lands, I should take the views of the council into consideration. As far as I could judge from my discussions with the council, it seems that it wants the existing policy of low rise in that area to continue. The council had no objection to an area being set aside for high rise or multi-storey development in Alice Springs. Its view and my view was that this area would probably need to be in one of the side valleys where it would not interfere with the amenity of the aspect which is the hallmark of Alice Springs on which its international reputation is built.

The Alice Springs town plan, Mr Speaker, restricts the erection or use of a building which contains more than 2 storeys except with the consent of the Northern Territory Planning Authority. The authority's policy is to restrict building height in the central business district of Alice Springs to 3 storeys. The authority has now exhibited for public comment an amendment to the town plan to incorporate the 3-storey limit into the town plan and I will receive a report from the authority when it has considered submissions.

That is the position. I understand the Aboriginal Development Commission has taken its appeal to the Supreme Court, apparently by way of prerogative writ claiming some breach of natural justice, one assumes. I discussed the matter with its architects after the decision when they requested to see me. I suggested that the quickest solution would be to redesign the building to spread it over more of the land. The government's policy is that there should not be any buildings in that area above 3 storeys.

Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Yesterday, he stated that Interstate Constructions Pty Ltd had given assurances to the Department of Mines and Energy that it did have extensive asset backing. Why didn't the department check this information? Secondly, why wasn't the department aware until after it had been pointed out by creditors of the company that the machinery was actually on lease and not owned by the company?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, for the life of me, I cannot remember having said any such thing. I do not have Hansard in front of me to check it. If I said such a thing, then it was not my intention. As I indicated this morning, the sole role of the Department of Mines and Energy was to ensure the technical standards involved in the construction of the pipeline and, of course, to ensure its successful completion. In both regards, the government's assessment of all of the companies involved in that has been completely justified and accurate. The relationship between the owner of the pipeline, TNT Bulkships, and any subcontractor that that company wished to employ was a matter of normal commercial practice and not a matter for government. The government's function was to ensure technical standards and to ensure its completion. There is a separate contract between NTEC and the Palm Valley joint venturers for the purchase of gas at the wellhead. Given that, we must have contractual assurances to ensure the maintenance of the pipeline so that the gas ultimately arrives at the power-station. However, the government has not had, and nor should it have had, any role in the vetting of the financial worth or otherwise of private companies which are not contracted to the Northern Territory government.

Ammaroo School

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he advise when it is proposed to open a new school at Ammaroo in central Australia?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am advised by the department that a school is planned to be opened in January 1984 although completion will be effected later this year. A janitor will be on site as soon as the school is completed this year. The complex consists of 2 classrooms, 2 residences, 2 toilet ablution blocks, shade areas, an electrical-generating plant and an upgraded water supply.

Housing Commission Interest Rates on Loans

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER FOR HOUSING

In view of recent falls in interest rates since the latest Commonwealth bond tender, is there any intention to reduce the maximum interest rate currently applicable on housing loans offered by the Housing Commission to the general public?

ANSWER

The Northern Territory Housing Commission interest rates are still well below the Australian average. For the time being, there is no intention by the government to reduce interest rates.

Timber Creek School

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he advise when it is proposed to open the new school at Timber Creek?

ANSWER

Honourable members will appreciate that we have many schools in the Northern Territory. I think there are 150 of them. A question about any one of them could come at any time. I am advised that the proposed Timber Creek school will open early in 1984. It will be a mobile complex comprising a classroom, a residence and a toilet ablution block. A 0.8 ha site on police land close to the existing community services is currently being negotiated for with the Northern Territory Police Force. Problems have been encountered in finding an adequate water supply for the school. Currently, the Department of Transport and Works is investigating a possible means to achieve this water supply.

Fish River Pastoral Lease Acquisition

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Yesterday, he failed to address let alone answer a number of significant questions in respect of the Fish River pastoral lease acquisition and Sir Fred Sutton. Will interest be payable to the former leasholder in respect of compensation paid for the acquisition of the Oolloo pastoral lease and, if so, from when will the government be liable to make such interest payments?

ANSWER

I am sorry that I did not give sufficient attention to the Oolloo acquisition when making my statement about the Fish River acquisition. Next time I am making a statement about something else, I will remember to include everything in my portfolio in the statement.

Mr B. Collins: It is not related to it at all.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Well, now we are told that it is not related. I wonder what sort of question I am being asked, Mr Speaker. I have already given considerable information in relation to the Oolloo acquisition but I will read a short briefing that I have now received from the Department of Lands regarding the Oolloo pastoral lease determination of compensation.

Pastoral Lease 748 was compulsorily acquired from Mr Robert Rixon on 24 March 1982. An offer of $200 000, which was the Valuer-General's assessed market value at that time, was forwarded to the solicitors representing Mr Rixon on 28 April 1982. A otice of ispute rejecting this offer was received. You will recall that attempts at negotiations had been made by the ministers prior to the time of acquisition. Mr Rixon had told us that he intended to fight the matter through the court. Nonetheless, the offer of $200 000, the Valuer-General's assessment, was conveyed to Mr Rixon. It was rejected and a notice of dispute was received by the government.

In an effort to settle the matter quickly though, a second offer at an amount of $350 000 was forwarded on 2 July 1982. This offer, which included interest, was subject to acceptance within 28 days. The offer was not accepted nor rejected. I heard as an aside the word 'fascinating'. Mr Speaker, the government receives the Valuer-General's valuation and one normally expects that the government should as far as possible adhere to the Valuer-General's valuation. As I said yesterday, valuation is not an exact science. It is rendered extremely difficult in these circumstances, where the only yardstick for valuation purposes at all for pastoral land that is intended to be used as agricultural land is another acquisition, namely, the Douglas acquisition. There are no sales of comparable agricultural land to which the valuers can refer. However, the Valuer-General does his best. We indicated to everyone whose property is being acquired in that part of the world that, if they want to nominate 2 valuers, we will nominate 2 valuers. They can then pick 1 of the 2 we nominate, and we will pick 1 of the 2 they nominate and we will average what the valuers come up with and pay them that as compensation. That offer has been made to everyone because of the difficulty in establishing what could be called a scientific valuation because of the lack of the sort of data that valuers need to work on.

The offer of $350 000 was forwarded on 2 July 1982. It included interest and was subject to acceptance within 28 days. It was not accepted nor rejected. In accordance with the Lands Acquisition Act, a 90% part payment has been made based on the original offer of $200 000. Mr Rixon received $78 138 after the payment had been made to mortgagees who had the first prior right. On 5 May 1983, the then Chairman of the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority, Mr Baden Cameron, requested that action be commenced to have compensation determined by the Lands Acquisition Tribunal. The minister approved this course of action and a preliminary hearing of the Lands Acquisition Tribunal before the Chairman, Mr P.D. James, was scheduled for 10.30 am on 15 September this year. That was last month. The purpose of the preliminary hearing was to coordinate a later hearing by the tribunal to determine the level of compensation payable to the former owners. The solicitors representing Mr Rixon failed to appear as the solicitor concerned was unexpectedly delayed by a matter in the courts. The preliminary hearing as a result did not proceed. The solicitor later met with the Chairman of the Lands Acquisition Tribunal and tentative arrangements for a hearing in mid-November have been set. The Registrar of the Lands Acquisition Tribunal is waiting for advice from solicitors for Mr Rixon as to the availability of their valuer and whether the valuation will be completed by mid-November. Their valuer is Mr J.R. Wake from Townsville who completed one of the 2 valuations used in determining compensation for the area required for ADMA from Douglas Station. Both parties have agreed that the tribunal will consist of the chairman, Mr P.D. James, and valuers Messrs John Patterson and G.C. Fenwick. The matter is obviously progressing.

Investments in Trustee Executor and Agency Company

Mr D.W. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

In light of the uncertainty suffered by Territorians who have invested in the Trustee Executor and Agency Company, which failed this year, can he indicate what moves the Territory government is taking to protect the investors' interests?

ANSWER

Honourable members would be aware that the government immediately acted upon the collapse of that company in May this year to protect the interests of many charitable organisations and community-based groups by ensuring that grant funds that they had invested in that organisation would be made available prior to the commencement of this financial year. So the government has already acted to protect Territorians against this unfortunate company's collapse. The actual position in relation to the company is that, as a trustee, it holds some 160 Northern Territory wills - and controls the administration thereof - and in the order of $3.5m in deposits. In addition to that, it has some $2m worth of short-term property loans within the Northern Territory. Territorians obviously were affected considerably by the collapse of the company. What has now happened is that, in order to protect unsecured creditors - that is, people who are without security in terms of mortgage and so on - of that company, the receiver offered that side of the trustee company's business for sale nationally. The upshot was that that very sound and well-known Australian banking group, the ANZ group, has offered $6m for the trustee side of the company's operations.

What is now necessary is complementary legislation to be enacted by the Australian states, the Commonwealth and the Northern Territory to facilitate the smooth transfer of the operations of the Trustee Executor and Agency Company to a new company to be called ANZ Executors and Trustee Company.

I propose during the course of this sittings, hopefully tomorrow, to announce the Northern Territory government's intention to introduce complementary legislation. It has already been before the Victorian parliament. I would assume it is going to be done around Australia. That will be by way of an amendment to the Companies Trustees and Personal Representatives Act. I would hope to be in a position to give notice tomorrow and hopefully introduce that bill next Tuesday.

Fish River Pastoral Lease Acquisition

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

My question follows on my previous question about Oolloo. Will interest be payable in respect to the compensation paid for the acquisition of the Fish River pastoral lease? If so, what rate of interest and from what date will the government be liable to make such interest payments?

ANSWER

Quite frankly, I am not aware of whether the amount of interest is included in the proposed settlement figure. I can certainly find that out and then inform the Assembly.

Rolls for New Electorates

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

Could he advise the Assembly when the new rolls will be printed and available showing the new 25 electorates?

ANSWER

I will have to take that question on notice and advise the honourable member at a later time.

NTEC Funds

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Why were funds which were raised by Treasury through the semi-government borrowing program for use by the Northern Territory Electricity Commission not drawn on by NTEC during the financial year 1982-83?

ANSWER

I too have noticed the comments of the Auditor-General in this regard. There is a briefing available from Treasury which I have not yet seen. I am certainly happy to make the information available to honourable members. Indeed, as that report is before the Assembly, I will make a point of that coming on for debate and will address the question at that time. I believe there is information coming from Treasury at this stage.

Assistance to Small Businesses

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

What steps are being taken to increase the level of assistance given to small businesses since the announcement of increased funding in the budget speech?

ANSWER

The Small Business Advisory Service has done considerable work in identifying as it sees it the best use for the additional $1m. I understand that its proposal will have to be approved by the board of the Northern Territory Development Corporation. I expect to receive firm recommendations from the NTDC in the very near future, although I understand that the Small Business Advisory Service is looking to expand its operations in a number of ways. It is proposing to expand its advisory and information services, and its educational services in conjunction with the community college and other educational institutions. It proposes to provide on-the-job consultancy services. It proposes to assist in the promotion and development of markets and also to provide for special loans in certain circumstances.

As was said in this Assembly yesterday afternoon, one of the major causes of failure by small business around Australia has been the lack of training of people in small business in management techniques. I certainly believe that it is in that area that the Small Business Advisory Service could very usefully expend a considerable portion of the additional $1m of funding made available to it by the Territory government in this year's budget. Artificial supports for any small business which is not viable or not being managed properly will only draw out its existence rather than make it flourish. The best way that the government can assist small businesses is by ensuring that the Northern Territory economy is flourishing as best it possibly can. To that end, the budget this year has expended significantly greater amounts of funds in the capital works areas. That has spin-offs for the service industries and to small business generally.

I am sure that, when the Small Business Advisory Service announces in detail its plans as to how it intends to use those funds, they will be to maximise the benefits to small businesses in the Territory generally.

Teaching Positions in NT Schools

Mr BELL to MINISTER for EDUCATION

I refer him to his previous answer in relation to applications for teaching positions in the Territory for 1984. Does he have at hand specific information about how many applications there are for positions in general primary schools, Aboriginal schools and secondary schools? Particularly in relation to secondary schools, does he have information available about applications for teachers of foreign languages?

ANSWER

I do not have that specific breakdown. Whilst I think that the applications could be broken down into primary and secondary teaching, I am not sure that they could be broken down any further until such time as a complete assessment of the applications has been made. He may be asking for information a little in advance of our capacity to provide it. However, I will seek the information that he asks and, if it is available, provide it during the course of this sittings.

Darwin Port Authority Bill

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it his intention to proceed with the Darwin Port Authority Bill (Serial 328) at this sittings and would he undertake to circulate as soon as possible any proposed amendments to save unnecessary duplication.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, it is the government's wish to proceed with the legislation at this sittings. Recently, quite a bit of consultation has taken place with various interested parties and amendments are being prepared at present. I will undertake to circulate the amendments prior to the second-reading debate.

Terri Hatcheries and Fish Farms Pty Ltd

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister) (by leave): I would like to provide additional information in response to a question asked yesterday by the Leader of the Opposition in relation to funds provided by the NTDC to a company known as Terri Hatcheries and Fish Farms Pty Ltd. An amount of $350 000 was approved on 1 October 1981. Terri Hatcheries is in business apparently as a fish farm.

$290 000 has been drawn down. The account is not in arrears or default. The security is a second mortgage over pastoral lease 689, Finniss River Station, and personal guarantees from the directors. The corporation understands that the company is looking at the prospects of subdivision of Finniss River Station.

I have a report on Finniss River Station because I was asked the status of the pastoral lease there. On 13 September 1983, an inspection of the Finniss River pastoral lease was carried out for the purposes of determining compliance with the lease covenants and reappraisement of lease rental. The lease was found to be in breach of lease conditions requiring 81 ha of improved or artificial pasture and in breach of the condition requiring maintenance of all improvements. Whilst the pasture breach is considered to be minor, the maintenance of improvements is poor. A notice under section 24A of the Crown Lands Act is to be issued for non-compliance with lease conditions. An application to subdivide the lease for agricultural purposes was received by the department on 3 October 1983. Further information is to be sought from the lessees concerning use of the residential area.

Myilly Point Development

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Has any agreement been reached between the Territory government and Henry and Walker with respect to the Myilly Point development or the actual site on which the development is to take place? Have any contracts been signed between the government and that company?

ANSWER

Unfortunately, at this stage, no contracts have been signed with anyone, let alone Henry and Walker, in relation to the Myilly Point site. As I advised the Assembly on Tuesday, there are negotiations going on with 2 parties. At this stage, as I understand it, both parties are furthering their feasibility studies of the proposals that they have for the particular site.

NT Government Lottery

Mr VALE to TREASURER

Following the success and popularity of the first Northern Territory government sponsored lottery in July, can the Treasurer advise what plans the government has for future lotteries?

ANSWER

There has been indeed a great deal of interest in the Northern Territory government lottery following the very substantial success of the first one for which virtually all sales were completed within the first 3 or 4 weeks of the program. We had expected to sell them over 3 months. As a result, Cabinet has decided that a second lottery will be launched shortly and will be drawn just before Christmas. One of the advantages of this is that the tickets will remain at the very large A4 size - the largest lottery tickets in the world. The tickets' very high standard will be maintained. The tickets in future will include an aspect of the Northern Territory scenery. They have been expertly prepared and will make excellent gifts as well as being very attractive to tourists.

First prize will still be $100 000. There will be some adjustments to the minor prizes compared to the first government lottery. The next government lottery should go on sale about 3 November. Indications are that it will be as successful as the first lottery because of the interest that has been expressed and the continuous inquiries to the Racing and Gaming Commission about advance orders. I am pleased to announce that the government will be allocating the proceeds of this lottery - in the vicinity of $50 000 - to charities in the Northern Territory. Advertisements will appear shortly asking for charities in the Northern Territory to apply for some of those funds.

Electricity Charges

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

If the Northern Territory is successful in getting a remission of the additional excise on fuel oil, how will that affect our electricity prices given that we are tied to north Queensland which may not get the same attention?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, in recent times, the direct tie to north Queensland rates have been removed. There is no such fixed arrangement any longer. One would assume that, if we were to try to maintain a reasonable balance of electricity charges, we would certainly have regard to north Queensland rates. In so far as the excise imposed by the Commonwealth in its last budget is concerned, quite clearly that is outside of any consideration which would be relevant to north Queensland. It uses coal and we use imported oil. It would not be the intention of this government to increase electricity charges of the order which has been advised as being necessary - that is, 6.3% - as a result of the Commonwealth's impost on the Northern Territory. If that impost were removed, that 6.3% would not apply. It is not the government's intention at the moment to increase electricity charges in any event other than would otherwise be caused by this impost. Whether or not there is an increase in electricity charges in the 12-month span is totally dependent on the attitude of the Commonwealth and not on anything under the control of the Northern Territory.

