Subject: Victims of crime entitlement to information

QUESTION

If a person is registered on the victims register they are entitled to be told the following information about the offender: if they are transferred to another prison interstate or overseas, if they have applied for parole and whether it was granted, when wen they are due for release, if they have escaped and any recapture or if they have died in custody. Have there been any circumstances in the past year where this information has not been provided to the victim?