Community Employment Program

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

In May this year, the federal Minister for Employment and Industrial Relations set in train machinery to establish a community employment program. Is he able to indicate to the Assembly what stage that program has reached in the Northern Territory? In particular, have any guidelines been set for the program?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, as the member for Port Darwin said in his preamble, on 19 May this year, the federal Minister for Employment and Industrial Relations introduced into the House of Representatives a bill to appropriate $300m for a community employment program over a period of 3 years. The intention of the legislation is to implement a major job-creation program throughout Australia to create jobs for the unemployed through the funding of projects to provide worthwhile community facilities and services, principally at the local level. States and Territories were invited to join with the Commonwealth in the community employment program scheme and the Northern Territory government has accepted the opportunity to participate in the program.

Funding allocations to states and territories was determined on a population basis, with the Northern Territory unfortunately receiving a total allocation of only $2.822m of the $300m. Within this allocation,specific money has been identified as follows: funds for local roads - $1.306m; funds for water supply projects - $169 000; and funds for Northern Territory government or local government and community organisations projects - $1.347m. In addition to this amount, successful project sponsors should wherever possible contribute 30% of total project costs, thus further increasing employment-generating opportunities. Agreed guidelines for the program have been finalised and particular emphasis will be placed on providing jobs for longer-term unemployed people and those disadvantaged in the labour market.

The guidelines propose that a joint Commonwealth-Northern Territory secretariat be formed to encourage submissions from a wide cross-section of the community. I understand that already a number of submissions have been lodged. The secretariat will also serve as a consultative committee which will consider project applications and will make recommendations to the Commonwealth and Northern Territory governments jointly for approval.

The joint secretariat has been formed and commenced operations at suite G7, first floor, Centrepoint Building, Smith Street, the Mall, Darwin. Nominations for the consultative committee have been determined and these names have been sent to the federal minister for acceptance. At this time, a total of 267 expressions of interest have been recorded by the secretariat and a total of 15 sponsor applications have been processed for consultative committee consideration. It is expected that the first approvals will be considered before the end of this month.

Asbestos for Sanderson High School Pipes

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

In view of the known hazards to health presented by asbestos, which have been acknowledged in this Assembly earlier by the honourable Minister for Mines and Energy, why do the specifications for Sanderson High School construction projects specify the use of asbestos pipes for the school's water reticulation system?

ANSWER

The government has undertaken to seek further information on the question of asbestos in water pipes. The health hazard associated with asbestos is the inhalation of minute fibres which have been found to cause cancer. Asbestos is not now used as a fibre product in the building industry and has not been for several years. However, it was previously commonly used for thermal lagging and is therefore most likely to be found in powerhouses.

The product is still used extensively in the form of asbestos cement which is commonly used in buildings and pipes. This product contains approximately 15% asbestos and the fibres are locked in by the cement with which it is combined. The fibres can only be released by cutting the material and in this event there is far more cement dust produced than asbestos dust. Asbestos cement is an extremely long-lasting material and ideal for use in water pipes where the water provides a continuous curing process for the cement content, thus extending its already long life. There have been extensive scientific tests carried out on this type of pipework. A team of environmental consultants in the UK tested water samples from asbestos cement water pipes in use throughout the world. In no instance was the concentration of asbestos in the sample more than one-tenth of the limit prescribed by the world health organisation. It has been suggested that pipework could break down or disintegrate over the years, thus polluting the water. The test previously referred to, it should be noted, was carried out on pipes in use and which had been in use for varying lengths of time and had never indicated any such deterioration. There are more asbestos fibres released from brake-linings in everyday driving than are produced by the construction industry.

Accommodation at Berrimah Police Complex

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he provide brief details of accommodation being planned at the new police headquarters at Berrimah for police and fire brigade personnel and what use will be made of present accommodation in the various places in Darwin?

ANSWER

The Berrimah police complex, currently under construction, is due for completion about mid-1984, although it is presently running ahead of schedule. I do not have any precise timing. It will house all police operational units and the Fire Services headquarters component. Police offices will be retained in the Darwin city area, at Casuarina, Palmerston and Fred's Pass. The existing traffic complex on Coonawarra Road, Winnellie, known as the Traffic Centre, will be retained to house the police supply and stores section, the police air wing and the combined police fire and emergency services' garage and workshop. The existing police headquarters in the Darwin Police Station has been declared surplus to the needs of the Police department and is intended for occupation by another government department. When the new police complex at Berrimah is occupied, leases on the Vogliotti Building, Mitchell Chambers and Roussos Building will be relinquished.

Cane Toads

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

In view of the serious threat that the cane toad would impose on the environment if it did reach the wetlands in the Top End, has consideration been given to setting up an inspection point on the Barkly Highway to inspect vehicles coming from Queensland to make sure that those vehicles are not carrying unwelcome passengers in the form of cane toads?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, despite the few jokes we are able to raise about the issue from time to time, the possibility of the cane toad coming into the Territory is indeed a very serious matter and one that will require the surveillance of the whole community. I recently circulated to all members a briefing paper on the cane toad. That information suggested that the cane toad is moving west out of Queensland at the rate of about 30 km per year. While there have not been any sightings in the Northern Territory at this stage, there is no reason to believe that they are not here or that they will not come. In fact, the challenge to the Conservation Commission and other people involved in the eradication of this pest is to educate the community to the problems that the cane toad will represent for us and to have the community on guard constantly looking for the arrival of this species and for ways of making sure that its movement west is as slow as possible.

Added to this is the risk confronting the Northern Territory with importing products from Queensland. I refer particularly to the possibility of cane toads being brought into the Northern Territory by the farmers who are importing 60 000 or 70 000 trees over the border to plant a mango plantation at Katherine on the Bernard farm. The possibility of cane toads coming in in a shipment of trees of this nature is not to be discounted at all. The Conservation Commission is working with the Bernard principals in this matter to ensure that every precaution is taken.

The member for Port Darwin raises the suggestion about the suitability of putting a road block on the Barkly Highway. While that is something we may treat with some mirth in the first instance, the issue of quarantine between ourselves and Queensland is one that we can no longer regard in a jocular fashion. It is something that we will have to be very mindful of as our agricultural and horticultural industry increases in size and as the traffic in primary produce between the 2 areas increases. Honourable members would be aware that there is a horticultural inspector at most airports to ensure that people are not unwittingly carting unwanted bugs and pests into particular states. We may have to look at some method of protecting the Northern Territory from some of the bugs that haunt the agriculturalists of this country. I will endeavour to report back to the Assembly in the November sittings on the progress that is being made and the measures which the Conservation Commission and the Department of Primary Industry believe are necessary to ensure that unwanted bugs do not threaten our agricultural, horticultural and primary industry potential.

Disabled Persons

Mr BELL to CHIEF MINISTER

Has the Chief Minister given an undertaking to groups representing disabled people that he will introduce an equal opportunity bill into the Assembly to ensure equality of opportunity to disabled persons in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I cannot recall giving any such undertaking. If the member for MacDonnell could be more specific about what group he is referring to and when, I would be happy to search my files to see if that is the case. I do not recall giving any such undertaking recently. It may have been some other minister.

School Buildings

Mr LEO to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Why is Tennant Creek, which has a student population of some 704 students, to get priority for a third school while Nhulunbuy, which has a student population of 1114, will only receive some upgraded demountables and possible extensions to the high school?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have all the details before me even though I have of late taken considerable interest in the education system at Nhulunbuy as far as school facilities are concerned. I think it is wrong for school communities in the Northern Territory to make judgments based on a town 900 km away, and say that, because it has x number of schools for a similar population, it should have the same. The situation is quite different in the 2 areas. Without going into much detail, I can say that both towns started off with area schools. Honourable members will be aware what an area school is. The Tennant Creek area school was on quite a small block of land. As the population there grew, it was necessary for additional educational facilities to be built on another site. The area school simply could not be expanded. In Nhulunbuy, the situation was quite different. Also in Tennant Creek, there was serviced land available for these additional facilities. In Nhulunbuy, the situation for potential population growth must be assessed from time to time because the town has the solitary purpose of mining. It is unique in Australia in not having road access. Its future can be determined more accurately than a place like Tennant Creek which has a number of industries.

In Nhulunbuy, the area school is situated on a very large area of land. That large area of land was even larger in a real sense because it was adjacent to a couple of hectares of public open space as well. There was considerable room in Nhulunbuy for expansion on the present site. At that time, there were no additional sites available. Today there are no additional sites available should the government decide that it should build another primary school in Nhulunbuy, which some people in Nhulunbuy would like to see because it has a very large primary school. That is some explanation as to why there is a difference in the educational layout of facilities between Tennant Creek and Nhulunbuy. Whilst I am happy to address and provide information and experts from the Department of Education to school communities to discuss their situation, where we should go in the future and so on, I think it is wrong to make comparisons between distant towns which have so many differences. In that situation, student numbers, town populations and the number of schools are really quite irrelevant.

Seminar on the Criminal Code

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Has the ABC agreed to televise the seminar on the Criminal Code on Saturday?

ANSWER

I understand that the Chief Minister received a letter from the ABC this morning indicating that it felt that it was unable to televise either in whole or in part the seminar which the government has set up for the purposes of explaining the legal realities of the Criminal Code rather than its philosophy. I would have thought that the ABC, having telecast so many other matters of significant public interest around Australia, would have seen fit to have devoted at least some time apart from normal news service to this particular very important matter. The short answer is no. Because of financial and equipment reasons, the ABC has been unable to see its way clear to do so. We are somewhat disappointed.

Collection of Payroll Tax

Ms D'ROZARIO to TREASURER

The government currently is undertaking a campaign to ensure that every cent of payroll tax that is due and payable is collected. When did the campaign commence and does the Treasurer expect that the campaign will significantly alter the government's estimated increase in payroll tax revenue given in this year's revenue statement?

ANSWER

The government has tax inspectors whose role it is to make routine checks on all areas of company activities which impinge upon the lawful payment of taxes to the Northern Territory government. I am sure that the whole community would agree that everyone should meet his responsibility as a taxpayer. There was not so much a campaign commenced to inspect books and have tax inspectors travel from place to place. We have been doing that all along. The number of tax inspectors was increased some time ago. In fact, this has been an activity of the taxation office ever since the office was established. The improvement has been in the provision of resources for field trips, checking returns and so on.

As far as the second part of the honourable member's question about the impact on revenue estimates is concerned, obviously, the Treasury and the taxation office have made the best estimate that they can for the 1983-84 financial year. I would expect that the activities of the tax inspectors should not make a great deal of difference unless they come upon unexpected examples of tax evasion or tax avoidance which can result in additional funds flowing to the government.

Control of Mosquito-borne Diseases

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has the government accepted the offer of $30 000 on a dollar-for-dollar basis from the federal government under a national program for the control of mosquito-borne diseases such as encephalitis and dengue fever.

ANSWER

The short answer is yes.

Casuarina Development Site

Mr VALE to MINISTER for LANDS

What is the current situation concerning the Casuarina development site which is bound by Trower Road and Bradshaw Terrace.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, applications to purchase and develop this site were advertised both locally and nationally and 3 development proposals were received. A local group, Casuarina City Centre Development Pty Ltd, provided the best combinations of price and development proposals. This group is headed by Mr Dominic Scaturchio and was given a 120-day option to finalise details both in terms of end-users and the financial aspects. This has largely been done and I am pleased to advise the Assembly that an offer of tenure for the land has been made to this local group. Development covenants on the land include provision for a $35m complex and the development includes a hotel, motel, restaurants, service stations, cinema, indoor recreation and retail and discount outlets. It is pleasing to see local businessmen combining to take this opportunity for investment and development in the Territory and I certainly wish them well in their venture.

Electricity Charges

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

This follows on an answer he gave a short time ago about electricity charges or lack of them. There was a note in the explanatory notes to the budget on NTEC, which I though was very intriguing, that there had been little or no maintenance work carried out in the 1982-83 financial year due to 'lack of resources' and also an indication that there would be a rapidly expanded maintenance program this financial year to make up for that. Can he explain what caused the lack of resources so that the maintenance was not carried out and whether this rapidly expanded maintenance program this year will result in an increase in electricity charges?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, that is rather a complex question. I think the best way to go about it is to answer the last part of the question first. Under no circumstances will electricity tariffs be used for the purpose of providing accelerated maintenance programs. Electricity tariffs are based on the operational function of NTEC and not on its capital side. If any government in the Northern Territory were to attempt to amortise in any way the asset value and the improvement to asset value, we would be paying $10 per unit. It is quite impossible to do it that way.

Mr Speaker, as to the question relating to maintenance, I would need to seek further information on that. As a minister, one must take a very close interest in the activities of one's departments because one is directly accountable in here for every decision taken by those departments, whether or not one knew about them at the time. NTEC is, nonetheless, quite a different identity. Its whole charter is set up as business; it runs as a business enterprise. It is answerable to government and therefore answerable to the people through this Assembly for its activities. No doubt, there would be very good business reasons why it chose to expend funds on capital matters during the last financial year and not on maintenance matters. It may be now varying those priorities after having achieved whatever capital initiatives it wanted.

I must say that the wording is odd. No member of the commission ever brought, to my attention at least, any suggestion of 'lack of resources' in that area. I think that the most accurate answer would be that it has channelled its resources in a manner in which it has seen fit as an operational business enterprise and it is clearly now adjusting its priorities. Nonetheless, I do not think that answer I have given will be satisfactory to honourable members. I will certainly seek further information and make it available.

Humpty Doo High School

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Can he tell me when stage 2 of the construction of the Humpty Doo High School will be completed and when will the proposed school farm be developed?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have the information for the honourable member before me. I have lots of other information about schools which I guess she would not find interesting. I will certainly seek the information for the honourable member and provide a detailed explanation during these sittings.

Subdivisions in Alice Springs

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for LANDS

Will he undertake to ensure that backyards in future subdivisions in Alice Springs will not face onto roadways as is the case with blocks in Sadadeen stage 1 and Araluen?

ANSWER

There appears to be a divergence of views from Alice Springs on this matter. While I can assure the honourable member that there will be no blocks in the new Mt John subdivision backing onto the main road, I cannot give him the total assurance that he has asked for. From planning and road safety viewpoints, it is not desirable to provide direct access to urban residential blocks from major roads. It is therefore inevitable that, in providing access from minor roads, some blocks in future subdivisions will back onto major roads. Nevertheless, I can assure the honourable member that every effort is made in designing these subdivisions to minimise the number of blocks adjoining major roads.

While I am on my feet, I will just refer to the residential land situation in Alice Springs generally. I seem to recall it being raised in question time earlier in the week. The development of Sadadeen stages 2 and 3 subdivisions is proceeding rapidly and it is expected to transfer 70 lots to the Housing Commission later this month with 34 lots on the private market by the end of November. The balance of the development, 125 allotments, should be on the market by March 1984. Larapinta Estates currently has applications before the Planning Authority to subdivide 18 lots which could be available in March 1984 and to rezone another area which has the potential to yield 60 lots in October 1985. The timetable cannot be guaranteed at this stage as this is private land but there are no headworks constraints and development will be directed by demand. While land in Larapinta and Desert Springs is up market, people moving in to those subdivisions release housing in other areas onto the market. A rezoning proposal for 0.4 ha lots in the farm area is currently on exhibition and, if accepted, will provide a new choice in residential lifestyle not previously available in Alice Springs. The Emily Hills estate has the potential to yield up to 250 lots of this type. Again, movement to rural subdivisions makes housing available in other areas.

Funding for headworks to the Mt John residential subdivision has been advanced to 1983-84. This will enable stage one of around 230 lots to be completed by the end of 1984. This area has the potential to yield an additional 700 allotments. The provision of headworks and drainage to the valley are major obstacles and expensive to overcome. Limited clearance on the aspect of Aboriginal sacred sites has only just become available. The Department of Lands is investigating the potential of various pockets of land for in-fill development. One area is the Dixon Valley road. Depending on the removal of rockfill dumped there several years ago, 70 to 100 allotments can be produced. It is planned to release this land to a developer in December 1983 and turn off could occur by June 1985.

Land is not unlimited in Alice Springs. Future expansion will require acquisition from surrounding pastoral properties. Some areas have significant constraints imposed by the existence of sacred sites. Current planned development should be capable of catering for a population in the town of 26 000 people.

Passenger Service on Townsville Trader

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has the Northern Territory government undertaken any studies or encouraged ANL to undertake studies on what demand there would be for a passenger service on the Townsville Trader?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware that we have encouraged ANL or carried out independent studies ourselves as to the suitability of or requirements for passengers on ANL routes. I understand that all matters of ANL activity are currently under very close scrutiny. I was proposing to make a full statement about ANL and the east coast shipping service next week.

Criminal Code Seminar

Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Again, this follows on a statement made earlier this morning about the failure of the ABC to cover the Criminal Code seminar. Was the Attorney-General invited to debate the Criminal Code on ABC television? Did he decline this invitation and, if so, why? If it was because of the person offered to debate against him, I would be quite happy to make myself available for such a debate on ABC television should the Attorney-General decide to reconsider his decision.

ANSWER

I could not care less who is offered to debate with me on this issue. I will take on any comer on the thing. It is not that at all. A program like Territory Tracks and the time available to do justice without distortion to a matter as complex and as involved as the Northern Territory Criminal Code would cause nothing more than confusion in the public mind. That is not only my view but it is the view contained in every piece of advice I have received. The Leader of the Opposition is perfectly correct. I have declined to accept the ABC's offer because I believe it would be harmful. If anyone around here, particularly the Leader of the Opposition, thinks it is because I am afraid to debate the issue, then I would simply point out that I am setting aside 2 whole days to do just that, both in Darwin and Alice Springs. I will debate the matter with anyone. But I will not have it distorted by journalists or a certain journalist who has clearly demonstrated a certain view. More importantly, the time available for that sort of debate would be totally counterproductive and would confuse the public more than it is confused already.

Criminal Code Seminar

Mr B. COLLINS to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

I have more faith in the public, Mr Speaker.

Mr Robertson: Because you want to confuse people; you don't want honesty to come out. That's the reason.

Mr B. COLLINS: It would be a great debate.

My question again is, if the ABC is prepared to allow extended time for such a debate, since according to the answer just given time is the problem, would the Attorney-General be prepared to reconsider his decision to debate with me on television on the Criminal Code? The Chief Minister debated with me on the railway with some alacrity.

ANSWER

The honourable gentleman mentions the railway. All there was involved in the railway was a broken solemn promise by the present Labor government that it would build it. Now that is not complicated, is it?

Mr B. Collins: Answer the question.

Mr ROBERTSON: You raised it my friend. It was a straight, broken promise. That is all there was to debate and the Chief Minister, naturally, because it was so simple, won it hands down. Now, as to the other part of the question, what a nonsensical proposition for the Leader of the Opposition to put to us. On the one hand, the ABC says it cannot spare the time to film for the public benefit ...

Mr B. Collins: All day!

Mr ROBERTSON: I said: 'in whole or in part'. He cannot listen either.

Mr B. Collins: Which part?

Mr ROBERTSON: It spent a whole week on the summit yet it could not devote half a day, which is about all that would be required, for the purposes of the Criminal Code. What a nonsensical proposition. We already have a letter from the ABC saying it cannot spare the time to film a factual presentation, not by a politician but by a lawyer...

Mr B. Collins interjecting.

Mr SPEAKER: Order, order!

Mr ROBERTSON: He asks a question and then babbles and prevents me from answering, Mr Speaker.

Mr B. Collins: How much time do you want?

Mr SPEAKER: Order, order! The honourable Attorney-General will be heard in silence.

Mr ROBERTSON: He cannot remain silent, Mr Speaker.

Mr B. Collins: Hardly.

Mr SPEAKER: Order! The honourable Attorney-General will be heard in silence.

Mr ROBERTSON: Mr Speaker, the plain fact is that the ABC has indicated that it is not prepared to devote the time necessary to properly get across the meaning and realities of the Criminal Code. What a nonsensical proposition it is for the Leader of the Opposition to now propose that that period of time would be set aside for the purposes of his sounding off. It is a preposterous proposition.

Howard Springs Reserve

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Is he aware of concern being expressed by some people about certain service works being carried out at the Howard Springs Reserve?

ANSWER

I am aware of recent press reports suggesting that the work being done at Howard Springs is damaging the flora on the reserve. I have sought an explanation from the Conservation Commission and I would like to read it to honourable members.

The particular project involved at Howard Springs involves the upgrading of sewerage facilities at the park in order to overcome problems caused by increased visitor usage of the area. The problem was that effluent from facilities on the western side of the park had to be pumped to the treatment ponds on the eastern side. Four alternatives were put to the consultants and the Conservation Commission decided to adopt the route through the rain forest as this provides the least threat to park values. Everybody is probably aware, Mr Speaker - and it is still evident - that Cyclone Tracy seriously damaged the canopy of the rain forest. With this in mind, it was considered reasonable to sacrifice part of the degraded forest least likely to be of concern to visitors because the alternatives, although less damaging in toto, passed across the areas of highest public use. The opportunity could be taken also to build walkways through the clearing and then rehabilitate the forest so that, eventually, there will still be an area of undamaged new forest accessible by use of the walkways. The Conservation Commission admits that its officers agonised over this problem. They acknowledged and understand the concern that has been expressed in the community. The solution is unsightly at the moment but they believe that positive change should be seen shortly after the wet.

Lyons Cottage Tenants

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

For the benefit of the ABC, I think the answer to my previous question was no. Has the minister officially advised the tenants of Lyons Cottage that, according to the Chief Minister's statements made in here on Tuesday, they are to be removed?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have sent a copy of my statement to the Secretary of the Department of Lands. In passing, Mr Speaker, since the Leader of the Opposition has advised the ABC that the answer is no, it seems to me from everything that the Leader of the Opposition has said this morning that the ABC is taking its directions from him. Apparently, he can give undertakings that the ABC will make extra time available for debates between himself and the Attorney-General. The federal Labor government can demand a week of ABC television time.

Ms D'ROZARIO: A point of order, Mr Speaker!

Mr SPEAKER: What is the point of order?

Ms D'ROZARIO: Mr Speaker, Standing Orders clearly state that the answer to a question shall be relevant to the question. The matter of the ABC's transmission has nothing to do with the tenants of Lyons Cottage.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, I would not have raised the topic had there not been a deliberately provocative remark by the Leader of the Opposition in his preamble about the Attorney-General and the ABC. The situation is - and I think that we ought to be placing it on the record - that the ABC seems to be able to do anything for the federal government. It can provide a week of television time to film the entire proceedings of the National Economic Summit yet, for a community such as the Northern Territory, considering a most important piece of legislation which has had a very strong media attack on it, the ABC cannot suspend its normal programs for one Saturday of the year and find the necessary resources.

Ms D'ROZARIO: A point of order, Mr Speaker! The Chief Minister is making an adjournment speech. He can bring this up later in the afternoon if he wishes to pursue it.

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable Chief Minister answer the question please.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, the situation in relation to Lyons Cottage ...

Opposition members: Hurray!

Mr SPEAKER: Will honourable members allow the Chief Minister to answer the question.

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, it would be nice too if the honourable member for MacDonnell would keep his laughing for when he goes home to his looney bin.

The story with Lyons Cottage is that I have discussed this matter with a working party which I set up a couple of weeks ago to consider the future use of Admiralty House and Lyons Cottage. As a consequence of making the statement to the Assembly on Monday - which I note was not noted or debated - I have sent a copy of the statement to the Secretary of the Department of Lands and asked him to initiate the necessary action. I indicated in the statement that the tenants would have a few months, at the very least, to relocate to satisfactory premises. I must say, Mr Speaker, that it has always been a criterion of mine that, if we are to save buildings which are regarded as being historic or having some significance to the public, as far as possible, they should be open to and accessible to the public. Certainly, I intervened in the case of Audit House to ensure that there would be public access to Audit House on a certain specified number of occasions each and every year. Had I my time over again, although I was not involved in the decision at the time, private organisations would not have been given tenancies of Lyons Cottage. In my view it should always have been in its pre-eminent use because, of its very nature, it would have been a small museum in relation to the history of the British Australian Telegraph Company and the Overland Telegraph Line. I do not want to cause these organisations any inconvenience; we will give them whatever time is reasonably needed to relocate. Their requirements are pretty small anyway, because Lyons Cottage is not that big. Action has certainly not been instituted to kick them out. Negotiations will be civilised and they will have at least a few months.

Door-to-Door Salesman

Mr VALE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware of the activities of a door-to-door salesman, travelling from town to town, offering to take family portraits and the finished product is often far from that which was originally promised and far from satisfactory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am aware that there is a firm of portrait photographers who are selling door-to-door in Tennant Creek and Darwin. Their activities have been such that many complaints have been received by the consumer affairs people. I do not think it is unreasonable that this be highlighted in the Assembly and that the people of Darwin and Tennant Creek become aware of the activities. The firm's name is New Image Photographics and Art. It operates door-to-door and undertakes to have photographic portraits delivered at a specific time after the payment of a deposit. It turns out that considerable delays are being experienced in delivery and, in some cases, the product is unsatisfactory and difficulties arise in the cost of returning the portraits to Queensland for satisfaction. In some instances, consumers have found, to their dismay, that they are being expected to pay the COD cost on top of the original agreement to purchase the portrait. I bring this to the attention of the Assembly because there are many people in the Northern Territory who do business with door-to-door salesmen and do it on very satisfactory terms. Every now and then, there is a group that comes into the Territory that does not exhibit a high level of business ethics and Territorians are taken for a ride. Rather than portray everybody in the door-to-door sales business as a villain, it is important that we highlight the less satisfactory ones on occasion so that people can be made aware. If honourable members are aware of any of their constituents suffering some disadvantage by the activities of door-to-door salesmen, whether they are Territory-based or interstate-based, I would be grateful if they would bring it to the attention of myself, my office or the Consumer Affairs Council.

Rum Jungle Rehabilitation

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

How much funding was allocated for the upgrading of accommodation being used for the workforce engaged in the Rum Jungle restoration scheme? How much was spent and is it a fact that these buildings are to be demolished on completion of the 2-year contract with James Hardy?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I do not have a figure for accommodation in this vital project. This year, some $53m has been allocated by the Commonwealth through the Northern Territory for the rehabilitation program. I will seek further information and pass it on to the honourable member this week.

Electoral Rolls

Mr VALE to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise if and when the new electoral rolls showing the names and addresses of all people, including the new Territorians, in the 25 new electorates will be printed and available?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, this question was asked yesterday but I was unable to answer it. In the meantime, I have obtained the necessary information. Had the member for Stuart not asked the question, I would have provided the information towards the end of question time. Administrative arrangements for the printing of the new rolls are in hand. It is expected that they will be available to the public, through the Northern Territory Electoral Office, by the end of this week or early next week. Maps showing the new electoral divisions will also be available through the Electoral Office. The Electoral Office has also notified each elector by post as to the division in which he or she is now enrolled as a result of the redistribution. Quite a number of us would have already received those fawn-coloured slips. I hardly need to ask the media to highlight the fact that an election in the Northern Territory must take place before August next year. The point it could highlight is that people who are not enrolled should be enrolling. That would be a considerable assistance to the Electoral Office and would fulfil a real public duty.

Sale of Food from Vehicles

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware that a number of food vendors are operating out of ordinary motor vehicles in the Winnellie area and, if so, can he advise what action is being taken to ensure that they comply with the provisions of the Food and Drugs Act?

ANSWER

Two other ministers are also involved in this: the Chief Minister and the Minister for Community Development. The only advice that I can give is that Department of Health surveyors have been keeping an eye on the take-away food vendors to ensure health standards are met. There are some problems because I received complaints from some of the local food store operators who were paying rent. They were a bit concerned that they were employing staff, paying payroll tax, rent and insurance and had several other overheads and some of these operators are able to take some trade away from them. I understand that, after consultation between the 3 ministers involved, the matter will be resolved in the near future.

Statement by Senior Public Servant

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware that a senior public servant stated to the National Trust that, if it continued its opposition to the removal of Admiralty House, it would not receive Northern Territory government funding and was that statement made with his authority?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have no knowledge of any such statement. It certainly was not made with my authority.

Timorese People

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has the government been able to extend help to Timorese people in the Northern Territory having regard to their place in the wider community?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the activities of the Timorese society in the Northern Territory community are really very extensive. I had the opportunity the other day to receive a delegation from the Timorese community to explain their activities and seek government support. For the benefit of members, I would like to say that the Timorese community is establishing its own cultural centre, for want of a better term, in the northern suburbs and it has been assisted by the government by the provision of demountable buildings that will enable the community to get off to a good start. The activities of the community vary from child care to teaching traditional dance and music. The community, I understand, has a very strong soccer contingent in local soccer competitions. At this stage, it is organising to send a delegation of Darwin Timorese back to Timor in the next year or 2 to establish stronger links between the Darwin and the Timorese communities.

The amount of money that has been made available by the government is not extensive, but the provision of the buildings that the government no longer had a use for will provide a very useful centre for the community. I would just like to commend the community for the work that it is doing to help itself in such a worthwhile way and I assure the Timorese community in the Northern Territory that it has the full support not just of the government but, I believe, of all politicians in the Northern Territory.

User-pays Principle for Aboriginal Associations

Mr BELL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

I refer him to his determination to introduce the user-pays principle for the use of electricity and water on special purpose leases held by Aboriginal associations in the Alice Springs area. Is the Northern Territory government in receipt of Commonwealth funds for this purpose?

ANSWER

The Commonwealth government handed to the Northern Territory some short time ago the responsibility of administering remote area communities and outstations and some town camp areas that had previously been looked after by the Department of Aboriginal Affairs. One of the criteria under which the transfers were made to the Northern Territory was that the Northern Territory government would, over a period of time, introduce a system of user-pays for facilities that are provided. There was never any intention that the scale of charges that are made in the major towns in the Territory were to be extended immediately to all communities in the Northern Territory. The transition was to be a gradual one that would enable people to adjust and to cope with the concept of paying for community services that they use.

Mr Speaker, in some parts of the Territory, that was a matter of administrative arrangement. The honourable member and I have had discussions and correspondence on the issue of charging for town camps in Alice Springs. That is an administrative arrangement for the government. In some other areas in the Territory, the application of the user-pays system is not possible because of impediments caused by the Aboriginal Land Rights (Northern Territory) Act. That is more of a legal matter than one of philosophy. The government is making a submission now to Mr Justice Toohey who is looking at the impact that the act has on the Northern Territory because we believe it is an issue that needs to be defined.

On top of this is the problem of what constitutes a community in the Northern Territory. We have a system whereby the Commonwealth government holds unto itself the ability to create outstations with a small amount of money - for instance, $100 000 or $200 000 - and the Northern Territory government picks up the continuing operational costs of those outstations. I am of the view, and I think most people share it, that the outstation movement, as we understand it, is probably a very good one. It is timely. We need to have some rationalisation in the way that outstation development occurs because it is not a reasonable proposition for the Commonwealth to say to a group, 'Yes, you can be an outstation; here is $100 000 or $200 000 to kick off', and then to have the operational funding for that met by the Territory government. In one circumstance in central Australia, a very large community has developed that places upon the government the responsibility for schools, airstrips, water, power supply, roads, health facilities, community development representation and a wide range of government services that are well and truly outside the concept of an outstation settlement. I do not think the problem is insoluble at all. It is just a matter of coming to some common ground with the Commonwealth on how we do it.

I would not discourage the outstation concept at all because I think in some communities it is most beneficial. I would cite Papunya. The honourable member knows more about Papunya than I ever will but I would cite that as a community that I believe would benefit from the outstation movement because it will reduce some of the tension from within the Papunya community. That is good in the social sense. But in moving say 100 or 200 people from Papunya to Kintore, which you can do with an outstation grant, that will cause the Northern Territory government an incredible expenditure in the years to come without reducing any expenditure at all at Papunya to compensate for it. Again, it is not an insurmountable problem. It is just one that needs working through so that, whatever we do in the way of funding communities, developing outstations, and providing services and community facilities to people in remote areas, is done rationally.

I would cite another circumstance where an outstation was set up. At the time, it was set up quite logically and with everybody's agreement. It was found later that the nearest good water supply was some 70 km away. That caused an enormous cost. Maybe we should have sat down with the Commonwealth, the community and whoever else was involved and said to the Aboriginals: 'Is there a difficulty with moving closer to what we believe is an available, potable, long-term water supply because, if you are not prepared to do that, then these are the ramifications?'. Again, I do not see that the problems are that difficult that we cannot solve them. I do think that we need a fair amount of consultation and goodwill between the parties to understand each other's difficulties. I think that the Commonwealth too has an important role in giving some ground on this issue because the present situation is not reasonable and fair, given the system of funding that we have for remote areas.

Land Acquisitions in Relation to National Parks

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr EVERINGHAM (Chief Minister)(by leave): Mr Speaker, I was asked questions by the honourable Leader of the Opposition regarding possible land acquisition proposals in relation to national parks. I have been provided with information from the Conservation Commission, which is why I did not know a great deal about all this. The Conservation Commission is actually handling the matter.

In the Humbert River area, a proposal is being formulated to purchase both Humbert River and Bullita Stations to form the core of a major national park. The proposal is pending resolution of potential conflicts with mining and pastoral interests. The proposal at the present time requires the following matters to be resolved: the alienation of a small piece of vacant Crown land adjacent to Humbert River; funding for the development of what is apparently proposed to be called the Gregory National Park; approval to negotiate with the Yarralin Aboriginal people to provide them with suitable land for their living requirements from within the areas acquired; rationalisation of boundaries with adjoining pastoral properties to be investigated and negotiated to take account of the proposed subdivision of VRD Station; maximising the benefits to adjoining pastoral properties by exchanging land of good production potential within the acquired core area with added scenic recreation potential; and approval to negotiate with the Department of Primary Production over the future of the Victoria River Research Station at Kidman Springs. The matter should be presented to Cabinet for consideration shortly. To date there has been no suggestion of compulsory acquisition and it is expected that, should this proposal proceed, the realistic market price as negotiated will be paid.

The commission is also investigating the possibility of forming a major national park in the gulf district. The stations initially considered to form the basis of such a park - and I would not think by any means all of these stations would be under a consideration for purchase, probably 2 or 3 of them - include Broadmere, Bauhinia, Nathan River, Tanumbirini, St Vidgeon, which the government already owns, and possibly Billengarrah and Lorella. It is certainly true that the government is looking to provide recreational and other facilities at St Vidgeon. It was for that reason that we purchased it. It is also thought apparently to have some agricultural or horticultural potential. Various Aboriginal groups have expressed interest in getting bits of it.

Beyond alerting Conservation Commission staff to the need to gather resource data and prepare a report on the proposal, little further action has occurred in the investigation at this stage. It is planned that the minister, in the company of the Director of Conservation, and Mr Harry Butler, a member of the Conservation Commission. will go over the area in November to gain a first-hand appreciation of its value.

Department of Mines and Energy Staff and Litchfield Corporation Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

I refer to the minister's statement on 2 June in this Assembly that he would ask the Public Service Commissioner to investigate the relationship between certain employees of the Department of Mines and Energy and a company called Litchfield Corporation Ltd. Did the Public Service Commissioner instruct employees of the Department of Mines and Energy, who are Directors of Litchfield Corporation Ltd, to dispose of their shareholdings and directorships in that company and, if so, has he satisfied himself that the officers concerned have complied with the instruction of the Public Service Commissioner?

ANSWER

This question ought really to go to the Chief Minister who is responsible for the public service. I referred the matter, as minister in the first instance, to the Public Service Commissioner. It then became a matter for the Chief Minister. My understanding of the matter is that the Public Service Commissioner never so much instructed those officers that they were to surrender their interests in the Litchfield company but rather advised them that, in all of the circumstances, that would be the wisest and most sensible thing to do. I understand that all of those officers accepted that advice of the Public Service Commissioner and have proceeded from that time to shed their interests in that company. To the best of my knowledge, it was not mandatory but, in wisdom and in hindsight, it was seen by all parties to be highly desirable that they do so because of the possibility of conflict which may arise in the future. My understanding was that there was no direct conflict at that time nor, to my knowledge, to this stage. But, to guard against possible future conflict, those officers, for whom I have the highest regard, mutually decided to shed their interest in the company. Remember that their wives also had money involved. Thus, as far as it can conceivably be done, those shares are being shed or already have been shed. As to the actual status of that exercise, I am quite happy to inform the honourable member privately.

Federal Funds for Aborigines

Mr VALE to TREASURER

The federal member for the Northern Territory recently claimed that the Territory government was not spending funds provided by the federal government for Aborigines on Aborigines. Does the Treasurer acknowledge this to be correct?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, certainly, I do not accept allegations that the federal member for the Northern Territory is reported to have made to the federal parliament. The member is reported to have said that the Northern Territory government has not been spending on Aborigines specific purpose funds which were received from federal government. In addition, he made other comments. He claimed that the accounting system in the Northern Territory was inefficient and impossible to decipher and that the Grants Commission had reported that the Territory provided below-standard services to some Aboriginal communities within the Territory.

On the face of press reports of what the federal member was alleged to have said, it would seem that things were grim in the Territory. The facts are that he was wrong on the 2 counts of the Territory government not spending specific purpose funds for the reasons for which they were provided and he certainly misinterpreted the Grants Commission's wording on the allegation that the Territory government is deliberately providing below-standard services to some Aboriginal communities. Federal specific purpose payments provided for Aboriginal services in the Territory are used entirely and solely for that purpose. Not only has the Territory used the Commonwealth's specific purpose payments for the purposes for which they were provided, the Territory has added its own funds to augment the total level of funding for Aborigines. In the 1983-84 Territory budget, no less than $20m has been provided for community government, town management and public utilities in Aboriginal communities, in addition to other expenditure in areas under the budget specifically directed to Aborigines. An additional $6.7m has been programmed for new capital works in Aboriginal communities. All of this will be provided by the Territory government.

As for the federal member's comments about the Territory government's accounting system, clearly he is ignorant of the facts. The present accounting system, which is based on a system designed by and currently operating in the Commonwealth Department of Finance, is effective in controlling public moneys and keeping track on levels of expenditure under particular cost headings. It is far ahead of the accounting systems operating in some of the states. To say that it makes it impossible to find out how Commonwealth moneys are spent is the height of ignorance. The Territory must know and does know exactly how these moneys are spent and, under arrangements with the Commonwealth, must comply with stringent reporting requirements. If the federal member knew what he was talking about, he would realise that his comments were an implied criticism of the Commonwealth government for allowing Commonwealth money to be spent, as he believes, without adequate controls. One would expect that the Commonwealth Auditor-General would also take an interest in the matter if that were the case.

As to the comments by the Grants Commission in its recent report on special assistance for the Territory, the references to below-standard services were not to the Territory government doing too little for Aboriginal communities but to the fact that the Territory government needed extra funding for this particular purpose. In these and other areas, the commission in fact concluded that the Territory needed a special grant of $16.9m and it recommended accordingly.

The federal member, whom we must forgive to some extent because he is fairly new in his job, quite clearly does not comprehend the role of the Grants Commission in making assessments in the Northern Territory. We have argued to the Grants Commission that the Territory is in many areas providing a level of governmental services below that provided in the states. Indeed, that is the very basis for submissions to the Grants Commission. For him to turn the question around and say that the Territory government is providing below-standard services demonstrates that he has missed the very principle on which we go to the Grants Commission. The fact that the Grants Commission has chosen to give us additional funds demonstrates that it has accepted our argument that many of these services have to be upgraded further. It cannot be done in a single financial year. Below-standard services in many areas of government activity require persistent input year after year before they are brought up to a satisfactory level. I would have thought that Territorians could have expected a much better performance from the only member that we have in the House of Representatives.

Department of Mines and Energy Staff and Litchfield Corporation Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

I refer the minister to an answer that he gave me a few minutes ago. Is he aware that the records of the Companies Office indicate that, as of 17 October 1983, the following persons are listed as being directors of the company called Litchfield Corporation Ltd: Joseph Maxwell Smith, Christopher Hall Smith, Brian Ross Farrow, William Lewis Thompson and Ian Edward Lewis? Would he also confirm that all of these people named are also currently employees of the Department of Mines and Energy?

ANSWER

They certainly were and I know a number of them still are. As I said, they are officers in whom I have every confidence. They are officers of complete integrity. I very much value their advice and their dedication to their duty to the Northern Territory public. My answer need not be altered in any way from what I gave previously. It is obvious that the honourable member has had someone check with the Companies Office and that is perfectly legitimate and reasonable. It is then clear from what she said that these men are still directors and shareholders. It follows from that they have been unable to shed the shares. Personally, I would not ask them to completely abandon them though I must say I would have hoped to have seen some progress in the matter since then.

Mr Speaker, there is a considerable amount of money involved. I think that the officers went into the company with the most honourable intentions, not realising the potential consequences. I would not expect them to lose considerable savings while there is no conflict in existence, which is the case at the moment.

Mr Speaker, through the Chief Minister, I will be happy - if that is what the honourable member is implying I should do - to take the matter up again with the Public Service Commissioner in order that a review be carried out of the progress being made by these members of the public service to shed their shares in this public company. It is common knowledge that it is not just an ordinary company. It is in fact a merchant banking company and therein lies the potential conflict as the Public Service Commissioner sees it, as I certainly saw it from the first day and, indeed, as the officers have been persuaded. I will once again have the matter reviewed. It is not my practice, once an agreement has been reached, to pursue things in the manner of a witch-hunt. An amicable agreement was reached between the Public Service Commissioner and highly-respected and valued officers of my department. I would expect that, in due course, those gentlemen will carry out the undertakings they have given. Clearly, it has proven more difficult than they and even perhaps the Public Service Commissioner envisaged at that time. Nonetheless, I will once again examine the matter.

Crop Contract Scheme

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Will the government be continuing the crop contract scheme for the 1983-84 growing season and is the scheme proving successful?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am happy to confirm that the crop contract scheme will operate in 1983-84 through the NTDC and the Department of Primary Production who are presently calling for applications under the scheme. The scheme has helped 8 private farmers in 1981-82 and 6 private farmers in 1982-83 to grow grain crops. This scheme provides support for farmers to enter crop growing and provides a basis of financial and technical backing for these farmers to become commercially viable producers. The scheme resulted in the production of 1448 t of grain in 1981-82 and a further 1715 t of grain in 1982-83. Honourable members would have to concede that that sort of production and the assistance that is made available are very beneficial to the Northern Territory.

Cost of Verification of Electricity Meters

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is it a fact that, as reported in last night's NT News, to have an electricity meter verified costs $33 in the Northern Territory compared to $2 in Queensland for the same service and, if so, can he explain how this difference in charges occurs?

ANSWER

Needless to say, it is very costly to carry out this exercise. These charges are designed basically to recover for the public purse the money that the public pays out to have such examinations carried out on behalf of individual people. All of the community should know that, where the meter is found to be subsequently at fault in favour of the person who has made the application, then the charge should not apply because the meter is in error. As for the actual figures that the honourable member for Victoria River gave, I am unaware of the precise relativity in charges between the Northern Territory and Queensland. Indeed, because of the huge range of charges which are levied by government agencies, including NTEC, for various services, I am not able to recall the precise amount which relates to the inspection of the meter. I remember 14 years ago that the charge was $4. If one was to index inflation and rising costs, it would be a considerable amount of money now.

Nonetheless, I would have to check the accuracy of the honourable member's assertions. If it is found accurate, then I will certainly look into why such a disparity exists. The methods of charging for government services are quite distinct from methods of charging for the delivery of electricity. That is the case right across all government agencies throughout this country. Basically it is designed to recover the cost and the cost only to the public of providing the service.

Upper Daly River Land Claim

Mr HARRIS to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise the current position in relation to the Upper Daly River Land Claim and whether the Northern Territory government has attempted to negotiate a settlement of that claim bearing in mind the potential of the area for long-term agricultural development.

ANSWER

The honourable member for Port Darwin has asked a question which may be of interest to some honourable members and is undoubtedly of interest to a number of people in the community. If I may, I will read extracts from a memorandum from the Secretary of the Department of Primary Production to myself, dated 6 October:

> Following your approval to enter into discussions with representatives of the Northern Land Council relating to the Upper Daly River Land Claim, I advise that Mr A.D.L. Hooper and myself met with Mr R.W. Blowes senior legal adviser, and Mr R. Ledgar of the NLC on 30 September 1983.

This was an informal meeting not involving representatives of the Department of Law. Prior to the meeting, I took advice from the Aboriginal Liaison Unit of the Chief Ministers' Department as to the strategy I should adopt. From the report of the meeting, you will note that the following proposal was put on behalf of the Northern Territory government. The Department of Primary Production proposed that, if the claimants would withdraw their claim on those areas of land identified as being suitable for agricultural development, then the western half of Fish River pastoral lease would be offered as compensation. The area of land offered is greater in area than that sought from the claimants. Mr Blowes, on behalf of the Northern Land Council, advised that he would raise the matter with claimants but, as the area of land on the Fish River pastoral lease was covered by a linguistic group separate from that covering the land identified as suitable for agricultural development, it was unlikely that an exchange of lands could be achieved.

There, Mr Speaker, the matter rests.

Teacher-Pupil Ratios in Schools

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is class size related to the number of pupils in each class or simply the number of teachers and staff divided into the student enrolment?

ANSWER

I did have some forewarning of this question and it caused a little confusion in interpretation. The term 'class size' usually relates to the number of students in a particular classroom. The term 'pupil-teacher ratio' is used when talking about the numbers of teachers that a school may be entitled to have in regard to the population of the school itself. As honourable members know, from 1984 onwards, the Territory government will be working on the basis of the school population divided by 21 to give the actual numbers of teaching staff which will be provided to any school. To use the words 'class size' is a little inappropriate if one is talking about the numbers of teachers that a school is entitled to because schools, under the new formula system, will be given a great deal of flexibility in structuring teaching. Indeed, there may be certain subject areas where quite large numbers of children are gathered together for particular instruction. It could be up to 40 or even more in some areas. This of course would allow teachers to take classes with quite small numbers of children, be it 10, 15 or whatever. That would depend entirely on how the principal and the school administration seeks to operate their particular school within the resources that are provided under the 1:21 ratio. I have a table with me which indicates the numbers of band 1, band 2, band 3 and band 4 teachers who could be allocated under the system in 1984 under the various headings of school population - up to 800. If honourable members want to know the numbers of teachers under the new formula for any particular school in their electorates, I would be happy to provide that information to them.

NOTICE OF MOTION

Censure of Minister for Mines and Energy

Ms D'ROZARIO (Sanderson): Mr Speaker, I seek leave of the Assembly to give notice of a motion relating to the censure of the Minister for Mines and Energy for his failure to prevent senior officers of the department from using their position in the Department of Mines and Energy for private gain to the detriment of the mining industry and the people of the Territory.

Leave denied.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS
Censure of Minister for Mines and Energy

Mr B. COLLINS (Opposition Leader): Mr Speaker, I move that so much of Standing Orders be suspended as would prevent the honourable member for Sanderson from giving her notice of motion.

Mr Speaker, the evidence that we have to lay before the Assembly in regard to the matter of the Litchfield banking corporation and the Department of Mines and Energy is serious indeed.

I might add that this motion is entirely predicated on the answers that were given this morning to questions in this Assembly to the honourable Minister for Mines and Energy. If he wants to involve the Chief Minister in this, he can do so. Clearly, he has not been as assiduous in the pursuit of this matter as is required by the evidence that is available.

The directors of the Litchfield bank were 5 current employees of the Department of Mines and Energy plus Dr Nicholas Blake. Dr Blake said that any investigation into the affairs of the bank was 'hysterical nonsense'. Of course, that was shortly before Dr Blake took off at high speed for regions unknown in the south. Dr Blake was as much a doctor as I am. Indeed, the remaining directors of the Litchfield Bank are now entirely comprised of senior employees in a policy area of the Department of Mines and Energy. Of course, you do not have to be too smart to work out that one of the most lucrative areas for a Territory merchant bank to be operating in is investment in the mining industry.

There is another thing that we view with considerable misgivings. At the last sittings, the Minister for Mines and Energy himself was clearly embarrassed and disturbed by this incident. He said that one of these directors had resigned from the Department of Mines and Energy. Indeed, that person did resign but what the honourable minister has not advised us is that he has since taken up his employment again with the Department of Mines and Energy. The minister says by way of interjection that he does not know. We are suggesting that this is a serious and continual conflict of interest for senior employees of the Department of Mines and Energy. I point out to the honourable minister, and I am sure he is well aware of it, that administrative instruction 833 of the Northern Territory Public Service says quite clearly that employees of the public service must 'regulate their private financial interests so they do not conflict or appear to conflict with their public duty'. Mr Speaker, if there is ever a clear conflict of interest ...

Mr ROBERTSON (Mines and Energy): Mr Speaker, I would like to seek your direction. It is quite apparent that the sole purpose of the opposition in bringing this on at the moment is because they know that 8 Top FM is broadcasting.

Mr B. Collins: Oh, rubbish!

Mr ROBERTSON: Mr Speaker, I merely seek your direction as to when question time will cease for the purposes of a motion like this. Obviously, the Leader of the Opposition intends to canvass each and every issue involved in this as part of his motion for the suspension of Standing Orders. He will then continue later with the actual debate on the motion which, incidentally, I have no intention whatsoever of denying.

Mr SPEAKER: The question is that the motion be agreed to.

Motion agreed to.

Mr ROBERTSON: Mr Speaker, I ask that any further questions be placed on notice.

Reconstruction of Stuart Highway in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

This question follows a question I asked during the last sittings. Can he advise when MacMahon Constructions, which has a contract for reconstruction of Stuart Highway through the township of Alice Springs, will actually start work on that highway?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand that MacMahon Constructions has started work. Surveys are under way and the installation of box culverts on the Bloomfield connector road has started. Telecom relocations have started and relocation of electricity lines is scheduled to begin in a week's time. With the exception of minor clean-up operations, the demolition contract is complete. I understand there is a dispute with the Australian Federated Union of Locomotive Enginemen about the alternative accommodation during the realignment and negotiations are still being processed.

Department of Mines and Energy Staff and Litchfield Corporation Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to CHIEF MINISTER

In view of the advice given by the Public Service Commissioner to the Chief Minister, who relayed it to the Assembly yesterday, that Litchfield Corporation Ltd is expected to be wound-up this week, and in view further of the fact that searches of the Supreme Court revealed that no such petition for the winding-up of this company has been lodged there, will he confirm the correctness of the advice given to him by the Public Service Commissioner on this matter? If the advice of the Public Service Commissioner is thought to be correct, can the Chief Minister inform me of the date when the petition for the winding-up of Litchfield Corporation Ltd was lodged?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, certainly, I confirm the advice that the Public Service Commissioner gave me yesterday morning, namely, that Litchfield Corporation Ltd would be wound-up during the course of this week. I do not know whether a petition for its winding-up has been lodged or not. I assume that the documentation will go to the Supreme Court. However, I understand that Litchfield Corporation itself issued a statement yesterday which indicated that the delay in this whole procedure has been one which reflects some credit on it in an otherwise sordid affair. The Leader of the Opposition made much play of this yesterday so perhaps he would like to pin his ears back for once and stop his mouth from flapping.

The Leader of the Opposition complained at considerable length yesterday about the sordid way that Aboriginal communities are treated by their white employees. Whilst I would admit that, in my experience of the Northern Territory, there are quite a number of white employees of Aboriginal communities whose service to those communities has done them less than credit, nonetheless, it was a very broad-brush approach adopted by the Leader of the Opposition yesterday. In fact, there are innumerable people who have done great service for the Aboriginal people working, at most times, in less than congenial conditions. It appears that the people who are concerned with the Litchfield Corporation are attempting at least to rectify the situation with regard to the Kunwinjku Association because it seems that the delay in winding-up the affairs of the Litchfield Corporation has been due to the desire of the officers of that corporation to purchase from the association its shares in the corporation before winding-up the affairs of the corporation. I saw the statement after I had made my contribution to the debate otherwise I would have incorporated it in my statement. According to the statement, negotiations with the Kunwinjku Association for purchase of the shares are expected to be completed shortly and the corporation will then go into liquidation. It could be that the Public Service Commissioner, in his advice to me, passed on something that he had been told and it may be that formal steps have not yet been commenced but there is every evidence that the corporation will be wound-up in the very near future. As I said yesterday, I invite the Leader of the Opposition, and any other member of the opposition, to place all material which they have in their possession in relation to this matter in the hands of the Public Service Commissioner so that appropriate action can be taken in all the circumstances.

Public Service Commissioner

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Is it true that the Public Service Commissioner is in fact about to terminate his employment in the Northern Territory? Is it further true that his position is to be taken by Dr Keith Fleming? Is it further true that Dr Fleming's position as Secretary to the Department of Health is to be taken over by Dr Ella Stack?

ANSWER

The rumour mills are really operating 24 hours a day at the moment. These are the sorts of things about which the honourable Leader of the Opposition - if he is really concerned with the governance of the Northern Territory and the provision of a sound administration with morale at a high level - would pick up his office telephone, ring me and say, 'Look, Paul, I am concerned that you are going to undermine the morale of the public service by getting rid of the Public Service Commissioner and putting Keith Fleming in there'. I am just saying hypothetically what the Leader of the Opposition might well do if he had the good administration or the good morale of the Northern Territory Public Service in mind. Instead, we have a question in this Assembly which is sure only to prompt a great deal of speculation. I do not know if the Public Service Commissioner is leaving because he has not told me and I have not asked him to. I do not know if Dr Fleming is shifting because he has not told me and I have not asked him to. Certainly, I have not spoken to Dr Ella Stack about any shift in her position. I would suggest that the honourable Leader of the Opposition might do the public service, in at least 2 of its connotations, a great deal of service himself if he perhaps went straight to the horse's mouth privately on topics such as this first. He can always ask the question later in the Assembly if he wants to.

Gravel for Mainoru Road

Mr VALE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Can he advise whether or not it is a fact that his Department of Transport and Works is having difficulty in obtaining gravel in the Katherine region for the Mainoru road?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Department of Transport and Works first applied to the Northern Land Council for approval to extract gravel from the Beswick lease in March of this year. I understand there have been some communication difficulties and those negotiations are still under way. I called into Beswick on about 26 September and discussed these various problems with Sam Ashley, the President of the Beswick Council. I assured him that we would do our best to expedite a solution to this difficulty.

Admiralty House and Lyons Cottage

Ms LAWRIE to CHIEF MINISTER

The reason that I have not rung him up and asked him is that it is extraordinarily difficult to get through to him at times. This concerns a statement that he made earlier in this sittings that the government proposes to offer Admiralty House and Lyons Cottage, jointly or separately, for expressions of interest. Which department will assess the replies to the expressions of interest and forward a submission to Cabinet?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, to spar back a little, the honourable member for Nightcliff has only tried to phone me twice in the last 4 years so, obviously, I do not hold out any great attraction to her as a subject of telephonic conversations. Mr Speaker, I recall the 2 occasions that the honourable member for Nightcliff has phoned me, because they are like oases in the desert, they are so far apart. They are like green palms and cool waters amidst sear sand.

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable Chief Minister answer the question?

Mr EVERINGHAM: Mr Speaker, some weeks ago, when it came to my notice that the Planning Authority had said that it thought the zoning of this particular land at Admiralty House should remain unchanged, I convened a working party consisting of the Acting Deputy Director-General of the Chief Minister's Department, a representative of the Department of Community Development - I think it was Bill Coburn - the Director of Museums and Art Galleries, Colin Jack-Hinton, and a representative of the Department of Lands. That working party is charged with the implementation of the proposals that the government has in relation to the future of Admiralty House and Lyons Cottage. The Department of Lands is the executive department in that it will post the advertisements etc but the assessments, I imagine, will be carried out by the working party.

Department of Mines and Energy Staff and Litchfield Corporation Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Did the directors of Litchfield Corporation Ltd, who are also employees of the Department of Mines and Energy, lodge with the secretary of that department statements of their pecuniary interests as required by section 4 of the public service General Orders? Did the secretary subsequently declare this information to the minister as is also required by that general order? If so, what were the approximate dates upon which these declarations were made and, if not, has the minister any explanation as to why the requirements of this general order were not complied with?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, quite clearly, it cannot be expected that such details would be readily available to me. I will certainly attempt to find the information so that I can give a complete and accurate answer to the honourable member. I do not have information that includes dates. Certainly, I do recall that it was because of the requirements of the Public Service Act that the matter first came to my attention. It was because of that that I took the immediate action which I took at that time. As to whether it was filed under that provision of the Public Service Act, I have no direct knowledge. But it was certainly through the disclosure of information to the department, and subsequently to the Public Service Commissioner - which was consistent with the spirit of the quite proper provisions of the Public Service Act and its general orders and regulations - that this matter first came to my notice. Immediate action was taken by me as a result of that information.

Qualified Teachers for the Blind

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Some concern has been expressed recently over the lack of qualified teachers for the blind and visually impaired. Can the minister advise what efforts are being made to overcome this problem?

ANSWER

Certainly, I am aware of the concern in the community. I have had meetings with people on the subject of specialists in the area of teaching the visually impaired. It is one of those areas for which the Territory has had difficulty in recruiting sufficient experts. However, there has been some progress. I am pleased to report that the situation has recently improved in that 2 teachers with appropriate specialist qualifications have been recruited. One teacher has been deployed at Dripstone High School and the other commenced last week at Ludmilla Special Unit. The Ludmilla teacher will be transferred to the Tiwi unit for the 1984 school year. Efforts will be continued to recruit a further teacher for the visually impaired to bring the complement in the Territory up to 3 positions. In addition, an existing teacher, who is not qualified in teaching the blind, will be undertaking a course of full-time study for teachers of the visually impaired next year and will receive a scholarship from the Northern Territory Teaching Service for this purpose. Members will appreciate that there is an Australia-wide shortage of specialist teachers for the disabled and the handicapped. However, we have been making special efforts through a recent very successful recruitment drive to seek people with special qualifications. Also, we will continue to look at people within the Northern Territory Teaching Service who wish to upgrade their qualifications whilst they are in our employ. That way, we will have staff to teach all manner of disabled persons in the Northern Territory.

Funding for NT Schools

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

In the Programs North Newsletter, Volume 5, No 12 which went out to schools this week, it is stated that funding available under the $1-for-$1 scheme has been 'modified'. For example, one school which normally receives a maximum of $5000 has now been told it will receive only $3000. Can he please explain this reduction in funding? The same newsletter goes on to increase and expand those areas of funding that are exempted or are removed from the $1-for-$1 scheme, including such things as donations by parents or other people to the school. Can he also explain this because it is causing considerable confusion with a number of school councils as to how they will budget for this coming year?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I received some additional last minute briefings on this subject this morning. Unfortunately, I have not had time to peruse the material. I would prefer to do that and give a detailed answer tomorrow morning or in the adjournment debate. As I explained yesterday in this Assembly, if I recall rightly, last financial year, the $1-for-$1 funds were in the vicinity of $500 000. They have been topped up to the tune of something like $57 000 and, at the same time, the system has been extended to include $1-for-$1 grants and $2-for-$1 grants. That should answer the honourable member's question. More money is available to the Northern Territory school system under the new schemes, not less money. Guidelines will be drawn up and I will report to the Assembly on exactly what schools will be asked for by way of bids in a first round to determine which schools wish to take up the full portion of a standard allocation across the Territory. Following that, we will be able to see whether there are outstanding funds available for those schools which seek to obtain a greater portion of government funds under the $1-for-$1 and $2-for-$1 schemes than can be offered in the first round. As honourable members will appreciate, it is not possible to ask every school in the Territory to state just how much it wants and that the government will match it. As honourable members will appreciate, the schemes are very popular throughout the Northern Territory and that includes what I would normally consider to be disadvantaged schools. Some honourable members have criticised this scheme on the grounds that some schools feel that it is a terrible scheme because they miss out. It has been a very popular scheme even amongst schools normally considered to be disadvantaged. They take every opportunity to benefit from it. I will obtain a prepared statement which answers the honourable member's questions and give it to him during the course of this sittings.

Housing Commission Flats

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for HOUSING

Some time ago, a number of Housing Commission flats were set aside for strata titling. What response has there been to this Northern Territory government initiative and are further Housing Commission flats being set aside for strata titling in the future?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, so far some 71 of the 127 units offered by the Housing Commission have been sold. At the moment, I understand that another 49 units are in the progress of being sold. Members would remember that the Housing Commission issued a directive to offer for sale 50% of their stock of flats. It is the policy of the government to encourage those people who are living in small accommodation units to purchase them. In some instances, some flat units that were constructed several years ago are not suitable for strata titling and they cannot be included in the particular scheme. However, the Housing Commission is taking strata titling into consideration in its future designs. Consequently, any new construction that takes place in the following years would be able to be used for strata titling. The important thing is that the scheme is working. A total of some 71 flats have been sold and 49 are going through the stages of sale.

Horticulture in Central Australia

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Will he outline the plan the department has for horticultural development in central Australia, particularly in the Deep Well, Woodgreen and Ti Tree areas?

ANSWER

The results of the last few years with horticultural production in central Australia have been extremely encouraging. Honourable members would be aware that the grape production at Ti Tree, which comes onto the market earlier than any other grapes in Australia, gives the producers in the Ti Tree area an advantage over their southern competitors. In fact, it enables the people of Ti Tree to do very well with their initial production of grapes. In the Alice Springs area, it is well known to members that farms have done quite well over the years. It is very interesting to note that the production of flowers in the Alice Springs area has turned out to be quite a success in recent days. There is no doubt that there is a horticultural opportunity for us in central Australia. The thing to determine is what particular products we are likely to do well in and why. I think the great strength that the Northern Territory has with its horticultural production is not particularly that we can do things better than anybody else but that we can turn produce off at times when other markets in Australia cannot. Therein is our strength.

Mr Speaker, with this in the back of our minds, the Department of Primary Production, in consultation with the Conservation Commission Water Resources Division, has been looking at those areas in the Ti Tree-Woodgreen area that might be suitable for horticultural production in the future. The initial surveys involve the assessment of soils, the availability of water and the quality of the water. I make the point that the quality is absolutely important because difficulties have been encountered at the Ti Tree farms because of the high level of salt in the water there. These assessments will continue for some time. While they are continuing, I have asked the Agricultural Development and Marketing Authority to have a look at market prospects that may be available to us for the products that we are likely to do well in. I think we must be realistic and not embark on a program of enormous production only to find that, for some reason or other, the markets have evaporated before our eyes.

I can assure the honourable member that there is a great amount of work being done behind the scenes by officers in the various departments involved. The situation is very encouraging indeed. As information becomes available, I will be only too happy to make it available to the honourable member or anybody else who has an interest in this particular area of Northern Territory production.

Department of Mines and Energy Staff and Litchfield Corporation Ltd

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

As he was Minister for Mines and Energy in June last year and the Litchfield Corporation Ltd was incorporated on 4 June last year, I ask him if the Secretary of the Department of Mines and Energy declared to him any information relating to the pecuniary interests of 3 of the directors of Litchfield Corporation Ltd who were then also employees of the Department of Mines and Energy, as is required by public service General Order section 4, and, if so, what action, if any, did the minister take as a result of that information?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can say with all honesty that I had no knowledge of departmental involvement in the Litchfield Corporation until the honourable Minister for Mines and Energy raised it in this Assembly. Any activity that went on within the department in that regard during the period of my ministry occurred without any knowledge on my part.

Water Supply Agreements with Rural Residents

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Have agreements concerning supply of water in the Darwin rural area been sent to all rural landholders or has this exercise been confined to residents of the Bees Creek area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I took note of the honourable member's remarks in the adjournment debate last night in respect of this matter. I have no information for him today, but I propose to have the matter considered and will advise him of the situation.

Rural Adjustment Scheme

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

Will the recent announcement that additional funding for the Rural Adjustment Scheme is to be provided in 1983-84 be of any benefit to primary producers in the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Territory's rural producers will share in the increased funding being made available. The Territory's approval level will increase from $0.7m in 1982-83 to $1.2m in this financial year. Unfortunately, the scheme is still very small in relation to Territory rural producers' total financial needs but the increase will enable assistance to be extended to more producers. For the benefit of honourable members who may be interested, the Northern Territory Development Corporation, which administers the scheme, will be writing to all Territory rural producers providing details of the scheme and seeking interest from producers who might require assistance under it.

Electricity Tariffs for Nhulunbuy

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Can he advise whether, as a result of additional excise charges levied on diesel fuel by the federal government, additional electricity tariffs will apply in Nhulunbuy and at what level?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, whilst I have received no direct communication on this matter, I understand that, as a result of the federal government's excise levy on the fuel on which that town relies, the Nabalco Corporation will increase electricity charges across the board by 10%. I understand that was to take effect from 1 October. Of course, that date has already passed. That increase will only compensate the corporation at the expense of the people so that the federal government can pick up this additional levy. That only goes to the question of domestic electricity; it does not go to the broader question of the production costs of the mine and the impact on jobs. As a result of this excise brought down by the benevolent Hawke government, this impost placed upon people of the Northern Territory, shortly there will be fewer consumers to pay for electricity in Nhulunbuy.

Darwin Performing Arts Centre

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Will he confirm that the construction of the Darwin centre has been delayed for up to 6 months? Is it further true that a dispute as to the responsibility for this delay exists between the builder and the developer, Burgundy Royale? Is the Northern Territory government represented at these negotiations to ensure that the interests of the Northern Territory taxpayers are protected?

ANSWER

I understand that that contract is behind considerably but not by 6 months. I think it is closer to 60 days. I would have to check on that in the interests of providing a detailed response. I will be happy to do that. But I prefer not to bandy around figures that are not correct. The government has made representations to Jennings over the delays on several of its contracts in the Darwin area. I understand that the management has not been up to the standard that we would expect of that company. As I indicated, we have made representations to that company.

I have not been advised, at this stage, of any dispute between Burgundy Royale and the Jennings company in respect of the Darwin performing arts centre. As far as I am aware, we are represented at all times on all discussions on the joint site.

Rigging and Scaffolding Safety Procedures at Nabalco

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Can he tell me if those provisions of the Construction and Safety Act which relate to the safety procedures for rigging and scaffolding yet apply to the Nabalco production site?

ANSWER

To the best of my knowledge, no. I do note the honourable member's concern in this matter. There must be very good reasons in his mind why he genuinely believes that the Construction Safety Act ought to apply to those sorts of operations in Nhulunbuy. I do wish that, instead of asking questions like this, he would take the opportunity to discuss it with either myself or officers as to what those reasons would be. I am quite sure that they are well-founded and it is worth talking to the honourable member about them. I take it that his question probably arises from the very unfortunate accident recently in which a contractor's employee was rather badly injured in a most unfortunate accident at Nhulunbuy. That was an accident involving a crane, from memory. There were 3 people operating the crane, the usual 2 doing the actual job on the scaffolding and a dogman giving directions. The driver of that crane, from recollection, held an unrestricted certificate and licence in the state of New South Wales but I do believe that he did not hold a licence in the Northern Territory. He held an unrestricted licence for all types of cranes in the state of New South Wales. We know the scope of crane operations in NSW - they go up some 50 and 60 floors. One must assume that he was qualified to do the work that he was doing. As I understand it, due to circumstances unknown to me at this stage - there is an investigation still continuing which will consider also any possibilities as to breaches of the law - the crane was put into free-fall. I understand that the injury was caused when the crane mechanism, while in free-fall, struck a rail. Some extensive spinal injuries were received by the worker.

Mr Speaker, the relevant provisions in relation to crane operators in Nhulunbuy are covered by the Inspection of Machinery Act. The relevant provision in the Inspection of Machinery Act is identical to the provisions in the Construction Safety Act. In fact, Northern Territory regulations were in place at the time of the accident. So the matter is covered. There is no question about that. Nonetheless, the honourable member keeps raising in the Assembly his apparent concern that the Construction Safety Act should apply as well. If he can provide further argument as to that, it will be looked at. But while there is one piece of legislation successfully covering an area of endeavour, there seems to be little reason to substitute it for another which does exactly the same thing.

Federal Member's Assertions as to Overfunding in NT

Mr D.W. COLLINS to TREASURER

Is he aware of very damaging reports that our federal representative, John Reeves, has suggested quite strongly in the federal parliament that the Northern Territory is being overfunded?

ANSWER

I am certainly aware of the damage being done by the federal member for the Northern Territory by his persistent references to the Territory being overfunded. I was disappointed to read an extract from federal Hansard yesterday which caused me some concern. Unfortunately, the Northern Territory has only one member in the Federal House of Representatives and so no balance of view can be put on behalf of Territorians. After reading this particular section of Hansard, one would really wonder for whom this particular person was working. The condemnation of the Territory governmental system was very damaging to the Northern Territory. I really wonder whether this person will do more harm to the Northern Territory in his term of office than benefit.

It certainly is not in the interest of Northern Territorians that he carries on the way he does at the present time. He is giving the view to southern politicians that the Northern Territory is run in a most appalling fashion by a bunch of country hicks and that all federal funds to the NT are being misdirected, misappropriated and not properly accounted for. I think that it was a sad day when this man went to Canberra to represent the Northern Territory because he is doing a disgraceful job.

Nursing Sisters for High Schools

Mr VALE to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Following his statement in the budget that nursing sisters would be stationed at high schools during 1984, can he advise which high schools will get these nursing sisters during that year?

ANSWER

There are 10 high schools in the Northern Territory which will receive full-time sisters as from 1984, provided of course that suitable people can be recruited. I would hope that that would be the case. The schools are: Darwin High, Casuarina High, Nightcliff High, Dripstone High, Taminmin High, Katherine High, Alice Springs High, Sadadeen High and Nhulunbuy High. At Tennant Creek, I understand a sister will be made available when the new high school is completed. It is about the only centre in the Territory at the present time that does not have a separate high school where we can place a sister. I am sure that we can negotiate in this complex situation to find a suitable arrangement whereby a sister can be available to students in that area. As I mentioned in the budget speech, we felt that the trial program of having nursing sisters in 2 high schools in the Northern Territory - I think they were Nightcliff High and Sadadeen or Alice Springs High - under a schools commission program was so successful that the Territory government felt it should be extended to all high schools in the Northern Territory. That will be done as from the beginning of school year 1984 in those schools that I have just mentioned.

Transfer of ADMA Stocks of Maize

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for PRIMARY PRODUCTION

If he has any problems handling the question, he should just imagine that I am ringing him up.

Mr SPEAKER: Will the honourable member ask the question?

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, can he confirm that ADMA stocks of maize were recently moved from Katherine to the Douglas-Daly storage depot and are now about to be moved from the Douglas-Daly storage depot back to Katherine? If this is the case, can he given an explanation as to why this has happened and who will meet the associated costs?

ANSWER

I will pretend that I received a phone call and advise the honourable member that I will ring him back.

Consultative Committee on Children's Services

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

The Northern Territory child-care conference held in mid-April, about 6 months ago, requested of the Northern Territory government to establish a consultative committee on children's services. Does the government intend to establish such a committee and, if so, when?

ANSWER

I have to say honestly to the honourable member that the creation of a consultative committee on children's services is one that I have not had a briefing on for this sittings. I will endeavour to get the information for her and make it available. Could I say that I do not have any difficulty with the proposition that was put forward by the conference. It seemed perfectly reasonable. If it is possible to effect it without a great deal of expense - we need to cover the whole of the Northern Territory with the establishment of such a committee - then we will do it. However, I will provide the honourable member with a definite answer later today or tomorrow.

Darwin Bus Service

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Is it a fact that the written report on the Darwin Bus Service states that contract services might reasonably be expected to cost more than in-house operations and, if so, does the government intend to replace contract services?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the report the honourable member referred to. I have indicated before that the cost of providing bus services is of considerable concern to the government and reviews are ongoing in respect of that service. In respect of the Palmerston bus service, I have no knowledge of what management proposals are being submitted for consideration.

Local Government for Jabiru

Mrs PADGHAM-PURICH to CHIEF MINISTER

Can he advise what steps are being taken by the government to encourage the development of local government at Jabiru?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the government has been supporting and encouraging the development of local government at Jabiru for some time now. In the same way, some years ago we offered local government to the people of Nhulunbuy. Unfortunately, the people of Nhulunbuy seem to have spurned that offer. There has been no visible movement or agitation towards local government there that I have been able to discern in 3 years. At the opening of the high school in Nhulunbuy some years ago, I deliberately offered, in a formal political sense, the concept of local government to the people of Nhulunbuy and there has been absolutely no move to take up that offer. Local government in Nhulunbuy would be a most complex arrangement because people there do not own their houses.

Of course, the same complex arrangements will have to be developed for Jabiru because, at this stage, people cannot own their homes either due to the nature of the tenure. The underlying title at Jabiru is Aboriginal freehold and a lease, for a term of years, has been granted by the Aboriginal Land Trust to the Director of the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service. In turn, he has granted an underlease to the Jabiru Town Development Authority. Any form of title for a house in Jabiru would be in the nature of some sort of assignment of the underlease held by the Jabiru Town Development Authority and banks would not rush to pick that up as security.

In any event, the government has been supporting the movement towards local government at Jabiru. Honourable members will recall that, in June 1982, we amended the Jabiru Town Development Act to provide for the establishment of the Jabiru Town Advisory Council which consists of 8 members of whom 5 are elected by the local community and 3 are appointed. The council's main function is to advise the Jabiru Town Development Authority on matters within the competence of a municipal council in the Territory. The council is an advisory body only and serves a useful purpose in training elected members for greater responsibilities in local government in future and in providing valuable feedback to the Jabiru Town Development Authority and the government on community wishes.

The government has also provided financial support to the Jabiru Town Advisory Council. In 1983-84, the government will be providing a grant of $31 000 to the council through the Department of Community Development to meet its administrative expenses. The Jabiru Town Development Authority and the Advisory Council met recently to discuss the introduction of local government at Jabiru. I am pleased to advise the Assembly that the government proposes to introduce legislation amending the Jabiru Town Development Act to enable the authority to delegate its municipal powers and functions, except the power to set the general municipal rate, and to determine the terms and conditions of employment of municipal staff to the Jabiru Town Advisory Council. The council's name is to be changed to the Jabiru Town Council to reflect its enlarged responsibility. The term of office of the present elected members of the advisory council terminates in May 1984.

Mr Speaker, it is proposed to introduce a bill to amend the act along the lines that I have just outlined at the next sittings of the Assembly and the timing of the transfer of powers will be referred to a joint working party of the JTDA and the council. Mr Speaker, the extent to which, and the way in which, municipal functions can be devolved to the Jabiru Town Council are influenced by the rather complex legal situation with regard to the town of Jabiru. Bearing in mind Jabiru's particular legal situation and that ERA's interest must be protected, it will be necessary for the Jabiru Town Development Authority to continue to remain in existence and to hold the lease over the town from the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service.

I believe that these initiatives represent an important step forward in the development of local government at Jabiru. They will provide scope for general community involvement and participation in local affairs whilst recognising the peculiar legal and other constraints, especially financial, in the Jabiru situation. They will operate as a yardstick whereby local government at Nhulunbuy could work if the people and the company could agree on the concept of local government with the Northern Territory government, with the traditional owners of Nhulunbuy and, presumably, with the federal government under whose act, the Nabalco Agreement Act, the town of Nhulunbuy exists. I think we are pushing forward in Jabiru. If there is any genuine agitation in Nhulunbuy for local government, then I would suggest that it would need to go somewhat the same way.

Erosion Hazard Area South of Heavitree Gap

Mr BELL to MINISTER for LANDS

Has the minister received any recommendations from the Soil Conservation Authority in relation to the erosion hazard area declared south of Heavitree Gap in Alice Springs? If so, what action will flow from them?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have not received any such recommendations. Perhaps they would go to the Minister for Conservation because soil conservation is in his area of responsibility.

Erosion Hazard Area South of Heavitree Gap

Mr BELL to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Mr Speaker, I redirect the question.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I have not received a report but, if there is one, then I will obtain it. If there are any actions to flow from the recommendations, I would be happy to make that information available to the honourable member.

Traffic Flow in Inner-city Area

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I understand that consideration has been given to restructuring the traffic flow in the inner city area. Is he able to inform me if his department has put forward any proposals to alter the existing traffic flows in the inner city area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I understand the department, in concert with the city council, has looked at various alternatives from time to time. I think they have arrived at a position where they do not believe there is urgency, over and above initial planning, to determine a track, particularly out of the city. I understand they will be aiming to enter the city through Bennett Street and, through a U-turn, depart via Knuckey Street. However, I believe they are looking at other options. They want to take into account the opening of the performing arts centre and traffic resulting from that. I believe there may be a need in the future for consideration to be given to an outlet through the McMinn Street/Daly Street bridge area. I believe it is still very much in the early planning stages.

Accommodation Funding for Students from Isolated Areas

Mr B. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Given that the Education Advisory Council has recommended that a hostel be built in Darwin to accommodate students from isolated areas attending government schools and given that the latest Schools Commission report urges that adequate accommodation be provided for isolated children attending both government and non-government schools, will he assure the Assembly that hostels catering to government school students will receive at least equal funding to that currently provided by the Northern Territory in relation to students at non-government schools which have been given in excess of $300 000? No allocation at all has been made in relation to government schools.

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I would expect that no allocation has been made for government schools because there is no government school hostel. It would seem a very odd thing for the Leader of the Opposition to imply the government was somehow derelict in its funding. At present, the government is examining its options and proposals in this particular area and an announcement should be made at an appropriate time.

Land-backed Wharf

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

I refer to an article in the NT News of 17 October in which it was claimed that public authorities were using road transport in preference to subsidised sea transport, which could result in the possible ceasing of the service supplied by the Townsville Trader in January of 1984. Does he now believe that the enormous cost of the land-backed wharf and its associated container installation is warranted?

ANSWER

The situation is that the program development at the port must proceed even though the various downturns have to be considered. I would not be prepared to make a recommendation, other than that, at this point in time.

Darwin Port Authority Bill

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Has he circulated copies of his proposed amendments to the Port Authority Act to users of the port as was done with the principal bill?

ANSWER

I do not recall circulating the amendments. I am pretty sure that we sent a copy down to the waterside workers. Certainly, the amendments were circulated to the Assembly last week and I guess those amendments have been made available to them.

Giles House

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is he aware of the concept put forward by Giles House in Alice Springs for a self-development training farm in the area?

ANSWER

It has been brought to my attention that, within the Department of Community Development, a proposal is being worked up to extend the influence of the Giles House correctional service unit to provide for that unit a rural environment where children who are responding well to programs can be given an extension into a more rural setting. I think the proposal involves the acquisition of an area in the Alice Springs farm area and the establishment on that land of rural pursuits such as running chickens and goats and having stables and horses. The present arrangement is that all juveniles held in a correctional environment in Alice Springs do have a very restricted area. I think that everybody who has been to Giles House would agree that it is probably one of the most well-run juvenile detention units in our country. It is really a credit to the people who work there.

I can appreciate that the campus at Giles House does have limitations. I can appreciate that the rural environment that is being suggested would have a lot of benefits, advantages and new opportunities for the children who are involved.

Mr Bell: A prison farm.

Mr TUXWORTH: I heard the interjection by the honourable member for MacDonnell about the prison farm and would just say to the honourable member that the concept of putting young people below the age of 17 in a prison farm with adult prisoners is not one that my heart warms to at all. My heart does warm to the possibility of extending the Giles House environment to a rural setting so that other pursuits are available for the children involved. I am happy to say to the honourable member that, if he, members of the Alice Springs community and the department would like to sit around a table and work up a proposal with me that I can present to the Chief Minister - it involves the acquisition of land - I would be only too pleased to make myself available for that because I think the whole program has a lot of merit. It is one that we as a government should be supporting because the success of Giles House is one that we should be trying to improve upon to the benefit of everybody in the Northern Territory.

Chlorination of Sewage

Mr SMITH to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Some time ago, the NT News reported that the department was trialing a process of chlorinating sewage at sewerage stations to eliminate odours. Can he provide any information on how successful that trial has been?

ANSWER

I will get the information for the honourable member.

NT Teachers Federation Strike Call

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for EDUCATION

Is he aware of reports that teachers at least at one Darwin high school unanimously rejected a call by the NT Teachers Federation leadership to go on strike over the Sanderson High School issue?

ANSWER

The matter of Sanderson High School and threatened industrial action by the Teachers Federation last week has been in the press of late. I am very pleased to advise the Assembly that I understand that the Teachers Federation, which proposed industrial action by their members at 2 high schools in Darwin to enforce its demands, had its recommendations rejected unanimously by both high schools.

I am further concerned by a circular put out on 13 October by the Teachers Federation to all its branches on this very subject. It states that it has had considerable success as a result of its threats. I will quote a couple of paragraphs from the circular because it is certainly of relevance to the whole question of the attitude of the Teachers Federation towards the Sanderson High School and towards the government's attitude.

The first paragraph of the circular says: 'Since the failure of the Minister for Education to reply to the federation's demands concerning Sanderson High School by 7 October 1983, the subsequent threat of industrial action by members has resulted in some changes to the Sanderson High School plans and industrial action at this stage has been postponed'. Mr Speaker, I submit that it was postponed because it could not get its members - and I give credit to its members for being sensible in this issue - to institute industrial action. In fact, there have been no changes to the plans whatsoever as a result of the Teachers Federation's threats to me that it would stop construction on the Sanderson High School forthwith unless the plans were changed.

What we did learn from the press was that the Teachers Federation found out that it was indeed looking at the wrong set of plans when it was making up its mind to have the construction stopped. This is referred to in this memo to Teachers Federation branches:

> A lengthy meeting between the general secretary and 2 senior officers of the Sanderson High School Interim Steering Committee took place on Tuesday 11 October 1983 and a meeting between the Director of Education Facilities and federation officers took place on Wednesday 12 October

1983. In relation to each of the federation's concerns over the Sanderson High School, the following assurances have been given. Such assurances are to be provided in writing to the federation by 17 October 1983.

I will indicate those assurances. Honourable members would be aware that they were in fact already part of the changes to plans since mark 1 of the plans which the Teachers Federation was incorrectly working from. All it has done really is to have itself updated on events in relation to Sanderson High School. As a result of the community consultative process we have been going through, it has finally caught up.

One of the issues, which it raised quite recently, is the provision of laboratories: 'The Sanderson High School Interim Steering Committee has been given an undertaking by the minister that, should additional laboratory space be necessary, such space will be provided in stage 2'. Mr Speaker, I gave that undertaking weeks and weeks ago. The Teachers Federation is only just catching up. 'Classrooms will satisfactorily accommodate 30 students and are designed in order to use the allocated space effectively. Senior offices/interview rooms: the general interview room is provided in the administration block but no other separate facilities are planned. If senior offices/interview rooms were incorporated now they would infringe upon space planned for other areas'.

Another concern of the Teachers Federation was a lack of faculty areas: 'The one general area set down to house humanities, English, maths and language teachers has been allocated funds so that internal dividing walls can be provided should this prove necessary'. That is another one of several things that the government agreed to alter in the plans as a result of the community process which took place weeks ago. 'Teachers preparation areas: teacher preparation areas now provide 6.2 m^2 per staff based on 48 staff. This area is slightly above the Schools Commission guidelines. The amended design for teacher furniture will adequately meet teacher needs'. That is the Teachers Federation reporting to its members how satisfactory its major concerns have been accommodated in the plans to which the Sanderson High School is being constructed. The disappointing part of the whole affair, Mr Speaker, is the fact that the Teachers Federation has taken so long to catch up with events. In the meantime, it recommended industrial action to stop facilities being provided for students to go to school at the beginning of school year 1985 so that it could demand certain changes to plans most of which had already been accommodated. That is the absurdity of it all.

Since this matter is of considerable public interest, I would like to outline some of the features of the Sanderson High School because it is certainly an interesting school. The Sanderson High School will provide the most advanced facilities of any high school in the Northern Territory. Starting with the sports facilities, there will be a full-size football oval and athletics ground, combined soccer and hockey field, 9 tennis and netball courts, 2 basketball courts and an undercover, synthetic surface, multi-purpose sports venue. Compare the studies area: 2 classroom areas, staff preparation area and a secure central area for the main computer and storage of other sensitive and expensive equipment. Up to 30 micro-computers can be located in each classroom. The drama and dance teaching area will have a wooden floor, higher-than-normal ceiling, special lighting systems, stereo sound system, stores and dressing rooms, a lighting control room which can be used to teach students, technical lighting and air-conditioning. The drama-dance area is combined with the stage area of the multi-purpose building. Operable walls will permit the entire drama-dance area to be used as a stage with audience seating in the open area of the multi-purpose building or an intimate theatre environment to be created with audience and cast all located inside the drama-dance area or 2 separate teaching areas to be provided on the stage; for example, one for drama and one for dance.

The multi-purpose building will have a synthetic floor surface. This will be the first time that this new floor surface has been provided in a Territory school. The area can be used for basketball, volleyball, badminton, gymnastics and formal functions, with stage and audience areas used. The multi-purpose area will accommodate up to 1000 students and will be suitable for out-of-school activities and functions.

The Sanderson High School will have the first purpose-built music teaching facility in a Territory high school which will comprise 2 classrooms, a group practice room, 2 individual practice rooms, 2 storage areas and some areas designed for live performance. One area is designed to allow for sound recording. A 2-bedroom caretaker's flat has been included in the school design to assist with security of the school after hours.

The following teacher preparation areas are included: science staff room, computer study staff room, general studies staff room, library staff room, home economics staff room, general classroom area staff room, arts staff room, music staff room, technical studies staff room and physical education staff room. Some of the areas of these staff rooms have been increased to accommodate requests from the Northern Territory Teachers Federation, Mr Speaker. Those requests were made to us by the federation weeks ago when we first started the consultative process. These teacher preparation areas give 6.5 m^2 of working space for each teacher. As a comparison, Dripstone High School has 6.07 m^2 South Australia has 3.5 m^2 and Western Australia 3.5 to 4 m^2. In addition to those teacher preparation areas, there will be a general staff room, a visiting staff room, a principal's office and 3 assistant principal's offices.

Mr Speaker, I think that will give honourable members an idea that the Sanderson High School will be the most advanced in design and most generously endowed high school in the Northern Territory. That is understandable. It is the latest high school to be designed and built in the Northern Territory. We learn as we go with design and consultation. What has been annoying in the whole affair is the performance of the Teachers Federation which last week came up with a demand that the minister stop construction of the school forthwith whilst it discusses some of its concerns. As I have clearly highlighted here, by and large, its concerns were more than accommodated weeks and weeks ago. I pay credit to the staff of the 2 high schools in Darwin who were asked to go on strike by the Teachers Federation over this issue and flatly rejected the proposition.

Examination of Tenancy Act

Mr BELL to TREASURER

I refer the minister to his letter to me of 10 August in which he advised that the Commissioner of Tenancies was currently looking at some areas of the Tenancy Act which require clarification and possible amendment. Has the commissioner completed his deliberations and will any action flow from such a report?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the Commissioner of Tenancies has been given approval for a total and thorough review of the provisions of the act under which he works. He is conducting that review at present.

Groote Eylandt Lock-up

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Although it was a long time ago, I am sure that the Chief Minister would recall correspondence from myself on the complete unsuitability of the Groote Eylandt lock-up to be used for the detention of prisoners. Is it true that 18 Aboriginal prisoners were detained recently by police at Groote Eylandt over a number of days in 2 cells, one of which did not even possess mattresses? Can he confirm that there have been consistent requests, including requests from the Police Force itself, for an upgrading of detention facilities at Groote Eylandt? What steps are being taken to effect this necessary upgrading?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I can certainly remember the Leader of the Opposition raising this matter previously. It is unfortunate that, in a relatively small community such as Groote Eylandt, a lock-up which would normally be deemed of sufficient capacity for a population of that size proves to be insufficient from time to time. I took this matter up with the Commissioner of Police and I understood that other arrangements had been made. I cannot say specifically whether funds have been allocated for the upgrading or construction of an alternative lock-up at Groote Eylandt but, to my recollection, the Commissioner of Police indicated that alternative arrangements would be made. Since the matter has only just been brought to my attention again, all I can do is to look into the matter and see what steps are being taken by the police. It is not really a matter of their bringing it to my attention. I have brought it to their attention for action. I would assume that, if another lock-up is seen by them to be necessary, then provision will be made for it in a capital works program.

Power Failures in Alice Springs

Mr VALE to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

My question follows on from a letter I wrote to the minister earlier this month concerning constant power failures in Alice Springs. Can he advise the reason behind these power failures?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, with respect for the honourable member for Stuart, there have not been constant power failures. There have been a number of minor power failures emanating from the Alice Springs power-station. At the outset I would like to put the minds of the community at rest and put a certain employee in a better light than he has been painted at the Alice Springs power-station. The rumour that was going around Alice Springs was that the power failures were caused by NTEC's employment of an inexperienced shift supervisor. These stories were quite damaging to that person because it is not difficult to work out which shifts coincided with the power failures. This became such widespread rumour in Alice Springs that I personally had the matter looked into. The truth of the matter is that the difficulty has involved the conversion of the first power plant, plant number 5, to the new duel fuel firing of gas and diesel.

For the benefit of honourable members, I might describe very briefly how the equipment works. It is not pure gas being injected into the cylinders because it is compressed gas. It simply cools down to such a stage that it liquifies. In other words, it has the opposite effect to the compression of gas. Clearly, it requires a detonating mechanism. From memory, about 10% dieseline is injected into the power plant and the remainder is gas. The dieseline then detonates as a normal diesel engine does. It ignites the gas and there is power. This is the first plant of this type attempted in Australia. One must reasonably expect that there will be some teething problems. It is those teething problems which caused the automatic shut down of plant number 5. When that plant shuts down, it automatically triggers a power-shedding arrangement.

NTEC was faced with the problem that, as each unit was commissioned, there was a risk of teething problems occurring in each of the 8 units. That was unacceptable to the general public. NTEC has now arranged for a constant spinning reserve to be provided during the 100-hour test period. It takes about 100 hours to settle the plant down, I am told. During each of those 100-hour test period times, while the tested plant is on grid or on load, it will have a spinning reserve operating.

I think that it is fair to point out that this is not a cheap way to go about it. That sort of spinning reserve costs quite a lot of money. Over that 100-hour period, it costs several thousand dollars. We believe that, in order to guarantee the continuity of supply in Alice Springs, this spinning reserve will be maintained. With any sort of luck, during the commissioning process for the major use of natural gas in central Australia, a spinning reserve will be maintained. I am not guaranteeing it but, with luck, there ought to be a minimum of disruption from now on.

Power Charges in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Is Nabalco Mining Company the licensee for the Northern Territory Electricity Commission and, if so, is it the responsibility of the minister to fix and vary the charges?

ANSWER

The Northern Territory Electricity Commission has no direct role in that, although negotiations have been going on to clarify the relationship of NTEC with such undertakings as Nabalco. The same would apply to the uranium province and undertakings of that type where the public are recipients of electricity and are charged for the electricity consumed.

I am not certain as to the exact relationship at this time between the electricity commission and Nabalco. I would have to check that out. But I am certain that, whatever relationship that is, it certainly does not include the power to override commercial decisions of a commercial undertaking such as the company mentioned by the honourable member.

Power Charges in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

Given that answer, I would ask him if he can confirm a statement made by the Chief Minister in this Assembly in February 1981 that power charges in Nhulunbuy had been increased by 17% to comply with the requirements of the Electricity Commission Act which specified that there had to be a standard charge for power throughout the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

I would have no recollection of what was said in 1981. Clearly, the question is asked to cast a complete red herring on the real issue of the reported 10% increase in electricity charges in Nhulunbuy. It is widely known, and he wants to bury it with red herrings, that it was the federal government's oil levy which caused this increase. If he has concerns about the increase in electricity charges in Nhulunbuy, I would suggest that he does not ask this side of the Assembly, which is not responsible for the necessary increases, but refer the matter to the Labor government in Canberra which is the direct and total cause of this increase. Let him not stand there and try to disguise the real issue. I will bet the honourable member for Nhulunbuy has done absolutely nothing about making representations to the Australian Labor government which is the true cause of this impost on Northern Territorians.

Power Charges in Nhulunbuy

Mr LEO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

In an attempt to extract an answer from the minister, I will repeat my question. Can he confirm a statement made by the Chief Minister in this Assembly in February 1981 that power charges in Nhulunbuy had been increased by 17% to comply with the requirements of the Electricity Commission Act which specified that there be a standard charge for power throughout the Northern Territory?

ANSWER

The answer to the question is, as I have already indicated, that I cannot. The fact remains, Mr Speaker, that, even if that was the case, there is nothing the Northern Territory Electricity Commission can do to prevent the 10% increase in Nhulunbuy imposed as a result of the Australian Labor Party government in Canberra. While I am on my feet, I point out that that is clearly demonstrated by the absolute compulsion placed on the Northern Territory Electricity Commission to increase its charges by at least 6.2% from 1 January this year for the very same reason.

Doctor for Jabiru

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for HEALTH

Has the position of a permanent doctor for Jabiru yet been filled?

ANSWER

Realising that the honourable member would ask me a question regarding the doctor for Jabiru, I asked the department to prepare a brief. I advise the honourable member that the Department of Health has placed advertisements in various newspapers and journals: the Weekend Australian, the Medical Journal of Australia, Lancet, the British Medical Journal, the New Zealand Medical Journal and the Hong Kong Medical Journal. The advertisement called for expressions of interest from doctors interested in establishing a private practice in Jabiru. It offered a package of assistance with the establishment and the initial operation of service. I understand, at the moment, that there has been no response to those advertisements but a doctor has been appointed temporarily to work in Jabiru until a decision is taken to appoint a permanent person to that position once the expressions of interest are received.

Dr Thorn is still providing a normal medical officer service at Jabiru and his term is due to expire in February 1984. Consequently, yesterday, I was discussing this particular problem with a resident of Jabiru who informs me that another doctor is in the area and has been working quite well. I am concerned that the Department of Health, at this stage, has not made any permanent arrangement to provide the service after January 1984. I intend taking that up with the Secretary of the Department of Health to discuss the problem that he may be having in appointing somebody after January 1984. In the next couple of weeks, it is my intention to visit the Jabiru area and talk to the people concerned.

Marina for Frances Bay or Doctor's Gully

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for LANDS

Is he aware of any firm proposal, including sketch plans, for the establishment of a marina in either the Frances Bay or Doctor's Gully area?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, I am not aware of any proposal whatsoever for Doctor's Gully other than fish feeding. As for Frances Bay, the honourable Minister for Transport and Works could better answer this question, but I have taken a bit of interest in it. The Northern Territory government is proposing to establish fore and aft moorings at Frances Bay. It will not quite be a marina in terms of what you would expect in Sydney. It will not be like some of those marinas on the north shore in Sydney, but at least there will be access for people wanting to get to the boats. Provision is being made for the reclamation of some land, an access way and some sort of little wharf. Piles will be put in. At least, I think that this is the case. There was some ingenious device shown to us some time ago. It was a series of chains that held the boats in place. It looked pretty complicated. I think they have gone back to piles. I hope that these piles will be put in place in the near future, within the next 6 months or so. I believe it will increase substantially the availability of Frances Bay for yacht mooring. It should enable a considerably greater number of yachts to moor there.

Further up in Frances Bay, there is a proposal for Sadgroves Creek. On a technicality, I really need not have mentioned it because I was asked about Doctor's Gully and Frances Bay. For Sadgroves Creek, there is a feasibility study being conducted by a firm of civil engineers as to whether there could be a marina combined with some sort of residential land subdivision. That has a long way to go yet. I would not want to excite anyone about it because I would rate its chances of getting off the ground at this stage as maybe 1 in 4. So many of these things come forward. People accost you on planes with sketches of proposed marinas and subdivisions for Darwin, and in airport waiting rooms. When you are walking down the street to Charlie's, they sidle up to you with a set of plans and so on. Only 1 in 20 of these things ever gets off the ground. Maybe the honourable Minister for Transport and Works might like to give us a better run down in the adjournment debate this afternoon of the provision of piles. We are going to insert piles, rather than operate for their removal, in Frances Bay.

Garbage Collection

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Has the government been approached by the Darwin City Council with a request to amend the Local Government Act to enable more than one garbage collector to collect garbage within the municipal boundaries?

ANSWER

If there has been an approach by the Darwin City Council, it has not come to my notice. It may have been made at officer level through the Local Government Division of the Department of Community Development. I am happy to get that information for the honourable member. If there is any advice on such a proposal, I will let him know the details of it.

Golden Perch at Koolpinyah Station

Mr DOOLAN to MINISTER for CONSERVATION

Some time ago, Mr Lawrence Ah Toy imported a considerable quantity of fish, commonly known as yellowbelly, into the Territory. They were to be kept in ponds for commercial purposes. At that time, he had a fish expert, Mr Chan Lee, working for him. He is no longer in his employ. As the yellowbelly are a voracious fish, known to eradicate indigenous fish if released in a waterhole, is it a fact that these fish have been released in creeks and waterholes in the vicinity of Koolpinyah Station?

ANSWER

I can only promise the honourable member that the matter he raises is one of concern to me. I will get him the information he is seeking later in the day. I would be extremely concerned to hear that a species such as the yellowbelly now has access to the Northern Territory's waterways. In fact, I will be surprised if it has. I will be very concerned if it has. Something will have to be done about it.

Mt Wells Battery

Ms D'ROZARIO to MINISTER for MINES and ENERGY

When the Mt Wells Battery was sold, the tender price was $300 000. Can he confirm whether the successful purchaser, Jingellic Minerals (NT), has yet paid the full tender price?

ANSWER

The answer is no. It is a particularly disappointing and miserable performance on behalf of Jingellic as a company. One can only note with disappointment that a company such as Jingellic can enter into a contract like that with the Northern Territory government, pay a 10% deposit and then fail in the remainder of its obligations to government. When you look at Jingellic's annual report, Mr Speaker, you will note a multi-million sum - I do not recall the exact amount - for which it purchased a share in a gold mine. It seems that it can expand its commercial activities in Western Australia but not honour its contracts with the Northern Territory in relation to the battery. I can assure honourable members and Jingellic that I would have cancelled the contract forthwith or alternatively taken action to ensure specific performance of that contract long ago had there been any prospect at that time of anyone else being able to buy and operate the battery, including the government itself. The position is the result of the world tin market. The quota system which has been applied upon indigenous tin mining in Australia has made it impossible for the battery to operate as a tin battery. Currently, we are negotiating with another party, who is well known in mining circles in the Northern Territory, to take over the operation of the battery. That person is negotiating with Jingellic in the hope that the matter can be resolved. Mr Speaker, the answer to the question is no. To say that I am disappointed and annoyed would be understating the position.

Female Prisoners

Ms LAWRIE to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

The honourable minister will be aware that alternative arrangements are made for long-term, male prisoners classified as a low security risk. Normally, this involves transfer to the Gunn Point Prison Farm. When will alternative arrangements be made similarly for low-risk, long-term female prisoners who at the moment have no option?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the honourable member's concern is noted. I regret that I have not responded to her on this matter earlier. There was a proposition put forward some time ago about the possibility of using Gunn Point Prison Farm. It did not receive a great deal of favour at the time for various reasons but I would undertake to take the matter up again with the prison authorities and see what arrangements they are making. I do accept that the premise that long-term women prisoners who are not a security risk ought to have an alternative environment during their period of rehabilitation.

Mt Wells Battery

ANSWER TO QUESTION

Mr ROBERTSON (Mines and Energy)(by leave): Mr Speaker, I would like to add to my answer in relation to Mt Wells Battery purchase. I recall now that the figure was not in the millions but was about $800 000, if I recall correctly. The exact amount paid by Jingellic to date is $28 500 of an amount of $363 750.

Seminars on Criminal Code for Aboriginal Communities

Mr BELL to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Will the government provide information seminars on the Criminal Code in Aboriginal communities?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, that matter was canvassed at the seminar held in Darwin last Saturday. It is amazing that the government basically has to do the job that the Aboriginal Legal Aid Service is paid for. It staggers me that representatives of the Aboriginal Legal Aid Service could stand up in a forum like that, purporting to represent the interest of Aboriginal people and the law - that is what their sole function is and it is of course one of the functions of the Northern Territory government - and say that the Aboriginal communities have never in any way been consulted about the Criminal Code. I believe it is a dereliction of duty of those legal officers.

The Aboriginal Legal Aid Service continues to be completely negligent in its duty. By the very nature of the request from the Aboriginal Legal Aid Service, it has indicated that it will continue to be negligent in its duty because it really indicated that it was not going to take the information to Aboriginal communities which it regularly visits and represents. Seeing that it did not intend to do it, then it was left to the government to do it. So the answer to the question is yes. Where and when reasonably required, this will be done. It will be done now at double the taxpayers' expense because it should have been done by that service ages ago.

Use of Manton Dam for Recreational Purposes

Mr LEO to MINISTER for TRANSPORT and WORKS

Have there been recent studies into the possible use of Manton Dam for recreational purposes? If so, has the government considered these studies and is it looking at changing its present policy on such use?

ANSWER

Ongoing studies have been undertaken into the use of Manton Dam for a number of years. Recreational activity has been prevented at the dam by virtue of public health requirements in respect of the water. At this stage, I would need to research the matter to see where we are at present. I will do that and report to the honourable member.

Bindi Centre

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

What action is proposed regarding the night-time care of young people with psychiatric problems who fit in with the Bindi Centre day program but who are considered to be a danger to control at night in the Bindi Centre?

ANSWER

There is no easy answer to this particular question. The Bindi Centre staff and the Department of Health are aware of this problem. They have discussed it on a number of occasions. I am hopeful a proposal will be put to me for consideration in the very near future. The young people accommodated at Bindi Centre are retarded. The psychiatric problems result from their mental and physical condition. The 3 young children in particular have caused problems. They have seen the Department of Health psychiatrists. There is really very little they can do. Ward 1 of the Alice Springs Hospital at this particular time is not an appropriate place for them because their problems are not amenable to psychiatric treatment. As I said, it is not an easy one. Hopefully, after the recent discussions between the Health Department and Bindi Centre people, the problem may be solved.

Aboriginal Legal Aid Service

Mr B. COLLINS to CHIEF MINISTER

Could he advise whether it is the policy of his government, as I am sure it is, that a reasonable obligation does exist on the government to provide public information on the government's own legislation? Could he confirm that he knows, as the honourable Attorney-General would know, that both Aboriginal Legal Aid Services have been close to the point of bankruptcy and are simply conducting their major work, which is defending their clients in court? On at least 2 occasions in the last 12 months, they have needed additional funding to do that work alone. Could he explain how the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services were supposed to do this ages ago when the act was only assented to a fortnight ago?

ANSWER

It is a bit disappointing this morning that the standard of questions is perhaps not as high as it might be. I hark back to the exercise where this Assembly passed the liquor legislation. At that time, the cooperation of the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services in disseminating information about the draft liquor legislation was virtually taken for granted by the government. The Aboriginal Legal Aid Services did, at that time, perform a very useful task in explaining the proposed legislation and participating in meetings in many communities as to the effect of the legislation on the people in those communities. Whilst I might concede that the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services say that they need more funds, there has been dispute about why they need the funds. For instance, the local Northern Territory bar has said that, if the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services - definitely the Central Australian Aboriginal Legal Aid Service, because I am not quite certain in relation to the North Australian Aboriginal Legal Aid Service - used local barristers instead of always bringing up southern counsel, then considerable savings would be made. So it could be that some of their financial problems are of their own making.

But I concede, as did the honourable Attorney-General, that the government has a role in information promulgation. We do not shrink from undertaking that task. I am just as surprised as he was to find that, in the period that the code has been under discussion, at no time when lawyers from the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services have visited communities have they taken the opportunity to discuss aspects that they say concern them. After all, they say these aspects concern them. But they have not concerned them enough to discuss it once with the people whom they are supposed to represent. Their charter is not simply that of a solicitor to take a client into the court and defend him. They have a much wider charter than that. I do not think that they have carried out the terms of their charter. I fully support my colleague in what he said. The Aboriginal Legal Aid Services should have been consulting with their potential clients because, whilst they certainly have a wide brief in terms of acting as it were without instructions, who are they representing?

It has become very clear from what has been said this morning that the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services have been representing the views of no one but some of the lawyers. I know they do not represent all the views of all the lawyers in their employ. A handful of lawyers in the employ of the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services have very strong views about different aspects of the code, views that, in most cases, are legally incorrect. In one or two cases only, these are views of difference in philosophy. It is quite obvious that this small coterie of lawyers in the Aboriginal Legal Aid Services have embarked on an ego trip quite at their own discretion and without any reference to the people whom they are supposed to be acting for. If they have the time to go around giving plenty of interviews to journalists and to rush down to consult with Victorian barristers, I wonder why they do not have money. I know that they have been doing that because it has been in the papers.

A gentleman who is in the employ of the North Australian Aboriginal Legal Aid Service was said to be closeted with some Victorian barrister. Not only that, he was closeted for the weekend with the Australian Attorney-General. It was reported in one of the newspapers, either here or nationally that this gentleman, whose name I just cannot remember - although he has been shouting a fair bit lately - was spending the weekend with Senator Evans. Unfortunately, Senator Evans cannot find the time, despite my invitations, to see Mr Des Sturgess, who formulated in great part the Criminal Code, but had to send a representative to talk to him. It is a great shame that the Australian Attorney-General does not want to speak to the 'horse's mouth' but is quite prepared to talk to these people who, it has now been proven, have gravely misconceived ideas about the Criminal Code.

We will be taking affirmative and positive action to ensure that not only Aboriginal people but the wider public of the Northern Territory are properly informed in relation to the Criminal Code, as best one can deal with such a massive subject. Honourable members can look forward to the commencement of a widespread publicity campaign, reaching into all corners of the community, in the very near future.

Consumer Affairs Reports

Mrs O'NEIL to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

The Consumer Affairs Act requires the Commissioner of Consumer Affairs to present an annual report to the Assembly. Why has the report not been presented for 1981 and when will the reports for the years 1981-82 and 1982-83 be presented to the Assembly?

ANSWER

I am not in a position to talk about 1980-81 and 1981-82. I can say that the report to come before the Assembly for this year is on my desk and will be presented to Cabinet before it is presented to the Assembly in the next sittings. On the advice of the honourable member, I will endeavour to table the earlier 2 reports at the same time.

Family Law Court

Ms LAWRIE to ATTORNEY-GENERAL

He will recall that, on Thursday 24 March, I drew his attention to the shortcomings and lack of privacy presently faced by people attending the Family Law Court in Darwin. In his considered reply, he acknowledged that there were deficiencies and stated that he would seek advice from court staff and the appropriate officials. Could he now advise the results of those consultations and any action which is likely to ensue?

ANSWER

I can only express to the honourable member my heartfelt penitence at my omission. I have not followed the matter up. I do know that there was a call for information from the various sections of the Department of Law involved in this. I apologise to the honourable member. I will make sure the information is obtained and provided to her without further delay.

ALP Submission to Freight Inquiry

Mr HARRIS to MINISTER for COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Is the minister aware of the content of the Labor Party submission to the recent freight inquiry and, if so, is he able to inform this Assembly if that submission has thrown any light on the freight problems being experienced by Territorians?

ANSWER

Mr Speaker, the level of questioning has just improved. I read with interest some weeks ago the submission put forward to the freight inquiry committee by the member for Millner on behalf of the Labor Party. It was one of those documents that would have been very easy to put down at any moment because it had very little in it. I did not do anything or say anything about it because of the nature and the weakness of the document. However, last night, the honourable member took up the time of the Assembly to tell us what a jolly good job he had done in preparing the report to the freight inquiry and how his report would assist the consumers of the Northern Territory.

Ms D'ROZARIO: A point of order, Mr Speaker! This Assembly has constituted an inquiry to examine the matter and the minister is reflecting upon the contents of a submission made to it. It is properly the privilege or right of the inquiry to perform that task.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, the question was phrased: 'Can the minister shed any light on whether the Labor Party's submission assists in the freight problems of the Northern Territory'. Mr Speaker, that is clearly a question seeking an opinion of the minister - a political opinion on a political document. It is completely out of order. Questions must seek information.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, the document is a public document and I am about to provide information if honourable members can restrain themselves for half a moment while I do it. I can understand the situation whereby the honourable members opposite do not want the document spoken about any further.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, I would not have raised the matter of the document myself but, in view of the fact that the member for Millner went to great lengths last night to tell us what a fantastic document it was, I thought I should explode the myth about the great things that the honourable member is doing on our behalf before the freight inquiry. I would like to read about 5 paragraphs from this document. If honourable members will listen to the words carefully, they will understand my concern about how the situation is being represented by the honourable member.

On page 5: 'It is recommended that this inquiry investigate the channels of distribution through which these items are forwarded to the end user in order that any deficiencies present might be exposed, overcome or minimised'. A little further on, it says: 'Any inquiry into freight costs is faced with the task of both segmenting the overall cost structure of goods sold in the marketplace and quantifying these costs on a unit basis'. There are 30 pages of these miscellaneous quotes from high school primers on economics. On another page, we read: 'However, in the absence of any economies of scale and at normal profit levels, a firm reducing its freight rates may increase its volume of trade but would not reduce its per unit cost hence reducing profitability'. It goes on to say: 'There has also been a trend within the transport industry to increase profit performance by differentiating services and then increasing freight rate scales, the argument being that the consumer is prepared to pay a premium for higher-priced services'.

When one starts to analyse all that and read it carefully ...

Ms D'ROZARIO: A point of order, Mr Speaker! This inquiry has not been set up by the minister but by this Assembly. It is not the function of the minister to comment on the evidence that is placed before this inquiry. If he wished to be a member of the inquiry, he should have appointed himself to it. The minister is not just giving information from the submission. He is giving opinions on the submission as well.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, I can understand why the honourable member would not want a word of this spoken about in the community because, if the average Darwin citizen read that, he would not believe it because no one would understand it anyway.

Members interjecting.

Mr SPEAKER: Order, order!

Mr TUXWORTH: I understand the honourable member's frustration and I will try to be brief for her benefit.

Mr B. Collins: It will be the first time in history.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, as the honourable member says, there is a first time in history and I am happy to accommodate him on this occasion.

Mr Speaker, this submission is not about freight in the Northern Territory; it is a collection of paragraphs taken out of high school textbooks. The honourable member for Millner is entitled to his opinion that this is a great submission. I am about to point out that it is not a submission but a series of instructions to the inquiry. It does not outline any facts or problems, present any options or discuss any of the realities of the Northern Territory freight system in any way at all. Nowhere in this submission is anything mentioned but roads. There is no mention of shipping. Given the honourable member's connection with the waterfront ...

Mr B. COLLINS: A point of order, Mr Speaker! This performance is turning the Assembly's freight inquiry into a total fiasco. Apart from that, the minister himself has indicated by his statement that it is not a submission, but a collection of this, that and the other. He is offering political opinions on the document. That is clearly in contravention of the Standing Order 93 which says that answers shall be relevant and opinions cannot be sought. Mr Speaker, the question is completely out of order.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members, there is no point of order. My adviser has pointed out that, while opinions may not be sought, that does not prevent the honourable minister giving an opinion.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, I have no argument with that proposition. The point of order is not against the answer but against the original question. I suggest that the wording, which will be reported in Hansard tomorrow, clearly sought an opinion from the minister. I am not objecting to the answer but to the question.

Mr SPEAKER: There is no point of order.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, I wish to move a dissent from your ruling on this matter.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, I must say that ...

Ms D'ROZARIO: A point of order, Mr Speaker!

Mr SPEAKER: What is the point of order?

Ms D'ROZARIO: Mr Speaker, there is a motion of dissent before you.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, perhaps we could seek a Hansard proof of the actual question.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members, the sittings will be suspended until the ringing of the bells.

Sittings suspended.

Mr Speaker MacFarlane resumed the Chair.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members, I have checked with the extremely efficient Hansard we have here. The question was: 'Is the minister aware of the content of the Labor Party submission to the recent freight inquiry and, if so, is he able to inform this Assembly if that submission has thrown any light on the freight problems being experienced by Territorians?'

I stick by my ruling. In view of the question asked and the verification of that by Hansard, I request the Leader of the Opposition to withdraw his dissent motion.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, in view of the discussion that was held outside the Chamber and the agreement that was reached and on the understanding that the honourable the minister will withdraw, I will withdraw. If he is satisfied that his statement has been sufficient, I am quite happy to withdraw, and I will withdraw, my motion of dissent.

Mr SPEAKER: Honourable members, I am not happy with that. The question is allowable.

Mr B. COLLINS: Mr Speaker, the statement I made was unconditional. I said, in closing: 'I will withdraw my motion of dissent' - unequivocally, I withdraw.

Mr SPEAKER: Thank you.

Mr TUXWORTH: Mr Speaker, I have completed my answer to the question.

Mr ROBERTSON: Mr Speaker, could I seek leave of the Assembly to make a gratuitous comment on how I see procedure in this matter?

Members: No!

Mr ROBERTSON: All right.

Poisons and Dangerous Drugs Act

Mr D.W. COLLINS to MINISTER for HEALTH

Is he aware of concern from the medical profession about practical problems relating to the Poisons and Dangerous Drugs Act, particularly the need for written permission before administering one-dose schedule-A drugs in maternity cases and also relating to repeat prescriptions? If so, will he undertake to investigate these claims and seek to remedy them if possible?

ANSWER

I am aware that there are problems relating to the Poisons and Dangerous Drugs Act. In fact, I have received a submission from the Pharmaceutical Association of the hospital and I will undertake to investigate the matter.
